HIGHWAY TO COST $40,000 PER MILE

The cost of building the cement road on Highway 15, which was estimated by the state engineers early in the year, would amount to about $31,000 per mile, but according to figures as tabulated by the county State Road and Bridge committee, amount to about $10,000 per mile more, or a total of $40,000 per mile. The estimates given by the state engineer are way off, for the committee has tried in every way possible to keep the cost down, but the high price of cement and labor, together with the cost of hauling the material, resulted in the cost going far beyond the estimated mark. The work on Highway 15, has been completed in the town of Germantown, which starts at the Waukesha county line, and extends to nearly the junction with Highway 29, leading to Hartford. Next year the county expects to pave along Highway 15, from the beginning of Highway 55 in the town of Jackson towards Schlesinger. The paving along Highway 55 towards West Bend will also be continued. The contract for the paving will be let this month, so that paving can be started next spring. It is thought that the paving of these two stretches of road will cost about the same rate per mile, and the $2,000,000 for which the county was bonded will nearly be used up, which will in all probability mean the extent of amounts roads in this county, with the exception of that to be built by the government along Highway 55 between Schlesinger and St. Lawrence. The committee may be able to build road at about $35,000 per mile next year, but this however is doubtful, as it is thought that cement will be no cheaper. The committee figures in cutting down expenses, in feeding the road gangs, as the food will be purchased in large quantities and store them at the Court House and West Bend and the clerk of the Road and Bridge Committee will issue daily rations at a certain amount per man. They also expect to cut down expenses, by hiring a superintendent of construction, who will have entire charge of the road work and who will be responsible to the committee for the entire work. As the cost of road building costs more than estimated, it is thought that all that can be paved is the main traveled highways between West Bend and Hartford, and if anything of the bond issue is left it will be used, to build gravel roads in other parts of the county.

THE FALL

Months of gold and scarlet and russet, of clear, snappy mornings, warm afternoons and frosty nights—of harvest promises fulfilled, and of profit and prosperity for country folk—that's the Fall season.

And in these days the profits of the farm's farm work are not hidden behind a loose stone in the chimney. They are used first for adding to the business investment represented by the farm—more land or stock new buildings and new equipment. After these well advised expenditures, the balance goes into solid securities that pay a conservative but safe return.

Under the item of new equipment come many things for home improvement, things which tend to make farm life more comfortable and more enjoyable. And among these perhaps no one thing is being taken up more rapidly than the farm electric plant. In practically every neighborhood there are numerous farm families who have completely equipped their homes with electric service for their homes, barns, and all other buildings are brightly lighted. Electricity does the milking, separating, churning, pumping, washing, ironing and sweeping. There's scarcely a moment in the day when electricity isn't making things easier and more comfortable for some member of the farm family.

Now the good name of service of this kind spreads rapidly from one home to another, and as a result we see more and more farms this year putting a part of their year's profit into electric service for the home.

LUCKY FALL

Orevis Kleinfield, who is employed with Harry Fuchs's shoe store, had a horse shoe in his pocket when he fell from a twenty-five foot electric light pole near Hartford last week, and never received a scratch. While placing a cross arm on the pole, the pole suddenly broke with Mr. Kleinfield strapped to the pole, and consequently was thrown to the ground with some force. Orevis received quite a scare but outside of that, is back on the job as usual—Lomira Review.

LOCAL HIGH LOSES TO STRONG OPPONENTS

The local high school team met the fast, strong Mayville team at the Opera House last Friday evening. As has been the case with each opposing team played so far this year, Mayville had its old players of a year ago back in school and on the team again this year; as many of their players were seniors in high school that meant two, three or four years of experience in playing. Experience should be accompanied by fast accurate passing, the ball accurate basket shooting, speed, and team work. Mayville's experience had brought all these traits to a much higher degree than could possibly be hoped for with the new inexperienced Kewaskum team. The local boys played hard but the opponents were too strong for them and the locals did well in keeping the score 32 to 6 instead of 50 to 6. As above mentioned, the locals seem to be exceedingly unfortunate this year in having practically an entirely new team, composed of inexperienced players, many of whom are very young and light, while most of our neighboring schools have their older, heavier experienced players back again this year. A few of our friends seem to forget some of these features of the game sometimes and think the home team should win no matter how strong the opponent. A Ford has an engine, four wheels and burns gasoline the same as a Pierce Arrow; hence the Ford must be able to win a race with the Pierce Arrow. Nonsense. Then the Ford isn't any good because it doesn't win. Nonsense again. After all the Ford has its good points but the Pierce Arrow simply has more good points which give it a decided advantage. The person who can't see any good points about the Ford because it loses is a chronic kicker and forgets that any body can knock but the real problem is to boost. Even though the local boys do not have many of the desired advantages, such as size, age and experience, they are working hard in practice and trusting that perseverance and the experience and time required to develop a new team will show some results before the close of this season or that the reward will come next year or in future years. Last night, Friday, the local boys journeyed to Lomira. Next Thursday, Dec. 23rd, the strong Slinger team plays the return game on Kewaskum's floor. A good game is certain and the boys wish for a large attendance.

WINTER FIRE HAZARDS

An alarming number of reports of chimney and roof fires are coming in. Because of the work of the pipe and furnace coal is being used in stoves and softcoals intended for wood or hard coal. The smokepipes and chimneys become clogged in a short time. Then, dangerous experiments are tried to remove the soot. Use paper and excelsior are used and this, of course, sending flames through the pipes and chimney. The more foolhardy resort to powder, gasoline or kerosene.

This practice is more than likely to set the chimney roof on fire. The flames overheat the pipes and chimney and find any defect in either. Thus woodwork near the pipes or in contact with chimneys becomes ignited. Soft coal gases and fumes disintegrate the mortar between the brick creating openings for the dangerous spark.

Often these defects are in concealed places as in attics or between ceilings and floors and a bad fire may develop unnoticed.

Frequent thorough cleaning of chimney and smokepipes is the only safe remedy.

In 1919, over one-fourth of Wisconsin's fire hazards was due to heating plant fire hazards.

Many of these fires occur at night, thus greatly endangering the lives of sleeping occupants of homes, hotels and apartments.

In 1919, in this state, 73 persons died and 147 were injured through fire. Women and children were the chief victims.

Is your family and home free from fire and life dangers? CHRISTMAS FIRES

Annually many children are burned to death in America by fires from Christmas candles—poor Christmas cheer.

Set the tree on a firm standard so that it cannot be tipped over. Use metallic tinsel and other non-inflammable decorations only, and powdered mica and fibre asbestos to represent snow.

Do not permit the children to light the candles except in presence of adults. Electrical illumination is safer, but should be installed by an electrician. Remove the tree before the needles become dry.

Special caution must be exercised in churches, schools, stores and bazaars where fires are liable to cause panics and holocausts. Let no preventable fire mar the joy of Christmas.

XMAS PROGRAMS AT THE LOCAL CHURCHES

Christmas festivals will again be observed in the local churches as in former years. Services at the Ev. Peace church on Christmas Eve (Friday), will commence at seven o'clock. The programme at this church under the direction of Pastor A. L. Barth, will be different than in former years. Same will consist of German and English dialogues, songs and instrumental pieces. As a special feature, one which creates a great deal of interest, fun and surprise, and which has never been worked out in this church before, is the presentation of presents. The idea to be carried out is as follows: Anyone who desires to give a present to a relative or friend can bring same to the church, with the name of the person for whom it is intended written upon the package. The gift will be placed beneath the Christmas tree, and after the programme has been rendered, said name will be called off by the pastor, and if the party is present delivery will be made immediately. On Saturday morning, first Christmas Day, services will begin at 10 o'clock. The choir will render some very beautiful and pleasing selections.

At the Holy Trinity church, early mass will be held at 6:30 in the morning, and at 10:30 in the forenoon, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, on first Christmas Day. At 8:30 A. M., mass will be held at St. Bridget's church. Rev. Vogt will officiate.

At the Evangelical Lutheran St. Lucas church, services will commence at 7 o'clock on Friday evening (Christmas Eve). This programme will consist of various dialogues, songs, etc. After the programme, bags filled with candy will be distributed among the children. On Saturday morning (First Christmas Day) services will commence at 10 o'clock. Rev. Greve will officiate. All told, special efforts have been made by the pastors of all congregations to render a splendid programme, they have

MEETS WITH SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Peter Fellenz Sr., aged 70 years, a pioneer and highly esteemed settler of the town of Scott, residing about seven miles northeast of this village, met with a very painful accident on Thursday forenoon, December 16, which might prove fatal. Mr. Fellenz had left his home in the morning to cut wood in a woods not far from his home, and while in the act of chopping down a tree, it fell and in some manner struck Mr. Fellenz on the right side, breaking three ribs and cutting a deep gash on the left side of his head. At about 10:30 when his son Wm., aged 30 had gone to the woods to assist his father, he found him lying beside the tree suffering severely from his injuries. The young man called for help and the unfortunate man was removed to his home where medical aid was summoned, and his wounds dressed. At the present writing hopes for his recovery are entertained.

LOCAL ATHLETE RECEIVES HONORS

"Spatz" Miller, star center of the Kewaskum A. C. Basketball team, and also center for the Edison team of New London, is given a nice send-off by the New London paper, which says: "New London 'Republican'. The paper in describing the team has the following to say of Mr. Miller: 'Miller at Center, tall, husky and fast is "there" when it comes to the jump off. When it comes to covering the fan he makes them all look sick. He swings a wicked wing when jumping for the baskets and is dead sure of them all from a short distance.' This certainly speaks well of Mr. Miller, and his chances of making good with the New London team, one of the best teams in the state, look very good. Mr. Miller is a young man who has always taken a keen interest in athletics especially in basket ball. He has always proven himself to be a dangerous man for the opposing team keeping two men, and at times three men busy guarding him. This year, however, he is beating them over before and has yet to meet the man or men to stop him from scoring, for he is bound to break through the defense line no matter how strong it may be. Keep up the good work Spatz, the many fans here, especially the Kewaskum Athletic Club, wish you good luck and success in your work."

SWARTZ COMING FOR SERIES OF TALKS

Peter C. Swartz, manager and owner of the Kornfalia farms at Waukesha is coming to Washington County for a week's work with Washington County farmers who are interested in progressive agriculture. Although still a young man Mr. Swartz has made an enviable record as a farmer. His own farms are managed in a manner that brings hundreds of farmers miles to inspect them. He is now President of the Wisconsin Alfalfa Order and the Wisconsin Experiment Association. He raises 160 to 200 acres of alfalfa annually and is well known as Wisconsin's best and largest alfalfa grower.

Mr. Swartz has been doing farm institute work for four years, and it has been a hard task to get the services of Mr. Swartz for a week. We must show our appreciation of this great farmer by coming out to the meetings. Mr. Swartz is especially interested in telling us how he converted his run down worthless orchard into a paying proposition. In his humorous forceful manner he will tell us how to raise alfalfa successfully, and will answer any questions. Monday, Dec. 27, afternoon—South Germantown; evening—Jackson. VOTES 1-YEAR BAN ON ALIEN

House Passes Johnson Exclusion Bill by Vote of 293 to 41.

WARTIME LAW IS REPEALED

Volstead Resolution Is Adopted Unanimously, 323 Votes Being Recorded as Favoring It—Work on Tax Laws Is Started.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The Johnson immigration bill, as amended to prohibit all immigration for a period of one year, was passed by the house.

The vote was 293 for the bill and 41 against. Six members voted "present."

It now goes to the senate, where its defeat is predicted by senate leaders.

The Siegel amendment, exempting brothers and sisters of aliens who have become American citizens was approved, 203 to 76.

Immediately after the vote was announced Chairman Johnson of the immigration committee issued a statement saying that the 1,250 immigrants who arrived at New York Saturday in the White Star liner Adriatic had been sent to Hoffman island because of an outbreak of typhus among them, and that at Gloucester, N. J., 11 aliens had been taken from the steamship Havferford and sent to the detention station suffering with typhus.

Repeal of most of the wartime laws was voted by the house, which adopted the Volstead resolution for that purpose after two hours of debate.

The vote on adoption of the resolution was unanimous, 323 votes being recorded as favoring it, with none opposed. The house, before taking the final vote, accepted an amendment providing for inclusion of the Lever food control act among the laws which the resolution would repeal.

An embargo for one year against the importation of wheat, wheat flour, barley, rye, oats, flax, wool, eggs, cattle and sheep is proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Young (Rep.) of North Dakota.

Initial steps in the framing of new revenue legislation by congress were taken with the opening of hearings before the house ways and means committee on tax questions and the nation's revenue needs.

Dr. Thomas S. Adams, tax expert and economist of the Treasury department, told the committee that the first problem for it to decide was whether the level of taxes should be retained at $4,000,000,000 annually. He expressed the belief that no reduction could or should be considered.

Cotton Prices Back to Previous Low Levels—Decreased Public Purchasing Power Noticeable.

New York, Dec. 11.—Dun's review of business for week ending December 10: While a general turn for the better in business is still delayed, expressions of confidence are rather numerous. Inasmuch as sentiment is an important factor in any commercial movement, the increased feeling manifest in various quarters is obviously an encouraging indication.

Maintenance of the recent active buying of gray cotton goods has not been witnessed and prices have shown a tendency to fall back to previous low levels upon the abatement of demand. Recognition of a decreased public purchasing power is becoming more general and the lessened consumption is as noticeable in the agricultural sections as in the industrial centers.

Unemployment meanwhile is increasing, further curtailing appearing at New England points and elsewhere.

The eggs have been taken to the state fish hatchery at Sheboygan. The Sturgeon Bay state hatchery at present is carrying 10,000,000 trout eggs, and Supt. Madison—Dog licensing and dog regulations as practiced under the Wisconsin law should be changed, in the opinion of Senator George Staudenmayer, of Portage, who states that he proposes to introduce bills at the next session of the legislature altering the present system. Dog freedom is practically abolished under the law now on the statute books, he points out. Unless escorted the canines must not be out after sundown; they all have to be registered, are state taxed, and have further restrictions that strictly regulate their mode of living, it is said, as the result of provisions of the law.

Madison—An inventory of the estate of the late Chief Justice John B. Winslow, filed in county court, shows a total of $46,934.71. Of this $16,500 is in real estate and $34,434.71 is personal property. Marinette—Litigation covering a period of four years and a half was ended when the Casualty Insurance Co. paid D. J. McKay $3,000 for injuries suffered at the N. Ludington Co. lumber camp in April, 1916, when a tree fell upon him. McKay was awarded $3,147 damages three times by the industrial commission and twice the decision was reversed by Judge Stevens, Madison, upon appeal by the insurance company. The last trial resulted in a settlement.

Merrill—A pine tree, said to be the largest in Lincoln county, was hewed down by Pollack Bros. at Heller. The stump was 56 inches in diameter and 473 feet of lumber scaled from the logs, of which six were taken from the trunk and four from the top. The average carload of logs from new woods is 5,000 feet. The tree had 360 rings of growth, showing it to be 400 years old. These men were just able to clasp hands around the tree.

Birchwood—According to C. W. Staples, assessor of incomes, only 10 per cent of the land in Burnett county is under cultivation. One-third of the land in the county is in farms, either inclosed in fences and used as pasturage or used for cutting wild hay. Two-thirds of the land is not fenced, is not a part of any farm and brings no return. Most of this undeveloped land is owned by speculators.

U. S. MAY SEIZE ALL COAL MINES

Senate Committee on Production and Reconstruction Reports.

Senator Kenyon Sees Seizure of the Government the Only Way Out of the Abuse—Labor Leaders Are Hit.

Washington, Dec. 15.—Sharp criticism of the national coal industry, with implied threat of drastic legislation by congress to meet alleged evils of profiteering and speculation, accompanied the partial report of the committee on production and reconstruction, submitted to the senate.

In general, the report, which asked power to allow the committee to continue its investigation, suggested government activities to bring about cooperation under regulation in building construction, but its three Republican members, Senators Calder of New York, Edge, New Jersey, and Kenyon, Iowa, supplemented their findings with additional statements, all of which agreed in asking special legislative attention to present methods of producing and distributing coal.

Favors Mine Seizure. These, Chairman Calder said, "must be corrected," while Senator Kenyon declared that "if the matter is to go on, I, for one, harsh as the remedy might be, shall favor taking over the mines." Senator Edge expressed his conclusion that "the coal industry cannot bring order out of the prevailing chaos, and give even reasonable relief to the suffering people, so I am ready to modify somewhat, in this case, my opposition to government intrusion into private business."

"Coal profiteering, especially as it has followed the priority orders of the interstate commerce commission, has continued unchecked by the Department of Justice, and is a national disgrace," the committee said in its joint report. "Coal speculation has been permitted to monopolize the transportation facilities of the country, retarding necessary construction and increasing the basic cost of manufacture and distribution of commodities in general. It has bled the home owners, public utilities and industries."

Calls Condition Helpless. "Our investigation into the coal situation has convinced us that the private interest now in control of the production and distribution of coal, in spite of efforts by some, are actually unable to prevent a continuance or repetition of the present deplorable situation, and that it is the duty of the government to take such reasonable and practical steps as it may to remedy the evil."

Government administration of the production and distribution of coal, the committee said, "should be a last resort," but for the present it was recommended that operators, wholesalers, jobbers and retailers in the industry be required to file full and frequent reports with a federal agency. These reports should show, the committee concluded, "total tonnage produced or handled, size and quality thereof, amount of tonnage contracted for, sold on contract and at spot sale, to whom and the prices made and received under contracts or sales."

The mine costs and profits, and the corporate interrelations or the communities of interests, if any between companies producing and distributing coal."

In other fields, the committee said, "there exists a serious shortage of housing, not only in the great cities, but in the smaller cities as well, even in the far West and South, which is held to have deleterious effect upon public health, morals and industrial growth. Labor conditions also were discussed by the committee."

Hits Labor Leaders. "The misdirection and exploitation of some groups of organized labor, through grafting leadership, has been revealed in New York city, and has been reported in some other larger cities," the report said. "This has spread to combinations of employers, who, working together with such grafting labor leaders, have combined to force unduly high prices. The Department of Justice is urged to prosecute the wrong-doers whenever they are found to have violated the federal statutes."

BLACK AND TANS WIN FIGHT

Auxiliary Police Attacked on Outskirts of Dublin—Peace Hope Is Blasted.

Dublin, Dec. 15.—A party of armed men attacked a military motor lorry carrying six black and tans at Ballsbridge, on the outskirts of this city. The black and tans took cover in the post office. Re-enforcements were rushed up and relieved them.

London, Dec. 15.—Prospects of a truce in Ireland appear to have been blighted by the most recent events in that island, says Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland. Telephone service between England and Dublin, which was interrupted last night, was resumed this morning. The break in communication gave rise to much speculation and some anxiety here.

Time of Her Return.

"I saw your mother going to a neighbor as I crossed the street," said the lady caller to her friend's little son. "Do you know when she will be back?"

"Yes'm," answered truthful Jimmy. "She said she'd be back just as soon as you left."

And That Hurts!

Jud Tunkins says the trouble about showing a friend where he is all wrong is that it's always too easy for him to reciprocate.

The "U.S." Walrus

Wash them clean—slip them off

The most convenient overshoes you ever wore

"U.S." Boots—Reinforced where the wear is hardest. Made in all sizes and styles—Hip, Half-hip, and Knee. In red, black, and white.

CLEANED with a dash of water while they're still on your feet—buckled or unbuckled in an instant—warm and water-tight always—

That's why farmers everywhere are buying the U. S. Walrus. You need a pair for dozens of odd jobs around the farm.

You slip the U. S. Walrus on over your leather shoes—and push it off with your toe when you're through. Its warm, fleecy lining keeps your feet comfortable in the coldest weather.

Wherever you go—tramping through snow or splashing through water—the U. S. Walrus gives you perfect protection. And then at your doorstep—no matter how muddy they are—a moment's rinse at the pump or faucet washes their smooth rubber surface clean.

Made by the oldest and largest rubber manufacturer in the world, the U. S. Walrus is built to wear. At the very points where ordinary overshoes are weakest the U. S. Walrus has been made strongest. Every point of strain is heavily reinforced. Ask your dealer to show you a pair!

Other types of "U.S." Footwear—built for rough service

U. S. Boots have all the wear and comfort which our 74 years of experience can give them. U. S. Booties lace on over the sock like a leather shoe. You can wear them all day long in mud and water—your feet will stay dry and comfortable.

The U. S. line of footwear has a type for every need—arctic, rubbers, "overs." Every one is backed by over half a century of experience. The rubber comes from our own plantations—the whole process of manufacture is supervised by experts.

Always look for the U. S. Seal—it means solid wear and long service for your money.

A REAL CHRISTMAS PRESENT

The holiday season with its joy and its problems is upon us. What shall we do to add to the happiness of the season? Each one of us would like only to wish our friends a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, to give them one. We cannot do by means of ill-considered presents. Thoughtless gifts cause the flash can to bulge with debris. On our gifts have lasting meaning—they carry the true message of which is the spirit of real in give happiness and contentment and safety for the future as well as pleasure for the moment. Such gifts are within reach of all. They are found in the Savings Securities of the United States Government. Buy a 25-cent Thrift Stamp to the Thrift Savings Certificate. Carry with them not only of the season but happiness to come. In present-day times, you bestow not only a habit which will grow as the days pass, for he will fill the card. That little gift will grow wonderfully before Christmas comes around, and the recipient will be on the way to a life of independence.

In recommending these lasting gifts, the Savings Division of the Treasury does not suggest that a single American curtail his Christmas giving. It suggests only that he broaden it to include this present which will bring future well-being to those he loves.

Thrift Stamps, Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates will be on sale throughout the year 1921. In continuing the sale of Government Savings Securities, the Government is giving the opportunity to every man, woman and child in the land through the coming year to enjoy the happiness, prosperity and contentment which is found in financial independence and security for the future.

DOGS KILL SHEEP

On Thanksgiving night Edward Flynn, who resides on the Dundee road between Campbellsport and Dundee, reported that his sheep were being killed and torn. The same night, two more were killed and six badly torn, belonging to Moritz Wensler, residing near Lake Killeen. The dogs have been seen, but no one has been able to catch them. It is believed that they are stray dogs.

'BETTERING LIVING AND WORKING CONDITIONS ON THE FARM

It takes 7,000 or 8,000 hours of labor a year to keep a farm of the average size up to its normal state of production. If the farmer himself could work seven thousand hours a year, or if he and his wife together could provide these hours of actual labor, they would have the labor question settled, for average farms.

But the housewife nowadays has work enough of her own without taking on any additional burdens of farm work. The farmer himself, if he sleeps only eight hours out of the twenty-four would have less than six thousand hours in which to eat, work and plan his farm work, and this calls for a full schedule of sixteen hours a day, an impossible year-round situation.

While the progressive farmer is using most everything in the way of improved machinery to save time and labor in his field work, he is coming to realize that there are many other ways to save work for himself and for every member of his family.

Electricity is the big factor in this sort of saving. It will light the house and barn with modern, safe lighting. It will run all the machines about the place that ordinarily are turned with a crank, it will pump the water, for stock and for house use, saving, some farmers say, as much as two hours a day on this one item. It will sweep the house, heat the flatiron and run electric fans. It changes the character of living in any home, city or country, wherever this modern force is introduced. The farmer can have electricity, easily, for he has only to buy one of the modern farm electric plants and go ahead enjoying complete service. Electric plant development has reached a high state of perfection. Some of the highest type plants are directly connected, with an aircooled engine using kerosene for fuel, representing the ideal in gas-engine construction for which engineers have long been striving.

THE REASON FOR THE "C" IN THE TRIANGLE

With Wisconsin's highways marked in such fine fashion, motorists watch the guide posts very closely. Recently the small triangle markings have had added to them a capital letter within the triangle, either a capital "W" or "C". The "W" means that this particular highway is patrolled by a person paid from state funds, while the letter "C" within the triangle designates that the highway is being patrolled by a man paid from county highway funds.

Security Calf Food

We wish to call your attention to Security Calf Food, a food especially prepared for calves and little pigs. They require proper food and just as much so, as young babies require proper food. Security Calf Food is put up to take the place of mother's milk for young calves and little pigs, as baby foods are put up to take the place of mother's milk for babies.

Security Calf Food replaces the whole milk from the time the calf is three days old. A calf requires from 8 to 12 quarts of whole milk a day. This is worth from 4 to 7c a quart and it will cost you from 30 to 40c a day to feed your calf with whole milk, while you can raise or fatten your calf with Security Calf Food for less than one-fourth the cost of whole milk, and raise just as good a calf.

Security Calf Food does not have to be cooked or boiled with. Just mix a measureful (you will find a measure in each pail or package) with whey or skim milk. Stir up well. There is no danger from indigestion or scours from using Security Calf Food and the calves like it.

We guarantee you to raise as good, fat and healthy a calf on Security Calf Food as on whole, fresh milk. We also guarantee to refund in cash for every pail or package of Security Calf Food that does not give perfect satisfaction.

A special discount of 10% on every pail of Calf Food sold up to Jan. 1st 1921.

YOUNG MEN! PARENTS!

Those of you who still retain the spirit of youth. Here is a magazine for which you have been waiting a long while! A happy combination of clean, stirring fiction and exceedingly helpful, straight-from-the-shoulder articles by men of broad experience and exceptional ability.

Some recent contributors: Herbert Hoover, Donald MacMillan, Fred Stone, Charles Boardman Hawes, and Holman Day.

Calvin Coolidge, the law and order Governor of Massachusetts, in a letter to us says in part, "THE OPEN ROAD is clean, animated, and of genuine inspiration for courageous living. It seeks to convey a sense of the nobility of honest effort and the joy of achievement without pedantry."

In these days of high prices it is difficult to get your "money's worth". THE OPEN ROAD gives you not only a full measure but throws in a few extras for good will.

There is action on every page, with a liberal number of photographs and illustrative drawings by able artists. There is plenty of humor, too; you will enjoy a series of "story cartoons" now running.

The Vocational Department is performing a valuable service all over the country to young men who are in doubt as to what to make their life work. Find out about it!

Three dollars for a year of pleasure and profit in monthly installments. Your subscription will be accepted at the office of this paper and forwarded to

When Run-Down

FOND DU LAC, WIS.—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a very good medicine. When I was a girl going to school I got all run-down and weak due to hard studying. I was coming into womanhood and this medicine built me up in fine shape in just a short space of time. I also took it about seven years ago during expectancy and it helped me wonderfully. I had practically no suffering and my baby was strong and healthy and has always been. The 'Prescription' has done wonders for me. I think it the only medicine for weak women.—Mrs. CARL GUELL, Jr., 290 9th Street.

Good looks in woman do not depend upon age, but upon health. You never see a good-looking woman who is weak, run-down. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best women's tonic there is. It is 50 years old, and its age testifies to its goodness.

THE BLUE MOON A TALE OF THE FLATWOODS

By DAVID ANDERSON

The tall form of the Pearlhunter stiffened in the gloom; his fingers gripped the revolver butt. "You might get Bull Masterson," he said, "and wait across there on the lower point of Alpine island. But don't do anything unless the mob starts. I don't know much law, but I do know the law couldn't hurt you for rescuing a sheriff's prisoner from a mob."

"Law! Law!" The Boss growled. "When I know they've ketch'd the wrong man—"

He would have grumbled still further, but the Pearlhunter urged him to go. With a last whispered word, the sturdy old fellow stole away in the gloom, half reluctant still, as though he felt he was disgracing himself not to stay and fight—somebody.

The Pearlhunter strained his ears for sounds farther up the street, particularly for any loud talk or excitement back of the Mud Hen.

It was the hour just after nightfall, when village streets are most likely to be deserted—the hour when loungers go home to supper. Not a sound out of the ordinary rode the air.

At the moment, a door opened on the back porch of the sheriff's house. A square of light picked out the rough boards. The sheriff appeared with a hat basket in the hollow of his arm.

A woman's hand pulled back the muslin curtains at a side window and held a candle close to the pane to light him across the jail yard.

The Pearlhunter lounged down on the broken chair. A moment later a key, scraping unbelievably loud on the dull silence of the jail, hunted its way into the lock. The heavy outer door whined back. A match scraped; the sputtering flame was laid to the stub of a candle; an arm held it through the bars of the inner door.

"Oh, you're awake!" It was so quiet in here, I thought maybe 'ya might be asleep."

With the air of a man dog tired the Pearlhunter dragged himself up off the chair, stumbled into the hall and took the stub of candle from the sheriff's hand.

The sheriff fumbled three or four dishes and a tin cup of black coffee out of the flat basket and held them close to the bars. He stood well back, taking quite evident pains to keep his revolver butt out of reach. He did not know there was a very dependable weapon already on the other side of the bars. He made no move to unlock the door or to enter the cell.

None of this escaped the Pearlhunter. The chance to use his stove leg was as good as gone, or rather, it was not going to come. Once he considered the desperate move of drawing his revolver and forcing the sheriff to open the door. But the sheriff was known to be a brave man. He might fight, and if he did, one or the other of them would be killed. The Pearlhunter dismissed the plan.

"The woman didn't know there'd be company tonight," the sheriff muttered as he held the dishes within reach of the arm thrust through the bars. "I'm s'posed you'll be skimped a little. But we'll try an' cook up a plenty in the morning."

He closed the door and turned the key in the lock. The Pearlhunter watched him until he had crossed the square of light shining out from the kitchen and re-entered the house, until the door closed and the muslin curtains fell back into place at the side window. Then he laid the stove leg by. His chance was gone.

The revolver tucked under his waistband at the flank of his back and hidden by his blouse seemed to have a personality. Its friendly presence helped his appetite, though, for that matter, it was already keen enough, as he had eaten nothing since morning. He could have eaten three such suppers as the sheriff provided.

The friendly revolver; the thought of a grizzled old river man, doubtless at that moment rowing hard up the river, took some of the smart out of his cuts and bruises. His left eye was swelling shut. He winked it limber and stood wondering whether to blow out the candle or leave it burn a while; finally blew it out, and went back to the west window.

A sound caught his ear; steps coming down the river road. He listened. The steps turned in at the jail yard; came around to the west window. A face appeared between the bars. Enough light fell from the stars to reveal its identity—the suave, handsome face of the man he least expected to see there.

The Pearlhunter came close to the window. The other backed a step away.

"Pleased to find you in," he sneered. The Pearlhunter passed by the taunt in silence. It seemed to irritate the other that his shot had missed.

"Just thought I'd call around at your—ah—your boarding place this evening and talk over a little matter of business—a sort of proposition—a—uh—bargain," he drawled.

The man on the inside of the bars made no answer. His face was as stolid as if he hadn't heard. Neither was the other much on talk. He shot straight and talked the same way. Half patiently he shifted to his other foot; took his thumbs out of his vest pockets. The easy smile left his face; the real man came out—a wildcat, fanged and clawed.

"I'll uncork this rotten old jug," he growled, "if you'll bolt the Flatwoods and stop queerin' my game."

His lips snapped tight. His cards were on the table. The Pearlhunter pondered them in his deliberate way and cast up the sum total of their exact value.

First. There would be no mob.

Otherwise he would have trusted to that. The meeting behind the Mud Hen had fizzled.

Second. He had no stomach for going into court.

Third. "Queerin'" his "game." What did he mean by his game? He couldn't have meant the Blue Moon, for he didn't know the Pearlhunter knew he had it. His game. That tense scene at the fence the evening before flashed up clear as the river bed under the jack light; a girl with a basket; frightened eyes; a yellow curl that rose and fell upon a startled bosom.

"I'll stay where I am," he answered, crisp and cold. "The law put me in; the law can get me out."

The other shrugged his shoulders, furious at the baffling coolness he encountered. And yet he couldn't afford to give up his plans, or spoil them by any untimely show of his real feelings. The easy smile came back.

"Those questions you were expectin' to ask—I might answer them to boot."

The Pearlhunter's fingers tightened on the bar. He breathed deep. Those questions! His life through, they had haunted him. And the man before him knew the answer. His face set hard. "Answer or not, as you please," he said; "but I'll not bolt the Flatwoods. I was expectin' to ask about my—father."

The other whipped a curious look at him.

"Your father!" he snarled. The scowl on his face became it better than the smile. "As like you as two peas; with the same lot of fool, Sir Galahad notions about the women—angels and white lilies, and all that rot. He crossed my path once too often, and for the last time, seven years ago. He's in hell now. And your mother—"

The fist that stabbed out of the window fell almost short, landing with a snap instead of a crash. Like a lash that can reach only so far. It stung the man on the point of the cheek and shot his head back.

He staggered and threw up his hand to his face. His other hand involuntarily dropped to his hip. Well for him that it stopped before it got there. The Pearlhunter had snatched the revolver from under his blouse and held it just below the window ledge.

The man on the outside backed away, his face stung to flame by the blow. He felt for his knife; seemed to remember where he had put it—between the ribs of a man. Anyhow, it would have been as useless as the revolver. None precluded the use of the one; walls and bars the other.

"I'd kill you," he retorted finally, his tones steady, though strained, like the current that plays across the top of a whirlpool, "only I haven't time. There's a flock of yellow curls and a devilish trim pair of ankles waitin' for me down the road."

He had so framed the taunt as to reflect on the girl his very thought dishonored. Without another word he turned and walked away. The Pearlhunter seriously debated whether to shoot him dead and trust to fate for the rest. The revolver crawled up over the window sill. He grasped one of the bars to steady his hand. A start of surprise came to his face. The revolver went back below the window sill. The bar was loose.

It was almost unbelievable, but it was so. For some reason or other it had not been fixed very firmly in its anger hole sockets. These were played a heartening amount of it—between the upper and lower anger holes. His blood missed a beat; then leaped the higher.

He jammed the bar into the lower socket. The bottom of the hole was soft. The rain had probably rotted it. He jammed the bar again and the wood gave. He put all his strength to it. Each effort drove the bar a little deeper; gave it a little more play at the top. If he could only drive it far enough so that the top would clear! He was working like a wild man.

Leaving down with all his strength, he rotated the bar. The tremendous exertion opened the cuts and scratches on his neck and breast until they bled afresh. He jammed the bar down again; bore upon it with all his strength; rotated it again and again. Less than half an inch still held at the top.

His exertions brought the sweat out upon his face. Another effort; tremendous; to the last ounce of his power.

His hands were like fire—but the bar cleared. He could move it a tiny mile to the side of the upper anger hole. The clearance was ever so little—but it cleared. Bracing his knee against the wall and grasping the cement with his left hand for anchorage, he bent and worked and twisted the bar outward. At last, by a final supreme heave, it cleared the upper log.

There remained only to lift it out of the lower anger hole.

The Pearlhunter dropped back panting and mopped the sweat from his face with his sleeve. The effort had been tremendous.

A minute to get his breath; another spent in listening; and he worked the loosened end a little freer, fitted out the bar; crawled outside; put it back into place again, feeling about with his fingers to make sure there were no scars on the wood or bits of chips scraped loose, and stole away under the trees.

It would probably be quite impossible for the city-bred to appreciate fully the feelings of the Pearlhunter at fudging the breath of the open woods once more upon his face. The trees were like comrades in arms. The ranch lark that covered their stout hearts actually felt friendly and good to his "inside as he darted like a shadow from one to the other on his way out of the jail yard and up the side of the bluff.

Well knowing there would be eyes on his trail in the morning, he dared not go directly to where his misgivings urged him. The sheriff he did not fear. To the sheriff he was still the notorious Red Mask. To the mob that was sure to gather he would be the Red Mask. His escape, with lock and bolt untouched, would mystify both mob and sheriff. They would ascribe it to the dread powers with which popular fancy had invested his name.

But in the rubble that would curse and clamor about the old jail there would be one pair of eyes that the loosened bar would not escape; a pair of eyes that would find it as sure as the morning came, and read the riddle at a glance. And they would be eyes capable of finding a trail—and following it. Much as it went against him, therefore, he turned his steps east instead of west and plunged in among the clumped underbrush that grew along the top of the cliff.

Crossing the river road was the problem. Choosing a place where the grass came close to the track on each side, a short distance above where the path leaves it at the turn, he leaped across, and using considerable care to hide his trail, picked his way down along the inside of the brush-tangled fence row.

That path! It led out of an old world into a new. Peering through the bushes he spared a hurried glance toward the low place in the fence where the path crossed. The stars peeped the place with memories. A girl with a basket; round, frank eyes; the sunbonnet caught by an overhanging limb; the curl that wouldn't behave—they all came to life out of the shadows. So many things had happened since he walked that path with her that it seemed long, long ago; and it was only yesterday.

The picture dissolved. A breath between steps it had held him, and he was off on the long, lanky jog. The memory had brought a half longing to traverse the path again, but prudence warned him to keep away. The sharp eyes in the Flatwoods would be on that path at sunrise.

If he might do the menace he feared—that in so many words had threatened—it would undoubtedly develop in or near the three-gabled cabin. As he drew near the place his mastery of woodcraft showed in his approach. The bushes were not allowed to give up a sound.

A light shone through the front windows of the main room of the cabin. He wondered at this. It made him uneasy, for the evening was gone and the ripe night came. Not many candles were alight at that hour in the Flatwoods. He sank back under the bushes and crawled nearer. The muslin curtains were drawn, but no shadows crossed them. The stillness within vaguely disquieted him. He was searching for a way to crawl a little nearer, when the low tones of the cello broke across the silence; and he knew the girl was keeping her lonely vigil beside the stricken old man.

Then came the voice from a throat the gods had kissed. Each tone found a kindred sound in the cello and coaxed it forth to flutter out upon the listening night in a lustrous witchery that somehow brought to the fancy of the listener under the bushes a picture of soft-winged swallows skimming over sun-kissed waters.

The figure of a man slid into the candle glow that beat the night back for a space outside the window—trim; compact; jaunty—the man he had expected to find prowling there. The picture was gone. He had little ear for the music that followed. The hand of the listener at the window stole up against the light and dragged off his hat. The man crouching in the bushes could make out the crisp locks that clung close to the bare head.

The song ended. The last soft harmony of the cello lost itself among the listening trees. There came a muffled shuffling inside the cabin; a huge shadow, as of two figures bulked together, crossed the curtain of the window at the west side of the door. The Pearlhunter knew what was happening—the girl leading the stricken man to his bed. But his eyes were upon the still figure outside the window.

One shadow came back, a slim, trim shadow; there followed the creaking of a chair; a head, hung with loose hair, rocked back and forth across the curtain—and the man who crouched under the bushes knew the girl was alone with her thoughts.

The man at the window watched the shadow. It seemed to rouse him—to recall fancies that the song had caused to wander far. He glanced about; pulled himself together; made a half petulant step toward the door.

The man in the underbrush stifled; slowly rose, noiseless as smoke. The man approaching the door seemed to hesitate; stopped. The other sank down again in the bushes. The head of flowing hair rocked back and forth across the curtain.

It was a strained moment; a three-handed game in the dark; an intense three-angled drama of life—unhappy of more than life, if the honor of a woman is more than that.

The man hesitating before the door had the next play. What held his hand? The song? Perhaps his plans were not yet ripened to the full. He made another step toward the door; stopped; jerked his shoulders up savagely; glared about; brought his eyes back to the rocking shadow; swore softly; turned and stalked silently away down the path toward Fallen Rock.

SYSTEM IN REGULAR SAVING

Money Should Be Made Easy to Deposit and Then Comparatively Hard to Withdraw.

"The only way for a man regularly to save money, unless he be one of those individuals possessed of an extraordinarily unrelenting character," according to Samuel Crowther, writing in System, the Magazine of Business, "is for the money to be passed into the savings account before it reaches him—that is, to put him in the position of having to make another resolution to quit saving in order to stop the process."

"Finally, take the convenience of withdrawal. A man will rightly hesitate about going into any system of saving which locks up his funds for any long period of time. The average worker has no great margin between income and outgo and he has to be prepared for a rainy day—for a birth, for a death, for a long illness. He cannot afford to put a measurable part of his funds out of reach. If his money is to go from him for a long time he very naturally will not be willing to do anything like so much as he would if the money were always available. On the other hand any system of saving in which withdrawals may be easily and secretly made is faulty. The funds should be available upon short notice, there should be a penalty for withdrawal, which penalty should be large enough to stop withdrawals for frivolous purposes and yet not so large as to work anything which savors of injustice to a man who honestly needs the money."

Candles on Toast!

An adult Eskimo is capable of consuming twenty pounds of flesh and oil daily. A Yakut will wash down this quantity of flesh with a quart or two of train-oil, and take as dessert a dozen tallow candles.

A famous naturalist, who cooked part of a boacrest, declared that it tasted very much like veal. On another occasion he tested crocodile and pronounced the flesh excellent. Frohisher and Settle both commented on the way the inhabitants around Hudson's Bay used to eat grass. "Such grass," says Settle, "as the country produceeth, they pluck up and eat, not daintily or salad-wise, but like brute beasts."

Humboldt tells of men living on the banks of the Orinoco who eat earth. They knead the earth into balls of from four to six inches in diameter, and bake them before a slow fire.

Silver Fox Hard to Catch.

On Mount Whitney and its white crested neighbors of the stupendous Sierra Nevada, within sight of burning Death valley, and at the portals of semitropical southern California, says the Philadelphia Record, trappers and sportsmen are gradually discovering that wild life seems to be getting and numbers as in few if any other regions of similar proportions on the globe. The rarest of its treasures for milder life is the silver fox. Of these there have been captured half a dozen worth from $500 to $1,000 each, and many of smaller value. The silver fox's coat is coal black, with a luster of burnished white metal, and a white tip to the tail. Apparently it is quite abundant in the place referred to, but extremely difficult to catch.

Irving in England.

It is a pleasing sight, of a Sunday morning, when the bell is sending its sober melody across the quiet fields, to behold the peasantry in their best finery, with ruddy faces, and modest cheerfulness, thronging tranquilly along the green lanes to church; but it is still more pleasing to see them in the evening, gathering about their cottage doors, and appearing to exist in the humble comforts and embellishments which their own hands have spread around them.—Washington Irving.

Immunity From Second Attack.

The United States public health service says that it is well known that an attack of measles or scarlet fever or smallpox usually protects a person against another attack of the same disease. To some extent this appears to be true also of influenza. Just how long such protection lasts is not known.

Some folks' self-admiration proves that there is no accounting for tastes.

ANSWERS CALL OF FRIEND ALASKA APPEALS TO YOUTH

Deer's Remarkable Attachment to Man Who Had Cared for It in Its Helplessness. Newspaper in Great Northern Territory Promises Fortune to the Young and Adventurous.

A two-pronged buck deer answers the calls of Jerry Shine, employed by the municipal water district at Alpine dam, near San Raphael, Cal.

Long ago Shine one day came upon a dead doe in the trail of the forest, and standing beside the mother was a fawn. It was miles to Shine's cabin, but he carried the fawn home with him, fed it and gave it the name of Billy. After a time Shine left the district. He returned several days ago and asked his fellow workers the whereabouts of his deer. They laughed at him; the deer had gone back to nature, they said.

Shine mounted the parapet of the dam and called for Billy. The deer, now the proud possessor of two pronged horns, bounded out of the forest. A photograph was taken of the form and the animal, as the latter rested his forehead on the shoulder of Shine.

It's Nature. "One industry in Australia is raising kangaroos."

"I should think that would keep those engaged in it on the jump."

Kissing is dangerous, but every girl considers herself immune.

The sage advice of Greeley was never more applicable than it is today in Alaska, observe the Alaska Capital. What the country needs is the optimism of youth, coupled with an adherence to the advice of Dr. Kilgore of Trinity college, North Carolina, when he said: "Young man, the sages will tell you to be prudent; prudence belongs to the daring of youth—the spirit of adventure that will develop individuality."

Reduce this philosophy to Alaskan terms, and we find that the territory just now needs youth to finish the structure upon the foundation laid by those wonderful pioneers who were reverence and admire. The raw materials are here, materially and ethically all that is needed is for the next generation succeeding the pioneers to step into the trails blazed for them and finish the work.

Fitting Process. "The delinquents are going on the carpet."

"And the investigation into their conduct will be a sweeping one."

The way to fame is like the way to heaven, through much tribulation.—Sterne.

Under the Holly Bough

"Ye who have scorned each other, Or injured friend or brother, In this fast fading year; Ye who, by word or deed, Have made a kind heart bleed, Come gather here!

"Let sinned against and sinning Forget their strife's beginning, And join in friendship now. Be links no longer broken, Be sweet forgiveness spoken Under the holly-bough.

"Ye who have loved each other, Sister and friend and brother, In this fast fading year; Mother and sire and child, Young man and maiden mild, Come gather here;

"And let your heart grow fonder, As memory shall ponder Each past unbroken vow; Old loves and younger wooing Are sweet in their renewing Under the holly-bough."

—Charles Mackay.

Origin of Quaint Traditions of the Yuletide

THE holiday season recalls quaint ideas and Christmas fancies of old, even back to the ancient days of the Druids—a time when the mistletoe sprig, as a potent mascot, was presented as an omen of good fortune, as a symbol of health, wealth and prosperity, and in those days long ago the house that sported a branch of mistletoe at Christmas would never be unlucky.

It is from the Druids that the custom of decorating our churches and homes with evergreens comes, for they believed that all the sylvan sprites flocked together on these boughs, there to remain until the warm weather came. In midwinter the Druids sent around sprigs of ivy and mistletoe to remind the people to decorate their dwellings with evergreens, in order to propitiate the sylvan sprites and secure protection from frosts and wintry blasts. Holly berries long have been considered as giving wonderful power when worn in the shape of a wreath, which must be made and worn in imitation of a sacred crown of thorns and of berries, and the wearer of this crown must go alone at midnight on Christmas and sit in the dark, and, in accordance with that ancient tradition, when worn on Christmas eve the holly wreath will evoke visions of spirit forms coming in the air to sing their Noel songs, and all the banquets will be seen to kneel down in worship.

The Yule cake and Yule log, too, have their important part in this ancient Saxon tradition for the Christmas festival season. The cake had the same powers as the bride cake has on Christmas night. The Yule log was used to light the Christmas fire the next year because it preserved the house from fire during the year and subdued the spirit of the flames. Its powers were bestowed in the days of the Druids, when the belting fires were lighted and the brands secured from the fire to light the fire the next year. The ancient Saxons burned the Yule log as a symbol of the turning of the sun toward spring.

Even the moon contributed its share to Christmas superstitions, for, as the legend runs, if Christmas comes during the waning of the moon we shall have a very good year, and the nearer to the full moon the better.

Holland, perhaps, has the prettiest custom of all nations for the Christmas festival. On the night before Christmas in commemoration of the star of the east, the young men of their towns assemble and carry through the dark streets a large, bright star; all the people go out to greet and give to the bearers of this "star of Bethlehem," as it is called, stars for the poor.

Seven days before their New Year, the Chinese worship the Kitchen God by preparing dishes of candy and various sweets with which they smear his mouth. Later they burn him a suit of fine clothing, the deity being sent up in a chariot of smoke and fire to a conference with the king of the celestial regions. The idea of smearing his mouth with sweets is that he may not say anything but honeyed words, or that his lips may stick together and so prevent his talking too much.

The Kitchen God, according to story, had been ill treated by his brother and sister-in-law, who were very rich and had many servants, but allowed their brother to work with the servants and have dinner with them. Their cruelty developed day after day, until at last they treated him heavenly by sending him in a sedan chair made of paper.

The creation of giving gifts at Christmas came, not from presents of gold and silver given to the Christ child, as many believe, but from an old custom of priests putting on board of all outgoing ships a box of alms. This box was opened at Christmas time and masses said for the givers of the alms, and was called "Christ mass" box, and from this has come our custom of Christmas boxes and gift giving.

YULETIDE FESTIVITIES IN OTHER LANDS

IN ENGLAND, Christmas celebrations of three or four hundred years ago charm us with their quaint and simple jollity. The English always remembered everyone from their neighbors down to their servants. "In the country, an English gentleman always invited his neighbors and tenants to his great hall at dusk on Christmas morning. There they were regaled upon roast, sugar, nutmeg and good old Cheshire cheese. The house was decked with ivy and other greens.

Under the title of a "Christmas box," the general English custom, one throws a handful of wheat which has been brought for the purpose on it, another chops it down very carefully as the tree must fall toward the east just as the sun god rises. It is then cut into two or three pieces. The first chip that falls is brought home as particularly precious.

Then the logs are taken home, one to each side of the door. The mother breaks on the longer log a small wheat cake of unleavened flour, called pogacia.

The day passes in preparation for the feast the following day. At sunset one of the men, fitted out with new woolen gloves, brings in the log.

England 245

which still prevails to some extent, a small gift of money was given to postmen and other delivery men the day after Christmas, which was called "Boxing Day."

In 1100 Henry I granted a charter to London, making it a city and the Christmas celebration. It is recorded, consisted of a feast for rich and poor. The people gathered in the streets around blazing bonfires singing and dancing, after feasting upon oxen, deer, and mutton. The wassail bowl, spoken of so often in many books describing England at the time of the crusades, was another evidence of the ever-ready hospitality that the English offered to all comers.

In Russia on Christmas Eve everyone dresses—or at least they used to, it is hard to say anything definite about bolshevik Russia—for a gay masquerade. Each one was supposed to represent some animal, the idea being to commemorate the fact that Christ was born in a stable among the humblest of the animals.

Peasants among the Bulgarians, Germans and others have a legend that animals are conscious on Christmas Eve. Some people believe that "at midnight the sheep awake and march in a procession, that the cattle kneel in their stalls while by a holy miracle all the beasts are able to converse together. But it is a mortal sin for a man to attempt to overhear them; a sin punishable with sudden death."

Holland has many festivities, prominent among them, a skating or ice carnival. In Switzerland the ski and toboggan hold sway.

An interesting practice takes place in Serbia on Christmas Eve. The younger men and boys of the family early in the morning go to the forest. After crossing themselves three times as is the custom of the Greek Church, or saying a prayer, they select a tree, then known as the Badnyl. They they visit her house and sing to her greet it, "Happy Badnyl to you." Then

CHRISTMAS CANDIES.

The foundation candy for all kinds of bonbons, nougats and creams, may be prepared some time before it is needed; in fact, fondant is better if allowed to ripen, closed covered for three or four days before working up into candies. Store in a cool, dry place.

Fondant.—Take two cupsful of sugar, one-half cupful of boiling water, one-fourth teaspoonful of cream of tartar, or a tablespoonful of glucose or corn syrup to keep the sugar from granulating. Boil to a soft ball stage and pour out on a buttered platter using care that no grains of sugar are dropped in, as they will cause the whole to grain. A good method to avoid the forming of grains around the sides of the boiling kettle is to wash down the sides while boiling with a swab dipped in water, or if expect the tips of the fingers may be used. Covering the dish for a few minutes often dissolves the grains.

After-Dinner Mints.—Boil together until brittle in water, three cupsful of sugar, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one-half cupful of boiling water and one-half tablespoonful of vinegar. Pour on a buttered platter and when cool, pull, adding two drops of oil of peppermint. Cut and roll in powdered sugar; place in a tight jar for a few days to soften.

Molasses Candy.—Take three cupsful of molasses and one cupful of butter or butter substitute, one tablespoonful of vanilla and other flavoring. Melt the butter; add the molasses, boil a few minutes, then add the sugar, a cupful at a time so it will dissolve readily; add the flavoring when just about ready to take off the heat. Roll until it makes a hard ball in water. Pour into greased pans, cool and pull. Cut in small pieces with a pair of scissors and wrap in oiled paper.

Rice Jack.—Take a cupful of sugar and a cupful of molasses, two tablespoonfuls of water and cook; when nearly brittle, add a tablespoonful of butter and a pinch of soda; stir in three cupsful of puffed rice. Spread in a buttered pan.

Old-Fashioned Butter Scotch.—Take two cupsful of brown sugar, one-half cupful of butter, four tablespoonfuls of molasses, two tablespoonfuls of water. Pour into greased pans and boil without stirring until it makes a hard ball in water. Pour into greased pans and mark off in squares.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

Christmas time would lack a most important part of its enjoyment without some of the good candies, sweetmeats and cakes.

Nut and Date Chocolate Sweetmeat.—Heat one-fourth of a cupful of honey, or maple syrup to the boiling point, add half a pound of sweet coating chocolate and let stand over hot water until dissolved. Then, boil without stirring until it makes a hard ball in water. Pour into greased pans and mark off in squares.

Many prisons and penitentiaries have baseball teams composed of inmates, and the national sport has done much to revive the health and spirits of prisoners. These baseball teams are "uniformed and play a regular schedule of games, but of necessity these games are always played on the prison home grounds.

One of the best known prison teams is that of Sing Sing. It is known as the Mutual Welfare League team, and last season it won more than 95 per cent of games played with visiting teams. The prison baseball field has a splendidly graded surface, and there are bleachers for spectators. The team plays Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Visiting teams come from New Jersey and Connecticut. The prison team has won from some of the best semi-professional nines of these states. The Eastern penitentiary in Philadelphia has long maintained a baseball team, and has developed many good players.

At the Musicals.
Enthusiast—Don't you think the chiasm oscuro was fire?
Non-Musical Guest—To tell the truth, I liked the chicken salad better.

Baked Potato With Sausage.—Select potatoes of uniform size; with an apple corer make a hole through the center and fill with a sausage. Lay in a pan and place a slice of bacon on each. Bake until tender.

Stuffed Heart.—Wash and cleanse the heart. Wipe dry and fill the cavities with bread dressing. Thread a needle and draw the sides together to hold in the dressing. Set on a rack and steam until tender, then dredge with flour, salt and pepper and cook in the oven one-half hour, basting three or four times with bacon or salt pork fat. Serve hot surrounded with buttered string beans or peas and tomato sauce. To serve begin at the pointed end and cut in this slice. It may be served cold with a salad.

Remarkable Showing Made at International Live Stock Show at Chicago—Carried Off Sweepstakes For All Wheat.

Something that lends emphasis to, and affords definite proof of, the generosity of the soil and climate of western Canada, is shown by the numerous exhibits made by both the government and individual farmers and stock raisers of that country, at many of the leading state and county fairs in the United States this season. Particularly is this the case with regard to exhibits made at the International Live Stock Show recently held at Chicago.

First and foremost to the average farmer will appeal the fact that Canada carried off the sweepstakes for all wheat, and that out of a total of twenty-five prizes, Canada took twenty. In fact the Grand Championship was won by a farmer living in the Province of Alberta. Canada also was awarded the championship for Durum wheat, while for Flint Corn out of a total of ten prizes, Canada took first, second, third, sixth and seventh.

Not only in grains did Canada prove her right to rank as a first class agricultural country, but she carried off many prizes for cattle, horses, sheep

"Young girls nowadays," said Miss Mary G. Kibbitt, the well-known anti-suffragette, "are flippant and totally indifferent to the opinions of their elders. Woman suffrage is to blame. On a bathing beach last summer a beautiful young girl appeared in a bathing suit that was extremely daring.

"Her aunt approached her as she was swaggering in this costume beside the water's edge and remonstrated with her.

"'Sivilla,' said the aunt, 'I consider that costume absolutely shocking.'

"'Oh, you do, do you?' the girl replied indifferently. 'Well, wait till you see me in my new evening gown.'

Many physicians believe that any one who has a bad cold should be completely isolated to prevent other members of the family and associates from contracting the disease, as colds are about as catching as measles. One thing sure—the sooner one rids himself of a cold the less the danger, and you will look a good while before you find a better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to aid you in curing a cold.
