FIELD MEETING FOR BEE-KEEPERS.

The bee-keepers of Wisconsin are rapidly organizing for the development of the bee-keeping industry and for the control and eradication of foul brood. It is time that the bee-keepers of Wash. Co. realize that they must control foul brood or give up bee-keeping entirely. The State Dept. of Agriculture thru the cooperation of the Co. Agt. and the Wash. Co. bee-keepers' association has arranged for a field meeting for bee-keepers on May 29th. The meeting will be held at the "home farm" of Andrew Endlich Jr. living 1 1/4 miles South of Kohlsville. Two sessions will be held. One at 10 o'clock in the morning and the second at 1.30 in the afternoon. H. L. McMurry, chief inspector of apiaries of Wisconsin, will be present to discuss plans now under way for development of bee-keeping work. Be sure to attend this meeting, and get acquainted with the new inspection law, and the grades for honey established by the Division of Markets. BRING YOUR LUNCH AND MAKE ARRANGEMENTS TO STAY ALL DAY. COME EARLY.

A. H. Seefeldt, Sec.

The members of the West Bend Cow Testing Association will meet at the Court House (office of the Co. Agt.) on Friday June 4th, at 2 o'clock. It is important that every member and every one who wants to become a member should be present.

WEST BEND ALUMINUM COMPANY TO BUILD LARGE ADDITION

The West Bend Aluminum company, which for the past few years has done a tremendous business in the manufacture of aluminum ware, have started to build the foundation 192 x 168 feet, for the erection of an addition to the north end of the building. This new addition will be three stories high, with a center portion will have sky lights. After this large addition has been completed the company expects to put up another addition to its building this year. This addition will be a second story to the one-story part between the office and the present three story building. This story will partly be used to enlarge the office on the second floor of the front building, while the rest will be arranged for a cafeteria and recreation rooms for the employees.

GRADE ENTERTAINMENT MAKES HIT

The grade entertainment given by the grades of our public school at the Opera House last Friday evening, drew a packed house as usual and was very well received by all present. Those having the work of the entertainment in charge are certainly entitled to a great amount of credit as the strain and patience required to stage an amusement of this kind is beyond understanding. Miss Flaherty of West Bend, teacher of music at our public school the past year, had charge of the entertainment, and was ably assisted by the Misses Olive Haug, Elsie Guth and Edna Altonhofen. The children taking part showed remarkable talent and each and everyone of them are entitled to words of praise for the very good rendition of their various parts. A number of songs, choruses, recitations, drills and cantatas were staged which gave the children a chance to show their talent in various ways and also afforded the audience great pleasure throughout the entire program.

ENTER THE REALMS OF MATRIMONY

Miss Aurilla Dickmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Dickmann of the town of Auburn, and Elmer Schnurr, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. August Schnurr of the town of Kewaskum, were quietly married at the parsonage of the German Reformed church at Campbellsport, last Saturday, May 22, 1920, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. William Zenk performed the ceremony. The bride was prettily attired in a midnight blue French serge suit, with hat to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of white sweet peas and sunburst roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Leona Dickmann, as maid of honor, who was dressed in a Copenhagen blue chiffon voile dress, Miss Florence Senn, cousin of the bride was bridesmaid, and wore a Copenhagen blue crepe georgette dress. Both attendants wore corsage bouquets of lavender sweet peas and Columbia roses. The groom was attended by Carl M. Schnurr, brother of the groom, as best man, and Walter Dickmann, brother of the bride as usher. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride with about twenty near relatives and friends in attendance. The house was prettily decorated in pink and white cut flowers. The newly weds are very prominent young people of this community. The bride is a school teacher, and for several years successfully taught school one mile south of this village. She was well liked by all her scholars and a general favorite among the county teachers. The groom was born and reared on a farm a mile south of Kewaskum. He is an industrious young man, going about his work with the determination of doing the best there is in him. The young couple will make their home at Jackson where the groom is employed as engineer on the State Trunk Highway, and where they will be at home to their friends after July 1st. We wish them much joy and prosperity in their married life.

DONT SELL LIBERTY BONDS!

The market price for Liberty bonds is quite low at the present time. Evidently many owners of bonds are selling these securities. If they are not compelled by dire necessity to let go their holdings, they are foolish to sell, for the bonds are worth 100 cents on the dollar and will bring that if they are held. In addition, they yield interest at a fair rate, and no pledge on earth is more sure. If the United States lives the bonds will be paid in full, interest and principal. Of what other security in the world can this be said with equal assurance?

A decrease in market price is often misunderstood by holders of bonds who are not familiar with financial matters. They take alarm and feel that they must sell their bonds "before they go lower in price". That is false reasoning and if adopted it causes unnecessary loss to individuals who cannot afford to lose even one dollar. All that is necessary is to hold all bonds. The market price is partly manipulation and partly a result of excessive selling by persons who may be ignorant or too hard pressed. But the market price need have nothing to do with any bondholder. He is not concerned with the depth of a railroad cut if he is on a stout bridge, his only concern being the journey across the bridge. Similarly the only concern of a bondholder is to collect the coupons and the bond in full when due. The price might sag to nothing, but that means nothing if the owner does not sell. The United States is a strong bridge that will carry the bond across to maturity, exactly on the level and without regard to the depth of the chasm that is crossed.

NO REPORT ON SANITORIUM

According to an article published in the Waupun Leader, there will probably be no reports on the tri-county sanatorium matter before the fall meeting of the county boards of Washington, Dodge and Fond du Lac counties. S. M. Pedrick of Ripon, chairman of the site committee, in a recent interview stated that the committee on architecture and designs will not be in a position to make its report at the June meeting. Many sites have been offered, but no determination will be reached until the condition of the roads permits visiting the sites by auto. Judging from the beauty surrounding the lakes of Washington county, the matter of selecting a site upon which to erect the sanatorium would not be a difficult one. Special advantages are found in this county and it is not at all improbable that Washington county will be thoroughly inspected before a site is picked. Since Mr. Pedrick will not be returned as a member of the county board of Fond du Lac county at the June session, the question has arisen as to whether he can continue as a member of the special committee. Mr. Pedrick understands that legally his appointment on that committee was for the completion of the work mapped out for the committee to do and that he will continue to serve even though not a member of the board. District Attorney Murray of Fond du Lac has been asked for an opinion on the matter.

Wisconsin Highway Commission.

Madison, Wis.: The Highway Commission has an important bridge construction program on for Washington County for 1920. Four bridges will be built. These are: The Kuhn bridge in Germantown at a cost of $4250; the Mayfair bridge in Jackson at a cost of $3100; the Rottmeir bridge in Jackson at a cost of $3400; the Koepke bridge in Germantown at a cost of $1950.

The regular monthly stock fair held here Wednesday was largely attended.

MASS MEETING FAIRLY WELL ATTENDED

The mass meeting held at the city hall last Monday evening, for the proposed water works and sewerage system, was fairly well attended. Three speakers being present namely: Mr. Tulley of Madison, and C. E. Licens and Attorney Thomas O'Meara of West Bend. All of the three declared that Kewaskum is fortunate, first the village is closely built together and therefore only about three miles of pipe lines would have to be constructed to reach every residence here. Second, that Kewaskum is in a position to buy their water from the L. Rosenheimer Malt & Grain Co., who have two good protected wells at the malt house which will be adequate to furnish the village with the necessary supply of water throughout the year, and will also eliminate the necessity of digging a city well and the building of a pumping station, lowering the cost of installing water works and sewerage system $20,000 should the voters so decide. Figures given out by the speakers were to the point that Kewaskum, being built and situated as it is, a complete system can be installed at a cost of $70,000 without having to dig a well or build a pumping station! A special election will be held in the near future when the voters of the village will be given the opportunity to either pass favorably upon it or not.

PLANNING FOR SUMMER
You're going to need electricity on your farm this summer. Thousands of farmers used it for the first time last summer and are loud in their declaration that they wouldn't go through another summer without electricity to help out.

In the first place, electric lights, beside being bright and radiant, are cool lights. They will not heat up a room after night as will an open flame light. Then electric lights do away with the necessity for cleaning smelly coal oil lamps and lanterns—and how they do smell on hot summer nights.

Then you'll want electricity this summer to run the electric fans that will cool the hot kitchen, that will make cool breezes around the dining table and that will drive the hot air out of the bedrooms and make the nights comfortable.

All these things you are going to want this summer and, if you want them hard enough you can have them. The small, individual electric plant has been developed especially with the idea of giving electricity to the farm homes, no difference where they are located. And farmers are adopting them, too, in great numbers. Nowadays if you travel the country roads in Maine or Ohio, in Alabama, Iowa or Oregon, you will find farm homes lighted after dark with electric lights and served in the day time with electricity from their own electric plants.

If you want to enjoy electric service this summer yourself, it will pay you to cast around a little and get some information as to just what electricity would mean to you. If you can get your buildings wired, the foundation built for the electric plant and the plant installed before the hot and busy summer days come you will be well on the way to the most comfortable and enjoyable summer you ever spent.

CHAUTAUQUA WEEK DRAWING NEAR

Only one more week is left before Chautauqua week for Kewaskum is at hand. The work of the advertising committee is just about completed. Large sized lithographs and posters are hanging in every conspicuous place available, telling all about the great show week. Programs are now being distributed to the people in this community, giving in detail the daily shows, some of which is also appearing in a large ad in this week's issue of the Statesman. Look for it! Every member of the various committees is now working hard to make Kewaskum's Chautauqua Week, one that will not only linger in the memories of those who attend, but will answer in full the purpose of a Chautauqua when staged in any community. Arrangements are now being made to put up the mammoth tent, the material for which has already arrived and which will be erected the latter part of next week. The ticket sale of this week has been a remarkable increase over that of last week, some of the members have tripled their quota and are still selling them. With the main ticket sale days yet to come, prospects look bright for a complete sale of all season tickets now on hand.

INVENT A THRESHING MACHINE

According to the Dodge County Pioneer, published at Mayville, two Washington county boys, George and Jacob Bernert, have completed the invention of a new ideal threshing machine, on the order of the old one but more modern and with more attachments. The boys have acquired a site of land at North Milwaukee of eight acres on which they will build a large factory 120 x 260 feet, to be known as the Bernert Manufacturing company. The machine is fire-proof and is a great labor and time saver. One new attachment which will meet with the approval of farmers is a carrying device which will deliver the grain directly to the bins or put it into sacks. This device is made in three sizes. A carload of grain can be threshed and put into the car in a short time, without touching a shovel. Threshers in the west can lead the cars while they thresh.

The idea is a good one, and will surpass anything of its kind now on the market. The boys have already received orders and will soon be manufacturing their invention which can be attached to any standard threshing outfit.—Hartford Press.

CAMPBELLSPORT FIRE ENGINE GETS REAL TRYOUT

The new Howe fire engine which was recently purchased by the Campbellsport Fire Department and delivered to that place last Wednesday, received its initial tryout on Saturday afternoon, when the department was called upon to extinguish a fire on the farm of John Miller, located a few miles east of Campbellsport, where the roof of the residence had caught fire by sparks from the chimney. The damage incurred by the blaze amounts to about $2,000. Due to the assistance of the fire department, the barn which is a new structure was saved.

WORLD WAR BOYS TO DON UNIFORM

Soldiers, Sailors and Marines to march Memorial Day. Meet in front of Brewery at 12:30 P. M., Monday, May 31st.
March At Fillmore Sunday.
The Soldiers, Sailors and Marines of the World War will march in uniform at West Bend on Monday, May 31st, and at Fillmore on Sunday, May 30th. All are requested to meet in front of the brewery at West Bend at 12:30 P. M., Monday, and in front of Wittig's Store in Fillmore at 12:30 P. M. on Sunday, May 30th. It is an honor to put on the uniform and a privilege to march in honor of the Civil War heroes.

Veterans of the World War.

Fellow Comrades—We feel it a signal honor that the G. A. R. and the Memorial Day committee of Fillmore have asked the young veterans of the world war to march in uniform for the Memorial Day celebration. We are particularly proud also that the veterans of the Civil War have called upon the American Legion to assist in carrying out Memorial Day preparations.

At a recent meeting of the American Legion a resolution was passed to the effect that the young soldiers offer their services to the G. A. R. It was definitely understood, however, that in so doing Memorial Day must not become the day of the young soldier, but rather that it should continue to be an occasion on which all should show their reverence for the dead heroes of the Civil War and their honor for the living. The young soldiers are proud to be able to do anything which will assist the G. A. R. in carrying on its wonderful inspirational program.

Fellow Comrades, we have been asked to march in uniform at Fillmore on Sunday afternoon, May 30, and to march in West Bend on Monday afternoon, May 31. We are requested to meet at 12:30 p. m. in front of Wittig's store in Fillmore on Sunday, and at 12:30 p. m. in front of the brewery in West Bend on Monday.

We are glad to forget war and its suffering and its struggles, but we will not forget the heroism and heroes of war; we are glad to be back in civilian clothes, and yet, we are proud on occasions such as this to don again the uniform which we all wore and honored. So we accept the invitation to march in uniform in honor of the soldiers of the Civil War.

We have young men who served during the world war who passed away and their bodies have been placed in cemeteries in Washington county. The American Legion will decorate those graves, but request the assistance and co-operation of all ex-service men.

Fellow Comrades, let us participate in Memorial Day exercises as requested at Fillmore and at West Bend.

D. J. KENNY,
Post Commander, American Legion.

PROCLAMATION

By GOV. E. L. PHILLIPS

The text of Governor Phillips' proclamation is as follows:
"The American people are deeply indebted to the brave men and noble women who have assumed the burdens of our wars, and who gave their labor, their blood, and their tears to our country, not merely for themselves and their own purposes but for the present generation and for those who are yet to come. They willingly made the sacrifice that our country's interest demanded, because of their love for American freedom and American ideals.

"In order that the deeds of those who offered their lives in the defense of our country be not forgotten, a custom has been established to set aside a day in the month of May when all industry shall cease and the people devote their time and thought to a review of the human sacrifice that has been made for us, to appropriately decorate the graves of our soldiers and sailors whose final resting place is with us, and to hold patriotic meetings for the purpose of reviewing the heroic deeds of the dead in order that their memories shall live, and that the living may profit by the unselfish examples that the history of our past offers us.

"For many years we devoted our thoughts on this solemn occasion to the soldiers and sailors who responded to the call of Abraham Lincoln to preserve this union of states and establish a country that is truly free. This year we shall also honor the brave men who gave their lives to our country and its ideals during the recent war, and I must not fail to remind you to honor those who fell in foreign lands, and whose graves are, therefore, not with us.

"It is a day of renewed sorrow in many homes, and I ask that you give special consideration to the mothers whose sons did not return, and that each be given an appropriate flower to wear on this day as a mark of appreciation by the people of the state of Wisconsin of the services of her son to his country and the great sacrifice that she has made for us.

"We are living in a period when organized government is in peril throughout the world. It is difficult for us to understand why our own country, with a government that is so free that it gives every citizen every wholesome liberty, can be subjected to severe criticism, and even threatened by an element of people who have been persuaded to believe that they are being oppressed.

"Surely the government is responsive to the will of the people and whatever changes are necessary will in due time be made by the people in an orderly way through new representation. "We must not forget the fact that it is but a few months more than a year since the last spot was fired in a great war that upset the economic conditions over the entire world. The economic levels that will set all things right can not be re-established in a day or a year, nor should our government be blamed, or even criticised, because of conditions that have been forced upon us by Europe.

"I believe it to be entirely appropriate upon this day of patriotic devotion dedicated to the defenders of our country, to admonish the people to remain calm, and true to our government, and its institutions, and to have faith in the ability of our chosen representatives to re-establish so far as the government can, conditions that will be fair and just to all, and that the happiness and contentment that prevailed in this country from the foundation of this government up to the time of the beginning of the great world war will return to us, and that the enemies of this republic will again be forced to admit that a government by the people, under our organic law, the best type of government that man genius has been able to invent.

"Therefore, I, Emanuel L. Philipp, governor of the state of Wisconsin, hereby designate Monday, May 31, 1920, Memorial Day. And I request that the people meet in the school houses and churches and other public meeting places and devote their thoughts to our national ideals, to sing patriotic songs, and to do those things that I have suggested in this proclamation."

Putting His Luck to the Test

In old Japan, when a man wanted to get a wife, he went to the shoe store and the girl whom he fancied would put one of his shoes into the water. The shoe was picked up and the man, who was side by her, he looked for a minute at the shoe, but if it were made of iron, he went away discouraged.

ERADICATION OF WILD CUCUMBER

Plant Is Serious Menace to Pickle Growing in Various Sections of Country.

ELIMINATE MOSAIC DISEASE

White Pickle Disease Is Generally More General in Towns Than in Open Country—Beetles Carry Disease.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Wild cucumbers are a serious menace to pickle growing. That the eradication of this plant would reduce, if not entirely eliminate, the mosaic disease of cucumber which in some sections has practically driven the pickling business out of existence, is shown by studies made in Wisconsin by United States department of agriculture scientists. Their investigations prove that the white pickle disease, or mosaic disease of cucumbers, also attacks the wild or white pickle cucumber, a vine which occurs along streams and is used for ornamental purposes in many parts of the middle West, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, where this wild vine thrives, are the center of the pickle-growing industry in this country. The wild plant is a serious menace to the cultivated cucumber in these states, because it is the principal, if not the only, means by which this disease is carried over from season to season.

All persons in town and country in cucumber regions are urged by the United States department of agriculture to stop planting the wild cucumber and to pull up and destroy all wild cucumber plants found in their vicinity.

Disease Near Towns.

Consistent with the great abundance of wild cucumbers near towns it has been observed that the white pickle disease of the cultivated cucumber is generally more abundant and severe near towns than in the open country. This is of importance not only to nearby farmers who grow pickles as a business, but to town gardeners as well who wish to grow a few cucumbers, muskmelons or other vine crops for home use. The disease may attack any of these vines so severely as to kill the plant or prevent the production of any but warty and worthless fruits. The striped cucumber beetle, which is usually present on cucumbers, is one of the most effective agents in spreading the disease from plant to plant and from field to field. Department of agriculture scientists have shown that the disease is carried from one cucumber crop to the next as follows: Seed produced on a mosaic-wild cucumber plant falls to the ground in the autumn. In the latitude of the middle-western states mentioned these seeds germinate early in May at about the same time that the striped cucumber beetles begin to come out of winter quarters. The beetles feed upon wild cucumbers abundantly until the cultivated cucumbers come up in nearby fields or gardens. During this period of three or four weeks the mosaic which persisted in the seeds of the wild cucumber is developed in the young plants and the beetles feeding on them have become infected.

Leaf of Four-Seeded Wild Cucumber Showing Mosaic Disease.

Beetles Carry Disease.

When the garden and field cucumbers appear the beetles fly to feed on them, carrying the disease with them. It is quite certain, therefore, that the disease generally starts each season from the wild cucumber, and it appears probable that the elimination of this plant as an ornamental would go far toward reducing the amount of mosaic disease on cultivated cucumbers. Among the climbing annuals which have been recommended to take the place of wild cucumbers as an ornamental are the morning glory, the scarlet runner bean, and the cypress vine. All are quick growers and provide shade and an abundance of showy flowers. Of the many perennial vines available for use as ornamentals, the Virginia creeper, the wild grape, white flowered clematis, and the false hollyhock are mentioned as especially adapted for the middle West. Those interested in looking into the matter further should secure Farmers' Bulletin 195 from the United States department of agriculture.

CLOSELY-WOVEN WIRE FENCE IS INSURANCE

Keeps Neighbor's Chickens on His Own Side.

Dogs Destroy Garden by Running Over It and Making Beds Underneath Larger Foliage—Cats Also Are Troublesome.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) More neighborhood trouble has originated from neighbor's chickens destroying garden crops than from any other one source, it has been asserted. A good, closely-woven wire fence is the best insurance that can be taken out against such troubles.

A garden was being destroyed by a neighbor's chickens, and the owner bored small holes in galvanized iron and tied a thread about a foot in length to each kernel of corn. On the other end of the thread he tied small tags on which was printed, "I have been scratching in my neighbor's garden."

When the fowls went home with one or more of these tags hanging from their beaks, there was no further trouble.

A good fence not only keeps out neighbor's chickens but dogs and cats as well. While the chickens scratch up the ground, the dogs destroy it by running over it and making beds underneath the foliage of the larger crops. Cats are particularly troublesome when the garden is first planted, and it takes a pretty good fence to keep them out.

Reports to the United States department of agriculture show that very little trouble has been experienced by

GRANT'S HONORS WORTHILY WON

Great Soldier Will Always Be Remembered as the Savior of the Union.

MAN who sleeps so peacefully in the splendid mausoleum on the banks of the Hudson—Clyde S. Grant—deserves all the fame that has come to him, and all the gratitude that has been showered upon him by his fellow countrymen.

In 1861, as appeared also to be the case in 1919, the great determining factor was force—the armed might of the nation.

In the attempt at a settlement of the difficulties between the northern and southern sections of our common country everything had been tried in the line of discussion, argument, pleading and prayer. On the hustings, in legislative halls and senate chambers, everywhere, earnest efforts were made to reach the compromise which would avert the danger which threatened the nation's peace, but all was in vain, and presently grim-visaged war was upon us with all its horrors.

The brothers were at each other's throats and the supreme question was, "Shall the Union be preserved?" With "unflinching nerve and with clarity for all Mr. Lincoln, as the executive head of the nation, resolved that the Union should be saved. To that proposition he dedicated himself body, mind and soul, and with the energy that was commensurate with his patriotism the great man prepared the armed might which was to carry his purpose into effect.

But America was fighting America. The best blood in the world ran in the veins of the fighters on both sides of the conflict, and for a long time the issue of the mighty struggle was in doubt.

It will be remembered how general after general, with large and splendidly equipped armies, crossed the Potomac, fought with characteristic American valor, and came back without victory.

Patterson, McDowell, McClellan, Burnside, Pope, Hooker, failed to bring Lincoln the victory he sent them out to win for him; and the great man in the White House was "sorrowful and high unto death." He never despaired, but God alone knows the agonies he endured in his silent soul.

Had Lincoln lived he might have enabled us, by reading between the lines of his story, to learn something of what he suffered during the dark and gloomy period from Bull Run to Gettysburg; but even as it is we know, from his intimate friends, that the good man came as near despairing as it was possible for one of his large faith to come.

However, in the moving back and forth of destiny's shuttle, it came its pass that the man from Illinois was entrusted with the stupendous task of beating the Army of Northern Virginia with Lee at his head.

It was that army that bore up on its bayonets the fortunes of the Confederacy; and if that army could be defeated the victory would be won and the Union saved.

SPHON'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

Florida's Shell Mounds Believed to Date Back to Before Beginning of Christian Era. Fruit Is the Mainstay of Life to the People of Egypt, Arabia and Persia.

Florida's shell mounds, which are found in different portions of the state, are unquestionably of human construction, and were probably built by some race of people who inhabited the country about the beginning of the Christian era. These mounds were found overgrown with herbage and forest as long ago as when the first red man set foot in Florida, and the fact that the deposit of earth above them was sufficient to give place to the root of trees proved their great age.

There have been found in all these mounds pieces of pottery imbedded in the shell conglomerate, as well as articles made of shell and bone, rude stone implements and many bones of animals and fish, such as deer, terrapin, rabbits, alligators and others. There are in the entire state about forty mounds, the most important of which are those of King Philip's town, near the outlet of Lake Harney, which are 45 feet long, from 100 to 150 feet broad, and with an average height of eight feet.

LEGISLATURE IN SPECIAL SESSION

GOV. PHILIPP ISSUED CALL FOR MAY 25; TO CURB RENT PROFITEERS.

ASKS RAISE FOR TEACHERS

Increase in the Mill Tax Rate for the University and Normal Schools is Requested.

Madison—Gov. Philipp summoned the legislature into special session on Tuesday, May 25, at two o'clock to enact special legislation which he believes is required at the present time. The call includes twenty-five subjects, first and foremost the amending of existing laws to limit net profits of landlords and to otherwise regulate the relationship between landlord and tenant.

Most of the other subjects are of minor importance and can be disposed of in a short time. Neither food profiteering legislation or extension of the power of the state marketing commission to prevent speculation in foodstuffs were included in the call, as had been expected in some quarters.

Teachers' Pay Included.

Rumors that the governor intended to include amendment of the primary law to keep voters in their own party also proved without foundation. Many of the subjects deal with educational matters and the increasing of the pay of various classes of teachers.

It is expected that the special session will be concluded by June 8, when the national Republican convention meets at Chicago. The rent bill, as well as the other legislation, had already been drafted by the governor and his legal adviser, George B. Hudnall, in consultation with various other interested parties.

The governor's call sets forth the following subjects: The rent bill, it is expected, will limit the net profits of landlords to from 8 to 10 per cent and give more power to civil judges in handling eviction cases. One measure provides for the increase of the mill tax at the university from 3/4 to 1 1/2 mills and that of the normal schools from 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 mills. This is to take care of salary raises and other increased expenses. This would increase the income of the university from $1,526,600 to $2,542,667. The fund of the Normals would jump from $678,944 to $1,356,059.

Open State Hospital.

One measure provides for the establishment of the Wisconsin general hospital, to cost $750,000, in connection with the university infirmary. Another $150,000 is provided for a nurses' home and $45,000 for furnishing the buildings. Stout institute asks $25,000 for increased salaries and $2,000 for additional equipment. The Wisconsin School of Mines asks for an added appropriation of $2,900.

Other measures enable county boards to increase the salaries of superintendents and teachers. A collection of good things. For a spring dish which is especially good, cook together green peas, new potatoes and small green onions and new carrots; add a few slices of crisp fried bacon cut in bits and when the vegetables are cooked, season well and add milk. Serve hot.

As the unsmooth oyster that lies beneath the deep Within its rough and homely shell a precious pearl may be found. A TEA-TIME CAKE OR TWO.

For those who practice serving afternoon tea, a few choice cakes and sandwiches are needed to accompany the refreshing beverage.

Oriental Tea Cakes.

Work one-fourth of a cup of shortening until creamy, add one cupful of brown sugar gradually, beating constantly. Dissolve one-eighth of a teaspoonful of soda in one tablespoonful of water and add this to the first mixture; then add one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and one cupful of flour. Mix it until it holds together well and leaves no crumbs in the bowl. If it separates add water a drop at a time until the mixture can be molded into small balls.

Place the balls on buttered tins an inch apart and bake in a quick oven until delicately browned. This recipe will make 40 cakes.

Ham Tomato Toast.

Take one-half tablespoonful of minced onion and one tablespoonful of minced green pepper; cook in two tablespoonfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of sugar, a few dashes of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of minced ham, and a cupful of tomato puree. Serve on toast.

Almond Toast.

Mix five cupfuls of flour, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-fourth of a cup of butter, one-half cupful of milk, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, four eggs, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, four tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Mix as usual, adding at the last one-fourth of a pound of split unblanched almonds. Knead lightly and well, using flour on the hands to keep from sticking. Turn into three well greased bread pans and bake in a moderate oven until brown. Cut the loaves in half-inch slices and place them crosswise in a pan to brown; turn so that the sides will brown. Cool before packing away. These are excellent to serve with tea or coffee and will keep for weeks in a dry place.

Fudge Frosting.

Melt two ounces of chocolate over hot water. Add two cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of milk. Stir until the sugar is dissolved. When the boiling point is reached, beat vigorously and cook to the soft ball stage (235 F.). Remove from the fire, add a teaspoonful of butter and let stand until cold, then beat until creamy and spread on the cakes, fruits of minced parsley.

Rusk says: First feed people, then clothe and house people, then please them with art. Crosswise in a pan to brown; turn so that the sides will brown. Cool before packing away. These are excellent to serve with tea or coffee and will keep for weeks in a dry place.

A COLLECTION OF GOOD THINGS.

For a spring dish which is especially good, cook together green peas, new potatoes and small green onions and new carrots; add a few slices of crisp fried bacon cut in bits and when the vegetables are cooked, season well and add milk. Serve hot.

Coleman.

Slice firm cabbage and put into a dish of cold water to crisp. Prepare the following for dressing: Take two well beaten eggs, half a cupful of sour cream and cook over water until thick, take from the fire and add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. When cold mix with the cabbage which has been well drained and dried on a cloth.

Fruit Drop Cakes.

Cream two-thirds of a cupful of butter or any sweet fat, add one cupful of brown sugar, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-third of a cupful each of currants and raisins cut fine, two-thirds of a cupful of chopped walnuts, two well beaten eggs, a half teaspoonful of vanilla, one pint of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Drop by spoonfuls on baking sheets. Bake in a moderate oven.

Coffee Caramel.

Put a pound of dark brown sugar into a saucepan, add one cupful of clear strong coffee, one-half cupful of cream and one tablespoonful of butter. Cook until it snaps when dropped in cold water. Pour into greased tins and mark in squares, as it cools.

Velvet Sherbet.

Mix the juice of three lemons, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and stir until dissolved; add four cupfuls of rich milk and freeze. It may look curdled, but when frozen it will be as smooth as velvet.

Stuffed Egg Salad.

Cut hard cooked eggs in halves, take out the yolks, cut a thin slice from each rounded white to make it stand firmly, drop in each a little mayonnaise. Mix the yolks to a paste with the mayonnaise, using any minced meat fish or flavor vegetable for seasoning. Fill the cavities and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Nettie Maxwell
Petty Coat.
This was the former spelling of petticoat, which meant the little or short coat worn in other days by men. Henry V. had a "petty coat" of red damask with open sleeves. Afterward the fashion, with skirt variations, was imitated by women, who copied the gown, robe, frock, and blouse, which were all worn in the first place by men.

No Sugar

Required for Jiffy-Jell Desserts

They come ready-sweetened. They come acidulated with pure fruit acid, made from lemons or from grapes.

A bottle of liquid fruit flavor comes in each package. We crush the fruit, condense the juice and seal it in a bottle. So Jiffy-Jell is a real-fruit dainty, rich in fruit.

Simply add boiling water as directed on package, then the fruit essence from the bottle, and let cool. If you used fresh fruit, plus a lot of sugar, you could make nothing more delicious.

Serves six—at trifling cost

One package of Jiffy-Jell serves six in mold form, or twelve if you whip the jell. And the fruit alone which we use in it would cost you more than the whole dessert.

Jiffy-Jell

Real-Fruit Desserts

Ten Flavors in Glass Vials

A bottle like this in each package

Mint	Lime	Cherry
Raspberry	Loganberry
Strawberry	Pineapple
Orange	Lemon	Coffee

Be sure to get this package for your grocer, for Jiffy-Jell is the only dessert with these liquid fruit flavors in vials.

METHOD IN THAT MADNESS

Why Dad Could Not Bring Himself to Make Serious Objections to Gerald's Smoking.

"Henry?"
Mrs. Brown's voice was stern. Mr. Brown recognized the signs of a coming storm, so he prepared to listen.

"I saw Gerald—our boy—smoking a pipe today—actually, a dirty, smelly pipe!" the poor woman ended with a sob.

"Well, what can we do?" exclaimed her husband. "The boy's seventeen and has two dollars a week pocket money. I don't see—"

"You mean to say that you will allow him to smoke? Why, it's sheer madness!"

Henry nodded. Then, after witnessing the unique spectacle of his wife speechless for once, he strolled off into the garden, where he came across Gerald in a corner, with the pipe going full blast.

"Hello, my boy!" he cried. "This is something new, isn't it? Er—by the way, I've left my pouch in the house. Can you give me a fill?"

Then he, as he walked away puffing happily, murmured: "It may be madness, but there's nothing in it. I can see Gerald's pouch being quite a money saver to poor old dad."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

GOT CHARACTERS MIXED UP

According to English Actor, History is Not a Strong Point With Theatregoers.

The late H. B. Irving once told in Philadelphia a story about his father's performance of Sardou's "Robespierre." He said:

"I saw Gerald—our boy—smoking a pipe today—actually, a dirty, smelly pipe!" the poor woman ended with a sob.

"By the way, who was Robespierre? said the first old lady.

"Why, don't you know?" said the second old lady. "He's the man who was murdered in his bath by Marie Corelli."

"Oh, no, my dear!" said the first old lady. "That can't be right, for Marie Corelli is still alive. I remember who it was now. It was Charles Fontaine."

"Then, at the end of his story Mr. Irving added:

"I once told this anecdote to a duchess. When I finished the duchess gave a kind of puzzled laugh and said: "Poor Shakespeare!"

Ups and Downs.

"An orator has to come down to the level of his audience's intelligence," remarked the mild egotist. "There used to be some such idea," replied Senator Sorghum. "But the orator nowadays has all he can do to rise to the occasion."

WILSON WARNS COAL MINERS

President Tells Anthracite Men That There Must Be No Strike.

TO AID IN FIXING WAGES

Tells Members of Joint Scale Committee If They Fail to Reach Agreement He Will Appoint a Commission.

Washington, May 25.—Anthracite operators and miners were warned on Saturday by President Wilson that there must be no strike in the anthracite coal fields during this critical period.

Writing to the members of the joint scale committee, which has been conducting negotiations for two months, the president said that if they should be unable to reach an agreement, he would insist that the questions in dispute be submitted to the determination of a commission to be appointed by him, and that work be continued in the mines pending the decision of the commission.

He added that the award to be made would be retroactive to April 1, the date of the expiration of the old agreement between the operators and miners.

The president said he would hold himself in readiness to appoint a commission.

In making public the president's letter Secretary Wilson, who has been in conference with the wage scale committee at the department of labor for the last three weeks, said he was confident that when the committee reconvened Thursday it will either reach a mutual agreement or the question in dispute will be submitted to a commission as suggested by the president.

"There will be no strike in the anthracite coal fields," he said.

The secretary added that representatives of the miners would present the president's letter to their convention at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Monday.

"I have watched with more than passing interest your efforts to negotiate a new wage scale for the anthracite coal fields. The arrangement to continue work at the mines after April 1 pending the adoption of a new agreement I find highly commendable and filled us all with hope that a new contract would be mutually worked out."

"I have, however, been advised that there is a possibility you may not come to an agreement. I am sure I need not remind you that we have not yet recovered from the economic losses incident to the war. We need the fullest productivity of our people to restore and maintain their own economic standards and to assist in the rehabilitation of Europe."

"A strike at any time in a great basic industry like anthracite coal mining would be a very disturbing factor in our lives and industries. To have one take place now while we are actively engaged in the problems of reconstruction would be a serious disaster."

"I am not familiar with the technical problems affecting the making of your wage scale. You are. You should therefore be able to effect an agreement. If for any reason you are unable to do so I shall insist that the matters in dispute be submitted to the determination of a commission to be appointed by me, the award of the commission to be retroactive to April 1, in accordance with the arrangement you have already entered into, and that work be continued at the mines pending the decision of the commission."

"I shall hold myself in readiness to appoint a commission similarly constituted to the one which I recently appointed in connection with the bituminous coal mining industry as soon as I learn that both sides have signified their willingness to continue at work and abide by its decisions."

CARRANZA IS SLAIN

General Herrera, One-time Rebel, Responsible for Death of Chief Executive.

Mexico City, May 24.—President Venustiano Carranza, who, with a small party of followers had been a fugitive in the mountains of Puebla since late last week, was killed at Tlaxcalton on early Thursday morning, according to official announcement given out from the headquarters of General Obregon here. Some of his companions, the names of whom are unknown, also were killed.

Gen. Rodolfo Herrera, it is said, directed the attack that resulted in the death of the fugitive president and his followers. He belonged to forces commanded by Gen. Francisco Mariel, who accompanied Carranza in his flight from this city, but who last week deposed Carranza and joined the revolutionists.

Born of parents in comfortable circumstances in Cuatro Ciénegas, state of Coahuila, December 29, 1859, Venustiano Carranza was educated in the public schools of his native state and later studied law at the Mexican capital. When he was admitted to the bar, however, affection of the eyes prevented him from practicing and he returned to his native state to become a rancher.

Having defied Huerta, Carranza rallied a small band of 600 followers, which grew into a sizable army when he won the support of Francisco Villa. Carranza's influence spread rapidly, the military victories of his chief aid, Villa, rallying the various factions of northern Mexico around his banner.

GIVE DATA ON CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Managers for Major General Wood and Lowden Before Senate Body.

SHOW SOURCE OF DONATIONS

Hitchcock Says Largest Sum Paid in Any State Was $15,000—Illinois Governor's Fund Totals $401,984.78.

Washington, May 26.—Frank H. Hitchcock, one of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood's campaign managers, told a senate investigating committee on Monday that so far as he knew the largest sum spent in any state by the Wood organization was $15,000 in New Jersey. He added that the next largest was $12,000 in Maryland.

Mr. Hitchcock said that in New York, "as in a number of other states," the Wood supporters "financed their own campaign in their own way," without asking assistance from the Wood organization.

Mr. Hitchcock identified himself as "one of the managers of General Wood's campaign."

"Who are the others?" Chairman Kenyon asked.

"William C. Proctor is the general manager," the witness replied, "while assistants in charge of various sections include Representative Norman Gould of New York, Thomas C. Miller and Senator Moses of New Hampshire."

Governor Lowden's fund for his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination totals $404,984.78 including contributions, L. L. Emmerson, the governor's campaign manager, testified at the senate's investigation of campaign contributions and expenditures.

On the basis of his own expenditure, each of the eighty-three delegates instructed for him have cost the governor $4,507.

"We have a book showing every item of receipts in the Lowden campaign," Mr. Emmerson said, "and I have here every check that has been issued. We've collected no state funds. I think all money has passed through my hands."

"How many headquarters have you had?" asked Chairman Kenyon.

"One at Springfield, Ill., rooms in Chicago and in Washington," Mr. Emmerson said. "We have a number of stenographers at Springfield."

"There was $38,525 contributed. I have the names here. The governor insisted that we should keep our affairs in businesslike shape."

Asked by Chairman Kenyon regarding expenditures, Mr. Emmerson said: "There was $34,262.64 paid out in salaries. The Lowden Young Men's club received $8,332. For work among traveling men, $3,150."

"For the women's division, $16,251. That was for everything, publicity, stenographers, pink teas—everything they use in campaigning among women."

"On the Washington headquarters we spent $22,000 and on general printing and publicity, $96,650. On organization work in states, $156,243."

Mr. Emmerson was asked for expenditures by states.

"In Georgia we sent $9,000 to Henry Lincoln Johnson," he said.

"That's a colored man," Senator Kenyon observed.

"Yes," Mr. Emmerson continued. "In Alabama $1,000 to a man named Irwin; in Oklahoma, $7,500 to J. W. Kayser; in Texas, $5,000 to George F. Rockwell. To Virginia I've sent none, but the Washington headquarters has perhaps sent some."

"In South Dakota we spent $9,783. Fred Sterling of Illinois represented us."

"In Michigan we spent $39,141.50, through W. E. Hull and C. F. Buck of Illinois. In Wisconsin $7,500 to Carl C. McAsser; in Oregon, $11,000 by Joseph Dunne; in North Dakota, $2,000."

"In Indiana, $18,000 through Joseph S. Baldwin of Illinois; in Missouri, $38,000 through a number of individuals."

"Cost about $1,000 a delegate," Senator Reed commented, "for Missouri's 30."

BIG LOAN FOR ROADS

$125,000,000 Available to Buy New Equipment.

Commerce Commission Acts to End Freight Car Shortage and Relieve Congestion.

Washington, May 24.—Temporary disposition of the $300,000,000 revolving fund, provided by the transportation act for relief of railroads, was made in orders issued by the interstate commerce commission, which, at the same time, took steps to meet future equipment needs of the carriers by proposing organization of an equipment corporation with a capital stock of $200,000,000.

Recent suggestions of the Association of Railway Executives were followed closely in apportioning the funds, but the commission confronted the railroads with the necessity of making the "largest possible contribution" to meet the sums advanced by the government.

The commission said it would not follow any arbitrary method of allocating the money, but would attempt to divide it so the whole country would benefit by improved transportation service.

As to the equipment trust, the commission proposed that the roads should take stock in it equaling 25 per cent of the cost of the equipment, with money advanced by the government up to $125,000,000. The remaining 75 per cent would be financed through trusts placed on equipment to be built.

"It is evident," the commission's statement said, "that the equipment required properly to meet the transportation needs of the public cannot be secured unless the carriers themselves assume the burden of financing the remaining 75 per cent."

The campaign to break the freight congestion at the nation's traffic gateways was well under way today, the interstate commerce commission, in the space of a few hours, having taken three important steps toward that end.

THRIFT, SHORT CREDIT CITED

Seventh District Report Made Public at Chicago Finds Rail Tieup is Grave Menace, but Citeup is Easing.

Chicago, May 26.—A general revision downward of prices of all commodities except food, and a growing tendency toward thrift, and improvement in the labor situation, are three encouraging factors in the report of the Seventh Federal Reserve district, issued here.

A detailed readjustment of the economic and social conditions governing the national life is being anticipated by the business world, the report says, with the situation complicated by the lack of any precedent by which business men might be guided.

"Probably the most disturbing element in the entire situation," the statement adds, "is the almost demoralized condition of our railroads, transportation being on the verge of a breakdown by reason of a shortage of freight cars and a serious congestion in all leading railroad centers, caused by the strike of switchmen and other rail workers."

Forecast H. C. L. Slump.

"The credit supply still is restricted and the demand outstrips any previous total in the history of the world. Lastly, but by no means the least important, there is the additional complication of growing signs of a general revision of prices of all commodities, with the trend in most cases downward."

The continued high prices of food is the most important exception, the review states, adding: "Other living costs, however, offer great encouragement, particularly the price of clothing and shoes. Explanation of this situation is not hard to find. Prices of clothing and dry goods generally had reached such heights as to be almost prohibitive and the public quite naturally curtailed purchases very materially."

Note Greater Thrift.

"A most encouraging development of the last month has been a growing tendency on the part of the general public toward thrift. Ever since the armistice in a wild spending orgy, but only the highest priced goods and satisfying extravagance almost to an extreme. This spending hysteria now seems to be waning, although the change is not yet pronounced."

Harding Urges Decreased Loans.

Washington, May 25.—Economy in individual expenditures, reduction of non-essential loans by banks, increased production and improved transportation are needed to reduce the cost of living and defate credits, Governor Harding of the federal reserve board declared in responding to a senate resolution of inquiry.

The board is not prepared to define what are essential and nonessential loans, Governor Harding stated. This, he said, is a problem for local bankers, familiar with local needs.

Governor Harding's letter, presented to the senate by Vice President Marshall during the session of the committee of Senator McCormick (Rep.) of Illinois, adopted recently, requesting information regarding what steps the board contemplated "to meet the existing inflation of currency and credit and consequent high prices," and what measures were proposed to mobilize credits for movement of the 1920 crop.

Governor Harding told of the recent conference here of the federal reserve advisory council and its recommendations for curtailment of credits, together with the opinion that congestion of transportation facilities is tying up great quantities of foodstuffs.

SHERMAN RAPS SOLDIER BILL

Illinois Senator Declares Relief Measure for Fighters is Blow at Patriotism.

Washington, May 26.—Senator Sherman (Rep.) of Illinois, speaking in the senate, denounced the proposed soldier relief bill as a "blatant retrogression of the patriotism of a great country." If the impelling aim of the American Legion is to "loot the federal treasury," he said, "it is a disgraceful organization." Senator Sherman declared that for 20 years he had never allowed the American Federation of Labor to dictate to him and he did not intend to permit the American Legion to do so. The attack was precipitated by a telegram received by the senator from an American Legion post, inquiring as to his attitude toward the bill.

The sister-in-law, Miss Valia Bischoff, is at St. Elizabeth's hospital with a bullet wound in her neck. She is not expected to recover.

Yellow Men Sleep

By JEREMY LANE

CHEE MING.

Synopsis.—John Livingston, a poet, visionary and impractical, and Mary Martin, the daughter of rich and worldly parents, meet out of love and unite their lives. They go to a small Michigan city, where John finds work in a stove factory and on Sundays writes verses. The Martins try in vain to get the happy wife to leave her husband. Mary begins to breathe for free. John loses his job. He appeals in vain to the Martins. Mary goes to the hospital and never returns. Thus comes into the story Cornelius Livingston. John leaves town and the city furnishes out the child. Two years later John appears, claims his little son and takes him with him on his wanderings over the whole earth.

Under the same conditions do you believe you could have made more of life than Con Livingston made of his?

In Pelee again, with the boy nearly four years of age, John worked in many strange places. They lived near Dory street, which was a marked man. He did not drink often, but he chose the most fatal occasions for it. The gray shadows beneath his eyes deepened. Con learned to cut bread and light the fires—a rather solemn young person, who was well aware that his father was not always the same. His eyes were blue, large, ready to trust. In his consciousness there was no such thing as stranger. The matter of home remained world-wide.

He ventured down to the steam ferries and pondered the mystery of their endless coming and going. He loved the strength of horses as they hauled heavy loads over the cobble. He wondered what made the loads so heavy and where had everything come from? The fire-engines were delightful. At night, when they passed below the window and he could not get up to lay beside his father and wonder what might be burning, and imagined how the smoke would come out and blacken the stars, and the fire crackle and curl up high, as the firemen worked from the street. Was it a big building burning? Who was getting burned up? What would they have done if they hadn't been burned up to-night?

On some occasions his father would talk, but he was asleep all the while and how could he know what he was saying? Con listened and it was like the click. He could not understand the words of either of them, but it was wonderful to hear. There was a rhythmic pulse to these night words of John Livingston, and upon it Con was frequently carried into magic dreams.

"I'm going." The father usually said this to the boy in the morning, and it did not mean he was going to work. Con understood so much, but no more. John Livingston said it more and more often.

Con himself became marked for "different." At the age of six he felt it. He did nearly everything the boys in the Dory street neighborhood, even the sordid little yellow boys whose play was wild with forty centuries of Asiatic wickedness; but Con was not always admitted. He could fight and climb, was generous and bold. But the clear light in his eyes betrayed him; he was different.

At length he realized that things were said concerning his father which he could not quite fathom. John seemed tired and always very gentle, drowsy but never ready for bed. Their little kitchen was clean. The bedroom smelled like Father himself, a friendly, personal scent, rather like cinnamon and whisky. This went with the gray-stout eyes, and grew more perceptible when John began to stay at home every day, being out of work. Often, now, John Livingston would take the child between his knees and look for a long time steadily into the blue eyes. Con found that this was better than talking. He received his father into an open heart, giving him fatherly devotion. John slept a great deal when out of work. His eyes were shadowed and sunken.

They returned to Dowagiac. The house was rented by strangers, but the slovenly woman next door was there as always, her sparse black hair standing out at angles from her head. It seemed she wore the same snagged apron, stiff with grease. She moved out to the sidewalk to shake hands. "You ain't looking well—and is this the baby?"

She undoubtedly pinched Con's cheek, and he coldly suffered her touch. John Livingston did not reach the cemetery. As he was leading his son to that hill the blaze of an August sun mastered him. His vitality was gone, had left him long since. Con crossed the street to ask at a house for water, because his father was down and could not get up. Dowagiac's new ambulance thus found its premier case. The boy was hauled over to the station of the city rest room. After supper they took him to his father in the hospital.

"I'm going," said John. Con was somewhat closer to the meaning now. John's eyes were more deeply shadowed, but even in this new situation the boy was reassured by the familiar scent of wine and cinnamon about the bed.

The young son did not like the funeral. He refused to weep as instructed. But he screamed when they let him see that his father was in the box. He knew all about it now. He had seen funerals before, and thrown stones at them. It meant, as some said along Dory street, good-night. Realization of his father's death came like a shower of hot needles, and then a slow weight on his chest. It was unbelievable. To-morrow would be all right; it must be. Con was stupefied.

So the city council extended its humanity once more, and voted care for the wife, and it happened that the lowest bidder for his keep was the woman next door—the cheerful slattern with four of her own—and to her foul dwelling Con went to be raised.

CHAPTER II

Purple Tracery.

In the darkness of the months and years that followed, Con Livingston did not suffer consciously from the horrors of his environment. He became much like it, and through the accumulating films of sordid experience he saw but vaguely that there was more in life than this. Whenever anything beautiful forced its way toward him he could not imagine that it might be for himself. Yet the true heritage in his blood was not lost. Merely his decent, poetic young self woven and crossed with filth.

He companioned with the scum of cities, after running away from Dowagiac, also took a few music lessons of Max Markov, a young Russian spirit in Chicago. He spent much of his time at a club of questionables, yet managed to make a firm friend of Premenez, a Spaniard in French diplomatic circles, a princely person of irreproachable standing. Con never realized what an indigestible leaven-cake he was making out of life. The nearest he ever came to straightening himself out was during recurrences of a longing to know more, to see deeper into the complexities about him. He forgot his father and mother, even forgot the dirty woman whose marks were still upon his habits, but this longing would come frequently, out of the wells of his spirit, perhaps to be instantly polluted, denied, smiled down. Con did not believe that real life was for such as himself. Both to the underworld and to the upper realms of society, he felt somehow an outsider.

There was at last a series of events that quickened his longing to a degree that would not be put aside. The pressure of these strange events formed his life, once for all. The better story begins here, the final raveling out of the ugly weave in his days.

He Tried Not to Show the Strain This Hour Held for Him.

Through these events, all the longings of early years, even the yearnings of those who went before him, were intensified and definitely answered.

Destiny, for Con Livingston, began swiftly to uncoil at a dinner, a quiet affair with one of his newest friends.

This late-dinner was shined and silvered, served for two, in the smaller dining-room of the Wedger house. The members of the family were all away, except one.

Cecil Wedger sat opposite his guest, Livingston, and looked candidly of the numerous motion-picture stars in his golden orbit. The guest, while attentive, and never missing his host's callow phrasies, was merely bearing up as best he might under boredom, and at the same time concealing the commotion in his heart. Con was aware of Destiny.

The wine was expensive if not molten, and the cooking was undeniably good, having been accomplished by Cecil's own attaché—a Chinese, whose existence seemed to begin and end in the night-vision of the Wedgers.

Con, taller than his father, held a likeness to John Livingston only about the eyes and temples, something grave and tense, that disappeared when he laughed. He tried not to show the strain that this hour held for him, although in the luminous haze of cigarette smoke his features were a degree drawn and pale. His voice had a natural sincerity. The eyes, blue-gray and steady, seemed to hide none of the secrets that hovered in the lines around his mouth. The gentle excellence of his brow and head ranked him one with those who had been carefully directed, well combed at the start. Con was a good listener. His were well-built limbs, the shoulders almost too massive, though he was slim through the waist, and sometimes abashed at the fitness of his limbs.

The integrity of this only son of two consummate lovers had been tempered in the roaring pits of the world. Con had never been one to wait for temptation. As the reticence of childhood had been rubbed away, and before a man's dignity had come to him, he had been famously ready. He had sealed the walls around the garden of illusion, battered his way joyfully along its paths, and plunged into every alluring pool. He had found his promises worthless, and had aged in a dozen years. His inner prompting had taken a false lead, but he had no regrets. With help he had at length found his way out into the clean and cooling winds of humanity. He had discovered again the treasures of a small-town boyhood, the satisfaction of open fields, the sun in his eyes. Morning air on the slopes was wine to him. In the blue haze of the sea he tried his strength, and found it sufficient. These were what he had wanted all the while. But the glib promises had all pointed the other way.

Cecil Wedger's invitation to dinner was part of a plan. The loquacious Wedger sprang had no notion that he was being used. Nor did Con feel guilty in the deception, for he was stepping into a work that claimed all his best energies.

The Chinese servant entered like a living shadow bringing fresh coffee. Cecil made his own cup into a glorification by brimming it with brandy. Livingston smiled and waved the bottle away. This was not so easy as it appeared. His nostrils twitched at the fragrance from his host's cup. Perhaps the Chinese understood, for he nodded gravely. Now Cecil, to show his democratic spirit, spoke to the servant, very nearly as one man might address another.

"Chee Ming, what do you think of a chink who turns deacon and won't drink anything at the age of twenty-five?"

The Chinese countenance unfolded a few more small wrinkles near the nose, and a light appeared in the narrow eyes, as Chee Ming made reply, "Doubtless wise."

"Deacon is hardly the word," declared the young man of twenty-five. "Deacons are a thirsty brotherhood." Cecil considered this remarkable humor. He was glad he had asked Livingston to come.

The servant's face was the yellow-gold of summer dust, and when the light of a moment vanished from his eyes, they became smooth wet stones.

His body was spare, a kind of unnaturally prolonged youth in it; and Cecil, to publish his own magnanimity and good taste, had insisted that Chee Ming continue to robe in native dress, a loose blousing smock with white sash and narrow straight trousers. Chee Ming was scoured and brushed clean. He was not young, had never been young, and possibly would never grow old. A power that was wiry and psychic radiated from his motionless form. The essence of sober cunning showed in his countenance; ages of calm indignity had wrought in the lore of his soul; his was a face impossible to read, while a well-tanned scowl lurked in his hands. He smoothly retired to the pantry.

"I was telling you about my little friend, wasn't I?" resumed Cecil, living to the task.

"Yes," replied his guest, "you were going to show me her picture."

"Pinkest little thing you ever saw," asserted the pride of the Wedgers. "Coffee won't be enough for you when you see—"

Cecil left it to him and hastened for the photograph of his newest darling. Con heard him whistling as he went up through the deserted mansion.

Alone in the dining-room, Con also arose from the table. The tension about his eyes was more marked. Half a smile drew at his mouth, a close-gathering of faculties. He went to the door of the butler's pantry, and passed on low.

In the low light beyond was Chee Ming, taking care of the silver. The face was shadowed, showing the approach of surprise or interest at the approach of Livingston; yet one boy's hand moved along the shelf toward the handle of the bread-knife. The two men came together as swiftly as struggling phantoms.

Chee Ming was built of live tendons. The bread-knife came around in the grip of yellow fingers closer over Livingston's stomach, but could not go on. Con plinned his arms and, with a pang of regret bent him backward with a force that might have snapped a white man's spine, but the Chinese could not be broken. Neither uttered a sound. An instant they locked. Their feet seemed fast to the floor. Then, under necessity, the white young man forgot to be tender-hearted, a quick gasp of pain came from the oriental lips and Chee Ming's weapon rattled to the floor. The victim sighed and crumpled in Livingston's arms.

On the floor he quivered, while the clatter plunged a hand into the blouse and searched. Against the skin Con touched a tiny packet of leather, warm and soft and precious. He snatched the thing, withdrew it, stood erect and listened. Cecil was humming as he returned. Livingston released the yellow hands that weakly held one ankle, lifted himself out at the pantry window, and dropped into the bushes below.

Friendship. The capacity for making friends, the ability to win others to us, to fasten them to our souls with hooks of steel, to surround ourselves with those who are loyal and true, is a wonderful power. Some possess it in a marvelous degree; they make friends without effort. But although comparatively few are thus gifted it is possible for every one to develop the power in greater or less degree.

Lingerie Hint. Those who know the annoyance of having the lingerie tape slip from the binding of camisole or gown will appreciate this simple hint. When the ing of the wall was within jumping distance from this, as he had noted in daylight. He sprang, clutched, and his wrists burned against the bricks. Drawing himself up, he dropped down on the other side, and was in the street.

It depressed him for a moment to think of the bitter misery he had dealt Chee Ming. This was not his idea of something noble. But he had wanted the small leather sack, still warm with Chinese heat.

Hatless, out of breath, he brushed the gravel from his knees, and looked both ways. The suburb was quiet, and this the continuation of a city street that became a road beyond the town. A bluish arc-light at the corner showed no one. Con turned to the left and walked rapidly. As he neared the next arc-lamp, a large black motor-car crawled out of the shadows, and drew in at the curb on his side of the road. The door opened—no light in the car. Livingston stepped into it and the door swung shut after him. The leather packet was placed in the hand of the person who sat beside him. The car whirled away.

"Have any trouble?" asked the other.

"No. It was much as you had said."

"How did you slip your friend Cecil?"

"Deacon explained adding, 'It was a shame, a fool him.'"

"I understand," replied the other. "It isn't his fault. Maybe you can straighten it out with him some day."

"I hurt that Chinny," said Livingston, half to himself.

There were no congratulations upon the small success. These two had expected to succeed, and were not surprised.

The other man was of middle age, rather slight and small. Under a soft black hat his hair showed long and gray. The lean-fingered strength of his hands, a neck might not have been considered beautiful; but to Con Livingston this man was chief, and more—a comrade and second father.

"Andrew, you have found another beginning."

QUEER JUMBLING OF RACES

Caucasian Religion Has Been Appropriately Designated as the "Mountain of Languages."

With various anti-bolshevist governments seeking a resting place and capital at one end of the range and fabulous hoards of Raku at the other, inspiring covetous imperialistic interest, the long line of mountains which separates Europe from Asia gives promise of once more attaining the headline position it so often has held throughout the ages. Made up of 400 miles of majestic peaks, in three ridges, the Caucasus stretches from northwest to southeast like a petrified wave, whose northern face mounts to the snow crest, but whose southwestern front, facing toward Turkey, seems dashed into countless precipices by the titanic forces of nature, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

The Caucasus is the most interesting rabbit warren of humanity on the globe. For uncounted ages various peoples sifted through the selected valleys, leaving a fraction of their numbers in some remote spot, so that at one time 12 Azel said that there were 300 tribes and dialects in the region, 650 miles long and 100 miles broad, which he called the "Mountain of Languages."

DECORATIVE FROCKS FOR BRIDESMAIDS

WHEN the talk is of bridesmaids frocks there is no telling the wide ranges it will travel, for here is where the bride may give range to her fancy, especially if she is to have a bevy of maids. She may choose to lend them back a few centuries in choosing styles or she is more than likely to pick out some period not so remote and revive its charm of quaint dress or she may decide to be very modern and frankly frivolous. But if she hopes to please everybody let her decide that her maids shall look demure and beautiful. They can do this in clothes with either an ancient or a modern flavor.

Taffeta, georgette and fine net, all make lovely frocks for bridesmaids and each of them amounts to an insurance of success; yet they are as different as can be. All are beautiful in light colors, and net, in white, used to veil a color, makes a practical frock that will give a great deal of service after it has played its part at a wedding. Georgette is astonishingly durable in spite of its fragile looks, and everyone knows the virtues of taffeta. A net gown that ought to please the bride who has decided to draw upon 1920 to supply the style her maids shall wear, is pictured here. Tucks, and frills, all at their prettiest in net, are used for trimming. An underskirt of net has two groups of narrow tucks about the bottom and over it a long and full tunic, wired about the hips. A frill over the wired tulle proclaims its allegiance to the old hoop skirt effect, which is the inspiration of this frock. Below the frill two groups of narrow tucks give an embroidered band of net the proper setting. The short sleeves are very frilly, with three narrow flounces as a finish, hooded with a group of tucks.

The bodice is slightly low, giving a line across the bust and shoulders that is in keeping with the hooped skirt. A frill at the neck opening has tucks and embroidered band below and at each side plain net gathered in and extending to the waist, gives an added fullness. The sash of narrow satin ribbon with hanging loops and long ends set on at each side is a charming accessory, the loops falling from clusters of little chiffon roses.

Formal Afternoon Frocks

GEORGETTE holds its own as the superlative in elegant fabrics for afternoon gowns, and will until some genius comes along who is able to excel it. It seems improbable that any thing more beautiful can be made and the refinement of georgette has made it so great a favorite with designers that they use it for many things and for all ages. But where the advantages show at their best 's in those lovely gowns for afternoon—beautiful and restrained in style—in which women put their very best efforts in gowning and which are the delight of costumers.

One of the two gowns shown in the group above, reveals what has been done with georgette in an afternoon frock for this summer. Imagine this in pale tan or in twine color with white beads used in its embellishment and little medallions of flit lace set in and edged with embroidery silk, like the gown in color. The skirt has a wide front panel of the georgette gathered at the waist and decorated with lines and crossbars of beads. Accordian plaiting and georgette were made for each other, and at the sides of the skirt there are three tiers of plaiting, followed by a gathered panel at the back like that in front. The bodice, with elbow sleeves is decorated to correspond with the front panel and has a perfectly plain vesting of the crepe. A very wide sash of satin-striped crepe is especially interesting in this dress and it is finished at the ends with tiny silk balls.

Another dress of satin and georgette is a model that stout women may pin their faith to. Its long straight lines are accented with small tassels on the skirt and the bodice is a brief affair with short sleeves that adds the skirt in its striving for graceful lines. These are formal afternoon frocks in which one may face great occasions with assurance.

Magic! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers! Truly! No humbug!

Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.—Adv.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so. But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be; but the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

A bumblebee in the bush is worth two in the hand.

ASPIRIN INTRODUCED BY "BAYER" IN 1900

Look for name "Bayer" on the tablets, then you need never worry.

If you want the true, world-famous Aspirin, as prescribed by physicians for over eighteen years, you must ask for "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin."

The "Bayer Cross" is stamped on each tablet and appears on each package for your protection against imitations.

In each package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are safe and proper directions for Colds, Headache, Neuralgia, Toothache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and Pain in general.

Handy tin boxes containing 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

Wise men look before they leap for joy.

ASK FOR "DIAMOND DYES"

Don't Buy a Poor Dye That Fades, Streaks or Ruins Material.

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist has color card.—Adv.

It's all right to try, try again, but it is better to make good the first time.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and the hearing is entirely closed. Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surfaces. ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.

"The Great Thing About Real Tobacco" says the Good Judge

is that it tastes so good, and a little chew lasts so much longer than the old kind.

The good, rich tobacco taste stays right with this class of tobacco. That's why it costs you less to chew it.

Any man who uses the Real Tobacco Chew will tell you that.
