TRAIN KILLS FOUR PEOPLE

In what is probably one of the worst accidents that has occurred in Washington county in years, occurred early Monday evening at Germantown, when four members of a family were killed, when their automobile was struck by a Milwaukee road passenger train. The victims were: a mother and her three children, namely: Mrs. John Beck aged 44 years, Archie Beck, 14 years old, Harvey Beck, 7 years old and Lorraine Beck, 12 years old. According to reports given out, Mrs. Beck and children were returning to their home at Germantown from a trip to Menominee Falls, the machine was driven by Archie Beck when the automobile stalled suddenly upon the first crossing east of Germantown, directly in the path of the oncoming train. Immediately after the car had come to a stop on the tracks, the engineer jammed on the emergency brakes in an effort to bring the train to a stop, but the distance was too short, making it impossible to stop the heavy train in time to avoid the accident. The tragedy took place shortly after five o'clock. Mrs. Beck and two younger children, Harvey and Lorraine were instantly killed, while Archie who was driving the car, lived about a half hour after the accident. Dr. Richard Delmel of Germantown was called to the scene, but the boys' injuries were such that all medical aid was useless, he died without regaining consciousness. It is reported that the remains of the wrecked automobile were tossed aside like a falling leaf and the bodies of the occupants mangled in a most horrible manner. Mrs. Beck is survived by her husband and five children. Mr. Beck is an employee of the Badger condenser near South Germantown.

NO END TO MUSKRATS

A sufficient number of muskrats to meet demands for their fur are trapped from marshes and swamps that are, for the most part unprotected, millions of skins being taken each year. So long as the natural breeding places remain undisturbed and reasonably closed seasons are maintained there is little likelihood of the numbers of the animals being depleted, according to biologists of the United States department of agriculture. With adequate protection in the breeding season and with the present habitat available, from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 pelts can be taken in North America annually without depletion of the supply.

After every morning's catch the fish are dressed, packed in ice and shipped to Chicago. The local fisher men brought home about seventy-five pounds of lake trout which they disposed of to citizens of the village in a short time.

—According to John S. Kramer, federal prohibition commissioner at Washington governmental sanction has been given for the making of wine and allowing it to ferment, provided no sugar or yeast is used. The text of the ruling is as follows: "Section 29, title 2 of the national prohibition act provides that the penalty imposed in the act against the manufacture of liquor without a permit shall not apply to a person for manufacturing non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices exclusively for use in his home, but such cider and fruit juices shall not be sold or delivered except to persons having a permit to manufacture vinegar." The bureau's interpretation of the provision is that "after such non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices are made they must be used exclusively in fact, and not necessarily less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol as provided in Section 1 of title 2 of the said act."

YIELD TO CUPID'S ARTFUL WILES

TISS-SCHIEB

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Holy Trinity church on Tuesday morning, when Miss Agatha Tiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tiss of this village became the bride of Joseph Scheib. Rev. Father Vogt officiated. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. George Gutschenreiter of the town of Hartford. The bride was prettily dressed in a brown tricot suit with lace hat to match. She wore a corsage bouquet of Ophelia roses and snap dragons. Her attendant wore a white tulle dress and black lace hat, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents with only near relatives in attendance. The newly weds left the same day for a short wedding trip, keeping their destination a secret. After their return they will go to house keeping in Seward, Nebraska, where they will be at home after August 1st, 1920. The bride is well and favorably known here, she is a graduate of the local high school, and for several years has successfully taught school in this community. The many friends of the newly weds wish them a happy and prosperous married life.

The bride was dressed in a dark blue silk taffeta gown, and carried a bridal bouquet of yellow roses. The maid of honor wore a pink silk gown with picture hat to match, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Schlegel. The bride is one of West Bend's popular and widely known young ladies, and held in high esteem by all. Mr. Keys is well known here. During his stay in this village as telegraph operator he won a large host of friends. He is now manager of the Carnation Lunch rooms, at West Bend, which business he started last November and in which undertaking he has been very successful. The Statesman joins the many friends of the newly weds in wishing them a long and prosperous married life.

From the ancient Egyptian water wheel to the modern automatic electric pump is a long stretch, but both of these pieces of machinery illustrate an institution which has had its existence throughout history wherever there has been any degree of civilization. The Egyptians along the Nile used the clumsy water wheel to lift water over the bank of the river and irrigate his fields. In small towns and cities the water supply consisted of a system of carriers who used pack animals bearing water bags made of skin. The Romans solved the matter of water supply by conducting the water for miles across the country in aqueducts. Throughout history wherever men have established anything like a civilized community they have made an effort to organize and improve the matter of water supply.

On the American farms this question of water supply has always been of great importance. The needs of live stock, of the household and frequently of irrigation have made it imperative to have a well developed water supply on the farm. Usually, of course, it comes from wells, and in the old days these wells were served by buckets placed on the end of long sweeps which constituted a very clumsy and inefficient method of drawing the water from the well. Later came the old wooden hand pump which wasn't much better, and later still the iron pump and the wind mill. This last was the first application of power other than human to the pumping of water. On a great many American farms all of these older methods have been supplanted by the automatic electric pump which works silently and efficiently twenty-four hours in the day. It draws water from the well and stores it under pressure in a tank from which it runs to faucets all over the house and barn. When a certain amount of water is drawn out of the tank the pump starts automatically and pumps in more water, until the rising pressure stops it. Thus finally the whole matter of water supply has been taken off of the farmer's mind and turned over to that best of modern service, electricity.

And of course the same electricity which does the pumping, lights the house, does the milking, the sweeping, the washing, the churning, the separating and a hundred other farm tasks.

ICE CREAM SOCIAL GRAND SUCCESS

The ice cream social given by the Young People's Society of the Holy Peace congregation, on the church lawn Wednesday evening was a grand success in every respect. This being the first attempt of the newly organization to hold a social of this kind, or any other similar entertainment, too much credit cannot be given to the members of the society who are responsible for its success. The lawn was prettily illuminated with Japanese lanterns, under which tables were placed where various refreshments were served, the kind of which could not be improved upon. The society now has a membership of about twenty, and it is hoped that the congregation as a whole will help the cause of the organization along in getting new members to join and bring the total to at least seventy-five, which can be done in proportion to the number of families now belonging to the congregation. Anything that's worth while having, is worth while giving. It is the intentions of the society to give a variety of entertainments throughout the year. Here is hoping that the day is not far distant when the Young People's Society will reciprocate last Wednesday evening's social, for all those who attended same are well satisfied with the excellent time given them.

EXCAVATION FOR TUNNEL COMPLETED

The work of excavating for the tunnel leading from the malt house to the Kewaskum Aluminum Factory will be completed today (Saturday). The cement work will be started next week when the company is ready to hire all the help available to rush this work through. Mr. Immel, foreman at the plant states that he now feels confident that the tunnel will be finished within two weeks since enough cement has arrived here to supply his needs. Being unable to get enough cement, has caused considerable annoyance to all concerned and has been the only drawback for the completion of this work. The cement which arrived here this week was ordered several months ago, and through the constant plugging of the foreman at the local cement dealers, who in return kept digging after the railroad company, finally succeeded in getting the required amount of cement through. New machinery for the manufacturing of aluminum ware is arriving daily and is being installed in the plant as soon as it gets here.

RANDALL CASE COMES TO END

Immediately upon receipt of the news that Mrs. Edith Randall committed suicide in the Waupun penitentiary Friday night, District Attorney Zabel of Milwaukee county ordered the release of Edward Flanagan the man held on a statutory charge upon information furnished the court by Mrs. Randall.

"While we have a statement from Mrs. Randall, given a few days ago, which incriminated Flanagan, we are certain that her story would not stand in court," explained Mr. Zabel. "There is nothing to do, therefore, but to release him."

That the suicide was premeditated, perhaps for several days, was shown by the carefully laid plans and arrangement of a "dummy" to prevent prison attaches from learning the truth until the latest possible moment.

The discovery was made at 6 o'clock Saturday morning when attendants went to Mrs. Randall's cell to call her for breakfast. They found her body suspended by an improvised rope of a towel and dress knotted together, from a clothes hook. In another section of the cell a "dummy" form of pillows and bed clothing was found. In the dim light of the cell room, the "dummy" was mistaken several times earlier in the morning for the sleeping form of Mrs. Randall.

Mrs. Randall had just been returned to the prison as a witness in the trial of Flanagan. In her testimony in district court Wednesday, Mrs. Randall made a confession of the circumstances which led her to shoot Flanagan.

In her confession to the district attorney Wednesday, Mrs. Randall stated that she had attempted to keep the circumstances of the case a secret in order to protect her name and reputation. The shame and publicity of the entire case is believed to have been the direct cause of the woman's act.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

ON INSPECTION TRIP

The local committee of the Tri-County Tuberculosis Sanitarium, after making an inspection of Washington County, have found seven locations out of twenty-four to come up to the requirements. The latter sites which were inspected by the tri-county committee of Fond du Lac, Dodge and Washington counties are as follows: The grounds known as the Park at Schleisingerville, owned by Charles Storck, consisting of about twenty-three acres. The Rosenheimer property on the western corporate limits of Schleisingerville, on the Cedar Lake road. This tract of land from ten to seventy acres is found to be very suitable for a sanitarium. The Dr. Kuth property, lying on the west shore of Big Cedar Lake, which contains about twenty acres. The Cedar Lake Park Hotel, located on the southwestern shore of the lake, owned by John Rosenheimer. Stege's Home on the east shore of Big Cedar Lake. Lucas Silver Brook Resort, located in the town of West Bend. The Arnold property, located on the east shore of Big Cedar Lake. All of the above named sites are found to be very suitable places for a sanitarium, being located high and dry, close to water and railroad stations. Sites in Dodge and Fond du Lac counties have also been found to be plentiful by the joint committee, however Washington county, especially Schleisingerville so far has the best chances to get the sanitarium due to most favorable topographical conditions. Each site so far offered will be carefully considered by the committee in which the price of the land will also play an important part in the purchasing of same. The location receiving the highest number of points will be selected, after which the plans for the sanitarium will be drawn. It is reported that about one hundred thousand dollars will be spent in the erection and equipment of the buildings, of which the three counties concerned will raise the money at the rate of their tax levy. After the joint committee has finally come to a decision they will report to Dr. Coon of Stevens Point, who it is claimed is an authority on locating sanitarium sites and to the State Health Department.

Loss of Appetite.

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and if you skip a meal or only eat two meals a day for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals when mealtime comes. Bear in mind that at least five hours should always elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and the stomach a period of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlain's Tablets will do it.—Adv.

VERMONT STAYS IN ANTI COLUMN

Governor Clement Refuses to Call Special Session of Legislature.

HITS STATE CONSTITUTION

Issues Proclamation Against Ratification of Amendment for Woman Suffrage—Says Other Amendments Were Forced Through.

Pensacola, Fla., July 13.—Governor Catts has refused to call a special session of the Florida legislature to take action on the federal woman suffrage amendment, local suffrage leaders announced.

Rutland, Vt., July 13.—Governor Clement issued a proclamation refusing to call the legislature in special session to make possible ratification of the federal amendment for woman suffrage.

The governor's proclamation follows a conference which he held at Washington recently with Senator Harding, at which it is understood the Republican nominee for president discussed with him the possibility of having ratification completed by the Republican legislature of Vermont.

In giving his reasons for refusing again to call a special session, Governor Clement said the proposed amendment clearly invades the constitution of Vermont; that the present legislature was elected before the question of ratifying the federal amendment had arisen, and that the people of the state have had no opportunity to express themselves on the issue.

Governor Clement's proclamation asserted that "as it stands and is interpreted by the Supreme court today, the federal constitution threatens the foundation of free popular government."

The seventeenth amendment to the constitution, he said, had been lobbied through congress and state legislatures by federal agents, and the eighteenth amendment had been forced through by "powerful and irresponsible organizations, operating through paid agents with unlimited funds."

"It is now proposed to force through the nineteenth amendment for woman suffrage in the same manner and also without the sanction of the freemen. I have been asked to overlook these considerations as a matter of party expediency, but this is a matter of principle, not expediency, and the party that invades a well established principle of popular government will suffer in the end."

Referring to the Supreme court decision barring referendums on amendments, Governor Stephens' proclamation said: "This decision leaves the people at the mercy of any group of men who may lobby a proposal for change in the federal constitution through congress and then, through the legislatures of the states."

ANOTHER VICTIM OF NIAGARA

Charles G. Stephens of Bristol, England, Lost in Attempt to Navigate Great Falls.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 12.—Charles G. Stephens of Bristol, England, died in an attempt to go over the Horseshoe falls in an oak barrel. Stephens maintained great secrecy as to his plans for taking the trip, fearing the authorities would stop him, and as a result few saw him take the fatal plunge.

The barrel was tossed out in the Niagara river from Snyder's Point, about three miles above the falls, at 8:10 o'clock in the morning. Forty-five minutes later it plunged over the precipice of water at a point about one-quarter the distance across the horseshoe from the Canadian shore.

For several hours watchers waited for the barrel to resurface below the falls. The Maid of the Mist, the starch little steamer that takes sightseers up to the foot of the falls, picked up pieces of the oak receptacle, and Stephens was put down as another victim of Niagara.

Mexico City, July 10.—Article 27 of the Mexican constitution, which nationalizes petroleum deposits, will be sustained theoretically, but all decrees issued by former President Carranza prejudicing prior rights of petroleum owners will be abrogated by a presidential decree to be issued shortly.

Provisional President Adolfo de la Huerta made this statement while conversing with foreign correspondents here.

The right will be given to oil men to pre-empt petroleum claims within five years, but once pre-emption is made they will have an indefinite time within which to drill, the provisional president said.

It was the first interview he has given to the press since during a banquet to foreign correspondents he was taken ill while giving a dramatic recital of his break with Carranza. Five generals have taken up arms against the new Mexican government, the provisional president told the foreign correspondents, but he declared they did not constitute a military menace, since they had but very few followers.

ADMITS KILLING HIS WIFE

State's Attorney Office at Chicago Announces Wanderer Has Made Complete Statement.

Chicago, July 10.—Carl Wanderer confessed to the killing of his wife and the mysterious stranger who were found dead three weeks ago in the residence of the Wanderer home, according to a statement given out at the state's attorney's office.

After an all-day grilling of the former army lieutenant in the office of the state's attorney, George Kenny, secretary of Mr. Hoyle, came out to announce that Wanderer admitted misleading the police in their investigation of the affair and that he had fired all the shots in the double slaying at 4723 North Kimball avenue.

"I murdered them both," he said, simply.

Then he began a cold recital in the office of State's Attorney Hoyle that horrified his audience.

"I didn't want anyone else to have her if I couldn't," he said. "I wanted to get back to the army. I thought it would be better to have her dead."

He also wanted to obtain her savings—$1,500—he explained.

CAPITAL MENACED BY RUSS

Americans and Other Foreigners in Warsaw Consider Emergency Plans in Event Bolsheviks Peril City.

London, July 13.—Minsk has been captured by Russian bolshevik forces, according to an official statement received here from Moscow, which says the soviet troops occupied the town on the morning of July 11.

Minsk is the capital of the Russian government of the same name and is situated on a branch of the Beresina river approximately 250 miles northeast of Warsaw. For some time the Russian soviet forces have been converging on Minsk from the north and south and the position of the city has seemed to be serious.

The fall of Minsk would seem to indicate that Vilna, about 100 miles to the northwest, is in immediate danger of capture.

Warsaw, July 13.—Americans and other foreigners in Warsaw are considering emergency plans in the event the bolsheviks menace the city. The Red Cross and other welfare organization members discussed plans for the evacuation of the city and also for the care of American property.

Col. Harry Gilchrist, chief of the expedition to combat typhus, has called a meeting to organize a chapter of the American legion. At the meeting, the question of offering the services of the legion to the Polish government will be discussed.

The legion members will guard the American property and look after the Americans who may remain in Warsaw if the bolsheviks arrive here. It is estimated that there are 200 Americans, former service men, in Warsaw.

The American Relief association, the Red Cross, the Young Men's Christian association and the typhus expedition have in warehouses in Warsaw various supplies valued at millions of dollars.

Spa, July 13.—Premiers Lloyd George of Britain, Millerand of France, and Grabsky of Poland conferred on the soviet problem.

Following the receipt of the soviet offer to accept the British conditions for reopening trade, given to Krassin, the bolshevik envoy, in London, Mr. Lloyd George urged the allies to recognize the bolshevik and tried to prevail on Grabsky to make an armistice with the reds.

M. Millerand is still objecting, but may consent. Grabsky is ready to make peace with the bolshevik if he can be assured of a suitable eastern boundary for Poland.

Assistant State's Attorney Lloyd Heth told the jurors that Lloyd and the other defendants had repudiated the Stars and Stripes and had adopted the red flag of Russia.

They advocated the dynamiting of armories and banks, the placing of rifles in the hands of the proletariat and a bloody destruction of the agencies of law and order so that the country would be governed according to the third international of Moscow.

SIGN ALLIES' TERMS

Germans Agree to Reduce Army to 150,000 Men.

Berlin Cabinet Accepts Terms Relating to Disarmament—Protest Occupation of Ruhr District.

Spa, Belgium, July 12.—Germany's delegates signed at 11:45 Friday morning an engagement accepting the terms of the allies' note relative to disarmament presented Thursday. This action was taken by the German representatives under protest.

The allies' note, which amounted virtually to an ultimatum, demanded that the Germans accept the terms presented by noon Friday, and stipulated that, in the event of the German's failing to carry out the provisions of the demands, forces of the allies would occupy parts of the German empire, including the Ruhr region.

The Germans protested, in signing the engagement, that the treaty of Versailles did not obligate them to acquiesce in further territorial occupations except for failure to fulfill the treaty terms regarding reparations.

The decision of the German cabinet to obey the allies' demand was reached at an early morning session, the vote being unanimous.

A unanimous decision also was taken by the cabinet that the allies should be informed that Germany could not accept the stipulations concerning possible occupation of the Ruhr and other territories, provided the disarmament was not executed according to the allies' judgment.

The final decision of the allies sets forth that Germany must: 1. Immediately disarm certain of its forces, including the security police.

2. Publish a proclamation asking for the immediate surrender of all weapons and firearms in the hands of the civilian population.

3. Abolish immediately compulsory service.

4. Surrender to the allies all arms, guns and cannon which it possesses above the limit fixed by the treaty of Versailles.

The allied decision concerning disarmament reads: "If on October 1 the German army is not reduced to 150,000 the allies will proceed to occupy German territory in the Ruhr or any other part of German territory, and will not evacuate it until all the conditions of the present agreement have been fulfilled."

Premier Lloyd George said that after the three days of discussion on the question it must be closed immediately. The treaty had not been executed, he asserted, and instead of 100,000 rifles there were 3,000,000 in Germany, and six times as many machine guns as the treaty allowed.

FORM 3D PARTY; BOOM LA FOLLETTE

Generally Believed the Senator Will Be Nominated.

MAY BALK AT RED PLANKS

Henry Ford Announces Headquarters Too Radical and Closes Headquarters—Coalition of Many Groups Finally Completed.

Chicago, July 14.—A third national political party was born in Carmen's hall in this city. Formation of the new party was brought about by the coalition of the committee of Forty-eight and the Labor party of the United States after seven other political groups represented here had joined with them in a new political movement.

Union of the committee of forty-eight with the labor party was brought about by the action of the delegates voted against the action of its leaders and taking negotiations into their own hands voted to amalgamate at once with the labor group.

This action was taken after the conference committee on organization and procedure and platform of the two groups had deadlocked after a night of wrangling.

Farmer-Labor Party.

Name of the new party was the final obstacle in the way of a complete agreement, but indications pointed to the adoption of the name Farmer-Labor party as the name which best describes the new alignment.

United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette is expected to be the new party's nominee for president. Henry Ford's boom collapsed when Charles S. Hoffman who had opened Ford headquarters at the Morrison hotel announced that the new party platform was too radical for the automobile manufacturer.

Program of Organization.

Chief features of the program of organization and procedure recommended by the joint committees and approved by the new party convention are:

1. That the new party's national organization shall confine its activities during 1920 to the election of a president, vice president and members of both houses of congress.

2. That the basis of organization of the party shall be as follows: A national committee composed of three members from each state, at least one of whom shall be a woman, shall be elected. This national committee shall elect an executive committee of nine to manage the 1920 campaign.

The national committee members of each state shall compose the executive committee of the party in such state in the management of the national campaign.

3. That the existing national committee of the labor party shall be deemed elected to the national committee of the new party. At least one of the national committeemen in each state shall be a member of the committee of forty-eight and at least one shall be a member of the labor party. Vacancies shall be filled by joint caucus of the present national convention of the new party and any vacancies later occurring shall be filled by the executive committee.

Conduct of State Campaigns.

It was agreed that political activities of state organizations of the new party shall be conducted in the following manner:

1. In all states where the labor party has an existing organization which has arranged for the placing of a ticket in the field or where a ticket has already been placed in the field, that organization shall be the recognized state organization for the 1920 campaign.

2. In all states where the committee of forty-eight has made similar arrangements, its organization shall be the recognized state organization in the 1920 campaign.

3. In all other states the labor party and the committee of forty-eight shall co-operate in state and local campaigns and shall put amalgamated tickets in the field.

The constitution of the labor party was approved as the basic law under which the new party shall operate temporarily. A committee was appointed to draft a new constitution for the party which will be submitted to a referendum of the state organization for approval and rejection on or before July 1, 1921.

The constitution by more than one-half of the separate state organizations shall establish the new constitution to go into effect on August 1, 1921.

"In cold weather and when it was damp, my joints and muscles would be stiff and my limbs were so badly affected it was only with great misery I was able to get around. For a week I was laid up in bed, hardly able to move hand or foot.

PRINCESS OF TAU KUAN.

Synopsis.—Cornelius Levington, well-born, an orphan, comes to manhood through the devious ways of the underworld. He is saved for a better life by Andrew March. The strange adventures of "Yellow Men Sleep" begin when Con takes by force a small leather sack from Chee Ming, the Chinese cook of an acquaintance. This sack contains a Chinese map of the Gobi desert, which is precious beyond price to Andrew March. Eighteen years before armed men in the Gobi had taken March's wife and infant daughter from him. Now he sends Con in search of them. On the voyage Con finds Chee Ming a fellow passenger. Con is shot by a poisoned dart, and while he is in the consequent stupor his map is stolen. On the river boat to Peking he again sees Chee Ming, and realizes they are seeking the same destination. Con is saved from a fatal blow by March, and starts on his mission westward with a caravan. After weeks of difficult travel he reaches the little settlement of Shan-sung and reads instructions from Andrew March to the effect that Con has been made a federal agent to search out Chee Ming, who has brought quantities of kerosene, a deadly drug, to San Francisco. At Shan-sung Con is unexpectedly joined by March. The two Americans press forward into the desert. Armed horsemen swoop down on them, rob them of everything and leave them to die in the desert. March has a map tattooed on the sole of his foot. They press on, suffering incredible hardships. Again they are attacked by horsemen, in command of a sentinel in gray.

CHAPTER VII

The Blend of Tau Kuan.

They were not consigned to a jail. Such a fate would have been a disgrace. Such was traceable to the spoken command of the gray rider at the top of the ravine road.

But it would not have greatly mattered to Con if they had run him through their lances. His limbs were dead with fatigue, his nervous system deranged by thirst. He had scarcely a mental surface upon which to receive the wonder of these things about him, the walls and the forested heights, the red blocks of desert quartz. Andrew March was in a fever. Levington found that his friend had grown strange to him, as if in America he had never glimpsed the true March. The companionable, big-hearted man of fifty was gone, with the substitution of a gaunt, dark person, of no land or period, a living ghost of the Gobi, product of sands and barren hills only, the sun, cruel winds, and utter wilderness.

Con did not know this Andrew March who was silent and glitter-eyed. But the pain of the knowledge was dulled like everything else.

"Might I have a drink?" he asked of the nearest, as his eyes closed again. The coolness of fountain spray was in his nostrils, hurting him curiously, and the ineffable sweet smell of green sod was a release like death itself.

They lifted him from his horse. He saw for a moment many low archways and sheltered walks. The stone flagging was like cold knives under his bruised feet. The hands of those who held him were strong as iron. The tinkle of water sounded near in the pleasant gloom, and Levington cringed at the torture, until a white cup was held to his lips. Startled, he opened his eyes; and then came the half-dark again at the touch of water upon his tongue. His sigh was a groan, and he was gone.

The last sunlight reached in through a high window, falling golden across a bath of clear water, level with the stone floor. A censor had been lighted, and its soft fumes went to Con's head like wine. They had roused him. Big hands were placing him infant-wise upon the shallow steps of the bath, in the sun-warmed water. Levington drew a breath that seemed to have no end.

A purple curtain was drawn across the high window, taking all save a mellow glow of light from the pool. Big hands were placing him infant-wise upon the shallow steps of the bath, in the sun-warmed water. Levington drew a breath that seemed to have no end.

The white men jogged behind their captors, and accepted the city and palace as a noble illusion. The beauty was bitterness, for they dared not believe, they had not the strength.

"It's all over," cried Con. "My eyes are gone."

"Too far," said March, "too far." The ditches were cool. The main road passed between patches of unfamiliar vegetation, pale green. The palace seemed to leer from narrow eaves, a thin smile that was evil and secret. Its mass had a strange red cast, like the rust of the desert. At the southern end of the inclosure was a grove of trees, nothing less than North American white oaks, somewhat stunted, their tops showing just above the rim of the city wall. Levington looked again over the shoulder of his captor, and was even further from admitting these things to himself. The western plains were beginning to veil under the violet mists of evening. Higher the palace lifted as they approached, like an unnatural hill of bright roofs, and many apartments perched in fantasy, to be reached by some inner miracle of stairs. Now from the city itself a murmur ran around the white men, like invisible bees.

The notched wall had but a single broad crenel. Beneath its masonry, ancient and perfect, they rode five abreast. A crowd was gathered, to witness the arrival of trespassers from a strange world. Gray and brown faces stared up at Levington. In them a furtive malice shined.

Some of the people wore sandals, but most were barefoot, and not every man showed a queue. Faces at latticed windows were heavily veiled. Children ran about naked and screaming. Old men, large of frame but falling and spent, stood over their sticks and gaped in ugly amazement. The common dwellings were close packed under the fortifications, while the palace was set further within, a wide lawn separating it from all else. Three white foot-

"What time is it?" he inquired. "It is near sunset," said a voice, also in English, and only then did Con realize that he should not have expected it. Chee Ming stood near, having noted the fustian process to his finish. He bowed slightly, and the folds of his white robe fell away from the narrow bosom. There was something strange about being so near him again.

"Thanks," said Con. "I appreciate all the attention; but I don't understand it." "I do not understand," replied the Chinese. "But somebody must—"

"It is the will of our princess," Chee Ming said with quiet hostility. "Does she wear gray, and ride?"

When the yellow man had nodded, my gratitude. Or show me how I can tell her myself. It seems you are sort of prime minister here."

Chee Ming answered coolly: "I have the honor to be known as vizier at this court."

Levington made his gravest gesture of respect.

"Chee Ming did not choose to hear, and simply walked away. Con fingered a perfect effect of barbering upon his smooth, hard chin. Again the servant came, now bearing folds of soft white cloth, his purpose to scrub the white stranger in it. A mysterious white boggy, too complex to follow. Padded sandals were placed beside the couch, and a satin turban built up in intricate laminations upon Levington's head. Tartar fashion. In the attendant's eyes was a kind of patient, evil humor.

The balcony was more properly a flat roof, leading out from the apartment. The western sun shone into the rooms, brightening every color of woven silk. There was a second divan in the inner chamber, obviously not for masculine use, rose-faded, yielding to the touch like new fleece. A tapestry of astronomical device, blue and silver, covered one wall of this room. Above the outer doorway was sheathed a huge iridescent sword with

A maze of hoofs tangled about him, but through this a clear voice sounded—and again. The gray figure, the sentinel, was standing up in the stirrups, with right arm upraised, and the clear call of command was repeated. Swords thrusts were halted, and the mad horsemen reared back in obedience to an imperious gesture.

A circle widened around the two white men. The wild horses stood trembling and disappointed. A further command came from the person whose face was again hidden by the left forearm upraised, and who now spurred away out of sight. A whispering loudened among the battle-riders, a low giving and taking of advice. Four of their number dismounted, and Con felt the familiar leathern thongs tightening about him. The white men were lifted up and set behind two broad-backed horsemen, and the entire party moved at a walk up the ravine road.

"Ask for water," called Con to his comrade.

March did so, in native speech, but no heed was given. The party emerged abruptly upon an open plain at the head of the road.

Here was the wonderland they had come to find, the treasure for which generations of elect-wanderers had given their lives. Levington stared dully, believing it all a mirage.

Spread out as far as the eye could discern, lay a green valley, moist and fertile. An evening breeze drifted the fragrant earthy breath of life. Fields were level and marked into squares by ditches.

In the middle distance was a city of red stone, its battlemented wall enclosing roofs that gleamed. There was, rising above all, a palace, its many-angled roofs and long eaves blocked against the west; sun's fire flared back from its lofty embrasures.

It was mansion set upon mansion, each with the stonework of its own age, a maze of narrow walks in irregular layers, puzzling in the mist, all in a mad, pointing harmony of architecture.

The white men jogged behind their captors, and accepted the city and palace as a noble illusion. The beauty was bitterness, for they dared not believe, they had not the strength.

"It's all over," cried Con. "My eyes are gone."

"Too far," said March, "too far." The ditches were cool. The main road passed between patches of unfamiliar vegetation, pale green. The palace seemed to leer from narrow eaves, a thin smile that was evil and secret. Its mass had a strange red cast, like the rust of the desert. At the southern end of the inclosure was a grove of trees, nothing less than North American white oaks, somewhat stunted, their tops showing just above the rim of the city wall. Levington looked again over the shoulder of his captor, and was even further from admitting these things to himself. The western plains were beginning to veil under the violet mists of evening. Higher the palace lifted as they approached, like an unnatural hill of bright roofs, and many apartments perched in fantasy, to be reached by some inner miracle of stairs. Now from the city itself a murmur ran around the white men, like invisible bees.

The notched wall had but a single broad crenel. Beneath its masonry, ancient and perfect, they rode five abreast. A crowd was gathered, to witness the arrival of trespassers from a strange world. Gray and brown faces stared up at Levington. In them a furtive malice shined.

Some of the people wore sandals, but most were barefoot, and not every man showed a queue. Faces at latticed windows were heavily veiled. Children ran about naked and screaming. Old men, large of frame but falling and spent, stood over their sticks and gaped in ugly amazement. The common dwellings were close packed under the fortifications, while the palace was set further within, a wide lawn separating it from all else. Three white footthrons was vacant. A human form occupied the place of state on each side. The one, a prince, sat motionless, his black hair woven with strands of silver, a green diadem upon his forehead, from which jewels shone like a far cluster of stars. His face was narrow, yellow as wax, and blank. Long, tapering hands rested upon the dragon-heads. His robe was worked with silver and emeralds, and the royal sandals were bright upon a mat of raw silk.

But Levington was looking at the other figure, a princess, who likewise waited very quietly upon her throne with hands folded in her lap. The brown tresses that yesterday had streamed down the gray cloak of the supposed sentinel were now bound high and stuck with jeweled pins. Her throat was closely wound with diamonds. The body of the princess was small. Upon her countenance was an expression of untried powers, or so Levington imagined, for he could not look away from her face, which was dark but not yellow. Her eyes, which seemed all the while to study the rug, had no upward line, although her brows slanted delicately. She was very unlike the prince—unlike any one else. In his silent prisoner was troubled. He had an impulse to cross the marble flagging, and kneel at her feet.

From a further portal Andrew March was brought in, and halted near his companion. The group of warriors stood behind the prisoners, who had no opportunity for exchange of words. Then a stiff sudden whisper passed over their heads, followed by a sharp silence. Chee Ming had entered the room.

In his pearl-bordered robe, which was more voluminous than that of any other person in audience, he carried himself with solemnity before the assembly, bowed with feeling at the foot of the dais, until, at the faint stirring of the prince's hand, he straightened himself, mounted the first level of the dais, and began to speak. He disregarded the princess. Levington thought of the night Chee Ming had served the coffee in the Wedger dining-room, and of his first impression of that small head, stony face, and lean, everlasting body. Cecil Wedger, in his gold-tipped ignorance, had seen nothing more than a Chinese cook who could cook. Now the same thin arms were gesturing before royalty, and seemed much more at home. The talk was meaningless to Levington, although it bore upon his fate, for the speaker's glance turned again and again to the sterner, dark princess. Once—or was it only a trick of his sun-racked vision?—she lifted her eyes to meet his, and her lips moved silently. It was done so quickly for him to be certain. He trembled. Chee Ming was making a speech of some length, with his little back toward the assembly.

Before it was finished, the princess arose and, with a stir among her retinue, stepped down from the dais. Her feet were small and perfect, her ankles bound with gray ribbons. Through the haze in the room her jewels gleamed, and the whisper of her robe conveyed more to Levington than all Chee Ming might be saying. A curtain near the throne was drawn aside, and she was gone.

Con is condemned to die after a month.

Before It Was Finished the Princess Arose and With a Stir Among Her Retinue Stepped Down From The Dais

graven hill. Standing beneath it, Con looked out across the roof upon the valley of many fields, squared off neatly as far as he could see. To the north were vineyards and flocks of sheep. The sun was lowering beyond this world, sending back a flood of orange radiance. Levington raised a thin white goblet to his lips, and drank of cold water.

A messenger prostrated himself across the sunny threshold, then arose, standing erect before the prisoner-guest, and showing his smooth stupid gray face, muscular neck, animal eyes, and thick ears. Con fumbled in his white garments for a pocket, for a coin.

The slave wished him to follow, and, without being able to inquire what might be expected of him, the white man obeyed, down a rock stairway to the courtyard, onward amid the arches and low stone fences, beyond another fountain. He wondered where March was, and if they would be able to escape.

He followed on through a dim hallway, where the scuffle of many slippers was echoing, and the soft chime of bangles, moving always inward along dim, dusky corridors. Standing at intersections were bowls of alabaster, each with a swimming, flaming wick in oil. Many other figures in the semi-darkness appeared to be going in the same direction. Racial characteristics puzzled him.

He found himself in a great vaulted chamber, inside a lofty pyramid of glass. The gray slave made abasement previous to entry, repeating the gesture every five paces. All others of inferior cast did likewise as they proceeded deeper into the room.

Huge silk curtains were swaying in the breeze. The lower walls were indistinct with rich, deep tapestry covering bare rock. He heard a purring like the echo of many distant bells, and a hundred censors of stone steps were clouding the royal twilight.

Human figures, grouped in background along a further side, seemed insignificant. Levington's horrid instincts were freshened before his eyes. He forgot he was prisoner. His attendant guided him around the border of a dragon-rug toward the waiting group of men. He saw that they were warriors in council.

They had forsaken the leathery gear of the desert, and were cleanly apparelled in silken tunics, but they retained their swords. He glanced instinctively in the direction in which all eyes were turned, and noted a large dais, its canopy reaching out above. He was standing before a throne.

Three heavy chairs were upon it, narrow and high-backed, with carved dragons for their arms. The central throne was vacant. A human form occupied the place of state on each side.

The one, a prince, sat motionless, his black hair woven with strands of silver, a green diadem upon his forehead, from which jewels shone like a far cluster of stars. His face was narrow, yellow as wax, and blank. Long, tapering hands rested upon the dragon-heads. His robe was worked with silver and emeralds, and the royal sandals were bright upon a mat of raw silk.

"LOOK OUT FOR THE CARS"

DO YOU know anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroad need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads around about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

It's just business, that's all, to ADVERTISE IN THIS PAPER

Plymouth Self-Feed ENSILAGE CUTTERS

"Plymouth" Feed Cutters are the result of twenty-five years' experience and practical study of conditions and needs in the farm and dairy field. They embrace every advantage known to other similar machines, and many vital features which are original with us and can be had only in the "Plymouth Self-Feed." Below are some mighty strong points for you to think about before you buy a feed cutter:

AUTOMATIC SELF-FEED—This feature consists of a traveling feed chain, made of heavy iron slats securely riveted to a chain which passes over the lower feed roller. Throw the fodder into the feed box and the "Plymouth" does the rest.

DANGER-PROOF SELF-FEED ROLLERS—Here's another strong feature original with the "Plymouth." It consists of four large rollers of cast iron. The traveling feed chain passes over the lower hind roller, just passing the lower front roller, which is six inches in diameter, and smooth. The two upper and lower hind rollers are ribbed. The 8-inch automatic roller at the top, to the rear, is a special feature of the "Plymouth." It acts as a lever or weight to keep the fodder passing through continuously, depending on its own gravity to keep the material going through without a hitch. Two coil springs serve to exert an even and steady pressure on the automatic roller as the volume of fodder increases in going through. The spring feature is entirely automatic, and is only to be had in the "Plymouth." It absolutely prevents clogging.

STABLE FLY NOW SERIOUS MENACE

Bite of This Insect Is Far Different From That of Other Little Pests.

IS CAUSE OF HEAVY LOSS

It Breeds in Accumulations of Various Kinds of Vegetable Matter and Also in Manure—Spraying Is Not Satisfactory

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. The acute pain produced by the bite of the stable fly brings to any man a sudden realization that this biting insect is pointedly different from the house fly or typhoid fly, although hitherto his opinion may have been that the two were identical.

Cause Heavy Losses.

At times this fly becomes excessively abundant and occasions heavy losses among nearly all classes of live stock. Year in and year out it is a source of great annoyance, especially to horses and cattle, and is an all-too-common and persistent pest.

The adult stable fly resembles the house fly, but is slightly broader and feeds principally on the blood of animals, which it draws with its long, piercing mouth parts. It breeds in accumulations of various kinds of vegetable matter and also in manure, especially when the latter is mixed with straw. When straw stacks become wet soon after thrashing the flies breed in the decaying straw, and it is in this set of conditions which produces the severe outbreaks.

Spraying Not Satisfactory. Spraying animals with repellents is not very satisfactory, but the numbers of stable flies can be kept down by caring properly for stable refuse and by stacking or otherwise disposing of straw. The United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., has prepared a bulletin "The Stable Fly," which will be sent on request. It gives complete instructions for the control or prevention of this pest.

RAISE SUCCESSION OF CROPS

It is Possible to Have Several Good Crops for Table Use During Summer and Autumn.

By keeping all the garden space stirred and fresh for seedling it is possible to make a succession of plantings of several good crops to have them for use for a long season. By planting sweet corn, for example, early in the spring and then a couple of short rows about every two weeks till the middle of summer, it is possible to have sweet corn for table use for several months during the summer and fall. Sweet corn may be planted at intervals from April to the last of July, and bunch beans during the same time. Radishes may be sown and coming in for use in a fresh state from March till the first of September in central latitudes.

It is impossible here to enumerate all of the good things that can be had fresh from the garden during the middle of the summer and through the mid-months by keeping all the vacant spaces seeded and through sowing or setting out plants between rows of crops that will soon be out of the way.

SUMMER SPRAY AIDS APPLES

Low Farmers Make Profit of $10.75 From an Investment of 60 Cents on Each Tree.

A profit of $10.75 from an investment of 60 cents is the sum made by the Iowa farmers who co-operated with the Iowa experiment station and their county agents in the summer spraying demonstrations. In each of 11 orchards in 10 counties representing every section of the state, there were 10 trees sprayed.

SORE SHOULDERS OF HORSES

One of Common Ailments Which Animals Are at Work—Ill-Fitting Collar Is Cause.

One of the common ailments of horses when they are at work is sore shoulders. Sores on the points of the collar being too wide or too long. The remedy is to put on a different collar or use a pad.

Insure Quality of Milk.

In order to insure the best quality of milk for delivery, it should be cooled to 50 degrees Fahrenheit, or below, as soon as possible after milking and kept at that point until it is delivered.

The Young Turkeys.

If the weather is warm and dry no shelter is required, as the points do better in the open. Should it be rainy, however, they need to be protected, for being more inebriated than for them to become wet and chilled.

HIGH PRICES FOR EGGS

Here are some of the ways: Select pure breeds that lay more or larger eggs, such as the White Leghorns, Wyandottes, Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds or Orpingtons.

Give better care, food and shelter, with dry, clean, vermin-proof nests.

Confine males except in breeding season.

Collect eggs frequently, especially in hot or muggy weather.

Store eggs in a dry, clean, cool place.

Use small and dirty eggs at home.

Market frequently, with protection at all times from heat. Sell for cash on a basis of size and quality, "loss off," instead of "case count."

Use an attractive package.

Combine shipments as a matter of economy.

SCIENTISTS HELPING BLUEBERRY INDUSTRY

New Jersey Grower Obtains Most Luscious Berries.

Instance of What Is Being Done Commercially by Men Who Utilize Information Given Out by Department of Agriculture.

Luscious blueberries—many of which are three-fourths of an inch in diameter—that sell for $10 a bushel! Such is the product secured by a New Jersey grower, whose principal business has been growing cranberries but who more recently took up the cultivation of blueberries. At present he has 30 acres which he planted, with carefully selected wild blueberry stock and, in part, with hybrids furnished by the bureau of plant industry of the United States department of agriculture. Not only are the berries on this tract of very high quality but the yield is prolific, the older plants producing at the rate of nearly 100 bushels to the acre. The plantation is situated at Witsbog, near Browns Mills.

The success of this grower is but one instance of what is being done commercially by men who are utilizing the information supplied by the department of agriculture scientists.

The latter have made a study of blueberry culture for several years, and are able to furnish data regarding the best varieties and the most suitable soils. Of particular significance is the fact that blueberries thrive best on peat and sand soils, so acid as to be considered worthless for ordinary agriculture. Thus through blueberry culture it is possible to utilize many tracts which have been regarded as especially hard and unpromising.

FEEDING TROUGH FOR SWINE

Farmer Can Pour Slops Into Receptacle Without Having Pigs Climbing His Legs.

The feeder can pour slops into this trough without having an earnest and overhungry litter of pigs climbing his boot legs and spilling the feed from the bucket. It extends possibly a foot on the outside of the pen and makes feeding easy and simple. The two uprights will be needed to hold the trough in place. That common accident of having part of the slop spilled by the hogs or having them thrust head and shoulders under the stream from the pail will be prevented by this.

ALL STOCK LIKE SOY BEANS

Crop Takes No More Than Do When Planted With Corn That Does Weeds—Leaves Make Silage.

Soy beans take no more moisture when planted with corn than do weeds and the leaves make rich silage. The labor of caring for soy beans with corn is no greater than for corn alone. Properly cured, the crop is relished by all stock.

RAPE EXCELLENT FOR SWINE

Leaves Contain High Percentage of Protein—Little Tankage Needed to Balance Ration.

Leaves of rape are high in percentage of protein to dry matter, and pigged corn or barley or rape pasture do not need more than one-twentieth tankage or its equivalent in oilmeal, buttermilk or skim milk to balance the grain.

The Panama Hat.

Among the duck breeds of ducks none has a wider vogue than the Pekin which is equally as popular in Massachusetts and New York as in California. Indeed, it can almost be said to be the basis of the duck industry in this country.

Permanent Immunity.

The use of anti-bub cholera serum and cholera virus in producing an absolute permanent immunity against swine cholera is the greatest asset the swine industry has.

SPORT STYLES ECLIPSE OTHERS

SPORTS styles—not sports clothes—appear to have put everything else into eclipse for midsummer wear. A sort of festival spirit seems to have taken possession of designers, and clothes for morning, afternoon and night have a pastime flavor, as the two afternoon costumes shown here bear witness. Of course these two costumes were never intended for anything more strenuous than a promenade or tea dance or hand concert, but in the great sport of wearing pretty apparel they will do their owners' undispensed credit, and this is a leading pastime of fair women now, as it always has been. We should be grateful for the passion for lovely colors and beautiful materials that has enthralled the hearts of the world. Everywhere there is color to please the eye and daintiness to charm the mind.

Gossip About Blouses

IT HAPPENS that the blouse of smock of georgette crepe is an all-year-round garment, so that one may buy it at any time and anywhere, and use it until it is worn out. This is fortunate, for just now manufacturers have placed numbers of new blouses with retailers at prices that are lower than they have been for some time. From the present outlook they will not be lower, and the fall demand may see them move up again, so now would seem to be a good time to buy either the ready-made blouses or the georgette for making them.

Nearly all midsummer styles reveal the edges of elbow length, rany frills, and several styles in collars that are higher at the back and have square or "V" shaped front openings. There are always some round necks. New vests of net, tugged or trimmed, help to give the new models, and tucks play their usual important role in them. Besides these there are some lovely slip-over kimono blouses, with yarn flowers that stand out on them in prettily colored clusters. These are done with a chain stitch, that is combined with embroidery stitches in floral motifs that look like small bouquets fastened against the blouse.

Panama Hat Decorations.

The annual panama hat has taken to decorating itself with many bright colors. Some have crowns of bright-colored cretonne, some are painted in patchwork design and some have the brims lined with gold tissue.

Attention to Feet.

That one's stockings can carry the burden of proof for the success of a chic street costume is proved by a fad which combines with a plain suit of navy tricot and a navy hat, mauve silk stockings and patent leather pumps. In fact, more attention is being paid to the feet now than for some time past. French sandal cuts on American shoes are gaining in favor, and now, if one has courage, one can wear red kid pumps, or at least black patent ones with red Louis heels.

Relaxed Red Bandanna.

A close relation to the red bandanna is seen in a novel handkerchief of scarlet linen bordered with a white stripe. Navy blue handkerchiefs are also among this season's novelties. They have very narrow hems, sewed by hand. In the corners a design is embroidered in threads of bright contrasting color.

DAN MEETS COUNT

By BARBARA SANDS.

(©, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) Daniel Allenby found he leaned back comfortably in one of the heavily upholstered chairs of his favorite barber shop.

"Do your best by me, Tony," he said to the barber. "I've an important engagement tonight, and it is imperative that I look my best."

"All right," returned Tony. "I'll give you a haircut fit for a king."

"I thought that kings, like poets and bolsheviks, always wore long, wavy locks," remarked Dan. "As long as I get one fit for a count I'll be satisfied. I'm going to meet a count tonight—my sister's fiance. He is a count—my sister's fiance. By the way, an Italian. I don't much like the idea of having a brother-in-law with a title, though. His kind doesn't marry to much as a rule, and usually marries for money. I wish I knew if he was after Helen's."

"Oh, not all our aristocracy are degenerate," defended Tony. "May I ask the gentleman's name?"

"He is the Count Vitelli."

"I have heard of him. He is reputed to be very wealthy in his own right, so it is unlikely that he would marry for money."

"I wish I was sure of that," said Dan thoughtfully.

Meanwhile, at Miss Estelle's exclusive beauty parlors, in another part of the city, Dan's sister, Helen, was preparing to make a favorable impression upon her brother's bride-to-be.

"I must look my best tonight, Mary," she confided to the pretty and intelligent-looking manicure girl, whom she had come to regard more as a friend than a servant. "Dan is going to bring his fiancee to meet me and the count."

"He must be a fine man," agreed Mary. "But do you think you will like the girl who is going to marry your brother?"

Helen looked dubious. "I'm not sure," she answered.

At eight o'clock that evening the count stopped his Fordster at the curb in front of the Fontaine. At the door he was greeted eagerly by Helen, for there was a love match, pure and simple.

Meanwhile, Dan and his fiancee were speeding toward the Fontaine home in the former's runabout.

As the two entered the living room, Helen and the count stood up and turned to greet them. As the nobleman faced Dan, the latter stopped in his tracks, his face assuming an expression of incredulity, which, however, soon changed to one of anger.

If he had noticed, he would have seen precisely the same emotions reflected upon the pretty face of his sister as he gazed at his fiancee. For a long instant the four stood as though made of stone. Helen was the first to speak.

"Why, Dan," she cried, "what—"

But her sentence remained unfinished, as Dan gave vent to his anger with explosive speech.

"So this is your count!" he cried. "This is the adventurer who invited you into accepting him with his lies about money and a title! A count! Why, he's no more a count than I am the king of Siam! He's nothing but a common, ordinary barber, and he has shaved me every day for the last six months! I'm unprincipled scoundrel," he yelled, turning to the impostor. "Pill—"

But his throat was halted in the middle by his sister, who had placed her arm about her lover as though to shield him from the wrath of her brother.

"Dan!" she cried, her voice choked with anger, "will you stop abusing poor Tony long enough to tell me what you mean by getting engaged to this common manicure girl and leading me to believe that she was an authoress? Why, she has been mailing my nails at Celeste's for the last three months. Haven't you any regard for the family name?"

Dan reached out and drew Mary into his arms.

"Common manicure girl!" he cried, so angry that he could hardly see. "Mary isn't a manicure girl. She has just been working at Celeste's to get first hand information for a new novel she is going to write in a variable number of days. Her father is James P. McNary, the copper magnate. As for you," he continued, releasing Mary and taking another step toward the Italian, "the quicker you—"

He was again interrupted by his sister.

"Stop!" she cried. "I won't stand here and listen to you insult Tony. He is a count, and he was only working in a barber shop because I told him that I wouldn't marry him until he had proved that he could earn his own living for six months. And the six months was up today. So there!"

And she stamped her little foot and regarded her brother defiantly.

Dan returned her look blankly, only half comprehending. Then Mary and the count, who had taken no part in the conversation, caught each other's eye and began to smile. Gradually the smile turned into a chuckle, and then to a laugh. Dan and Helen surveyed each other comically. In a moment the corners of their mouths began to twitch, and in a short time the laughter was unanimous.

A moment later Helen and Mary were embracing each other, while Dan and the count were shaking hands with a man's grip.

Handicapped by Height.

As a rule very tall persons are said to be over-sensitive about their height to such a degree that it often proves a handicap in the way of their success in life. A notable instance of this character was the nine-foot giant of Russia, Makhnow, who made a fine living by exhibiting himself, yet he was the most miserable person on account of his height.

BUSINESS EXPERIENCE

Business teaches one how to meet people in business.

Business shows one how to bring success and order into the home.

Business teaches that results are the final argument for advancement.

Business teaches a man how to attend efficiently to his daily tasks.

Business proves that success comes with live interest and constant effort.

Business proves that good business habits are good living habits.

Business proves that business is closed to the worker who is not at his post.

Business teaches that increased usefulness is the key to increased earning power.

Business demonstrates that good morals and good manners are as important as good merchandise.

Business teaches that complete living consists of occupation, education and recreation. The three bring happiness.

Experience is the best teacher and transcending business is a valuable experience. Experience is better than theory though the science of business is, doubtless, of great value when applied in business transactions.

Record Harvest Predicted for Canada.

After having made a careful survey of the wheat producing area of the United States, experts whose business it is to keep the people informed on the acreage sown to foodstuffs state that this year there will be a falling off in the wheat production in the States, due to a comparatively less area cultivated. The opinion of these experts is that the decrease will be several hundred million bushels of wheat less than in previous years, which according to past experience will be scarcely sufficient to meet the requirements of the demands of the people of this country.

In Canada, however, the situation is different. Reliable reports on the crop situation throughout Western Canada are such as to create the most substantial optimism. Never before were the prospects so encouraging for a bumper harvest. It is predicted that the yield this year will be even greater than in 1915, the year of the record harvest in Canada, when the total production was 333,542,600 bushels. Not only is the wheat looking excellent, but the same is true of oats, barley and flax, of which a greatly increased acreage has been sown in the great grain producing provinces of Canada.

The rains that have fallen recently have come at the right time to stimulate growth and there is now considerable moisture in the ground. With the world generally facing a shortage of wheat and a continued heavy demand for it, the price is likely to be maintained at the present high figure.

In many districts corn has been more extensively planted than in previous years and it is looking remarkably well. Many settlers from the United States who came to Western Canada and bought improved farms in the early spring have every prospect of a crop yield that will give them a return sufficiently large, after paying all current expenses, to pay off a large part of their capital investment.

Livestock is in excellent condition everywhere, the rains having induced a good growth of grass.—Advertisement.

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact:

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such painful spells that would unfit me entirely for my household work. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and I would have to have an operation. That was an awful thing to think of. I was a young baby and four other children, so one day I thought of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it had helped me years before and I decided to try it again. I took five bottles of Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Banative Wash and since then I have been a well woman, able to take care of my house and family without any trouble or a day's pain. I am ready and thankful to wear your medicine any time. I am forty-four years old and have had a day's illness of any kind for three years."

Really Little He Could Do After Such a Declaration From His Adored One. In the bush of the twilight they lingered by the gate. He was full of hope, but fearful to try his luck, while she—well, her fair face was lit and drawn with determination.

Presently, after a silence long and deep, she began: "I will never—"

Her eyes met his pleading orbs with an intensity of purpose which made his heart quail. "Wed any man?"

His bronzed face paled and he felt as if he stood on the brink of a chasm of despair. Then, with a politely cool smile on her curved lips, she continued: "Where is the bell?"

"Present company?" Again she paused and he waited in feverish anxiety for her next words. "Always accepted?"

And soon the wedding bells will be ringing for him and his girl. "Passing it Along."

"What is meant by an embarrassment of riches?" inquired the man who always wants to know something. "I couldn't say, offhand," replied the delegate. "Ask some delegate whose campaign fund has been oversubscribed."

"Has a Kind Nature." "She says she refused no fewer than six offers of marriage." "How thoughtful and considerate of her."

Rhode is under bond at Sheboygan on the criminal charge.

THE DAYS FOR SMALL COOKIES.

During the warm weather, when one eats lightly of rich cake, the small cakes and cookies seem especially fitting. A variety may be prepared and many kinds improve with age. Chocolate Cookies.—Take one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of shortening, one-half cupful of sour milk, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one egg, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful of walnut nuts and two teaspoon of chocolate. Drop from a teaspoon on buttered sheets.

Frosting—Take three cupfuls of sugar, one whole egg, beaten, three tablespoonfuls of cream. Add the sugar a little at a time, until smooth and well blended. Spread on the cookies when nearly cold. Fruit Cookies.—Take three well-beaten eggs, one scant cupful of shortening, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and soda, the latter dissolved in half a cupful of boiling water, one cupful of coconut and one pound of dates, chopped fine, one teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful each of lemon and vanilla extract. This makes forty small cakes.

Macaroons.—Take one cupful each of sugar, cornflakes and coconut. Beat the whites of two eggs until stiff; add the sugar gradually, then the coconut and cornflakes, with two tablespoonfuls of flour. Flavor with vanilla. Drop on a baking sheet by teaspoonfuls. This makes two dozen small cakes. Another Very Nice Macaroon.—Take one cupful of sugar, two egg whites, two cupfuls of cornflakes, one cupful of ground nuts, salt and vanilla. Combine as in above recipe and bake in a moderate oven.

Oatmeal and Coconut Macaroons.—Cream one tablespoonful of butter; add one-half cupful of sugar, one egg, well beaten, one and one-half cupfuls of ground rolled oats, which have been lightly browned, and one-half cupful of coconut. This recipe makes two dozen cakes. The little touch may hurt the most—A harsh or contentious mood. May light another's darkness away. Or pierce a spirit broken. —Mrs. Field.

COOL DISHES FOR HOT DAYS.

Frozen dishes, cooling drinks and gelatine dishes of various kinds are especially agreeable for this season of the year. Fold in the whip from two cupfuls of heavy cream. Let stand thirty minutes to harden before serving. Cafe Frappe.—Beat the white of an egg slightly, add one-half cupful of cold water, and mix with one-half cupful of ground coffee; turn into a scalded coffeepot, add one quart of boiling water and boil three minutes. Let stand on the back part of the range ten minutes; strain, add one cupful of sugar, cool and freeze to a mush. Serve in trapezoidal glasses with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored.

Strawberry Ice Cream.—Take two quart of strawberries, hull and sprinkle with one and three-fourths cupfuls of sugar. Let stand one hour, mush, and rub through a sieve. Scald one and one-half cupfuls of milk, add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of arrow root to a half cupful of milk. Add row root to the milk and cook ten minutes. Cool and cream, freeze to a mush, add the fruit and finish freezing.

Snow Pudding.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water, dissolve in one cupful of boiling water, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-fourth of a cupful of lemon juice and one and one-fourth cupfuls of orange juice. When beginning to thicken fold in the whites of three eggs beaten stiff.

Some persons have this on a card that is posted on the wall beside the instrument but this sometimes does not look very attractive. It is better to attach them to a card that hangs on the phone intended for this purpose. For instance on the card the busy housewife should have the numbers of the butcher, baker, grocer and other tradesmen.

Exclusive Agencies Cost You Money

Probably you are a man who believes in getting full value for every dollar. If so, you want to know some of the facts about exclusive agencies. Exclusive dealers have no competition on the brands of roofing they sell, and some of them charge any price the purchaser will stand. Then, too, they generally charge more for the roofing they sell, because they usually have to ship their roofing from a long distance and therefore buy under greater handicaps. Now you know that unnecessary stocks boost the cost of doing business. Figure it out for yourself—interest on the money invested—storage cost—insurance against loss by fire, theft and other causes. It all costs money. And naturally you, the buyer, pay this added cost. Certain-teed cannot see this way of doing business. Any responsible dealer can sell Certain-teed.

Certain-teed Way Saves Money

He carries only the stock he needs and keeps it filled by frequent orders from a nearby Certain-teed warehouse or jobber. He pays the same price per roll whether he buys one roll or a thousand. This saves him money. And naturally you benefit as well as he. In Certain-teed you get the highest quality roofing. It has never been known to wear out on the roof. It is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to weight. It is weather-proof, fire-retarding and spark-proof. Any reliable dealer can get Certain-teed for you quickly from a nearby Certain-teed warehouse or jobber. He gets it when he wants it and he gets what he wants. He can afford to sell you at a fair price.

Certain-teed Beware of the dealer who tells you he has Certain-teed, but tries to sell you a private brand. He probably wants a bigger profit.

Tire Problems Solved.

Did you ever think that some day some one would invent a device that would solve the Tire Problem? The "Maxotire" is the answer. Thousands are using "MAXOTIRES." Some, of course, with the first casing but many with the second, third and even the fourth. Surely, "MAXOTIRES" must be saving owners considerable money, time and eliminating grief, or there would not be such a great MAXOTIRE demand. No difference how much they save others, they will do you no good unless you USE MAXOTIRES. They will save you buying tires and tubes so often. You can wear your tires down to the last thread—often more than doubling the mileage.

What "Maxotires" Are

They are not "Reliners." They do not reline the casing but encircle the tube completely—holding the pressure within themselves—GET THE DIFFERENCE.

"Magic Rubber Mend"

is successfully used for repairing casings and inner tubes in place of the expensive process of vulcanizing.

Maryland in History.

The city of Baltimore was founded in 1728, Frederick in 1745 and Georgetown in 1751. Maryland played an honorable part in the Revolutionary war, and in 1781 congress met at Annapolis, where, on December 23, after the conclusion of peace, Washington resigned his commission as commander in chief. In the war of 1812 the state suffered severely. Fort Mifflin was bombarded by the British that in September, 1814, this battle being the occasion for the writing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by Francis Scott Key.

Holds Picture Nail Solid.

When a wall is so soft that it will not hold a picture nail, mix a little plaster of paris in a teacup; enlarge the hole to a fair size and insert the plaster—and, a minute after, the nail—and let it dry. The nail will be perfectly secure after it has dried.

Optimistic Thought.

Good temper is like a sunny day. It sheds its brightness on everything.

Summer Complaint in Children.

There is not anything like so many deaths from this disease now as before Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care is taken as to diet, it is safe to say that fully ninety-nine out of every hundred cases recover. Mr. W. G. Campbell of Butler, Tenn., says, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for summer complaint in children. It is far ahead of anything I have ever used for this purpose."—Adv.

How many miles did you march the summer Cleveland was nominated

REMEMBER the time the first automobile parade was organized? Even the good old torchlight procession had to give way before the advance of progress.

Tires are often sold the same way politics are.

The last people to wake up to what they are getting are the people who pay the bills.

The bills are getting too big these days in both cases. And the man who is feeling it most with respect to tires is the man who owns a moderate-price car.

The idea that the small car owner doesn't need a good tire is rapidly going the way all mistaken ideas.

He needs it more than anyone else. It's part of our job, as we view it, to see that he gets it.

Our tire service starts with good tires—U. S. Tires. All sizes made to a single standard of quality—none graded down to the price of the car they will go on.

U. S. perfected the first straight side automobile tire—the first pneumatic truck tire.

The U. S. guarantee is for the life of the tire, and not for a limited mileage.

When we recommend and sell U. S. Tires we do so in the interest of greater tire economy. It is our experience that that is the best way to build up a sound and sizable business.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.

For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.

For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Cords.

ROYAL CORD—NOBBY—CHAIN—USCO—PLAIN
