Duties Are Assumed by New County Home Agent

Miss Alice Bilstein has assumed her duties as Washington county home demonstration agent. She comes to the county well qualified to carry on the work of Miss Helena Muchlmeier who resigned Feb. 1st.

Miss Bilstein, who is a graduate of the four year home economic course of the University of Wisconsin, has been in charge of the homemaking department at Edgerton, Wis. for the past 21 years. Her work included adult classes as well as high school teaching. Miss Bilstein was born and raised on

60 TO 90 DAYS: Crisis Will Come

In Washington, where bets can be obtained on almost anything, the odds are 55 to 45 that the United States will be at war with Japan within 60 to 90 days. Peace is on the short end.

The view is shared by competent observers. Whether there will be actual armed conflict probably will depend on what happens during this period. The predictions are being made not by goosebone prophets but on careful analysis of political, military, geographical and economic factors.

Those most apprehensive in the capital are concerned with adoption of the lend-lease bill which would give President Roosevelt full powers to place the nation on an allout war footing. They believe Japan is a full partner of the Axis and will act on orders from Berlin.

They believe that within 60 to 90 days Hitler will order the full force of his powerful attack let loose on Britain and they are doubtful of the outcome. They fear the United States will be faced with an enemy on the Atlantic and the Pacific at the same time.

Willkie went, he saw and hurried home. Hardly had he arrived in London when an announcement was made that he would reduce the length of his stay in order to report home sooner. Even after that, another 48 hours was cut from the schedule at the request of State Secretary Hull who asked him to testify before the senate committee considering the lend-lease bill. Willkie's speed on the journey over and back eems almost a rebuke to the isolationists who have emphasized how far away England really is.

But there was more sarcasm for Willkie's trip. It came now from Republican sources. The national convention of Young Republicans, meeting in Des Moines, Iowa, heard a resolution which condemned the party leader for his support of the bill. The resolution was not passed. It met with displeasure at the hands of many G.O.P. stalwarts political factor is the triparty pact who believed Willkie's position in support of the administration policy should not be criticized at this time. PEACE: It's Wonderful Japan long has eyed the rich area of Indo-China and the port of Saigon, through which is exported 80 per cent of Indo-China's rice, fish, salt and timber. Last September Siam (Thailand) which is known as a "client state" of Japan, suddenly declared war on the French who control Indo-China. The French, occupied elsewhere, were forced to fight only an enfeebled campaign.

Now Japan has stepped in as a 'mediator." "A Japanese flotilla sailed into Saigon and ordered mediation end the conflict. Seven Japanese diplomats called representatives of the two powers to the warship and ordered "peace." Japan claimed the right as the protector of the "new order" in the Far East.

But Japan revealed she was not interested in peace alone. As payment for bringing peace, Japan demanded that 80 per cent of each year's crop in Indo-China be sold to them. The demand gave point to the argument that Japan had deliberately encouraged the Thai attack so that it could step in and make peace, at a price.

Power

Meanwhile the Japanese naval force continued to base itself in Saigon, just opposite the Philippines which stand between Japan and the Dutch East Indies: The Japanese navy already has occupied Hanoi, opposite the northern tip of the Philippines. Only other base in the area is the British fortifications at voring the aims of the lend-lease bill and requesting the state's Re-Singapore. Japan has said that if America takes over that base, publican congressmen to vote for it. Some G.O.P. newspapers, however, through negotiations with Britain, it will be regarded as an act of war, were not pleased. One declared Peace. It's wonderful. Willkie, by supporting the Roosevelt

MISCELLANY:

C Big salaries in the United States are fading, the Institute of Real Estate Management was told, by its vice president, A. William Walstrum, of Ridgewood, N. J. Excess profits taxes and emergency levies are acting as great levelers of fancy incomes, he said, adding that statis tics show that the trend of top salaries shows them limited to between $15,000 and $25,000.

I Edward W. Scott, a New Zealander, was editor of the Panama American, owned by Dr. Harmodio Aroas, brother of Panama's president. Editor Scott and Dr. Aroas have been critical of the administration and its alleged anti-Americanism. Editor Scott was ordered deported. Crowds came to the station to see him off, but the Panama police had figured on that demonstration. The crowd discovered the police had gathered up Editor Scott and deported him on a train leaving the railway station at an earlier hour than the announced time.

I There was an echo of the war in Cuba. President Batista expelled three leading commanders, and took over personal control of the army, navy and national police. He said the men were relieved because they engaged in treasonable activity.

I For two centuries Princeton university has prohibited students keeping liquor in their rooms. Violation of the rule meant expulsion. The rule now has been voided, but expulsion still faces the youth who shows any signs of ungentlemanly conduct.

ment. Naturally they had a good deal of attention being "firsts." And in those days the feeling wasn't so bitter:

I did report the factual things they told me-I interviewed them with no Germans present and we all spoke freely. ..

But did the British public believe it?

I should say not. An International News Service dispatch from Lon-don to American papers the next day quoted "diplomatic circles as being concerned" and stating that "one spokesman labeled the broadcast an obvious fake."

But no Englishman at that point wanted to believe what those boys said about their treatment or their personal feelings toward their captors.

Broadcast Cut Off.

The third experience was the most amusing. I was broadcasting from Berlin and I wanted to get over the idea to my American listeners that while I was well treated I was under censorship and that if I departed from my censored text I would probably be cut off. So I said this:

'It is very much as if I were in the office of a man whose whole future is suddenly at stake, still he is kind and courteous to me. He offers me his hospitality. He let's me use his typewriter and now he pushes his busy telephone across the desk to me to let me talk to you, right before him."

And right there I was cut off the air. The American listeners knew what I was driving at and immediately surmised that the Germans had cut me off because I was criticizing the censorship. But a few days after the event I was summoned to the German foreign office and questioned at length by a highly suspicious underling.

'Why," he asked haughtily, "did the National Broadcasting Company

WHEAT PRICES HIGHER Domestic wheat prices for January are slightly higher than those of a month ago, and close to the season's peak to date. It is not expected that the market will be oversupplied when loans mature, beginning in February, because if prices are not above loan values plus costs, growers will not sell their grain and pay their loans and the government will take delivery.

Principal Imports What are the principal agricultural products we now import from Latin America?

"Our agricultural imports from Latin America are of two general types," says the office of foreign . agricultural relations.

(1) "Complementary or non-competitive agricultural products, consisting for the most part of coffee, cocoa, . bananas, sisal, henequen, special types of wool, spices, essential (volatile) oils, and tagua nuts. Such products are normally imported to meet the whole of our requirements since they are not produced at home.'

(2) "Supplementary or competitive agricultural products. These include cane sugar, vegetable oilseeds, cattle hides, unmanufactured tobacco, meat products, vegetables and vegetable preparations, dutiable wool, goat and kid skins, and linseed, to mention the more important."

How does the department of agriculture propose to increase trade between the United States and Latin America?

"By developing in Latin America for United States consumption the tropical and semi-tropical products which are not competitive with our agriculture."

Does Latin American co-operation mean increased imports into the United States of supplementary or competitive agricultural products? "No, that is not the aim of the department's program." What are the complementary or non-competitive products of Latin America, the imports of which can be increased?

They consist of crude rubber, cinchona bark from which quinine is made, abaca or manila fiber, valuable for the making of ropes for the navy, rotenone-bearing plants extremely valuable for insecticidal purposes.

Other products are kapok, necessary for insulation and other purposes; cocoa, camphor and tea.

"Imports of these eight amounted to approximately $236,000,000 in 1939, of which only $16,000,000, or just about 7 per cent, represented imports from the Latin American republics. There are, of course, a number of other tropical and semitropical products that may be added to this list. When our total needs for these can be supplied by Latin America our total imports from there should exceed $750,000,000 per year," he explained.

The other, the international music is a great help association reported that it sold career tends to bear out 193,268 veal calves, more than any other selling agency in the country. Other sales included 8,305 carloads of stock, 245,723 hogs, 461,082 head of livestock at Milwaukee and 82,315 at Green Bay.

Oldest U. Alumnus Dies-The oldest alumnus of the University of Wisconsin, former state senator George F. Merrill, died at his home in Ashland at the age of 83 following a long illness. A graduate of the university class of 1872, he became the oldest alumnus following the death last month in Los Angeles, Calif., of William W. Church, 100. From 1896 to 1905 Merrill served on the university board of regents, two years as chairman.

State Police Radio Asked-Appropriation of $100,000 to set up a state bureau of police radio communication, with a five member board and a $4,000 a year director, was proposed in a senate bill introduced by Mack of Shiocton at the request of the Wisconsin Chiefs of Police association. # Body Width and Blood Pressure Relationships to whether they are narrow or wide in build.

If they are of the narrow or greyhound build, they can subtract 10 pounds from the weight recorded on the tables for their height; if they are of the wide or bulldog build, they can add 60 G 10 pounds to the recorded weight for their height. This means, then, that a narrow man 5 feet 7 inches in height can weigh 139 pounds and a wide man of

Dr. Barton the same height 159 pounds and both are considered normal in weight.

Insurance statistics definitely show that the narrow individuals live longer than the wide ones and we are told that this is not because wide individuals are not as strong (because they are usually stronger physically), but because they eat too much for the amount of work done or exercise taken. Wide individuals by overeating are more frequently attacked by heart vessel, liver and kidney ailments. Thin individuals, on the other hand, usually eat less and because they have no excess weight, are more apt to be active physically.

Blood Pressure 'Types.'

Some interesting results from an investigation of the relation between body width and blood pressure are recorded by Drs. S. C. Robinson and M. Brucer, in American Journal of Medical Science. They divided their patients into six groups, from the very narrow to the very wide. They found that few of the narrow type had high blood pressure whereas many of the wide individuals had high blood pressure. The shape or build of the individual is related, as definitely shown by the figures, to blood pressure.

The thought then for wide individuals is not to allow themselves to become overweight, because their blood pressure is naturally high owing to their wide build.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

(© Roger B. Whitman-WNU Service.)

Lightning Rods. OUESTION: What value do you consider lightning rods have in protecting country houses? In making an installation, what are the essential things to look out for? Where can I get information?

Answer: Modern lightning rods and their connections are reliable and give adequate protection. The National Board of Fire Underwriters, 222 West Adams St., Chicago, issues a pamphlet describing the needs. There is also a government pamphlet; Farmers' Bullletin 1512, Protection of Buildings and Farm Property From Lightning," to be had from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, for five cents.

Condensation From Gas.

Question: My house is frame, with brick lining and plaster. Since using natural gas, the house sweats. In the kitchen and bathroom water drips off the ceilings and runs down the walls. Can you suggest something to overcome this?

Answer: When natural gas is burned, great quantities of water vapor are formed. If this vapor goes into the air of the house, there will be condensation when the warm and damp air is chilled by contact with cold surfaces. Very evidently the kitchen and bathroom ceilings are cold, probably because they are under an unheated attic. Insulation in the attic floor will keep the ceilings warmer, and there will be less condensation. You can get over the trouble in another way, by connecting all gas burners to flues that will carry the water vapor outdoors.

Question: My lawn is fairly riddled with holes around which are swarms of small brown ants, and a larger variety with wings. Could these be termites? How can I get rid of them? And how can a lawn be cleared of Japanese beetle grubs?

Answer: Those insects are not termites; they are varieties of ants. Ant traps of different kinds can be had at a hardware or garden store; these or some other ant poison scattered around a lawn will get rid of the trouble, for the worker ants will carry the poison back to the queens on the nests. A lawn can be cleared of Japanese beetle grubs with ar-Study Their Make-Up senate of lead, which, however, must be handled with great care because it is poisonous, and can kill your pets and birds as well as the grubs.

DRAMATIC REVIEW OF A 1941 INCOME TAX BLANK

"You Can't Take It With You" or "Tax Blank for 1941" has had its presentation before the American public, and, while it met with a mixed response, your reviewer would describe it as adequate. It is a straight, direct, merciless, tightly written affair which, despite muddling passages here and there, gets its message across. That, after all, is its purpose.

"Tax Blank for 1941" is in a sense a revival. It follows the pattern of other years but has been extensively rewritten, with many new lines and some startling effects, particularly that part of the narrative where it is discovered that Jonathan Q. Doe, our hero, supposing he gets the same exemption as in the past for being a married man, finds the exemption has been cut from $2,500 to $2,000. This is an obvious slap at matrimony, and, since it is a widely cherished institution, we do not think the authors have done a service to society by belittling it in this way. . . .

A moment of high drama comes in a bleak scene laid in the Upper Brackets country.

dom has there been a more moving scene than when T. Dudley Softtouch and Luther Gettahead come face to face with Paragraph 6, Item 7, Page 4 and find that on the same income as they had last year they must now pay a supertax of almost twice as much. Here is action belonging to the sternest school of realism.

Perhaps the peak of emotion comes in a little scene where Softtouch, almost a mental wreck after having finally figured up what he owes the government (with the help of six lawyers), is about to make out a check when he suddenly discovers that congress has placed a separate defense tax of 10 per cent on top of all! For a moment this reviewer thought the performance had all the elements of a fusion of "Hellzapoppin" and "Macbeth." Screams penetrated the rafters and seldom have such lines as "They can't do that to me," "This is an outrage" and "It's that feller in the White House" been delivered with such power and feeling.

> How'd you like to act as a target for tomatoes and like it-and even ask for more? That's what George Michelson spent his time at the other day, and after the fourth shot he was the happiest man in Hollywood.

Michelson is assistant property man on James Roosevelt's "Pot o' Gold," and he had to make the tomato that James Stewart throws at Charles Winninger. He did it first by filling the thin outside skin with a mess of catsup, chocolate sauce and other little items, and then had somebody throw it at him while a camera turned.

After the first three smacks Michelson shook his head. "Nope," he said. "This won't do. I'll have to put some whipped cream in it."

So the whipped cream was added, and once more he took a tomato right between the eyes. This time he could grin-he'd made a photogenic tomato, one that photographed so well that when it meets up with Winninger on the screen all of us will think it was just the ordinary garden variety.

Fran Allison, singing comedienne on the "Uncle Ezra" air show, can scratch her forehead and tickle a rib with the same motion, at the same time - and thinks probably she's the only person who can. About a year ago she had a plastic surgeon repair some injuries she'd suffered in an automobile accident, and he fixed up her forehead by building it up with one of her ribs.

ODDS AND ENDS-Fred Allen reads nine newspapers every day and clips everything that seems to contain a sug-gestion for his radio show; then he selects the best items and points up the humor ... The thousands of Brian Donlevy fans who have begged Paramount to give him a romantic role are going to have their wish granted—he'll play the part of a romantic two-gun gambler in "Pioneer Woman," with Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea . . . This year's concert tour takes Nelson Eddy to twenty cities-he'll return to the coast by April 7th, to start on Metro's "The Chocolate Soldier," with Rise Stevens.

Barbara Stanwyck is going to find out how it feels to look 109 years old-older than anybody else has ever been in pictures. Robert Donat was 80 in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," and Spencer Tracy got up to 82 in "Edison, the Man."

Now Miss Stanwyck achieves an all-time high. At the opening of "Pioneer Woman" she begins to tell her story. That's when she's an old, old lady. After that the picture goes back, showing four other pe-riods in her life. Make-up tests are being made on an extra girl.

Drs. P. De Bersaques and A. Berat, in Archives of Medicine-Surgery, Paris, stress the importance of the "constitutional" factor as an underlying cause of asthma and show that effective treatment can be realized only when the complex problem of the makeup or constitution of the asthmatic is clearly understood.

A study of 40 cases showed that there were three factors in the cause of asthma all of equal importance: (1) The respiratory (nose, throat, lungs) factor, (2) the instability (easily upset) of the nerves controlling the organs of the chest and abdomen, and (3) the liver factor.

Having these three causes in mind. they proceed to treat asthma from the three different standpoints. For the respiratory (breathing) they use epinephrine (adrenalin) and ephedrine; for that part of the nervous system controlling lungs, heart and digestion, they use a "quieting" drug such as beladonna and phenobarbital; for the liver or hepatic system they recommend diet methods and liver preparations.

In cases where the asthmatic is allergic or sensitive to certain substances, tests for these substances are made. Among the new methods of treatment are the breathing exercises-blowing all air slowly from the lungs-and the use of short-wave treatments.

Remember, the patient's general makeup, obstructions of nose and sensitiveness of various substances, can each and all be the cause of asthmatic attacks.

. . . QUESTION BOX

Q .- Will iron (marked ferrous sulfate), taken in vitamin capsules injure or have any ill effect on the teeth? How often should vitamin capsules be taken and may they be taken without advice of a doctor?

A .- I'm sorry but I try not to prescribe or suggest doses for any particular case. If you have a family physician a telephone call will give you the information. If you have no family physician, one visit to a physician would tell whether or not you really need the vitamins.

Origin of Roman Numerals

The origin of the Roman numerals V and X is not definitely known. It has been suggested that V or 5 represents the open hand with the fingers, except the thumb, held together. X or 10 is possibly double V.

Loss of Color

Loss of the natural color in fruit products often means the products have lost dietary values, according to Dr. M. A. Joslyn of the University of California college of agriculture.

The usual method is to mix with four times as much sand, to scatter it over the lawn, and then wash it into the ground with a hose.

Warped Floor Boards.

Question: On advice of a contractor, who guaranteed that moisture would not come through, an oak floor was laid in asphalt mastic on a concrete slab laid on the earth. Moisture has come through, and the floor has buckled so greatly as to be of no use. How can this condition be taken care of? What kind of flooring suitable for a living room would be successful.

Answer: If your contractor is responsible, you should hold him to his guarantee. The floor can be made waterproof by taking up the boards, putting down one or two thicknesses of heavy, impregnated felt, and relaying the floor with mastic on top of the felt. The trouble seems to be in the thinness of the coat of mastic, and the fact that the waterproofing felt was omitted.

Care of Floors.

Question: Having recently purchased a new home with hardwood floors, we would like to know how to take the proper care of them, and if water can be used to clean them. or if it turns them dark.

Answer: It is advisable to wax the floors with paste floor wax. Clean regularly with a dry brush or mop; never use an oil mop. Take up dirt with liquid wax-not water wax-or with a cloth slightly damp with water, and immediately wipe dry.

Apply new wax once every few months or when wear begins to show at doorways and other points of heavy traffic. Use a polisher at least once a week. Do not use water on a hardwood floor, for it may day spree. make black spots.

Ping-pong Table.

Question: What are the correct dimensions for a ping-pong table? What wood should be used? Answer: For a really good tennis table-and no other quality should be considered-the details of construction will take much more space than I can give. Plans of a table tennis outfit may be secured from the Handicraft department, P. O. Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., on payment of 10 cents (in coins).

Liquid Wax Stain. Question: A bottle of liquid furniture wax was overturned and made quite a large stain on a fiber rug. What will take it out? Answer: Some kinds of wax can be taken out with hot water, so that should be the first attempt. If it does not work, the wax can be dissolved by any liquid spot remover. Flat Roof. Question: What material would you recommend for a flat roof? Answer: Asphalt or tar saturated roofing felt, laid with alternating moppings of tar or asphalt.

There is both drama and comedy in the later chapter when millions of Americans in the lower income group, who have been laughing at the upper groupers all these years, discover that at last they must come across too. • • •

All in all (and that's the way they take it now), the production is sure to have the usual appeal, coupled with the additional response always occasioned by the surprise note. Your reviewer must say in all candor that "Tax Blank for 1941" lacks laughs. There is hardly an amusing line anywhere if you exclude the old gag, "Were you damaged by fire or storm during the last fiscal year?" But it is set for a run lasting through to next December 15. Nothing can stop it. . . .

Bill Pfriender says that Mr. Roosevelt's broadcasts these days might be billed as "Firearms Chats.' . . .

Wendell Willkie has now gone over to the administration side so completely that some people are even speaking of him as Wenlin Wiloovelt. . . .

New York city will have a population of eight to nine million people ultimately, an expert says. It is hard to imagine that many people running around asking questions on how to reach destinations in New York city. . . .

The annual National Automobile show has been abandoned for this year. The public will have to find some other good excuse for going to the big city for a two or three-. . .

The Jackson day dinner by the Democrats will be a unity banquet. This will require special arrangements to see that nobody gets hurt. . . .

I trust Wendell Willkie doesn't get into a bombing raid in London and send Roosevelt a card "Having awful time; wish you were here!'

. . . The only difference between our aid to England in the last war and in this one will be that this time our aid will have a zipper on it. . . .

ASSISTS

You can get an idea how Mussolini has been deflated from the fact he doesn't even stick out his chin in a newsreel any more.

Luke Twitchell says that, with Mr. Roosevelt serving his third term, he can now talk of his days in the White House, man and boy.

Rent Land Under Water? It's Quite the Thing Here!

Water, water, all around! Here's lesson No. 1 on how to "get away from it all!" Visitors are renting ground under water at $1 per acre in Miami's Biscayne bay, 11 miles off shore, and building "tumbledown" shacks with all the comforts of home except a telephone. These pic-tures show some of those with a Robinson Crusce complex who can reach their "summer homes" only via boat.

The picture above shows Miss Barbara Wells calmly pulling in a fish through her bedroom window, caught while she was napping in the afternoon at one of Miami's "tum-bledowns." If this isn't the last word in piscatorial comfort then we're missing our guess by a mile.

At the door she grew nervous again, hated her stammering uncertainty.

"Won't you come in?" she faltered. "I'm hungry, aren't you? This air is so chilly-

Stanley Daniels hesitated briefly. His ego had been given a satisfying lift at the meeting by Sally Gallup's fulsomeness. Even Marian Morgan's lack of enthusiasm had failed to dampen him. But eager little Lucy fed some gnawing bit of uncertainty in his nature. He still felt the need of approval and Lucy was naively adoring. So he was gracious about letting her urge him into the house, and kind in ignoring her confusion when they entered. Mrs. Fields' shoes and woolen stockings were sitting in front of the stove and Daniels busied himself tactfully folding his overcoat, while Lucy whisked them away. He did not see Lucy snatch a glass containing an upper set of teeth from the mantel, or turn a cushion swiftly because of the inevitable cat-hairs clinging to it. 'I'll make some chocolate." Lucy was a little breathless. "This chair is more comfortable, I'm sure."

"Can I help?" Daniels offered. "Oh, no, I couldn't think of it." Lucy laughed quickly. "I'm old-fashioned, you see. I belong to that vanishing race of women who think that men should be waited upon." Never could she let him see the inside of that dreadful old kitchen. The old wood stove, the smoked kettle and rusty pipe, the smoky little two-burner kerosene contraption they used in summer. She lit this affair now, to heat the cocoa, carefully closing the door so its smudgy smell would not penetrate the other room. The little cups were pretty. She had bought them hopefully, and kept them now in her trunk, after having found one on the back porch with medicine in it, mixed for a sick hen. She had crocheted the lacy edge of the napkins and ironed them to a gloss. Everything was delicate and staying here." An older man, a wiser man would have caught the light that flamed up briefly behind her eyes, noted the quick little catch of her breath. But

Branford Wills was young and not terribly wise. "Oh-so you're staying here." Marian's voice wavered ever so lit-

"I'm going to work in the Morgan mill. Didn't your mother tell you?" "No," she said slowly, "she didn't tell me."

She stood waiting, with the old desk where David Morgan had kept his dusty piles of letters and his stacked trade papers, with David Morgan's photograph - steely-eyed and with a fierce, handle-bar mustache-behind her, as the tradition of the Morgan mill and the Morgan money was behind her. It was a little like standing on a proud mountain, disdaining all below, but Marian was not thinking of that because at that moment a white pain had her by the throat.

There had been an hour-but of course Wills had been desperately erase the tracks of visitors almost before the door had closed upon them. Bry was shaving, she said. Bry Hutton had only two types of conversation where women were concerned. An ironic, half-bitter drawl and an insinuating, caressing intimacy, that verged faintly on insult. He began in this second manner but Marian cut it short crisply. "I didn't call up to be petted, Bry. This is business. I want to go to Sally Gallup's. That mountain road is muddy and mother will fuss if I drive it myself. "You'll have to take me." "Oh, look here, sweetness, it's raining and cold as hell. Can't you call Sally on the phone? Can't you wait till tomorrow? It might freeze over by that time."

"I want to go today. If you don't want to take me, Bry, I'll call somebody else."

"Well, don't do that. If you absolutely have to go, I'll take you. But it's a nutty idea, if you ask me. There's no sense to it."

"Nobody asked you-and perhaps there isn't any sense to it. Bry, will you take me to Asheville instead?" "Sure - stick around. I'll be there." "No, I won't stick around. I'm going into town, now." She spoke hurriedly. A car was stopping outside. In a moment Branford Wills would be going down those stairs. "I'll meet you at the drug-store, Bry," she said as she hung up. Rain beat through the open window of her little car as she tore down the mountain. The wheels lurched and skidded on muddy curves but she was reckless and heedless. She had to get away. Anger rode her like an imp of white flame-anger that hurt. The stiff fiber in her that she had from her father, that odd fierce honesty that could be both intolerant and tender, was tortured by the thought of weakness, of surrender. How could she have been so weak-so easy? She braced herself so hard on the steering-wheel that her knuckles ached.

She did not like Bry Hutton particularly. She did not care particularly for any man she had met, as yet. They were all too obvious, too aware of the fact that Virgie Morgan was supposed to be a rich woman. They were too glib or too diffldent, they got their conversation and their manners from pulp magazines,

Along the dark and lonely road plodded a solitary figure. Behind him lurked three shadows, which chose their moment and sprang upon the unwary one.

Three to one! The odds were heavily against the victim, but did he falter? Not on your life! One by one his assailants were sent flying, to lie bruised and stunned on the cold, wet ground.

Up dashed a policeman. He surveyed the wreckage, and then turned to the hero, who was coolly lighting a cigarette.

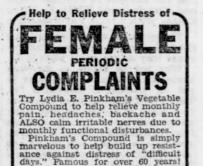

"Jujitsu?" he asked admiringly. "No," was the reply. "Railway baggageman."

Mrs. Fields had eaten all the little cakes. · . . . .

Even before he was able to stand alone without wavering, Branford Wills knew that he was failing in love with Marian Morgan. The realization troubled him. He was under deep obligation to Virgie. She had, he knew, saved his life by taking him in, by the care he had had when illness laid him low. To repay that debt by falling in love with Virgie's child, especially now that Virgie was also to be his employer, seemed a left-handed and slightly dubious procedure - but there was no help for it. Marian's very aloofness, her odd, prickly, half-sweet, half-bitter withdrawing, the secret and judging quality that lived in her dark eyes and hid in her long lashes, made her an enigma, a challenging mystery to dare any man with blood in his veins. And Branford Wills was young and fiercely proud and adventurous.

His pride was what bothered him As he stood, erect finally and shaving himself with a rather uncertain hand before the mirror in his room.

he told himself grimly that no one, least of all the girl herself, should ever guess the state of his feelings until he could look Virgie Morgan calmly in the face, a man on his own, worth what he was paid and able to love a woman without apology or without humility.

So whenever Marian came near. he kept the conversation on the brittle, half-bantering, half-contemptuous strain that modern youth assumes, choosing it for sophistication, hiding any current of feeling, masking every emotion. And so soon as he could mount the stairs without staggering, he rented a room in the house of Ada Clark's mother, and prepared to move.

"I have to do this. You understand," he said to Virgie.

"Yes," she said, "I understand." "I haven't anything to pack," he said, "so I might as well go. I have to send some wires and locate my belongings. I'll report for work on Monday. And I'll earn whatever you pay me. "You'll earn it, all right." Virgie was terse. "I had to give up philanthropy after three banks had busted in my face. People who work for me have to produce."

To Marian, Wills pitched his farewell speech in another key.

"I'm about to depart hence," he remarked, walking into the little room at the foot of the stairs which had once been David Morgan's pri-"My obnoxious person is vate lair. about to be removed from your vicinity. ill then and sick men are unaccount. able-but there had been an hour of dusk and quietness, when she had been keeping watch and Wills had caught her hand in his hot, twitching fingers and told her that her voice was like a song.

Mad folly, of course, even to have listened! But she had listened, and her heart, lonely and self-contained and timorous for all the briery barriers she had let grow around it, had waited hungrily for more.

But obviously there was no more. He did not care. He was going to work in the mill. He had wanted a job and he had been ingratiating and smooth and, engaging until he got it. She let bitter acid, brewed from galling disappointment, seethe through her blood and sting the tip of her tongue.

"So, you're going to work in the mill. You never waste time, do you? I hope mother is able to make money enough to pay you. She has had a hard time, paying the men she has already."

"It was her suggestion." He stiffened himself, missing everything that a man should have seen and heard in her eyes, in her voice-a man who was in love. Then he plunged on angrily, because he was hurt and tingling from a vague scorn he thought he caught in her attitude. "It won't be necessary for you to see me, if it's painful to you. You can ride by and disdain me from beyond the wall. I've been looked at with loathing before. I can bear it." He walked out, and Marian stood still, pressed against the old desk. her teeth set on her lip. The little room was small and gloomy from an overhanging hemlock tree. An old chair, twisting squeakily, stood there and she sat in it, her knuckles pressed against her teeth, her nails cutting her palms. So-he was an opportunist, and callously brazen about it! And she, daughter of David Morgan, had dreamed dreams! She writhed against the cold leather of the chair. Then, on an impulse, she ran to the hall, dragged on a hat and coat, picked up the telephone, and gave a number crisply. "I'm ringing," announced Mildred, the operator, in suave tones that made Marian's teeth click. All the girls in the exchange knew that she was calling Bry Hutton. All the girls knew also that probably Bry wasn't up yet.

Mrs. Hutton answered, a hurrying nervous woman with a nervous voice. Marian could almost see her standing there with a duster in her hand and an ear cocked to one side to listen for fear the beans might be boiling over. She was a marvelous housekeeper and it was rumored

She went around with Bry, as Lossie had so shrewdly surmised, to get her own way and because Bry was stimulating. Being with him was a constant battle and dominating him was an achievement for any woman. Marian rather liked the struggle to keep Bry aloof, to maintain her delicate, arrogant remoteness. And she had to get awayto stop thinking about Branford

I called a while ago and told Lucy I saw him going into Plute's shoeshop. I asked her if she wanted me to yell at him but she said never mind.' Marian stood near the door, watching. She was sorry she had told Bry to come here. 'Every one in town would know in no time that she had gone off somewhere with But that might be just as him. If every one knew it. Ada well. Clark would know it, and the sharpnosed girl who was head nurse, superintendent, and manager of the absurd little hospital would know it. Ultimately, by the sheer saturating effect of knowledge in small places, Branford Wills would also know it.

She waited until Bry was actually in the store, and then said with elaborate casualness, "If you're going over to the court-house, Bry, do you mind if I ride along with you? I have to see a dentist and mother worries when I drive on wet roads." Bry stared stupidly, began, "I thought you-"

"I did," Marian cut in, with some scorn, "I meant to go alone but if you're going anyway I could save my gasoline, couldn't I?"

'Sure, come along." Bry comprehended finally and instantly appreciated the element of the clandes-"Going to leave your car sittine. ting there?"

"It's dirty anyway. It doesn' matter.'

She lifted the latch and Bry said, Wait a minute till I get some cigarettes. Cash a check for me, will you, Ed?"

"If it's any good, I will," the clerk snickered.

"It ought to be good. It's on the old man and I signed it myself." "He'll come in here and raise the devil about it." "He has to raise it somewhere. What do you run a drug-store for anyway?

In 1921, the British weather bureau set up standards for describing fogs which fall into more or less definite categories. They range from "very dense," in which objects become invisible at 27 yards distance in the daytime, through "thick," "rather thick," "fog," "moderate," "mist or thick haze," and "slight mist or haze" -in which objects are visible at a distance of 71/2 miles.

INTERMEDIATE ROOM

The fifth grade completed their pioneer unit last week so on Friday afternoon they invited their mothers for the culminating of the unit. The program consisted of songs, topics using the friezes and movie they made, Paul Bunyan stories, poems they had written and a play taken from the book "Caddie Woodlawn." At four o'clock they served Johnny cake and tea to their mothers.

This week the pioneer store will be turned into a post office for St. Valentine's day. Our room is also beginning a unit on letter writing.
