ELECTRICITY IN THE DAIRY BARN

Extensive advertising, and almost his brother J. Tunn and family Saturequally extensive editorial discussion in the farm journals of the country, have raised keen interest within the last three or four years in the matter of electric light and power plants for farm use. And thousands of these plants have already been installed, One of the questions that arises in the minds of those who are considering the matter of electrifying their farms, has been that of cost and expense. That is, they have asked themselves whether electricity is merely a convenient but rather expensive form of light and power for their farms, or whether it is, as claimed, inexpensive and in many cases productive of a real saving. In this connection it is interesting to note the experience of a central Ohio farmer who has had a chance to observe the working of an electric plant on his own farm for the past several months. The farmer in question lights his whole house and barns, and, among other power uses, operates a milking machine with an electric motor. He takes care of a herd of thirty cows. The milking machine was installed before the electric plant, and was operated at first with a gas engine. His records show that in those days he used almost one gallon of gasoline a day for the operation of the engine at milking times. Three lanterns about the barns, and a number of lamps large and small in the house, used about the same amount of kerosene. Today, with his electric plant, which uses kerosene as fuel, he supplies his whole place with light, operates his milking machine and does other elecaddition does the milking and a lot of Mint Cocktail.-Crush a bunch of mint, mince in bits and soak a half hour in the juice of two lemons and the grated rind of one. Cook two cupfuls each of sugar and water until it spins a thread; take from the fire and stir in the juice of a large orange.

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome conditions. Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for

Work more— Produce more— Save more—

But we can't continue increasing our production unless we continue increasing our railroad facilities.

The farms, mines and factories cannot increase their output beyond the capacity of the railroads to haul their products.

Railroads are now near the peak of their carrying capacity.

Without railroad expansion—more engines, more cars, more tracks, more terminals—there can be little increase in production.

But this country of ours is going to keep right on growing—and the railroads must grow with it.

To command in the investment markets the flow of new capital to expand railroad facilities—and so increase production there must be public confidence in the future earning power of railroads.

The nation's business can grow only as fast as the railroads grow.
