WHAT CAUSES GARAGE FIRES? The automobile business is still increasing; so are garage fires. These fires start very easily, because of the ever-present, gasoline fumes and oily waste. For this reason too such fires spread rapidly, and cause unusually heavy losses. Gasoline explosions, flooding carburetors, carelessness with matches, smokers, open lights and fires and spontaneous combustion are some of the more common causes of garage fires. Below we give a few concrete examples taken from the fire reports: The careless dropping of a lighted match set the oil-soaked floor on fire. Employee stepped on match on floor, causing a fire. Man stepped on match and set oily waste on fire. Lighted cigarette on work bench set oily waste on fire. Smoker set gasoline in open pail on fire. Employee dropped match into pool, caused by overflowing sewer, and ignited the gasoline on top of the water. Filling tank with auto lights burning. Workman smoked, while tank was being filled. Auto back firing set floor on fire. Short circuit in electric starting apparatus ignited gasoline. Workman used lantern to locate auto to trouble. Near-by light ignited gasoline from leaky tank. Workman dropped unguarded light bulb. The filament set gasoline on fire. Gasoline in open vessel was used for cleaning. The stove fire ignited the fumes. Spark from iron tool ignited gasoline fumes. A workman pierced the feed pipe with an electric drill and the gasoline was ignited. Plumbers blow torch caused an explosion. Spontaneous combustion in oily waste and rags. Rubbish was burned in back yard, and fire flashed back to garage. Are like conditions present, and are similar bad practices tolerated in your garage? If so, you may be the next to have a bad fire. Have you a good supply of dry sand and approved chemical fire extinguishers on each floor to combat incipient fires? Vigilance and carefulness will prevent these fires. Industrial Commission.

WEST BEND BREWERY SOLD

The West Bend brewery was sold at public auction last week Friday morning, consisting of the entire plant, buildings, machinery and equipment for the amount of $25,000. The plant was purchased by Carl Pick of West Bend. The brewery was valued at $120,000, the depreciation is due to the fact that the nation is going dry after July 1st. Although they were forced to stop brewing in December, they have enough beer on hand to supply their customers until July 1st, when national prohibition takes effect. The West Bend brewery was founded in 1848, and for nearly fifty years formed one of the chief industries of that city, as well as of the county. The establishment was known far and near for the good quality of lager beer brewed by that company. It employed twenty-nine people, most of whom were forced to seek other employment. The brewery will in the future be used for the purpose of making malt beverage, for which a trade-mark has already been adopted by the new management. The new beverage will come as near to the lager beer, in its refreshing qualities as the law will allow. We wish the new owner success.

CARUSO COMING

Caruso, the world's greatest tenor, the foremost opera interpreter of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, will sing in the Milwaukee Auditorium May 13 under the auspices of the Mueller-Andrews Concert Bureau. Music patrons in this locality will be permitted to subscribe for seats during the mail order sale which closes April 8. Orders accompanied by remittance and war tax will receive immediate attention. Caruso was booked to sing in Milwaukee last fall, but was compelled to postpone his visit on account of the flu epidemic. The famous artist will sing in ten American cities this spring and Milwaukee, with its big Auditorium, pays $15,000 for one concert and offers it at a scale of prices ranging from one dollar to $3.50.

A PECULIAR PIG

A monstrosity in the form of a pig created considerable interest at the farm of August Poppen of the town of Hartford, Wis. It was a pig with two bodies and one head, each body of the animal being of the normal size for a tiny pig. The two bodies were perfect up to the neck, where they were joined together to the one head. The latter had three ears. It was such a curiosity that it was suggested to the family that it be preserved in alcohol. The rest of the pigs in the litter were all normal. —Hartford Press.

LOCAL GIRLS HOLD PLYMOUTH TO TIE

The most interesting girls basketball game played this season occurred on Friday evening, when the local high school girls played against the strongest girls team that ever played on the local floor, the Plymouth high school girls' team. Throughout the whole game the spectators were kept in doubt which team was the better. At the end of the first half the score was four to four, and when the game was ended, the score was still a tie nine to nine. No doubt our girls would have won had they played the five minutes which was allotted to them. The local quintette certainly have shown wonderful improvement since their last game and if the basketball season was not so close to an end, the community would see many more interesting and exciting girl games. The same evening the local Home Guards played the local high school boys. The score being 35 to 17 in favor of the Guards. The game was one sided throughout, and from the beginning it could be seen that the high school team had no chance of winning.

TREAT YOUR SEED

What about your seed this spring? Are you going to prevent that big loss? Last year a number of our farmers lost one-third of their oat crop through smut. Formaldehyde treatment will prevent 98 per cent of this loss. Stinking smut of wheat will be with us unless we are very careful. Millers cannot use wheat which contains even a trace of smut. The formaldehyde treatment is so simple and cheap that every farmer can afford to treat every bit of his seed. One pint of formaldehyde will treat from 40 to 50 bushels of grain. To about 35 gallons of water add one pint of formaldehyde and dip the grain into this solution for 3 or 5 minutes. Remove and allow to drain. Pour the grain out on the barn floor and shovel over once or twice to hurry the drying. Or better still, have one of the following men treat it for you: Farmers' Merc. Co., Allenton, Froehlich Merc. Co., Jackson, Heppes Cash Store, Hartford. The men have agreed to treat the grain for the farmers at practically cost price. Precautions: Clean the grain thoroughly before treatment. Avoid freezing of grain while wet. If the grain swells, sow a little more per acre. Geo. A. Blank, Co. Agr. Agent

ADVERTISING RECIPE.

The best recipe for advertising success is: To a good measure of high-grade merchandise add an equal amount of hard cash. Allow this to set until your nerve rises, then add so much printer's ink as it will stand. If your "dough" begins to fall, use glue freely, for if you don't stick your efforts are a failure.—Council Bluffs (Iowa) Enterprise.

TOWN OF AUBURN PIONEER DIES

On Tuesday, March 25th, 1919, Mrs. William Geidel of Elmore received the sad news of the death of her father, Mr. Carl Heller, which occurred that day at the home of his son Fred at Bonduel, Wis. Mr. Heller had been enjoying the best of health until March 20th, when he suffered a paralytic stroke, to which he finally succumbed. Carl Heller was born August 22, 1825, in Basle, Germany, and had attained the ripe old age of 85 years, 7 months and 3 days. In the year 1856 he immigrated to America settling in the town of Auburn, Fond du Lac county, where he resided for twenty years. On Nov. 11th, 1849 he was united in marriage to Miss Sophia Ladwig. In 1899 he moved to Cecil, Wis., and on Nov. 11th, 1899 Mr. and Mrs. Heller had the rare occasion of celebrating their diamond wedding anniversary. Their union was blessed with seven children, three of whom passed away in death several years ago. His wife preceded him in death four years ago. Deceased leaves to mourn his loss four children: Fred of Bonduel; Mary (Mrs. Julius Backhaus) of Bonduel; Mina (Mrs. Wm. Geidel) of Elmore; and Herman of Shawano, Wis. Besides these he is survived by twenty-three grandchildren and ten great grandchildren.

Mr. Heller was a pioneer resident of Fond du Lac county, coming to that county when everything was wild and uncultivated. He being the first settler in the surrounding territory of New Fane, he toiled hard and endured many hardships to clear the land and make way for improved farm land. He was a man well liked by all who knew him, fearless and ready at all times to battle with life's problems. During the war the division has fought on five fronts—Alsace, the Vosges, Soissons, Argonne and the Meuse—and has fought twenty of Germany's best divisions, among them the Prussian Guards. It has never yielded a yard of ground to the enemy counter-attacks.

GALLANT 32ND HAS FOUGHT 20 GERMAN "CRACK" DIVISIONS

Following is a clipping received from Sergt. Edwin Backus, telling of the work done by the 32nd Division in the world war: "When the American army of occupation started its march toward the Rhine on November 17, one of our crack divisions, the Thirty-Second, was celebrating an anniversary. Just six months before this division first planted the American flag on German soil in Alsace. On May 10, Wisconsin and Michigan men came under enemy shell fire, and from that date to November 11 the division has out-gunned Boche guns. Only ten days after its turn in the trenches the Thirty-Second chased the Boche from the Ourcq to the Vesle. Then it went to a sector north of Soissons and stormed Juvigny Plateau, fighting side by side with the heroic "poilus" of General Mangin. After that victory with the French it had a rest for ten days before getting ready for the final drive. The American army's scrap north of Verdun was but three days old when the Thirty-Second went in and for the next three weeks the Wisconsin and Michigan boys battled the Boche for Kreimbilde Stellung. It was they who finally broke through the key position of "La Dame Marie," from which they then pushed on to Freya Stellung, pushing the Boche gunners out of Bantheville Wood. They carried the line up to the point where the final attack on November 1, was launched, and followed in support of the divisions which crossed the Meuse at Dun and captured Stenay. In the last few days of the war the Thirty-Second went into line in the Meuse bridgehead sector, and with the French were in the midst of an attack when the armistice stopped fighting. During the war the division has fought on five fronts—Alsace, the Vosges, Soissons, Argonne and the Meuse—and has fought twenty of Germany's best divisions, among them the Prussian Guards. It has never yielded a yard of ground to the enemy counter-attacks."

LAND VALUE FIXED

Depends Altogether on Power of GIVING.

That is Why the Fertile Acres of West-ern Canada, With Adjacent Mar-kets, Are So Attractive to Settlers.

Throughout every portion of the Western Empire lands that are capable of producing are in great demand. We find that in the States of proved agricultural wealth, land prices have increased within the past three or four years to a degree that ten years ago would not have been thought to be possible.

Governing land values, too, are railroads, soil, moisture, settlement, climates, markets. Without markets, no matter how much the other factors enter into it, the land is merely of speculative value.

It is not more than a third of a century since ninety per cent of the land in Western Canada, now occupied and tilled, and producing enough in one year to give a profit of from twenty-five to thirty dollars per acre, was unoccupied or used as grazing land, and worth very little.

These lands today are valuable, and are being sought by settlers who realize their present and future value. There is no portion of the world that is attracting the same attention. The soil may have improved in the past centuries with the fertilizing given it by nature; the climate has not changed, and the moisture may be considered the same.

With the realization of the foregoing facts came the people, who found that a railway had preceded them and markets already existed for anything that they might care to raise. These markets have greatly expanded and, are capable of still greater expansion, and assure to the agriculturist the prevailing prices of the world.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't stay Gray! Here's an Old-time Recipe That Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grand mother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wiggett's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.—Adv.

The schools were closed when more than half of the students were absent because of illness. The quarantine will be maintained until health conditions materially improve.

Kenosha—H. L. Stein says he is the owner of the smallest dog in the world. This distinction for Kenosha came with the advent of a toy black and tan puppy which tipped the scales at two ounces. The mother dog and another pup died. The lightweight champion survivor is taking his nourishment from an eye-dropper.

Oconto—Indications are that lumber mills in this community will cut more lumber this year than in many years past. The Oconto river and its banks are piled high with millions of feet of logs of the best hemlock hardwood varieties, and with the mills running full blast it looks as though 35,000,000 feet of logs will be cut.

ASKS NEW LAW FOR CANNING FACTORIES

Commissioner Weigle Favors Proper Supervision.

TOWNS MAY OPERATE PLANTS

Bill Offered by Senator Kleist Gives Villages Power to Conduct Ware-houses for Sale or Distribution of Food Products.

Madison—Provision for greatly increased powers for counties, cities and villages is proposed in a bill which was presented last week by Senator Kleist of Calumet county. The bill provides that any county, city or village may establish and operate plants or other facilities for the purchase, sale, storage, distribution of food products to or for its citizens, pursuant to regulations adopted by the governing body of such county, city or village.

The bill provides that any county, city or village may purchase, lease or acquire lands, buildings, plants or equipment, to erect and construct buildings and to equip and maintain the same and by tax levy or the issue of bonds to provide the necessary means for purchasing, selling, storing or distributing such food products.

Wisconsin now produces 40 per cent of all canned peas put up in the whole country. This at least is the estimate of Dairy and Food Commissioner Weigle. The canning industry, the commissioner says, is growing at a surprising rate, and some peculiarities of climate and soil give to Wisconsin grown and canned peas especially a superiority over all others.

Commissioner Weigle believes that a special law applying to canning factories and their products should be passed in order that proper supervision can be given the food products turned out by them. Inasmuch as it is impracticable to go to a canning factory in the midst of its rush season, and order changes on the penalty of a shut-down, it will be necessary to do all supervising work with canning factories before the opening of the season.

Inspection is, of course, carried on during the actual canning season, but necessarily this must be limited to sanitation chiefly. As canned goods are coming to form each year a larger part of the country's food production, closer supervision than the dairy and food department has been able to give under the present laws is essential, hence the commissioner's desire for a law especially applicable.

A fight will be made when the legislature reconvenes next week to secure a reconsideration and the adoption of the Conner bill providing for a legislative investigation on the subject of taxation. The bill was defeated by a vote of 38 to 33, but Assemblyman J. W. Conner of Douglas county has announced that he intends to get further action of the legislature on the measure. The bill provides for a legislative committee of five members, three assemblymen and two senators, to conduct the probe. An appropriation of $12,000 was to be at the disposal of the committee.

Assemblymen Coe and Edwards spoke against the bill, claiming that the tax commission now had power to conduct such an investigation and report to the legislature. Assemblyman E. W. Knappe, Milwaukee, predicted that unless some action was taken by the legislature on taxation measures there would be a special session before next November.

The substitute amendment to the Axel Johnson bill removing farmers' co-operative associations from the provisions of the anti-trust law was engrossed without opposition. Four new amendments were offered to the Klein bill regulating the place of employment of woman labor, and the bill, with amendments, was sent back to the committee on labor.

Without a dissenting vote the house passed the Peterson bill requiring all street and interurban cars, before crossing railroad tracks, to come to a stop and a member of the crew to go ahead and flag before the car can go on.

This bill will prevent the use of one-man cars where railroad crossings intersect street car lines. On motion of Assemblyman Miles Hineman the Pullen bill increasing the minimum salaries of county superintendents was laid over until April 10 to permit the legislators to consult with their constituents. The reappointment of Barney N. Moran, Rhineland, as state oil inspector for the term ending April, 1921, will not be taken up until after April 8.

The house advanced the Perry bill to increase the compensation of legislative employees. A half-dozen fish and game bills of local importance were indefinitely postponed.

Large and Small Revenue Taxos. The smallest liquor and tobacco tax to be paid in the internal revenue office of Milwaukee was received when Collector Paul A. Hemmy received a check of 3 cents from a Milwaukee county man. This was for 15 cigars he carried in stock in his confession-ery. The payment tax to be received for the payment of the tobacco tax was $10,000. The largest liquor tax received was $36,000 while the smallest liquor tax was $6.40 for two gallons of whisky by a saloon man in South Milwaukee.

Bill for Free Employment Bureaus.

The free employment bureaus of the state were saved from being shut down on April 1, due to a lack of federal appropriation, when the joint finance committee introduced in the senate a bill carrying an emergency appropriation of $22,000 to maintain these bureaus until July 1, with the unanimous recommendation of the full committee that it be passed without delay.

Only the fact that there were not a sufficient number of members present to pass financial measures prevented the committee bill from being acted upon by both houses before the legislature adjourned. It was advanced to a third reading in the upper house, and will probably be passed just as soon as the legislature meets after the vacation.

The bill places the control of employment bureaus in the hands of the industrial commission for an experimental period of three months, after transferring control from the federal government, which has failed to appropriate for the maintenance of the bureaus, to the state. Most of the bureaus in the state would have been closed if the emergency measure had not been passed on April 1.

As an emergency matter," states the bill, "the industrial commission is hereby authorized to continue and conduct until July 1, 1919, the free employment offices throughout the state that it may deem necessary to take care of the employment situation."

May Restore Game Fishing. The fish and game commission of the assembly is having drafted a bill designed to restore game fishing in Lake Winnebago and tributary waters. The measure will empower the conservation commission to take out all the rough fish that can be found and to dispose of whatever game fish are taken in the nets, to pay the cost of the work.

The solution of the problem came after more than two hours of arguments before the committee over the Simpson bill to permit gill-net fishing. Mr. Simpson said his bill would result in rough fish being taken out, but others just as strongly contended the commercial fishermen would throw the rough fish back to serve as an excuse for further net fishing and would profit by the sale of game fish. The matter was put up to the conservation commission.

Socialists Opposed to University. The Socialist party in the legislature is opposed to the university. For the first time since their delegation has been formed in the legislature the Socialists have turned against the University of Wisconsin. Senator L. A. Arnold, the senate leader of the Socialists, served notice to this effect last week when he attacked the general appropriation bill carrying $5,962,961 for the biennial period. He declared that reactionary influences had appeared in the university in recent years and that they had been especially pronounced during the period of the war. The four Socialist votes were registered against the appropriation.

Knife Was Made in Wisconsin. An exhibit proving that all cutlery in the world is not "made in Germany" was the rounds of the state capital when Superintendent of Public Property M. F. Blumenfeld exhibited a knife that was picked up on a Lattlefield in France by John Donald of Mount Horeh, former secretary of state, who is at present directing work of the Red Cross. The mark on the knife read: "Made by the village of Knifsmith, Watertown, Wisconsin."

Still Working on Whey Butter Law. By a vote of 19 to 9, the senate killed the Olson amendment to the whey butter law, after a long debate, and Senator Root immediately offered another substitute amendment to remove the label from the whey butter. Senator Bennett objected to the introduction of the substitute and the motion will be argued at another date.

Trunk Highway System Bill. The joint highway committee introduced the trunk highway system bill authorizing the construction of 7,500 miles of new road, the work to start April 1, 1920. The bill provides virtually the same method of laying out the highways as was adopted two years ago under the old law.

Johns State Fair "Protected." Wants P. Sheldon, Darlington, would remove all competition for the state fair. He introduced a bill requiring dates for the state fair to be announced six months in advance and specifying that any county having its fair the week of the state fair shall be denied state aid.

Pass Binder Twine Measure. Under suspension of the rules both houses passed a bill permitting the use of the binder twine plant surplus in the purchase of steel for the manufacture of twine at the prison. The amount used will be $600,000.

Oppose Teachers' Pension Bill. Opposition to the new school teachers' pension bill has developed in the Milwaukee Teachers' association. Teachers say it is their belief that the school board is planning to empower itself with the means of summarily cutting any teacher. The new bill, being framed by C. W. Babcock, assistant city attorney, provides for the pensioning of teachers after 30 years of service, while the old law makes retiring optional with the teacher. Efforts are being made to have the measure amended.

Bolshevism in Practice.

"I thought you had an umbrella when you left home."
"I had," answered the man who was drenched. "I went to a socialist meeting where everybody was in favor of eliminating any individual advantage. By the time they got through dividing my umbrella around there wasn't anything left of it that anybody could use."

STRAIGHT COAT AND NARROW SKIRT MODEL.

There are several styles in suits that have almost equal chances for popularity this spring and the only way to determine which is the best choice is to try them on. Straight, short coats, opening over vestees, with narrow plain skirts, are universally admired, but they are not universally becoming. If they were there is no doubt but that this type of suit would soon lead all the rest. The test of becomingness must settle the question of choice; no other consideration is so important. But there is quite a wide range in styles to choose from, so that every woman may be confident of finding the particular one that suits her best.

One of the straight-coat-and-narrow-skirt models is shown in the picture and it is an extreme example of this mode, with a skirt rather too narrow to be practical. But to the woman who aspires to look slender it will certainly make a strong appeal, for the skirt is long as well as narrow. The very thin woman cannot consider it.

The coat is a pretty model with three wide tucks at the bottom and it opens over a waistcoat of plain tricotee that is very smart. It has a large turnover collar and a row of large bone buttons down the left side.

Braid and buttons decorate the pretty suit that is shown built on entirely different lines from its companion in the picture. It has a plain skirt wide enough to be comfortable for walking, and a short panel at the center of the back to which a gathered skirt portion is added. Three groups of braid, with three rows in each group ending in bone buttons, dispose of the braid and button decoration in neat, tailored fashion, on the panel. The same decoration on the skirt portion ends in buttons on the side pieces and this plan is followed out on the front. For those who do not like braid or want a change from it the styles offer crossbar and other arrangements of pin tucks and groups of wider tucks in the material.

OF VOILE AND SILK

Advance showing of pretty afternoon frocks for summer, reveal many lovely models made of sheer, plain voile. Besides these, there are striped and figured voiles and among them some fine, imported weaves, that are to be reckoned with. The latter are high priced, in fact considerably more expensive than plain georgette. They appear in patterns and color combinations that are very beautiful. But even so, the dress of plain voile or georgette rarely suffers by comparison with a rival made of the figured patterns. The home dress maker will succeed oftener with a plain fabric, especially if she makes a little excursion in designing on her own account.

The frock of plain voile shown in the picture, bespeaks the work of a professional designer who is trained to make the most of fabrics—that is to adapt them to styles in the best way. In this case nothing is used with the voile but a little silk piping, but these simple means proved equal to making a dress of smart distinction and one that is easy enough to copy.

All the sheer fabrics are made up over silk or satin and this frock has an underskirt and bodice of silk. A wide flounce of the voile is set on the underskirt and above it a tunic is accomplished by three headed flounces set one above another. These are all narrower at the right than at the left side, so that the tunic is longer at the left side.

The bodice is made in the effect of a little jacket of the voile, bordered with a band of it, set on with a piping of silk. The jacket reveals a vestee, also made of the voile and decorated with cross-bar tucks and the sleeves are set into deep cuffs of the tucked voile. For a girdle a ribbon woven in checkerboard pattern proves an effective bit of craftsmanship with little pendent bits of silk set on the bodice just above it at each side.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in a few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine for a few cents at any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—Adv.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART; IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to the kidney trouble. The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filterers of your blood. If the poisons which are swept from the tissues by the blood are not eliminated through the kidneys, disease of one form or another will claim you as a victim.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

There are hundreds of thousands in use all over the United States, and are on the permitted list of the National Board of Fire Underwriters under Class A and are also endorsed by a good many responsible old line insurance companies as a safe light and the gas is non-poisonous and no one will be over-come from it.

All lights are equipped to turn on without matches, while the gas range is operated exactly as are similar ranges in city homes everywhere. This is unquestionably the most desirable, practical and economical lighting and cooking service available for country home use—a claim amply attested by the fact that the Carbide Plant always has and still does out-sell all rival "light systems" after fifteen years of strenuous competition.

These plants are sold direct from the factory to you by a field representative; by this you save the dealer's profits and the cost of a plant complete with stove, iron and fixtures and installed ready for use, is very low. Liberty Bonds accepted at par.

TOLEDO POLICE STOP DEBS RIOT

Break Up Mob of 5,000 After It Attacks City Memorial Hall.

ONE ALDERMAN IS ARRESTED

Crowd Storms Building, Breaking Windows and Doors, Then Parade Streets Shouting "To Hell With Mayor!"—Debs Not Present.

Washington, April 1.—Eugene V. Debs' application for a re-hearing of his appeal from conviction and sentence to ten years' imprisonment for violating the espionage act was denied by the Supreme court.

Toledo, O., April 1.—When they were refused admission by city officials to Memorial hall, a city building, where Eugene V. Debs was scheduled to speak, 5,000 persons stormed the place, broke windows and doors, and then paraded the streets crying, "To hell with the mayor!"

And all the time Debs was in bed in a Cleveland hotel, too ill to appear in public.

A substitute speaker for Debs appeared about 3:30 o'clock, but when he attempted to make an address in public he was chased away by policemen.

More than seventy-five men were arrested, including Thomas Devine, Socialist member of the city council. Charges of inciting riot were placed against them, but after 300 policemen had succeeded in breaking up the mob the prisoners were all released without bail.

Announcement that Debs would not be permitted to speak was made late Saturday night, after the Socialists here had prepared to handle an overflow crowd. The announcement appeared in the morning papers, and was the first notice the Socialists had that their meeting could not be held.

When the hour for Debs to speak arrived there were at least 6,000 men and women congregated about the William McKinley monument in Court-house park, across the street from Memorial hall.

A man mounted the base of the monument. "We'll use Memorial hall this afternoon if we have to wade through blood to do it," he shouted. A policeman grabbed him and he was thrown unceremoniously into a patrol wagon. The man who essayed to speak next also was arrested.

As the crowd sensed what was occurring the radicals began to hoot and boo the officers. Clubs were drawn and the crowd was made to move. Then came the parade through the streets and cries of "Down with the mayor!" "Hang him!" "To hell with the police!" and others of a similar nature.

It was after five o'clock before the police were able to disperse the crowd. Flat fights by the dozens occurred on street corners. Hotel lobbies were invaded by the malcontents. Street cars were held up and threats of serious outbreaks were to be heard on every hand.

Mayor Cornell Schreiber, who issued the order preventing the Debs meeting, in a statement said that hereafter no meeting would be permitted anywhere in the city where it is suspected a man of radical tendencies will speak.

QUIZ MEXICO ON GRANTS OF LAND

Washington Wants to Know About Reports of Concessions to Japanese.

QUERY SENT U. S. EMBASSY

American Company Is Said to Have Been Robbed of Million-Acre Tract in Question—$1,000,000 Spent in Irrigation.

Washington, April 2.—The American embassy at Mexico City was instructed to make inquiries concerning the report that the Mexican government has granted agricultural concessions to Japanese in Lower California, and to report the facts as quickly as possible.

No official information has reached the department about the concessions and surprise was occasioned by the dispatch from Mexico City quoting General Amado Aguirre, undersecretary of development and agriculture, saying they had been granted.

The American government is interested both because of the apparent success of the Japanese in obtaining a long-sought foothold in Lower California, and because the tract of land involved was developed and is claimed by an American company whose rights were declared forfeited by the Mexican government in 1917.

The land, upward of a million acres below the California border, was granted by the then President Diaz to the California and Mexican Land company of Los Angeles, of which firm Harrison Grey Otis of Los Angeles, was the leading figure.

It was desert land, with nothing growing on it but sage brush, cactus and chaparral. The soil, however, was rich in places 80 feet deep formed by deposits for generations by the Colorado river. It produced nothing for Mexico and the expense of putting water on the land was so great that no one in Mexico would undertake it.

The American company spent more than $1,000,000 in irrigation work before the tract was productive. One of the requirements of the concession was that the land should be irrigated. Another that it should be settled with farmers and ranchers. Both these requirements are said to have been met by the American company.

When Diaz was deposed and the revolutionary period began the American settlers were driven from the land by revolutionists. Live stock was stolen and several settlers were killed. For two years the land was uncared for, and then the company found that Japanese settlers were willing to take up farms and cultivate them.

The Japanese were protected by the Mexicans, whatever party of revolutionists were in power in that section. Short-term leases are said to have been granted to Japanese farmers, but the American owners refused to sell any of the land to the Japanese or to grant long-term leases.

On April 7, 1917, the Mexican government declared the tract confiscated, according to the statements of General Aguirre and then, apparently, the Mexican government opened negotiations with a Japanese syndicate.

Acting Secretary of State Phillips said that the Los Angeles company proposed about two years ago to grant a Japanese corporation long-term leases on a large portion, if not all, of the tract. At that time the company still was unable to maintain American settlers there, but when the state department objected to the proposed leases the company dropped its negotiations with the Japanese.

When Senator Phelan of California recently informed the department that negotiations had been renewed, the company's attention was directed to the American government's attitude.

ANOTHER VICTIM

MANY DROWN IN EAST FOE ATTACKS FRENCH

FROM FOUR TO TEN PERSONS PERISH AT LAUNCHING.

Thousands See 150 Plunge Into the Delaware River at Bristol (Pa.) Shipyard.

Bristol, Pa., April 1.—Between four to ten persons are believed to be dead as the result of the collapse of a temporary scaffolding at the Merchant Shipbuilding company's yard here during the launching of the freighter Waukan.

Nearly 150 persons were standing on the scaffolding at the time of the tragedy, and most of them were thrown into the Delaware river. It is estimated 145 of these were rescued.

According to the thousands who had assembled to see the launching and were eyewitnesses of the catastrophe, the scaffolding simply seemed to turn over like a giant turtle, precipitating its occupants into 25 feet of water.

The accident happened exactly four minutes before the launching was scheduled to take place. Divers, Bristol and Harriman police and firemen were soon grappling in the swift water of the Delaware for the victims, but it is feared that many were carried against the piling of the ways and docks at the great shipyard, and that the actual death toll may never be known.

At the Harriman hospital it was stated that preparations had been made to handle 20 bodies, and it was said that officials expected the death toll to reach that number.

BANDIT SLAYERS CAPTURED

The three suspects say they are LeLund L. Duffon of 2422 North Sawyer avenue, Chicago; R. E. Curtiss of Marengo, Ill., and Sarkis Boshnakian of Washington, D. C.

5,500 U. S. SOLDIERS MISSING

Reinterments From Isolated Graves Likely to Identify Many Americans.

Washington, March 29.—General Pershing reported to the war department that there are still 5,500 officers and men of the expeditionary forces listed as missing. This total compares with the British official figures of 161,800 missing and the French 200,000.

THE "BEST BERRY" DISHES.

The strawberry will soon be plentiful, yet while it is still a luxury we may use them in small amounts for a garnish or accessory.

Devonshire Pie.—Line a pie plate with rich pastry and bake it. Also bake a two-inch ring; this may be made by cutting around a large pie plate to make a large circle and then cutting around a smaller plate placed in the center of this. Use care to handle the ring without breaking it. Fill the pastry shell with Devonshire cream. This is prepared by scalding the milk the day before then skimming the cream and whipping it. Add a cupful or more of sweetened, very ripe berries and cover with the ring. Heap cream in the center and serve. A most attractive dish and one that is not hard to prepare.

Strawberry Ice.—Wash and hull one quart of strawberries, sprinkle with one cupful of sugar and let stand two hours. Mash and squeeze through a double cheesecloth. To the juice add one cupful of water and lemon juice to taste. Freeze, using three parts of ice to one of coarse salt.

Strawberry Baskets.—Beat the yolks of four eggs until thick, add one cup of sugar and beat two minutes, the sugar should be added gradually; add three tablespoonfuls of water. Put one and one-half tablespoonfuls of cornstarch in a measuring cup and fill up with flour. Mix and sift with one and one-fourth teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth of a teaspoon of salt, and add to the first mixture. Fold in the whites of the eggs beaten stiff and add one teaspoonful of lemon extract. Fill buttered gem pans and bake in a moderate oven. Cool and scoop out the centers and fill with sweetened crushed berries mixed with whipped cream.

Bomb Mousse.—Line a mold with strawberry ice and fill with the following mixture: Beat one cupful of heavy cream until stiff and add three-fourths of a cupful of powdered sugar one cupful of strawberry puree, one tablespoonful of orange juice and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Cover with the strawberry ice and overleaf, adjust the cover and pack in ice and salt using equal parts, let stand two hours.

There is no friend like an old friend, Who has shared our morning days, No greetings like his welcome, No homage like his praise. —O. W. Holmes.

SUGGESTIVE DISHES.

For those who wish to eliminate meat from the diet the following two dishes will offer a variety.

Pea Roast.—Mix three-fourths of a cup of dry bread crumbs, one-half cupful of pea-pulp, that has been prepared by putting the cooked peas through a sieve, one tablespoonful of sugar, one-fourth cup of English walnut meats, finely chopped one egg slightly beaten, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper, one-fourth of a cup of melted butter and three-fourths of a cupful of milk. Turn into a paraffine-lined dish, cover and bake in a slow oven 40 minutes.

Pecan Nut Loaf.—To five rice potatoes add three tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and one-third of a cup of hot milk. Beat with a fork until creamy and pack into a shallow pan. Set the pan in hot water and bake until well heated in a moderate oven. Turn on a hot platter, sprinkle with one-third of a cupful of finely chopped meats, pour around a cup of well seasoned white sauce and garnish with parsley.

Hot Finnan Haddie Canapes.—Fry one-half tablespoonful of chopped onion and two chopped mushroom caps in three tablespoonfuls of butter five minutes. Add two tablespoonfuls of flour and two-thirds cupful of thick cream. At the boiling point add two tablespoonfuls of cheese, the yolks of two eggs, well beaten, and one cupful of flaked finnan haddie. Season with salt and cayenne. Pile on pieces of toast, sprinkle with cheese and buttered bread crumbs and bake until brown.

Maryland Fried Chicken.—Clean size and cut in pieces for serving two young chickens. Plunge into cold water, shake off and dip at once into flour to get as much to adhere as possible. Fry out one pound of fat salt pork, cut in pieces and cook the chicken in the fat until well browned on all sides. Serve with a gravy made with the fat in the pan with three cream and flour for thickening.

THE LIGHT IN THE CLEARING

A TALE OF THE NORTH COUNTRY IN THE TIME OF SILAS WRIGHT

By IRVING BACHELLER

I count this one of the great events of my youth. But there was a greater one, although it seemed not so at the time of it. A traveler on the road to Ballybeen had dropped his pocketbook containing a large amount of money—$2,700 was the sum, if I remember rightly.

A good, old-fashioned alternative and temperance tonic is one made of wild roots and barks without the use of alcohol, and called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form.

By and by the fall term of school ended. Uncle Peabody came down to get me the day before Christmas. I had enjoyed my work and my life at the Hackets', on the whole, but I was glad to be going home again.

"A merry Christmas to ye both an' may the Lord love ye!" said Mr. Hacket as he bade us goodbye. "Every day our thoughts will be going up the hills to your house."

"We're goin' to move," said my uncle presently. "We've agreed to get out by the middle o' May."

"How does that happen?" I asked. "I settled with Grimshaw and agreed to go. If it hadn't a' been for Wright and Baldwin we wouldn't a' got a cent. They threatened to bid against him at the sale. So he settled. We're goin' to have a new home. We've bought a hundred an' fifty acres from Abe Leonard. Goin' to build a new house in the spring. It will be nearer the village."

He playfully nudged my ribs with his elbow. "We've had a little good luck, Bart," he went on. "I'll tell ye what it is if you won't say anything about it."

"I promised. "I dunno as it would matter much," he continued, "but I don't want to do any braggin'. It ain't anybody's business, anyway. An old uncle over in Vermont died three weeks ago and left us thirty-eight hundred dollars. It was old Uncle Ezra Baynes o' Elnesburg. Died without a chick or child. Your aunt and me slipped down to Potsdam an' took the stage an' went over an got the money. It was more money than I ever see before in my life. We put it in the bank in Potsdam to keep it out o' Grimshaw's hands. I wouldn't trust that man as far as you could throw a bull by the tail."

It was a cold, clear night, and when we reached home the new stove was snapping with the heat in its firebox and the pudding puffing in the pot and old Shep dreaming in the chimney corner. Aunt Dee gave me a hug at the door. She barked and leaped to my shoulders.

"Why, Bart! You're growin' like a weed—ain't ye?—ayes ye be," my aunt said as she stood and looked at me. "Set right down here an' warm ye—ayes!—I've done all the chores—ayes!"

How warm and comfortable was the dear old room with those beloved faces in it. I wonder if paradise itself can seem more pleasant to me. I have had the best food this world can provide, in my time, but never anything that I ate with a keener relish than the pudding and milk and bread and butter and cheese and pumpkin pie which Aunt Dee gave us that night.

Supper over, I wiped the dishes for my aunt while Uncle Peabody went out to feed and water the horses. Then we sat down in the genial warmth while I told the story of my life in "the busy town," as they called it. What pride and attention they gave me then!

My face clothes and the story of how I had come by them taxed my ingenuity somewhat, although not improperly. I had to be careful not to let them know that I had been ashamed of the homemade suit. They somehow felt the truth about it and a little silence followed the story. Then Aunt Dee drew her chair near me and touched my hair very gently and looked into my face without speaking.

"Ayes! I know," she said presently, in a kind of caressing tone, with a touch of sadness in it. "They ain't used to course homespun stuff down there in the village. They made fun o' ye—didn't they, Bart?"

"I don't care about that," I assured them. "The nild's the measure of her man." I quoted, remembering the 'sae the Senator had repeated to me, ing good will and found their owners. I have never forgotten how Uncle Jabez chased Aunt Minerva around the house with a wooden snake cunningly carved and colored. I observed there were many things on the tree which had not been taken down when we younger ones gathered up our wealth and repaired to Aunt Dee's room to feast our eyes upon it and compare our good fortune.

The women and the big girls rolled up their sleeves and went to work with Aunt Dee preparing the dinner. The great turkey and the chicken pie were made ready and put in the oven and the potatoes and the onions and the winter squash were soon boiling in their pots on the stove-top. Meanwhile the children were playing in my aunt's bedroom and Uncle Hiram and Uncle Jabez were pulling sticks in a corner while the other men sat tipped against the wall watching and making playful comments—all save my Uncle Peabody, who was trying to touch his head to the floor and then straighten up with the aid of the broomstick.

In the midst of it Aunt Dee opened the front door and old Kate, the Silent Woman, entered. To my surprise, she wore a decent-looking dress of gray homespun cloth and a white cloud looped over her head and ears and tied around her neck and a good pair of boots.

"Merry Christmas!" we all shouted. She smiled and nodded her head and sat down in the chair which Uncle Peabody had placed for her at the stove side. Aunt Dee took the cloud off her head while Kate drew her mittens—newly knitted of the best yarn. Then my aunt brought some stockings and a shawl from the tree and laid them on the lap of old Kate. What a silence fell upon us as we saw tears coursing down the cheeks of this lonely old woman of the countryside—tears of joy, doubtless, for God knows how long it had been since the poor, abandoned old had seen a merry Christmas and shared its kindness. I did not fail to observe how clean her face and hands looked! She was greatly changed.

She took my hand as I went to her side and tenderly caressed it. A gentler smile came to her face than ever I had seen upon it. The old sterna look returned for a moment as she held one finger aloft in a gesture which only I and my Aunt Dee understood. We knew it signified a peril and a mystery. That I should have to meet it, somewhere up the hidden pathway, I had no doubt whatever.

"Dinner's ready!" exclaimed the cheerful voice of Aunt Dee. Then what a stirring of chairs and feet as we sat down at the table. Old Kate sat by the side of my aunt and we were all surprised at her good manners.

"It's been kind o' lonesome here," said Uncle Peabody as he opened the window. "I always let the wind come in to keep me company—it gits so warm."

"Ye can't look at yer stockin' yet," said Aunt Dee when I came downstairs about eight o'clock, having slept through chere time. I remember it was the delicious aroma of frying ham and buckwheat cakes which awoke me; and who wouldn't rise and shake off the cloak of slumber on a bright, cold winter morning with such provocation?

"This ain't no common Christmas," I tell ye," Aunt Dee went on. "Santa Claus won't git here short o' noon I wouldn't wonder—ayes!"

About eleven o'clock Uncle Hiram and Aunt Eliza and their five children arrived with loud and merry greetings. Then came other aunts and uncles and cousins. With what noisy good cheer the men entered the house after they had put up their horses! I remember how they laid their hard, heavy hands on my head and shook it a little as they spoke of my "stretchin' up" or gave me a playful slap on the shoulder—an ancient token of good will—the first form of the accolade, I fancy. What joyful good humor there was in those simple men and women—enough to temper the woes of a city if it could have been applied to their relief. They stood thick around the stove warming themselves and taking off its griddles and opening its doors and surveying it inside and out with much curiosity.

"Now for the Christmas tree," said Uncle Peabody as he led the way into our best room, where a fire was burning in the old Franklin grate. "Come on, boys an' girls."

What a wonderful sight was the Christmas tree—the first we had had in our house—a fine spreading balsam loaded with presents! Uncle Hiram jumped into the air and clasped his feet together and shouted: "Hold me, somebody, or I'll grab the hull tree an' run away with it!"

Uncle Jabez held one foot in both hands before him and joyfully hopped around the tree. These relatives had brought their family gifts, some days before, to be hung on its branches. The thing that caught my eye was a big silver watch hanging by a long golden chain to one of the boughs. Uncle Peabody took it down and held it aloft by the chain, so that none should miss the sight, saying:

"From Santa Claus for Bart!" A murmur of admiration ran through the company which gathered around me as I held the treasure in my trembling hands.

"This is for Bart, too," Uncle Peabody shouted as he took down a bolt of soft blue cloth and laid it in my arms. "Now there's somethin' that's jest about as slick as a kitten's ear. Feel of it. It's for a suit o' clothes. Come all the way from Burlington. Now get-up there. You've got your load."

I moved out of the way in a burri-cane of merriment. It was his one great day of pride and vanity. He did not try to conceal them.

The other presents floated for a moment in this irresistible tide of laughter.

eyes! She's goin' to stay with us till tomorrow." "Good idee!" said Uncle Peabody. "So I took the money out of their hands and went in and gave it to the Silent Woman."

"That's your present from me," I said. How can I forget how she held my arm against her with that loving, familiar, rocking motion of a woman who is soothing a baby at her breast and kissed my coat sleeve? She released my arm and, turning to the window, leaned her head upon its sill and shook with sobs. The dusk had thickened. As I returned to my seat by the stove I could dimly see her form against the light of the window. We sat in silence for a little while.

Then Uncle Peabody rose and got a candle and lighted it at the hearth. I held the lantern while Uncle Peabody fed the sheep and the two cows and milked—a slight chore these winter days.

"You and I are to go off to bed party early," he said as we were going back to the house. "Yer Aunt Dee wants to see Kate alone and git her to talk if she can."

"I dunno but she'll swing back into this durno ag'in," said Uncle Peabody when we had gone up to our little room. "I guess all she needs is to be treated like a human bein'. Yer Aunt Dee an' I couldn't git over thinkin' o' what she done for you that night in the o' barn. So I took some o' yer aunt's good clothes to her an' a pair o' boots an' asked her to come to Christmas. She lives in a little room over the blacksmith shop down to Butterfield's mill. I told her I'd come after her with the cutter but she shook her head. I knew she'd rather walk."

He was yawning as he spoke and soon we were both asleep under the shingles.

CHAPTER XII.

The Thing and Other Things. I returned to Mr. Hacket's house late in the afternoon of New Year's day. The schoolmaster was lying on a big lounge in a corner of their front room with the children about him. The dusk was falling.

"Welcome, my liddle buck!" he exclaimed as I entered. "We're telling stories o' the old year an' you're just in time for the last o' them. Sit down, lad, and God give ye patience! It'll soon be over."

After supper he got out his boxing gloves and gave me a lesson in the art of self-defense, in which, I was soon to learn, he was highly accomplished. For we had a few rounds together every day after that. He keenly enjoyed this form of exercise and I soon began to.

"God bless ye, boy!" he exclaimed one day after I had landed heavily on his cheek, "ye've a nice way o' snenkin' in with yer right. I've a notion ye may and it useful some day."

I wondered a little why he should say that, and while I was wondering he felled me with a stinging blow on my nose.

"Ah, my lad—there's the best thing I have seen ye do—get up an' come back with no mad in ye," he said as he gave me his hand.

One day the schoolmaster called the older boys to the front seats in his room and I among them.

"Now, boys, I'm going to ask ye what ye want to do in the world," he said. "Don't be afraid to tell me what ye may never have told before and I'll do what I can to help ye."

For some months I had been studying a book just published, entitled, "Stenographic Sound-Hand," and had learned its alphabet and practiced the use of it. That evening I took down the remarks of Mr. Hacket in sound-hand.

The academy chapel was crowded with the older boys and girls and the townfolk. The master never clipped his words in school as he was wont to do when talking familiarly with the children.

"Since the leaves fell our little village has occupied the center of the stage before an audience of millions in the great theater of congress. Our leading citizen—the chief actor—has been crowned with immortal fame. We who watched the play were thrilled by the query: Will Uncle Sam yield to temptation or cling to honor? He has chosen the latter course and we may still hear the applause in distant galleries beyond the sea. He has decided that the public revenues must be paid in honest money."

"My friend and classmate, George Bancroft, the historian, has written this letter to me out of a full heart. (TO BE CONTINUED.)"

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Bonner

APRIL FOOL'S DAY.

"It was the first of April," said Daddy, "and everyone thought it would be a great joke to call up the aquarium on the telephone and to ask for Mr. Fish."

"So all day long the telephone was ringing and after Mr. Fish was asked for the person who did the telephoning would say, "April Fool."

"Well, the fishes splashed and they said, "We give folks a lot of fun. We help them with their little jokes. Ah, it's fine to help play April Fool's Day jokes."

"But then they saw that their keepers were getting a little cross that they should be called to the telephone so many times for no reason at all that they said, "This thing should stop," and they said this just before the afternoon of the first of April when it was really time to stop fooling.

"Well," said one of the fishes wiggling its fins and its tail, "we are going to have a party here this evening."

"I don't know that I like that idea," said another fish, "for when there are parties we have to share our food or at least we should."

"You don't understand about this party," said the second fish, splashing. "Tray let me explain."

"Oh, another kind of a party," said the first fish, "and perhaps they will bring us food instead of making us give some?"

"You talk like a little pig with a snout instead of a fish with fins," said the second fish.

"Well, I just felt very hungry today," said the first fish.

"No excuse," said the second fish. "Well, I'll learn better manners."

"Welcome, my liddle buck!" he exclaimed as I entered. "We're telling stories o' the old year an' you're just in time for the last o' them. Sit down, lad, and God give ye patience! It'll soon be over."

After supper he got out his boxing gloves and gave me a lesson in the art of self-defense, in which, I was soon to learn, he was highly accomplished. For we had a few rounds together every day after that. He keenly enjoyed this form of exercise and I soon began to.

IF I WERE A FARMER.

If I were a farmer I would keep at hand a few reliable medicines for minor ailments that are not so serious as to require the attention of a physician, such as Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.
Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, colds and croup.
Chamberlain's Liniment for sprains, bruises and rheumatic pains.
Chamberlain's Tablets for stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation.
By having these articles at hand it would often save the trouble of a trip to town in the busiest season or in the night, and would enable me to treat slight ailments as soon as they appear, and thereby avoid the more serious diseases that so often follow.
