"TAPS" SOUNDED FOR FIRST KEWASKUM BOY

Walter Mathieu, aged 20 years, son of John Mathieu, who is now at Wauquan, is the first one to be reported from this village, who gave his life while serving his country in the Rainbow Division in France. A telegram was received here on Monday morning stating that young Mathieu had died on July 18, 1918, of pneumonia. He was born in Campbellsport in April, 1898, and later came to this village with his parents, where he assisted his father in the painting business. Walter Mathieu enlisted in Co. E, Fond du Lac, in July 1917, which was one of the first companies to go overseas last fall, and take part in the big drives on the western front this summer.

Young Mathieu was well and favorably known in this community, and his many friends are well aware of the fact that Walter did not enlist to merely obtain glory and decorations for himself but that he went into the fight for the common cause of aiding humanity in making the world a better place to live in.

The spirit with which Mathieu entered the fight, has entered the hearts of all his friends and relatives, and instilled into our minds a far greater desire to finish the work for which he has sacrificed his life.

The death of Private Mathieu brings the first gold star to the service flag of his village.

FOOD REQUIRED TO FEED MEN ON OUR TRANSPORTS

An account of how soldiers are fed at sea is given in the daily newspaper published on a transport:

"Outside of providing 210,000 meals at sea, the mess officer of the ship has very little to do. Very little.

"He is only called upon to provide, by the regulations, 180 different varieties of food. That's all. Ever try to order 180 different things to eat? Yet this is the authentic list.

"The food needed to feed several thousand men at sea ranges beyond the glutton's dreams. You get the answer in the ship down below the water line, where 7,290 loaves of bread have been baked in one day, and where you stumble over variety, from 60,000 pounds of beef to 132,000 eggs, or a compartment of brick ice cream in a ten-degree above zero vault.

"And if this doesn't suit, you can bump along into 49,324 pounds of potatoes, 7,100 pounds of ham and bacon, 7,800 pounds of butter, 9,200 pounds of sugar, and 61,500 pounds of flour.

"If you can't get a meal out of this you can still fall back on 4,600 pounds of sausage, 3,400 pounds of sauerkraut, 28,000 pounds of apples, 19,800 pounds of oranges, and 4,200 pounds of onions. And this leaves out 1,600 pounds of jam and 9,400 pounds of lima and navy beans."—Hartford Times.

SKETCHES OF SOLDIER LIFE

The following letter was received by William Schmidt Jr., of the town of Auburn, from his brother Erwin, who is at Camp Hancock, Ga.:

Dear Brother and Sister-in-Law:—

I received your most welcome letter and will answer it tonight, as I have some spare time, will tell you first about our drilling and our trip. In the forenoon we do all marching, in the afternoon we go to the machine gun school and learn everything about the machine gun, how to take it apart and put it together again, also how to mount same and how to get the sight, the gun which I have been assigned to shoots about 480 shots per minute. We had a fine trip, when we left Fond du Lac we stopped at West Bend, where we met the Washington county boys, and some more at Milwaukee, and so on until we came to Columbus, where we had ten coaches. At Columbus we stayed four days, when we left for Hancock, Georgia, which took us through tunnels. In the states of Ohio and Kentucky the ground was quite level. In Oakdale, Tenn., we stopped and marched part ways up the mountains and back to the depot. At Chattanooga, Tenn., we stopped again, here the Red Cross passed some ice cream among us, and again at Rome, Ga., the Red Cross handed us cigarettes and soda water. From here we did not stop until we reached Camp Hancock, Ga. I do not know how long we will stay here, I passed the overseas examination and have received my overseas equipment. Emil Bartelt and Charles Fleischmann are not far from my tent, they are in the same company I am in, while Paul Seefeldt is in the 45th Co. It sure is awful hot here. I wish I could see dear old Wisconsin where the green grass grows, I have not seen any since I am down here. There are about 50,000 soldiers at Camp Hancock and it covers about 640 acres of land. Will close for this time, with best regards to all. I am your brother, Private Erwin Schmidt.

The key note of the piece is diversion, and to this Kilroy & Britton have employed the catchiest music, the brightest dialogue, and the handsomest girls to appear in the musical ensembles. The production is also superbly staged and costumed and represents the newest idea in theatricals in every particular. A military love story with a musical comedy flavor. "My Sammy Girl" will hold the boards of the Henry Boyle Theatre, Fond du Lac, August 18th, for one night and one matinee.

ATTENTION THRESHERMEN

At our last meeting a number of the threshermen in Washington County failed to attend. These men must comply with the rules and regulations laid down by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Daily record books and monthly record sheets were handed out at this meeting, and those who have not received them should write to Henry Rolfs, the Food Administrator, or Geo. A. Blank, the County Agent. The wheat reports must be sent promptly to the County Agent at the end of the month and no excuse will be accepted.

Geo. A. Blank,
Wash. Co. Agr. Agent.

The Army Medical Department has developed a mobile X-ray outfit to be carried on the standard Army ambulance to the front-line trench for the benefit of wounded soldiers. It is desired by Army surgeons to lose no time in ascertaining the extent and positions of wounds. The outfit is made up of the Deleo gas-electric set, the high-tension transformer, and the special type of Coolidge tube.

"TAPS" SOUNDED FOR FIRST KEWASKUM BOY

Walter Mathieu, aged 20 years, son of John Mathieu, who is now at Wauquan, is the first one to be reported from this village, who gave his life while serving his country in the Rainbow Division in France. A telegram was received here on Monday morning stating that young Mathieu had died on July 18, 1918, of pneumonia. He was born in Campbellsport in April, 1898, and later came to this village with his parents, where he assisted his father in the painting business. Walter Mathieu enlisted in Co. E, Fond du Lac, in July 1917, which was one of the first companies to go overseas last fall, and take part in the big drives on the western front this summer.

Young Mathieu was well and favorably known in this community, and his many friends are well aware of the fact that Walter did not enlist to merely obtain glory and decorations for himself but that he went into the fight for the common cause of aiding humanity in making the world a better place to live in. The spirit with which Mathieu entered the fight, has entered the hearts of all his friends and relatives, and instilled into our minds a far greater desire to finish the work for which he has sacrificed his life.

The death of Private Mathieu brings the first gold star to the service flag of his village.

FOOD REQUIRED TO FEED MEN ON OUR TRANSPORTS

An account of how soldiers are fed at sea is given in the daily newspaper published on a transport:

"Outside of providing 210,000 meals at sea, the mess officer of the ship has very little to do. Very little.

"He is only called upon to provide, by the regulations, 180 different varieties of food. That's all. Ever try to order 180 different things to eat? Yet this is the authentic list.

"The food needed to feed several thousand men at sea ranges beyond the glutton's dreams. You get the answer in the ship down below the water line, where 7,290 loaves of bread have been baked in one day, and where you stumble over variety, from 60,000 pounds of beef to 132,000 eggs, or a compartment of brick ice cream in a ten-degree above zero vault.

"And if this doesn't suit, you can bump along into 49,324 pounds of potatoes, 7,100 pounds of ham and bacon, 7,800 pounds of butter, 9,200 pounds of sugar, and 61,500 pounds of flour.

"If you can't get a meal out of this you can still fall back on 4,600 pounds of sausage, 3,400 pounds of sauerkraut, 26,000 pounds of apples, 19,800 pounds of oranges, and 4,200 pounds of onions. And this leaves out 1,600 pounds of jam and 9,400 pounds of lima and navy beans."—Hartford Times.

CAMERA IS REAL EYE OF ARMY

Photographer Must Encounter Battle Perils Practically Without Fighting Chance.

IMPORTANT PLACE IN WAR

Hundreds of Snapshots Taken From Air Are Cunningly Fitted Together to Make Complete Photograph of Any Given Section.

London.—To call the British airmen the eyes of the army is a common metaphor. Even at the beginning of the war they did much observation for the artillery besides playing the leading part in general reconnaissance. But their present value in all matters of observation greatly exceeds anything that was expected at the beginning. Without aircraft in important numbers, and without aircraft, whatever their numbers, which can hold their own against the enemy, an army is practically blind; and without their cameras airmen would not be the all-seeing eyes that they are. For, as the airman is the eye of the land forces, so the camera is the eye of the airman. It at least provides that part of his vision which is most penetrating and accurate.

A series of photographs from the air is a wonderful piece of work. Hundreds of snapshots go to make it, and these are so cunningly fitted together that a complete photograph is obtained. So the work goes on, section by section, and by degrees is procured a picture, which cannot lie, of the whole of the enemy's defenses from flank to flank of his lines. As his dispositions are constantly changing, or at least being elaborated in important respects, there is no rest for the aerial photographers and no end to their work.

Every day on which there is a reasonable visibility until the end of the war they must fly into the face of danger to discover new secrets with their cameras. The danger is of a particularly unpleasant kind, because throughout the operation they are within effective range of Archibald—the anti-aircraft gun—which is the flying man's most inveterate if not his most deadly enemy. To take a series of photographs of an enemy position needs a special coolness and nerve.

A Trip With the "Eye."
This is a typical quiet morning in a day of the photographers of the air. A machine is run out from the sheds, and pilot and observer mount to their places. It is not a fast airplane, as speed is not counted, but each man is armed with a machine gun, and attack from the air will be met with stout and efficient resistance. Attack from the ground cannot be answered. It can only be evaded by maneuver. Through a hole in the fuselage or body of the machine a camera points earthward, capable of reproducing a considerable area on each plate exposed. The device by which the snapshots are taken is as simple as it is ingenious, and it is almost "fool proof."

In half an hour or so the machine has crossed the lines at a height of little more than 4,000 feet. Far above are small, fast scouts, ready to attack any aerial enemy that may attempt to interfere with the work below. From the first, anti-aircraft guns are uncomfortably attentive, but the bursts can at this stage be defeated by climbing, diving or swerving movements.

It is when the actual objective of photographic attack has been reached that the real difficulties and dangers come. Further dodging and diving are no longer practicable, since an accurate pictorial record can only be obtained by steady flying. The airplane must be as level as possible when a snapshot is taken. Yet the enemy knows the purpose of the invader and chooses this moment to make his utmost effort to destroy him. The Arch-bursts are thicker than ever. The range has been nicely judged; the bursts are well aimed.

Under Difficulties.
In the midst of them the two must do their work as steadily and quietly as if the air were still. Up and down,

WAR ON CHILDREN

Little Jeanne's mother, living up in a French village near the front, finally had to send her to the American Red Cross asylum at Toul because she was too little to put on her own gas mask.

over the narrow section of ground whose secret must be won, the pilot steers, for the most part an even course. Shells burst closely round them, on this side and that, beneath and above. At moments the pilot is forced to swerve, but he must quickly get level and resume his ordered course.

Meanwhile the observer studies intently the pitted earth below, which would appear to the uninitiated as indefinite as a huge plowed field. But his practiced eye picks out its essential features, and, regardless of the shells, he presses his lever at carefully timed intervals. At last the deed is done—just as a shell bursts close under their tail and tosses them upward as a wave might lift a cork. Fortunately the damage is slight.

"Finished?" asks the pilot through his telephone.
"Finished," says the observer.
And they swing for home with an inevitable sense of relief.

It is all in the day's work—a very ordinary job. But even the airman's most ordinary job is out of the common as a risky experience. As for the knowledge obtained, it may prove of vital importance. The camera is more than an eye; it is a weapon. And the hand that controls it must be as purposeful and steady as if it held a rifle.

WOMAN WINDOW WASHER PATRIOTIC AND PLUCKY

Seattle, Wash.—"Shucks," said Mrs. Bessie McGilvery, who does the most hazardous window washing in Seattle, as she recently leaned over the sill of a 35-story window, "why not? I get a man's pay—$50 a month—and release a man for the trenches."

That is the way she views her chance for life with only a two-inch leather strap between her and death.

ENGLISH TRAIN YANK AVIATORS

Finishing Touches Are Given in an Airdrome in Quiet Country Spot.

FIRST SOLO FLIGHTS THRILL

Fledgling Flyers Go Up Alone Only After Course With Instructor—First Flight Is Closely Watched.

An American Airdrome in England.—This is one of the numerous aviation camps in England where Americans are receiving their finishing touches as flyers. When they leave here for the battle front in France they know all that can be taught about flying. Only the school of experience can supply the post-graduate course that makes Gwynemers and Luthers.

The airdrome is set in one of those beautiful spots that one calls to mind from classic pictures of English landscapes. It is early in June and the great level field that stretches away in front of the hangars is like a rich green carpet. Beyond there is a woodland, and in the distance is a range of low hills whose smooth contour recalls to Western Americans the foothills of California.

It is a peaceful place and very quiet except for the droning of airplanes. At least a dozen are in the air and others are preparing for flight. Into one of these latter a young Kentuckian has just climbed. For the first time he is flying up alone.

Passes All First Tests.

For weeks the British instructor has been with him constantly and he has passed successfully the major tests. He can fly straight, the instructor sitting beside him has made sure, and he can work the controls without fear or "nerves." He knows how to stall, to glide and to climb, and he has learned a good deal, too, about the important art of landing.

On one memorable occasion the instructor has shouted to him above the roaring of the engine: "Shall we loop?" and they did. But hitherto, of course, the instructor has been the real pilot, explaining maneuvers, encouraging the young man to secure an accurate touch, and to become, as he must if he is to be successful, so perfect a master of the machine that he can make it fly of itself.

The fact that it is his first flight is known at the airdrome and many eyes are watching to see him "take off."

Gives Final Instructions.

With a tremendous sputtering the engine starts. The instructor, standing on the step of the fuselage, holds to his cap against the burrcaise raised by the propellers and shouts his final directions. He points to the instruments, shows what the engine revolutions should be, feels the controls, and bids the new "soloist" good cheer.

LIEUT. PAT O'BRIEN DID IT

Famous Ace Clears Up Mystery That Puzzled College Authorities For Years.

Berkeley, Cal.—A college prank which proved a mystery to the University of California for several years was cleared up here recently when Lieut. Pat O'Brien, the American "ace" who fell 8,000 feet into Germany and then escaped from a Hun prison camp, confessed to an audience of 10,000 in the Hearst Greek theater that he was "guilty."

On St. Patrick's day several years ago the university woke up to find its beautiful gold letter "C" on Charter Hill, overlooking the campus, shining forth in brilliant green. Investigations and probes failed to disclose whose hand had redecorated the big "C" and the school officials never knew until Lieutenant O'Brien made his "confession."

FROCK MADE OF FLOUR SACKS

Wisconsin Woman Designs One That Sets Pace Among Fashion Followers.

Sheboygan, Wis.—Flour sack dresses are again coming into their own as a result of the war. Time was when grandma's everyday summer white dress was made of flour sacks, but "times had changed since grandma was a girl." Then the price of dress goods began to soar again. Mrs. Anna Schuler has made a white summer dress out of 12 flour sacks and it's decidedly attractive; so much so, in fact, that it has set a pace among followers of local Dame Fashion and the demand for the new style dresses is now general.

Gets Potash From Dust.

Pittsburgh.—James D. Rhodes, a Pittsburgh manufacturer, says he has discovered a process by which he can extract potash from the dust from cement during manufacture in the kilns. Federal Judge Charles P. Orr heard the process explained and ordered Rhodes to enter into an agreement with an Ohio cement company to experiment with a view of adding the government to obtain potash for munitions and fertilizers.

KIDNAPED, LOST 32 YEARS

Connecticut Woman Traces Family, Finding Brother in United States Army.

Trenton, N. J.—Thirty-two years after she was kidnaped while playing near her home at Mount Kisco, N. Y., Mrs. Ida Dinges Haywood of Long Hill, Conn., learned of her identity and communicated with her brother, Lieut. George Dinges, U. S. A., stationed at Tullytown, Pa., near Trenton. She is the wife of A. A. Haywood.
Ida May Dinges was two years old when stolen. She was subsequently adopted by a family named Hebbard. It was not until the death of her foster parents that she learned who she was. She traced many Dinges families in various parts of the country and finally found her brother through the war department.
Lieutenant Dinges said he plans to have the bodies of the foster parents exhumed. In order to examine legal documents which were buried with them, and which he thinks may disclose circumstances relating to the kidnaping.

WHIPPING POST DOES TRICK

Loafers Disappear When One Is Erected on Scene of Favorable Hang Out.

Birmingham, Ala.—An old-time whipping post with accommodations for two has been erected at Five Points in this city. The post stands out prominently before a background of trees and has written across the top: "For Loafers." Five Points has for years been the favorite hang-out place of scores of the city's idle rick. Following the work or fight order and the subsequent erection of the whipping post the usual gang of loafers puffing cigarettes with idle hands rammed into the pockets, has totally disappeared.

Paris Achieves Lovely Afternoon Gowns

Now that women feel it a duty to make afternoon gowns do service for evening wear, the ingenuity of costumers is put to the test. From one of the great Paris designers comes the lovely gown pictured above and it is a triumph of French discernment and good taste; for it is quiet enough for daytime wear and distinguished enough for evening. It is of black satin with embroidery in silver thread. This combination appears also in French millinery from the most authoritative sources, but in hats black frame velvet is used instead of satin.

We may accept this gown as a criterion in hues and general make up of styles for the coming season. It has a narrow, plain underskirt of moderate length and a straight hanging overgarment vaguely confined to the figure by an easy girde terminating in sash ends. The girde is made of satin and that portion that encircles the waist is embroidered while the sash ends are plain. The skirt portion of the overdress is as long as the underskirt at the back and considerably shorter in front. This is a new development of the tunic skirt which is destined to reappear in winter gowns. The embroidered band on the back portion is not so wide as it is on the front.

The sleeves and collar are especially interesting because they are both new departures. Both are as plain as possible but each is original. The sleeves are cut full length and flaring but are trimmed away at the wrist until the upper portion extends only a few inches below the elbow. The up-standing collar is of black crepe georgette and is supported by a few very small, unnoticeable wires.

Satin in black and in dark colors, promises to be of all fabrics the most used for afternoon gowns. New draped skirts and new tunic skirts appear and silver tinsel in embroidered bands is sure to be followed by silver lace in conjunction with them.

Among the Blouses for Fall

There is really an endless assortment of blouses all ready for women who look to the blouse more than ever to provide them variety in their apparel. Since we may not have so many frocks, what with the scarcity of wool and labor and everything, we must turn to the blouses made of cottons or those of silk to add the spice of variety to skirts and suits that are serving overtime.

Blouses are of two characters—those that are moderate in price—anywhere from about three dollars to eight or ten—and those that employ lavish or difficult handwork that brings their value up to two or three times the outside price of those in the other class. It seems inconsistent to talk of war-time economy in the same breath with these extravagantly priced affairs, but it is not always so; some of them are remarkably durable. The blouses that most women will buy, however, are the moderately priced models that are new and smart in design. French voile, fine batiste and georgette crepe are the materials to select—no matter what the price—for it is not in the materials but in the laces and other decorative features that take much time to make, that the high value lies. Women who know how to do exquisite needlework have the advantage because they can do this exacting handwork for themselves. Fine organdie is another material that helps solve the problem of dainty blouses at moderate prices.

Georgette remains a great favorite, and the two new models shown in the picture for two are of this delicate and beautiful material. They are among the considerable number that either slip on over the head or fasten along one shoulder. In the blouse at the left two colors are used—a panel at the front in color joined to the white of the blouse by handwork. Hemstitching is used in voile or other cottons and in silks to introduce a becoming touch of color by joining it to white blouses. This blouse has the round neck finished with a frill and the bands of ribbon laid over the cuffs, which are among new style features.

The blouse at the right is of georgette in a pale color, braided with soutache in the same shade. It fastens on the shoulder under a collar that is ornamented with two small silk covered balls.

When You Put Lace On.

We are not doing much in the way of fancy work nowadays. Knitting takes up all our spare time, and to it we devote our energy. But perhaps you will have occasion to sew some lace on a curving edge—like that of a centerpiece—and if you do, writes a correspondent, here is a little trick divulged by a woman who is experienced in such things. Roll the lace in a little roll and tie it with a thread so that it will not unroll. Then dip the straight edge in hot water. Just the edge, and about half the width of the lace. Wring the water out and dry the lace, still in the little roll. When it is dry the inside will be slightly shrunken, so that it will measure less than the outside, and so you will have less difficulty in fitting it to the curved edges of the centerpiece.

He only will please long, who by tempering the acidity of Sature with the sugar of Civility, and allaying the heat of Wit with the frigidity of Humble Chat, can make the true Punch of Conversation.—Johnson.

CHEESE A MEAT SAVER.

Cheese is best uncooked, but when served in dishes that are to be cooked the heat should never be very high, as an intense heat toughens the protein and makes it stringy and difficult of digestion. Since it is such a highly concentrated food it should be served with foods that supply roughage or bulk. Cheese as the finish to a dinner is always served with crackers because the hard cracker must be well masticated and thus the cheese is finely divided and made more digestible.

Cheese Pudding.—Take one cupful of stale bread crumbs, one cupful of grated cheese, two cupfuls of milk, two eggs well beaten, two tablespoonfuls of melted fat, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of mustard, salt and paprika to taste. Mix the ingredients as for custard, turn the mixture into a greased baking dish and set in a pan of hot water to bake in a slow oven. Bake until firm.

Scalloped Cabbage With Cheese.—Cook the cabbage with leaves separated, uncovered in a little salted water as possible. As soon as the cabbage is tender, drain and add cheese sauce; bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven.

Cheese Sauce.—Make a white sauce using one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a tablespoonful of butter or fat, a half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of paprika and four tablespoonfuls to a cupful of grated cheese.

Cottage Cheese Loaf.—Take a cupful each of cooked kidney beans, cottage cheese, ground peanuts, bread crumbs and boiled rice, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one tablespoonful of fat, a cupful of tomato juice. Mix all the ingredients and form the mixture into a roll. Brush it with melted fat and bake in a moderate oven 25 minutes. Serve with a thick white sauce in which two tablespoonfuls of chopped red peppers have been added.

A cupful of cottage cheese added to a potato salad makes a much more nourishing and savory salad.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

A new dish is always welcome, and she who originates a new and appetizing dish is deserving of much credit in those days of substitutions and economies.

Curry of Rabbit.—Select a fat young rabbit which, if fresh, will have no unpleasant odor. Skin and clean it and split down the back. Disjoint and cut into convenient-sized pieces for serving; wipe each with a damp cloth and parboil it in a little vinegar water if the gamey taste is at all objectionable. Season with salt and pepper, roll in barley or corn flour and brown in a little salt pork fat. In the fat left in the pan put one sliced onion and cook until slightly colored. Mix two teaspoonfuls of curry powder with one teaspoonful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, and brown this mixture in the fat. Add slowly one pint of water and a cupful of strained tomato, six chopped raisins, one cupful of chopped sour apple, a few dashes of cayenne and salt to taste. Turn this sauce over the rabbit and let it simmer until the flesh is tender. When ready to serve, add a cupful of hot milk and a quarter of a cupful of chopped olives. Have ready a cupful of cooked rice, turn the rabbit into a platter and pile the rice around the edge.

Malabar Rice.—Cook together one tablespoonful of finely chopped onion and two tablespoonfuls of sweet fat; when well cooked, add one cupful of well-washed and drained rice. Stir it often until a light brown. Mix a quart of strong beef stock and one pint of strained tomato. Season highly with salt and cayenne. Add these to the rice and let it cook very slowly on the back part of the stove or in the fireless cooker. Just before serving, add more seasoning, if needed, and pour over it two tablespoonfuls of melted butter; add two large cardamom seeds split, and turn into a hot dish.

A cupful of grated cheese stirred into hot mush makes a nourishing and wholesome dish.

New Pleurisy Treatment.

Doctor Auld tells in the British Medical Journal of a chill and fever resembling malaria which he brought on by administering a platinum compound, and which upon subsiding left the patient in a markedly improved condition. He tried the treatment in cases of pleurisy with good result. It is especially adapted to sluggish cases of localized infection with low fever.

"MOLLY WELLINGTON."

"Cluck, cluck, cluck. I am Molly Wellington."

"And why are you so proud of being Molly Wellington?" asked Miss Gray Hen.

"My dear Miss Hen, you are not nearly as clever as you should be." "Perhaps not," said Miss Gray Hen. "I don't suppose anyone or any creature is as clever as possible. And I am quite sure I'm not, but then I don't mind. I'm happy, cluck, cluck, and it's far better to be happy than it is to be clever. A creature may be clever and very unhappy. I've often known that to be the case."

"Perhaps," said Molly Wellington, "but then a creature may be clever and happy, too. Isn't that perfect?" "That would be nice, I admit," said Miss Gray Hen.

"That is what I am," said Molly Wellington, "and my name is fine, too. Isn't it?"

"I suppose it's all right, as names go," said Miss Gray Hen.

"What do you mean by saying that my name is all right as names go? That shows you are even more stupid than I thought."

"Why?" asked Miss Gray Hen.

"Because names don't go," said Molly Wellington. "Names haven't legs and feet with which to walk and run and play. Names are quiet things—they are simply names."

"That's bright, indeed," said Miss Gray Hen, smiling in her funny hen way. "But I never for a moment said that names were not names. Of course they are. I'm bright enough to know that."

"But you said that you supposed my name was all right as names went, and I am trying to correct you from saying anything so incorrect again."

"My dear Molly Wellington, you of the fine name," said Miss Gray Hen, "I didn't mean that names went running around in circles, or along driveways, or through fields. I meant that as a saying. I meant that your name was all right, but that I didn't think any name was so very important, nor so very wonderful."

"Oh, that is what you meant then," said Molly Wellington. "And you didn't mean that you thought names ran and walked?"

"Of course not," said Miss Gray Hen.

"Well, even if you don't think much of names, won't you admit that mine is very nice and fancy?"

"Oh, I suppose so," said Miss Gray Hen. "But Molly Wellington, even if names don't go running or walking around—and I have never thought that they did—still names do belong to people and the people run and walk around. You have a name and you don't stay so still, and so I was really being far brighter than I thought."

"Cluck, cluck, you're such a stupid hen after all," said Molly Wellington.

"I thank you, cluck cluck, I thank you," said Miss Gray Hen.

"I can't help being proud," said Molly Wellington, "as I have just had a very great compliment paid to me. I am not just one hen in the world, or the barnyard. I'm a very fine, exceptionally fine hen. I'm the greatest hen in the world."

"Dear me, dear me, cluck, cluck, cluck," said Miss Gray Hen. "Never have I heard of such conceit."

"It's not conceit," said Molly Wellington, "it's pride."

"Oh, all right," said Miss Gray Hen. "You see," said Molly Wellington, "I've always thought I had a pretty nice name for a hen. It always made me feel like doing my duty and working. But I never knew before that I had really done so much and had become so famous."

"This morning the master brought out a big silver cup and put it beside me. It was a cup I had won for my master because of my splendid work. It was marked with my name and his name, and it was a magnificent cup. Then a man with a big camera came and took our pictures—mine and the cup. It was a fine picture. I stood so straight, and looked the man right in the eye when he said,

"Look just here, now smile!"

"And then I heard the master say that I was the champion egg layer of the whole wide world. My record has been to have laid three hundred and twenty-five eggs in the last year, and that's the world's record. So I'm Molly Wellington, a world champion, cluck, cluck."

Packers' Profits - Large or Small

Packers' profits look big—when the Federal Trade Commission reports that four of them earned $140,000,000 during the three war years.

Packers' profits look small—
When it is explained that this profit was earned on total sales of over four and a half billion dollars—or only about three cents on each dollar of sales.

This is the relation between profits and sales:

BIG DISPLAY OF TROPHIES OF WAR

Government to Give Exhibition in Chicago in September.

FOR BENEFIT OF THE PEOPLE

Trenches, Guns, Airplanes, Torpedoes, "Whiz-Bangs" and All the Material of Warfare, Together With Plunder Taken from Huns.

Chicago.—In order that the people of this region may see just how their sons, brothers, husbands and friends are fighting in France, what they are fighting with and what they are fighting against, the United States government is going to hold in Chicago the biggest and most complete war exhibition the country has seen. Seventeen carloads of war trophies, consisting largely of cannon, rifles, airplanes, etc., captured from the Germans, and materials of war used by the allies, will be on exhibition for two weeks in Grant park from Labor day, September 2, until September 15.

It is not a private money making affair, but an official exposition, given by the government through the committee on public information and the Illinois State Council of Defense, and in which the governments of France, Great Britain, Canada, Italy, and Belgium participate. Nothing is for sale. Nothing is to be promoted. The admission fee will be very small, and if it pays the bare expenses of bringing the exhibits here and placing them before the public, that is all that is wanted. If there should be a surplus, it goes by law into the United States treasury and reduces by that much the burdens of the taxpayer.

Will Reproduce Battlefield.

It will be a battlefield, reproduced faithfully to the smallest detail, within the limitations of the grounds. Front line trenches will be there, laid out by the very officer who laid them out in that Flanders battlefield where the Princess Pats fought until there are now but three men left alive of the original regiment.

It will show No Man's Land—all but the ghastly death scenes and one can well imagine them—that strip of ground ruled over by jealous Death where neither Boche nor human being dares set foot except by stealth and in the darkest hour of night. No Man's Land, with its great cellars digged by shells, with its plowed and torn and pulverized dirt and gravel, with its wilderness of barbed wire entanglements, with its wrecks of guns and wagons and airplanes.

First aid stations will be shown, with the blessed sign of the Red Cross at the entrance—favorite mark for German shells.

Guns of all sizes and kinds, with soldiers and sailors to man them and show how they are used; airplanes, signal stations, listening posts, fire-control stations—everything that can be reproduced in so small a field, will be shown.

There will be the incendiary pastels of which every German soldier at the beginning of the war carried six. With these they burned houses and churches. The city of Louvain was burned with them.

Show American Trophies.

Of the greatest interest to Americans will be the war material used by our boys, and the trophies captured by them from the enemy. Oh, yes, there are guns and plunder of all kinds taken from the proud Germans by the Yankee boys—and if it be possible to get them here in time there will be a big display of cannon captured by Chicago troops in the great battle now raging between the Marne and the Aisne. A cable has been sent to General Pershing asking him, if possible, to ship some of the booty over in time for the great exposition at Chicago.

The Italian exhibit contains a great many specimens of Austrian guns and shells. There is an incendiary bomb dropped on Venice in an effort to burn that splendid city; an Austrian floating mine; guns from Austrian submarines; torpedoes taken from Austrian submarines destroyed by the Italian navy, and the innumerable forms of rifles, trench tools, shells, periscopes, bayonets, and clothing used by the Italian army.

Remembering their beloved cathedral of Reims, the French have placed with their exhibit a shrine, wrecked by the Germans. But they also have spoils taken in the hottest battles—guns and gun carriages, "whiz-bangs" trench mortars, mine wafers, German 8-inch incendiary shells, airplanes of the type which tried to destroy Paris, and Zeppelin bombs. There is a complete exhibit of the famous French field gun, the "75," so-called because its caliber is 75 millimeters.

Guns From Cruiser Emden.

The British exhibit includes guns from the cruiser Emden, which a British ship destroyed; guns taken from the Turks; guns captured in Gallipoli, and all manner of wreckage from a score of battlefields. Of great interest are the British medals awarded for conspicuous bravery or great service to the empire.

Canada, of course, sets great store by her trophies from famous Vimy Ridge, Passchendaele, Ypres and wherever the rugged fighters met the Hun. Though America has been in the fighting only a year, there is a long

No Kick Then.
The motor car dealer met an under-taker one afternoon to whom he had recently sold a second-hand car.
"Well, Lane," said the dealer, "how about that car I sold you? Everything going satisfactorily?"
"Well," replied the undertaker, "it did give me a little trouble at first. I used it for a mourning vehicle, you know, to carry the mourners and friends, and they don't like to be shook up in their grief. But now I'm using it as a hearse, and I haven't had any complaints so far."—Harper's Magazine.

By Absent Treatment.
Miss Skreeder was giving a concert all by herself and had succeeded in punctuating the roof in several places. The man with a heavy shock of bald-head started for the door, reeling as he went. A friend met him at the door.
"What's the matter, old top?" asked his friend, in a stage whisper.
"Oh, I'll be all right as soon as I get out of hearing distance. Just an attack of high-C sickness."

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. Watch Your Stomach In Hot Weather

A Cool, Sweet, Strong Stomach Your Best Safeguard Against Summer Sickness

"Keep your stomach in good working order during the hot summer months and you will have little to fear in the way of sickness" the advice many physicians give as hot weather approaches.
Good, sound, common sense advice, too. For very frequently, and especially in hot weather, these common stomach disorders which so many people seem to regard as of minor importance, do open the way for serious illness.
So keep your stomach sweet, cool and comfortable all summer long. The extra war work—change of diet—poisons that come with hot weather—all hit us in the stomach. The strongest stomach will need help this summer as never before.
The one easy way if you have the right remedy is to rid the stomach of too much acid. Because it's superacidity that interferes with digestion and assimilation, and this causes about all those stomach miseries you are so familiar with—heartburn, food-repeat-

Casus Belli.
"Yes'm," through his bruised lips confessed the little boy whose hair sprang uncurlly and whose freckles were as the sands on the seashore, "I've been fighting. Skinny Smith bet me a thousand dollars that his brother who is in the army would kill more Huns than my soldier brother would. I bet him a million dollars his old brother wouldn't do any such thing. Then he bet me a billion he would, too. I didn't know any bigger number than that, and so, o' course, I had to whip him."—Kansas City Star.

It's a perfect little cherub, with the loveliest eyes, the sweetest little mouth, and the cunningest little nose. It looks as if it had just dropped from heaven, and every tiny feature had been fashioned by the angels."
"Is it as nice as our baby?" quickly asked her husband.
"Merely, no! Not half!" was the emphatic reply that came from the vicinity of the dainty-ruffled crib.—Denver Post.

He Couldn't Spell It.
In the spelling list for a class in a certain Indianapolis school were the words singing and singeing. The class was asked to write sentences using these words to show that they knew the correct meaning of each. One little fellow, Robert, wrote:
"The Italians are a singing nation."
"The allies will soon be singeing the beard of the Kaiser."
With sideward glances he watched his teacher mark his paper and timidly asked:
"Is it all right?"
"Yes," she said, "but the Kaiser has to be heard; he has a mustache."

Judicial Pun.
A certain judge was trying a case where a dealer sued a steamship company for the loss of some pigs in a fire on board a cross channel boat. It came out in evidence that the steamer had a large deck load, and here the damage was greatest.

"Gentlemen, to put these pigs on deck was a rash act, but to fry them was a rasher."

Summer Complaint.

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept on hand. Mrs. F. E. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results."

—Mrs. Stanley McCormick, in charge of the department of food production and home economics of the woman's committee, Council of National Defense, gives this advice to farmerettes: "Watch your feet. Don't ignore footwear. You must have a good spinal column to keep up with a good job. The condition of the spinal column depends greatly on the feet. Be picturesque if you wish, but be sensible. Wear good stout boots to preserve health."

Dear Parents and Sister:— Received your letter just a half hour before we left, which found me well which I hope this letter will find you will let you know that we left Oregon Wednesday noon, July 31, and arrived at New York Aug. 7th, it took us just a week. We went through fourteen states. On our trip we saw farmers cutting grain they have binders to which the horses are hitched in back of the binder pushing a horse instead of pulling, usually five horses are hitched to one machine. When we went through Montana we saw four train loads of soldiers with sixteen coaches to each train. At the end of every twenty-four hours we stopped and were allowed to have half an hour for ourselves. At one place we passed through a tunnel which was two miles long. We passed through Sparta where there is a big camp but nothing compared to the one we are now staying at there are between 99 and one hundred thousand soldiers here. At six o'clock Sunday we passed through Milwaukee, where all the whistles were blowing as we passed through the city. Before we reached camp batteries A, B, C, D, E, and F, were loaded on a ship to cross a large river. We can see a number of aeroplanes performing different stunts in the air every day. We are living in tents at this camp. Will close for this time with best regards to all, your son Nic. Schiltz.

—A recipe for a wheatless loaf of bread is soon to be made public by the office of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture. It is the discovery of the experimental kitchen conducted jointly by the Department of Agriculture and the Food Administration. Directions are to be given for the making of three new wheat substitute breads—the half wheat loaf, the one-fourth wheat loaf, and the wheatless loaf. The recipe is expected to save thousands of pounds of wheat flour.

THE WEST BEND COW TESTING ASSOCIATION
 The West Bend Cow Testing Association finished its first month of testing on July 31. Of the 436 cows tested during the last 30 days, 24 produced 40 or more of butter fat.
 Elmwood Mercedes Fobes, the highest cow in the association for July, is found in the herd of W. H. Grubbe. She is a registered Holstein and is also being run on semi-official work. Tho' but 3 years old, she produced during the last 31 days, 2950 pounds of milk containing 75.2 pounds of butterfat.
 King's Dolly Ryan, a registered Jersey, owned by Richter Bros., also has a very unusual record. In her tenth month of lactation she produced 688 pounds of milk containing 41.3 pounds of butterfat.
 The members at the present time are very enthusiastic over the work, and within the next three or four months they intend to increase the list of 40 pound cows considerably.
 The Extension Service of the College of Agriculture, U. of Wis. in cooperation with the Wisconsin Dairy-men's Association, have now a Register of Production for all cows, entered in cow testing associations in the state of Wisconsin. Any cow, grade, registered or scrub can be registered for production if she produces 355 pounds of fat in one continuous testing year. Thousands of Wisconsin cows ought to average a pound of fat a day. Such production places these cows in a class by themselves, apart from and above the unimproved cows of the country. The owners of these cows are also honored by receiving mention in the year book containing the names of these high producing cows. A special certificate of production will be issued for these cows.
 The association, composed of herds in the towns of West Bend, Trenton, Farmington and Kewaskum, has room for a few more members. Anyone interested in the work should notify County Agent G. A. Blank or the Secretary and have his herd placed on the list for a successful year of testing.
 The following is a list of the high cows for July:

FRENCH CAPTURE LASSIGNY HILLS AFTER HARD FIGHT

New Hun Retreat in Picardy Believed Near.

ENTIRE LINE IS PERILED

Artillery of Allies Now Dominates Town and Roads Beyond—Haig Reports Capture of 28,000 Prisoners and 600 Guns.

London, Aug. 14.—Since the allied offensive began on the Montdidier-Amiens sector August 8 the total capture by the French First army and the British Fourth army have aggregated 28,000 men and 600 guns, says Field Marshal Haig's communication from headquarters. The communication adds that the day passed in comparative quiet on the battle front.

French Hold Heights of Lassigny.
The Heights of Lassigny, the stronghold on which the left flank of the German armies in the Picardy fighting rested is in the hands of the French. The artillery of the allies now dominates the town of Lassigny and the roads beyond. After stubborn fighting the French have repulsed a heavy German counter-attack on Lassigny massif.

It now seems inevitable that the Germans must again break into a retreat, or else hurl their dwindling reserves forward in an attempt to retake the massif of Lassigny.

Cleared From Heights.
The French official communique reveals that the enemy practically has been cleared from this high ground, since it is announced that the French have gained a footing in the park of Plessier de Roye, on the extreme northern end of the heights, and within a mile of the town of Lassigny.

Furthermore, more ground has been gained southeast of here, and a renewed advance undoubtedly will spell the doom of Noyon.

Line May Crumble.
In some quarters here it is expected the entire line of present enemy resistance will crumble, now that the anchor, or pivot point at Lassigny has been won by General Foch's troops.

Control Divette Valley.
The French, by gaining control of the massif of Lassigny now command not only Lassigny but the valley of the Divette, as well as the entire district to the north.

The capture of the massif must inevitably have the most serious effect on the German positions over a wide area, and this effect should begin to show within 48 hours.

Expect Roye to Fall.
In the opinion of experts here the evacuation of Roye may be expected within a day or two, for the town is now under a cross fire. The abandonment of Roye by the Germans would also make Chaunies difficult to hold.

This recent history on the Marne is counted upon to repeat itself on this new front.

In the region of Des Loges, south of Roye, the French are consolidating their line. They hold the town, but have not yet regained the woods beyond.

The French gains on the Lassigny massif already have forced the Germans to evacuate a long line of trenches in the valley of the Oise and are calculated to force further evacuations almost immediately.

Noyon will come under the fire of the French guns as soon as the artillery can be moved up. Then the road transports on the whole network of highways around Noyon will become a difficult problem for the Germans.

The Germans have evacuated their trenches in the head of the river west of Bailly and the French are occupying them. The move has been forced by French pressure in the valley of the Oise.

allies here were attacked by the enemy and forced to retire to the south bank of the river. Immediate counter-attacks were launched and according to the latest reports the old positions of the allies on the north bank of the river have been restored.

French Win Village.
The village of L'Ecouvillon has been captured by the French and further ground has been gained by them north of the St. Claude farm.

L'Ecouvillon is about three and one-half miles southeast of Lassigny and virtually on the crest of the ridge overlooking the Oise.

Expect Evacuation of Roye.
In the opinion of experts here the evacuation of Roye may be expected within a day or two, for the town is now under a cross-fire. The abandonment of Roye by the Germans would also make Chaunies difficult to hold.

PERSHING HOLDS WIDE FRONT

General Officially Reports Formation of Body Including About 1,250,000 Men.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Secretary Baker was formally advised by General Pershing that the First American field army had been created, General Pershing retaining command of the army as well as of the entire American expeditionary force for the present. The dispatch added nothing to details of the army organization already made known from Paris, however, Mr. Baker said. Formation of the army is taken here to mean the Americanization of a definite part of the front has been completed. The only statement of the location of this American front given is that it is "south of the Marne." The extent of that front has not been disclosed, nor has the definite strength of the army been given. The dispatch indicates that it comprises, however, five full corps, which means approximately 1,250,000 men.

Sends Great Bodies of Troops for Blow Against Italy in the Tyrol Alps.

Geneva, Aug. 14.—The Austrians are reported moving an immense amount of material and great numbers of troops in the direction of Italy and are expected shortly to attempt another offensive on the Italian front. Austrian railway trains running toward the Tyrol are reported crowded with soldiers, no civilian passengers being allowed. The Austro-Swiss frontier has been closed since Saturday.

Rome, Aug. 14.—An official statement issued at the war office reads: "In the upper Zebra valley one of our patrols attacked an enemy advanced post on height 2,682, killing some of the garrison and capturing the survivors. Enemy shelters were destroyed. The patrol returned unharmed."

MAY REDUCE SOLDIER FARES

Federal Railroad Administration Reluctant to Act Because of Traffic Congestion.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Plans to grant reduced railroad fares to soldiers on short leave from camps are under consideration, but the railroad administration advised Senator Calder of New York in response to an inquiry that it seriously objects to the step at this time because of the difficulty of providing adequate transportation facilities for the increased travel. At present only soldiers on furloughs travel at reduced rates.

THE SKY IS BEGINNING TO CLEAR

TO CONTROL PACKERS RUSS WAR ON ALLIES

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION CHARGES CONSPIRACY.

Recommendations Provide for Seizure of Plants and Establishing Central Wholesale Markets.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Bitterly assailing the great packing firms of Swift, Armour, Morris, Cudahy and Wilson for creating a "structure of conspiracy, control, monopoly and restraint," the federal trade commission, in a report to President Wilson, recommends that immediate steps be taken to give the government a monopoly over such portion of their business as "will restore competition."

This report has been in the hands of President Wilson since July 5, but, because of the serious charges made in connection with it, and the radical recommendations therein contained, it was not made public. Publication was authorized directly by the president.

After declaring that producers, competitors and consumers are at the mercy of the packers the commission makes the following recommendations:

- First, That the government acquire, through the railroad administration, all rolling stock used for the transportation of meat animals and that such ownership be declared a government monopoly.
- Second, That the government acquire, through the railroad commission, the principal and necessary stock yards of the country, to be treated as freight depots, and to be operated under such conditions as will insure open, competitive markets, with uniform charges for all services performed, and the acquisition or establishment of such additional yards from time to time.
- Third, That the government acquire, through the railroad administration, all privately owned refrigerator cars, and that such ownership be declared a government monopoly.
- Fourth, That the federal government acquire such of the branch houses, cold storage plants and warehouses as are necessary to provide facilities for the competitive marketing and storage of food products in the principal centers of distribution and consumption. The same to be operated by the government as public markets and storage places under such conditions as will afford an outlet for all manufacturers and handlers of food products on equal terms.

WARNS U. S. OF COAL SHORTAGE

President Tells Operators and Workers to Speed Up Production.

FUEL SCARCITY IS WAR PERIL

Executive in Proclamation Appeals to All Persons Engaged in Coal Mining to Take Prompt Action to Wipe Out Menace.

Washington, Aug. 13.—President Wilson, aroused over the grave danger in the coal situation of the country and continuing decreases in production, addressed a proclamation on Sunday to all persons engaged in coal mining, calling for prompt and vigorous action by operators and miners.

The text of the president's proclamation reads:

"The existing scarcity of coal is creating a grave danger—in fact, the most serious which confronts us—and calls for prompt and vigorous action on the part of both operators and miners. Without an adequate supply our war program will be retarded; the effectiveness of our fighting forces in France will be lessened; the lives of our soldiers will be unnecessarily endangered and their hardships increased, and there will be much suffering in many homes during the winter.

"I am well aware that your ranks have been seriously depleted by the demands of other essential industries. This handicap can be overcome, however, and sufficient coal can be mined in spite of it, if everyone connected with the industry, from the highest official to the youngest boy, will give his best work every day for the full number of working hours.

"The operators must be zealous as never before to bring about the highest efficiency of management, to establish the best possible working conditions and to accord fair treatment to everybody, so that the opportunity to work at his best may be accorded every workman.

"The miners should report for work every day unless prevented by unavoidable causes, and should not only stay in the mines the full time but also see to it that they get out more coal.

"The other workers in and about the mines should work as regularly and faithfully, so that the work of the miner may not be retarded in any way. This will be especially necessary from this time forward, for your numbers may be further lessened by the draft, which will induct into the army your fair share of those not essential to industry.

"Those who are drafted but who are essential will be given deferred classification, and it is their patriotic duty to accept it. And it is the patriotic duty of their friends and neighbors to hold them in high regard for doing so. The only worker who deserves the condemnation of his community is the one who fails to give his best in this crisis, not the one who accepts deferred classification and works regularly and diligently to increase the coal output.

"A great task is to be performed. The operators and their staff alone cannot do it, nor can the mine workers alone do it, but both parties, working hand in hand, with a grim determination to rid the country of its greatest obstacle to winning the war, can do it. It is with full confidence that I call upon you to assume the burden of producing an ample supply of coal. You will, I am sure, accept this burden, and will successfully carry it through; and in so doing you will be performing a service just as worthy as service in the trenches, and will win the applause and gratitude of the whole nation.

"WOODROW WILSON.
"The White House, Aug. 9, 1918."

LENINE READY TO FLEE

Bolshevik Soviet Organization Tottering and Revolt Grows—Hun Envoy Flees Moscow.

London, Aug. 13.—The anti-bolshevik movement in Russia is growing rapidly, the bolshevik Soviet organization having virtually gone to pieces. Nikolai Lenine, the premier, and Leon Trotsky, his war minister, intend to flee to Germany should the situation become too serious.

The Petrograd newspaper, Ivestia, is quoted by a correspondent as stating that at several points "in that part of Russia not occupied by the enemy" counter-revolutionary movements have broken out in a number of towns. Copenhagen, Aug. 12.—The German embassy at Moscow will remove immediately to Pskov, owing to conditions in Moscow, according to advices from Berlin.

HUN DIVER MAKES GAS RAID ON U. S.

Six Lighthouse Men at Charleston, S. C., Overcome by Fumes.

U-BOAT SUNK BY DESTROYER

United States War Craft Uses Depth Bombs to Sink Submarine Off Virginia—Twelve Ships Destroyed.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Using potent gas, a German submarine attacked Smith Island, off the North Carolina coast Saturday. Six men were overcome.

The official announcement said the navy department received a dispatch from Charleston, S. C., that the attack with gas about five o'clock Saturday afternoon temporarily "put out of business the coast guard station and lighthouse personnel." The report goes on: "About 40 minutes after the attack three large oil spots, each over an acre in extent, were observed passing."

"This oil, from which the gas was no doubt generated, must have been released from a submarine in the vicinity of the entrance to the channel with the hope that it would come in with the tide, but the tide fortunately set along the island.

"Report was made to Colonel Chase, coast artillery corps, Fort Caswell, N. C., by Captain Willard of the Smith Island coast guard after the effects of the gas were noted. Six men were gassed. No deaths.

"The gas had the effect of mustard gas and was effective about 36 or 40 minutes.

"The incident was reported by Colonel Chase to the naval district commander, Smith's Island is off the mouth of the Cape Fear river, near the entrance of the channel to Wilmington, N. C."

The German submarine operating off the Virginia coast was attacked by an American destroyer, which used 17 depth bombs in an effort to get the raider. The submarine did not respond and oil was noticed on the surface of the sea.

German submarine raiders operating off the Atlantic coast have destroyed three more vessels, the navy department announced. The British steamer Penitence of 4,139 gross tons was torpedoed 100 miles east of Nanuet lightship Sunday morning; the Swedish steamer Sydland, of 3,631 gross tons, was sunk by bombs August 100 miles southeast of Nanuet, and an American schooner, reported as the Herman Winter but not yet definitely identified, was destroyed by gunfire Sunday 200 miles east of New York. All members of the crew of the Sydland were reported saved, but the ship's dispatches did not clear up the fate of the crews of the other vessels.

The Penitence and Herman Winter were sent down in the vicinity of Georges bank, off the Massachusetts coast, where a submarine came to the surface Sunday in the midst of a fleet of American fishing vessels, nine of which were destroyed.

Bolshevik Flee to Kronstadt—Fear Army of 300,000—Hun Policy Fails in East.

London, Aug. 14.—British and Japanese troops which were landed at Vladivostok have joined the Czecho-Slovak forces who are fighting against German control in Siberia. The British troops are co-operating with the Slav army on the Ussuri river, about 120 miles north of Vladivostok.

With the increase of Czecho-Slovak and other armed anti-bolshevik forces in greater Russia to more than 300,000 men, Premier Lenine and his foreign secretary, Leon Trotsky, have fled from Moscow to Kronstadt, the naval base near Petrograd, according to a dispatch by the semi-official Wolff bureau at Berlin.

The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger states that the entire bolshevik government will be moved to Kronstadt. Commenting on the removal of Doctor Helfferich, the German ambassador, from Moscow to Pskov because he feared for his life, the Berlin Vossische Zeitung says:

"Moscow is in the hands of anti-German elements and the followers of the social revolutionists of the left. This would show that the bolshevik rule at Moscow is at an end, and this is the case not only at Moscow but in the greater part of Russia, if not in the whole Russian empire.

"This throws a vivid light on the failure of the German policy in the East."

"I can't ever remember that name," said the small girl.
"Very well," said the mother, "then write it down."
And this was the puzzle she presented the grocer:
"One can Lilly Puh Shun peas."

CHEERFUL HEART GOES FAR

When You Come to Think of It, the Man with a "Grouch" is Seldom Popular.

To keep the face cheerful, the voice cheerful, to do good like a medicine, we must keep the heart cheerful. This is not an easy matter. One does not simply have to say: "I will be cheerful," and then have it so. He has to work for cheerfulness, just as he works to be honest or kind, or brave, or learned. He must be looking out for bright things to see and do. He must deliberately, yet quickly, choose which things he will think about and how. He has to shut his teeth, as it were, sometimes, and turn away from the gloomy things, and do something to bring back the cheerful spirit again. If we are cheerful for others, we are doing for ourselves. Good given, means good sent back. Cheerfulness can become a habit, and habit sometimes helps us over hard places. A cheerful heart seeth cheerful things.—Exchange.

HIS DISAPPOINTMENT

"I found a letter lying on the sidewalk this morning," grumbled old Riley Rezzidew of Petunia. "It was signed 'Lucile,' and at first glance as if it might be worth reading. But when I had read the first line or two, which said, 'John and I went to Bethel to the big singing last Sunday.' I just threw it down again. What kind of a letter was that to lose on the public street?"—Kansas City Star.

CHAPTER XX.

MORIN, the fisherman.

When Rosa Varona regained consciousness sufficiently to understand what had happened she proved herself a person of no little self-control. It was she, in fact, who first volved the fear that Cobo dead was scarcely less a menace than Cobo alive.

"What are we going to do with him?" she inquired.

Jacket, too, appreciated the dangers of the situation. "We must get rid of him quickly," he said, "for his men are close by; he will be missed and there will be a search."

"I don't intend to make him a present of that treasure," O'Reilly said, grimly. "It is our only salvation."

"But how are we going to hide him?" Jacket inquired. "One might as well try to conceal a church; oxen couldn't hoist him out of that hole."

"Precisely! He has made our work easy for us. We can't take more than a small part of the money with us, any-that jewel box, but finally, with heads together and with backs to the door of the boho, they made a furtive examination. They found emeralds and sapphires the value of which they did not attempt to estimate; and, besides these, a miscellaneous assortment of semiprecious stones.

O'Reilly realized vaguely that he held in his lap a fortune greater than his wildest dreams had ever compassed. These were the jewels of a rajah. It seemed incredible that this ragged girl beside him was a regal heiress, the possessor of a treasure such as kings might envy. After a time he began to feel that the mere possession of these gems constituted a new and overwhelming menace.

Morning found all hands more nearly rational and feeling the first gaspings of a healthy hunger. Even Asensio confessed to a quite miraculous improvement. While Evangelina prepared breakfast the lovers agreed upon a story to explain the origin of that mysterious gold piece, and later Johnnie warned Jacket for a second time to keep his tongue between his teeth.

Jacket nodded his complete comprehension. "Sure! All Spaniards are robbers and they'd kill us for a peep. Yes, and the pacificos are no better. I tell you we need to get out of this place."

"I intend to arrange it at once, but—the sight of those jewels has frightened me. If we are searched—if we are even suspected: I'm wondering if Rosa can endure the hardships we'll encounter when, or if, we get away."

"Exactly what I was thinking. I've been considering another plan. I told you about my friend at the market. Well, he is a miserable Spaniard, but he has a son in the manigua."

"One of us?" Johnnie was surprised.

"Yes. The old fellow owns a windra in which he brings charcoal from the eastward twice a month. He might take us out of here—on his schooner."

"How well does he like you?"

"Oh, we are like two thieves."

After a period of thought O'Reilly said, "Take me to him, and remember I'm your brother Juan."

The Matanzas market did not present a scene of great activity when the two friends slunk into it. Like most Spanish markets, the building was far from clean and housed odors unpleasant even to seafaring people. In the smallest section, at one of the fish stalls, Jacket accosted a villainous old brigand in a rough Gallego cap, baggy blouse and trousers, and straw sandals.

"Good day, my captain," he cried, cheerily.

The Spaniard raised his head, scowled ferociously, then waved a long, thin-bladed knife in menacing fashion.

"Ah! So there you are, robber! Be off now before I slit your greedy little belly! Didn't I promise to give you to the soldiers if you came back to bother me?"

Jacket was unabashed by this hostile rejection. He grunted broadly and with an impudent eye he scanned the empty premises. "Where is my little fish?" he demanded. "As I live, I believe you have sold it! What a miser! For the sake of another centavo you would see me starve? Give me a heart for you! Come, give me my fish! Or must I lie down and die before your very eyes to prove my hunger?"

"What a nuisance!" grumbled the marketman. He reached into a basket and flung a mackerel upon the table. "There! I saved it for you, and sent the good women of Matanzas away empty-handed. But it is the very last. Annoy me again and I shall open you with my knife and put salt on you."

"Ah! You are my good captain!" Jacket cried in triumph, possessing himself of the prize. "Where would I have been but for you?" Turning to O'Reilly, who had looked on from a distance, he said, "Captain Morin, this is your brother Juan of whom I have told you."

Morin smiled at Johnnie and extended his dirty palm. "The little fellow can speak the truth when he wishes, it seems. I began to doubt that he had a brother. What a boy, eh?"

"You have a son with the insurrection?"

"Yes." The fisherman cast a furtive glance over his shoulder.

"Why don't you go and fight by his side?" Jacket demanded.

"God forbid!" Morin flung up his hands. "I'm a loyal subject."

"Well, we are going back to fight. We are going to escape and join Gomez once more!" Jacket made the announcement calmly.

"S-sh! What talk!" Morin was in a nervous poney lest they be overheard. "As if anybody could escape from Matanzas! What made you come here if you are so eager to fight?"

"I'll tell you," O'Reilly assumed direction of the conversation. "There are three of us brothers, we two and Esteban, a pretty little fellow. He was captured by Cobo's men and driven in, and we came to find him. But he is sick—dying."

"Of course. They're all dying—the poor people! It is terrible."

"We—" O'Reilly faltered slightly, so much hung upon the manner in which Morin would take what he was about to say. "We want to get him out of here—we must do so, or we'll lose him. Here we help us, how?"

"It is heaven's name, how?"

"By taking us away in your charcoal schooner."

"You're mad!" Morin cast another appraising look over his shoulder. "I'm a poor man. All I have is my two boats, the vivero, which brings fish, and the volandra, which sails with charcoal. Do you think I'd forfeit them and my life for strangers?"

O'Reilly leaned closer. "You say you're a poor man. I will pay you well."

Morin eyed the ragged speaker scornfully. It was plain that he put no faith in such a promise, and so O'Reilly took a piece of gold from his pocket, at sight of which the fisherman started.

"I too, am a poor man, but I'm willing to buy freedom for my little brothers and myself."

"How many coins like that have you?"

"Um—more than one; enough to pay you for several cargoes of coal."

"For the sake of Miguelito, Jacket urged. "Caramba! What a hard-hearted father bring that boy!"

"Hush!" The fisherman was scowling. "To O'Reilly he said, "You do wrong to tempt a poor man."

"My brother Esteban is sick. He is a frail little lad with a crooked back. God will reward you."

"Perhaps! But how much will you pay?"

"Ten Spanish sovereigns like this—all that I have."

"No! It is not enough."

O'Reilly took Jacket's hand and turned away. "I'm sorry," he said, "I wish I might offer you more." He had taken several steps before Morin halted him.

"Come back tomorrow," the fisherman cried, crossly. "We will try to talk like sensible people."

The brothers Villar were back at Morin's fish stand on the following afternoon and they returned daily thereafter until they at last prevailed upon the Spaniard's fears and won his promise of assistance. That much accomplished, they made several cautious purchases, a coat here, a shirt there, a pair of trousers in another place, until they had assembled a complete boy's outfit of clothing.

At first Rosa refused absolutely to desert her two faithful friends, and O'Reilly won her consent to consider his plan of escape only after he had put the matter squarely up to Asensio and his wife and after both had refused to enter into it.

Then, and not until then, did Rosa begin her preparations. First she made Evangelina cut her hair, a sacrifice that wrung sighs and tears and loud lamentations from the black woman, after which she altered the suit of boy's clothing to fit her figure, or rather to conceal it.

When at last she put it on for O'Reilly's approval she was very shy, very timidly. "Don't you need me, want me any more?" she inquired.

Esteban turned his tired eyes away, fearing to betray in their utter wretchedness. "You have done all there is to do. I want you to go back into your own world and forget."

A sudden impulse seized the girl. She stopped and gathered the sick man into her young, strong arms. "Don't be silly," she cried. "My world is your world, Esteban dear. I'll never, never leave you!"

"Miss Evans! Norine!" Varona tried feebly to free himself. "You must!"

Norine drew him closer. "You're going to tell me that you have nothing, can offer me nothing. You're going to do the generous, noble thing. Well! I hate generous people. I'm selfish, utterly selfish and spoiled, and I don't propose to be robbed of anything I love, least of all my happiness. You do want me, don't you?"

Esteban's cry was eloquent; he clasped his arms about her and she held him firmly to her breast.

"We're quite mad, quite insane," he told her after a while. "This only makes it harder to give you up."

"I—did wrong to surrender. Come! Must I say it all? Aren't you going to ask me?"

"What?"

"Why, to marry you, of course. We're going to be married, and I'm going to take you out of this miserable place."

"What happiness!" he murmured. "If I were well—but I won't let you marry a dying man."

Plodder Reaches Goal.

With the plodder you can reap infinite satisfaction in self-conscious growth. This comes with achievement. When you get to the point that what once was hard is now easy you can know you have gained in power. And the best of it is that each tiny gain makes the next step so much easier. When you just plod on you are constantly adding to your doing power. Other people will notice it, but you will be the best judge. Then when good sense adds its judgment to ability to do, tasks once hard are easy. When the world gets awake to that fact it will begin to praise what it once regarded as common stupidity. It's certainly a pleasure to see public opinion changing front and know that it's all merited. It's part of the plodder's reward.—Pennsylvania Grit.

out of the jewels and trinkets and fastened it securely inside her coat. After a few experiments she adjusted it to her liking, then called O'Reilly once more. This time he was better satisfied. An application of Evangelina's staid and liberal application of a dirt to the suit, and he declared that Rosa would pass anywhere as a boy.

There came a night when the three of them bade good-by to their black companions and slipped away across the city to that section known as Pueblo Nuevo, then followed the road along the water front until they found shelter within the shadows of a rickety structure which had once served as a bath house.

The refugees waited a long time; they were beginning to fear that old Morin's nerve had weakened at the eleventh hour, when they held a skiff approaching the shore. It glided closer, entered the shade of the bath house, then a voice cried:

"Pset! You are there?" It was Morin himself.

Hastily the three piled aboard. Morin bent to his oars and the skiff shot out. "You were not observed?" he inquired.

"No."

Morin rowed in silence for a time.

"When do you sail?" O'Reilly asked.

"At dawn, God permitting. You will have to remain hidden and you mustn't even breathe."

He brought the skiff alongside a battered old schooner, and his passengers clambered aboard. There was a tiny cabin aft and on it, sheltered from the night dew by a loose fold of the mainsail, were two sleeping men. The newcomers followed Morin down into the ever little cabin, where he warned them in a hoarse whisper:

"Not a sound, mind you. If anyone comes aboard, you must shift for yourselves. Creep into the hold and hide. Of course, if we are searched—" He muttered something, then groped his way out on deck, and closed the hatch behind him.

Now that they had actually embarked upon this enterprise and the girl had given herself entirely into his hands, now that an imminent peril encompassed them both, Johnnie felt that Rosa belonged to him more absolutely, more completely, than at any time heretofore, so he held her close. Rosa lay relaxed against her lover's shoulder and in halting murmurs, interrupted many times by caresses, she told O'Reilly of her need for him, and her utter happiness. It was the fullest hour of their lives.

With daylight, Morin routed out his men. There was a sleepy muttering, the patter of bare feet upon the deck above, then the creak of blocks as the sails were raised. A few moments, then there came a hail which brought their hearts into their throats. Morin himself answered the call.

"Good morning, countryman! Have you caught any of those accursed fish-busters since I saw you last? So? Cayo Romano, eh? What have I aboard?" Morin laughed loudly. "You know very well—cannon and shot for the rebels of course. Will you look? . . . No! . . . Then a cup of coffee perhaps?"

O'Reilly peeped through a dirt-stained cabin window and saw that the volandra was slipping past the stern of the ironclad, so he withdrew his head quickly.

Of course this was but one danger past and there were many more ahead, for Morin's schooner was liable to be stopped by any of the numerous patrol boats on duty to the eastward. Nevertheless, when an anxious hour had gone by and she was well out toward the harbor mouth, the refugees told one another they were safe.

CHAPTER XXI.

Three Travelers Made Slow Progress Toward Recovery.

In the weeks following O'Reilly's departure from Cubitas his gain was steady, but beyond a certain point he seemed unable to go. Then he began to lose strength. Esteban awoke to the fact that he was losing ground, and his dismay was keen, for a wonderful thing had come into his life and he spent much of his time in delicious contemplative day dreams concerning it, waiting for the hour when he would dare translate those dreams into realities. It seemed to him that he had always loved Norine; certainly she had ensnared herself in his heart long before his mind had regained its clarity, for he had come out of his delirious wanderings with his love full grown.

The time came finally when he could no longer permit the girl to deceive herself or herself with her brave assumption of cheerfulness. Norine had just told him that he was doing famously, but he smiled and shook his wearily head.

"Let's be honest," he said. "You know and I know that I can't get well."

"You mustn't be discouraged," she told him, earnestly. "Remember this is a trying climate and we have nothing to do with it. Even the food is wretched. I'm going to take you away."

Esteban stroked her hand softly. "You can't do that, Miss Evans. You have been wonderful to me and I can't begin to express my gratitude." No-she stirred, but he retained his grasp of her fingers, gaining courage from the contact to proceed. "I have been trying for a long time to tell you something. Will you listen?"

"Not now," she exclaimed, with a visible lessening of color. "Don't bother to tell me now."

"I've waited too long; I must speak. You have stayed on here just to nurse me. Isn't that true?"

She nodded somewhat doubtfully.

"Now, then, you must stop thinking about me and—make your arrangements to go home."

There was a moment of silence. "Yes. You see, I know how tired you are of this misery, this poverty, this hopeless struggle. You're not a Cuban and our cause isn't yours. Expeditions come from the United States every now and then and the government will see that you are put safely aboard the first ship that returns. I'll manage to get well somehow."

Norine's color had returned. She stood over the hammock, looking down at him.

"Esteban, Dear, I'll Never, Never Leave You!"

most. "Don't you need me, want me any more?" she inquired.

George Brown of this village, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Brown, left Tuesday for Kansas City, Mo., with a contingent of volunteer mechanics. He has repeatedly tried to gain entry to the service but was rejected owing to his being underweight. At the time his draft number was called he was ill and took the first opportunity to volunteer, upon his recovery.

Leo M. Serwe is suffering from a broken right wrist, and broken bones in his right hand as a result of an accident at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Jaeger garage here. Serwe, who is a saloon keeper in the village, has been helping out for some time in the garage. Tuesday afternoon when he was cranking a car, the machine back fired and threw him over. Besides the injury to his arm, Mr. Serwe may have some internal injuries. As yet it has not been determined, but he was badly bruised.

Lieut. Leo Hoffmann of this village received orders Sunday morning to report for service at Camp Green Leaf, Ga., without delay and left Sunday afternoon for the Georgia Camp. He was awarded his commission a short time ago, in the Medical Corps of the army, and has been awaiting his call daily. Dr. Leo Hoffmann and his brother, Dr. J. G., have been practicing with their father, Dr. P. A. Hoffmann. They have resided here all of their lives and are well known throughout the county. Dr. J. G. Hoffmann left for France shortly after the sinking of the Tuscania. He was to have embarked on the ill-fated ship but was delayed.

Herbert Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Martin of this village, who left the village for Porto Rico some time ago, is a member of the Officers' Training Camp at Las Casas, Porto Rico. The young man went to Porto Rico as a superintendent of the public schools at Ponce. He was engaged in that capacity until the opening of the first camp when he enlisted. Mr. Martin writes that the vicinity in which he is located has a record of ten thousand draft registrants, four hundred of which are in officers' camps. He states that the spirit of the natives is wonderful and that the Porto Ricans are enthused to a great degree. Mr. Martin formerly taught school at Stockbridge.

Word was received here Monday which brought a tragedy close to home. A wire apprised Mr. and Mrs. John Adams that their daughter, Mrs. Claude F. Herring of Welleston, O., had shot and killed a man at that place. No details were received in regards to the tragedy but it is thought that Mrs. Herring was deranged. Mrs. Herring was formerly Miss Bessie Adams of this place and resided here for a short time after her marriage. Her husband is a draft registrant of Fond du Lac Board, 2, with headquarters at Ripon. He is in Class 4, having been so classified because he is a married man and has a child. Our citizens who know the family intimately are unable to attribute any cause for the act unless Mrs. Herring was deranged. Details are being anxiously awaited.

TO GO INTO EFFECT SEPT. 1st

PAY NOW

AT THE $1.50 Rate

THE NEW RATE OF $2.00 A YEAR GOES INTO EFFECT SEPT. 1, 1918.

The Statesman

will accept subscriptions at the old rate of $1.50 a year up to September 1, 1918. This gives you a chance of still getting The Statesman at the old rate by paying in advance.

THIS OFFER IS OPEN TO OLD AND NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New subscribers will be entered at the old rate of $1.50 a year, if paid in advance, but only for one year, up to Sept. 1, 1918.

Old subscribers are at liberty up to Sept. 1, 1918, to pay any back subscription now due and one year in advance.

THE DEAD LINE TO THIS OFFER IS POSITIVELY SEPT. 1, 1918.

After that date the subscription price will positively go to $2.00 a year. And there will be no contests, premiums or other inducements to old or new subscribers after Sept. 1, 1918.

Subscribers now receiving any of the newspapers named in this announcement who have their papers paid in advance (no matter how far in advance) will not be affected by the increased rate during the period to which they are paid up. We will carry out all advanced subscriptions, no matter how long ago you paid the amount, and we are glad to do so.

We believe a statement of facts is due our subscribers in asking them to share with us our burden of high costs, which is the basis of the story we have to tell.

We have not chosen—we have been forced. We are taking this step after upwards of a hundred newspapers right here in our own state of Wisconsin have been forced to suspend publication because they could not understand the inroads made by the stupendous increase in the cost of producing their newspapers.

The newspaper business has been exceptionally hard hit by the abnormal era of high prices, and this era for the newspapers did not begin recently like it has in most other lines of business. We have carried an abnormal burden of high prices of printing paper alone for upwards of four years. The present H. C. L. does not date back that far in many lines. We point out that we have been paying a tremendous increase in everything entering into the making of our newspapers, and we have done it uncomplainingly.

We have paid out the hard dollars demanded of us on everything in our line, and as far as our newspapers are concerned these dollars have carried away with them the modest profit from the subscriptions at the $1.50 a year rate. We have been optimistic thru all; we had hoped that each increase we had to meet would be the last, we looked for relief when the government investigated the print paper manufacturers. There has been no relief and there is no relief in sight. During this time we have and are now overcoming almost insuperable difficulties in doing business in the face of prevailing conditions.

The price of paper used for printing newspapers has been almost ruinous for the consumers. Buying in enormous lots, taking advantage of cash discounts and the usual business methods of cutting down this burden subtracted but a slight item from paper bills. Prices simply have to be met. The only advantage on our side has been to keep from worrying about high figures of our income tax. The paper manufacturers have made the prices, our supply houses have added the increases as they were made to the paper stocks we have to buy—and we have had to pay the increase, and that is as far as the distribution of the burden was carried. We have stood for it and have not passed it along to the buyer—the subscriber—like every business does—must do.

Printing paper has increased to over $140.00 per ton. This increase to a paper with a subscription price of $1.50 a year is stupendous. The normal price of this paper is $50 a ton. Other advances are type, brass rule, linotype metal, cuts, inks, (from 10 to 500 per cent); even the wrapping paper in which papers are mailed out, and the string with which the bundles are tied have gone up, and up. Everything, literally, actually everything in the way of materials and stock that enters into the printing business is up. And now comes the new government increase in the pound rate postage on newspapers, and an advertising tax in the war revenue bill. All of which is heavily to the debit side of the newspaper business.

Every line of business, to be a "business," must show at least a real profit over and above cost. It must be so or a business cannot exist. In the face of the foregoing we do not assume an apologetic stand. It is a business proposition of raising our subscription price or remaining non-profitable—little or nothing to repay for the hard work put into our business.

We are not passing along the whole burden. In raising our subscription price from $1.50 to $2.00 a year we are shifting but part of the load of high prices which we can stand under in no other way. An increase of one cent a week to each subscriber is going to LIGHTEN our burden—NOT RELIEVE it. We are working toward a fair profit for our work. This increase will not enable us to retrieve our lost profits of the past; we have borne them, uncomplainingly, and would continue to do so if we could afford the philanthropy involved. It is a plain business proposition and we submit it on its merits as such to the business judgement, fairness and justice of our subscribers.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
