• Today, more than ever, you and we are glad to live in the United States, to be members of the greatest democracy in the world.

But we do not stop to think that it may not always be thus. Do we realize that our country has a weakness which might spell disaster should we be invaded? Do we know how easily such an invasion might be accomplished?

PIG BIG LOSER AS VERDICT ON ITS DEATH IS APPEALED

William Breseman of Kewaskum poute 3, was granted an award of $26.-76 for the death of a pig in the court of Justice W. S. Hayhoe but the verdict has been appealed to county court by the defendant, Emil Schneiter, of Route 1, Lomira, a truck driver who hauls milk to the Kewaskum Creamery company.

When the defendant failed to appear in court the award was granted by default. The appeal was taken to the Fond du Lac county court because the defendant lives in the town of Ashford. The pig was alleged to have been killed on Highway 23 about three miles west of Kewaskum on Nov. 26, 1940, and the defendant was charged with negligence in that he drove on the left side of the road where the pig was wandering.

KEWASKUM STATESMAN, KEWASKUM, WIS.

Like all large government undertakings when there are vast expenditures of public funds, the U. S. defense program is being given an investigation by congressional committees. Pictured here are Sen. Harry Truman of Missouri, senate investigation chairman, and members of his group as they visited the army camp at Fort Meade, Maryland. This was the first of six such camps inspected by this committee.

GREECE: Nazi Power

The Germans, it was apparent, were able to do in about three or four weeks what Italy had been unable to do in any length of timebeat the embattled Greeks.

The battle of Jugoslavia, which lasted nine days, being over, the Italians contented themselves with pursuing the Greek army of Epirus, only a shell, it is true, of the forces the Greeks had there originally, and which had to withdraw because of the onslaught of the Panzer divisions in the eastern part of the country.

When this army surrendered, it was certain that the end of Greek resistance was in sight. King George II, announcing that he had not been informed of the impending surrender of the western army, fled with his government to Crete, announcing he would continue to direct the offense from there.

But it was apparent that the Greek campaign must be abandoned, and the British must face another Dunquerque or lose their entire manpower on the mainland. The debarkation from Piraeus promised to be even a more difficult task than the flight from France, as German claims of sinking 59,000 tons of transports in one day showed.

Just as the British lost all their artillery and mobile units and the rest of their supplies in the retreat from the low countries, so it also appeared the vastly smaller army

TAXES: Defense Finance

A "practically unanimous vote" of the house committee considering President Roosevelt's $3,500,000,000 tax plan to finance a portion of the national defense cost, seemed to grease the ways for the launching of a bill.

But almost immediately there were some signs that opposition would rise against the bill when, as and if it was brought out.

One of the basic ideas in the tax layout is a plan to levy higher surtaxes on everyone who now pays income tax. Another was to invade the lower brackets and make those pay taxes who are not now doing so. For instance, it was pointed out in opposition quarters, the new proposed surtax schedule would make a childless couple now earning $2,500 net earned income, a couple now paying $11 income tax, hike their tax to $72.

All income taxes now include the tax on a tax, or the 10 per cent income tax supertax for defense purposes.

Despite the appearance of opposition, the President told a press conference he thought the nation well able to absorb a $3,500,000,000 hike in taxes. He said it would mean that people would have to buy a little less, and pay a little bit more for the sake of the defense and future of the nation.

NEW YORK CITY. - Mrs. Pierre B. Clemenceau, wife of the son of the late Georges Clemenceau, "Tiger" of France in World war days, is pictured with her son, Paul, leaving La Guardia field after their arrival via Clipper plane from Lisbon. Note the tiny American flag which might be emblematic of the Clemenceau's new haven.

AFRICA: Blitz Stopped?

There were some dispatches from northern Africa that tended to show that the British had brought the Nazi-Fascist blitz to a standstill after losing practically all the territory gained against Mussolini's men earlier.

Particularly noteworthy was the bombardment of Tripoli by the fleet, an attack at the source of the invading army's supplies. Britain proudly hailed this attack, reported the port was in flames, and practically forced to close.

Whether landing parties would be sent ashore, and the British attempt an invasion at the rear of the German-Italian northern African army was not immediately clear, or whether it was that the British, having found where the opposing forces had landed, were seeking to close the port. However, it was an offensive note where all had been defense for a long time.

Also, the British garrison at Tobruk was holding out in a long siege, and on top of this defensive note came word that the British had started a new attack on Bardia, some 75 miles to the west of Tobruk, which looked like the beginning of a move to attempt to raise the siege.

The attack, or rather raid, on Bardia, was carried out by a landing party from the fleet, and the party got back to the ships "almost intact" after doing considerable damage, blowing up a bridge, destroying a munitions dump and putting four coast defense guns out of business. This going ashore and "spiking the guns" was an old tactic of war that now seems out of date, and it in Greece would, nevertheless, suffer the same loss, if, indeed, they were able to get away at all. Military observers believed, when totaled up, the British disaster in Greece would amount to more from the standpoint of casualties than did the entire British campaign in France. And this they believed in spite of constant reports from London that "lines were holding firm" and that "new defensive positions were being consolidated"-reports circulated even at the moment when the king and government of Greece were in flight, and thousands of Greek soldiers were laying down their arms.

That this was a censorship "smoke screen" to attempt to cover a trial at withdrawal similar to the Dunquerque pattern seemed fairly obvious to most observers.

Central battle in the final debacle occurred at historic Thermopylae Pass, where in ancient times the Greeks had successfully withstood precarious threats to her independence. In fact, most military observers had always maintained that in order to conquer Greece Thermopylae Pass must first be threaded.

However, in ancient times, the pass was narrow indeed-now it was wider, the attackers had fast mobile units to pour into the fray, and the Greek and British rear guard, said the Germans, were totally unable to withstand the advance.

The cloud of censorship hid the facts about the British withdrawal, whether it would be entirely tried through Piraeus, or whether the British forces would retreat through Athens to the Peloponnesus, and attempt to fight or debark there.

But certain it was that Greece was doomed, after three to four weeks of furious warfare, warfare in which the Germans suffered their heaviest losses of the war.

Economic Result

Whether it was "whistling going through a churchyard," or a wellconsidered opinion, "informed experts" at Washington seemed to feel that the Nazi conquest of Greece might be more economically costly than worthwhile.

They said the latest German triumph, on the contrary, might prove costly to the Nazis, for the devastation and physical upset of the population in the Balkans might seriously curtail the flow of supplies Germany had been receiving.

Even if these war gains were discounted, these same sources held, the conquest of Greece and Jugoslavia would add little to Nazi economies. Neither country is a producer of oil or of any of the other major war materials which Germany needs.

Figures obtainable at the commerce department in Washington show that more than 50 per cent of Jugoslavia's foreign trade in recent years was with the Axis powers, and since the start of the war that percentage had increased enormously. complish in less direct ways.

'Little Man'

was refreshing to read about and Most of the early opposition to imagine the sneak ashore in the appeared to be against a plan which dark in small boats, the rapid move would place a heavy load on the in surprise on the defenders, and the already heavily taxed "little man" mad flight before dawn to the boats in the form of income tax where he again. would feel it the most.

Also the surtax would hit heavily insurance companies and banks who are heavy holders of government bonds. At top and at bottom seemed the chief opposition to the tax.

For instance, a single person with an income of $1,000 (net earned) would pay $29 tax under the proposed schedule instead of $4 as at present. A married couple with two ment, at all events, and meant that children with an earned net income of $3,500 who would now be paying $15 income tax, would find their levy boosted to $100.

Under the plan, the 4 per cent tax rican campaign still was untold and would be retained, and the surtaxes would start with $2,000, (11 per that was increasingly evident. cent) which would be a total of 15 JAPAN: per cent. To this would be added the defense supertax, or 10 per cent Bitter Days of the total tax, added to the bill. The effective rate, therefore, on resistance to their armed effort the bottom bracket, would be 16.5 per cent.

The treasury estimated that these changes, if put into effect, would raise a billion dollars a year, or a little less. The estate tax exemption, under another plan, would be reduced from $40,000 to $25,000, and rates in the lower and middle brackets would be raised.

This, the treasury experts said, would yield about a third of a billion. As a sample of this tax, if one inherited $20,000, over and above the exemption limit of $25,000, one would pay $1,800 to the treasury instead of $600 as at present.

If a person inherited $125,000, or $100,000 more than the proposed exprobabilities of their fate if they emption, the tax would be hiked from the present $9,600 to $21,000.

Declining Tourist Trade Costly to Canada

In America there is a man who, purely as a hobby, has constituted himself as a sort of one-man travel and publicity agent for Canada. His name is Schuvler Baldwin Terry. He started out to be a historian with a Ph. D. at the University of Chicago, took a course at the University of London, wrote an authoritative book, entitled "The Financing of the Hundred Years War," quoted in debates in parliament. Then he suddenly decided that he was more interested in economics than history and got a job as office boy in an old cumulated a comfortable fortune,

The federal department of justice in Washington reports that during 1940 there was a major crime committed every 21 seconds, a robbery every 10 minutes, a burglary every 13 minutes and a larceny every 35 seconds. The rate of minor crimes was much greater than this. Looks as though the national "offense" program is not slowing down.

As the symptoms of poison ivy are much like those of hives and food poisoning, it is natural that research workers and drug manufacturers should be experimenting with a serum to prevent attacks of poison ivy just as with hay fever, eczema his pen. and other allergic conditions. The result has been various methods of using the vaccine or serum idea. This is, that a tiny amount of an offending food or other substance put under the skin or taken by mouth will cause the body to manufacture protective substances to overcome large amounts of the offending substances should they be eaten, or the body come in contact with them. While this idea or principle works out well in hay fever, asthma, eczema, stomach and intestinal upsets, it has not worked out so well in prevention of poison ivy. Chewing the young leaves, taking "tincture" of poison ivy by mouth or by injection are methods used. Dr. Leon Goldman, Cincinnati, in Journal of Medicine, states that the difficulty is due to being unable to measure the dose given that will prevent the attacks and yet not give the patient too severe a reaction. Research workers report most undesirable effects when leaves have been chewed, such as severe swelling of the tongue and lining of the mouth, which causes the patient to feel that he will choke to death. Even when the serum manufactured from poison ivy has been injected, there has been great skin irritation at and around the point where the serum was injected. The lesson from the above is that, while injections for poison ivy appear to be effective in many cases, the proper doses in individual cases is at present hard to determine.

Coarse Foods Can Result in Serious Trouble By DR. JAMES W. BARTON AS CONSTIPATION is due in A the majority of cases to a slow-acting or lazy bowel, home treatment for many years past has been the eating of coarse TODAY'S foods. This is good HEALTH treatment because coarse COLUMN foods such as whole-wheat bread, bran muffins, nut and fruit bread, oatmeal, tapioca, and bran all have much roughage. It is this roughage that slightly irritates the walls of the large intestine, causing more action. While the above foods are excellent for the lazy bowels, they have the opposite and a harmful effect on a bowel, that is constipated because of spasms, caused by spasms or contractions of the muscles of the bowel, partly close it so that the wastes cannot pass onward out of the bowel. The individual is usually of the Dr. Barton nervous or emotional type whose stomach and intestine are easily upset or subject to spasms (spastic). To give coarse foods in this case will cause spasms and constipation, and also diarrhea due to the great amount of irritation caused by the rough foods. This condition of a spastic bowel, with constipation alternating with diarrhea, is spoken of as a spastic colon and colitis. Coarse Foods Aggravate.

While most of these cases are due to nervousness, or at least nervousness is the underlying cause, the condition in some cases has been greatly aggravated by coarse foods being eaten in large quantities in an endeavor to cure constipation. Some cases are kept in almost continuous spasm because, in addition to coarse foods, harsh purgatives are used. In acute cases of spastic bowel or colitis, nothing but milk or other liquids are used for a few days. In the usual or chronic case diet consists of cream, soft-boiled eggs, strained cereals, cottage cheese, butter, custards, plain cookies, white bread, orange juice, strained vegetables, cream soups, beef, lamb, chicken, and baked fish. Remember, coarse foods are helpful when bowel is sluggish, but harmful when bowel is overactive with spasms.

Use of Serums For Poison Ivy

KEWASKUM STATESMAN, KEWASKUM, WIS.

By LEMUEL F. PARTON ated Features-WNU Service.

N EW YORK .- Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps who has just arrived in England to serve as an official observer Arnold, Pupil of of the war, is about the Wrights, Pioneer only officer In Army Aviation remaining in active service who learned to fly under the personal supervision of Wilbur and Orville Wright at their school in Dayon, Ohio. Just two years previjusly the war department had ac-:epted delivery of its first batch of airplanes and so his experience as a flier pretty nearly spans the comspasms. These plete period of army aviation.

> Anyone who can recall the status of flying in 1911 will appreciate "Hap" Arnold's exploits in his first year of training as a young lieutenant, assigned to flight duty from the infantry, with a record of 140 flights, 29 hours in the air. In his second year of training he achieved honor as the first winner of the Mackay trophy awarded for excellence as a military pilot. In a day so blustery and cold as to keep all but 2 of 12 entrants out of the race he completed a 40mile flight, originating at College Park, Md., at an average speed of 52 miles an hour.

Twenty-two years later he again won the trophy as leader of a flight of 10 twin-engined bombers from Washington, D. C., to Alaska and return. As early as 1911 he practiced at aerial bombardment and war department records credit him with being the pioneer in the successful use of the radio for military purposes in an airplane.

Quite at variance with the outward semblance of this slightly built, silver-haired soldier with his diffident smile, is his forthright utterances and writings concerning the airplane as a war machine.

"The only way to prevent air invasion is to attack the invader with superior numbers and knock him out of the air." He has been preaching this for years, his concern having ever been for the constant procurement of thousands of new, improved combat craft, training of thousands of new pilots, enlistment of tens of thousands of ground crew men, swelling of aircraft plants and acquisition of vital raw material for future aircraft production.

Still an active pilot, mounting administrative duties have cut down in the house for a year or two, to his time in the air and restricted his activity in two hobbies-cooking and writing fiction. Boys who remember his "Bill Bruce" books, including "Bill Bruce at West Point," "Bill Bruce at Flying School," and other breath-taking juvenile works, will regret the recent idleness of (@ Roger B. Whitman-WNU Service.) Brightening a Flagstone Floor.

QUESTION: How can I brighten up a new broken flag floor that we have just had put down on our porch? Could I take off its dusty look with a polishing of liquid wax? Answer: After brick, stone or tile is laid in cement mortar, it should be scrubbed with a solution of muriatic acid, to remove any cement that may have been smeared on the surface. Use one part muriatic acid in twenty parts of water; allow to act for a few minutes, then rinse with clear water. Work on a small area at a time. When mixing the solution, pour the water slowly into the acid, stirring constantly. As this acid is highly corrosive, wear rubber gloves and old clothes; be careful not to get any of it on your skin. You can enrich the color of the stone by applying a liberal coat of raw linseed oil, mixed half-andhalf with turpentine. After several hours of soaking, wipe off the excess oil. Try the oil first on some hidden part of the floor, to see how you like the effect.

'Crazing' Varnish.

Question: Is it a usual condition, in all highly figured mahogany, to develop surface scratches, known as "crazing"? This condition has developed in my bedroom suite, which is English Chippendale, crotch mahogany. Can this condition be remedied at home, and will it recur after it has been repaired?

Answer: Crazing in the varnish finish is not natural on any wood. This condition is usually caused by the drying out of the varnish. If the crazing is not very deep, light sandpapering will remove it, followed by a wiping with turpentine to clean the surface; after this, apply a thin coat of varnish. Deeply crazed varnish must be removed and the furniture refinished.

Water-Soaked Floor.

Question: We have just purchased and have moved to the mainland a house that has been standing in salt water for some time; for about a year water covered the floors at high tide. What solution can we use for washing the floors that will remove the salt from the wood?

Answer: Nothing will be more effective than plain water, in which salt is soluble. Even with this, however, I greatly doubt if all of the Soil Conservation

In the matter of soil conservation, the agriculturist will do well to take a leaf out of Nature's own book, for one of Nature's tricks for holding and fertilizing the soil is to keep it constantly covered with vegetation. Such coverage, when maintained by the farmer is usually called a cover crop. It may be a fairly permanent cover, maintained over a period of years, or it may be planted merely for a winter or a summer season. Careful erosion surveys made throughout the United States show that 50,000,000 acres of once-fertile land are now completely useless and 100,000,000 more in bad condition as a result of soil erosion. The greater part, if not all of this shocking loss of productivity could have been prevented by the use of proper soil conservation methods. One of such methods, and an important one, would have been the planting of cover crops in proper rotation with other crops. A recent Farmers' Bulletin lists the following advantages to be derived from the use of cover crops:

"1. The cover crop reduces runoff of rain and thus conserves moisture:

"2. Prevents excessive erosion of soil:

"3 Adds organic matter to the soil;

"4. Prevents the leaching of available plant food, especially nitrate nitrogen;

"5. When turned under, forms organic acids or other compounds which aid in the liberation of mineral plant food;

"6. May provide late fall, winter, and early spring pasture;

"7. Protects newly constructed terraces and other soil-erosion devices:

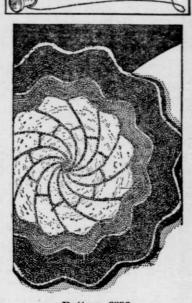

"8. Increases yield of corn, cotton, and other regular farm crops;

"9. When plowed under, improves the structure of both heavy and light soils and increases the waterabsorbing capacity and the infiltration of water into the soil." Such crops as corn, tobacco, potatoes, and cotton which are grown in wide rows with clean cultivation, and also wheat und other smallgrain crops grown on sloping land under a summer-fallow system of rotation are all highly conducive to soil loss by erosion.

CROP YIELDS INCREASED

Farmers are sometimes disinclined to try cover crops because of the cost of seed and labor involved; nevertheless, both practical and experimental results of cover cropping show that in the Cotton Belt yields have been greatly increasedas much as 35 per cent for cotton and 75 per cent for corn by this practice. In winter-grain sections, salt can be removed. I should live yields have also been materially increased by the use of summer covlast word in things of other times. Thursday - The decorators are past masters of giving to period rooms a freshness of today-by accenting dignified Eighteenth century furniture with a Nineteenth century "Gone With the Wind" background -by using Pennsylvania Dutch details in early American maple rooms -by using Victorian cabbage roses with modern furniture. Friday-The word friend is a gallant title, not to be used too lightly. It comes from the old English word which meant affection. Saturday -Raw silk is going to be used by several manufacturers as the base fabric for printed decorative patterns, because it resembles linen texturally and the supply of linen for use as a decorative fabric will shortly be exhausted. Since silk has gone up 200 per cent in according to the cost, it's probable that much of this new material will actually be made

So acting, she represented her husband, Commander Ernani Do Amaral Peixoto, governor of the state of Rio de Janeiro-for which the vessel was named-as well as her father, Getulio Vargas, president of Brazil.

Washing Down Paint. Question: Is there a liquid with which I can wash down painted walls to take off dirt, but not the paint?

Answer: There is on general sale at most paint stores a powder made of a cereal compound, which is very satisfactory for washing painted surfaces. Or, you can dissolve a teaspoonful of trisodium phosphate in a gallon of tepid water. After the wall has been washed with this solution, rinse with clear water. Start working at the floor level and wash up toward the ceiling, to avoid making dirty streaks.

Paint or Stain for Shingle.

Question: Which is the more enduring, shingle stain or paint? Answer: Wood shingles on a roof should never be painted. They will last longer if stained with a good quality shingle stain. Wood shingles used as a wall siding can either be painted or stained. The lasting properties of paint or stain will be about equal if they are of a good quality.

Digger Wasps.

Question: My lawn is covered with round holes, about the size of a half-dollar, which I think must be from moles. Is there any simple way to get rid of them?

Answer: Moles do not make such holes as you describe. Much more likely the holes are made by digger wasps. Two or three moth balls dropped into each hole, and the hole closed, should end the trouble.

Waterproof Glue.

Question: How can glue for wood be made waterproof? Answer: That will not be an easy job to do at home. It will be far simpler to buy waterproof glue. One excellent variety is a glue made of casein that can be had at a hardware store. While this is mixed with water, it becomes highly water resistant when it dries.

Making Things.

Question: I am interested in making small objects, such as decorative shelves, plant stands, etc. How should I go about it? Are there any books for novices?

Answer: A book by Julian Starr, called "Make It Yourself," should give you all the information you want. It is published by Whittlesey House, and is on sale at book stores, Finishing Plywood.

Question: What finish should I apply to the plywood that lines the walls of our big living-room? We do not wish to darken the room too much Answer: Plywood can be painted with any good light colored paint. Or, if you do not care to cover the grain of the wood, apply first a coat of shellac, thinned half-and-half with denatured alcohol. Follow this with a coat of wax. Two coats of a quickdrying varnish would also make a satisfactory finish to obtain the result you desire.

study the effect, with the idea of er crops. Legumes, especially, themselves a cash crop, may be used as cover crops in rotation with other cash crops, to reduce erosion and increase the yield of the cultivated crops which follow them.

In the northern Corn Belt and in the western part of the United States where soils are neutral or alkaline, sweetclover, broadcast with wheat is very valuable since its large top and root growth add much organic matter to the soil. A standard crop along the Atlantic coast, from New Jersey to northern Georgia is crimson clover. It must be admitted that it is frequently difficult to obtain a stand of crimson clover, but wherever a stand can be secured it makes a very satisfactory erosioncontrol crop. For best results, sow the seed in the hull, at the rate of 50 pounds per acre, on a wellprepared seed bed, and press the seed into the soil with a roller.

NON-LEGUMES

In either the Corn Belt or the Cotton Belt, one of the best allround cover crops is rye, which germinates easily and makes a complete cover in a very short time. Winter oats may also be used where freezing is not severe. Wheat, in areas to which it is adapted, or oats or barley make good cover crops. In regions where leguminous crops are, for any reason, not desirable, Italian ryegrass, redtop or rye are indicated for cover. Cover crops should be turned under two weeks before corn planting or three weeks before cotton planting. For early truck crops, plant for cover something which will form a dense growth in the fall to serve as a winter mulch and turn it under in February or March.

For further information concerning cover crops, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Farmers' Bulletin No. 1758. . . .

THE PITCHER PLANT

It is the leaf of the pitcher plant which gives it its name. These leaves may be anywhere from 4 to 10 inches long. They are hollow and are shaped like little trumpets with the small end of the "trumpet" attached to the stem of the plant. Each perfect leaf is winged on its inner side and is colored in various shades of green, streaked in purple or a dark liver color. These trumnet-shaped leaves are usually nearly full of water (the plants grow in boggy marshes). Hence its name. . . .

LIGHTNING PROTECTION

Lightning - protective systems should be installed carefully, and with full knowledge of approved methods, on all farm buildings. The value and importance of such protection is unquestionable.

WATER BOATMEN

These small bugs, familiar to every farm boy, are boat-shaped, flat on the back, and equipped with hind legs which are flat and fringed with hair so that they may be used as paddles.

Can America Be Invaded? Our New Novel Tells How

In 1864 America faced a military challenge at home. The troops of Napolean III marched into Mexico. Today, returned home last Friday from an 11 with nearly all of Europe under the day trip to Hot Springs, Ark. and 's heel of respots, America potentially faces another such challenge in the American hemisphere. Can America be invaded?

> "Attack on America," a thrilling ne rel by General Ared White, deals realistically with the possibility of a erful and most defenseless' der the sun. It is a timely revelation of our vulnerability to attack fr overseas written by a man who know his facts Twelve regular army officers checked the facts to make there is no inaccuracy.

Tension throughout this story is held at high pitch by Captain Allan Ben. co. Captain Benning skates on thin ice once rescued by Mile. Lucette Ducos.

We are sure our readers will welome the opportunity to read "Attack on America," which begins in today" issue This unusual different and re gretably true serial brings out th facts We were fortunate in getting this current story which is very appropriate at present as the European way is at a peak. -Mrs. Henry Becker and Mr. and

Mechanized Fishing

The fishing industry, oldest of American industries, and one of the largest, has finally accepted a place in the machine column. Where snowy-sailed schooners put out from New England fishing ports almost since the coming of the Pilgrims, trim Diesel-engined trawlers now go forth. Operating from Massachusetts ports is the Forty Fathom Fleet. Come aboard one of the trawlers and let's go to the fishing grounds.

Here is a big trawl-a net shaped like a big bag. As much as 5,000 pounds of fish can be hauled in at one lick in this bag.

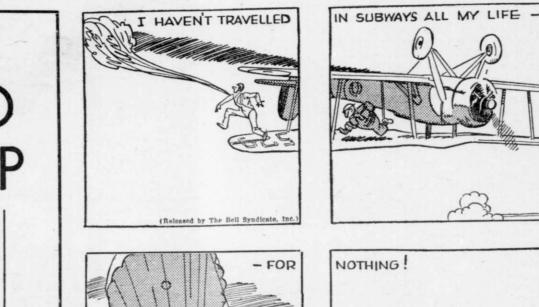

Above: After swordplay. Sharks are not the worst offenders. The repair crew had to mend a big hole in the net after a swordfish had been rough with it.

Occasionally a trawler brings in something the fishermen hadn't bargained for. The shark at the right, for instance. This is a 7 ft. blue shark. The liver is valuable.

sail from New York for France without delay. That's all, Flagwill."

Captain Allan Benning, in civilian clothes, sat waiting in a battered old coupe just outside Fort Sam Houston. For-two weeks past he had been following one of those slender threads of investigation that were intended to connect local espionage activities with the Van Hassek army in Mexico.

Important secrets had been stolen from southern military headquarters at the fort. Not least of these was the secret tables of organization of the proposed new American fighting division. Gone, too, was the file copy of army mobilization plans.

Benning's suspicion had centered promptly on a staff sergeant, Gaujos. Not by reason of any action on the part of the sergeant, but because of an eloquent intangible, the palpable inconsistency of Gaujos' background, personality, and intelligence with his present occupation. Gaujos was a man of forty, a Frenchman by birth, had served as a combat pilot with the French air corps during the World War. Three years ago he had taken out papers as an American citizen and enlisted in the army.

At headquarters Gaujos' superiors granite and marble huddle of governswore by him. He was highly competent as an administrative clerk having supervision over half a dozen typists. To the casual observer Gaujos might have appeared a saturnine, stolidly satisfied man who had given up the struggle for higher success and settled happily into his

Mr. Shields was a portly, smartly groomed man in late middle life. His round, florid face was an ingratiating smile as he invited Benning to a seat and tendered a cigarette.

"I'm glad you're here on the dot, Benning," he said. "There's quite a bit to be done in Paris, and you must be in Bordeaux tomorrow to catch your boat for Vera Cruz." Benning said, "I'm at your disposal, sir.

The ambassador regarded his visitor with a certain whimsical wistfulness. He lighted a cigarette.

"You know, Benning," he said, "I decidedly envy you this opportunity for distinguished service. I think I know what's under the surface of things in Europe, but I can't prove anything in the concrete way that's necessary. So you must go to Mexico to do the job."

"I'd suppose, sir," Benning commented, "that our government was informed at least of the larger diplomatic facts."

"Facts?" Shields echoed the word derisively. "But there's only one accepted fact in international relations today: that the maps are listed for an overhaul. Outwardly everyone is praying for peace to come out of the current muddle. Under the surface the big question is, When will the lid blow off? We're looking to you for the answer, Benning."

Bart replied crisply: "Meet me immediately at Kelly Field, Ben-Benning's eyes narrowed. "I'm ning. Drive as fast as your flivnot sure I understand, sir." Mr. Shields laughed mirthlessly.

It was concentrations now, dusk when Gaujos left his taxicab ongress would probably and proceeded down the road on foot from a point south of the old county on. He'd be accused of poor farm. Benning parked his own coupe by the roadside and held the trail from a discreet distance. The suspected masquerader turned suddenly off the road into a field. Benning recognized it as a field that did service on occasion as an emergency landing-place for student fliers from Randolph Field. A fringe of willows lay along the road, and through these Gaujos plunged with the decisiveness of a man who knows where he is going.

But Benning learned a few moments later that Gaujos was not off his guard. As the captain eased into the willows, a stab of flame blinded his eyes, the bark of a pistol clapped his ears. He dove to the ground, his right hand whipping his own service pistol into play and sent a bullet driving at the spot whence had come the attack. Then he lay tensely waiting. The grim silence that followed was broken shortly by the kicking-over of a propeller out in the field, followed by the easy purr of a high-powered engine tuning for a take-off.

As Benning leaped to his feet, his eyes made out, in the vague light, a figure zigzagging at high speed into the field. Aiming carefully he sent one bullet after another driving after the fugitive until a metallic click told him his weapon was empty.

The runner made the plane, vaulted inside. Benning, now helpless to act, saw the shadowy plane waddle down the stubble and roar into the sky. In a twinkling it was swallowed up in the void of a Texas twilight. Benning swore under his breath at his ill luck, returned to his coupe, and drove to his hotel in San Antonio. There was a burn at his neck which told him of a close call with death. He examined it critically, decided it was not serious enough to require an anti-tetanus treatment, and called the corps area G-2 officer, Lieutenant Colonel Bart, on the telephone.

The plane swung back across the Anacostia and glided to a landing. Benning thanked the pilot for a safe journey north and sped by military sedan across the river into Washington. At the War Department he went to the second floor and reported to the G-2 section.

Colonel Flagwill had come down early for Benning's arrival. His placid, unemotional face broke in a slight smile and his eyes sparkled at sight of the young officer. He led the captain into a private office and closed the door. Without formality Flagwill said: 'Someone must go into Mexico and get the facts, Benning. I needn't remind you of the danger of such an enterprise. While I have thought of you for the detail, you need not accept unless you want to."

"Thanks for thinking of me, Colonel," Benning said with an easy "When do you wish me to smile. leave?"

There was an approving gleam in the Flagwill eyes as he took from his pocket a bulky sealed letter and handed it to Benning.

"You're sailing for Europe at eleven on the America. Available information is in this letter. When you've read it, destroy it by burn-You'd better take a commering. cial plane to New York. Your boat reservations have been attended to. On landing at Southampton, cross the Channel to Le Havre and proceed to Paris by express. Our ambassador, Mr. Shields, will be expecting you in Paris. Any question, Benning?'

"I think not, sir," Benning said. "Good luck," Flagwill said, rising.

'Do a thorough job of it and get the Mexican picture back here as soon as possible, consistent with thoroughness. I'll have an officer at the airport with your tickets and expense money. That's all, Captain."

The embassy staff had calculated to the minute when Benning was due to arrive from the Gare du Nord. No sooner had he dropped the bronze knocker than the embassy front door opened. A bespectacled male secretary looked him over in sharp appraisal and said, "You are the gentleman we're expecting?"

"Captain Benning, just in from the United States," the captain answered.

"Please come in," the secretary said. "Mr. Shields has reserved this hour and is waiting for you."

The ambassador was at the door of his reception room to receive his Captain Benning thought briefly and got to his feet.

"Very good, sir," he said. "If that's the game. I'm ready to go to Vincennes."

The ambassador handed Benning a packet of papers, comprising the Bromlitz carte d'identite and several orders in German and Italian. A secretary came into the room to make a photograph of Benning for transfer to the Bromlitz passports. Benning then left the embassy and took a taxicab to Vincennes.

Benning passed out of Paris through the Porte de Bercy and sped to the grim old walls of the ancient citadel. A sentry challenged at the gate, examined Benning's credentials, and sent him to the commandant who dispatched a sous-officier to guide the American to the Brom-
