THE COUNTY EDUCATIONAL LISTENING POST

An educational column has become a feature of the papers of many of the counties of the state. Washington Co. had one over twenty years ago during the administration of J. T. Keeley. It was an ideal column. It concerned itself with the common interest things of superintendent, school boards and teachers.

The County Educational Listening Post the name selected by the teachers of this county for this column will aim to live up to the high standard set by like columns in other counties. They won't be counseled, can't be helped, "Poor Richard says". The same thought is reflected in the proverb of Solomon: "The way of a fool is right in his own eyes, but he that hearketh unto counsel is wise". In the first issue we invite the friends of education to send us their counsel and as far as space will permit will be used. The superintendent of schools will be editor assisted by teachers and school boards.

Some schools will begin the first week in September. The getting ready time is at hand. The following things will interest schoolboards.

1 Repair the school building. Put in broken window panes, locks and door panels etc. The walls may be in need of paint or kalsomine. Freshen and make cheerful the other home of your children.

2 Weeds are the distinctive decoration of the school grounds these days. They give the yard a ragged appearance. A half days work will make a great change in the appearance of the building in which everybody is interested.

3 Have you looked at the outbuildings since last June? If not a visit inside of them may surprise you. The state board of health and common sense require that they be kept sanitary. Seventeen were inspected since July 7 which were unsanitary. Is yours one of the seventeen?

4 A thorough scrubbing of the floors with boiling water is required and it is a sign of good school house keeping.

5 A hired man never has to go to a farmer to ask him for tools to work with. Neither should a teacher have to go to the school board. Ask her to come now. She can tell you what she wants in the way of maps, globes, desk copies of text books, seat work etc. Give them to her. It will not cost much. It will make her happy and you feel better.

6 The state is magnifying and dignifying the business of teaching school. It has raised the standard of educational requirements and fixed the minimum salary of teachers at sixty dollars, but it also expects more service from them. With this new growth, new things will be attempted by them. The school board. Ask her to come now. She is a capable person with overseas experience. When she appears in your school to make physical examinations of school children and to render other services you can help to make straight the way for her.

7 September is a busy time for school board members. However a rainy afternoon could be spent in the school room. Your judgement is good on many things of importance in the school, including teaching processes. Is the school neat and clean? Is the teacher well prepared for the geography lesson she is teaching? If she is her book is not in her hand reading and teaching at the same time. If the teacher is telling a story in language and she does not interest you she is not interesting the children she is teaching. Would it be well to tell her she does not interest you?

8. The wells have not been pumped out since June 1. The water is not fit to drink. The teacher in the excitement of the first days may forget that it is not fit to drink. The big boys of the district can pump water out.

9. When you clean the school room floor, also see to the stovepipes. They will be clogged with soot and will not smoke up your clean building if not attended to.

10. Has that new flag been purchased if the old one is in tatters. How about the flagpole and rope? Old Glory floating above the school building is an inspiration to children and teacher on the first day of school.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given by the School Board of Joint School District No. 5 of the Village and town of Kewaskum, Washington Co. Wis., that the said board is to receive sealed bids for whitewashing the interior of the School Building, two coats of white wash are required and materials to be furnished by party or parties getting the contract. PRIEST CONDEMS INDIFFERENCE TO HEALTH!

"We exhibit more solicitude for the welfare of the cattle than for the health of humanity," said an eminent Priest at a meeting in Milwaukee. He also said, "It is time to realize that the greatest problem of the hour is the problem of human health." Therefore, when such prominent men advise the public to look after their health, isn't it the sacred duty of every man, woman and child to heed their advice and to try and get well? In the treatment of chronic and long-standing diseases Dr. Karass of Milwaukee has had wonderful success and at times performed almost miraculous cures in the most difficult cases. MRS. WM. SEEFELD DIES SUDDENL

Mrs. Wm. Seefeld, 58 years old died suddenly at 11 o'clock Monday morning at the family residence in the town of Eden. Mrs. Seefeld was apparently in the best of health. She went about her household duties during the morning and was preparing dinner for the thrushers. The latter had completed threshing and had gone to the barns. A son, Andrew, left the men and went to the pump, a short distance from the house. He found his mother lying alone close to the pump. Medical aid was summoned but death occurred before physicians reached the residence. Death was pronounced due to heart failure.

Mrs. Seefeld is possessed of a large circle of friends to whom news of her death will come as a great shock. She possessed the characteristics which tended to make her a favorite wherever she went. Having resided in the town of Eden for so many years her death will cast deep gloom over the homes in that vicinity.

She leaves her husband, Wm Seefeld three sons, Walter town of Fond du Lac; Andrew and Henry at home; and six sisters, Mrs. Chas. Ulrich, Lorraine, Mrs. August Hodorf, Mrs. M. Corcoran and Mrs. J. Steenberg, of Fond du Lac; Mrs. Wm. Nast, Eden; Mrs. P. H. Riley, Milwaukee.

The funeral was held at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning at the residence and at 10 o'clock from the Evangelical church at Eden. Interment was made in the Union cemetery at Campbellsport—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

FOUR CAMPBELLSPORT GIRLS IN RIOT

Four girls from Campbellsport, Leona, and Gretchen Paas, Lydia Vetsch and Alice Farrel were in the strike riot at the Cudahy plant in Milwaukee Tuesday afternoon. The girls were crossing the tracks in a mass of struggling men and women, with flying bricks, dirt and sand as well as a fusillade of pistol shots in which one man was killed. All of the above named girls worked in the offices of the plant. The girls were crossing the tracks when women sympathizers of the strikers threw dirt and sand in their faces and when the deputies interfered a fight ensued.

"It was lively experience," says Miss Gretchen Paas, "but we escaped uninjured."

VICTORY PICNIC A SUCCESS

The Victory Picnic and dance at the North Side Park last Sunday, was a decided success in every respect. People far and near were attracted, and all enjoyed themselves immensely. The sparring exhibition between Young Welk and Oress of Milwaukee, proved to be a good bout. The Great Howard Knife Act was not pulled off as Mr. Howard cancelled his engagement on Sunday morning for reason unknown. The music by the West Bend City band and Al. Gabler's orchestra made a hit. Over 400 dance tickets were sold.

BUY'S STORE AT ADELL

Falk, at Adell, Wis., formerly known as the Finnegan store, located in the Finnegan building. Mr. Guth recently returned home from overseas duty, and soon afterwards commenced work as clerk in the L. Rosenheimer store, for which firm he was employed several years previous to his going to war. Edward has proven himself to be a worthy businessman, well qualified and capable of taking care of the store business in an efficient manner. He is well acquainted with the work that is outlined for him in his new enterprise. Mr. Guth moved his family and household goods to Adell on Wednesday where he took possession of his new business on Thursday. The countless friends of Mr. and Mrs. Guth who regret very much to see them leave our midst, wish them an abundance of success in their new undertaking and home.

SHOTGUN CAUSES SERIOUS INJURY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kurth, residing about three miles south of this village, formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Koehner and family, was the scene of a tragic accident, last week Saturday afternoon, which might have resulted in instant death to Mrs. Kurth and other members of the family. While Mrs. Kurth was busily engaged in doing her house work in the kitchen, two of her sons, Earl, aged six years and Raymond, aged four years, while at play in the same room, caught sight of a loaded shot gun. They immediately proceeded to play with same. In handling it one of the boys started to pull back on the trigger, during which act his thumb accidentally slipped off, causing the gun to discharge. The fierce charge passed through Mrs. Kurth's right leg, just below the hip, inflicting a wound about an inch and a half in diameter. The shot lodged in the wall on the opposite side of the kitchen. Had it gone about six inches further over to one side it would have struck another younger brother of the boys. Mrs. Kurth was standing about five feet away from the point of the gun at the time it was discharged. Mr. Kurth was assisting in threshing at the home of one of his neighbors at the time of the accident. Miss Elester Voeche, sister of Mrs. Kurth, who is visiting with the Kurth family, was the only one there to immediately notify their nearest neighbor, Nicholas Strupp, of what had happened, who at once went to the Kurth home to investigate. Medical aid was summoned, and the patient was given the best of medical care. Hopes for her recovery were at first in doubt, however, she is at present getting along as well as can be expected.

POPULAR SONG WRITER SERENADES "MICKEY"

Neil Moret, the popular song writer gave the "Mickey" cast a great surprise at their studio one day by an unexpected music recital in which he serenaded Mickey. There were many exclamations of delight, of course, since no one had imagined he had even seen any of the scenes in this great photoplay, which will be shown at the Opera House on Sunday evening, August 24th. Miss Normand particularly was pleased with the song, which brought out in such sweet and melodious music the very spirit of the photoplay.

Today this song, which the photoplay inspired, is proving one of the most popular hits of the year, one million copies having already been sold to the public; song and dance records having been made by the leading talking machine companies and piano roll companies.

There was a good deal of questioning later on as to how he knew anything about "Mickey". No one in the company had ever noticed him, and he during the rehearsals. In order to get some peace on the subject, therefore, he told them that he had first noticed Mickey when he dropped into the studio for a chat one day with one of the directors. At that time the very first scenes were being "shot" and, attracted by the charming personality of "Mickey", he stayed the entire day. Two hours later, inspired by this fascinating photoplay, he wrote the song dedicated to "Mickey", and which he called "Mickey".

But why Miss Normand should be at all pleased, after the first surprise of the song, nor one could quite fathom as for Neil Moret, he set it down as "just like a woman." It leaked out, however, several days later when Miss Normand said she was "afraid of Mickey". "It sticks so," she complained, "just as Peter Pan is identical with Maudie Adams." Nevertheless, just ask Miss Normand some day how proud she is of her twin sister "Mickey". She loves that mischievous little girl as much as everyone else does, she has confessed many times.

MURDER AT OAKFIELD

The body of Ben Zuehke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zuehke, residing one and one-half miles from Oakfield, which was found in a corn field last week Thursday revealed itself to be one of the most gruesome and cold-blooded murders ever committed in this section of the state. The motive of the killing as stated by the lawyer Jake Herman, aged 34, was jealousy for the hand of Miss Myrtle Wiegert who resides in the vicinity of Oakfield. The murder was committed at 10 o'clock Wednesday evening by knocking the victim down with an old fashioned wedge. It is stated that Ben Zuehke had gone to call on Miss Wiegert, on the evening he was killed, arriving at the latter's house at about a quarter to nine and left there five minutes to ten. In the meantime Herman had seen Zuehke enter the yard and saw her talking to him. Herman hid in the grass until the boy was about ten feet away when he jumped up assaulted the youth after a few words of argument, knocking him down with his fist and then used the wedge to finish his intention. After this was done Herman dragged the lifeless body into the corn field and fled. When questioned the slayer in giving his reason for the act stated "Ben won't stay away from Myrtle so I knocked him down and dragged him into the corn-field."

The finding of the wedge and by the aid of blood hounds Herman was placed under suspicion. On Saturday morning he went to Fond du Lac, where he confessed before Chief of Police Nolan and District Attorney Murray and also signed his name to the confession.

The funeral of the victim was held on Saturday morning at Oakfield with brief services at the Zuehke residence. The last rites were conducted at St. Luke's Lutheran church at Oakfield.

Herman is housed in the county jail at Fond du Lac awaiting trial. He no doubt will get life sentence at Wau-pun. There is at present only one thing that seems to worry Herman the most and that is whether or not Oakfield people will be at the trial for he does not want to see any body.

MUST START OVER

Clerk of Court John Klessig received notice from Judge Luck that at the regular hearing at the circuit court, on October 20, the government will move for the dismissal of petitions for naturalization now pending in circuit court, the ground being assigned by the government is that the declarations of the petitioners for naturalization had expired. This means that all the work done by those asking for naturalization papers will in the event that the motion is sustained, have to be done over, from the very first step—that of signing the declaration of intention. Petitioners desiring to oppose the motion may appear in court, but it will be unnecessary for them to have their witnesses present. We are informed that the government's late notice will affect 16 residents of Washington county. Petitions for naturalization papers which were issued up to and including Dec. 30, 1918, are not affected by the government's proposed move.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Klessig and family and W. J. Crass and family of Fillmore motored to Cleveland, Wis., Sunday, spending the day with the former's cousins, Ernst, Leo, Wm. and Otto Klessig. They also stopped at Sheboygan on their return trip.

PRESIDENT DENIES TREATY WAR PACT

Wilson Tells Senate Committee Congress Only War Maker.

JAPAN WON'T RULE SHANTUNG

Tells Senators Tokyo Has Promised to Give Up Any Sovereignty There—Asks Them to Interpret but Not to Change Treaty.

Washington, Aug. 20.—To a query as to what sovereignty Japan retained in Shantung President Wilson said at the conference: "She has not retained sovereignty over anything. I mean she has promised not to. Senator Borah has asked whether this understanding was oral or otherwise. I do not like to describe the operation exactly if it is not perfectly discreet. As a matter of fact, this was technically oral, but literally written and formulated and the formulation agreed upon."

President Wilson said he disagreed with the opinion given the committee by Secretary Lansing that Japan would have signed the treaty regardless of whether it contained the Shantung provision.

"When is the return (of Shantung to China) to be made?" asked Senator Johnson.

"That was left undecided, but we were assured at the time that it would be as soon as possible."

"Did not the Japanese decline to fix any date?"

"They did at that time, yes; but I think it is fair to them to say they could not at that time say when it would be."

Did Japan Have Mastery? Senator Johnson asked whether the economic privileges retained did not give Japan "a fair mastery" over the province. The president replied that while he did not feel qualified to judge, he would regard that as "an exaggerated view."

In answer to Senator Knox the president said he believed a League of Nations would have prevented Japan from spreading her influence as she has over Manchuria and Korea.

When Senator Johnson of California asked the president how the American delegates voted on Japan's proposal for racial equality the president replied that "in the interest of international good understanding" he could not answer the question.

The president did not approve of a suggestion that the transcript of the process verbal be brought from Paris and laid before the committee because every one has spoken with the utmost freedom.

Asked whether he thought Japan could be depended on to carry out her promise in good faith, the president replied:

"I have every confidence that she will."

Senator Moses asked whether a secret agreement with reference to Avlonia was produced at Versailles. The president replied that he had heard of it, but never had seen it.

Senator Moses—The purpose of my inquiry was to ascertain whether there was laid before the council of ten any textual agreement which transferred parts of the territory of independent nations to another.

The President—Only those that you have spoken of.

Senator Moses—Shantung and Avlonia?

The President—Only those that we have had under general discussion. I cannot enumerate them. But there are none that have not been produced so far as I know. That answers the question.

In answer to further questions by Senator Johnson President Wilson said Japan had notified the conference her delegates would not sign the treaty as drawn. The Shantung provision was inserted, the president said, in view of the engagements of Great Britain and France and because he thought it the best that could be done.

Thinks League Would Have Helped. Senator Knox—Mr. President, the economic privileges that they originally acquired in Korea and subsequently in inner and outer Mongolia and in northern and southern Manchuria have almost developed into a complete sovereignty over those countries, have they not?

The President—In the absence of a League of Nations they have.

Senator Knox—You think the League of Nations would have prevented that?

The President—I am confident it would.

Senator New—Mr. President, does not this indefinite promise of Japan's suggest the somewhat analogous case of England's occupation of Malta? She has occupied Malta for something like a century, I believe, under a very similar promise.

The President—I hope you will pardon me if I do not answer that question.

Senator Falk asked who would defend the mandate territories against external aggression under the league, and the president replied that primarily the duty would rest with the mandatory power.

Only through action by congress shall the United States lend any military assistance to other members of the League of Nations.

This was stated emphatically by the president in an extended discussion with members of the senate committee on foreign relations over the interpretation of article 10 of the league covenant.

The United States is only under moral obligations to the other nations, the president said, declaring that the league covenant does not in any way detract from the power of the congress.

Asks About Other Treaties. After the president had delivered his statement, Senator Lodge said:

"Mr. President, so far as I am personally concerned—and I think I represent perhaps the majority of the committee in that respect—we have no thought of entering upon arguments as to interpretations or points of that character; but the committee was very desirous of getting information on certain points which seem not clear and on which they thought information would be of value to have in consideration of the treaty which they, I think I may say for myself and others, desire to hasten in every possible way. "Your reference to the necessity of action leads me to ask one question. If we have to restore peace to the world, it is necessary, I assume, that there should be treaties with Austria, Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria. Those treaties are all more or less connected with the treaty with Germany. The question I should like to ask is, what the prospect is of receiving those treaties for action."

Senate Cause of Delay. The President—I think it is very good, sir, and so far as I can judge from the contents of the dispatches from my colleagues on the other side of the water, the chief delay is due to the uncertainty as to what is going to happen to this treaty. This treaty is a model of the others. I saw enough of the others before I left Paris to know that they are being framed on the same set of principles and the treaty with Germany is the model. I think that is the chief element of delay, sir.

Senator Lodge—They are not regarded as essential to the consideration of this treaty?

The President—They are not regarded as such, no sir; they follow this treaty.

Senator Lodge—I do not know about the other treaties, but the treaty with Poland, for example, has been completed?

Treaty With Poland Signed. The President—Yes and signed; but it is dependent upon this treaty. My thought was to submit it upon the action on this treaty.

Senator Lodge then asked whether the president could show the committee the tentative League of Nations drafts submitted by Great Britain, France and Italy.

The President—I would have sent them to the committee with pleasure, senator, if I had found that I had them; but the papers that remain in my hands remain there in a haphazard way. I can tell you the character of the other drafts. The British draft was the only one as I remember that was in the form of a definite constitution of a league. The French and Italian drafts were in the form of a series of propositions laying down general rules and assuming that the commission, or whatever body made the final formulations would build upon those principles if they were adopted. They were principles quite consistent with the final action.

At Liberty to Interpret. In reply to Senator McCumber the president repeated that he felt it would be a mistake to embody interpretations in the resolution of ratification, saying: "We can interpret only a moral obligation. The legal obligation can be enforced by such machinery as there is to enforce it. We are therefore at liberty to interpret the sense in which we undertake a moral obligation."

Senator McCumber asked whether the other nations could not accept interpretations by the senate "by acquiescence."

The President—My experience as a lawyer was not very long, but that experience would teach me that the language of a contract is always part of the debatable matter, and I can testify that in our discussions in the commission on the League of Nations we did not discuss ideas half as much as we discussed phraseology.

The president said if reservations were embodied in the ratification "there would have to be either explicit acquiescence or the elapsing of a long enough time for us to know whether they (the other governments) were implicitly acquiescing or not."

K. OF P. OFFICIAL MISSING Chicago Police Asked to Find Paul Haverly, Grand Keeper of Records of Illinois.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—The police were asked to find Paul J. B. Haverly, grand keeper of the records and seals of the Illinois Knights of Pythias, who suddenly disappeared.

At the same time the Fidelity and Casualty company was notified that there was an apparent discrepancy of $40,000 in Haverly's accounts with the Knights of Pythias.

The casualty company, which is on Haverly's bond, immediately put auditors to work on the books of the order in Haverly's possession to check up the alleged discrepancy.

MEXICANS FREE U. S. AVIATORS

American Army Captain Ransoms One Flyer and Carries Off Other.

OUTLAWS ARE GIVEN $7,500

Two Lieutenants Captured as Result of Mistaking Conchos River for Rio Grande—Twenty Bandits in Gang.

Marfa, Tex., Aug. 20.—Lieut. H. G. Peterson and Lieut. Paul H. Davis, United States army aviators, held prisoners by Mexicans since last Wednesday after being forced to land the preceding Sunday on Mexican soil, on Tuesday were released by Mexican bandits after the payment of $7,500 of the $15,000 demanded.

Capt. Matlack, who took the ransom money across the border, paid half the ransom money for the release of Lieut. Peterson, and when Lieut. Davis was delivered to him, he galloped away with the officer, without making the final payment.

The aviators had wandered from Sunday afternoon until Wednesday along the Conchos river near Falmoir, Chihuahua, under the impression they were on the Rio Grande.

"Had a great experience," was Peterson's message to his father. One attempt was made to escape by the aviators. They were threatened with death if they tried again.

Jesus Renteria and a band of five Mexicans accomplished their capture. There were twenty bandits at a ranch where they were held.

By a prearranged plan Capt. Matlack awaited a fire signal from the Mexicans, which came after midnight, and then crossed the border with the ransom money.

Lieut. Peterson crossed the border to the American side at 1:15 a. m. and Capt. Matlack brought back Lieut. Davis at 2.

Capt. Matlack said this morning that the two aviators landed in Mexico. He declared they thought they had landed in the United States, and this impression on their part was not corrected until after they had reached the border today.

The aviators, the captain explained, had become confused while in the air and had mistaken the Conchos river for the Rio Grande. Instead of landing near Candelaria, as they thought, they had landed at a point near Falmoir, Chihuahua, more than forty miles up the Conchos river, where they abandoned their wrecked airplane after stripping it of machine guns and vital parts, which might make it of use to the Mexicans.

Thinking they were on the Rio Grande, they started down stream in an effort to locate Candelaria and report their accident to military headquarters. They landed at 12:30 Sunday afternoon and were picked up Wednesday morning by the Renteria band.

They were taken into the mountains, but thought they were approaching Valentine, Tex. They were told that 60 men belonged to the band, while in reality the aviators saw only 20 men at the ranch where they were held. Captain Matlack said the bandits were well mounted.

Various plans for obtaining the ransom money were discussed by the bandits. One was for the delivery of the sum and Americans in the middle of the Rio Grande. Another was for the aviators to be taken 100 yards up river and the money taken an equal distance down river and both left at the same time.

Finally it was agreed that an American army officer should be sent from the American side upon signals from the bandits by means of flares. At the same time Renteria was to start from the Mexican side with the Americans. They were to meet and exchange prisoners and money.

Captain Matlack's ruse, by which he saved $7,500, was contrived on the spur of the moment after he had got Lieutenant Peterson across the border.

"I just decided there was no use in paying those Mexicans that other $7,500 after I had Davis, so I told him to jump on behind on my horse. I spurred the horse hard and we started a wild dash for the border and made it. They called for us to halt, but I said 'Go to h—' and crossed."

FORD WINS LIBEL SUIT

SIX-CENT VERDICT AWARDED IN CASE THAT COST MILLION.

Magnate Awarded Nominal Damages Because Chicago Tribune Called Him an Anarchist.

Mount Clemens, Mich., Aug. 16.—Henry Ford won a verdict in his libel suit against the Chicago Tribune.

At 8:15 o'clock at night the jury, which for three months has been hearing testimony and arguments in the suit, returned a decision in favor of the auto manufacturer, who sought vindication in the courts of the charge made by the Tribune that "Ford is an anarchist."

Trial of the suit, which, it is estimated, cost a million, was featured by the testimony of Mr. Ford, his son Edsel, owners and editors of the Tribune and notable educators and clergymen.

The jury awarded Mr. Ford damages of 6 cents, thus following the precedent of the famous Roosevelt damage suit just of some years ago in awarding a moral victory.

The jury had been deliberating since 9:55 o'clock in the morning. Judge Tucker, instructing the jury, stated "the right of fair comment" is expected in the case of Mr. Ford, because his position as a great employer of labor and entry as a propagandist into the discussion of the preparedness question made him a public character.

The judge held that a newspaper has no greater privilege in making comment than has an individual.

The jury was instructed further to dismiss the case against the Solomon News company, which on a purely technical charge that it distributed in Michigan 208 copies of the Tribune issue of June 23, 1916, containing the alleged libelous editorial headed "Ford is an Anarchist," was made a co-defendant.

The judge instructed that plaintiff's charges of pro-Germanism against the Tribune and of a selfish interest in advocating intervention in Mexico had not been proved and the jury need not consider it.

The KITCHEN CABINET

It has been said that a man is known by absorption, meaning that we can tell the quality and type of any one's life by the things he allows to absorb him.

DISHES FROM CORN AND EDIBLE GRAINS.

The coarser foods are quite necessary in our diet and should be used freely at all times of the year.

Hominy Gems.—Pour one cupful of scalded milk over half a cupful of cornmeal, add one-fourth of a cupful of cooked hominy, a tablespoonful of sugar, the same of shortening; mix well, cool and add yolk beaten thick and the white stiff. Sift in one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a little salt; beat well and bake in hot buttered gem pans.

Hominy and Pecan Croquettes.—Boil a half cupful of hominy with a half-teaspoonful of salt in two cupfuls of water five minutes, then put into a double boiler and cook two hours or over night in a double boiler. Add two tablespoonfuls of shortening, half a cupful of chopped pecans and a teaspoonful of scraped onion. Beat one egg lightly, add two tablespoonfuls of cold water, roll croquettes in crumbs and egg, then in crumbs again and fry in deep fat. This makes one dozen croquettes.

Scotch Oat Crackers.—Put two cupfuls of rolled oats through the meat grinder, add one-fourth of a cupful each of milk and molasses, one and a half tablespoonfuls of fat, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth of a cupful of raisins or nuts cut in bits. Mix well, roll very thin and cut in fancy shapes. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Oatmeal Tomato Soup.—Take half a can of tomatoes, one-third of a cupful of oatmeal, two cupfuls of water, one tablespoonful of sugar, half a small onion, pepper and salt to taste, a bit of bayleaf and two tablespoonfuls of peanut butter. Cook one hour; rub through a strainer, add seasoning, if needed, and serve hot.

It would be narrowness to suppose that an artist can only care for the impressions of those who know the methods of art as well as its effects. Art works for all whom it can touch.—Elliot.

BALANCING THE MEAL.

We hear much about well-balanced meals these days and it is the desire of every home-keeper to have her meals well balanced, appetizing as well as attractive. When we speak of balancing a meal we mean giving all the food principals in their proper proportion in each menu, or getting the amounts in during the day; if lacking in one meal, make it up in the next, so that the day's meals will give the proper balance.

The amount of food to be taken by individuals differs so greatly that there is no fixed rule that one may follow. Age, climate, physical condition as well as occupation are important factors in determining the amount to serve, but it is safe to say that in the average dietary we may cut out one-third of the food we daily consume, masticate the two-thirds twice as long as is the habit and great benefit will be noted in one's health. This advice is only given to the well padded individual; those who are thin are so because even if good eaters, the food is not assimilated.

When serving a heavy main dish with the accompanying vegetable or two, the dessert should be light, one easy of digestion and with little bulk. If the main part of the meal is light, not preceded by a cream soup, let the dessert be a richer one.

The generous use of milk in desserts will give a better balance to the dinner in which only a small amount of meat is served, while at meatless meals more milk may be used as well as fish, cheese, beans and peas in order that there may be no lack of protein (the tissue building body) in the diet.

Coffee Custard.—Send two cupfuls of milk with two tablespoonfuls of finely ground coffee, and strain. Beat three eggs lightly, add one-quarter cupful of sugar, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of vanilla. Strain into buttered molds and bake in a pan of hot water. Unmold and serve well chilled with whipped cream.

Discouraging. Eva—And now some Danish scientists has discovered that there are germs in tears. Katherine—Graciously! With germs in tears and germs in kisses they must be trying to deprive poor woman of all pleasures in life.

To The Voters And Tax Payers of Washington County.

In order that the voters of Washington County may understand the proposed bond issue which is to be voted upon on September 2nd, the Washington County Good Roads Association will attempt to answer certain vital questions through the county papers.

What Will It Cost to The Tax Payer?

During the past five years it has cost over $300,000.00 to build and maintain our present road system. In spite of this a large number of the highways have been almost impassable during certain seasons of the year and are at present far from what they should be. If we adopt a permanent system of roads the cost over the period for which the bonds are to run will be $1.85 per year for each $1000.00 assessed valuation. This figure is based upon estimates made by the Wisconsin Highway Commission.

How Will It Benefit The Man on The Secondary Road?

Under the present plan a large part of the taxes are being spent in the construction and upkeep of the main roads and owing to the type of roads constructed a large part of this money is wasted. Under the proposed plan the cost of upkeep of the main roads will be very small and there will be more money to spend on secondary roads.

Another reason why the man on the secondary road will receive more benefit under the proposed plan is that when the main highways are built of concrete it will draw the traffic to those highways and relieve the secondary roads which are not built under this plan. Experience in other counties has proved this.

Finally, if you will look at the map you will find that you will be only a few miles from the concrete road. A short ride on the secondary roads brings you to the splendid concrete roads. Isn't this better for you than to do all your driving on the poor roads?

A GOOD ROADS BOOSTER MEETING has been arranged at Gonring's Hall, Big Cedar Lake, on Sunday Afternoon, August 24th, at 2 o'clock. John Conway of Appleton and Mr. P. Silverwood, chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee of Outagamie County will deliver addresses.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE BOND ISSUE

It is proposed to bond—to borrow $2,000,000 for the building of concrete roads in Washington County.

These bonds are to be sold at once. The total issue is to be $2,000,000 and the bonds are to be sold as the money is needed to build the roads.

It is proposed to take five years to build the roads. This will mean that the county board will sell $400,000 worth of bonds each year to pay for that year's construction work and as will be seen this will amount to $2,000,000 in five years.

The interest does not begin on these bonds until they are sold. For instance if the county sold $400,000 worth of bonds in 1920, interest would begin on those bonds that year, and the bonds which they sell in 1921 will not begin to draw interest until that year. Don't get the idea that the county is going to sell this $2,000,000 of bonds at once and pay interest on them. They will sell the bonds from year to year as they need the money for road work, and they will begin to draw interest only when sold.

The bonds will draw 5 per cent interest. If sold at a premium or above par, it simply means that you need not sell $2,000,000 worth of bonds, which amounts to the same thing as decreasing the interest rate.

The first bonds will be sold in 1920 and the last bonds retired in 1940. The first $400,000 worth of bonds will be retired in 15 years time, and as the bonds are sold from year to year, they would run for a 15 year period.

As it is proposed to issue bonds for a 20 year period, the last bonds would be issued in 1924 and retired in 1940.

The county will get its state aid as usual, and this may be used to retire the bonds.

The county will get its federal aid as usual, and this will be used for construction purposes.

While the total bond issue will be $2,000,000 the total money available for road building in the ten year period will be $2,255,000, the additional amount coming from the state and federal aid.

A fact which must be kept in mind is the saving in maintenance resulting from the building of the proposed concrete roads. The state, under the law, will allow Washington Co., $275 a mile for the roads on the state trunk highway system. It will not cost near that amount for maintenance, about $125 per mile, and the balance may be used by the county to retire bonds. This will amount in the entire bond issue period to $210,000 saved in maintenance and used to retire bonds.

The assessed valuation of Washington County in 1920 is estimated at $51,500,000. At the present ratio of increase of such valuation from year to year will tend to lower the rate of taxation.

MOTION PICTURE FILM FIRES

We go to theaters primarily for amusement, never for mourning, to schools for instruction not destruction.

One modern cause of fire and panic, and loss of life and property, in both is the ever increasing use of the highly inflammable motion picture film. Slow burning, safety films unfortunately are not extensively used.

Fire in such buildings is always liable to cause a panic and so result in loss of life, and our aim in regulating the film hazard is to protect life more than property.

A good, modern machine, equipped with an automatic shutter, film guards and feed and takeup reels in metal magazines only should be used, and no safety device should be removed from the lamp or machine during the projection of pictures. Before each show the machine should be tested by the operator.

Badly torn films should not be used. All pieces and scraps of films must be kept clean and free from combustible materials.

With all these precautions some film fires are liable to occur. This makes it necessary to house all machines using inflammable films in a booth constructed of fire resisting materials, such as brick, tile, concrete, angle iron frame with sheet iron, not less than No. 20 U. S. gauge, or one-quarter inch asbestos wood or lumber, securely riveted or bolted to the frame.

The door also must be of fire resisting material, automatically closing, and closed during a performance.

The openings for the operators view and for the picture should be protected by automatic gravity doors or shutters.

Ventilation by means of a metal pipe running to the outside or to a chimney should be provided. All windows in the booth should be standard fire windows.

A fire extinguisher of one quart capacity, pump-type, should be kept in the booth.

Such a booth prevents panic and loss of life, because the audience is not liable to see the fire and confines the property loss to the booth.

Write us for moving picture booth specifications.

PLYMOUTH SELF-FEED ENSILAGE CUTTERS

"Plymouth" Feed Cutters are the result of twenty-five years' experience and practical study of conditions and needs in the farm and dairy field. They embrace every advantage known to other similar machines, and many vital features which are original with us and can be had only in the "Plymouth Self-Feed." Below are some mighty strong points for you to think about before you buy a feed cutter.

AUTOMATIC SELF-FEED—This feature consists of a traveling feed chain, made of heavy iron slats securely riveted to a chain which passes over the lower feed roller. Throw the fodder into the feed box and the "Plymouth" does the rest.

DANGER-PROOF SELF-FEED ROLLERS—Here's another strong feature original with the "Plymouth." It consists of four large rollers of cast iron. The traveling feed chain passes over the lower hind roller, just passing the lower front roller, which is six inches in diameter, and smooth. The two upper and lower hind rollers are ribbed. The 8-inch automatic roller at the top, to the rear, is a special feature of the "Plymouth." It acts as a lever or weight to keep the fodder passing through continuously, depending on its own gravity to keep the material going through without a hitch. Two coil springs serve to exert an even and steady pressure on the automatic roller as the volume of fodder increases in going through. The spring feature is entirely automatic, and is only to be had in the "Plymouth." It absolutely prevents clogging.

To Improve Your Digestion.

"For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried everything that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them did I find the right treatment. Since taking them my digestion is fine."—Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa.—Adv.

Cure for Dysentery

"While I was in Ashland, Kansas, a gentleman overheard me speaking of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes William Whitelaw, of Des Moines, Iowa. "He told me in detail of what it had done for his family, but more especially his daughter who was lying at the point of death with a violent attack of dysentery, and had been given up by the family physician. Some of his neighbors advised him to give Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, a trial which he did, and fully believes that by doing so he saved his child. He stated that he also used this remedy himself with gratifying results."—Adv.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter.—Miss LEO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

IF THIN AND NERVOUS, TRY PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitter-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

When one stops to consider the host of thin people who are searching continually for some method by which they may increase their flesh to normal proportions, the fitting out of ugly hollows, the rounding off of protruding shoulders, the attainment of blooming health and attractiveness, it is no wonder that many varied suggestions along this line appear from time to time in public print.

While excessive thinness might be attributed to various and subtle causes in different individuals it is a well-known fact that the lack of sufficient phosphorus in the human system is very largely responsible for this condition. Experiments on humans and animals by many scientists have demonstrated beyond question of doubt that a body deficient in phosphorus becomes nervous, sickly and thin. A noted author and professor in his book "Phosphorus and Food Nutrition," published in 1914, says that the amount of phosphorus required for the normal nutrition of man is seriously underestimated in many of our standard text books.

It seems to be well established that this deficiency in phosphorus may now be met by the use of an organic phosphate throughout English speaking countries as Bitter-Phosphate. Through the assimilation of this phosphate by the nerve tissue the phosphoric content when absorbed in the amount normally required by nature soon produces a welcome change in our body and mind. Nerve tension disappears, vigor and strength replace weakness and lack of energy, and the whole body soon loses its ugly hollows and protruding angles, becoming instead a glow of perfect health and beauty and the will and strength to be up and doing.

CAUTION—While Bitter-Phosphate is unexcelled for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

"You take this one," said Barnes, "and I will manage the other." He was in a hurry to get away from the house. There was no telling when the government agents would descend upon the place.

Barnes helped Peter to lift the trunks into the car and then ordered him to start at once for Hart's Tavern.

"You can return later on for your things," he said.

"I got 'em tied up in a bundle in the garage, Mr. Burns," he said. "Won't take a second to get 'em out." He hurried around the corner of the house.

A dry, quiet chuckle fell upon Barnes' ears. He glanced about in surprise and alarm. No one was in sight.

"Look up, young man," and the startled young man obeyed. His gaze halted at a window on the second story, almost directly over his head.

Mr. Sprouse was looking down upon him, his sharp features fixed in a sardonic grin.

"Well, I'll be d—!" burst from Barnes' lips.

"Surprised to see me, eh? If you're not in a hurry, I'd certainly appreciate a lift as far as the Tavern, old man. I'll be down in a jiffy. Stand aside! I'm going to drop." A moment later he swung over the sill, and dropped lightly to the ground eight feet below.

"See, here, Sprouse or whatever your name is—"

"Better hear me out," broke in Sprouse calmly. "I could drill a hole through you so quickly you'd never know what did it," he went on. His hand was in his coat pocket, and a quick glance revealed to Barnes a singularly impressive angle in the cloth, the point of which seemed to be directed squarely at his chest. "But I'm not going to do it. I just want to set myself straight with you. In a word, I never got anywhere near the room in which the jewels were hidden. This is God's truth, Barnes. I wasn't the only one who was trying to get the baubles, my friend. It was a game in which only the best man could win."

"I know the truth now about Roon and Paul," said Barnes significantly.

"You do?" sneered Sprouse. "I'll bet you a thousand to one you do not. The girl was led to believe that they were a couple of crooks and that they fixed me in that tavern down there. Isn't that what she told you? Well, that story was cooked up for her special benefit. Roon was the Baron Hedlund. Hedlund came up here a week or so ago to keep a lookout for his wife. The baroness is supposed to be deeply enamored of Prince Ugo. He found letters which seemed to indicate that she was planning to join the prince up here. When he heard of the arrival of a lady at Green Fancy the other afternoon, he got busy. I admit that I am the gentleman who telephoned the warning up to the prince. They tried to head the baron and his man off at the cross-roads, but he

"Nicholas butted in at this unfortunate juncture. He made the mistake of his life. Ugo jumped back into his room. In less than a second he was out again. He landed squarely on Nicholas' back as the fellow turned to escape. I saw the steel flash. Poor old Nick went down in a heap, letting out a horrible yell. Ugo dragged him into the room and dashed back into his own. A moment later he came out again, yelling for help. There was only one thing left for me to do and that was to get out on the roof if possible, and wait for things to quiet down. I got out through a trap door and stayed there for an hour or so.

"Well, to shorten the story, I finally took a chance and slid down to the eaves where I managed to find the limb of a tree big enough to support me—just as if the Lord had ordered it put there for my special benefit. I was soon on the ground, and that meant safety for me. I had heard Ugo tell the others that Nicholas said the man who stabbed him was yours truly. Can you beat it?

"And now comes the maddening part of the whole business. He said that the crown jewels were gone! The thief was running downstairs when he staggered to the door. If we are to find the crown jewels, my friend, we will first have to find Prince Ugo. He has them."

"I don't believe a word of this yarn," said Barnes flatly. "You have the jewels and—"

"Look here, Mr. Barnes, I'm not going to double-cross you again. That's all over. I want to get that scurvy dog who knifed poor old Nick. If you can give me a lead, I'll try to run Prince Ugo down. And if I do, we'll get the jewels."

"We? You amuse me, Sprouse."

"Well, I can't do any more than give my promise, my solemn oath, or something like that. I can't give a bond, you know. I swear to you that if I lay hands on that stuff, I will deliver it to you. Might just as well trust me as Ugo."

"Get in the car," said Barnes suddenly. He had decided to take a chance with the resourceful, indefatigable rascal. There was something convincing about Sprouse's version of the affair at Green Fancy.

Barnes told him that he knew of Prince Ugo's flight. Sprouse looked thoughtful for a long time.

"So O'Dowd knows that I really was after the swag, eh? He believes I got it?"

"I suppose so."

"The only one who thinks I'm absolutely innocent is Ugo, of course—and Mrs. Van Dyke. That's good," Sprouse smirked at his lips. "I've got a pretty fair idea where I can find Mr. Loeb. It will take a little time—a couple of days, perhaps—but sooner or later he'll turn up in close proximity to the beautiful baroness."

CHAPTER XIX.

A Trip by Night and a Late Arrival.

Shortly after sundown that evening the Rushcroft company evacuated Hart's Tavern. They were delayed by the irritating and, to Mr. Rushcroft, unpardonable behavior of two officious gentlemen, lately arrived, who insisted politely but firmly on prying into the past, present and future history of the several members of the organization, including the new "backer."

Barnes had devised a very clever plan for getting Miss Cameron away from the tavern without attracting undue attention. She was to leave in one of the automobiles that he had engaged to convey the players to Crowndale, where they were to "show." In case of detention or inquiry, she was to pose as a stage-struck young woman who had obtained a place with the company at the last moment through his influence.

When the hour came for the departure from Hart's Tavern he deliberately engaged the two secret service men in conversation in the taproom. Miss Cameron left the house by the rear door and was safely ensconced in Peter's automobile long before he shook hands with the "rat-catchers" and dashed out to join her. Tommy Gray's car, occupied by the four players, was moving away from the door as he sprang in beside her and slammed the door.

Peter's efforts to stay behind Tommy's venerable but surprisingly energetic car were the cause of many a gasp and shudder from the couple who sat behind him in the bounding car. He had orders to keep back of Tommy but never to lose sight of his tall light.

"Are you there?" he whispered.

"Yes. Isn't it jolly, running away like this? It must be wonderfully exciting to be a criminal, always dodging and—"

"Sh! Even a limousine may have ears!"

But if the limousine had possessed a thousand ears they would have been rendered useless in the stormy racket made by Peter's muffled and the thunderous roar of the exhaust as the car got under way.

Sixty miles lay between them and Crowndale. Tommy Gray guaranteed that the distance could be covered in three hours, even over the vile mountain roads. Ten o'clock would find them at the Grand Palace hotel, none the worse for wear, provided (he always put it parenthetically) they lived to tell the tale! The luggage had gone on ahead of them earlier in the day.

Soon after ten o'clock they entered the town of Crowndale and drew up before the unattractive portals of the Grand Palace hotel. An arc lamp swinging above the entrance shed a pitiless light upon the dreary, Godforsaken hostelry with the ironic name.

Miss Cameron was warmly conscious of the thrill that had come into her blood when he carried her up the stairs in his powerful arms, disdaining the offer of assistance from the suddenly infuriated Tommy Gray.

"Rehearsal at eleven sharp," announced Rushcroft. "Letter-perfect, every one of you. No guessing. By the way, Miss—upon my soul, I don't believe I got your name?"

"Jones," said the new member, shamelessly.

Barnes went down to the dingy lobby. A single, half-hearted electric bulb shed its feeble light on the desk, in front of which stood a man registering under the sleepy eye of the night clerk.

Barnes was turning away when a familiar voice assailed him.

Whirling, he looked into the face of a man who stood almost at his elbow—the sharp, impassive face of Mr. Sprouse.

CHAPTER XX.

The First Wayfarer Has One Treasure Thrust Upon Him—And Forthwith Claims Another.

"What are you doing here?" demanded Barnes, staring. He seized the man's arm and inquired eagerly: "Have you got the jewels?"

"No; but I will have them before morning," replied Sprouse coolly. "Would you be surprised if I were to tell you that his royal nibs is hiding in this town? Well, he certainly is. The Baroness Hedlund has been here for a week or ten days. She goes by the name of Mrs. Hasselwell. I popped down here this afternoon and found out that she is at the sanatorium, but that she expects to leave tomorrow morning. I made another trip out there this evening and waited. About eight o'clock Mr. Hasselwell strolled up. He sat on the veranda with her for half an hour or so and then left. I followed him. He went to one of the little cottages that belong to the sanatorium. I couldn't get close enough to hear what they said, but I believe he expects to take her away in an automobile early in the morning. It is a seventy-mile ride from here to the junction where they catch the train for the West. I'm going up now to make a call on Mr. Hasselwell. By the way, what is the number of your room?"

"Twenty-two—on the next floor."

"Good. Go upstairs now and I'll join you in about ten minutes. I will tap three times on your door."

"Why should you come to my room, Sprouse? We can say all that is to be said—"

"If you will look on the register you will discover that Mr. J. H. Prosser registered here about half an hour ago. He is in room 30. He left a call for five o'clock. Well, Prosser is another name for Ugo. He left the cottage an hour ago. Came in a jitney or I could have got to him on the way over."

Barnes, regardless of consequences, dashed over to inspect the register. Sprouse followed leisurely.

"See!" cried Barnes, excitedly, putting his finger on the name "Miss Jones." "She's in room 32—next to his. By gad, Sprouse, do you suppose he knows that she is here? Would he do undertake anything—"

"You may be sure he doesn't know she's here, or you either, for that matter. The country's full of Joneses and Barneses. Go on upstairs. Leave everything to me."

Barnes had been in his room for twenty minutes before he heard the tapping on his door. He opened it and Sprouse slid into the room. The instant the door closed behind him, he threw open his coat and coolly produced a long, shallow metal box, such as one finds in safety vaults.

"With my compliments," he said dryly, thrusting the box into Barnes' hands. "You'd better have the cutlery check them up and see if they're all there. I am not well enough acquainted with the collection to be positive."

Barnes was speechless. He could only stare, open-mouthed, at this amazing man.

"My God, Sprouse, have you been in that man's room since I saw you down—"

"All you have to do is to keep quiet and look innocent. Stay out of the hall tonight. Don't go near the door of

No. 30. Act like a man with brains I said I would square myself with you and with him, too. Well, I've done both. Maybe you think it is easy to give up this stuff. There is a half-million dollars' worth of nice little things in that box, small as it is."

"I cannot begin to thank you enough," said Barnes. "See here, you must allow me to reward you in some way commensurate with your—"

"Cut that out," said Sprouse darkly. "I'm not so virtuous that I have to be rewarded. I like the game. It's the breath of life to me."

"The time will surely come when I can do you a good turn. Sprouse, and you will not find me reluctant," said Barnes, lamely.

"That's different. If I ever need a friendly hand I'll call on you. It's only fair that I should give you a tip, Barnes, just to put you on your guard. From now on, I'm a free agent. I want to advise you to put that stuff in a safe place. I'll give you two days' start. After that, if I can get 'em away from you, or whoever may have them, I'm going to do it. They will be fair plunder from then on. Good night—and good-by for the present. Stick close to your room till morning and then beat it with her for New York. I give you two days' start, remember."

He switched off the light suddenly. There was no sound for many seconds, save the deep breathing of the two men. Then, with infinite caution Sprouse turned the knob and opened the door a half inch or so. He left the room so abruptly that Barnes never quite got over the weird impression that he squeezed through that slender crack, and pulled it after him!

Many minutes passed before he turned on the light. The key of the box was tied to the wire grip. With trembling fingers he inserted it in the lock and opened the lid. . . . "A half-million dollars' worth of nice little things," Sprouse had said!

He did not close his eyes that night. Daybreak found him lying in bed, with the box under his pillow, a pistol at hand, and his eyes wide open. He was in a graver quandary than ever. Now that he had the treasure in his possession, what was he to do with it?

He solved the breakfast problem by calling downstairs for a waiter and ordering coffee and rolls and eggs sent up to his room. Singularly enough the waiter solved the other and more disturbing problem for him.

"Some robbery last night," said the worthy. "Feller up in one of the cottages at the sanatorium. All beat up something fierce they say."

"Up in—Where?" almost shouted Barnes, starting up.

The man explained where the cottages were situated.

"Seems he was to leave by auto early this mornin', and they didn't know anything was wrong till Joe Keep—he's driving a car Mr. Norton has for rent—Jed Joe'd been settin' up in front for nearly half an hour. The man's wife was waitin' fer him up at the main buildin' and she got so tired waitin' that she sent one of the clerks down to see what was keeping her husband. Well, sir, him and Joe couldn't wake the feller, so they climbed in an open winder, an' by gosh, Joe says it was terrible. The feller was layin' on the bed, feet an' hands tied and gagged, and blood from head to foot. He was incoherent. Joe says an'—my God, how his wife took on! Joe says he couldn't stand it, so he snook out, shakin' like a leaf."

"Is—the man dead?" cried Barnes, aghast.

"None! Seems like it's nothing serious, just beat up, that's all. Terrible cuts on his head and—"

"What time did all this happen?"

"Doc Smith figures it was long about midnight, judgin' by the way the blood co'gulated."

"Did they get away with much?"

"Haven't heard. Seems as though the burglar—must ha' been more'n one of 'em. I say—wasn't satisfied with crackin' him over the head. He stuck the point of a knife or something into him—just a little way. Joe says—in more'n a dozen places. What say?"

"I—I didn't say anything."

"I thought you did. Well, if I hear anything more I'll let you know."

Captain Reginald Humphreys of the British navy in speaking of the action of the sea on vessels and merchandise says:

"Wooden ships, after being sunk, are rapidly covered with a marine growth which forms a sort of lime deposit and preserves the wood in some cases for several centuries. We are informed by one of the divers of New York who had charge of the salvage operation on the Oregon that bicycles were brought up from her hold that had been in the water over four months and yet looked as bright as when they went down; also silk the outer folds of which only were injured."

"Some wines that had been recovered from a vessel sunk about fifty years brought $75 a bottle at auction. Gold and some other metals, glass and precious stones are never affected. A new avenue of wealth is opened to the world by means of the salvaging submarine."

WISCONSIN STATE NEWS

Grand Rapids — Organization of posts of the American legion is progressing in a satisfactory manner throughout the state of Wisconsin, according to the statement given out by Secretary R. M. Gibson of this city. Sixty-one posts have been granted charters, and there are many more in the process of organization. More than 25,000 members have been admitted. In order to clarify some misinformation regarding the legion which seems to be prevalent among service men, Secretary Gibson states that no fees are required to join, and that the dues are fixed at $2 a year.

Oconomowoc — Miss Elizabeth Baker, Oconomowoc, had the unusual experience of teaching agriculture to 500 American soldiers in the khaki uniform at Beaune, France. After graduating in 1915 from the college of agriculture, University of Wisconsin, Miss Baker was connected with the agricultural staff of the New Jersey reformatory for women. In 1918, she went overseas to work with the committee on rehabilitation of devastated France.

Clintonville — An effort is being made to have the old military road incorporated into the state aid highway system. This road, which was one of the first routes of travel opened into northwest Wisconsin was built by the government about 1862 and ran from Oshkosh through Butte des Mortes, Young's Corners, Hortonville, New London, Clintonville, Shawano, Kesheno and the Menominee Indian reservation up to Post Lake.

La Crosse — That James Thompson, who was defeated for United States senator by I. L. Lenroot, Superior, two years ago, will enter again for this place next year, is the belief of close political friends. He is accepting all invitations to speak at public gatherings and is piling up considerable campaign timber in demand that the government take action to punish campaign profiteers and stop gambling in food commodities.

Racine — With approximately $150,000 in the treasury of the Racine County War Relief Fund, it is proposed to that amount in the erection of a county memorial hospital, provided that the County Board of Supervisors will make an appropriation of from $50,000 to $100,000 and agree to maintain the structure, which will be a memorial to the soldiers, sailors and marines who enlisted for service during the world war.

Janesville — The housewife's purse, the baby's gank and a suit of clothes were the loot gained by a burglar who came to the William Knipschild home in a pea-green canoe. Just as the family was leaving for an auto ride, a man was seen to pull a canoe up the bank of the river at the rear of the home. On returning, the robbery was discovered.

Kenosha — Kenosha is not going to have the honor of naming one of the big ocean-going ships of the shipping board fleet. An examination of the records of the registry has shown that there is already a ship sailing under the name of Kenosha, between Washington and Alaska. According to the federal government, two big ships bearing the same name cannot be in service at the same time, so Kenosha will have to select another name.

Stevens Point — Lancelot A. Gordon, elected county superintendent of schools in Portage county while serving overseas, has assumed office. He was drafted during his first term, but his friends re-elected him after he had cabled his candidacy. He has appointed Miss Clara Daxrud, Iola, and Miss Mary Rychwalinski Stevens Point, county supervising teachers for the next school year.

A. work as educational secretary.

Imitations Are Dangerous.

AN OHIO druggist writes to "The Practical Druggist," a prominent New York Ohio Drug Journal, as follows: "Please furnish formula for Castoria. All the formulas I have worked with are either ineffective or disagreeable to administer."

To this "The Practical Druggist" replies: "We do not supply formulas for proprietary articles. We couldn't if we wanted to. Your experience with imitative formulas is not surprising, but just what is to be expected. When Castoria is wanted, why not supply the genuine? If you make a substitute, it is not fair or right to label it Castoria. We can give you all sorts of laxative preparations for children, but not Castoria. We can give a mother who asks for Castoria would not feel kindly toward you if you gave her your own product under such a name."

No mother with a spark of affection for her child will overlook the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when buying Castoria.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Mothers Must Use Care.

Why do we so often call your attention to imitations of Fletcher's Castoria? Because it is a baby's medicine and imitations are always dangerous, particularly imitations of a remedy for infants.

Your druggist may not keep an imitation but they are to be found on drug-store shelves. Reliable druggists think only of the welfare of their customers. The other kind only of the greater profit to be made on imitations.

Your own judgment tells you that Fletcher's Castoria having for over thirty years at great expense held up its reputation, must be the very best of material. Must employ experts in the selection of the herbs. Must retain skilled chemists in its manufacture.

Your same good judgment must tell you that these irresponsible imitators are trading on your credulity and the reputation built up by Mr. Fletcher, during all these years, for his Castoria.

MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

LUCKY STRIKE cigarette

It's toasted to increase the good, wholesome flavor of the Kentucky Burley tobacco. A regular man's smoke and delicious!

Give Me a Friendly, Natural Hand-shake

an' a friendly natural tobacco. Keep yo' put-on airs an' "sauced-up" tobaccos for the fellow that likes nut sundaes better than home made pie—

So says a friend of ours named Velvet Joe. And he just about hits the nail on the head.

Velvet is made for men who think there's no smoke like real tobacco. If you are that sort of man, listen:

Velvet was born in old Kentucky, where more than one good thing comes from. It was raised as carefully as any other Kentucky thoroughbred. But the real secret of Velvet's friendly qualities is its slow natural ageing in wooden hogsheads. Ageing in the wood never hurt anything—and least of all, tobacco.

And so we say, Velvet is good tobacco—nothing more or less. It runs second to none.

The picture of the pipe on the tin needn't keep you from rolling a jim-dandy cigarette with Velvet.

The Secret of a Superlative Tire

The whole question of a super-tire is a matter of principles. For there is nothing exclusive in the industry. No patents, no secret formulas prevent a conscientious maker from building the best.

But cost and competition modify ideals. The Brunswick idea is to pay perfection's price and get it.

That has been the Brunswick policy since 1845. And it accounts for the growing preference for Brunswick Tires. Motorists expect the utmost from a tire bearing the name of Brunswick—and get it.

You, too, will be convinced by your first Brunswick, that here is an extraordinary tire, and that more money cannot buy a better.

Better tires of their type are impossible—or better tubes. That we guarantee.

Try ONE Brunswick—learn how it excels.
