WAYNE YOUNG MAN ESCAPES INJURY IN HIGHWAY CRASH

As Bies was passing the truck, Forester turned the vehicle into a farmer's driveway. Both the truck and auto were badly damaged. Mrs. Bies, a passenger in her husband's car, sustained injuries to her shoulder and body bruises.

MARRIED MEN NOSE OUT 2nd TEAM IN OVERTIME

In the first attraction Sunday, a bitter, rival battle between the old timers or married men and the Kewaskum B team, which was largely responsible for drawing the fine attendance to the game, the married men held out long enough to nose out the B's, 20 to 28, after playing an overtime period. Because the married men had only five men they had to play the whole grueling game against the seconds, who were in perfect shape. The benedicts played without practice after being idle for some time and the morning after showed them in what shape they were.

The married men had a tough time loosening up their joints in the first quarter and the B's ran up a lead. However, in the second period they began to get the stiffness out of their legs and rallied to overtake the seconds, so that the score was tied at 16-all at the half. The B's built up a lead again in the third quarter but the benedicts put on what little steam there was left to catch them again and the contest ended, 28-28. "Mix" Marx slipped in a shot from outside the free throw line in the overtime period and there was victory. Werner and R. Marx did practically all the scoring for the seconds with 14 and 12 points respectively. Harbeck led the married men with 10. The B's seek revenge and another game will be played later on. Then the married men hope to have more men so that they can substitute and get a rest in between.

The lineups and number of points scored: Married men—Harbeck, 10; Carlson, 6; H. Marx, 6; Jos. Miller, 4; Bill Schaefer, 10; B's—Werner, 14; Manthei, 12; R. Marx, 12; Bunkelmann, 10; Bath, 10; 2.

HARTFORD HERE SUNDAY

This Sunday, Jan. 5, Kewaskum will play another home game when the Hartford A. C. five comes to do battle. In the preliminary affair the local B's will tackle one of the teams of the West Bend Industrial league. Here's two more good attractions for the fans. Kewaskum beat Hartford in their first game there and Hartford will be back for blood this trip. The first game starts at 7:30 p. m. Another reason all should attend this encounter is that it will be the last home game until Feb. 2, a long time. Hartford is next to Kewaskum in the standings and this game is an important one.

On Thursday night, Jan. 2, the boys will play another game away, when they go to West Bend to meet the Benders for the second time.

Mrs. John Faber, Henry C. Backhaus Called Names Co. Committee For President's Ball

MRS. JOHN FABER
Mrs. John Faber, 52, nee Remmel, beloved woman resident of this village, was called in death at her home at 10 a. m. on New Year's day, Wednesday, Jan. 1, after an extended illness of about one and one-half years with carcinoma. She became seriously ill a number of weeks ago and was removed to St. Joseph's Community hospital, West Bend, for treatment. She was also taken to a hospital at Madison for an examination before going to the West Bend institution but her treatment failed to bring recovery and she sank steadily until death claimed her. Mrs. Faber bore her suffering with patience and her demise came as a blow of sorrow to her many relatives and friends.

Deceased was born on July 17, 1888, at Kewaskum. She was married to Mr. Schellenberg, who predeceased her. She was married again to John Faber on June 27, 1917, in Milwaukee and the couple made their home in West Bend. The couple continued their residence in West Bend until 1936, when they came to this village and have lived here since.

Besides her second husband, Mrs. Faber is survived by five children. They are Walter, Lloyd, Florence, Frances and Robert Lee, all at home. She also leaves to mourn her loss two children from her former husband, namely: Ralph Schellenberg of Milwaukee and Mrs. Alice Hacker of Cedarburg. One daughter, Ruth, preceded her mother in death at the age of eight months. One sister, Mrs. Amanda Greth of Jackson, four grandchildren, Jack Hacker, Carol and Ralph Schellenberg, Jr. and Richard Faber also survive.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, Jan. 4, from the Techtman Funeral Home and at 2 p. m. at the St. Lucas Evangelical Lutheran church. The Rev. Gerhard Kaness will officiate and interment will take place in the congregation's cemetery.

January Draft Call to Take 13 Men of Co.

The Washington County Selective Service Board No. 1 must furnish 13 young men for Wisconsin's second quota in January under the 1940 selective service and military training act. This announcement comes from State Director Walter J. Wilde in Madison and is confirmed by Baltus Rolfs, chairman of the county selective service board.

Those who are selected for the second draft must report at the Milwaukee induction center some time after Jan. 12, according to Mr. Rolfs. He said that Washington county has a total of 2,461 registrants for selective service and that about 700 of these to date have received questionnaires to fill out in connection with the draft.

The gross quota of men to be supplied from this county by next July 1 is 404. However, the county is credited for 102 members in the national guard, 136 volunteer enlistments in the regular army, navy, and marine corps, and two men who voluntarily entered the service at the time of the first draft call, leaving a net quota of 164 to be filled by Washington county by July 1. Mr. Rolfs declares, though, that these figures are subject to revision at any time.

Asks Residents to Make Christmas Seal Returns

Urging all those who have put away and forgotten the penny Christmas seals to make returns as soon as possible, Clifford M. Rose, local sale manager, said today that there are still many persons in Kewaskum, who so far have failed to respond to the appeal to "protect their homes from tuberculosis."

The tiny weapons against tuberculosis, sold annually throughout the state, will finance the 1941 campaign of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association to combat the disease.

Depending upon returns from the sale will be the number of clinics held and the number of people helped, said the seal sale manager. The extra seals still lying in desk drawers may be the means of saving one or more lives that would otherwise be lost through tuberculosis, he stated.

Nothing definite can be said as yet whether the 1940 sale will go above last year's reported record. Noll, seal sale manager, if all those who have not as yet made returns would do so, the state-wide campaign against the dread disease could be extended and intensified, Miss Noll said.

The tuberculin testing clinics, which determine whether tuberculosis germs have ever entered the body; the fluoroscope and x-ray clinics to see if the germs have done any harm in the body; the W. A. T. A. nurses' and social service workers' case-finding and follow-up work, and the health education program of the W. A. T. A. are entirely dependent upon the Christmas seals. They will finance the work of the association in attempting to cut down the tuberculosis deaths and find the over 8,000 cases of tuberculosis still estimated for Wisconsin.

All Too Soon
The couple was married and traveled to the lakes for their honeymoon. As soon as they arrived they took a boat out upon the crystal clear water.
The following morning the bride's mother got a postcard which read: "Arrived safely. Grand row before supper."
"My!" she muttered. "I didn't think they'd begin quarreling so soon."

OF COURSE YOU LIKE CANDY
(See Recipes Below)

Making candy is really outside the realm of general cooking, but with a little guidance, even an amateur can work real magic with sugar and water. Simply by changing temperature and the method of handling, a wide variety of fondants, fudges, and hard candies can be made.

Utensils for Making Candy.
Saucepans should have broad bottoms, and should be large enough to allow for "boiling up." The inside surface should be smooth, because rough spots may cause candies to stick and burn.

Measuring cups—use standard measuring cups for successful results; accurate measurements are essential.

Spoons and spatulas—wooden spoons are desirable for candy making because they do not become uncomfortably hot, nor does the wooden spoon handle cut into one's hand during beating. Use standard tablespoons and teaspoons for measuring. A medium-sized spatula is a help in scraping candy from kettles, and lifting candy from the pan.

Baking sheets, platters and pans—ordinary cookie sheets provide a good surface for pouring hard candies; large platters may be used for taffy, which is to be taken out and pulled, or for fondant which is to be beaten.

Candy thermometer—a thermometer is essential in order to obtain uniform and good results in making candy.

Candies are classified as "creamy candies," such as fondant or fudge, and as "taffies" and "hard" candies, like nut brittle and lollipops.

In making creamy candies two rules must be observed: cook the candy to a definite temperature, and cool to room temperature before you begin to beat.

Brazilian Molasses Balls.
(Makes 24 small balls)
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/4 cup hot water
1/4 cup light molasses
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vinegar
1/4 cup butter
3 pints popped corn
1 pint Brazil nuts (sliced)

Dissolve sugar in hot water. Add molasses, salt and vinegar and cook to soft crack stage (270 degrees). Remove from heat, and add butter. Stir syrup slowly into popped corn and Brazil nuts. Mix well, and shape into balls.

Lollipops.
(Makes 1 1/2 dozen)
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1 cup water
1/2 teaspoon oil of cloves or oil of cinnamon
Red or green coloring

Put sugar, syrup, and water in a sauce pan. Cook, stirring just until the sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking over very low heat, to 310 degrees on a candy thermometer. Wash down the crystals that form during cooking, using cheese cloth which has been wrapped around a fork or spoon. When the candy reaches 310 degrees, remove from heat, and add coloring and flavoring and mix very quickly. Pour into small buttered muffin pans, filling them only 3/4-inch deep. As soon as the lollipops begin to set (which will take only a few minutes) loosen them from sides of pan and turn out on table top. Insert the pointed end of a small skewer into the side of each lollipop, working it in carefully to avoid breaking the candy. It will be necessary to work quickly.

Milk Chocolate Marshmallow Candy
1/2 pound broken milk chocolate
1 1-ounce square bitter chocolate
1/2 cup walnut meats (broken)
8 marshmallows, (cut in halves)

Melt milk chocolate and bitter chocolate together in the top of a double boiler. Remove from flame and add walnut meats and marshmallows. Stir gently until thoroughly mixed. Drop by teaspoonfuls on wax paper. Serve when cool.

Taffy Apples.
Place a meat skewer in end of each apple. Cook together 1 cup sugar, 1 cup white corn syrup, 1/4 cup butter, and 1 cup coffee cream until mixture reaches firm ball stage (246 degrees). Stir carefully to avoid scorching. Remove from flame and dip each apple into mixture and then in cold water.

Butterscotch Nut Marshmallows.
1 cup light brown sugar
1/2 cup cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 pound marshmallows
3/4 cup nut meats (finely chopped)

Place brown sugar, cream, vanilla extract, and salt in a saucepan. Cook slowly, stirring frequently, to the soft ball stage (236 degrees). Remove from flame and place saucepan over hot water to keep mixture from cooling. Coat marshmallows with the butterscotch mixture and then roll immediately in the finely chopped nut meats. Place on a buttered platter until cold.

Red and Green Popcorn Balls.
(Makes 10 balls)
2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
1 1/2 cups water
1 1/2 cups popped corn
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Red or green liquid coloring
3 quarts popped corn

Combine sugar, corn syrup and water, and cook in a saucepan, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking until the temperature 290 degrees is reached, or until a few drops of the syrup becomes brittle when dropped into cold water. Add vanilla extract and a few drops of red or green coloring. Stir sufficiently to mix the coloring evenly. Pour the cooked syrup over the popped corn, which has been sprinkled with salt; stir well, and form into balls with the hands, using little pressure.

Chocolate Fudge.
(Makes 36 1 1/4-inch squares)
2 tablespoons butter
3 cups sugar
1 cup milk
2 squares chocolate (2 ounces) (cut in pieces)
1/4 cup honey
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Nutmegs if desired

Melt butter in a saucepan. Add sugar and milk, and mix well. Bring to a boil, then cover and cook with the lid on for about 3 minutes. Remove lid, add chocolate and honey, and cook to soft ball stage (236 degrees). Remove from heat, and add vinegar and vanilla. Cool to room temperature, and beat until the fudge is thick and creamy. Add nutmeg if desired, and spread in well buttered pan.

Rooms Made Attractive at Very Little Expense

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN
When in decorative doubt, figure it out this way. If you don't have much to spend on refurbishing, you'll make more of a splash to put that little on gay yards of figured material, something that will stand out incisively and take a lot of decorative responsibility. If you have a more important sum to invest, consider adding just one fine dominating piece of furniture that will focus attention upon itself and be an enduringly satisfying possession.

We have in mind a room that was quite literally, "made" by a noble breakfast cabinet of mahogany in Eighteenth century style. It was the only large wall piece in the room for one thing; for another, it was a natural center of interest since there was no fireplace. Balancing its height, on the opposite side of the room, were draperies of classic lines in a glowing wine color which looked very rich but actually were inexpensive, being made of one of those scintillating new textural fabrics

The sofa and easy chairs were slip covered in a flowered material—staunch, washable, very practical—a big scale pattern on a light blue ground. The walls were painted in this same light blue, while the rug was a misty two-tone neutral on the beige side. Wine red seats for side chairs and lamp shades of off-white and of this deep red were pleasant accents. The only other wood furniture were the incidental tables.

Yet, there was an equally charming room we know about which was done over on a shoestring. The furniture was old and scuffed and hadn't really amounted to much even when it was new; but it had to be kept on. The rug, a broadloom in a grand shade of green, was the only satisfactory thing in the room. So the refurbishings were planned around it.

The walls were painted a pale shade of the same green and the old furniture was pointed in dull surface enamel in a soft green just beneath the color of walls and rug.

Preserving Paintbrushes.
QUESTION: What steps should be taken to preserve and keep in good condition paintbrushes, after they have been used? How is it possible to get out the color from a brush before starting to use it in a different color? Or should the brushes be kept separately for each color?

Answer: When a job is finished, clean the brush by wiping the excess paint off on the side of the can, rinse thoroughly in turpentine, and then in three changes of benzine or clear gasoline, being extremely careful of fire when doing so. Follow by shaking out and hanging out to dry. If a brush has been thoroughly cleaned, it can be used for another color, although to be on the safe side it is better to have a brush for each color. To avoid difficulty in cleaning brushes, never dip the brush so deeply that paint will get under the ferrule.

Stained Driveway.
Question: I would like some information on how to clean our concrete driveway. There are rust stains, automobile oil and grease spots.

Answer: For rust removal, dissolve one part sodium citrate in six parts of water and add six parts of commercial glycerine. Mix a portion of this with enough powdered whiting or chalk to form a paste, and spread on in a thick coat. When dry, replace with fresh paste, or moisten with the remaining liquid. A week or more may be required to remove the stain.

Remove fresh oil stains by covering them with an inch or two of dry portland cement. For old stains wash with a solution of two pounds of trisodium phosphate to the gallon of hot water. After cleaning, remove all traces of the solution by rinsing with clear water.

Copper Porch Screens.
Question: Evidently the wire on the porch screens had not been treated. White framework is black from stains. I am advised to go over the wire cloth with two parts of spar varnish, one of linseed oil and one part of turpentine. Clean the woodwork with ammonia and water. Paint with aluminum paint, then two coats of white paint. Would this be your method? Must the ammonia and water be rinsed off?

Answer: Before varnishing the screens, be sure they are free of dust and grease. For washing the woodwork, use a half-cup of ammonia in a quart of water, and rinse thoroughly with plenty of clear water. The coat of aluminum paint will not be necessary. Whatever remains of the stain will not "bleed" through the new paint.

Roof Tar on a Coat.
Question: How do you remove roof tar from a woolen coat?

Answer: Cover the tar with grease or butter and allow to remain there until the tar is softened. Scrape off as much of the tar as possible, using a dull-edged knife. Repeat this until the tar has been removed down to the fabric. The rest of the stain is then removed with carbon tetrachloride, or other spot-removing liquid that is nonflammable. Spread the fabric over a shallow pan and pour the cleaning liquid over the stain until it has disappeared. When the liquid becomes discolored, throw it away, using more of the clean chemical. For very difficult stains, however, it is always safer to have the job done by a professional cleaner.

Soot in Chimney.
Question: I have a sloped roof and find it difficult to clean out my chimney. Is there any chemical on the market which I can use to burn out the soot from the chimney?

Answer: Soot removal compounds can be purchased at plumbers' shops or heating supply houses. However, for best results the chimney should be cleaned by hand. In cleaning out a chimney, where the roof is sloping, it is best to build a platform. One end of the platform is made without legs or supports, which rests on the roof; the other end is made with legs of the proper length, and is placed against the chimney. This arrangement will give you good footing.

Crack Filler.
Question: In kitchen and bathroom there is a separation caused by the failure of the material at the point where the tiling meets the floor. How should this be filled?

Answer: If the floor is also tile, small cracks can be filled with a cement intended for tile work, and large cracks with a paste made of portland cement and water. If the floor is wood, fill the cracks with caulking compound.

Summer Water Heating.
Question: There is a water heating unit built into my oil-fired steam boiler that operates automatically during the summer. The water level in the boiler is at two-thirds full. Is it practical to lower the water level in the boiler during the summer, so as not to heat the large amount of water in the boiler during the summer and effect some economy in fuel consumption?

Answer: For efficient year-around operation the water level gauge in your boiler should not be more, nor less, than half-full.

Made Rather Bad Guess In Dark of the Night

Podkins had been walking about all day looking for lodgings. When darkness came he was still searching. At last he noticed a card in a window.

"Good evening," he said to the woman who appeared at the door in answer to his knock. "I'm here in reference to the card in your window."

"Oh, yes! How many might you want, sir?"

"Only one. You see, I've had a row with my landlady—"

"But you're not going to peck her with it, are you, sir?"

"Peck her with a room?"

"Room? I've got no room. That card reads 'New-Laid Eggs.'"

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most precious feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we get a quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

It is a pleasant feeling to have the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. This advertisement shows another of its merits: it makes all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

Badger State Happenings

Record Building at Neenah—A new construction record was established in Neenah in 1940 with the erection of 100 new homes at a total cost of $378,000.

Egg Production Down—While farm flocks are slightly larger than a year ago, egg production reported by Wisconsin farmers for December was about 3 per cent below that of 1939.

Confesses Robbing 27 Homes—A signed confession from a 16 year old high school pupil cleared up the robbery of 27 homes in Manitowish during the last five months, Police Chief James Kuplic said.

Thirteen Killed Christmas—Thirteen persons were killed in Christmas holiday traffic accidents in Wisconsin. Four of them lost their lives when a car carrying youthful carolers crashed into a tree near Kenosha.

Breaks Leg Sanding Walk—In her attempt to save others from injury, Mrs. John Behnken of Lake Mills suffered an injury herself. While scattering sand on the icy sidewalk in front of her home, she slipped and fell fracturing her hip.

Kenosha's Workers Increase—Kenosha has 11,000 workers in its industrial pay rolls, 2,000 more than were working in January, 1940, according to Sen. Conrad Shearer, executive secretary of the Kenosha Manufacturers association.

Ex-Banking Official Dies—Peter A. Cleary, 67, former chairman of the state banking commission and a leader in the building and loan business, died at his home in Milwaukee. Cleary was a state banking commissioner from 1932 to 1935.

Fire Wrecks Masonic Temple—Fire on Christmas day destroyed the Masonic temple at Two River. The building, the former home of J. E. Hamilton, Two Rivers industrialist, was one of the showplaces of the northern part of the state. Damage was estimated at about $25,000.

Pays Back Relief Money—A 74 year old Appleton man stepped into the relief office and told Director Hammond that he wanted to pay back relief money he had received from the city last April. The amount was $18.67. He explained he now had a job and wanted to pay back what he got when he needed it.

Utilities Taxes Eight Million—Public and private utilities paid a total 1940 tax of $8,578,564, the state treasurer revealed. The tax, collected by the state, is apportioned with 65 per cent going to various towns, cities and villages; 20 per cent to the counties and 15 per cent to the state's general fund.

NYA Reports Youth Shortage—Private industry is taking so many youths off NYA rolls in Wisconsin that the state office of the National Youth administration is having difficulty in keeping up its quota, officials reported in Milwaukee. About 9,700 youths now are employed by NYA in Wisconsin, it was reported.

Christmas Bonus $250,000—A Christmas bonus totaling about $250,000 was distributed by the Kohler Company, Kohler, to more than 4,000 present employees. Checks were also sent to former workers now in military service, those on the company pension list, those absent because of illness and the families of employees who died during the past year.

Ordered to Comply With Act—Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy signed a consent decree ordering 25 Milwaukee wholesale produce and fruit merchants to comply with the federal fair standards act. The order bound the firms to pay at least 30 cents an hour and time and one-half for work in excess of 40 hours a week. As a result, 199 employees will work fewer hours at no reduction in pay.

Activity Recalls War Days—The Manitowish Shipbuilding Co. yards have taken on appearances similar to World war days since the government placed an order for 10 submarines. A big steel mesh fence has been erected to enclose the plant. Soon no person without a government pass will be permitted to enter the yards. The river frontage will be floodlighted. Guards will be on duty day and night under Maj. Walter Adel, World war veteran.

Hog Death Is Mystery—The death of 75 of his best feeder hogs is mystifying Maynard Macke, Grant county farmer. The hogs, each weighing more than 200 pounds, died violently within two weeks. Both a local veterinarian and a state health department representative said there was no doubt that the death had been due to arsenic poisoning. But, Macke claims he had no arsenic on hand for weed eradication or any other purpose and that he knows of no one who would have wished to do him such damage.

Signs to Advertise City—Starting January 7 motorists on the major highways leading into Waukesha will be welcomed by huge, electrically lighted highway signs advertising the city and some of its businesses. The signs are being erected under the sponsorship of the Waukesha Junior Chamber of Commerce. The first sign will be erected on Highway 18 and every sixty days each sign will be transferred to another highway so the advertising it bears will cover the entire area around the city during the year.

State to Buy Forest Land—Purchase of 19,000 acres of forest land on the Flambeau river, owned by the Tomahawk Kraft Paper Co., and subject of considerable controversy, was authorized by the state conservation commission for inclusion in the Flambeau river state forest.

Paper Research Head Dies—Dr. Carleton E. Curran, head of the forest products laboratory's pulp and paper division, died at a Rochester (Minn.) hospital following an operation. He had been on the laboratory staff since 1921.

NEW YORK.—Simultaneously, Chancellor Hitler and Mrs. Elsa Schiaparelli renounce gold and extol the fruits of the spirit. Preparing to return to France

Schiaparelli Says soon, the famous dress-maker finds that Americans are too much given to money-grubbing to appreciate the beautiful art of couture. "The Paris designer is free," she says, but here in America "in creating a costume you must think about cost." So she's going back to Paris where art is unfettered and nobody worries about money.

Molyneux fled, to make gowns in London, but Lucien Lelong, the new Judge Landis of the French fashion industry, remains in the service of art—not money of course. The latter implication might suggest that Paris as a continuing world style center is somehow geared into Chancellor Hitler's jug-handled economy, and that, of course is a rather gauche idea. In Herr Hitler's new order, it's art for art's sake.

Soon after the occupation of Paris, Mme. Schiaparelli arrived here to begin a national lecture tour. We seemed to be suffering from much misapprehension about France. It was business as usual in Paris, and anyone who fancied that New York might become the world style center had another thought coming. However, she reserved her apostrophe of art against money for the last.

Addressing the Junior League of Los Angeles recently, she said: "All of us in Paris are impressed by the generosity of American men regarding their women. American men have a world-wide reputation for the money they spend on women. 'I say bravo to you! Go right ahead.'"

I had an idea that the French felt that way a few years ago when I was privileged to see some of the inner workings of Lanvin's establishment in Paris, to talk to the vendors and witness the deliberence of a Texas oil magnate when he came in to help his wife choose a gown.

Mme. Schiaparelli lived five years in New York. Her daughter, Marisa, was born in her Ninth street home in Greenwich Village. That was before the days of her fame and opulence, and she thought about money a great deal in those days.

Taking an unheated flat in Patchin place, a dingy little nubbin of a street off Jefferson Market court, she found a $20 bill on the floor. It was a good omen. Other money came and she returned to a garret in Paris, to write poetry. A sweater design brought her into her career. For one who scorns money she is a masterful and diligent business woman, her huge establishment turning out around 10,000 garments a year at prices up to $5,000. Of a distinguished Italian family of astronomers and scholars, she has been described by Edna Le Fevre as "a woman nobody can know, absorbed with books on metaphysics, aesthetics and philosophy."

ELMAN B. MYERS, inventor of the new "jet expulsion" motor which is expected vastly to increase the range, speed and fighting effectiveness of war planes. Is a Self-Starter was a Newburgh, N. Y., boy who just happened to be a self-starter and finisher. Without benefit of any academic seminars, he became a hay-loft radio inventor. This, incidentally, was in the Bronx where there weren't any haylofts; but make it a cellar and the result is the same.

After 32 years he appears with his critically important invention. He got a job with a wireless station in Sacramento, and was soon throwing his voice farther than anybody else in those parts. He later worked with Lee De Forest and by 1932 had brought through a "cold light" radio tube. He started work on his jet expulsion or "rocket" motor four years ago. Engineers say it may increase the speed of fighting planes by 200 miles an hour.

IT WAS not until they began work in strengthening the roofs of the Capitol at Washington that most Americans were aware that an architect was regularly attached to a structure of which George Washington first laid the cornerstone in 1793. He is David Lynn of Hyattsville, Md. Lynn in 23 years of service had ample opportunity of learning all the ins and outs of the famous building. He served 10 years as chief engineer of the Capitol and in 1927 became architectural supervisor.

He says the work of making the roofs of the house and senate chambers safe and applying general renovation will be completed in time for the opening session of the new congress. Some of his lighter tasks at various times have involved the installation of a buzzer system to frighten starlings off the Capitol roofs, installation of sound amplifiers in the house chamber and an abortive plan to construct a moving sidewalk, escalator principle, to transport representatives from their offices to the Capitol, which is a block away.

HOW TO SEW by Ruth Wyeth Spears

[T WAS a bride of ten years who reminded me of blanket protectors. I say bride because her home still has the immaculate freshness of a bride's house. Her wool blankets have never been washed or cleaned, yet their soft light colorings show no sign of soil. She brought out some long pieces of cotton material; "I baste these over the tops of the blankets," she said "and change them every few weeks." I thought of some dainty bed-linen that I had seen all trimmed in flower sprigged cotton print. Why not make flowered blanket protectors to harmonize with blanket colorings? Here is one that would go with either rose or blue. It is easy to hide basting stitches that fasten it temporarily to the blanket by slipping them along in the pink or blue binding as shown. One length of material as long as the width of the blanket will make a pair of these protectors. A half yard extra of the flowered material will face a matching pair of pillow cases.

HIGH PRICES Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay. Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what you are getting more for your money—more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.

CARMEN OF THE RANCHO

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

CHAPTER XIX

Bowie, leaping his horse into the air as he crouched in the saddle, knew he had one more pistol slug to face; and knew that only his knife was left him for a hand-to-hand fight. Yet such was his tradition and his training that, of all weapons available to him, the bowie knife would be his choice in a short arm struggle. He plunged into the jungle without quail and headed his horse through the thicket by the sound of the struggling horse ahead.

Then came a silence as Bowie, with his shattered arm, pressed forward. A pistol shot from the squatter rang and echoed through the jungle. The slug whistled past Bowie's head. His only answer to it was a cry, a plainsman's cry. Blood spurred to the right, close to a huge sycamore. Bowie's horse was struggling up to its knees in mud and slime with every leap like to be its last. Suddenly there came a whirring, clashing sound and a terrible cry choked dead.

Half submerged, face downward in the marshy water, lying so close that Bowie's horse almost trampled it, he saw the sprawling figure of a man. Clutching his knife in his left hand, the Texan slipped from his saddle, plunged through the side and, watching narrowly for a kick, lifted the man's head by the hair out of the ooze. As he took the head in his hands it turned, disjuncted at the neck; the squatter was quite dead.

With one arm disabled, Bowie could do no more than partly drag the trunk of the body closer to the roots of the big tree. He stood for a moment in bewilderment and confusion, stunned by the gruesome sight. Almost at his side lay the squatter's pony, only its heaving flanks showing life.

The Texan stood hatless beside his panting horse, wiping beads of sweat from his forehead and trying to decide what to do. The instinct to hurry away from the tragedy must be denied. If he left the body it would be virtually impossible to find it again, and it would almost certainly be mangled by coyotes before it could be recovered. Nor could Bowie, partly disabled, get it on his horse—the squatter was a large man—to carry it out of the swamp. Nor had he a pistol in hand to load for a shot.

But he had still a stenographic voice. He knew Pardaloe and Simmie would trail him to the Melena. He sent out a slow high cry and listened. No response greeted his ear. After a long wait, for even breath was precious in his predicament, he tried a second call and sat down to figure out what had befallen Blood. Soon he heard in the distance a pistol shot. He knew it was a signal. Again he gave the plainsman's shrill plaintive cry, and there came at last an answering call.

It was frontier wireless long before the day of wires. Patience and calling and answering brought Pardaloe and Simmie, sweating their way into the heart of the Melena to where Bowie stood leaning with his left hand on the sycamore tree. "Henry, you been hit! Where? Dog it, man, you've lost aplenty blood. Set down. Where's Blood, Henry?"

Pardaloe was concerned. His questions came fast. Bowie pointed to the fallen squatter. Simmie pulled at his beard reflectively—the only sign he ever gave of excitement. Pardaloe stared a moment, pulled the body around, but he saw no blood.

"Henry," he asked, peering, "where'd you hit him?" "I had no pistol. We were going fast. I was within ten yards of him when we got here. He jumped his horse past the tree without seeing this pool. The horse went down." Bowie pointed upward. "See that old grapevine hanging across from the trunk to the branch? That's what did it."

Late that morning Carmen, after searching the horizon since day-break with straining eyes, perceived a little party of horsemen riding slowly toward the ranch house.

Most of all she searched among them for the caballero to whom she had given her life in promise. Her acute agony of suspense ended when she made out his broad hat and tall figure in the saddle. Carmen had promised herself she would be very collected when he returned. All night and all the morning her prayers had been poured up to heaven for his safety, and with her prayers answered and her lover, out of the saddle, clasping her close, everything went black before her. She disgraced herself by fainting in Bowie's one good arm.

"I saw the flames in the night along the river," she sobbed when she came to. "Oh, Henry, if you ever ride into danger again, I ride with you. I must. Never again can I stand such a night. What's this?" she exclaimed, catching sight of the blood-soaked bandage on Bowie's right arm. "You are hurt! You are wounded! Madre de Dios! You will die!" Bowie laughed as he held her. "I will, but not yet, querida. Not yet." Despite his assurances, she was tremble. "Come into the house, quick, querida. You do not know how bad you are hurt. Come." As the couple entered the living room the excitement began all over again. The next moment the senorita and the senora, breathless with fear, had the serving women running, hot water splashing, sheets torn up and enough bandages ready to equip a small hospital. The rough bandages were soaked off. Carmen calmed herself until she saw the ragged wound of the slug in the arm as it was bared. Whereupon, without even apologizing, the excited girl fainted again.

When Dr. Doane took charge he, too, laughed at Carmen's fears. "All that I wonder at," he said insincerely, "is that you would send for me to attend to a little thing like this. Bowie, my boy, you'll be swinging a reata next week." He successfully concealed his anxiety lest Bowie should suffer a stiff forearm from the shattered bone.

In your honor and mine—

Carmen's confidence in Dr. Doane was very great, but her solicitude for Bowie was unabashed. She tried, for the most part unsuccessfully, to keep the Texan in bed; and failing this, to keep him in the house. "Cease protesting," she would say decisively. "This is my hour, Enrique. I have been waiting for it. God sent me once a protector; it was no credit to you, big man, that he chose you—"

"No credit to me, pobrecita, but it is the only thing in my life that I count." "He sent me a protector—why shouldn't I persecute him? Why shouldn't I persecute him?" "You're too young to be cruel," he retorted.

"I don't care! He's mine. I've had too many tragedies in my life not to value a protector. Had only you been there that dreadful day at Los Alamos!" "Querida! My right arm is getting quite strong again. But Dr. Doane says it must be exercised regularly so it won't be stiff. How about exercising it a little now?" "My darling, you must take no chances! You might strain it, you know." "Tomorrow then?"

"Perhaps tomorrow if you believe yourself. Do you realize, bad Texan, how I've already cast to the winds the rigid etiquette of centuries? I'm sure if Don Ramon knew how bad I've been—and all through associating with you—he would disown me. You ought to be ashamed of yourself to impose so on the weakness of a poor girl like me. And I don't believe you are a bit ashamed. What sort of people live in Texas? And you did say something, if I remember rightly, about marrying me—not?"

"If I have so imposed on your lovely nature, querida, I want, of course, to make amends."

Then Carmen spoke. "In the morning, Henry, I want you to take me over to the valley of the strawberries. Will you? I want to go to that redwood tree where we sat. Do you think you could find it? There were two close together."

"I could find it, Carmen, if there were two thousand close together."

"Leave the horses here, Henry. I want to walk the rest of the way up the hill just with you."

"This is the tree, Carmen. Tell me now, from your beating heart, what you told me that day, my Carmen."

"And tomorrow, Henry," said Carmen a week before the wedding day, "we must go to Monterey to engage the musicians. I want a violin and a flute and a guitar. They will ride with us in the procession to the mission and play on the way—won't that be nice? And Henry, we will take the horses from Don Ramon's caballeria of blacks—they are such beauties. You and I will ride together, then Don Ramon and Dona Maria, then the music, and then everybody else!"

"How many?" "Oh, a hundred or so."

"My! Carmen, this business of getting married in California seems to be important."

"Important, Henry?" "Why, for a week now, every servant, every vaquero, everyone in the household, has been getting ready for our marriage."

"Ah! But, Enrique, it's not all for you and me that the fatalities have been killed, the game brought in. Not all the champagne, the wines, the cordials and the sweet potatoes and coconuts and Chinese ginger and Island sugar and the strong cigars have been brought in just for you and me. No, no, Guadalupe will be host to a hundred guests—every ranchero in the valley, with his wife and sons and daughters and his guests, will be here every day for a week. So will all the De la Guerras from Santa Barbara."

"A week!" "Yes, and they will laugh and dance and sing and play and get very hungry, Enrique. They will dance every night and all night for a week, in your honor and mine."

"Then all our Monterey cousins and friends and our San Diego cousins and friends—"

"Heaven protect us, pobrecita!" "You may well say that. I hope we shall have a little time to ourselves after two or three days—don't look for it before that."

"But where will all these people sleep?" "Oh, nobody sleeps while the celebration lasts! Only perhaps an hour or so after sunrise. They sleep where they can. Then in the morning come the meriendas—like yours and mine," she whispered. "Don't you remember?" "I remember nothing else, querida mia—only that day and you." [THE END]

MANY FARMERS HERE IN FARM PROGRAM IN 1940

The Wisconsin Agricultural Conservation committee has just completed a summary of accomplishments under the program for the past year.

Officials report that farmers continued their effective acreage adjustments as a result of their participation in the program.

The official records show that 179,286 Wisconsin farmers, or about 85 per cent of all farmers in the state, earned payments for participation in the 1940 program. Latest available data from crop reports indicate a decline of approximately 8 per cent in the acreage of soil depositing crops in Wisconsin since a peak in 1934.

The summary on soil building practices carried out shows increases for 1940 over those of 1939 in nearly all practices. The amount of lime applied in 1940 amounted to 692,246 tons, compared with 249,533 tons spread in 1939. Phosphate applications jumped from the equivalent of 1,338,757 pounds of 16 per cent phosphate in 1939 to 19,313,314 pounds for 1940. The greater part of this was 45 per cent superphosphate. Farmers of the state applied the equivalent of 1,092,513 pounds of 50 percent muriate of potash in 1940 compared with 223,281 pounds in 1939.

Total new seedlings of soil conserving crops amounted to 2,140,051 acres in 1940 compared with 1,995,444 in 1939. Alfalfa acreage seeded was up from 647,100 acres in 1939 to 745,093 in 1940. Farmers carried out green manuring practices on 23,847 acres in 1940 and 14,282 in 1939.

In Washington county 89.1 percent of the farm land in the county was included in the agricultural conservation program. This includes slightly more than 2500 of the county's 2800 farms. On those farms participating in the program about 35,000 acres were seeded to either alfalfa or red clover. An additional soil building practices 2,206 tons of lime were applied; also approximately 700,000 lbs. of superphosphate, an element greatly lacking in Washington county soils.

Home-Made Emergency Technic Saves Baby Stricken With Croup

A sudden accident that occurred as she tried to keep her baby from choking to death with croup confronted Mrs. Charles Van Cott of New York City, with the grim choice of letting the child die or of seriously injuring her in an effort to save her life.

Mrs. Charles Van Cott and daughter, Lola.

Fearful of continuing the croup treatments, yet unable to stand by and see her baby choke to death, Mrs. Van Cott hit upon an ingenious emergency course which saved the child.

Late at night the baby was seized with croup. Mrs. Van Cott, a former nurse, hurried to administer inhalations. She draped sheets around the crib to form a tent. She then placed pans of boiling water inside the tent. This was so the hot, moist air would hold the croup medicine as it was sprayed from an electric vaporizer. "I had the sheets fixed," Mrs. Van Cott said, "and the pans of scalding water were in place. My husband brought the electric vaporizer and plugged it in. Instantly there was a short circuit. It blew out all the lights, plunging us in total darkness. "I couldn't see my baby. I could only hear her gasping for air. I knew that at any moment her throat might close up unless she got help. Yet I didn't dare move in the darkness for fear of upsetting the scalding water upon her. "We must have light. It was my husband who thought of a possible solution. He groped his way across the room and began manipulating the table and lamp connections. At length he found his flashlight which he only knew was 'somewhere about the house.' "That immediately gave the light we needed. The vaporizer was useless, so we put the medicine right into the boiling water, distilling the vapor that way. "It was an hour before we could get another fuse, but in that hour we worked constantly, changing the scalding water and vaporizing the medicine. The batteries in the flashlight were fresh, and the light remained strong and bright. If it hadn't, my baby might have died before we could have done anything to save her." By the time the electric lights were on again, the baby was out of immediate danger. The Van Cott made a minor adjustment on the vaporizer and were able to use it later that night to keep the croup from forming again in the baby's throat.

How One Woman Lost 20 Pounds of FAT

Lost Her Prominent Hips
Lost Her Double Chin
Lost Her Sluggishness

Gained a More Shapely Figure and the Increase in Physical Vigor and Vivaciousness Which So Often Comes With Excess Fat Reduction.
Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do. Why not be smart—do what thousands of women have done to get off pounds of unwanted fat. Take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water first thing every morning to gently activate liver, bowels and kidneys—cut down your caloric intake—eat wisely and satisfyingly—there need never be a hungry moment!

Keep this plan up for 30 days. Then weigh yourself and see if you haven't lost pounds of ugly fat. Just see if this doesn't prove to be the surprise of your life and make you feel like shouting the good news to other fat people. And best of all a jar of Kruschen that will last you for 4 weeks costs but little. If not joyfully satisfied—money back.
