CAMPBELLSPORT YOUNG LADY WEDS

The St. John's parsonage at Dundee was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Miss Lorraine Johann Schimmelpfennig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schimmelpfennig of Campbellsport was united in marriage to Charles C. Rudolph of Milwaukee. Rev. C. Aeppler performed the ceremony. The bride wore a pretty gown of georgette crepe over white satin, beautifully braided, and she wore a corsage bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Elsie Koepke of Milwaukee, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and was dressed in a white crepe de chine dress and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Miss Clara Paasche, of Fond du Lac acted as bridesmaid and also wore a gown of white crepe de chine and carried pink roses. The groom was attended by Edward Rudolph, his nephew and Arthur Schimmelpfennig, a brother of the bride. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the members of the immediate families of the couple. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, with about seventy-five guests in attendance. The house was decorated in pink, green and white crepe paper, asters and roses. A wedding dinner was served to the relatives and intimate friends, the tables were prettily decorated with cut flowers and ferns. The newly weds left Sunday on a ten days' wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside in Milwaukee and will be at home to their friends after October 1.

DEPOT ILLUMINATED WITH ELECTRIC LIGHTS

The Chicago & North Western Railroad company had electricians at work at the local station this week wiring and installing electric lights. There are four lights in the office room, one large one in the waiting room, two in the freight house, one in the order signal block and five on the outside along the west side of the depot, one of these platform lights is placed at the south end of the depot and another at the north end. The installing of electric lights at the depot is something the railroad company has been in dire need, and the installation of which the citizens of this village have long looked forward to and often wondered why the company did not take the necessary steps. Station Agent A. P. Schaeffer, who did not lose courage, constantly kept in touch with railroad officials until he finally succeeded in having them make the change, thus doing away with the old method of the kerosene lamps, which not only furnished a dim light, but were very unhandy and dangerous at all times. The new method of illuminating the depot makes quite an improvement and has created considerable interest to the citizens and passengers awaiting trains.

CLOSED SEASON FOR MUSKRATS AND MINK

The Conservation Commission of Wisconsin has given out the following orders for the protection of muskrats and mink. There shall be a closed season on muskrat and mink in all counties of the state except in the counties of Waupaca, Winnebago and in the townships of Bloomfield and Poyssippi in Waushara county until November 15, 1921. In the said counties of Waupaca, Winnebago and in the townships of Bloomfield and Poyssippi in Waushara county the open season on muskrat and mink shall be from November 15 to March 31, both dates inclusive. This order is issued pursuant to the powers given the said Commission in Section 29.18 of the Statutes and shall be in full force and effect on and after October 20, 1920.

TRAINS CHANGE SCHEDULE

For the benefit of those who want to take the Sunday evening south bound passenger train to Milwaukee, and especially to those who have often times missed their train on account of changes made in the regular schedule, we wish to call attention to the fact that train No. 218, south bound, due here at 7:02, Sunday evenings only, has been discontinued, and passenger train No. 220, due here at 7:35 o'clock south bound will again make its regular stops. Please bear this in mind tell your neighbors and friends, so there will be no disappointments which so frequently has been the case formerly.

Mrs. Keach Tells How She Got to Know Rat-Snap

"Have always feared rats. Lately noticed many on my farm. A neighbor said he just got rid of droves with RAT-SNAP. This started me thinking. Tried RAT-SNAP myself. It killed 17 and scared the rest away." RAT-SNAP comes in three sizes, 35c, 65c, $1.25. Sold and guaranteed by Edw. C. Miller and Henry B. Ramthun.—Adv.

TOWN OF WAYNE PASTOR HONORED

Rev. Weber, pastor of St. Peter's and Zion's congregation of the town of Wayne, was tendered a very agreeable surprise last Sunday by the members of the congregation. The occasion being his 45th anniversary as a minister and his 10th anniversary as pastor of that congregation. The event was secretly arranged by the members, for which great preparations were made to bring same to a successful conclusion. The festival which was largely attended, not only by members of the congregation but from other congregations, and others, and by a large number of ministers, was held in the open at the Zion's church. The brass band from Brownsville was present to furnish concert music and to lead the hymns during the services. Rev. Grote of Neosho was the principal speaker of the day and had chosen as his text, Acts 26, 22-23. The president of the congregation congratulated Rev. Weber in behalf of the conference and presented him with a writing desk as a token of esteem. The choir of the church rendered a number of selections and Mr. Roediger, teacher of the school at Hochheim read a fitting poem in honor of the occasion. The elders of the congregation congratulated Rev. Weber and presented him with a sum of money as a still further mark of esteem and respect in which he is held. The ladies of the church served a delicious supper to the celebrants. Besides Rev. and Mrs. Reicht of St. John's church the following ministers attended: Rev. Uhlman and Rev. Toepel of town Herman, Rev. Walter and Rev. E. Pietz of Lomira, Rev. Philip Koehler of Iron Ridge, Rev. Bender of Milwaukee, Rev. Bergfeld of Schleisingerville, Rev. Narmacher of Ashippun, Rev. Bretcher of Lebanon, and Rev. Otto of Brownsville. The celebration was a happy event for the pastor and plainly showed reward of the good work done in the past, and it was a celebration which will be long remembered by him and all who participated.

NEW SUGAR MAKING METHOD

The big sugar factory at Menominee Falls is under a state of reconstruction and the installing of new machinery, preparatory to equipment for conversion of raw cane sugar, has been completed. The Menominee Falls News of recent date states that the work, carried on over the winter and spring months, represents a substantial expenditure in labor and material which enables the Sugar Co. to carry on an all-year operation with little or no interruption between the beet season and that of cane. An item of interest in connection with this enterprise is that the Wisconsin Sugar Co. is the first in the United States to adopt the Norit process, a Holland invention, which is termed a new decolorizing carbon, and bids fair to create radical changes in raw sugar refining methods, as under the Norit system bone char is no longer required. The process has been for a number of years in practical use in Europe and results prove that the sugar refined by the Norit process can be guaranteed to be the equal of any granulated sugar refined by the bone char process. Pending the decision on the part of the officials of the Wisconsin Sugar Co. to launch out in the same, careful inquiry was made by them and they visited plants in actual operation. The Wisconsin pioneer mill can claim the distinction of being the first beet sugar plant to produce refined cane sugar with the Norit process.—West Bend Pilot.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

An exhibit at the State Fair last week that attracted considerable attention and favorable comment was the exhibit of the Allenton-Kohlsville cow testing association.

The object of the exhibit was to show the results of breeding grade cattle to pure bred bulls. Three generations of grade Holsteins, Dam, daughter and grand daughter were shown.

The Dam owned by Louis Pamperin gave under association test 12,237 lbs. of milk containing 410.5 lbs. of fat. Her daughter owned by John Mayer gave 467 lbs. of fat from 12,754 lbs. of milk. The grand daughter has never freshened but gives greater promise than either her Dam or granddam.

KEWASKUM PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN

The public schools opened last Tuesday with the following teachers in charge: Miss Kleiber, primary department; Miss Elsie Guth, intermediate department; Miss Olive Haug, grammar department; Miss Stines and Miss Owens, assistants in high school and C. W. Dupee, principal.

The grammar and intermediate departments show a larger enrollment than usual for the first days, while the primary and high school departments are about the same as in former years.

The small freshman class in high school is the most noticeable feature in the enrollment. This must be expected, however, when we stop to consider that the parochial school had no 8th grade class last year, that a very small class graduated from our own 8th grade in June and that there were not many graduates in the rural schools near here. While the freshman class may not boast as to its size or quantity it may well be proud of its quality; the freshman class alone cannot boast of its quality however, as each of the classes has entered upon the new year with a spirit of earnestness, desire to work, for a real school spirit of which any school may well be proud.

Students who have not enrolled as yet but expect to do so in the future would do well to enroll at the earliest possible convenience. Late enrollments make the work very difficult for the individuals and interferes with the progress of the entire class.

Visitors are cordially invited at any time.

A FEW BOUQUETS

"The Statesman, published at Kewaskum by Messrs. Harbeck & Schaefer, entered upon its twenty-sixth year with its last week's issue. The Statesman is a newsy sheet and since being taken over by the new owners has made rapid advances both in makeup and in the quality of news matter. More success to you, worthy colleagues."—West Bend Pilot.

STATESMAN HAS BIRTHDAY

With the last week's issue the Kewaskum Statesman entered its 26th year. During the past year the owners, Messrs Harbeck & Schaefer have added many new features to their popular weekly, thus giving their readers a paper worth many times more the subscription price. We extend hearty congratulations to these enterprising gentlemen."—Random Lake Times.

STATESMAN HAS BIRTHDAY

The Kewaskum Statesman came to our table last week starting on its 26th year. The Statesman is a bright newsy paper, always working for the interest of that village and community and the people are to be congratulated on having such a live representative. It is well filled with advertisement and presents a prosperous appearance. Bros. Harbeck & Schaefer accept our congratulations and best wishes.—Campbellsport News.

GIVEN SURPRISE PARTY

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ketter of Campbellsport tendered them a pleasant surprise party at their home Wednesday evening. The occasion being their fifth wedding anniversary. The evening was spent in music and singing. Mr. and Mrs. Ketter receive many useful gifts.

OPENING OF EXCLUSIVE GROCERY STORE

On Saturday, September 18th, 1920, the former Nicholas Marx saloon, which was successfully managed by John Marx and which was closed on July 1st, for the purpose of having same changed into a grocery store, will be opened to the public with a complete line of groceries. All the old fixtures have been removed and new fixtures put in their places. Along the east and west walls shelves have been built, all stocked up with groceries, nicely, neatly and artistically arranged. In front of the shelves are two large new oak counters with drawers and show cases. Besides these counters there will be two more large ones installed as soon as they arrive here. The rear of the store is partitioned off and will be used as the office equipped with up-to-date office fixtures and furniture. The front part is equipped with two large plate glass show windows extending the full width of the store. The interior has also been given a new coat of white paint. In fact the changes made are so complete that no one will ever be able to detect from general appearances that the store was ever used for saloon purposes. The building will be heated with a pipeless furnace. The part formerly used as a grocery store will now be used as a storage room. John Marx proprietor will at all times keep on hand a full line of fancy and staple groceries and fruits, also a full line of school books, tablets and supplies. Besides the handling of a full line of groceries Mr. Marx will in the future, as in the past continue to sell and buy stock food and grain at the best market price. For the opening, Mr. Marx will sell groceries at reduced prices, as a special inducement. The opening of this store marks the first exclusive grocery store in Kewaskum. Everything has been neatly, tastefully and invitingly arranged, together with the best of accommodations and conveniences and is equipped with modern furniture and fixtures, which make it rank second to none in comparison to any grocery store located in villages the size or even larger than Kewaskum in the state. It is a credit to this village. Mr. Marx, who has had years of experience in the grocery business will do everything in his power to conduct same to the best of satisfaction to his customers, and invites the general public to step into his newly equipped store and also to take advantage of the special bargains offered on groceries on the opening day at his store. Here is success to you John.

LOCALS TAKE ANOTHER GAME

The local base ball team won their initial game on the home grounds last Sunday with St. Kilian by a score of 4 to 15. The visitors did not have their regular lineup and were in no position to put up their regular game of ball. Next Sunday the Kewaskum team will play the strong Newburg team on the home grounds. It will be remembered that Newburg gave our boys a close run for their money in a game at Newburg a few weeks ago, when the Newburg team lost their only game of the season. The visitors are determined to even matters up a bit next Sunday. Quite an exciting game can therefore be looked forward to. Kewaskum certainly has splendid material for the making of a good team. The battery consisting of Aug. Bilgo Jr., as pitcher and Hubert Wittman as catcher is as good as can be found anywhere among the amateur teams.

BATAVIA

Mr. and Mrs. H. Leifer spent Thursday at Milwaukee.

Florence Kohl of Sheboygan spent Sunday at her home here.

The base ball game played between our boys and Random Lake at Random Lake was won by our boys by a score of 2 to 8.

Miss Dorothy Cappelle and Victor Cappelle of Kohler spent a few days with their grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Leifer.

FIFTY YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE

Mr. and Mrs. John Rosenheimer Sr., Schleisingerville, Wis., two of the best known and most highly respected citizens of the county, were most royally surprised Wednesday evening of last week, when all of their children and immediate friends unexpectedly dropped in upon them to help them fittingly celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. The celebration was enjoyed by Mrs. John Rosenheimer Jr., and nothing left undone to make it an event that will linger long in the minds of the venerable couple until the parting of the ways, and will likewise be remembered by those present into the golden days of their harvest and when they may likewise have the same distinction of celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Mr. Rosenheimer is the owner of the Cedar Lake Park Hotel and Summer Resort, and it was there that the celebration was held. The guests had previously gathered in one of the buildings adjoining the hotel and about fifty strong they suddenly marched in upon Mr. Rosenheimer and his good wife. Congratulations and felicitations were passed around, after which the assemblage went to the spacious dance hall where they made merry until about 11 p. m., when they were invited to the hotel dining room which had been fixed up in the meantime in a most profuse manner, and where a sumptuous banquet was served. Covers were laid for fifty guests and the tables presented a beautiful sight with their many bouquets of flowers, gifts from the children and relatives and friends. In front of the celebrants was a large bouquet of fifty roses, while next to this was a gold loving cup from the children with the inscription: "50 years, 1870—Sept. 1—1920". Jos. Rosenheimer, a brother of the host, acted as toastmaster, and called upon those present for remarks, all replying in a most flattering manner and related incidents in their lives which had endeared them to the golden wedding couple. Numerous telegrams had been received and were also read at the banquet.

Mr. Rosenheimer was born in the town of Polk, this county, June 25, 1848, and when a child his parents moved to Schleisingerville, then merely a trading point and where he grew to manhood and associated himself with his father, Lehman Rosenheimer, in the general mercantile and implement business. Later Mr. Rosenheimer and brothers took over the business and conducted it for many years until the co-partnership was dissolved, and John Rosenheimer took over the implement business and his brothers the mercantile department. Mr. Rosenheimer had studied in his boyhood days for a veterinary surgeon and for many years practiced in Schleisingerville and surrounding country. A record of distinction and no little pride is established in the fact that he had ably served the village as postmaster faithfully for forty years, being appointed to the position of postmaster in 1877 and retiring in 1917. About twenty-six years ago he took upon himself the task of establishing a summer resort at Cedar Lake, which would rank as one of the best in the state. Selecting a most beautiful site upon the south shore he erected a hotel and his place soon became one of the most popular in this section, and each summer he has had a greater patronage than he could possibly accommodate. The Cedar Lake Park Hotel is known far and wide among travelers as being a place where all could be assured of the best of service and accommodation, and hospitality that could not be beat.

Mrs. Rosenheimer, nee Mary Mc Neil, was born in the city of New York January 12, 1846, and is in her seventy-fourth year, two years older than her husband. When a little child her parents came to Wisconsin, settling at Ackerville and where she grew to womanhood and before her marriage she taught school in the neighborhood.

September 1, 1870, the then young couple decided that they were meant for one another, and they were united in marriage at Ackerville, and immediately went to housekeeping at Schleisingerville, where they have made their home without interruption for half a century.

The couple was blessed with five children, all with the exception of one son, Lehman, who died three years ago just as he was to enter the army were present to assist their parents in their honored event. The children are John Rosenheimer Jr., of Schleisingerville; Meyer Rosenheimer, who stays with his parents; Barbara (Mrs. J. E. Reichert) of West Bend, and Marie (Mrs. E. T. Monroe) of Hartford. They also have six grandchildren. Both Mr. and Mrs. Rosenheimer have a number of sisters and brothers who were present at the celebration.

Mr. Rosenheimer is a substantial type of business man, one who has done his part in retrieving the virginity of many years ago. He was never afraid to take a chance and succeeded where others failed and as a result he has acquired a comfortable fortune.

Officers and Crew From Sunken Submarine S-5 Taken Aboard Steamer.

SAVED BY TELEPHONE BUOY

Men Imprisoned in Underwater Craft for Two Days Before Being Pulled Through Hole in Hull—Boat Is Towed Ashore.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—Radio messages flashed from the army transport General Goethals to the Philadelphia navy yard via Cape Cod told of the rescue of the officers and crew of the submarine S-5 after they had passed nearly two days locked in the disabled vessel beneath the Atlantic ocean, 55 miles south of Cape Henlopen.

The submarine, S-5, which was partially flooded, is being towed to the Delaware Breakwater by the steamer Alanthus. The crew and officers of the submarine are safe aboard the steamer.

It was 3 o'clock a. m. when Lieutenant Commander C. M. Cook, who exercised his prerogative of being the last man to leave his vessel, was taken aboard the steamer Alanthus.

Nine hours had elapsed since the plight of the undersea boat had been made public through a wireless call, picked up by an amateur operator in Farmington, Conn.

It was a small buoy, a development of the world war, together with the vigilant eye of a lookout on the bridge of the transport General Goethals, that gave the 30 men on the submerged submarine S-5 their chance for life.

The small buoy, with a bell and buzzer device that can be operated when the boat is submerged, is part of the equipment of the latest type submarines. It was cast loose when the S-5 went down. The lookout on the General Goethals saw it, being attracted by its bell, as well as the fact that it was not noted on the chart.

A small boat, with an officer in charge, was lowered from the transport to investigate. When the buoy was reached the buzzer device could be heard.

The officer cut into the connection, and quickly there came this message:

"The submarine S-5 has been submerged for thirty-five hours. Air is running short. Machinery is damaged. Send for help."

This plea was sent broadcast by the wireless of the General Goethals. Among those who responded was the steamer Alanthus which with the army transport stood by the submerged vessel and managed to attach grappling hooks to its stern. Holding the submarine in a vertical position, a hole was bored through its plates and air pumped through to the suffering crew, who had almost given up all hope of rescue.

In the meantime the call for help had been picked up by the navy wireless station and by command of Secretary Daniels destroyers were rushed to the rescue from Philadelphia, Newport News and New York.

Before all these vessels had had time to reach the spot word was flashed that all the crew had been taken aboard the steamer Alanthus. The wireless did not tell how the rescue had been effected or what vessels besides the Alanthus and General Goethals, if any, had assisted. It merely told that all were safe aboard the Alanthus.

None had been injured, although all had suffered for lack of air. It was 1 o'clock when the first man was taken off the submarine and more than two hours later before Lieut. Commander Cook left his vessel.

AMBITION SPURS RECRUITS

Dancing Instructor Enlists to Get Close-Up of Hula-Hula in Hawaii.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The adjutant general made public a number of letters that destroy the old theory that young men enter the army only as a last resort.

Private Charles Barbrick of Coopersville, Mich., enlisted to learn the automotive game and to become a star wrestler. Walter T. Jones, a university graduate, entered in the meteorological section to become a weather sharp.

The queerest reason of all for enlisting was given by Wilbert J. Root of Lullington, Mich., who unblushingly confided to the army recruiting officers that the hula-hula and the ukulele were his prime inducements for enlistment. "I want to see both on the sandy beach at Waikiki, Hawaii," declared young Root.

Oregon Wins Presidency.

Mexico City, Sept. 8.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon, candidate of the liberal constitutional party, won a decisive victory in the elections held throughout the republic for the purpose of choosing a president.

September Snow in Illinois.

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 8.—The crew of a Washash train reported that the train ran through a heavy snow and hail storm between Essex and Custer Park. The ground was covered and corn was riddled.

Threatens to Kill American.

Mexico City, Sept. 6.—Pedro Zamora, the Jalisco bandit, has threatened to execute B. C. ("Sandy") Gardner, an American citizen, and W. B. Johnson, a British subject, who were kidnaped by Zamora's band.

DR. PAUL S. REINSCH

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, former United States minister to China, has announced his resignation as legal adviser to the Chinese government. Dr. Reinsch is to be the Democratic candidate for senator from Wisconsin.

MINERS ON VACATION

60,000 Workers Walk Out in Anthracite Region.

President Lewis Calls Out Bituminous Miners in Alabama—Wilson Approves Wage Award.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 3.—At least 60,000 workers in the anthracite region are idle, following a strike vote taken by 300 delegates representing 65 locals of the United Mine Workers of America. The delegates voted to take a "vacation" until the operators accede to their demands. No less than 56 collieries are tied up, and many others are only 50 per cent efficient, according to representatives of insurgent leaders.

The Wyoming division of the Lehigh Valley Coal company and the lower division of the Shenandoah Collieries company were hardest hit by the walkout. The Stanton colliery of the Lehigh Valley was in idleness and other collieries were operating with only 50 per cent of their normal working force. Seven collieries of the Shenandoah company are closed.

Indianapolis, Sept. 3.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, issued an order for a general strike in the bituminous coal fields in Alabama. The order followed a report made by the organization committee of the international executive board. The report said the coal operators had failed to put into effect the awards of President Wilson's coal commission of last March. It said the miners were working for wages far less than those specified by the commission, and contended every attempt to arrange a conference with the coal operators of Alabama had failed.

BERLIN SCORNS RUSS OFFER

German Foreign Minister Says He Had Been Urged to Collaborate With Reds Against Allies.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—Dr. Walter Simons, the foreign minister, addressing the reichstag foreign affairs committee declared that he had been urged to collaborate with the Russian bolsheviks against the western powers as a means of breaking the bonds imposed by the treaty of Versailles, but that after mature reflection he had rejected this course.

"If we had followed these exhortations," explained the foreign minister "Germany would immediately have become a theater of war. Furthermore, the disastrous consequences which bolshevism might be expected to bring with it would have fallen with double force upon Germany."

FOREIGN COMMERCE IN GAIN

Both Exports and Imports Show Large Increases, Says Department Report.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Exports of the United States to the principal countries of the world during July totaled $65,183,827, an increase of $82,694,312 over the corresponding period last year, according to department of commerce figures. Imports for the same month amounted to $57,170,351, an increase of $108,414,281 over July 1918.

U. S. Debt Goes Up.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Federal guarantee of railroad earnings resulted in an increase in the public debt of $101,755,000 during August, according to treasury figures showing the nation's gross debt to be $24,324,672,000.

ITALIAN LABOR DEBATES RISING

Seizure of Factories by Metal Workers Considered Starting Point.

THREATS MADE BY STRIKERS

Government Optimistic, as It Retains Confidence in the Good Sense of the Workers, Says a Dispatch to Paris.

London, Sept. 8.—Seizure of Italian factories by metal workers as the starting point of a general taking over of industry, is advocated by Italian extremists at the meeting of the heads of the General Federation of Labor and the Metal Workers' union and representatives of the Italian socialist party at Milan, says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from that city.

Moderates attending the meeting have insisted upon an agreement with employers as long as the government does not interfere.

In the meantime workers are in possession of virtually all metal establishments in Italy. Employers are still rejecting claims from employees for last week's wages, which were refused because the workers were in possession of the shops.

Strikers at Turin, the dispatch says, have announced that if troops are used in an attempt to drive them out of the factories, they will wreck all machinery.

Italian metal workers, says a Rome dispatch to the Herald, organ of labor, have decided that all factories which deny them necessary materials will be occupied.

The dispatch quotes the Rome newspaper Avanti as saying if the government interferes, a general strike will follow.

Many of the metal workers in Italy remained Sunday in the factories they had seized, according to a dispatch from Rome, without their occupation giving rise to any disturbances.

Work in some of the shops was again normal in consequence of the employers consenting in advance to accept an agreement, which it is hoped will eventually be reached between the employers and the workmen.

Paris, Sept. 8.—Dealing with the situation created by the seizure of factories by metal workers in several Italian cities, a Havas dispatch from Rome says:

"The government, although conscious of the seriousness of the situation, is continuing to refrain from regarding the present demonstrations too gravely, retaining confidence in the good sense of the workers and the conciliatory spirit of the employers."

"In Milan the police drove off a party of workers which was attempting to seize control of a factory. 'The employers and workers at Viareggio have reached an agreement, and work will be resumed immediately.'"

FRENCH TAKE 2 TURK TOWNS

Capture of Aintab and Urfa Is Announced at Constantinople—Meet Obsolete Resistance.

Constantinople, Sept. 8.—Aintab, a city in Asia Minor, 52 miles northeast of Aleppo and the scene several months ago of a massacre of Armenians by Turks, has been taken by French troops. The city was held by two Turkish brigades.

French forces are marching on Marash, 37 miles northwest of Aintab, and are meeting with obstinate resistance from Turkish nationalist troops. Marash has been the scene of a number of encounters between the Turks and Armenians during the last few months.

The capture of Urfa, in Asiatic Turkey, 75 miles southwest of Diarbekir, by French forces, is also announced here. A strong French column was recently reported marching on Urfa, which had been held for some time by Turkish nationalists.

BUSINESS MEN MADE GUARDS

West Virginia Judge Changes Deputies as Murder Trial Opens at Williamson.

Williamson, W. Va., Sept. 7.—Forty-two deputy sheriffs who have been on duty in Mingo county since the coal strike was called, several months ago, were dismissed by Judge James Damron, and 20 Williamson business and professional men were appointed in their places.

Judge Damron's action was taken before he opened the September term of the circuit court, at which 27 men charged with murder in connection with the Matewan shooting, May 19, were to go on trial.

POLES WIPE OUT FOE

Cavalry Under Budenny Annihilated Near Lemberg.

Engagement Results in Defeat of Bolshevik Troops Along the Entire Center Front.

Warsaw, Sept. 4.—The bolshevik army of General Budenny, noted cavalry leader, was annihilated during the operations in the Lemberg sector which began August 20 and ended Wednesday, says the Polish official statement on military operations issued here on Thursday.

Isolated detachments of the Budenny forces succeeded in escaping and are in disorderly retreat.

General Budenny's mounted men had been endeavoring to break through the Polish lines and march upon Lublin. They had nearly completed an encircling movement against Zamosc, midway between Lublin and Lemberg, but were outflanked by the Poles and attacked from the east, the communication routes.

The engagement resulted in the defeat of the soviet forces along the entire center of the front, and the Russians were compelled to retreat in disorder with the Poles in close pursuit.

The bolsheviks lost heavily in killed and wounded, adds the statement, the Poles capturing thousands of prisoners, 16 guns and enormous quantities of material.

The fighting centered in the Zamosc region, the battle taking the form of numerous cavalry clashes with the infantry filling in the gaps and attacking all along the line simultaneously, the operations were carried out in accordance with the Polish battle plans which had led the Russians into traps where they were attacked from all sides.

POLAND TO GET NEW NOTE

State Department to Urge Guarantee Be Given That Russia Won't Be Invaded.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The department of state will dispatch a new note to Poland urging that guarantee be given at once that the Polish armies will not pursue any "unnecessary invasion" of Russian territory.

While admitting that the attitude of Poland in refusing to halt her armies at this particular time is not without logic and justice, this government, it was pointed out, is pledged to conserve the permanent territorial integrity of the former Russian empire.

The subject was discussed by President Wilson with Secretary Colby and Undersecretary Davis for more than an hour. England, France and Italy have all given informal assurance to the United States that they are in entire accord with her policy.

KILLED AT HORSESHOE FALLS

Five Tons of Rock Drop on Bridge Leading to Cave of the Winds.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Dropping 180 feet from the brink of Horseshoe falls onto the bridge leading to the Cave of the Winds, five tons of rock shilled three persons and seriously injured two others, who were crossing the bridge. A sixth occupant of the bridge escaped unhurt.

SHIRKING FACTS, MOORE DECLARES

Ohioan Clashes With Kenyon in Campaign Fund Probe

MAKES USE OF PLAIN WORDS

Cox's Representative Charges Senators With Unwillingness to Get Best Evidence, When He Appears Before the Committee.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—In about as plain words as he could without laying himself open to a charge of contempt for the senatorial campaign investigating committee, Edmund H. Moore, practically told that body that it was "lying down" on its inquiry into the charges made by Governor Cox regarding the Republican campaign fund.

Mr. Moore, who is Governor Cox's personal representative at the hearing, couched his charge in formal language, but the intonation was so plain that it brought a quick flush to the face of Senator Kenyon, chairman of the committee.

Moore admitted in the course of his testimony that he has no direct evidence to substantiate the charges of Governor Cox.

One of the first questions Mr. Moore was asked by Senator Kenyon after he took the stand was if he had said in published interviews the committee was afraid to call him and was not seeking evidence to prove Governor Cox's charges.

"I did not," the witness exclaimed. "You don't need to get angry," Senator Kenyon said.

"Not Seeking Best Evidence." "I am not getting angry. What I said was that you were not seeking the best evidence. And I say it again. You are not."

Mr. Moore told Senator Kenyon there were men better able to tell the Republican plans than either he or Governor Cox, and asked why Col. William Boyce Thompson of New York, chairman of the Republican ways and means committee, and "the 60 men of the paid organization" were not called.

Governor Cox has no evidence in support of his charges outside of what Mr. Moore brought to Chicago with him, the witness said. As he spoke he unfolded a massive brief case and took out a stack of papers that apparently numbered several hundred sheets.

Governor Cox sent him to Chicago, Mr. Moore said, "to give the committee the list from whom the senators could get the information to support the governor's charges." He mentioned Harry M. Blair, first assistant to Fred W. Upham, Republican national treasurer, and several other employees of Upham's office.

Battalion of "Moppers Up."

A "battalion of moppers up" is a part of the Republican finance organization, according to Mr. Moore. He said these men went in after the organization headed by Colonel Thompson had collected from "the cream list."

Mr. Moore said that one of these "moppers up" was A. A. Protzman of the Holland hotel, Cleveland, and that another Edmund Silverbrand of Youngstown, had left town after he heard that a request had been filed for a subpoena calling him before the committee.

Mr. Moore said that Chester C. Hamble of Colorado had raised $100,000 in that state. "Governor Cox says that $500,000 was raised in the twinkling of an eye," Senator Kenyon said, quoting from the governor's Wheeling (W. Va.) address.

"Yes, and I have heard it was more than that," Mr. Moore retorted. "In my own town of Youngstown $72,000 was raised more than a month ago."

Names Are Furnished

He suggested that the committee call C. H. Booth of Youngstown, George M. Jones, Toledo; John Kirby, Dayton; Frank Kaese, Portsmouth; John A. Kelly, Columbus, and Dudley Blossom and W. A. Woodford, Cleveland.

"Mr. Krause," Mr. Moore continued, "raised $8,800 in 24 hours." "There was nothing secret about it, was there?" Senator Kenyon asked. "Not then, but there is now," Mr. Moore retorted. "That was before you had started your investigation and Governor Cox had made his charges."

"What is your understanding about this Ohio quota?" Chairman Kenyon asked. "My understanding is that Cincinnati was to raise $290,000, Cleveland $400,000, Youngstown $200,000."

"Where did you get your information?" "These gentlemen that I have named can tell you all about it. Dayton was to raise $60,000, Akron $80,000—you understand these quotas were revised from time to time, and like Taff with the tariff, they usually revised them upward—Toledo $100,000, Canton $50,000, and at Lima a man whose name I will give you later collected $15,000 that I know of. How much more I don't know."

Independence of Georgia.

The Georgians deserve to succeed, for their history shows them to be a plucky and a persevering people. Georgia's existence as an independent state goes far back into history. In fact, the annals of Georgia are older even than those of Greece and Rome, and Christianity was preached there in the fourth century. Although a victim to incessant attacks from the Persians and the Turks, who subjugated her provinces one by one, she succeeded not only in preserving her

GARDINER GETS AWAY

AMERICAN ESCAPES FROM MEXICAN BANDIT ZAMORA.

Official Advice Declares Bandit Band Has Been Reduced From 500 to 20 Men.

Mexico City, Sept. 8.—W. A. Gardiner, a citizen of the United States, who was captured by Pedro Zamora, the Jalisco bandit, on August 20 at Cuale, has escaped, according to official advice.

Gen. Enrique Estrada, commanding government troops pursuing Zamora, reported to the war department that he had been advised by Maj. Hedia Del Puerto, commander at Autlan, that an American named MacSwiney had arrived at Autlan and asked for an escort to bring Gardiner from a ranch some distance from town.

It was stated that Gardiner took refuge at this ranch following his escape from the bandits during the fight at Rancho Divisadero more than a week ago. An escort was sent out for Gardiner.

General Estrada added that British Consul Holme at Guadalajara had received a similar report.

Nothing is known as to the whereabouts of Bertie C. Johnson, a British subject, who was a fellow captive of Gardiner.

General Estrada reported that Zamora on September 5 attempted to reach the western coast through two mountain passes, Cuxun Blanco and Yerba Buena, but encountered detachments of government troops and fled in disorder.

He lost several men and was accompanied in his flight by only a handful of followers. It is asserted that during the last 35 days the Zamora band has been reduced from about 500 to 20, and there were bright prospects for the annihilation of the outlaws soon.

General Estrada concluded his report with an announcement that Colonel Rojas, with 35 members of Zamora's band, have surrendered at Chihuahua, state of Jalisco.

WANTS WILSON TO INTERFERE

King George Declares That He Has No Influence With Lloyd George.

London, Sept. 8.—King George, shackled to helplessness by constitutional limitations, would be glad to have President Wilson request the British government to save the life of Lord Mayor MacSwiney.

The king made his position known at the annual dinner to help at Balmoral castle. Responding to the customary toast, "Long live King George," the king said:

"If Lord Mayor MacSwiney is released at the request of President Wilson it would mean that the president has greater influence with the prime minister than I have, but at the same time I would prefer so great a slight to the English monarchy than to have the lord mayor die."

The king was cheered loudly.

BURN MANY STOLEN BONDS

Thieves Destroy Securities Valued at $200,000 Belonging to Paine, Webber & Co., Chicago.

New York, Sept. 8.—Railroad bonds valued at $200,000 reported lost in the mail from Milwaukee to New York a month ago were burned here by thieves who stole them and were afraid to dispose of them, post office inspectors and the police announced here.

According to a confession said to have been obtained from Thaddeus J. V. R. Starkey, negro and brother-in-law of James Johnson, mail truck driver, both under arrest in connection with thefts from the mails, Johnson gave Starkey the bond package to take home.

It contained bonds shipped from Paine, Webber & Co.'s brokerage office in Milwaukee and afraid to keep or sell them, they burned them, the police said Starkey asserted.

COX ALWAYS VOTED AS DRY

Tells North Dakota Audience He Won't Interfere With the Eighteenth Amendment.

En Route With Governor Cox, Leeds, N. D., Sept. 8.—Governor James M. Cox, Democratic candidate, will not interfere with the eighteenth amendment, if elected. In a speech at Devils Lake, N. D., Governor Cox declared himself a "dry." The governor's statement was in reply to a direct question from a woman in the audience.

"Where do you stand on the liquor question?" asked the woman. "I have always voted dry, and I will not interfere with the eighteenth amendment," the Democratic candidate replied.

20,000 BACK IN TEXTILE MILLS

More Operatives to Return to Work Next Week as Vacation Period Ends.

Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 8.—All local textile plants, with the exception of the four mills here of the American Woolen company and the Pacific Mills Print works plant, resumed operations after the annual vacation period.

About 20,000 operatives started to work. The American Woolen company will resume in part next Monday, and the Pacific plant will run in full that day.

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Warner.

Onalaska, Wis.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unfit to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women and decided to try it. It surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and I can do my housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good in female weakness, and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. LESTER E. WARNER, R. 1, Box 68, Onalaska, Wis.

The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved.

Yellow Men Sleep

By JEREMY LANE

CHAPTER XIV.—Continued.

Later March said, out of his somber thinking: "I cannot believe that my Ethina is gone."

Levinton could make no reply. It seemed that March remembered his bride as she was eighteen years ago. Time had not, until now, touched that sacred portion of his life.

"And they have taken my little child, touched her eyes with the drug, until she is no longer mine but theirs. She refuses to go to America, my own daughter. She has been made to forget her mother."

Con was overwhelmed. He stretched out his hand and found March's arm. It was trembling.

"We're not done for," said Levinton.

March seemed not to hear. "Helen does not love me, sincerely cares to make my acquaintance, never wished to see me. Perhaps that is my punishment for thinking of her always as an infant, with a glorious mother. And Ethina has been dead for years."

Levinton was alarmed concerning his friend, who was slipping deeper into despondency. He forgot his work for the United States government, his long labors in the name of humanity, and all his thought centered upon his personal disaster. He was close to a tragic unbalance. Levinton said quickly:

"But Helen says her mother is not really dead. You have yourself told me that this life is but the camp of one night in a long journey, that the better air of the hills is just beyond."

Stoicly March smiled, and said: "The camp of one night. Yes, a long, dark night."

"We have work to do, now," urged the younger man. "Work that may bring our dawn."

It was useless to try to cheer the bereaved man, who merely replied: "They are causing little Helen to forget all her mother gave to her; they are giving her to that yellow man doll."

"No!" cried Levinton. "Not yet."

Andrew March laughed at him, bitterly.

In some subtle, potent manner, the Gold was too much for white men. They could not remain the same. March was slipping down hill. Levinton was not his former self, easy-going and slow to kindle, a dreamer. He had grown tense of nerve, keyed up strangely high, with a whole new set of passions in his breast. He was expanded, set free, despite the pitchy caverns.

He arose now and moved away from his comrade, elbowed through the shifting crowds, a Goliath by contrast. They made way for him. The Arab snatched something he did not catch. He had a desire for a breath of upper air, and was going toward the base of the shaft.

It was dark at the top, still night, the blot of a sentinel there. Con went up by the aid of the long vine, which had been worn smooth by the pulling of many hands, day after day. The hunched one who watched at the top made way for him, but did not offer a hand. The stars were fading by the noisiness of new day. Leaving behind him all the smoldering life and low—the warped, sapped, wasted hundreds, with the mentalities of sad children—Levinton left the mouth of the shaft and strode up the rise. He drank the cool air of the open.

To the west a low band of dusty yellow, above and around the pale smooth smoke of waning night. Only the larger stars remained aloft, white and friendly points, familiar, seeming closer than America. Westward the city, its palace like something built in a mighty yesterday by giants, and left behind for men—dark now, but plainly outlined. From the crest Levinton viewed the shadowy secrets of the Sha Ma, and presently his eyes stopped on a point in the road, at the head of the ravine. He stared through the twilight, and saw a motionless horseman there.

"They Are Coming for You at Sunrise," She Said. "They Will Kill You."

He must know. Taking his former path, down the further side of the ridge and around to the cut, he hastened in the loneliness of that gray dawn. Creeping near he could not mistake the large, limp hat, the districtive fling of the cloak, the pony. He stood up and ran toward Helen. "What is it?" he asked. "They are coming for you at sunrise," she said. "They will kill you."

"We are ready to receive them," he said. "The miners are not at work, and are not sleeping. They are waiting, armed. The plan is to fall upon the soldiers if they come into the mine."

"You have caused this?"

"Yes," he answered.

"For what reason?"

"Freedom, for your father and myself; for the four workers who were taken yesterday; for the whole underground city of miners; and for you."

"For me? I do not ask it."

"You want to be queen?"

"Yes." And she implied that nothing could be so natural. She was surprised at the question.

"You can be a queen in America," he said, with his soul limping. "And who will remain here for your rule, when we have done with your army?"

She did not know whether to smile, or be terribly displeased. He dared not be serious, lest his heart break. In the gray of the morning she was as lovely as a great moth in an enchanted garden.

"You would not be interested in ruling here," said her lover, "if you really belonged here. It is your white blood that gives you this strength. All Asia is only a stage-setting for you. Let me fight today for you, let me lead in your name. Is it so much to be queen of a solitary city where strangers never come?"

"Never?" she repeated.

After a pause, he asked: "What brought you out so early this morning?"

"Yesterday you were displeased because I rode in the full sunlight," she purred him.

He saw at once that he could not expect to be given any true reason for her presence here now, unless—

"I am thankful I did not miss you," he said.

"The dawn colors are full of wonder," she replied, evading again.

"That is true."

"Are you afraid to die?" she asked point-blank.

"Yes, I'm not going to. I want to live. Yesterday I told you why, but you were asleep."

"I could not respond," said the prince, glancing away at the dark horizon. "but I heard distinctly—your words."

Levinton's cheeks burned suddenly at the revelation. She continued to look away from him.

"I meant my words, all of them," he said sturdily.

Still she did not turn back to him, and he asked, "Why do you allow them to give you the drug?"

"I am not so lonely when I dream."

"It places you more securely in the hands of Chee Ming, and he is no man's friend."

"He has been my father, always," she said.

"This sleep of yellow men is not life—no relationship—for you."

"Would you give me unhappiness again?"

Again he felt the tremendous doubt, that she might be laughing at him from behind her earnest, lovely eyes. She looked full in his face for her answer.

"I will not go away without you," said Levinton.

"You may not go at all," said Helen. "That is why I came here. It was troublesome to arrange. But I wanted to tell you."

"Why?"

"If my soldiers kill you, it is—no because I hate you."

"Thanks," murmured Levinton. "I could have died for less."

"Come with my father, the way you came yesterday, and I will do what I can."

"You humble me with so much honor," said the one who stood behind her, "but I expect to be very busy with the miners."

The copper light touched her face. The pony blinked at the east, and far away Con saw the purple mantle slip from the city, a line of faint gold upon the loftiest tiles of the palace. Sweetly across the empty world came the voice of the hour-gong from the city. The last stars were melting into a pallid sky that was shot across with crimson, violet, and russet gold. Levinton's heart was full, but all he longed to say he had told her yesterday. That intimacy was renewed by the thought that she had heard and remembered everything he had said. He blushed. Something came to him of her struggle—a fantastic kingdom almost within his grasp, a throne from which every whim was law, a city of weird power and much gold, her own for the taking; and only one young white man, almost a stranger, to draw her away from it all. She had been born to love, yet all her training was toward power and queencraft. And there was koreh.

"Helen!" he said softly.

He could not. The wane on which he had ridden had passed. The old silence was upon him, the wordless intensity in the presence of beauty, timidity before the woman who could set him free if she would.

A quick sparkle crossed the dead wilderness to the east. Twilight fled away, and the world whitened. Still the princess did not move. She too was silent. Then from the distant gate a horseman stood forth. Levinton waited.

"Go," she said.

"There is only one coming."

"It is the prince, Yekutoi."

"Will he lead your soldiers?"

"He will never lead anything." Helen's voice had become suddenly filled with weariness. Levinton roused over with koreh, and its deadly splere was in the air, cinnamon and bees. Con kept closer, quite sure that his friend could hear and understand through the veil, if not reply. It was a black moment, a cold rising wave of failure.

"We have the prince down here, captive, alone. Helen is sending the warriors on a goose-chase. We must move upon the city while they are away."

March's mouth twitched, and with a great effort he mumbled, "Do not wait."

"But I need you. They trust you because you speak their language. Try to rouse yourself."

"Don't—wait."

"We may not have time to come back this way."

"Go," gasped the sleeper. "I'm not worth it."

Levinton left him there, sought out the Arab, and gave orders for a hammock to be borne by four men, to carry March along in the rear of the charge.

"We go into palace?" asked the Arab.

"Yes, as soon as the riders go forth to find their prince."

The sailor comprehended and rather brightened at the plan. It was better than falling upon the soldiers in the dark of the mines. He called to his men.

"Some men grow brave in their sorrow, but I was not one of them. I waited so long—you understand, boy. If you get away, make the report. Show them how to find Tau Kuan, to scotch this curse of the world, if possible."

Levinton gave assurance, then ran after the Arabian, who had taken a position near the base of the shaft. Here Yekutoi still lay upon his back, although no bond held him. No one dared go near him. The trusted men retained their superstitious concern for royalty. Now in great numbers they hobbled about, gesturing, lifting odd weapons, like a nestful of maimed spiders.

MUSIC FOR NERVOUS PEOPLE

No Doubt That It Can Be Made a Means of Doing Them a Great Deal of Good.

CHAPTER XV.

The Tawny Rose Droops.

She touched silver spurs to her mount, and galloped to the city, bearing the false alarm. Levinton regarded his perfumed prisoner. Yekutoi had revived, but was playing dead, no doubt feeling each instant a hundred biting edges of steel upon his person, an agony of imagination. Con picked him up and bore him along the side of hill toward the deep shaft. One of the silk fluttered about his chin. The royal sandals was missing. The other, sparkling brightly, dapped on a long foot.

Levinton was keenly alive to the press of time. He realized that the swift, delicate affairs of the moment, and all brutal consequences, were now in the lap of the gods.

Before Helen had reached the city gate, he had shoved the helpless Yekutoi over the ridge and down to the big hole. The Mongolian's slim hands were convulsed with horror, and he shrilled like a mouse when he felt the emptiness below his legs. Con let go, and the shaft swallowed up the prince. He went down after him through the flying dirt.

Torches again in the heavy gloom of the pie-blot. His eyes grew accustomed to the depths. From all directions the strange little men came running. The babble of excitement fell into sudden hush when they saw the prisoner more closely. They pressed backward, murmuring. Levinton felt a great need for March.

He found the Arab and still did not see his comrade.

"Where is my friend?"

The ex-samurai made inquiry round about. Then one timid hunchback with knotted queue came forward. He plucked Levinton's sleeve and showed willingness to lead on.

Out of the confusion, high upon one of the ledges in the adjoining rock room, lay Andrew March. They had cushioned him upon a pallet of grass, and his sleep was deep. Con had difficulty in getting him to open his eyes. There was a lightning chord of suspicion, and he held a torch down close to March's face. The story was plain, written. His eyelids were grayed over with koreh, and its deadly splere was in the air, cinnamon and bees. Con kept closer, quite sure that his friend could hear and understand through the veil, if not reply. It was a black moment, a cold rising wave of failure.

Powerful Magnets.

It is a far cry from lifting a tack by means of magnetism to the lifting of massive iron plates weighing four, six and twelve tons by this same force, which is now done every workday in a number of large steel works. Electromagnetism, of course, is utilized, the form of the magnet being usually rectangular for this work and presenting a flat surface to the plates lifted. The magnets are suspended by chains from cranes, and pick up the plates by simple contact. The metal plates can be lifted by the magnet while still so hot that it would be impossible for men to handle them. The ratio of weight lifted varies with the machine; in some cases this ratio is 30. A magnet is operated by current from a dynamo, controlled by switches and rheostats.

"Those people never read a newspaper from one year's end to the other."

"That doesn't matter; they've engaged a maid who's lived in about every other family on the block."

The KITCHEN CABINET

I pray you with all earnestness to prove, and know within your hearts, that all things lovely and righteous are possible for those who believe in their responsibility and who determine that, for their part, they will make every day's work contribute to them—John Ruskin.

A SYMPOSIUM OF SALADS.

There is never a sameness in the art of salad making, for one has an infinite variety from which to choose raw materials. Cooked food, odds and ends of leftovers which would otherwise be wasted, may go into the salad bowl and become an attractive dish, with a well-prepared and an appropriate dressing.

Fisherman's Salad.

Take two pounds of cooked fish, one pound of boiled potatoes, a quarter of a head of white cabbage; season with salt and pepper. After flaking the fish and shredding the cabbage add cayenne pepper to season well, one pickled beet finely chopped, also two cucumbers. Mix all together and serve with any good salad dressing.

Potato Salad.

The best potato salad is made with potatoes cooked especially for the salad and seasoned before they become cold. Boil small-sized potatoes with their skins on, peel and cut in cubes, add seasonings of salt and pepper and marinate with a thin dressing—either a cooked dressing thinned with cream or a well-seasoned French dressing. Dressing them while warm sends the seasoning through them and makes a much more palatable salad. Mince onion, fresh mustard finely minced, a handful of blanched and shredded almonds and a cucumber or two will make the finest kind of a salad, providing the salad dressing is a good well-seasoned one. Just before serving add the thick salad dressing and the cucumber unless kept very cold will lose its crispness.

Simple Tomato Salad.

Soak and peel perfectly ripe tomatoes of uniform size. Place in a dish and cover with ice and salt for half an hour to chill thoroughly. Rub a salad bowl with the cut side of a clove of garlic and arrange the crisp, tender leaves of the heart of head lettuce as a lining to the salad bowl. Arrange the tomatoes cut in quarters or if small cut in quarters without separating the pieces and pour over a good mayonnaise dressing which has been seasoned with minced onion.

Veal Salad.

Cook a small piece of veal in a broth made of chicken bones and water, or cook the veal with the chicken. Let the meat cool in the broth, then cut it in small cubes, mix with celery and salad dressing and it will be hard to tell from a chicken salad.

It matters not how strait the gate, How charged with punishment the scroll, I am the master of my fate, I am the captain of my soul. In the felix clutch of circumstance I have not winced or cried aloud; Beneath the bludgeoning of chance, My head is bloody, but unbowed.—Henry.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

If a cork is too large for the bottle in which you wish to use it, lay it sideways and roll it with a small board under all the pressure you can put upon it. This will separate it to fit the bottle.

Ripping is an easy task if safety razors are used to do the work.

To keep the eyebrows clean and to stimulate their growth and beauty, they should be brushed gently with a soft brush night and morning. In applying any tonic or oil only the smallest amount should be used.

Chicken which will not cook tender may be made so by the addition of a teaspoonful of alcohol in the water. Vinegar will also soften the fiber of meat, a tablespoonful to the kettle of stew.

To make mint extract, pick the fresh leaves of mint, wash and dry and pack into a bottle as full as possible; cover with alcohol and let stand two weeks, then strain and bottle for future use. This is the real stuff and one need not fear to use it.

Buckles, beads and buttons of polished steel may be beautifully cleaned by covering with unslaked lime and leaving for a short time.

Shoe shoes or slippers may be rubbed with emery paper and they will look like new.

Dry bran is very valuable for cleaning purposes, as is cornmeal. Rub it into fur, where the soiled spots are, rub harder, then brush off. Ermine and delicate furs are cleaned well in this way.

Velvet coat collars and collars of men's coats may be cleaned easily with cornmeal wet with gasoline and rubbed well into the pile of the velvet or collar and then brushed out. Care should be taken to keep away from all fire.

A damp cloth wrapped around the throat and covered with a dry one will relieve a sufferer from a hacking cough.

What Caused Queer Sounds.

Complaints made about a woman's club in London because of a noise of thumping on the walls that began at 7:30 every morning brought out the fact that a woman of sixty and a woman of seventy-five, trying to reduce flesh, were competing in high kicking. "I have hit the wall at four and one-half feet," said the sixty-year-old woman, "and have lost two pounds. The old lady of seventy-five has kicked seven inches higher, but I won't be beaten by her."

The Power of the Hour

MECHANICAL power is stepping swiftly into the breach that has been formed by restless, dissatisfied labor. This is true in the city and it is true on the farm.

Today Titan 10-20 Tractors are the labor-saving power of the hour on the farms of America. Everywhere, reaching to the farthest boundaries of agriculture, you will hear the steady chug-chug of these tireless toilers. They are displacing men and horses and getting more work per day from available farm labor. Soon summer following will be under way in many sections of the country, and there you will find Titan 10-20 Kerosene Tractors working faithfully from sun-up to sun-down, undisturbed by heat or flies, turning the hard-baked ground in the interests of bumper crops.

New Titans are scarce just now, due to unprecedented demand, and the fact that every user of a Titan 10-20 is a Booster is the best of reasons for you to act at once to secure one of the very few available.

Come in and let us show you why you should buy a Titan 10-20 Farm Tractor.

QUACK GRASS IS EASILY KILLED

Special Type of Plow Is Recommended for Purpose of Turning Over Sod.

DISK HARROW QUITE USEFUL

Exposure to Sun and Breaking Loose From Lower Soil Soon Kill Out Plants—Bury Mass of Roots in Spring by Plowing.

The process of killing quack grass on sod or pasture-lands, beginning in midsummer, is a very simple one. The first step is to plow the sod, cutting just under the turf, which is usually about three inches deep. To thoroughly turn over a stiff quack-grass sod as shallow as three inches it is advisable to use a special type of plow (see sketch herewith) having a very long, gradually sloping moldboard. It has been found that with this type of plow the sod can be turned very shallow. The next step is to disk in a week or ten days later with a disk harrow and thoroughly disk the sod. Repeat this treatment every ten days or two weeks until fall, when the quack grass will be completely killed out.

MILK PLANT IN CITY REQUIRES MUCH CARE

Efficiency Depends Largely on Equipment Used.

Arrangement of Various Rooms and Machinery Also Important—Specialists Point Out Ten Points to Be Remembered.

The construction of a city milk plant requires careful study and planning. The building represents a large investment, and it is important, therefore, that the plans be carefully laid. The efficiency of the plant depends to a large degree upon the type of equipment used and the arrangement of the various rooms and machinery. It is possible for a well-planned plant to effect great economies in labor, while a poorly planned plant may become a continual source of expense because of the extra labor required. These points, according to specialists of the United States department of agriculture, should be borne in mind in locating a milk plant:

- 1. Ease of access from as many sides as possible.
2. Value of property.
3. Cost of getting the milk to the plant.
4. Proximity to distribution center.
5. Advertising possibilities.
6. Opportunity for retail counter cash trade.
7. Nearness to city water supply and electric power.
8. Avoidance of heavy traffic surroundings.
9. Good drainage.
10. Pure air and clean surroundings.
Anyone contemplating building a new plant will do well to visit various up-to-date plants in different cities to get the latest ideas on construction, layout of rooms, and equipment. If it is impossible to visit other plants, the following suggestions sometimes can be obtained and ideas gained from them. Also, he should write the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for department Bulletin 849 on City Milk Plants; Construction and Arrangement.

HITCHING HORSES OR CATTLE

Keeps Animal Clear of Old Cart-Wheel Gives Attached to a Wheel for Ranging Without Tangles.

The method of tying cattle or horses so that they may have free range without entangling their ropes.

Bossy can't entangle her hitching rope if it is attached to a wheel which revolves as she moves about to graze.

Secure an old cart-wheel on its axle. Set the off end of the axle in the ground with the wheel uppermost, then tie the cow's rope to this wheel. —Popular Science Monthly.

MAKE PROFIT WITH ALFALFA

Growers Who Are Most Successful Make Practice of Cultivating Once or Twice Yearly.

The men who are making a practice of growing alfalfa successfully over a long period of years are practicing one or two crops at least once or twice a year. The common disk harrow is used to some extent, although the spring-tooth cultivator usually gives better results. Some people cultivate the alfalfa field early in the spring, but the more common practice is to follow the second and third cuttings. The main purpose is to keep the blue grass out. This is best accomplished during the dry portion of the summer. In a test carried on by the Iowa agricultural experiment station, the annual yield has been increased almost a ton per acre by cultivation.

PRODUCE ALL GARDEN SEEDS

No Special Work Required With Majority of Crops—Pick From the Best Specimens.

Produce the seed supply for next year in your own gardens. Cucumbers, melon, squash, tomato and other crops require no special work. Simply mark the best and earliest fruits and when fully ripe, gather and renge the seed.

The best onion, turnip, carrot, parsnip, winter radish, rutabaga, kohlrabi, cabbage and others are biennial and it is necessary to set out roots in the spring, which will send up flowering stalks to produce seed in late summer.

HELP PREVENT WOODS FIRES.

Be sure your match is out before throwing it away. Don't throw away burning tobacco. Choose a safe place and make your campfire small. Put out your fire with water and then cover it with earth. Don't make large brush heaps. Choose a still day for burning. Avoid a still day for burning. Avoid a still day for burning. BE CAREFUL WITH FIRE.

Control Tomato Leafspot. To control the fungous disease, tomato leafspot, spray thoroughly every week or ten days with Bordeaux mixture—4-4-50.

PARIS SPONSORS THESE FROCKS

Whether we admire and approve or not, the efforts of French creators of styles never fail to interest us. Sometimes a single glance reveals so much of beauty and ingenuity that we are willing to concede French superiority in the realm of clothes, and sometimes more than a glance fails to raise any enthusiasm for the import that has been thrust upon us. Here are two afternoon frocks which Harriet Gustin wears, in company with a hat and shoes also native of Paris, by way of adding to the brilliance of "Honey Girl." They do their part—and how do you think of them? At the left of the picture the frock of brown satin simplicity and work of a master in its simplicity and its lovely lines and clever adjustment to the figure. It is over an accordion-plated petticoat of indestructible voile in Belgian blue and is marvelously embroidered in silk of the same blue. The skirt is shorter than American will accept or consider graceful and neither are they enthusiastic over short sleeves. But even so, there is nothing to do it justice but it is really a beautiful gown with suggestions that are valuable in drapery, in embroidery and in color combination. The second gown is less simple, equally graceful and is made of black satin with an overspread of blue and gray plaid brocade. A photograph fails to do it justice but it is really a pure delight to the eye, so elegant in its long lines and color effect that its very short skirt seems an eccentricity front and back. The brocade at the ends is overlaid by a square of brown satin falling below the bottom of the skirt and joined at the sides with a long, splendid tassel. The long sleeves have pointed cuffs of brocade and the short jacket and wide turn-over collar reveal again the hand of a genius.

Hats That Match Smocks

A hat and smock destined to spend most of their time together are among the richest and charmingest match-sets that the coming of autumn has inspired. The destiny of hats appears to be settled in the beginning by their creators, who either provide them with a bag, a scarf or a smock as life companions or send them out well equipped to conquer the world alone. The picture might hold its own unattended anywhere but it calls for a companion piece equally splendid. It could not tolerate a rival below its level, and so the safe course was to provide a garment to match. It does not need a pretty Russian face to point out that this set is a Russian inspiration, but the two go well together. Black satin provides the background for embroidery in an involved and beautiful pattern that almost covers the hat and goes far on the smock. It has to be an intricate piece of imagery in which birds—some unexpectedly to light amid flowers, leaves, blossoms and tendrils. Hat and smock to match offer something new in sets but what promises to be far more popular is to be found in hat and bag to match. The vogue for elaborate and rich embroideries in millinery paves the way for companion pieces of equally handsome bags. Ribbons, velvet, tulle, are all fabrics that are as well suited to bags as to hats, and nearly all the new bags are made of fabrics. Chinese and Japanese embroideries entice the designer to convert them into these lovely accessories of dress. Above all things, ribbons wide and narrow tempt feminine fancy and fingers to convert them into ingenious bags, and milliners look at ribbons and think hats.

Hand Painting on Taffeta. Hand painting on taffeta is becoming very successful for some of the season's newest hats. The color of the organdie and consisting of folds of silk were common. At a garden party at Wellesley college, in mid-June, for instance, one hardly saw a white dress, but the pinks, lavenders and, above all, the shades of green brought out in the fluffy organdie gowns worn by hundreds of pretty girls were ravishing.

THE RETURN

By CLARISSA MACK.

It was a full hour after dusk, when the long, stately house on the hill still emerged in darkness, that a man emerged from the heavy thicket of rhododendrons and slipped around to the rear. A light from a basement window checked his progress. He looked cautiously through the window. Two women servants were putting on hats and coats and a chauffeur waited near the door drinking out of a steaming glass.

"Ready?" he asked, setting down the empty glass. They all disappeared, and in a moment the basement was deserted and the door locked. Presently an automobile with lights swept silently down the drive. The man went around to the front of the house and thick oppressive silence settled over the place.

Then a shadow separated from the deeper shade of the shrubbery and turned the front veranda. A latch-key turned silently in the lock of the front door; it opened and closed soundlessly, jutting into the darkened hallway a faint breath of the June night. The man did not hesitate; with unswerving feet he mounted the fine old staircase, gained the upper hall and entered a large room on the left. He crossed to the mantelpiece, fumbled along its length and put something in his pocket. As he turned away his foot struck the brass fender and there was the faint clang of metal.

He stopped short and waited. "Who is there?" he asked, and the quiet room came a woman's voice. "Piled up there?" he asked, and the quiet room came a woman's voice.

"Who is there?" he asked, and the quiet room came a woman's voice. "Piled up there?" he asked, and the quiet room came a woman's voice.

Too Early. Friend wife was standing in the 4 a. m. train and, of course, my alarm clock failed to register. It was exactly four when I woke up and, dashing out to the garage, started the engine. Still half asleep, I threw the clutch into reverse instead of first speed and whirled through the back door and part of my neighbor's yard, bringing up with a bang almost in the middle of the sleeping town where my neighbor's family spent their nights. My wife certainly found a warm reception when she reached home. The whole neighborhood was out to welcome her following the riot.—Chicago Tribune.

HAD GOT HIS ROUTES MIXED Negro Soldier's Amusing Explanation as to How It Was He Got His Wound. A medical corps officer chanced upon the negro, "but Ah don't know how I'm going to like it when dem Germans shoots at me." "How do you like the army, Mose?" he asked. "Sall right so far, cap'n," replied the negro, "but Ah don't know how I'm going to like it when dem Germans shoots at me." "Don't worry about that," replied the officer. "All you have to do is zig-zag." And he demonstrated. The next time the two met, the negro was in a hospital. "What's the matter with you, Mose?" asked the officer. "I ain't sure, cap'n, but Ah think I must have been zigzaggin' 'bout de time Ah oughta been ziggin'!"—American Legion Weekly.

The Latest Style. "William Dean Howells," said an editor, "often joked about the latest styles." "The minister made a witty reference to the latest style in his sermon, didn't he? Mr. Howells said one Sunday morning to a young lady of New York." "Did he? How?" asked the young lady. "Why, didn't you notice?" said Mr. Howells. "He chose his text from Revelations."

Getting His Bearings. One day as I was driving along I heard a crack in the vicinity of the rear wheel. Upon investigation I discovered all the bearings gone. Not being able to continue, I set down on the running board waiting for help. Before long a seely-looking man came along in a car making so much noise that he had difficulty in hearing me. I called out: "Hey, mister, do you know any place near here where I can get some bearings?" The man looked around quickly, gave me a sly wink and said: "Sure, if you know enough to keep your mouth shut."—Exchange.

Not as She Expected. A home town society matron of thirty-five underwent an operation this spring. On her recovery she was assured by her friends that the operation had taken ten years away from her looks. Laughingly one day she complained to the doctor: "If three hours on the operating table made me look ten years younger, why didn't you keep me there five hours and make me into a girl again?" "Five hours there, my dear madam," soberly retorted the surgeon, "would have made you into an angel."—Indianapolis News.

Gloomy Prospect. "I hope," said the newly-made widow, "wiping away a tear, "that poor dear Thomas won't be sheep with the gears instead of the sheep." "Of course not," replied the consolatory friend, "Thomas was a truly good man." "Yes," sighed the widow, "but he would keep outting in."

Expensive Melody. Life with you would be one grand, sweet song!" "But I'm a practical girl. To me there's music in the purr of an expensive motor, in the soothing tones of a French maid, the suave replies a well-trained butler makes, the honeyed words of tradesmen eager for my patronage, the—" "Say no more, Angeline. You are talking about the kind of music I can't provide."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Representing Them. "Is Congressman Flubdub patriotic?" "No, patriotism isn't the thing in his district."

WEALTH IN WEST

Canadian Farmers Confident of Record Grain Crop.

Boston Banker, Returning From Trip Through the Country, Tells of Rich Yields of Great Northwestern Wheat Fields.

A Boston banker, desiring to recuperate from a season of strenuous work, did what most bankers do, or should do, took a holiday, away from the confines of the city life. Canada was in his mind. He would make the trip, learn something of the country, breathe of its ozone and return exhilarated both in mind and body.

"Canada is getting strong, recovering by leaps and bounds from the depression caused by war. While unrest and lack of co-operation seem to be holding things back on this side of the border the Dominion to the north faces an era of unprecedented activity and prosperity.

"The crops in Canada, both east and west, are meeting the expectations of the farmers in a satisfying fact, which gives a positive assurance of a yield that will mean millions of dollars to the wealth of the country.

Western Canada has never known a failure in crops. There are districts where partial failures have been, but consideration should be given to the fact that the country, that portion of it which is the present grain growing belt is from seven to eight hundred miles in length by half that distance in breadth.

Because one speaks of the wonderful success of grain growing there, there should not be lost sight of the fact that this is only one item in the wealth-producing possibilities. There is cattle raising, with all the advantages in every way that it possesses anywhere; the dairy industry is assuming remarkable proportions, and a great deal of attention is given to the development of this industry, which is so adaptable to the country, by both federal and provincial governments.

Still Unsuaded. Marian had formed the bad habit of sucking her thumb. Her parents had wasted considerable time and energy trying to cure her of this.

The day that a little sister arrived in the home her father said: "Now, Marian, you must never suck your thumb again, as the baby might see you, and do it, too."

Marian coolly replied: "When I want to suck my thumb I'll turn my back on her, and she will never know anything about it."

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs. It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention "this paper."

Taking the Sunny Side. Every street has two sides, the shady side and the sunny. When two men shake hands and part mark which of the two takes the sunny side; he will be the younger man of the two.

Among the Reds. "Vote for my candidate. He's in jail."

"Vote for mine. He's out on bail."

WISCONSIN STATE NEWS

Madison—Burr W. Jones, for half a century leader at the Wisconsin bar, for twenty years a professor in the law school at the University of Wisconsin, and a prominent Democrat in the state, was appointed by Gov. Philipp to succeed the late Chief Justice J. B. Winslow on the supreme court bench.

His appointment is until 1923, but it is understood that he will be a candidate for re-election for the balance of the regular term of Chief Justice J. B. Winslow, which would expire in 1925. Mr. Jones will assume his new duties on Sept. 21, at the opening of the court term.

Marquette—Threshing is in progress in Marquette county, a large number of crews being at work. The crop is showing a particularly heavy grain, some of it running three bushels by weight to a two bushel sack.

Sheboygan—Two birds from this city will be entered in the United States "derby" this month. Five thousand birds are to participate in the race of homing pigeons.

Milwaukee—The seventieth annual Wisconsin state fair passed into history as the most successful ever held, in point of attendance, gate receipts, total receipts, number and excellence of exhibits and weather experienced throughout the week.

Madison—Wisconsin has suffered quite severely this year from insect pests. Nearly all of the northern counties suffered from either grasshopper or army worm epidemics.

Marquette—Laying a 345-foot ditch and building a road at one operation was done by Alfred Mathewson, Dupont Powder Co.'s Wisconsin agricultural representative, in Marquette county.

Madison—The first unit of the new Wisconsin state hospital, which is to be erected on the campus of the University of Wisconsin, and plans for which have just been submitted to the state architect's office at Madison, will be one of the largest of its kind on any college campus in the country.

Madison—The late Joseph W. Hobins, president of the Capital City bank, left an estate valued at $300,000 according to a petition filed in the county court.

Beloit—The Rev. J. F. Ryan, for five years pastor of St. Thomas' church in Beloit, has been transferred to Janesville to become pastor of St. Patrick's church. He succeeded the late Rev. Dean E. E. Reilly.

Madison—The division of markets says of the potato situation: "Practically no Wisconsin stock has moved to central markets, but there has been considerable stock marketed locally. No Wisconsin stock is being quoted on the Chicago market at present, but Minnesota Early Ohio, which reports state have been of rather poor quality have sold for $2.75-$2.90 a hundred-weight.

Marquette—Threshing is in progress in Marquette county, a large number of crews being at work. The crop is showing a particularly heavy grain, some of it running three bushels by weight to a two bushel sack.

Sheboygan—Two birds from this city will be entered in the United States "derby" this month. Five thousand birds are to participate in the race of homing pigeons.

Neenah—The Winnebago county W. C. T. U. in annual session elected the following officers: President, Mrs. W. O. Allen, Oshkosh; vice-president, Mrs. George Foster, Neenah; secretary, Mrs. W. Osborn, Neenah; treasurer, Mrs. Eva Diley, Waukau.

Eau Claire—J. H. Kresher, East Liverpool, Ohio, arrived here and at once took over the duties of general secretary of the Eau Claire W. M. C. A., succeeding S. A. Melby, formerly connected with the St. Paul Y. M. C. A.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

THE CONCERT.

"The blue fairies were all over the tops of the hills," said Daddy, "and there were some fairies about who were dressed in lovely purple, too. They changed their costumes from one color to another as they played which was done by the Fairy Queen waving her wand about.

"They were pink and lavender and then red and at last they changed their costumes, too, as they were all being as gay as they could. At the top of the hill which was near where the cloud fairies and the mountain fairies were having such a good time there was a red house which was surrounded by trees and wild flowers and big hills rising behind it. And all about were the cloud fairies and the mountain fairies.

"There was a little bungalow below the house and there stood many wild asters and goldenrods which were looking their best.

"The Queen Anne's lace was there, too, and so were some of the Thistle family.

"A log was burning in the fireplace at the back of the room which could be seen through the bungalow windows to each other. The bungalow was hidden by a little group of trees for it was below the hill where the red house stood.

"A few sunnyside leaves were beginning to turn red, and surrounding a brook nearby there were daisies and buttercups which laughed and said: 'We are around here, too, though this isn't our time of year, but when the whole country is so beautiful we cannot help but be around, too, and see what is going on. So here we are around this brook where some of the red leaves on the vines which creep about show that it is almost the autumn, and some of the grass is brown and there are wild asters. It is different from the w. it was when our brothers and sisters were here first this year.

"And soon the brook will change again and there will be ice over it. How beautiful all the changes are."

"So," Daddy continued, "the flowers and the fairies and the leaves and all the things of the country talked and chattered.

"Soon they all were quiet for they began to hear the opening tune of the great concert. And then they all stopped and listened for upon this night all of the little creatures were going to sing, led by the Crickets' chorus.

"There was a steady sound of the singing and buzzing of the little creatures. There wasn't a moment of silence. Always if part of the chorus stopped for a moment the others took it up, so that there was a concert throughout the whole evening.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby. That Baby should have a bed of its own all agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

Ugly, Unsightly Pimples Are Signals of Bad Blood

Give Heed to the Warning.

Pimples on the face and other parts of the body are warnings from Nature that your blood is sluggish and impoverished. Sometimes they foretell eczema, boils, blisters, scaly eruptions and other skin disorders that burn like flames from fire.

They mean that your blood needs S. S. S. to cleanse it of these accumulations that cause unlimited trouble. This remedy is the greatest vegetable blood purifier known, and contains no minerals or chemicals to injure the most delicate skin.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and get rid of those unsightly and disgusting pimples, and other skin irritations. If you wish special medical advice, you can obtain it without charge by writing to Medical Director, 105 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Her Make-Believe Dog. A little girl stood at the bottom of the stairs calling: "Here, Fido! Here, Fido!"

A man who likes puppies stopped a moment to see what kind of a pet the little girl had.

When the pet made its appearance he exclaimed in surprise: "Didn't I hear you call it Fido?"

"Yes," the little girl replied complacently. "I know it is a cat, but I am having it for a dog."—Youngstown Telegram.

MERELY MAKING IT WORSE. Tommy Was Naturally Fearful as to the Consequences of Any More Interruptions.

A very junior officer was trying his first case.

"Seven days confinement to camp," he snapped.

"Excuse me, sir," whispered the company sergeant-major. "You mustn't give a sentence like that. You—"

"All right, then, fourteen days," retorted the sub.

"But, sir," pleaded the sergeant-major, "it's not—"

"Arf a mo', major," interposed the Tommy. "Don't check 'em again or 'll give me twenty-one. I ain't a horse—'e's a hauckener!"—London Tit-Bits.

Uniform Berries. "What nice large strawberries!" said the lady in the market.

"Yes, ma'am; aren't they beauties?" replied the man with the neat white apron.

"How do you sell them?" "Fifty cents a quart, ma'am."

"And are they just the same at the bottom of the basket as on the top?" "Oh, yes, ma'am; fifty cents a quart, just the same."

The Social Instinct. "You don't seem to take the same interest in your work that you did at first," remarked Farmer Courtless.

"I take as much interest as ever," replied the hired man. "But what's the use of my tryin' to do so much work that I'll get unpopular with the rest of the help?"

Bygones. "We must let bygones be bygones." "I endeavor to do so. I no longer give a thought to the time I wasted making up my mind how I would vote in the primaries."—Washington Star.

FIFTY YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE

Both he and his wife have always taken an active part in the progress of Schelesingerville, and could always be found back of any movement that had as its object the uplift of the community and the upbuilding of the village.
 Mr. Rosenheimer is one of the best known men in the county and in spite of his age actively manages his hotel and summer resort with the aid of his two sons. His acquaintance is not confined alone to the county by any means and one cannot hardly mention his name in any public meeting place in the state but what he will find someone that knows him.
 Both Mr. and Mrs. Rosenheimer are enjoying the very best of health and appear as young and active as they did twenty years ago. They can well look back over their past lives, which has been filled with happiness, and gain comfort and inspiration that as they traveled onward through life they did their very best for their fellow men. As they sail from the eddy of life's stream to the placid waters of the shore they can well feel that life has really been worth while and with solid friends and loving children about them they can leave some of the sterner struggles of life for them to take up where left off and with serene knowledge that it is all for the best, journey, filled with happiness, towards the glowing rays of the setting sun.—Hartford Times.
 Mr. Rosenheimer is a brother of Adolph and Moritz Rosenheimer of this village.

This section certainly owes a lot to the automobile

LOOK at it just from the business standpoint, compared with, say, ten years ago—or even five.

Everything speeded up—made easier. Nearly every business man depending on the automobile to transport himself and his products.

That is one reason, perhaps, why more attention is being paid to tires—why tire costs are being figured closer and people are beginning to look for better tires.

We believe that people are entitled to better tires—the best they can get.

Not only the man with the big car, but the man with the small car, and the medium sized car.

We represent U.S. Tires for that reason—because their policy is the same as ours—every tire as good as you can get it, regardless of the size of the car it is to go on.

It was that policy which led to the introduction of the straight side automobile tire, the pneumatic truck tire.

And you can't beat it.

U. S. Tires are guaranteed for life, with no limitation of mileage.

It will pay you to talk to us about tires, if you are looking at them from a business standpoint.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:
 In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.
 For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.
 For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.
 For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Cords.
