

THE COUNTY EDUCATIONAL LISTENING POST

(By County Superintendent)

An excellent quality program is planned for the school board convention. Just note the list of speakers: Judge Lueck, Sawyer, Larson, Sewell, McLane and Blank. Prin. Halverson of Hartford high school will be leader of community singing.

Everybody teaching school in Washington County should check Nov. 22, now. Make no dates for that day. You cannot miss Judge Lueck on "America's Temple of Democracy," country school teachers are expected to be present. Be ready to give a good excuse if you are not here.

It will be a nine to four o'clock program. We suggest to school boards to use their cars that they may stay through the whole program.

The editor of the Listening Post met and interviewed some of the great and near great during the circuit court term just closed. Among them was Hy. P. Schmidt, an attorney of Milwaukee, and a former teacher in the schools of Washington county of thirty years ago. Mr. Schmidt still retains his interest in school work. What was the most notable thing you did while a teacher in our county? was asked him. Every day in a teacher's work finds some notable thing done," he parried. "But, what did you do during your teaching that left a lasting impress upon the life of the community? was our next question. Mr. Schmidt leaned forward in his chair, cast his searching eyes into ours and replied: "well, Mike Eiseman, Peter Fraser, and Andrew Schmidt were on the school board. I ran the school board and the school board the business. In the fall of 1888, 120 native trees were planted on the school grounds. We did not name trees then, but a custom has grown up since that time to name trees after great men." He suggested that the trees be named after soldiers who lost their lives in the world war, he continued. "I always object to naming anything after a living man. Mother earth receives back that which she gave and no monument can be placed over him who gave his all that this world may live, more fitting than this tree to which we give his name."

Fifteen of the eighteen graded school principals of the county met at South Germantown to observe and discuss the model school conducted there last Saturday in connection with the teachers meeting. It was an experiment in teacher's meetings and it proved so successful that it received the commendation of all the teachers present, including Prof. C. C. Patzer of the Milwaukee Normal school.

Prin. Howard Rutherford of the Boltonville school said at the close of the meeting: "It is an innovation in teachers meetings. The old ones consisted of words; this one was action. Let us make the innovation a common thing in this county; I received more benefit from the meeting than I would get in one week at the Normal school."

The success of the meeting is due in a large measure to the principal of the South Germantown school. Mr. Snyder was chosen to make the experiment. He worked out all the details and was responsible for their execution.

The people of Washington County will be happy to learn that teaching in their school are four people. Prin. Snyder, Devine, Miley and Miss Luchterhand who are able to pioneer; a new kind of a teachers meeting with such success that it met with enthusiastic praise from such a practical school man as C. C. Patzer, critic-teacher of the Milwaukee Normal. There are others, you will hear from them later.

OF INTEREST TO STATESMAN READERS

Many of our readers no doubt are aware that Raw Furs, such as come from this part of the country, are very valuable and bring good prices at the present time—and are using every opportunity to get their full share of the catch.

However, the great problem is not so much how to catch the furs and get the pelts, as it is in knowing where to dispose of them to best possible advantage. The fur game is not alone a real "skin game"—where a fellow's hide is cut right out off his back and hung up on the barn door to dry out.

Our readers can save themselves this very unpleasant experience by carefully reading and following the suggestions carried in the advertisement of Bach Fur Company, Chicago, Ill., which ad appears in this issue of the paper.

This company has an enviable reputation for square dealing, has ample capital and is represented in all the leading American Raw Fur Markets of the world. They do not brag about being the biggest or the best House—their only claim is that they are a GOOD HOUSE. We believe that readers of the Statesman will make no mistake shipping their furs to Bach Fur Company. Write for their literature and see for yourself that you will be used right by them.

READY TO START EXCAVATION

V. A. Gualano, of Chicago, Engineer for the Chicago & North Western Ry. was in the village on Tuesday, laying out the plans for the side track to be built by the Kewaskum Aluminum Company. The new corporation expects to commence excavating next week, after which the foundation will be built and work on the building of the new factory will be started at once. It is the intention of the corporation to have the side track completed before the foundation of the factory is built.

The Rimmel Manufacturing Co., who took over the business a few weeks ago is making excellent progress and at the rate the amount of work is increasing daily, has corporation expects to build an addition to their plant this fall.

PLANNING TO BUILD EDUCATIONAL BUILDING

The Washington County Agricultural Society is planning to build an educational building for the purpose of housing the educational exhibits of the various schools of Washington county, during county fair week. Heretofore, the exhibits were held in a large tent, which this year not only proved to be too small, but otherwise very improper for that kind of purpose. The exhibits are mostly made of paper and pasteboard, and during high wind, are strewn all over the tent thereby not being in a position to give it the proper display and thus answer the purpose for which it is intended. This is a good move on the part of the members of the Agricultural Society, let us all hope it will materialize.

TO PLAY OPENING GAME SATURDAY, NOV. 15, 1919.

The basket ball team of the Kewaskum Athletic Club, will play its opening game of the season on Saturday evening, November 15, 1919 at the Kewaskum Opera House, with the Wallace-Smith Basket Ball Club of Milwaukee, one of the strongest teams in the city of Milwaukee. The Kewaskum team has been practicing hard for the past month, and as a result have rapidly developed into a fast and snappy team. Much has been said during the past several months of the splendid material this village is represented by for the making of a first class team, some of the citizens are in doubt as to the truth of these statements. We will venture to say that there remains no doubt whatever, that Kewaskum, this year, has the fastest and best team in its history. Every man is an experienced player, good at pass work and basket shooting, some of the players were members of army teams, playing in big games last winter. To convince yourself of the team's capacity witness next Saturday evening's game, and you will be assured of the quality and speed the team possess. Don't miss it. Game starts at 9 o'clock sharp. Dance after the game.

DEATH OF ELMER JACOBITZ

The citizens of this village were shocked on Friday, when news reached here that Elmer Jacobitz, only child of Mrs. Mary Jacobitz, and one of Kewaskum's most popular and esteemed young men, passed away in death at Milwaukee on Friday morning at 5 o'clock, after a lingering illness of several months duration with throat trouble. Elmer was born in Kewaskum, where he spent his boyhood days and where he attended the public and parochial schools. After finishing his school work, he took up the work of telegraphy, which occupation he followed up to the time he was taken ill, last spring. The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the residence with services in the Ev. Peace church. Rev. Mohme will officiate and interment will take place in the congregation's cemetery. A complete obituary will appear in our next week's issue.

SORGHUM SILAGE FOR DAIRY COWS

Crop Promises to Become Champion Yielder of Succulence for Winter Supply.

STOCK RELISH CANNED FEED

Experiments Have Demonstrated That It is One of the Most Admirable Crops for Ensilage Purposes in Dry Sections.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sorghum silage, according to United States department of agriculture specialists, promises to become a champion yielder of winter succulence, not only for dairy cows but for other live stock which relish canned crops. Unfortunately, when sorghum was first used for silage purposes, many growers cut the sorghum too early, so that when the material was removed from the silo for feeding it was sour and acid, and live stock rejected it. As a result, sorghum gained an evil reputation, although experiments have demonstrated that it is one of the most admirable crops for ensilage purposes that can be grown in the Great Plains region.

In five years' experiments at Hays, Kan., the average acre yield of sweet sorghums was 10.34 tons, as compared with 8.06 tons of kafir and 3.8 tons of corn. In eastern Kansas, where the rainfall is 30 inches or more, on fertile soils sweet sorghums have yielded 18.2 tons an acre, as compared with 11.88 tons of kafir and 11.81 tons of corn silage. Detailed feeding experiments have shown that sweet sorghum silage is proportionately equal to corn and kafir silage for either beef production or the maintenance of stock animals, although for dairy cows this variety of ensilage is less productive because of its low content of protein.

Acidity is Low.

Sorghum silage should be cut when it is mature, its ripeness being denoted by the presence of hard seed. The test for ripeness is when the seed will crack when crunched between the teeth. When cut at this time it produces a fine-quality silage which keeps well and is more keenly relished by cattle than corn silage. Experiments show that the average acidity of corn silage is 2.03 per cent, that of sweet sorghum silage is 1.46 per cent, and that of kafir silage is 1.43 per cent.

The United States department of agriculture does not advocate the growing of sorghum for silage in specialized corn-producing localities, such as

Field of Sorghum Suitable for Silage.

Illinois and Iowa. However, the utilization of sorghum as silage is recommended in the Great Plains section, and also in the Southeastern states, where this crop will produce greater yields and better ensilage than will corn.

Velvet Beans in Combination.

In case a dairy farmer wishes to raise an ensilage of practically balanced composition—assuming that his location is in a territory where both these crops may be profitably produced—a mixture of velvet beans and sorghum is very satisfactory. This combination is high yielding and produces a succulent canned feed which is very productive of both milk and meat. An objection to velvet bean growing in combination with sorghum is that the crop has to be cut by hand, as it usually is densely matted and twisted together so as to render impossible the use of a corn binder.

VALUE OF HARDWOOD ASHES

In General the Smaller and Younger the Wood Burned the Better—Faggots Most Valuable.

Ashes from hardwood (deciduous trees) are richer in both phosphorus and potash than those from pines and other soft woods (conifers). The ashes of twigs (faggots for example) are worth more for agricultural purposes than the middle of an old tree. In general the smaller and younger the wood burned the better the ashes. The ashes of coal do not contain enough potash to make them valuable in this connection.

SHORTAGE OF SUGAR-BEET SEED IN 1921

Growers Urged to Provide for Sufficient Supply.

Statement Based on Reliable Reports From Representative Dealers—Americans Must Depend Upon Home-Grown Supply.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Shortage of sugar-beet seed in the United States for the 1921 plantings will be serious unless the beet sugar companies and seed growers in this country arrange immediately for the production of a large part of their sugar-beet seed requirements for that year. This statement is based upon unofficial but reliable reports from representatives of beet sugar companies and seed dealers who have recently visited the sugar-beet seed-producing countries of Europe.

The sugar-beet seed situation for 1921 is serious because of the limited production of sugar-beet seed in Europe as compared with former years, because of the increased activity in beet-sugar production in European countries, and because of the increased acreage planted to beets in this country in recent years. It is probable that several years will elapse before normal quantities of sugar-beet seed will be produced in European countries. American growers therefore, must depend to a considerable extent upon home-grown sugar-beet seed. There seems to be no good reason why this country should not produce its full requirement of sugar-beet seed annually. The domestic production of sugar-beet seed, now totaling millions of pounds, has demonstrated that sugar-beet seed of the highest quality may be produced in this country.

The present indications are that there is sufficient sugar-beet seed, either imported or domestic, now in the hands of nearly all of the beet sugar companies in the United States to take care of the entire acreage to be planted to sugar beets in 1920, but that there is very little foreign sugar-beet seed now available for importation, and that the foreign production in the immediate future will be limited. Since sugar-beet seed stored under normal conditions will retain its vitality for several years, it would be advisable for sugar companies to secure any sugar-beet seed of good quality now available and not more than two years old.

The domestic beet-seed production is increasing rapidly. In 1918 about 6,000 acres of sugar-beet seed were grown, while in 1919 upwards of 10,000 acres were planted to beet roots for seed in the United States. Unfortunately, drought interfered with a normal production of sugar-beet seed in some localities this past season, but the resulting reduction in yield was local and temporary and should not prevent or retard the efforts that are being made to produce in this country an adequate supply of sugar-beet seed to meet the American requirement for 1921 and the years following.

In order to produce a crop of seed next year for the 1921 planting, it will be necessary to select the best roots this fall, pit them so they will not freeze during the winter, and plant them as early as soil and weather conditions will permit next spring. Persons desiring full details in regard to growing sugar-beet seed should address the office of Sugar Plant Investigations, Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The old Indian plan of curing seed corn has a lesson for the farmer of today. The Indians laid it on an open willow-branch platform where the air could circulate freely until it was dry. Then it was safely stored for winter

LITTLE GOATS DEFY MIDWINTER

Against the coming of midwinter, a new lot of coats, for lucky little girls, have come to light in the shops. If they ever get close enough to Jack Frost to speak to him their wearers will be sure to laugh in his face for it will take his bitterest mood to prove him an enemy to their comfort. These coats are most often of thick, soft woolly cloths made double-breasted and having the coziest of collars. Some of them look as if Mary's faithful lamb had been skinned and its pelt converted into a coat without going through the hands of the spinners and weavers. Lovely and cozy describes them and they are, of course, the product of the looms which do miracles with wools. The little coats of thick cloths are plain with inset pockets and sleeves that reach to the knuckles, so that hands thrust into pockets are entirely lost sight of. They are made with turnover collars and narrow belts of the material and they are long enough to reach below the knees.

There are some pretty coats of velvet-lined with silk. These are sometimes made with blouse and skirt and sometimes straight. Cuffs and very wide muffler collars of fur fabric with deep set-in pockets show them equal to battling with the cold, even though they are not as sturdy looking as the woolly coats. Besides these there are many plush coats made like the woolly ones, usually in dark colors with plush collars that inflate beaver and buttons covered with beaver plush. They are as warm as the woolly coats and as dressy as the velvet ones. Finally, there are fur coats for little folks. These days one cannot even whisper "furs" without saying "money" in a loud tone of voice, so only little rich girls will find themselves wearing coats that are made of pelts that once defended small friends of theirs against the cold. Rabbits, muskrats and squirrels have been sacrificed to make warm coats for the small girls, white bunnies for the tiniest ones and just plain rabbits for girls as big as the little miss pictured. The shawl collar looks as if it were sealskin but it is not. Mollie Cottontail furnished the fur and the furrier dyed it. It is not prettier or more comfortable than the other coats, but it requires much more work to make it—and thereby hangs the tale of its long price. Such a coat costs a little more than a hundred dollars.

SOME OF THE SMALLER HATS

Just now millinery shops and their patrons are concerning themselves with hats for midwinter. Turbans and off-the-face hats, small and medium in size, make up a big percentage of the displays, although they are not alone in their glory. There are plenty of large, picturesque models for those who wear them well. But the smaller hats are prominent in every class of millinery; chic tailored hats for the street, semi-dress hats and brilliant models for afternoon wear—all prove successful in the smaller shapes.

The Napoleon hat, full of dash and style, seems to be the inspiration of many models. One interpretation of it appears at the top of the group of small and medium hats shown here. This is a brilliant hat of black pique velvet adorned with long stitches of chenille and an occasional velvet blossom set flat against the upturned brim. This is all that can be told of it in the way of description but the picture shows its style and youthfulness—the intangible things that make it fit company for a handsome afternoon frock or at home with a tailored coat.

The small velvet turban at the left made of tuckered velvet, will appeal to the matron who insists upon smart millinery with lines and shape suited to her face. A long, sweeping wing at the front consents to rest where it is, in the company of two handsome ornamental pins, with large heads, that are thrust through it. It is a shape that will look well in any of the season's quieter tones of color and will make a fine suit hat. Another interesting hat for a matron is shown at the right of the group. It is of duvetyl with slashed brim. The crown is concealed by short, uncurled ostrich feathers. The place of honor at the center of the group belongs to a hat that goes a step beyond mere prettiness and looks in another direction for its novel charm. It is one of those shaggy affairs that call to mind the headwear of Robinson Crusoe. Paris has made goats' hair—called by another name—a fashionable adornment for millinery and New York has given monkey fur much attention. These with glycerined and burnt ostrich, burnt goose and other feathers have been used for ornaments like the wreath on the black velvet beret at the center of the picture. A large ivory pin lends its aristocratic air to the ensemble, making a brilliant black and white combination equal to any occasion.

LITTLE RED LIZARDS.

"It's very funny," said the little red lizard to his companion as they both crawled along a walk which led from a house to the street, "but people really don't know how to appreciate things."

"I know what you mean," said the second little red lizard whose name was Lizzie. The first little red lizard was named Lionel, which his mother had thought was a very beautiful name.

"Yes, I know what you mean," Lizzie said again. "And what is more, I agree with you. People don't know how to appreciate things. Now here there is a nice cool day. It's not too cool. It's not such a day as there will be after a time."

"In fact, it is rather an unusual autumn day, or fall day, or whatever you want to call it."

"I'm not particular whether it is called an autumn day or a fall day," said Lionel. "So continue."

"And," continued Lizzie, "it is a rainy day. That is best of all. The streets are wet, the grass is wet, there is a delicious dampness everywhere."

"Yes," said Lionel, "and people never speak of there being a delicious dampness over everything. There again they are so foolish. They don't think dampness is delicious. We fully appreciate a day like this, when we can crawl along and when everything is nice and wet. We don't care for other days like we do for these days."

"Life is very funny," said Lizzie. "Life and people both. Now when I say that I mean life is funny I mean that there are so many amusing things happening all the time."

"For instance, while I was sitting on this walk or rather sprawling on the porch. Not only did they talk against the dampness and grumble because it was raining but they told such curious stories."

"Will you tell them to me?" said Lionel. "Part of the time we were on the walk in front of the house I was thinking of a talk I had had only the other day when it was rainy with Leopold Lizard."

"Yes," said Lizzie. "Well, of course they were talking about the weather to begin with and as a matter of fact they spoke about it every once in a while all the time and they ended off talking about it, too."

"One of them saw me and spoke of how funny it was we came out and seemed to enjoy such curious stories."

"But they told such curious stories. One of them told how a child had dreamed of bats and had wakened up in the middle of the night quite frightened by her dream. Just imagine how foolish that was. Gracious, there are so many people who think every one must be just as they are. I've never heard that bats were harmful."

"And the child was especially frightened because she said one of the bats scolded her in her dream and that the bat was a middle-aged but who was particularly cross looking."

"How absurd," said Lionel. "And they told that they had heard wild pigeons ate more than any other animals in proportion to their size, meaning that considering their size they ate more than any other creatures of that same size."

"That isn't so funny. They told it as something very curious. To me it is more curious that they should think it so queer, because I think people do a good deal of eating themselves and that it's not in the least becoming of them to talk about the way other creatures eat!"

"Then they talked of butterflies who opened and shut their wings when they were surprised and of the noise they made with their wings and of butterflies who'd gone for their winter sleep."

"They spoke of caterpillars who would strike their heads on the leaves and make sounds when they were resting or swinging and they thought that was very queer."

"But to me the queer thing is that the people should talk about such things. Why shouldn't butterflies have their way of talking just as people have?"

"No reason at all why they should not," said Lionel. "Well," said Lizzie, "I'm glad we're sensible and not queer, though I suppose everyone thinks other ways from their own are queer. For here I am talking about people being queer because they think other creatures are queer. And I'm doing the same thing in my thoughts, too!"

MYOGA HAD DONE ITS WORK

Ample Proof of Its Potency, Though There Was No Occasion for Many Congratulations. A Japanese, Mr. Aisaku Waseda, discusses Japanese humor in the Tourist, and offers the following selection:

Said an innkeeper's wife to her husband: "The guest who came this evening carries a package that seems to contain things of great value. I wish he would leave it behind."

"I have a good idea," said the husband. "I will give him a great deal of myoga."

The innkeeper carried out his plan and gave myoga, a spicy vegetable supposed to produce forgetfulness. In abundance to the guest with soup and with vegetables, and soon after the guest had departed he hopefully inspected the room. There was no trace of the coveted baggage.

The landlady began to scoff at the inefficacy of myoga as an oblivion producer, but her husband admonished her not to lose faith so easily. "The myoga has had its effect," he declared.

"What do you mean?" demanded the woman. "Why, he forgot to pay his bill," replied the husband.

Killing Them Off. He was an influential business man to whom my husband was eager to sell. I had known him only about two weeks, but he liked to tease me, and I longed to retaliate. One evening he told me that he was living with his third wife, two others having died, and I said (shades of Solomon): "My, but you are a lady killer, aren't you?"—Chicago Tribune.

Lots of men would be good husbands if they had better wives. It is easier to cultivate a girl's imagination than her voice.

A speaker declared that the old style hishful swain has ceased to exist since the war. "Proposals have no terrors for the boys now. In a young friend of mine, however, I must note an exception. "He had been going with the girl before war broke out, but even in the stress of going away had not mustered up courage enough to put the question. "When he came back he went to her, and though he had faced the terrors of the trenches and even the horrors of the Hun, yet he still hesitated. "Dearest," said the girl finally, "didn't you once say that you would do anything for me? Didn't you once ask me to put your devotion to the test?" "Indeed I did," he responded warmly; "there is nothing in the world I would not do, no sacrifice I would not make to prove to you how much I think of you." "Well, then," said the maid, "ask me to marry you. We've fooled round long enough."

WOMAN'S NERVES MADE STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Winona, Minn.—"I suffered for more than a year from nervousness, and was so bad I could not rest at night—I would be awake and get so nervous I would have to get up and walk around in the morning would be all tired out. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thought I would try it. My nervousness soon left me. I sleep well and feel fine in the morning and able to do my work. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make weak nerves strong."

—Mrs. ALBERT SULTZ, 603 Olmstead St., Winona, Minn.

How often do we hear the expression among women, "I am so nervous, I cannot sleep," or "it seems as though I should fly." Such women should profit by Mrs. Sultz's experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For forty years it has been overcoming such serious conditions as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, dizziness, and nervous prostration of women, and is now considered the standard remedy for such ailments.

The Beetles Stayed.
Recently a carload of beetle-infested potatoes arrived in Los Angeles. The startling thing about this was that the car came from Idaho, where the potato beetle is extinct.

An investigation was made by Fred Erick Maskey, state quarantine officer of California, and it was found that the same car had been used a little earlier to carry a load of potatoes out of Colorado, where the beetle flourishes. Obviously, after these potatoes were removed, the beetles lurked in out-of-the-way corners, waiting for a fresh load. Stop jolting Liver and Bowels with violent drugs, but take "Cascarets."

"Dynamiting" bile out of your system with cologne and other sickening purgatives is all wrong. Salts, Oil, and Cathartic Waters act by flooding the bowels with the digestive juices which are vital to the stomach. Cascarets are different. They act as a tonic to the bowel muscles, which is the only sensible way to relieve a bilious attack, a sour, acid stomach, or constipated bowels. There is no gripping or inconvenience. You naturally return to regularity and cheerfulness. Cascarets cost very little and they work while you sleep.—Adv.

WISCONSIN STATE NEWS

Richland Center—Deer are becoming so numerous in the southern part of Richland county that farmers are wondering what is going to be done about them as they are a real nuisance. Their visits to the fields are so frequent that farmers must take daily care of their crops to avoid damaging depredations. Recently one farmer of Orion husked out 14 shocks of corn, and as he completed his task late in the evening, he of necessity, left the corn piles in the field. In the morning he found that some deer had either eaten or tramped into the ground the entire crop from those 14 shocks. The farmers are waiting for the state conservation commission to take some action.

Cash Tied Up.

A short time ago my girl friend and myself went into an ice-cream parlor. A number of young men were there. While I was waiting for the ice-cream cones I rufed my hand to my hair and my money (a dime, which was all I had), dropped down my back, and you can imagine my embarrassment when I was compelled to ask the proprietor to charge the cones.—Exchange.

BELCHING

Caused by Acid-Stomach

Let EATONIC, the wonderful modern stomach remedy, give you quick relief from disgusting belching, food-repeating, indigestion, bloated, gassy stomach, dyspepsia, heartburn and other stomach troubles. They are all caused by Acid-Stomach from which about nine people out of ten suffer in one way or another. One writes as follows: "Before I used EATONIC, I could not eat a bite without belching, right up, sour and bitter. I have not had a bit of trouble since the first tablet."

Millions are victims of Acid-Stomach without knowing it. They are weak and ailing, have poor digestion, bodies improperly nourished although they may eat heartily. Grave disorders are likely to follow if an acid-stomach is neglected. Crumbs of the liver, intestinal congestion, gastritis, catarrh of the stomach—these are only a few of the many ailments often caused by Acid-Stomach.

A sufferer from Catarrh of the Stomach of 13 years standing writes: "I had catarrh of the stomach for 13 long years and I never found anything to do me any good—just temporary relief—until I used EATONIC. It is a wonderful remedy and I do not want to be without it."

If you are not feeling quite right—lack energy and enthusiasm and don't know just where to locate the trouble—try EATONIC and see how much better you will feel in every way.

At all drug stores—a big box for 50c and your money back if you are not satisfied.

MORE THAN 400,000 MINERS IN U. S. QUIT THEIR JOBS

Nation's Vast Coal Supply Is Kept in the Pits.

NONUNION MEN AT WORK

Also a Few Union Miners Under Contract Remain on Duty—Several Mines in Kentucky and West Virginia Are Working.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Nearly all the nation's vast bituminous coal fields are closed, as a result of the miners' strike, although thousands of nonunion miners are at work and in scattered districts where contracts are still in force union miners reported as usual. Figures compiled by and based chiefly on union leaders' claims, in many cases conceded by the operators, showed that $425,820 men were out in 22 states.

In its physical aspects the strike apparently has largely stopped production of soft coal but with large nonunion fields in Pennsylvania and West Virginia still operating near normal, and with a number of smaller fields also working with union contract miners, the actual effect upon production cannot be definitely stated.

Coal operators claimed thousands of nonunion miners were producing coal in the usual quantities, although conceding that in union fields the strike was effective.

Union leaders reported in most instances that the strike was virtually 100 per cent effective.

Report on Strike Numbers.

Tonight's figures on the number of men out, as compiled by the miners' leaders, were as follows: Alabama.....23,000 Montana.....4,000 Arkansas.....4,000 New Mexico.....920 Colorado.....5,000 Ohio.....40,000 Florida.....30,000 Oklahoma.....15,500 Indiana.....28,000 Pennsylvania.....37,000 Iowa.....14,000 Tennessee.....10,000 Kansas.....2,000 Texas.....4,000 Kentucky.....20,000 Utah.....1,000 Maryland.....4,000 Washington.....6,000 Michigan.....2,400 West Virginia.....42,000 Missouri.....9,000 Wyoming.....8,000

While union mines were tied up in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and other important fields, about half of Kentucky's 40,000 miners remained at work. That fact was accounted for by the fact that the miners and operators of the west Kentucky field signed an agreement about six weeks ago providing against a strike.

The most unusual situation was that in Utah, where the majority of the miners were reported still at work. That condition resulted from conflicting instructions to the miners. John H. McLenahan, Utah representative of the union, called off the strike and later rescinded his order. Many miners were evidently confused. Reports, however, indicated that about 1,000 were on strike.

In Colorado, the Colorado Fuel and Iron company had five mines operating in one district, it was announced. But the company made no attempt to operate in the Trinidad district. North Dakota's 1,500 lignite miners remained at work.

Only 920 of the 4,800 miners of New Mexico were on strike.

Coal operators in Oklahoma, where the tieup was complete, said their mines were held in readiness for operation as ordered by the government. Frank Farrington, Illinois district president, announced all of the 90,000 miners of the state were idle.

While a few of the larger mines in Alabama were in operation, operators did not deny the claim of union leaders that about 23,000 men, or 90 per cent of their men, were on strike.

West Virginia coal operators asserted that operation in that state was 50 per cent of normal.

Troops on Duty. A few thousand federal troops and state Guardsmen either were on special duty in connection with the strike of soft coal miners or were on the move or awaiting entrainment orders at the end of the first day of the walk-out.

Seizure of coal in transit was begun at many points in Michigan, including Detroit, Saginaw and Bay City, under orders of the railroad administration. This was done, officials said, "as a precautionary measure," so the needs of the railroads may be met.

Labor Keen to End Strike. Washington, Nov. 3.—Insisting conditions facing the country are far more serious than during the war, the advisory board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers issued a statement urging the immediate assembling in Washington of an industrial commission to remedy existing turbulent conditions.

The railroad men stipulate that the commission should be one "which will recognize the rights of all citizens and which is not pledged to oppose collective bargaining."

The railroad men state they "deplore the action of the federal government in its present attempt at government by injunction, believing that such action will only tend to make conditions worse and defer if not defeat a peaceful settlement."

Follows a Conference. The issuance of the statement prepared by President Warren S. Stone and the other grand officers of the Locomotive Engineers is a sequel to the conference between representatives of all the railroad brotherhoods and Attorney General Palmer Friday. At this meeting the railroad men tendered their "good offices" in the coal strike situation. The statement follows:

"In view of the condition facing our country at this time, which in our judgment is far more serious than during the late war, inasmuch as it affects all classes of the people, and in consideration of the situation, the advisory board of the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers, assembled at Washington and formulated the declaration of principles:

Serious Crisis Seen. "The advisory board of locomotive engineers, the undoubted Americanism of whose membership should assure them recognition, not only by the government, but every factor contributing to the welfare of all the people, believe that:

"The industrial conditions now confronting the nation, with capital and labor occupying a militant attitude toward each other, while the whole country is suffering from high cost of living, caused by hoarding and profiteering, resulting in general discontent which tends to lower production, have brought about the most serious crisis in the history of our country.

"We believe: "That there is no industrial dispute or misunderstanding that cannot be adjusted upon the basis of justice and right and we further believe that in seeking justice, justice should be practiced by all concerned.

Deplore U. S. Injunctions. "We believe in the laws and institutions of our country, which guarantee that all the people shall have equal opportunity and a fair and impartial hearing before being condemned. We deplore the action of the federal government in its present attempt at government by injunction, believing such action will only tend to make conditions worse and defer, if not defeat, a peaceful settlement.

"The advisory board has full assurance that we express the unanimous settlement of the 85,000 members of our organization that the principle of collective bargaining is of vital importance to them and cannot be construed as harmful to any interest which desires to be just and fair.

"As a remedy for the present turbulent conditions, we suggest that immediate steps be taken to assemble at Washington an industrial commission that will recognize the rights of all citizens and is not pledged to oppose collective bargaining, as this is a time for deliberate action on the part of all concerned in a peaceful solution of the present conditions.

"We pledge the support of our organization to the government in every just and reasonable effort toward stabilizing industrial conditions to the end that normal conditions be restored."

Injunction Effect Felt. Indianapolis, Nov. 3.—The full force of the government's most powerful weapon—injunction—is beginning to be felt by the United Mine Workers of America. The coal strike is on, but it is drifting without a pilot. The great propaganda campaign, intended to win public sympathy and encourage miners in the field, could not be launched.

At headquarters of the miners here none of the officials or attaches wanted to talk. And when they talked they didn't want to be quoted. The specter of the injunction was ever present.

But the full force of the injunction has not been felt out in the field. Government officials were engaged in preparing for the issuance of federal writs in every coal-producing state in the country. These writs will be directed against state officials of the miners.

No Benefits in Sight. When the miners laid down their tools they expected to receive strike benefits of not less than $5 a week, but in few if any of the fields can benefits be paid.

Ellis Sewley, publicity director of the international organization, said no attempt would be made in the face of the injunction to carry on a propaganda campaign. He said it had been planned to take pages of advertising in 100 leading newspapers of the country. The miners wanted to lay before the public their reasons for demanding a five-day week and a six-hour day, and to explain why their demand for a 60 per cent increase in wages was not unreasonable.

Lewis Not Hopeful. John L. Lewis, acting head of the miners, and other officials did not appear to hope for much when arguments to make the injunction permanent are heard before Federal Judge Anderson. Attorneys for the government expressed conviction the injunction would be permitted to stand.

Around the government's headquarters there was a constant air of confidence; at miners' headquarters there was thinly veiled discouragement.

INJUNCTIONS TO STOP PROFITEERS

Attorney General Palmer Says Operators Under Same Rule As Miners.

PRICE ORDER IS PROTESTED

Palmer Declares Coal Dealers' Proposition Amounts to Declaration That They Should Be Permitted to Take Advantage of Situation.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Attorney General Palmer declared that the government will take the same action to protect the interests of the general public during the coal strike against coal producers or distributors who combine to enhance the price of coal as was taken to prevent the miners' leaders from furthering the strike.

Referring to the action taken in restraining the officers of the Mine Workers, Attorney General Palmer said: "I shall not permit it to be used directly or indirectly for the benefit of the employers' side of the controversy."

These statements were made in a letter to President W. A. Marshall of the Wholesale Coal Trade association, New York city. President Marshall had written to Attorney General Palmer in opposition to the government orders placing a maximum on the price of coal and establishing a priority rule for distribution.

President Marshall said that the maximum price order would curtail the operators' ability to meet the abnormal price production costs caused by the strike and would discourage the operators in their efforts to produce coal. He said the law of supply and demand would take care of distribution better than any theoretical program, and urged that there be no interference by the government department for railroad administration.

Attorney General Palmer replied that he was "amazed" by the coal men's letter, saying:

"Your proposition amounts in effect to a declaration that coal dealers should be permitted to take advantage of these abnormal conditions and have their prices based entirely upon the law of supply and demand, which is only another way of saying that they should be permitted to charge the public whatever they please."

Aside from the giving out of the correspondence between Attorney General Palmer and the wholesale coal dealers, official Washington was quiet as regards the coal strike. Apparently the disposition was to rest until the situation is more accurately known.

The letter from the Wholesale Coal Trade association of New York is as follows: "The fact that there is no present general shortage of coal and that if the miners who want to work are given protection by the government they will work, leads us to believe the following statement and recommendation:

"First—With proper police or troop protection there will be a sufficient number of miners who will be willing to continue at work to insure, with present stocks, an adequate supply to meet the emergency created by the strike.

"Second—Fixing a maximum price will curtail the operators' ability to meet the abnormal production costs caused by the strike and will discourage the operators in their efforts to produce coal.

"Third—The law of supply and demand will take care of distribution better than any theoretical program."

PUTS LID ON MOVE

CHICAGO LABOR KILLS PLAN FOR GENERAL STRIKE.

Federation Declines Even to Listen to Resolution in Aid of the Steel Strikers.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—An attempt to introduce a resolution calling for a general strike of union workers in aid of the remaining steel strikers was squelched at the meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

When Barney Kortas, a delegate from Local No. 478 of the Machinists' union, took the floor to introduce it, President Fitzpatrick ruled him out of order.

"We have a rule that no resolutions can be introduced after two o'clock, and you are out of order," said Fitzpatrick.

"Then, again, nothing ever would come from such a move, for not even the American Federation of Labor could call a strike of all workers. That is up to the international unions.

"There is no hope or possibility that a general strike can be called, and I am not willing to waste time on something we cannot do or get away with."

Kortas had also risen to protest against taking up collections to aid the strikers.

"What we wish is to give them the best support possible, and that can be done by calling everybody out on a strike," he said. "I have here a resolution calling for the general strike."

He started to read it, but President Fitzpatrick again ruled he was out of order, and added:

"The press is present and everybody has to be careful of what is said. We do not fear our enemies, but our own men, who do not know the situation and propose something that cannot be done."

"The committee in charge of the strike has discussed every angle of this matter, but I cannot tell you what our plans are now. But there is no use for the brother to introduce the resolution."

They were as follows: "We, the jury, find the defendant Arnold Huber not guilty," and so on, the verdicts in turn naming Frank H. Reese, Clinton J. Cooper, Roy Lewis, Charles H. Potter, W. J. PLAN FOR EARLY PACT VOTE FAILS

Senate Leaders, After Wrangle, Give Up Effort to Reach Agreement.

HITCHCOCK AND LODGE CLASH

Republican Leader Objected to the Proposal That Final Action on the Peace Treaty Be Taken This Week.

Washington, Nov. 5.—Efforts to secure an agreement for early final action on the peace treaty failed in the senate. After an hour of wrangling over proposals presented by both sides the leaders gave up the attempt to reach an agreement and the regular order of debate on the labor amendment to the treaty was resumed.

A plan presented by Republican Leader Lodge for a final vote on November 12 was blocked by Democratic Leader Hitchcock, whose counter-proposal that final action be taken during the present week was objected to by Mr. Lodge.

Senator Hitchcock, in presenting the proposal to the senate, said it seemed the only fair way to reach a final vote, as reservations of varying degrees of qualification would come up when the committee proposals failed to receive a two-thirds ratification vote. The plan offered by Senator Lodge, he said, was not acceptable, as under it, the final vote on ratification would be taken on a resolution containing reservations "made up largely by enemies to the treaty, and which enough senators have agreed to so that there is no practical chance of alteration."

"We want an opportunity," said Senator Hitchcock, "to vote on a different resolution, which ultimately may command the support of two-thirds of the senate, with a compromise between those who want it ratified with reservations."

"I am not sure that ratification will be reached in any form; but if senators desire to decide in a broad, fair way rather than the methods of a political convention, then let us offer a resolution without reservations, and if that, too, fails, let others present resolutions of various characters until, perhaps, a compromise is reached."

Senator Hitchcock said his proposal would permit the senate to dispose of the treaty by next Saturday or decide to take up other legislation.

"We must face the situation," he said, "but unless there is a compromise between those favoring ratification in some form the treaty cannot be ratified."

Senator Lodge said he would not enter "such an elaborate plea for a definite date for a vote, which would give ample opportunity for any move the minority decided to make. The Republican leader denied a charge by Senator Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, that he was seeking to defeat ratification in a roundabout way.

"I have tried," Senator Lodge replied, "to bring about such reservations as would insure ratification of the treaty. If the committee resolution now is voted down by those who now profess to be friends of the treaty, then your treaty will be in grave danger."

Senate leaders generally desire an adjournment about November 15, to give a two weeks' rest before the December session and also allow travel allowances for the new session.

COL. JUNKIN ACCUSED

WARRANT ISSUED FOR HIM AS WHISKY SHIPPER.

Cargo of Liquor Seized in Car in Transit From Lake Geneva to Washington.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—A federal warrant for the arrest of Francis T. A. Junkin, lieutenant colonel, attached to the contract adjustment board in Washington, was sworn out by the district attorney here, charging him with a violation of section 240 of the criminal code in shipping ten gallons of whisky from his home in Lake Geneva, Wis., to Washington.

Lieutenant Colonel Junkin issued a denial at Washington that he had any knowledge that liquor was being shipped to him. He had simply directed his chauffeur to send him his two automobiles.

Colonel Junkin is about to be the most prosecuted man in the United States. It all comes of an order he is supposed to have given his chauffeur, Ross Butler, to bring him some liquid Victoria records.

At least, the shipment seized in Mr. Junkin's automobile, which was aboard a freight car in Chicago railroad yards, bound for Washington, was labeled "Victoria records," and proved to be ten gallons of choice bourbon.

ARMY OF 300,000 IS ENOUGH

Gen. Pershing Makes Recommendation at the Joint Meeting of Senate and House Committees.

Washington, Nov. 1.—A regular army, large enough to provide against sudden attacks and to meet international obligations on the American continent and a "trained citizen reserve" to deal with any emergency was recommended by General Pershing at joint meeting of the senate and house military committees.

The general made a plea that the nation keep abreast of other countries in development of the air service and said it also was essential that the transport corps, nurse corps and tank corps be made adequate. He thought the number of officers of high rank provided for in pending legislation was "rather excessive."

General Pershing said he disagreed with the war department recommendation for an army of 500,000 men and said that at the outside 275,000 to 300,000, or possibly less, would be sufficient.

A STRANGE STORY

Told by a Well Known Detroit Man

Detroit, Mich.—"When I was about twenty-three years of age I suffered from general break-down in health, due to worry and overwork. I was also troubled with catarrh of long standing. To make matters still worse, my lungs became affected and a persistent cough supplanted what little vitality I had left. My appetite became erratic, indigestion resulted and constipation followed.

"All my savings, about $800.00, went dribbling, dribbling, in payment for drugs and medical attendance. I consulted some of the leading physicians in St. Louis, and I have every reason to believe they tried to help me, but lacked the skill.

"After seven months of suffering when I had given up all hope of ever being well again, my wife asked me if I would try one more combination of remedies, if only to please her. Of course I complied with her wish, at the same time telling her not to expect too much from them. She had me use Dr. Fiere's Golden Medical Discovery, Dr. Fiere's Pleasant Pellets and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, according to directions, and in spite of the physicians' predictions, in spite of my own doubts and misgivings, I gradually began to feel better. Hope revived—I took a new interest in life. In less than three months these remedies had effected a cure and I have never been troubled with catarrh since.

"Whenever I don't feel just right I take a few days' treatment of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' If my bowels are irregular I take the 'Pleasant Pellets.' The result is always the same—almost immediate relief. Can any sane person blame me for having faith in these remedies? And it is not just natural that I should recommend them to my friends? For thirty years I have used Dr. Fiere's remedies and they have never failed me yet. At the age of fifty-three I have the strength, the agility and the general physical efficiency of a man of thirty-five. If I am enthusiastic in the praise of these remedies it is due to the fact that there is a reason."—HARRY VANDERBURG, 313 Euclid Ave.

BREW THIS TEA FOR BILIOUSNESS

Costs next to nothing, yet keeps bowels in fine order and ends constipation.

The head of every family that values its health should always have in the house a package of Dr. Carter's K. and B. Tea. Then when any member of the family needs something for a sluggish liver, sick headache, or to promptly relieve the bowels, simply brew a cup and drink it just before bedtime.

It's an old remedy, is Dr. Carter's K. and B. Tea, and has been used for years by thousands of families, who get good results from its use that they have no desire to take anything else. Give it to the children freely—they like it and it will do them good.

World's Largest Building Is a Tomb.

Now that the war is over, folks predict that there will be a big boom in building. Modern architects have done wonders, as every one who has seen the Woolworth building in New York or the Eiffel tower in Paris will admit, but human labor has not yet accomplished anything which will rival the ancient pyramids of Egypt.

The priests of Memphis informed Herodotus that the Great Pyramid was built about 400 years before Christ. Cheops, king of Egypt, had 100,000 men employed 20 years in the building of it, and laborers in those days didn't work union hours, either. The tomb of Cheops was built in a room beneath the bottom of the pyramid.

He Didn't Have Far to Go.

Adolphus was disgruntled; anyone could see that. "What's wrong, old son?" asked Percy as they met in the street. "I have been insulted!" said Adolphus, angrily. "That Milly Snare was very rude to me."

"What happened?" "I met her down the road and asked her if I might see her home. She said certainly I could. It was easily seen from the top of the hill, and I needn't go any farther!"

Refused Insurance

Mr. Dunning Left Service in Bad Shape, But Doan's Soon Corrected His Trouble.

Geo. Dunning, ex-Chief Postmaster of the U. S. Navy, 470 Bedford St., Danville, Mass., says: "Every year of trouble I suffered from kidney trouble was a result of exposure at sea. I was retired practically an invalid. My kidneys became more irregular all the time and some nights I was forced to get up every half hour. The kidney secretions burned like fire and were filled with brick-dust-like sediment. My joints swelled and were inflamed. I couldn't bend over to lace my shoes and had to be helped up and down. Right after my retirement from service I tried to get insured, but was turned down because of kidney trouble. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and used sixteen boxes. By that time every sign of kidney trouble left me and my back was like iron, not an ache or pain left. I tried for insurance again and was declared a good risk. I give Doan's Kidney Pills credit for putting me in perfect health."

CALYPSO!

Synopsis—The man who tells this story—call him the hero, for short—is visiting his friend, John Saunders, British consul in Nassau, Bahama Islands. Charles Webster, a local merchant, completes the trio of friends. Saunders produces a written document purporting to be the death-bed statement of Henry P. Tobias, a successful pirate, made by him in 1852. It gives two spots where two millions and a half of treasure were buried by him and his companions. The conversation of the three friends is overheard by a peck-marked stranger. The document disappears. Saunders, however, has a copy. The hero, determined to seek the buried treasure, charts a schooner. The peck-marked man is taken on as a passenger. On the voyage somebody empties the gasoline tank. The hero and the passenger clash, the passenger leaving a manifesto bearing the signature, "Henry P. Tobias, Jr." The hero lands on Dead Man's Shoals. There is a fight, which is followed by several funerals. The hero finds a cave containing the skeletons of two pirates and a massive chest—empty save for a few pieces of eight scattered on the bottom. The hero returns to Nassau and by good luck learns the location of Short Shift Island. Webster buys the yawl Flamingo, and he and the hero sail for Short Shift Island. As the Flamingo leaves the wharf a young fellow, "Jack Harkaway," jumps aboard and is allowed to remain. Jack proves an interesting and mysterious passenger. The adventurers capture Tobias. "Jack Harkaway" proves to be a girl and disappears. The hero sails to Short Shift Island, sees an entrancing girl with a Spanish doublet. Follows an even more entrancing sight of the girl.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

"Hal hal" called a pleasant voice, evidently belonging to a man of an unusually tall and lean figure who was approaching me through the palm trunks; "so you have discovered my hidden paradise—my Alcinoan garden, so to say;" and he quoted two well-known lines of Homer in the original Greek, adding: "or if you prefer it in Pope's translation, which I think—don't you?—remains the best:

Close to the gates a spacious garden lies,
From storms defended and inclement skies—

"and so on. Alas! for an old man's memory! It grows shorter and shorter—like his life, eh? Never mind, you are welcome, sir stranger, mysteriously tossed up here like Ulysses, on our island coast."

I gazed with natural wonderment at this strange individual, who thus in the heart of the wilderness had saluted me with a mediocrity pure English accent, and welcomed me in a quotation from Homer in the original Greek. Who, in the devil's name, was this odd character who, I saw, as I looked closer at him, was, as he had hinted, quite an old man, though his unusual erectness and sprightliness of manner, lent him an illusive air of youth? Who on earth was he—and how did he happen in the middle of this haunted wood?

CHAPTER III.

Calypso.

Of course a glance and the first sound of his voice had told me that I had to do with a gentleman—one of those vagabond English gentlemen in exile who form a type peculiar, I think, to the English race; men that are a curious combination of aristocrat and Gypsy, soldier, scholar, and philosopher; men of good family, who have drifted everywhere, seen and seen through everything, but in all their wanderings have never lost their sense and habit of "form," their boyish zest in living, their humorous stoicism, and, above all, their lordly accent.

"Now that you have found us, Sir Ulysses"—continued my eccentric host, motioning me, with an indescribably princely wave of the hand to accompany him—"you must certainly give us the pleasure of your company to luncheon. Visitors are as rare as black swans on this Ultima Thule of ours—though, by the way, the black swan, cygnus atratus, is nothing like so rare as the ancients believed. I have shot them myself out in Australia. Still they are rare enough for the purpose of imagery, though really not so rare as a human being one can talk intelligently to on this island."

Talk! My friend indeed, very evidently was a talker—one of those fantastic monologists to whom an audience is little more than a symbol. I saw that there was no need for me to do any of the talking. He was more than glad to do it all. Plainly his encounter with me was to him like a spring to a thirsty land.

"Solitude," he continued, "is perhaps the final need of the human soul. After a while, when we have run the gamut of all our ardors and our dreams, solitude comes to seem the one excellent thing, the summum bonum."

I murmured that he certainly seemed to have come to the right place for it. "Very true, indeed," he assented, with a courtly inclination of his head, "though I had said something profound; "very true, indeed, and yet, wasn't it the great Bacon who said: 'Whoever is delighted with solitude is either a beast or a god?'—and this particular solitude, I confess, sometimes seems to me a little too much like that enforced solitude of the Pontic marshes of which Ovid wailed and whimpered in the deaf ears of Augustus."

I could not help noting at last as he talked on with fantastic magnificence, the odd contrast between his speech and the almost equally fantastic poverty of his clothing. The suit he wore, though still preserving a certain elegance of cut, was so worn and patched and stained that a negro would hardly have accepted it as a gift; and his almost painful emaciation gave him generally the appearance of an animated framework of rag and bones, startlingly embodying the voice and the manners of a prince. Yet the shabby tie about his neck was bound by a ring, in which was set a turquoise of great size and beauty.

Presently, as we loitered on through the palms, we came upon two negroes chopping away with their machetes, trimming up the debris of broken and decaying palm fans. They were both sturdy, ferocious-looking fellows, but one of them was a veritable giant.

"Behold by bodyguard!" said my magnificent friend, with the usual possessive wave of his hand; "my Switzers, my Janissaries, so to say." The negroes stopped working, touched their great straw hats, and flashed their splendid teeth in a delighted smile. Evidently they were used to their master's ways of talking, and were devoted to him.

"This chap here is Erebus," said my host, and the appropriateness of the name was apparent, for he was certainly the blackest negro I had ever seen, as superbly black as some women are superbly white.

"And this is Samson. Let's have a look at your muscles, Samson—there's a good boy!"

And, with grins of pleasure, Samson proudly stripped off his thin calico jacket and exposed a torso of terrifying power, but beautiful in its play of muscles as that of a god.

Leaving Samson and Erebus to continue their savage play with their machetes, we walked on through the palms, which here gave a particularly jungle-like appearance to the scene from the fact of their being bowed out from their roots and sweeping upward in great curves. One involuntarily looked for a man-eating tiger at any moment, standing striped and splendid in one of the openings.

Then suddenly to the right, there came a flash of level green, suggesting lawns, and the outlines of a house, partly covered with brilliant purple flowers—a marvelous splash of color.

"Bougainvillea! Bougainvillea! speatabilis—of course, you know it. Was there ever such a purple? Not Solomon in all his glory, et cetera. And here we are at the house of King Alcinoos—a humble version of it indeed."

It was a large rambling stucco house, somewhat decayed looking, and evidently built on the ruins of an older building. We came upon it at a broad Italian-looking loggia, supported by stone pillars bowed in with vines—very cool and pleasant—with mossy slabs for its floor, here and there wicker chairs standing about, and a table at one side on which two little barelegged negro girls were busy setting out yellow fruit, and other appurtenances of luncheon, on a dazzling white cloth.

"Has your mistress returned yet, my children?" asked the master. "No, sar," said the older girl, with a giggle, twisting and grimacing with embarrassment.

"My daughter," explained my host, "has gone to the town on an errand. She will be back at any moment. Meanwhile, I shall introduce you to a cooling drink of my own manufacture, with a basis of that coconut milk which I need not ask you whether you appreciate, recalling the pleasant circumstance of our first acquaintance."

Motioning me to a seat, and pushing toward me a box of cigarettes, he went indoors, leaving me to take in the stretch of beautiful garden in front of me, the trees of which seemed literally to be hung with gold—for they were mainly of orange and grapefruit kept lawns with the regularity of the lawn, a little rocky fountain threw up a jet of silver, falling with a tinkling murmur into a broad circular basin from which emerged the broad leaves and splendid plump blossoms of an Egyptian lotus. Certainly it was no far-fetched allusion of my classical friend to speak of the garden of Alcinoos; particularly connected as it was in my mind with the white beach of a desert isle, and that marble statue in the moonlight.

And, every now and again, my eyes, falling on the paradoxical squalor of his clothing, would remind me of the enigma of this courtly vagabond; though—need I say it?—my eyes and my heart had other business than with him, throughout that wonderful meal, entangled as I felt myself once more in that golden cloud of magnetic vitality, which had at first swept over me, as with a breath of perfumed fire, among the salt pork and the tinware of Sweeney's store.

Luncheon over, Lady Calypso, with a stately inclination of her lovely head, left us to our wine and our cigars.

The time had come for the far-travelled guest to declare himself, and I saw in my host's eye a courteous invitation to begin. I had been pondering what account to give of myself, and I had decided, for various reasons—of which the Lady Calypso was, of course, first, but the open-hearted charm of her father a close second—to tell him the whole of my story. Whatever his and her particular secret was, it was evident to me that it was an innocent and honorable one; and, besides, I may have had a notion that before long I was to have a family interest in it. So I began—starting in with a little pretense in the manner of my host, just to enter into the spirit of the game:

"My Lord Alcinoos, your guest, the far wanderer, having partaken of your golden hospitality, is now fain to open his heart to you, and tell you of himself and his race, his home and his loved ones across the wine-dark sea, and such of his adventures as may give pleasure to your ears" . . . though, having no talents in that direction, I was glad enough to abandon my lame attempt at his Homeric style for a plain straightforward narrative of the events of the past three months.

I had not, however, proceeded very far, when, with a courteous raising of style that I assure you it was very captivating.

"You should have been an actor, my lord Alcinoos," I said, laughing. I seemed already curiously at home, seated there at that table with this fantastic stranger and that being out of fairyland toward whom I dared only turn my eyes now and again by stealth. The strange fellow had such a way with him, and his talk made you feel that he had known you all your life.

"Ah! I have had my dreams. I have had my dreams!" he answered, his eyes gazing with a momentary wistfulness across the orange trees. Then we talked at random, as friendly strangers talk over luncheon, though we were glad enough that he should do all the talking—wonderful, irresponsible, madcap talk, such as a man here and there in ten thousand, gifted with perhaps the most attractive of all human gifts, has at his command.

And, every now and again, my eyes, falling on the paradoxical squalor of his clothing, would remind me of the enigma of this courtly vagabond; though—need I say it?—my eyes and my heart had other business than with him, throughout that wonderful meal, entangled as I felt myself once more in that golden cloud of magnetic vitality, which had at first swept over me, as with a breath of perfumed fire, among the salt pork and the tinware of Sweeney's store.

"If you would not mind," he said, "I would like my daughter to hear this too, for it is of the very stuff of romantic adventure in which she delights. She is a brave girl, and, as I often tell her, would have made a very spirited dare-devil boy, if she hadn't happened to be born a girl."

This phrase seemed to flash a light upon the questionings that had stirred at the back of my mind since I had first heard that voice in Sweeney's store.

The hero's search for the Tobias treasure begins again under most fascinating circumstances.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

"The anxiety of some people to make new friends is so intense that they never have time to have old ones."

HOT SOUPS FOR COOL EVENINGS.

The expert soup-maker will obtain delicious flavors by using leftover meats and vegetables. After cooking the soup should be strained and thickened as usual with a binding of butter and flour cooked together.

Corn Chowder.

Take about four teaspoonfuls of fat salt pork cubes and fry them out; add one sliced onion and cook five minutes, stirring often to keep the onion from burning. Parboil four cupfuls of potato slices in water to cover, drain and add the potatoes to the fat and onion; cook until the potatoes are soft, add a can of corn, a quart of milk, salt, pepper and buttered crackers. Serve with the buttered crackers on top. This recipe will serve six.

Cream Soup.—Put thin slices of bread as thin as shavings with a small amount of butter in a saucepan and brown; pour over enough boiling water to make the soup needed, add salt to taste and let the mixture boil up; then remove the saucepan and stir in a large cupful of cream, the thicker the better. Be sure to have it well salted or the soup will taste flat.

Cream of Peanut Butter.—Put a cupful of peanut butter into a quart of milk, add salt, cayenne, a tablespoonful of grated onion, a bay leaf, celery salt, and cook ten minutes in a double boiler. Moisten a tablespoonful of cornstarch with cold milk and stir until smooth, add to the soup and cook ten minutes. Strain and serve with cubes of toasted bread.

Quick Egg Soup.—Stir a teaspoonful of beef extract into a quart of boiling water, add a grated onion, celery salt, salt and pepper to taste. Pour boiling hot into a tureen with four tablespoonfuls of boiled rice and two well beaten eggs.

Split Pea Soup.—Pick over, wash and put to soak in plenty of cold water one cupful of split peas. In the morning cook in two quarts of water, add a two-inch cube of salt pork and one sliced onion. Cook and stir often until the peas are soft, rub through a sieve, thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour and butter, add milk to thin the puree to the desired consistency. Season well and serve very hot.

Ordinarily we find in people the qualities we are mostly looking for or the qualities that our prevailing characteristics call forth. The larger the nature the less critical and cynical it is, the more it is given to looking for the best in others.—Trine.

CHEESE DISHES.

Cheese naturally suggests itself as a substitute for meat, since it is rich in the same kind of nutrients which meat supplies; it is also a food which is staple and may be used in a variety of ways.

Stuffed Potatoes With Cheese.

Split hot baked potatoes lengthwise, remove contents without injuring the skin of the potato. Mash the potato, add seasoning and enough hot milk and butter to season well; beat until light, then refill the skin, piping it up lightly; do not smooth the top. Sprinkle with grated cheese and reheat in oven until cheese is melted and a delicate brown.

Rice Baked With Cheese.—Cook a cupful of rice in a large amount of boiling water, at least three quarts, adding a teaspoonful of salt. When tender drain and cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with a layer of the rice; sprinkle with grated cheese, a dash of cayenne pepper and add milk to half fill the dish; cover with crumbs and bake until the milk is absorbed and crumbs brown.

Pittsburgh Potatoes.—Cook one quart of diced potato cubes with a small minced onion until the potatoes are nearly tender; add a teaspoonful of salt and half a can of minced red peppers and cook until the potatoes are done. Drain and put into a baking dish. Make a sauce of two tablespoonfuls of butter and flour, one teaspoonful of salt and a pint of milk, then add one-half pound of grated cheese. Pour this over the potatoes and bake until a golden brown.

Baked Fish with Piquant Stuffing.—Bass or any firm-fleshed fish of moderate size may be used for baking. If the fish lacks fat insert strips of pork in gashes along each side of the fish.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.—Break four eggs into a buttered baking dish and cook in a hot oven until they be gin to turn white around the edge. Cover the eggs with a white sauce and over this a cupful of cheese and bread crumbs well mixed. Season and brown the crumbs in a hot oven.

Egg shells should be carefully scraped out with a teaspoon; someone who has tried it says that the bulk of one egg is saved in the scraping of a dozen shells, and with eggs worth four or five cents apiece, it is worth while.

DO YOU KNOW A BETTER CHRISTMAS GIFT?

Many a man or woman remembers that Christmas, many years ago, when The Youth's Companion was for the first time numbered among the family gifts; and how, long after many another present was broken or lost or discarded, the paper continued week after week to offer its treasure of stories and counsel and inexhaustible entertainment.

To-day The Companion brings into the home that same zest of expectancy that you felt when you were in your eager youth and when you watched so impatiently for the postman's coming every Thursday. Would it not be worth while to give to some one of your friends or to a family that same Christmas pleasure?
