LOCAL REAL ESTATE - TATE MEN BUSY

In the rapid way that farm land is being bought and sold in this community recently by our local real estate men, A. L. Rosenheimer and J. B. Day, is a good indication that people are commencing to realize that farming seems to be one of the best, if not the best business proposition to take hold of at the present time.

Last week the local dealers purchased a 165-acre farm belonging to J. T. Miller of Hartford, which is located near the city of Waupun. This week they purchased the Christ. Hoerig 80-acre farm, together with all personal property, located one-half mile east of Kohlsville, which was traded on Thursday on the Ernest Boetcher 60-acre farm located near there. The firm now has on hand six farms, averaging from 40 to 100 acres, located in Washington, Dodge and Fond du Lac counties. All farms contain good land, centrally located and are stocked with machinery and modernly equipped buildings and will be sold on easy terms.

To the voters of Washington County: I wish to announce to the citizens of Washington County that I shall be a candidate for the office of County Superintendent of Schools for a second term. I was appointed by State Superintendent C. P. Cary to succeed Geo. T. Carlin, who resigned. Remembered Mother's Answer.

Little Harry one day asked his mother why he made the trees and was told that God made them. A few days later an old colored man came to trim the trees and the little fellow seeing him at work, ran to his mother and exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, God's out in the yard repairing his trees!"

OIL STILL FLOWING FROM CAMBRIA WELL

Oil is still flowing from the well on the Jacob Scharf farm, located near Cambria. Mr. Scharf upon consulting a chemist at Madison, was informed that the oil is of a high test. The Horicon Reporter has the following to say about the well:

"Jacob Scharf went to Madison Monday to consult a chemist in regard to his oil well at Cambria. The chemists at the Wisconsin university pronounced it a phenomena of rare consequence. Usually oil is found in a crude state but the oil from Mr. Scharf's well is of a much higher test. From 10 to 15 per cent of the pumpings of the well are oil, which flashes and burns like gasoline.

There is considerable excitement in Cambria over the discovery. Local tradition points out that there are traces of oil in the vicinity, a creek nearby showing an oily scum on the surface. It is told that Golden Rule Jones, of Toledo, once visited the village in early days, he having a sister who was at that time a resident. He was a practical oil man himself and noticed traces of oil. On his return he sent a man to drill for oil. A derrick was constructed but a well was never drilled, and the project was abandoned finally and nothing more was heard of it.

Chemists say that if the well continues to produce at the present rate that there will be a fortune in it for the owner."

Well Called Devil's Bet.

Long Island sound in New York was known before the revolution, and perhaps later, as the Devil's Bet, as may be seen on Sauter's map of New York in the Revolution. It had Hell gate at one end and the nearly as tumultuous Race at the other.

GET FARM MACHINERY READY FOR SPRING

Farmers are asked by the National Implement and Vehicle Association to look after their farm machinery and make preparations at once to have parts repaired and replaced now, so that all machinery will be in first class working order before the spring work begins. Manufacturers and dealers declare that if they know sufficiently in advance the needs of the farmers for repair parts, these parts can be supplied when needed. But if the needs are not known until the actual time for use, much annoyance, costly and troublesome delays are very likely to be caused by waiting until the last minute. So get busy and remedy those evils now.

VAUDEVILLE SHOW TAKES VERY WELL

The Vaudeville show given under the auspices of the Woman's Club at the Opera House last week Friday evening, proved to be the greatest success of any show ever staged in this village by local talent, and plainly shows that the array of musical and dramatic talent which exists in Kewaskum, is hard to surpass, not only by villages of its size, but by cities of a larger population. Although Friday unfortunately was accompanied by one of the worst snow storms of the season, a large and appreciative audience braved the storm to listen to a good, clean, wholesome and social entertainment. The program was one of new and unusual quality, consisting of singing, instrumental solos, duets, quartettes and orchestral selections, a one act play by members of the Woman's Club and cantatas by children of the school. Everyone who took part in the entertainment, both young and old acted their part so well that they have left no room for criticism upon their most excellent work, which clearly demonstrates the patience and painstaking on the part of the directors who are greatly responsible for the splendid rendition of every part of the program; so well were the different members instructed that no dull moment was experienced throughout the whole performance.

The Kewaskum Woman's Club deserves the highest compliment in the manner they so royally entertained their audience who stated that the end of the evenings performance had come only too soon to their satisfaction, and not only hope that the same program may be repeated at some future date when they deserve the hearty support of every citizen in this community, but stated that the good derived from the success of last Friday evening's vaudeville show, demonstrates the fact that many more entertainments of this or similar nature should be held in this village during the winter months, for plays and entertainments will cause individuals who take part in same to work together more harmoniously, they will stimulate interest in those things which are artistic, and which everyone enjoys, admires and covets, not only that it tends to cultivate those things which are worthy of cultivation, both to those who have come to enjoy, as well as to those who take part in the entertainment, namely: the art of expression, habits of study, clearness of thought, study and treatment of characters and use of action and speech. So let's get together and help a good cause along.

FORGOT WHAT HE NEEDED

From the Republican, Mt. Gilead, Ohio: The editor had an interesting experience some time ago, when a young gentleman came to this office and asked for a copy of the Morrow County Republican. He scrutinized it carefully when a copy was handed him, and then said: "Now I know!" "What is it you are looking for," we inquired. "My wife sent me after a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I forgot the name. I went to several stores and the clerks named over everything in the line on the shelf except 'Chamberlain's'. I'll try again, and I'll never go home without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." The Republican would suggest to the proprietors of stores, that they post their clerks, and never let them substitute. Customers lose faith in stores where substituting is permitted, to say nothing of the injustice to makers of good goods and the disappointment of customers.

ALLOWED TO KEEP UNIFORMS

A bill which has just passed through Congress and is now up to the president for signature, permits the discharged soldiers, sailors and marines to retain their uniforms. This will no doubt meet with great approval to all men who served in the army during the world war and certainly are entitled to keep their uniforms. The ruling now is that they are allowed to wear them for three months after being discharged. Let's hope the president will agree to give the boys their just desert in giving them the uniforms.

The funeral was held from the family residence on Saturday, where the body was taken to Marion, Wis., where services were held in the Lutheran church there, interment was made in the congregation's cemetery. Rev. Stubbenfol officiated. After the funeral service Mr. and Mrs. Fick went to Clintonville, where they visited with relatives on Sunday, returning home on Monday.

TWO YOUNG MEN FROM THIS VICINITY PASS AWAY

A very sad call came to this village this week from far away Kansas City, Mo., announcing the taking away of two young men, sons of prominent citizens of Wayne. The boys had left home but two short weeks ago, to enter an automobile school at Kansas City, to prepare themselves to meet life's battles in the world of men and numerous hardships which each and every one must meet before achieving the success which we all covet so greatly. We can still plainly see the light of ambition which illuminated their youthful faces as they left for new fields of opportunity, with but one desire uppermost in their hearts and minds, to conquer and make a creditable showing to the loved ones back home. We feel that the boys would have made good had it not been willed otherwise by an unforeseen power which gives and takes at will. Although the parting from loved ones is hard to bear, we can rest in the thought that the young men did their best, and would have overcome all obstacles, had they been given the opportunity.

The funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock today (Saturday) from the Wayne Reformed church, with interment in the adjoining cemetery. Rev. J. L. Csatlós will officiate at the last sad rites.

CLARENCE PETRI

Clarence B. H. Petri, only son of Mrs. Minnie Petri, was born in the town of Wayne, Washington county, Wis., on May 2, 1901, and had attained the age of 18 years. His death occurred March 4, 1919, at Sweeney Hospital, Kansas City, Mo., after an illness of but six days with measles and pneumonia. Besides his grief-stricken mother, he leaves to mourn his early demise, two sisters, Frieda, (Mrs. Arno Bertelt) of Cascade, Wis., and Marie at home. His father died July 29, 1908. The remains were brought to this village Thursday noon and were immediately taken to his home at Wayne. Funeral services will be held today (Saturday) from the Salems Reformed church at Wayne, at 1 o'clock p. m., with interment in the adjoining cemetery. Rev. J. L. Csatlós will perform the last sad rites.

They expressly wish to extend thanks to Rev. Csatlós for his kind assistance and comforting words of consolation. Appreciation is also extended to all those who showed their respect for the departed ones by attending the funeral.

BURGLARS BUSY IN NEIGHBORING TOWNS

Several business places at Mayville were entered by burglars last week. The C. W. Doctor store was entered and also the Borgraeber saloon. The proprietor, about one o'clock in the morning heard some one in the place, and on entering saw a strange man, who leveled a revolver at him and told him to throw up his hands. He did so, and just then another member of the family came into the saloon, and started for the intruder with a pin from the bowling alley. The burglar fired two shots, evidently blanks, and then fled. The Borgraebers described the man as tall, apparently with red hair, reddish face and rough looking.—Hartford Press.

Nine business places were entered by burglars at West Bend on Monday evening. The places entered are: Bauer's Baker shop, six cartons of cigarettes and several dollars in change taken; Hamlyn's Milk Depot, 40 cents missing; Kortendiek's Meat Market, 40 cents missing; Regner residence, nothing taken; Rear of Brainard's barber shop, nothing missing; Westerberger's residence, rear of meat market, nothing missing, News office, nothing missing, Basement of post office, nothing taken, Stridde's Delicatessen Store, nothing missing. INCREASE YIELD BY PREVENTING SMUT

Grain smut was unusually severe last year owing largely to the cool season. The seed that will be sown this year will have an abundance of smut spores or "geoms" under the hulls, in the furrows and even inside the kernels. This applies especially to oats smut, barley smut and the stinking smut of wheat. If such seed is sown without first killing the spores loss from smut is sure to occur. Such losses have in the past caused a reduction of one-third of the entire crop.

The Formalin Seed Treatment is the best and most effective for general use on the average farm. The cost is extremely low, in fact so low that no farmer can afford not to treat his seed grain. We must, however, remember that the formalin treatment is not a "cure all" and will never take the place of strong seed and good preparation of the seed bed. Treated seed will also rot in the soil the same as untreated seed.

The solution used is made up as follows: 1 pint of Formalin (Formaldehyde 40 percent solution) in 35 gallons of water at a temperature of about 60 degrees. Dip loosely filled gunny sacks of the grain into the solution for five minutes. Allow to drain. Then cover the sacks with a canvas or bags for about two hours. Spread and allow to drain.

Always run the seed through a good fanning mill before any treatment is given. This will not only remove the light kernels unfit for seed, but will also remove the spores balls and many of the free smut spores. Avoid freezing the wet grain. Freezing will lower or destroy the germination. When the grain has been treated and is still wet and swollen, the seeder or drill should be set to sow a half a bushel more per acre than the usual amount.

BILL TO PROTECT STOCK INVESTORS

Measure in Assembly Prevents Sale of Bogus Securities.

ALL MUST OBTAIN PERMITS

Rail Body Would Enforce Provisions of Proposed Act—Senate Votes to Repeal Secrecy Clause of State Income Tax Law.

Madison.—A bill designed to put teeth into the "blue sky" law so as to prevent the sale of worthless and fraudulent stocks in the state of Wisconsin has been offered in the legislature by Assemblyman C. C. Coe of Barron county.

The Wisconsin railroad commission is given power to enforce the provisions of the measure. Persons desiring to sell stock in this state must file their application with the railroad commission.

By a vote of 17 to 16 the senate passed the Severin bill providing for the repeal of the secrecy clause in the state income tax law.

The assembly killed the Ganz resolution for a 90-day session of the legislature, also the Maslakowski bill for unanimous decisions of the supreme court to declare a law unconstitutional.

The Coe bill giving women of Wisconsin the right to vote for presidential electors, which has passed both houses of the legislature, has not as yet been received by Governor Philipp for signature.

Addressing a Liberty bond mass meeting at the stock pavilion on April 3, Doctor McElroy claims he was so shocked at the lack of loyalty and enthusiasm as he unfolded what he considered one of his best patriotic speeches that he hurled this challenge at a regiment of cadets:

"I think you're a bunch of damned traitors."

A poll of members of the legislature has failed to bring to light anyone who feels that any such challenge was uttered loud enough for the students to hear it, but since Doctor McElroy insists that he called a regiment of cadets "a bunch of traitors" it is proposed to introduce a resolution taking issue with and condemning him for what he said.

The assembly tabled the Johnson bill to forbid the teaching of foreign languages in Wisconsin schools after a long and bitter debate, in which the majority of various members of the legislature was attacked.

Germany is so strong," he said, "because only German is spoken in Germany. Their efforts to undermine the strength of America was through the attempt to perpetuate Germanic tendencies in their children in America through the German tongue. It is time the residents in America were taught to be Americans and not hyphenates."

Though this bill is killed, another bill by Assemblyman Fons of Milwaukee, less drastic, is still awaiting action.

In the senate the assembly resolution approving the Wilson program for a league of nations was unanimously adopted.

Criticizes Soldiers on Farm Idea.

"The present plan of the federal administration for the settlement of returned soldiers in community groups and selected areas absolutely will not do for conditions in the Great Lakes region," declared H. L. Russell, dean of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, before the state convention of Wisconsin real estate men here recently.

The government plan is to settle a returned soldier on land reclaimed by government labor under government supervision and pay, the cost of reclaiming and the price of land to be returned in long-time payments.

"This may be suited to conditions in the irrigated sections of the West," said Dean Russell, "but it is not for Wisconsin."

"Forty thousand of Wisconsin's 110,000 soldiers were from farms," declared the dean. "If these 40,000 boys are to benefit by government assistance it means they must leave their homes to go to some other spot selected by the government."

Dean Russell advocated a constructive policy which would help the Wisconsin men in service.

He believes in a state policy which will not only include the soldier, but anyone else who wants to work for a home and farm. Wisconsin is ready to go ahead with intelligent settlement, he said.

Minimum Wage Scale Is Ordered.

Minimum wages of 40 cents an hour for men and 35 cents an hour for women in nine industrial plants at Madison were awarded by C. C. McChord, a former interstate commerce commissioner, acting as a war labor board umpire at Washington, D. C.

The concerns affected by the award are the Southern Wisconsin Foundry company, Steine Turret Machine company, Burgess Battery company, Northwestern Ordnance company, Gisholt Machine company, Fuller & Johnson, Madison Kipp Lubricator company, Scanlon-Morris company and C. F. Burgess Laboratory.

Expect Action in Berger Case.

Feeling is general in legislative circles that Victor Berger will never take his seat in congress and already talk is centered on who will be elected to fill the place.

It is believed that the first thing the incoming congress will do will be to declare Berger's seat vacant. Then the governor will call for a special election and the secretary of state will take legal steps for a special primary.

Actual entrance of Berger into prison does not automatically vacate his seat, according to Attorney General J. J. Blaine. Under the Constitution congress is judge of the "election, election returns and qualifications" of its members.

The county figures show Dane county has the largest acreage, 109,550, which produced 4,930,000 bushels.

SECURE FARM NOW

Western Canada Offers Opportunity to the Ambitious.

Fertile Land at Moderate Cost. With Social and Other Advantages That Mean So Much, Will Soon Be Taken Up.

The desire to have a piece of land of one's own is a natural instinct in the heart of every properly developed man and woman. In earlier years, on account of the great areas of land available in the United States, no great difficulty was experienced by any ambitious settler who wished to become his own landholder, but the rapid increase in population, combined with the corresponding rise in the price of land, has completely changed this condition. Land which a generation ago might be had for homesteading, now commands prices ranging to $100 an acre and over. At such prices it is quite hopeless for the city man with limited capital, to attempt to buy a farm of his own. To pay for it becomes a lifelong task, and the probability is that he will never do more than meet the interest charges. If he is serious in his desires to secure a farm home he must look to countries where there is still abundant fertile land available at moderate cost, and where these lands are to be purchased on terms which make it possible for the settler with small capital to become a farm owner as the result of a few years' labor. He will also want land in a country where the practices of the people are similar to those to which he has been accustomed; a country with the same language, same religion, same general habits of living, with laws, currency, weights and measures, etc., based on the same principles as those with which he is familiar. He wants a country where he can buy land from $20 to $40 an acre which will produce as big or bigger crops as those he has been accustomed to from lands at $100 an acre. He wants this land where social conditions will be attractive to himself and family, and where he can look forward with confidence to being in a few years independent, and well started on the road to financial success.

All these conditions he will find in western Canada. The provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba provide the one and only answer to the land-hungry. The land is there; it is the kind of land he wants; the conditions are as nearly ideal as it is possible, and the prices and terms are such that the man of moderate capital has an opportunity not available to him elsewhere. Land values are going to increase, but it will largely depend on how well the soil can be used, and the modern farmer is using it each year to better advantage.

But those who are on the ground and come closest to the heart of the farming sections are convinced that the material decrease in value is in sight. Indeed, they are almost unanimous in believing that we shall see a strong real estate market for fertile land with prices maintained; and as development and further equipments are added the prices on the open market may be expected to show a further increase as the years go on—up to the limit of income plus what men are willing to pay to possess an attractive home.

Someone once said: "Never sell short on the United States. You will lose every time." And this applies to those who are inclined to believe that the future of farm values is in doubt. The American farmer is going forward, not backward, and the same may be said of the Canadian farmer.—Advertisement.

Relieved of Catarrh Due to La Grippe, Thanks to PERUNA

Mrs. Laura Berberick, 69 years old, of 1205 Willow Ave., Hoboken, N. J., writes:

"Four years ago I had a severe attack of La Grippe. After my sickness I was troubled with hoarseness and aches in the head and throat, and was told I had Catarrh. I took some medicine but without much benefit. Every winter for four years I have had La Grippe (last winter three times). The Catarrh grew worse. I could not lie down or sleep at night. Was always troubled with aches, pains in my back and a terrible headache every morning, when I woke up, and had no blood. I got a Peruna calendar in Danish, my native language, and I read it through, every testimony, and then I bought a bottle of Peruna. To-day I can truthfully testify that Peruna has been a great benefit to me. It has given me blood and strength. I can lie down and sleep without being troubled. I have no pain, headache, or noise in my head. I have gained three pounds, which I think is good for my age. I will be sixty-nine years old next summer. I have used Peruna since I started in February, and I use it yet. I feel cheerful and happy, thanks to Peruna. It will always be in my home and I recommend it to those who need it."

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be removed and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. All these indicate some weakness of the kidneys or other organs or that the enemy microbes which are always present in your system have attacked your weak spots. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are what you need.

When a cow fails to "clean" promptly, she should be flushed with B-K. A retained afterbirth may cause abortion or barrenness. B-K as a douche before the afterbirth naturally—never removing by hand. B-K kills the infecting germs and foul odors—keeps the uterus—removes slime and acid—no straining—no irritation. COLLEGE SANDWICHES.

There is no place where a sandwich is more appreciated than at a college girls' luncheon.

They may be prepared from countless combinations, costly or otherwise. The bread for sandwiches should be a day or two old and sliced very thin. When butter is used for the first spreading, it is best creamed, as it may be thus spread very thin.

Sandwich de Luxe.—Mix a few stalks of shredded mint with quince jelly and spread this mixture on slices of stale sponge cake cut very thin and put together sandwich fashion.

Nuts With Dates.—Take equal quantities of dates and nuts, run through a meat chopper and add to each cupful of the mixture one-quarter of a cup of maple sugar with enough cream to make a mixture to spread. Use as a filling on bread, toasted sponge cake, or any loaf cake.

Japanese Sandwiches.—Use equal quantities of almonds and preserved cherries, chop the cherries or grind them and pound the almonds to a paste, mix with a little almond extract and if moisture is needed, a little cream.

Mexican Hots.—Chop one tomato, one onion and one green pepper, season with salt, red pepper and vinegar; spread on wafers or bread.

Unusual Sandwich.—Chop equal parts of dates and raisins in a meat chopper; to each cupful add two tablespoonfuls of honey and one of orange juice.

Preserved ginger chopped very fine and blended with cream makes a most glibbery sandwich.

Spread thinly cut rusks, with peanut butter, then with melted sweet chocolate.

Spread wafers with nut butter, add a marshmallow and toast in the oven.

Ability is often buried deep in content and indifference. A blow in the face has more than once stirred a good-natured, easy-going gazer into a realization of his real strength.—Kaufman.

SEASONABLE FOOD.

Beef hearts are not expensive and when stuffed make a most savory meat.

Calves' hearts may be cut in slices and cooked in hot fat until well browned and served with baked potatoes.

Lamb Goulash.—Take two lamb's hearts well-washed and all the arteries removed, cut in inch-sized pieces and parboil. Mince very fine, eight onions, three green peppers, place in a deep saucepan and add the prepared hearts, one teaspoonful of thyme, a pinch of sage, and a quart of boiling water; cook until the meat is tender then add a dozen dumplings made as follows: one beaten egg, a half-teaspoonful of salt, a cupful of buttermilk, a teaspoonful of baking powder sifted with a cupful of flour; add enough flour to make a soft drop batter and steam eight minutes if the dumplings are dropped from a teaspoon.

Veal Cutlets.—Cut veal steak into pieces two by three inches and flatten well, dip in egg then in bread crumbs and fry a golden brown in hot fat. Place in the oven to finish cooking for twenty minutes. Drain the fat from the pan, and add two tablespoonfuls of flour. Brown quickly and add a cupful of water. Bring to a boil and cook five minutes. Add a teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of paprika, one tablespoonful of grated onion and two tablespoonfuls of minced green pepper. Place the meat on a platter and pour the sauce around it.

Lamb or Mutton With Carrots.—The woolly flavor of mutton which is so objectionable to many palates, may be almost wholly removed by care in preparation, provided the butcher has been careful. The meat should never be touched by hands that have handled the wool. The wool grows on the skin and if the skin is carefully removed it takes with it that woolly flavor. Brown a slice of mutton, cut in serving-sized pieces, and sprinkle with a generous dredging of flour; season well, add a finely-minced onion and a pint of carrots cut in shoestrings, with water to simmer for two or three hours on the back of the stove or in a casserole. The flour will thicken the liquor enough for a gravy. Serve the meat with the vegetable and gravy.

When we speak of obedience, of the new man, of the true light, the true love, or the life of Christ, it is all the same thing, and where one of these is, there are they all, and where one is wanting, there is none of them, for they are all one in truth and substance. And whatever may bring about the new birth which maketh alive in Christ, to that let us cleave with all our might and to naught else; and let us forswear and flee all that may hinder it.—Theologia Germanica (fourteenth century).

Julia Bottomley
Ribbon Workbag.
A good workbag can be made from two yards of Dresden ribbon six and one-half inches wide and one embroidery hoop. Cut two rounds of cardboard, the size of the hoop for the bottoms of the "double-decker" bag, pad with sheet cotton and cover with the ribbon. Divide the remaining ribbon in halves and seam up both pieces. Then sew one to a cardboard round and fasten at the top of the outside rim of the embroidery hoop. Make the top part of the bag in the same way, save that the cardboard bottom is to be sewed to the inside of the embroidery ring, which has been covered by the silk ribbon.

The New Life.

When we speak of obedience, of the new man, of the true light, the true love, or the life of Christ, it is all the same thing, and where one of these is, there are they all, and where one is wanting, there is none of them, for they are all one in truth and substance. And whatever may bring about the new birth which maketh alive in Christ, to that let us cleave with all our might and to naught else; and let us forswear and flee all that may hinder it.—Theologia Germanica (fourteenth century).

Economy Corner

There are some straw hats that may be washed with safety. A shape which does not contain glue or shellac may be cleaned in this way. First dust the hat thoroughly, using brush and cloth, and by shaking out the freed particles of dirt. Then make a warm suds of soap and water and scrub the hat with a nail brush. When it is dry rub over it the white of an egg beaten to a froth.

Chiffon is washed in warm suds, for which a bland soap is used. The washing will be successful if the chiffon is handled gently. After rinsing fold in a towel and run through a wringer. When partially dry it should be ironed on the right side with a moderately hot iron. The chiffon veils are laundered in the same way.

To Freshen Ribbons and Silks. Black ribbons may be renovated by first brushing them free of dust and then sponging them with a mixture of water and alcohol, using one part of alcohol to two parts of water. When partly dry run under a piece of thin muslin, or black crinoline, with a moderately warm iron.

Colored ribbons of good quality will wash if care is taken in the process, which is the same as that for chiffon, except that they are ironed on the wrong side. A very fine way for freshening ribbons is to pull them across escaping steam from the teakettle. A contrivance of tin is used for this purpose, which fits over the spout and spreads into a flat fan with a slit in the top. Bows that do not need cleaning, but have become mussed may be cleverly pressed with a curling iron. Try this with little silk bows or velvet bows. Make the iron quite hot.

In Wrapped Effects. Skirts grow scabby and longer at the season advances. A wrapped effect around the ankles is particularly smart, and some of the satin and velvet afternoon frocks have these graceful, wrapped skirts, the material clinging about the ankles and falling in soft draperies below the hips. The daintiest sort of footwear is required with a wrapped and draped skirt of rich material—stout walking boots would utterly spoil the effect; and winter boots for dress occasions are high of heel and light of sole; dancing boots they might well be called though they trip over the pavements even on inclement days. The tailored hack-about suit usually accompanies sturdier footwear of dark tan calf with sensible heels.

New Form of Trimming. Enormous braided buttonholes with buttons at one end form the trimming of some of the new dresses put out by Premier. On one there are three of these, forming the trimming of the bodice, the topmost one being at least six inches long, the center one perhaps five inches and the one nearest the waistline possibly four inches. Four graded buttonholes of similar construction trim the upper part of the front panel of the skirt.

Distinctly Youthful in Design

Here is a sprightly dress of wool, which may be made of any of the soft and substantial weaves that hang gracefully. It is cut on the simplest lines, plain as to skirt and waist, with a meagerness of trimmings that amounts to severity, but is popular with young people. It boasts a small turn-over collar, bordered with a narrow braid and the sleeves are indulged in a band of the same braid and four small buttons at the wrist. It will be noticed that the skirt is longer than for some seasons, almost covering the ankles. This is a characteristic of spring styles in frocks.

The special pride and glory of this unpretentious but smart bit of designing for youthful wearers, is the apron at the front. This is made of one of those new fabrics that are giving manufacturers of staple goods a bad quarter-hour. It looks like Jersey and might be successfully made of that favored fabric, but it is more likely to be of some of these supple materials is bordered with a wide band of georgette at the bottom and outlined with a simple braided pattern. A wide circle of the same material across the back and two narrow bands of folded georgette over the front, with a button on the ends of each, complete a decoration that makes the frock. The body of the dress is in navy blue and the apron in beige with blue trimming.

An Irreproachable spring hat of navy blue lisse is gay with a wreath of blossoms and a rose-colored facing. The bosom of the young person so faultlessly dressed is entitled to swell with pride and joy.

Pin Saving Help. A magnet on a tape is excellent to keep in the sewing room, or to use wherever sewing is done, as by this means stray needles may be picked up that otherwise might not be found until they did some damage.

All Smoking Tobaccos are Flavored

"Your Nose Knows"

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says about the manufacture of smoking tobacco, "... on the Continent and in America certain 'sauces' are employed... the use of the 'sauces' is to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves."

Your smoke-enjoyment depends as much upon the Quality and kind of flavoring used as upon the Quality and aging of the tobacco.

Tuxedo tobaccos are the purest, most wholesome and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate! That flavoring, added to the finest of carefully aged and blended burley tobacco, produces Tuxedo—the perfect tobacco—

"Your Nose Knows."

Try This Test: Rub a little Tuxedo briskly in the palm of your hand to bring out its full aroma. Then smell it deep—its delicious, pure fragrance will convince you. Try this test with any other tobacco and we will let Tuxedo stand or fall on your judgment—"Your Nose Knows."

The doctor left his home in Scotland, South Dakota in May 1917 for New York, where he was stationed for some time in the Rockefeller Institute, later he was transferred to Washington. After several months of training he was again transferred to Camp McClellan, Ala., where he was assigned a position in the base hospital. That he made good is shown by the fact that shortly after he reached New York he was promoted to the office of second Lieutenant, then first Lieutenant and later Captain, and shortly before the armistice was signed Dr. Landman was recommended as major. He was accompanied here by his wife and family, who visited with him for some time at the latter camp. The doctor states that after he has taken a short rest he will return to his home with his family to Scotland, South Dakota, where he has practiced medicine for the past eight years, during which time he has built up a large trade in the medical profession.

WILSON DECLARES MAJORITY FAVORS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

President and Taft Speak to Big Audience in New York.

CRITICS OF COVENANT HIT

Former President Says He's Trying to Find Out What the Monroe Doctrine Means—Woodrow Declares Certain Persons Have Not Observed the Temper of the World.

New York, March 5.—On the eve of his return to Paris President Wilson told an audience of 5,000 persons in the Metropolitan opera house that he was convinced that the majority of the people were in favor of the league of nations.

The league, he asserted, is the only means of assuring permanent peace. It is meant, he said, as a notice to all outlaw nations that they must not attempt any such enterprise as Germany had attempted.

Critics of the covenant, he said, evidently had not observed the temper of the world or the temper of the boys in khaki. "Those boys," he said, "went over there with the feeling that they were sacredly bound to the realization of those ideals."

The president spoke in his usual carefully modulated tones, but now and then, carried away by interest in his subject, raised his voice almost to a shout as he emphasized some telling point. He was frequently interrupted by applause. The audience clearly was in sympathy with him and with his plan for making war impossible in the future.

His opening assertion, "I won't come back till it's over, over there," won the approval of his hearers and he was compelled to halt for more than a minute until the applause had subsided. Throughout, he spoke without reference to notes or manuscript.

There was deafening applause at the conclusion of the speech when the president, speaking of the aims of the conference, said:

"God give us the strength and vision to do it wisely. God give us the privilege of knowing that we did it without outcounting the cost and because we were true Americans, lovers of liberty and of the right."

Mr. Taft, in his speech, endorsed the president's plans for a league of nations. The practicability of the proposed covenant was explained by Mr. Taft. The boycott, he asserted, would be an effective weapon against any nation refusing to abide by decisions of the league.

The Monroe doctrine, Mr. Taft said, had been subjected to many varying interpretations.

"I have no objection to putting into the covenant of the league a reservation to the Monroe doctrine if we can only find out what it is."

What the President Said. He had struck up "Over There" the president stepped forward to his fellow citizens, I accept the invitation of the air just played; I will come back 'till it's over, over there." (Applause.) "And yet I pray in the interests of peace and of the world that that may be soon. (Applause.) The first thing I am going to do is to get all the people on the other side of the water is that an overwhelming majority of the American people is in favor of the league of nations. (Applause.) I know that that is true. I have had unmistakable intimations of it from all parts of the country and the voice rings true in every case. I account myself fortunate to speak here under the unusual circumstances of this evening. I am happy to associate myself with Mr. Taft in this great cause. (Applause.) He has displayed an elevation of view and a devotion to public duty which is beyond praise. (Applause.) And I am the more happy because this means that this is not a party issue. (Applause.) No party has the right to appropriate this issue and no party will in the long run dare oppose it. (Applause.)

"We have listened to so clear and admirable an exposition of many of the main features of the proposed covenant of the league of nations, that it is perhaps not necessary for me to discuss in any particular way the contents of the document. I will seek rather to give you its setting. I do not know when I have been more impressed than by the conferences of the commission set up by the conference of peace to draw up a covenant for the league of nations. The representatives of fourteen nations sat around that board—not young men, not men inexperienced in the affairs of their own countries, not men inexperienced in the politics of the world—and the inspiring influence of every meeting was the concurrence of purpose on the part of all those men to come to an agreement and an effective working agreement with regard to this league of the civilized world. There was a conviction in the whole impulse. There was conviction of more than one sort. There was the conviction that this thing ought to be done, and there was also the conviction that not a man there would venture to go home and say that he had not tried to do it.

"We have been hearing for all these wearily months that this agony of war has tasted of the sinister purpose of the central empires. The Austro-Hungarian empire has gone to pieces and the Turkish empire has disappeared (Applause) and the nations that effected that great result—for it was a result of liberation—are now responsible as the trustees of the assets of those great nations. (Applause.)

"One of the things that the league of nations is intended to watch is the course of intrigue. Intrigue cannot stand publicity and if the league of nations were nothing but a great debating society it would kill intrigue. It is one of the agreements of this covenant that it is the friendly right of every nation a member of the league, to call attention to anything that it thinks will disturb the peace of the world, no matter where that thing is occurring. (Applause.) There is no subject that may touch the peace of the world which is exempt from inquiry and discussion and I think everybody here present will agree with me that Germany would never have gone to war if she had permitted the world to discuss the aggression upon Serbia for a single week. (Applause.) The British foreign office suggested, it pleads that there might be a day or two delay so that the representatives of the nations of Europe could get together and discuss the possibilities of a settlement. Germany did not dare permit a day's discussion. You know what happened.

Outlaw at Large.

So soon as the world realized that an outlaw was at large, the nations began one by one to draw together against her. We know for a certainty that if Germany had thought for a moment that Great Britain would go in with France and with Russia she never would have undertaken the enterprise, and the league of nations is meant as a notice to all outlaw nations that not only Great Britain but the United States and the rest of the world will go in to stop enterprises of that sort. (Applause.) And so the league of nations is nothing more nor less than the covenant that the world will always maintain the standards which it has now vindicated by some of the most precious blood ever spilled. (Applause.) The liberated peoples of the Austro-Hungarian empire and of the Turkish empire call out to us for this thing. It has not arisen in the council of statesmen. Europe is a bit sick at heart at this very moment, because it sees that statesmen have had no vision and that the only vision has been the vision of the people. (Applause.) Those who suffer, see those against whom wrong is wrought know how desirable is the right and the righteous. The nations that have long been under the heel of the Austrian, that have long suffered the indescribable agonies of being governed by the Turk, have called out to the world, generation after generation, for justice, for liberation, for succor; and no cabinet in the world has heard them. Private organizations, pitying hearts, philanthropic men and women have poured out their treasure in order to relieve these sufferers; but no nation has said to the nations responsible, 'You must stop; this thing is intolerable, and we will not permit it.' (Applause.) And the vision has been with the people.

"My friends, I wish you would reflect upon this proposition: The vision of what is necessary for great reforms has seldom come from the top in the nations of the world. It has come from the need and the aspiration and the self-assertion of great bodies of men who meant to be free. (Applause.) And I can explain some of the criticisms which have been leveled against this enterprise only by the supposition that the men who utter the criticisms have never felt the great pulse of the heart of the world. (Applause and cheers.)

Scorches Certain Senators.

"And I am amazed, not alarmed, but amazed (applause) that there should be in some quarters such a comprehensive ignorance of the state of the world. (Applause.) These gentlemen do not know what the mind of men is now. Everybody else does. (Laughter.) I do not know where they have been closeted; I do not know by what influences they have been blinded, but I do know that they have been separated from the general currents of thoughts of mankind. (Applause.) And I want to utter this solemn warning, not in the way of a threat; the forces of the world do not threaten, they operate (applause). The great tides of the world do not give notice that they are going to rise and run; they rise in their majesty and overwhelming might and those who stand in the way are overwhelmed. Now the heart of the world is awake and the heart of the world must be satisfied. Do not let yourselves suppose for a moment that the uneasiness in the populations of Europe is due entirely to economic causes or economic motives; something very much deeper underlies it all than that. They see that their governments have never been able to defend them against intrigue or aggression and that there is no force of foresight or of prudence in any modern cabinet to stop war. And therefore they say: 'There must be some fundamental cause for this, and the fundamental cause they are beginning to perceive to be that nations have stood singly or in little jealous groups against each other, fostering prejudice, increasing the danger of war, rather than concerting measures to prevent it; and that if there is right in the world, if there is justice in the world, there is no reason why nations should be divided in the support of justice (applause).'"

SENATE PASSES VICTORY LOAN

Republican Filibuster Fails, Senate Voting Bill at Six in the Morning.

BIG VICTORY FOR PRESIDENT

Senators La Follette and Sherman Led the Opposition, but Talked Themselves Out—Scions Rout-ed Out of Bed to Vote.

Washington, March 4.—In the early hours Sunday morning the Republican filibuster in the senate against the Victory loan bill collapsed like a bubble blown by the wind, and the bill was passed without a roll call. The bill authorized the secretary of the treasury to issue $7,000,000,000 in bonds and certificates and to fix the rate of interest on the same.

The passage of the bill by the senate and the defeat of the filibuster is a distinct victory for President Wilson in that he will not be forced to call the Sixty-sixth congress in extra session until after his return from Europe. Secretary Glass had informed administration senators that he would be unable to float the Victory loan if the bill were not passed before April 1.

Senators La Follette of Wisconsin and Sherman of Illinois tried to carry on a filibuster all by themselves, but after talking themselves out and finding no one willing to assist them they gave up and allowed the bill to pass.

It was 6:18 when the final vote on the bill was taken. At the time the vote was ordered there were only nine senators in the chamber, seven Republicans and two Democrats.

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania demanded the presence of a quorum. Soon deputies of the sergeant-at-arms office were scurrying about the city in taxis routing tired senators out of their beds and forcing them to go to the capitol. Within an hour or two they succeeded in rounding up enough to make a quorum.

REVOLT IN GERMANY

MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT ARRIVE IN BERLIN.

Officials Admit That Little Hope is Left Them—Issue Long Manifesto.

London, March 3.—The possible fall of the German government is reported in numerous special dispatches received from Berlin. The members of the government have arrived at Berlin to consult with the workmen's council, and a manifesto has been issued.

Berlin, March 3.—The government has issued a long manifesto from Weimar, denouncing the terrorist attempts to get rid of the national assembly. It proclaims faithfulness to the principles of democracy.

"Greater than the political danger is the economic distress," says the manifesto. "We cannot feed ourselves from our own supplies until the next harvest. The blockade is eating away the vitals of our people. Thousands perish daily from ill nourishment. The manifesto denounces strikes, saying: 'Every strike brings us a step nearer to the abyss. Only work can save us.'"

The manifesto promises the socialization of suitable industries and establishment of industrial councils representative of all the workers and freely elected. It closes with a strong note, asserting the determination of the government to wage relentless war against terrorism, concluding: "Whoever assails the life of the nation is our enemy."

Munich, March 3.—The soldiers and workmen's congress has rejected by a vote of 234 to 70 a motion reading as follows: "The socialist republic of councils is proclaimed and legislative and executive powers belong directly to the working people represented by councils of workmen, soldiers and peasants," and has adopted the following resolution: "The assembly of soldiers and workmen's councils constitutes the provisional national council of the free state of Bavaria. The executive committee will be charged with the direction of national business and will consist of 33 members, whose appointments are revocable by the national council. The committee will choose a central committee of seven, which will be responsible to it."

WILSON DENIES BAN ON IRISH

President Says He Did Not Tell Congressmen That Question is Up to Britain.

Washington, March 3.—Secretary Tumulty issued a statement at the White House denying formally on behalf of President Wilson that the president told members of the congressional foreign affairs committee Wednesday night that the Irish question was a matter between Ireland and England and that Ireland would have no voice in the peace conference at present. A statement to this effect, made by at least one of the committee members after the White House conference was characterized as having "no foundation in fact and is a deliberate falsehood." Mr. Tumulty refused to discuss what the president did say about the Irish question.

WILSON PLEDGES HELP TO LABOR

President Opens Conference of Governors and Mayors at White House.

GLAD TO GET SUGGESTIONS

Says He Hopes Means Will Be Found to Restore Labor Conditions to Normal as Soon as Possible.

Washington, March 5.—Opening the White House conference of governors on peace-time business and labor problems, President Wilson promised that the federal government would consider itself the servant of the states, municipalities and counties in solving readjustment problems, and would perform its duty guided by suggestions of the conference.

The president said he hoped the conference discussion would assume a wide range, including means of restoring labor conditions to a normal basis as soon as possible.

Touching upon the peace conference he said the conferees at Paris regarded themselves only as servants of about 700,000,000 people of the world and not as their masters.

The president said: "I wish that I could promise myself the pleasure and the profit of taking part in your deliberations. I find that nothing deliberate is permitted me since my return. I have been trying, under the guidance of my secretary, Mr. Tumulty, to do a month's work in a week, and I am hoping that not all of it has been done badly, but inasmuch as there is a necessary pressure upon my time, I know that you will excuse me from taking a part in your conference, much as I should be profited by doing so."

"My pleasant duty is to bid you a hearty welcome and to express my gratification that so many executives of cities and of states have found the time and the inclination to come together on the very important matter we have to discuss.

"The primary duty of caring for our people in the intimate matters that we want to discuss here, of course, falls upon the states and upon the municipalities, and the function of the federal government is to do what it is trying to do in a conference of this sort—draw the executive minds of the country together so that they may profit by each other's suggestions and plans, and so that we may offer our services to co-ordinate their efforts in any way that they may deem it wise to co-ordinate. In other words, it is the privilege of the federal government in matters of this sort to be the servant of the executives of the states and municipalities and counties, and we shall perform that duty with the greatest pleasure if you will guide us with your suggestions."

Secretary Wilson presided at the morning session. In opening the conference he urged a program of co-operation between states and municipalities, aided by the federal government, that would lead toward stabilization of labor.

America has no place for the disloyal alien. The conference unanimously adopted a resolution endorsing a statement by Secretary of Labor Wilson that it was the secretary's duty to deport all persons advocating the overthrow of government by force.

Previous to the adoption of this resolution Secretary Wilson told the conference that the recent strikes at Seattle, Butte, Lawrence and other places were not industrial, economic disputes in their origin, but were results of an organized attempt at a social and political movement to establish soviet governments in the United States.

"No one," he said, "is being deported because of his union affiliations and strike activities. It is the duty of the secretary of labor to deport all who advocate the overthrow of government by force, but no one will be deported because he is a radical. Advocates of overthrowing government by force must be considered an invading enemy. When such are found guilty the department will deport them."

As regards Asia Minor the commission agreed in principle that the strip of coast between Avani and Cos, including Smyrna and Ephesus, shall be assigned to Greece as full owner or as international mandator.

BARTON MAKES HIS FIRST FORAY INTO THE WORLD AS A STUDENT IN MICHAEL HACKETT'S ACADEMY

Synopsis—Barton Baynes, an orphan, goes to live with his uncle, Peabody Baynes, and his Aunt Deel on a farm on Rattlerdun, in a neighborhood called Lickitysplit, about the year 1826. He meets Sally Dunkelberg, about his own age, but socially of a class above the Bayneses, and is fascinated by her pretty face and fine clothes. Barton also meets Roving Kate, known in the neighborhood as the "Silent Woman." Amos Grimshaw, a young son of the richest man in the township, is a visitor at the Baynes home and Roving Kate tells the boys' fortunes, predicting a bright future for Barton and death on the gallows for Amos. Barton meets Silas Wright, Jr., a man prominent in public affairs, who evinces much interest in the boy. Barton learns of the power of money when Mr. Grimshaw threatens to take the Baynes farm unless a note which he holds is paid. Now in his sixteenth year, Barton, on his way to the post office at Canton, meets a stranger and they ride together. They encounter a highwayman, who shoots and kills the stranger. Barton's horse throws him and runs away. As the murderer bends over the stranger Barton throws a stone, which he observes wounds the thief, who makes off at once.

The beauty of that perfect day was upon her. I remember that her dress was like the color of its fireweed blossoms and that the blue of its sky was in her eyes and the yellow of the sunlight in her hair and the red of its clover in her cheeks. I remember how the August breezes played with her hair, flinging its golden curving strands about her neck and shoulders so that it touched my face, now and then, as we walked! Somehow the rustle of her dress started a strange vibration in my spirit. I put my arm around her waist and she put her arm around mine as we ran along. A curious feeling came over me. I stopped and loosed my arm.

"It's very warm!" I said as I picked a stalk of fireweed.

What was there about the girl which so thrilled me with happiness? She turned away and felt the ribbon by which her hair was gathered at the back of her head.

After a moment of silence I ventured: "I guess you've never fallen in love."

"Yes, I have."

"Who with?"

"I don't think I dare tell you," she answered, slowly, looking down as she walked.

"I'll tell you who I love if you wish," I said.

"Who?"

"You." I whispered the word and was afraid she would laugh at me, but she didn't.

We stopped and listened to the song of a bird—I do not remember what bird it was—and then she whispered:

"Will you love me always and forever?"

"Yes," I answered in the careless way of youth.

She stopped and looked into my eyes and I looked into hers.

"May I kiss you?" I asked, and afraid, with cheeks burning.

She turned away and answered: "I guess you can if you want to."

Now I seem to be in Aladdin's tower and to see her standing so red and graceful and innocent in the sunlight, and that strange fire kindled by our kisses warms my blood again.

That night I heard a whispered conference below after I had gone up stairs. I knew that something was coming and wondered what it might be.

I remember the sad excitement of that ride to the village and all the words of advice and counsel spoken by my aunt.

I remember looking in vain for Sally as we passed the Dunkelbergs'. I remember my growing loneliness as the day wore on and how Aunt Deel stood silently buttoning my coat, with tears rolling down her cheeks, while I leaned back upon the gate in front of the Hackett house, on Ashery lane, trying to act like a man and rather ashamed of my poor success.

Uncle Peabody stood surveying the sky in silence with his back toward us. He turned and nervously blew out his breath. His lips trembled a little as he said:

"I dunno but what it's goin' to rain."

I watched them as they walked to the tavern sheds, both looking down at the ground and going rather unsteadily. Oh, the look of that beloved pair as they walked away from me—the look of their leaning heads! Their silence and the sound of their footsteps are, somehow, a part of the picture which has hung all these years in my memory.

Sally Dunkelberg and her mother came along and said that they were glad I had come to school. I could not talk to them, and seeing my trouble they went on, Sally waving her hand to me as they turned the corner below. I felt ashamed of myself. Suddenly I heard the door open behind me and the voice of Mr. Hackett:

"Bart," he called, "I've a friend here who has something to say to you. Come in."

I turned and went into the house.

"Away with sadness—liddle luck!" he exclaimed as he took his violin from its case while I sat wiping my eyes.

"Away with sadness! She often raps at my door and while I try not to be de. Soon Uncle Peabody came up to our little room looking highly serious. I sat, half unressed and rather fearful, looking into his face. As I think of the immaculate soul of the boy, I feel a touch of pathos in that scene. I think that he felt it, for I remember that his whisper trembled a little as he began to tell me why men are strong and women are beautiful and given in marriage.

"You'll be falling in love one o' these days," he said. "It's natural ye should. You remember Rovin' Kate?" he asked by and by.

"Yes," I answered.

"Some day when you're a little older I'll tell ye her story an' you'll see what happens when men an' women break the law o' God. Here's Mr. Wright's letter. Aunt Deel asked me to give it to you to keep. You're old enough now an' you'll be goin' away to school before long, I guess."

I took the letter and read again the subscription on its envelope:

"To Master Barton Baynes: (To be opened when he leaves home to go to school)."

I put it away in the pine box with leather hinges on its cover which Uncle Peabody had made for me and wondered again what it was all about, and again that night I broke camp and moved further into the world over the silent trails of knowledge.

Uncle Peabody went away for a few days after the harvesting. He had gone afoot, I knew not where. He returned one afternoon in a buggy with the great Michael Hackett of the Canton academy. Hackett was a big, brawny, red-haired, kindly Irishman with a merry heart and tongue, the latter having a touch of the brogue of the green isle which he had never seen, for he had been born in Massachusetts and had got his education in Harvard. He was then a man of forty.

"You're coming to me this fall," he said as he put his hand on my arm and gave me a little shake. "Lad! you've got a pair of shoulders! Ye shall live in my house an' help with the chores if ye wish to."

"That'll be grand," said Uncle Peabody, but, as to myself, just then, I knew not what to think of it.

CHAPTER VIII.

In Which I Meet Other Great Men.

It was a sunny day late in September on which Aunt Deel and Uncle Peabody took me and my little pine chest with all my treasures in it to the village where I was to go to school and live with the family of Mr. Michael Hackett, the schoolmaster.

I remember the sad excitement of that ride to the village and all the words of advice and counsel spoken by my aunt.

I remember looking in vain for Sally as we passed the Dunkelbergs'. I remember my growing loneliness as the day wore on and how Aunt Deel stood silently buttoning my coat, with tears rolling down her cheeks, while I leaned back upon the gate in front of the Hackett house, on Ashery lane, trying to act like a man and rather ashamed of my poor success.

Uncle Peabody stood surveying the sky in silence with his back toward us. He turned and nervously blew out his breath. His lips trembled a little as he said:

"I dunno but what it's goin' to rain."

I watched them as they walked to the tavern sheds, both looking down at the ground and going rather unsteadily. Oh, the look of that beloved pair as they walked away from me—the look of their leaning heads! Their silence and the sound of their footsteps are, somehow, a part of the picture which has hung all these years in my memory.

Sally Dunkelberg and her mother came along and said that they were glad I had come to school. I could not talk to them, and seeing my trouble they went on, Sally waving her hand to me as they turned the corner below. I felt ashamed of myself. Suddenly I heard the door open behind me and the voice of Mr. Hackett:

"Bart," he called, "I've a friend here who has something to say to you. Come in."

I turned and went into the house.

"Away with sadness—liddle luck!" he exclaimed as he took his violin from its case while I sat wiping my eyes.

"Away with sadness! She often raps at my door and while I try not to be dejected. There were in the room a bed, a chair, a portrait of Napoleon Bonaparte and a small table on which were a dictionary, a Bible and a number of schoolbooks.

"These were Mary's books," said Mr. Hackett. "I told your uncle that ye could use them an' welcome."

I sat down and opened the sealed envelope with trembling hands and found in it this brief note:

"Dear Partner: I want you to ask the wisest man you know to explain these words to you. I suggest that you commit them to memory and think often of their meaning. They are from Job:

"His bones are full of the pins of his youth, which shall lie down with him in the dust."

"I believe that they are the most impressive in all the literature I have read."

"Yours truly,
 "SILAS WRIGHT, JR."

I read the words over and over again, but knew not their meaning. Sadly and slowly I got ready for bed. The noises of the village challenged my ear after I had put out my candle. There were many barking dogs. Some horsemen passed, with a creaking of saddle leather, followed by a wagon. Soon I heard running feet and eager voices. I rose and looked out of the open window. Men were hurrying down the street with lanterns.

"He's the son o' Ben Grimshaw," I heard one of them saying. "They caught him back in the south woods of which I had no knowledge.

"The microscope is like the art o' the teacher," he said. "I've known a good teacher to take a brain no bigger than a fly's foot an' make it visible to the naked eye."

One of the children, of which there were four in the Hackett home, called us to supper. Mrs. Hackett, a stout woman with a red and kindly face, sat at one end of the table, and between them were the children—Mary, a pretty daughter of seventeen years; Maggie, a six-year-old; Ruth, a delicate girl of seven, and John, a noisy, red-faced boy of five. The chairs were of plain wood—like the kitchen chairs of today. In the middle of the table was an empty one—painted green. Before he sat down Mr. Hackett put his hand on the back of this chair and said:

"A merry heart to you, Michael Henry."

I wondered at the meaning of this, but dared not to ask. The oldest daughter acted as a kind of moderator with the others.

"Mary is the constable of this house, with power to arrest and hale into court for undue haste or rebellion or impoliteness," Mr. Hackett explained.

"I believe that Sally Dunkelberg is your friend," he said to me presently.

"Yes, sir," I answered.

"A fine slip of a girl that and a born scholar. I saw you look at her as the Persian looks at the rising sun."

I blushed and Mary and her mother and the boy John looked at me and laughed.

"Puer pulcherrime!" Mr. Hackett exclaimed with a kindly smile.

Uncle Peabody would have called it a "stout snag." The schoolmaster had hauled it out of his brain very deftly and chucked it down before me in a kind of challenge.

"What does that mean?" I asked.

"You shall know in a week, my son," he answered. "I shall put you into the Latin class Wednesday morning, and God help you to like it as well as you like Sally."

Again they laughed and again I blushed.

"Hold up yer head, my brave lad," he went on. "Ye've a perfect right to like Sally if ye've a heart to."

"A lad in his teens will never know beans if he hasn't an eye for the girls."

It was a merry supper, and when it ended Mr. Hackett rose and took the green chair from the table, exclaiming:

"Michael Henry, God bless you!"

Then he kissed his wife and said: "Maggie, you wild rose of Erin! I've been all day in the study. I must take a walk or I shall get an exalted abdomen. One is badly beaten in the race o' life when his abdomen gets ahead of his toes. Children, keep our young friend happy here until I come back, and mind you, don't forget the good fellow in the green chair."

Mary helped her mother with the dishes, while I sat with a book by the fireside. Soon Mrs. Hackett and the children came and sat down with me.

"Let's play backgammon," Mary proposed.

"I don't want to," said John.

"Don't forget Michael Henry," she reminded.

"Who is Michael Henry?" I asked.

"Sure, he's the boy that has never been born," said Mrs. Hackett. "He was to be the biggest and noblest of them—kind an' helpful an' cheery hearted an' beloved o' God above all the others. We try to live up to him."

He seemed to me a very strange and wonderful creature—this invisible occupant of the green chair.

I know now what I knew not then that Michael Henry was the spirit of their home—an ideal of which the empty green chair was a constant reminder.

We played backgammon and "old maid" and "everlasting" until Mr. Hackett returned.

The sealed envelope which Mr. Wright had left at our home, a long time before that day, was in my pocket. At last the hour had come when I could open it and read the message of which I had thought much and with a growing interest.

I rose and said that I should like to go to my room. Mr. Hackett lit a candle and took me upstairs to a little room where my chest had been

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

A small bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in a few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scruffy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine for a few cents at any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—your hair will just try a little Danderine.—Adv.

What Is the Cause of Backache?

BY DOCTOR CORNELL

Backache is perhaps the most common ailment from which women suffer. Rarely do you find anybody free from it. Sometimes the cause is obscure, but Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., a high medical authority, says the cause is very often a form of catarrh that settles in the delicate membranes of the feminine organs. When these organs are inflamed, the first symptom is backache, accompanied by bearing-down sensations, weakness, unhealthy discharges, irregularity, painful periods, irritation, headache and a general run-down condition. Any woman in this condition is to be pitied, but pity does not cure. The trouble calls for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is a separate and distinct medicine for women.

It is made of roots and herbs put up without alcohol or opiate of any kind, for Dr. Pierce uses nothing else in his prescription. Favorite Prescription is a natural remedy for women, for the vegetable growths of which it is made seem to have been intended by Nature for that very purpose. Thousands of girls and women, young and old, have taken it, and thousands have written grateful letters to Dr. Pierce saying it made them well. In taking Favorite Prescription, it is reassuring to know that it goes straight to the cause of the trouble. There is but one way to overcome sickness, and that is to overcome the cause. That is precisely what Favorite Prescription is intended to do.

Send 10c for trial pkg. of Tablets. Address Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. Constipated women, as well as men, are advised by Dr. Pierce to take his Pleasant Pellets. They are just splendid for constiveness.

This vicinity was greatly shocked when word was received here Monday morning that Wilmer Kippenhan had passed to the Higher Life at four o'clock that morning. Two weeks ago Wilmer accompanied by Clarence Petri, left for Kansas City, Mo., to attend the Sweeney Motor School, after being there several days he was taken ill with the "flu" which turned into pneumonia. His father and Rev. Csatlós left Sunday but reached there too late. The body arrived here Tuesday afternoon. The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at one o'clock.

Mrs. Wm. Petri received word Monday evening that her son Clarence was very ill with pneumonia and measles. The following morning she left for Kansas City, Mo., and Rev. Csatlós, who just returned from there met her at Milwaukee and accompanied her to Kansas City. The same evening a dispatch was received that he had passed away at four p. m. His mother reached there too late. Clarence took ill a day after Wilmer and remained at his boarding house until Friday when he was taken to the hospital. Rev. Csatlós was allowed to be with him only a few minutes, as he was very low. It is very sad to think that both boys left together full of hope and ambition and shortly afterwards were called to their Heavenly home only a day apart. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to both families. Full obituaries of both young men appear on the front page of this issue.

WORK OF OUR COUNTY SCHOOLS

Teachers' Institute.

The Teachers' Institute held on Saturday, March 1, was well attended considering the inclement weather and drifted roads. In spite of the bitter cold, many teachers drove ten or twelve miles to attend the institute for they knew that certain lines of educational work would be emphasized which they could not afford to miss. Professor W. H. Cheever of the Milwaukee Normal School assisted in conducting it. He very ably outlined the work of Geography and History in view of the present peace conference as it should be taught in our schools. He said that the time to teach Vermont, Montpelier on the Onion, and Florida Tallahassee inland, or to teach the seventeen branches of the Amazon River, has passed; but that the time is here if we are educating children for democracy, to teach them about the League of Nations, Verdun, Chateau Thierry, etc. In other words, our History and Geography work in the schools must emphasize the present and that we should teach the past only to such an extent that we may understand the present and future.

Supt. Alva Groth in her talk showed the teachers from charts prepared from surveys conducted throughout the county the progress which has been made in the line of Pupils' Reading Circle work and Warm Lunches. Actual statistics show that two years ago only 71 children received Reading Circle Diplomas and last year 819 Reading Circle Diplomas were granted to the boys and girls. This year, judging from the general interest taken in this work, no less than two thousand children will receive credit for special reading done. Since reading is the most important subject in the school curriculum and since children learn to read only by reading a great deal, there is nothing that will improve our schools faster than to encourage work of this kind. Warm school lunches are no longer in the experimental stage in Washington County, and the general increase in the number of schools serving a warm dish each day is sufficient proof that our schools are progressing in that line. The town Arithmetic, Spelling and Writing contests which are to be held in every town during the last two weeks in March were strongly urged by Supt. Groth. Each school will send its two best pupils to represent its district. Work in Arithmetic, Spelling and Writing will be given to the contestants and the one having the highest average in these three fundamental subjects will represent that town in a county contest which will perhaps be held in connection with the county commencement exercises.

Supervising teacher Olga Haug gave the teachers practical suggestions as to how to improve their work in Reading and Spelling. The fact that some teachers have not taught children to read for thought but have allowed them to read merely words was revealed by the Reading tests recently conducted. The biggest mistake made in the teaching of Spelling is made in the assignment; instead of pointing out to pupils the difficult parts of each word so as to prevent their making an error, only too often we see teachers assigning the lesson in this way, "take the next ten words".

The music periods conducted by Supervisor Olive Flaherty were enjoyed by all. Community music was sung and a Pussy Willow song was taught the teachers so as to give them something new for spring.

The World Almanac.

Every school should own a copy of the "World Almanac-1919". It is the source of much valuable information from all parts of the world. Notice on pages 66-67 in "Lessons on the Use of the School Library" an explanation on the uses of this book. Notice the questions on page 67 which may be answered by means of "The World Almanac". It may be secured for 50c from the Press Publishing Co., New York City, N. Y.

Eighth Graders Attention

The closing of schools this fall and the great irregularity of attendance due to sickness has given the schools a hard problem to solve. Diploma students will have to do some pretty heavy work to finish their grade this year. It will be no kindness to these young people to turn them out so poorly qualified that they cannot do the first year high school work, and we shall all have to work together to prevent this occurrence. At the present time, it appears that there is a chance to get you through—if you co-operate. Eighth graders must attend school regularly for the rest of the year. The work will be intensified, and essentials only will be given. No eighth grader will be allowed to write the examination unless his attendance is pretty near perfect from now until the end of the school year. If you will attend every day and work, we can get you ready. If you are irregular in attendance, there is no need of trying the examination. Examinations will be held as late in the school year as we can give them so as to give you more time to prepare for them. Unless something unforeseen occurs the second and third Saturdays in May will be the dates of the examinations.
