ATTACK ON AMERICA

foreign forces, and gained the confidence of two other officers, Fincke and Bravot. He was joined in Mexico City by Lucette Ducos, a French spy who posed as his sweetheart. When he discovered that the foreign troops were ready for an invasion of the U. S., Benning said to Fincke, "that the old hawk, Colonel Boggio, is here in Washington?"

"You knew, of course," Benning said casually to Fincke, "that the old hawk, Colonel Boggio, is here in Washington?"

Fincke shook a waggish finger and accused, "I thought you warned me we mustn't be so free in mentioning names."

"Correct, but please note that I lowered my voice. Of course, if we're going to be so technical as that, Fincke, perhaps we'd better identify ourselves to each other officially. Go ahead."

"It's the best cover-up I've ever heard," Fincke replied with enthusiasm. "You can say anything you want so long as you mention just those two things. That's vastly better than having a regular formula for identification which the enemy might pick up on you."

"Fine enough, but let's hear you identify yourself, Fincke."

"Once I knew a man named Palacio Quatres who owned a fine pair of silver sabers," the Austrian confessed.

Benning quickly searched through Fincke's remark and decided that the key words, by which Van Hassek agents identified themselves to one another must be "palacio quatres" and "silver sabers."

He said: "How do you like this one, Fincke? There's an old shop known as the Palacio Quatres that has for sale some interesting antiques in the form of silver sabers."

"Just as good as mine, maybe better," Fincke approved.

Boggio had finished his dance. Benning observed that the Italian was getting ready to leave the Shoreham. He made a hurried estimate. The instant arrest of these two men would only net the secret service two more spies who would spill nothing. Only by holding them under close observation could the ramifications of their mischief in Washington be traced down.

He decided that Boggio was bigger game and got to his feet.

"Where'll I find you later, Fincke?" he demanded.

Fincke stared at his watch and his dial seemed to bring a nervous quiver to his fingers. His eyes lighted up again in that strange excitement of his.

"I'll be about for only a week or so, Bromlitz," he answered. "If this place closes, we can find each other at meal-times at one of the good places on Connecticut Avenue. But after tonight—we must be very careful."

Benning's cab swung sharply and without warning to the curb as it turned into Pennsylvania Avenue. Vaguely Benning had noted that the driver had his radio turned on a dance program. As the car joined to a stop, the cabman put his radio on full blast and turned to Benning with gaping eyes.

"Did you hear that, mister?" he gasped.

An excited broadcaster, striving for control of his voice, was talking loudly.

"The report is just confirmed—San Antonio attacked from the air—hundreds reported killed by explosive bombs—New Orleans is being bombed at this minute—Galveston is being bombed—air attack on United States without warning—"

Again the driver turned a face distorted by a frenzy of excitement.

"My God, mister!" he shouted. "Is that the real thing?"

Benning said in a firm, calm voice, "Please drive me quickly to the Munitions Building. That means we're at war."

Until those first bombs crashed on Fort Sam Houston there had been no reports given to the public of the aiming returned to Washington to report to Colonel Flagwill, chief of military intelligence. Flagwill stated that forces were reported missing in the Mediterranean and the Far East. That night Fort Houston, Texas, was heavily bombed. Now continue with the story.

Benning leaned tensely forward as if to add his tension to the speed of the cab. The radio screamed on. From time to time the announcer asked that no more telephone calls be attempted. Information would be given to all over the air as fast as received.

Then—

"An enemy air force of undetermined strength is reported flying north, its objective may be Washington or New York. All persons are cautioned not to gather in crowds. Please remain calm and stay where you are. It may be that nothing will happen—"

His cab swung to the curb at the Munitions Building, Benning hurried inside. The corridors rang with the chatter of typewriters. Army officers of various rank were glued over desks or assembled in section conference groups as they slaved over the staggering details of the job ahead of them.

Colonel Flagwill was in his office alone. Benning found his chief lolled back in a chair with heels laid absurdly on top of his desk. He was puffing composedly at a cigarette, his face relaxed.

"Hello, Benning," Flagwill said laconically. "How you feeling?"

Benning said, "Well, sir, I heard the news and thought I ought to report in case you need me for anything."

The colonel stretched himself. "You know, Benning, I saw it had to come, and I feel better now we've got it on our hands. All we need is the President's word to start general mobilization of the Army and National Guard. As soon as the Chief gets back from the White House we'll be in motion." Flagwill indulged a sardonic smile. "Not that our mobilization will do any immediate good to save the country a lot of headaches. But it'll be a start."

"What's the news about bombers headed this direction?"

"Our air staff is divided on whether Van Hassek has any bombers that can make Washington and back to Mexico without refueling. But—my own idea—they could have an emergency landing-place somewhere along the way, couldn't they? It'd work this once, anyhow."

"Then there may be a real air threat, sir?"

"I urged General Hague to get the President to leave the White House and go over to Chevy Chase for the night," Flagwill averred. "At least to set up in less vulnerable quarters in Washington. There's no use pretending a fool's paradise in this country any longer, Benning. Anything can happen now."

A major from the chief of air service banged into the room, his face ashen, though he spoke collectedly.

"We've picked up what appears to be confirmation, Colonel," the major reported. "As near as can be made out a squadron of seven bombers, with an undetermined force of smaller ships, passed over North Carolina a short time ago. Speed estimated at two hundred miles per hour. Our best time calculations suggest that they could cross the Potomac in approximately two hours, if this is their objective."

"Very good, Major, keep me informed," Flagwill answered, without change of posture or position.

He stretched himself again and casually lit another cigarette. Then he swung his feet to the floor and pulled himself up to his desk.

"I've found a couple of good spy leads, sir," Benning interposed.

"Would you care to hear my report?"

"Not right now," Flagwill said decisively. "I've just had a few minutes' relaxation—now for the toughest decision I ever tackled. I've got to have my estimate of this whole tangled situation ready for General Hague by midnight."

"Now you get out among your spies—or you might take a look-see at what our anti-aircraft does for itself. But report to me here at midnight. I may want you to sit in at the chief's conference."

Benning took a taxicab and drove to a point near the Washington Monument where 50 caliber Brownings were setting up to look after attack on smaller ships that might venture within machine-gun range if the assault on Washington materialized.

The gun batteries and searchlights had been turned across the Potomac into Virginia to catch raiding bombers before they reached the bomb-release line from which they would lay their eggs of destruction as they approached Washington. The searchlights were echeloned, a full complement of fifteen lights, five thousand yards beyond the city. The technical sections with their sound locators effective up to eleven thousand yards, and their intricate systems and instruments for raking the skies, were perfecting their plans of such defense as a single regiment, at peace strength and short two gun batteries, would be able to give the nation's capital.

Three Signs Which Point To Flat Feet

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

YOU read so much about weak flat feet that when you have the slightest pain in the feet you may wonder if you need arch supports and perhaps straightaway purchase a pair. Now, arch supports are of great help when they are needed as they make it possible for these individuals to earn a living and get about for business and pleasure.

However, the wearing of arch supports should be left until it is definitely known that they are really needed and when measures to correct the arches have failed.

We should realize that the foot is an organ of the body just as is the stomach or heart and the cause of any ache or discomfort should be investigated. Infected tonsils or teeth can cause pain in the joints and tendons of the foot just as in other joints—wrist, knee or shoulder. Infection can cause pain in a flat foot; treatment of the foot itself may give little or no relief.

What are the signs of a flat foot? There are three outstanding signs that the patient can see for himself:

1. He stands on a large sheet of white paper and outlines his feet with a pencil. If left foot is flat, the inner side is down on the floor and bulges to right. If the right foot is flat, inner side bulges to left. In the normal foot the arch of the foot is entirely off the floor, the left curving to left and the right curving to right.

2. If right foot is flat, outer edge curves inward to the left, instead of outward to right; if left foot is flat outer edge curves inward to right instead of outward to left.

3. In a normal foot, the large tendon which raises the heel bone upward off floor runs straight downward to heel bone. If left foot is flat, this tendon turns outward to left; if right foot is flat, this tendon turns outward to right.

Strong, well-ripened shoots of the previous summer's growth should be selected. Cut after the wood matures, but before freezing weather. Proceed in the following order:

1. Cut into pieces four to six inches long, with the lower cut just below a bud.

2. Plant in sand beds with jars placed over them, as described for greenwood cuttings, or in frames;

3. If the cuttings are not to be planted until the following spring, they may be tied in bundles with raffia, plainly labeled, buried in a box of moist sand, and placed in a cool cellar or buried with the tops down in the open ground, below danger of frost;

4. In early spring, plant in the open ground, deep enough so that one eye or not over one inch of the cutting is above the ground;

5. Take care not to injure the calluses that have formed while the cuttings were buried;

6. Sometimes better results are obtained by planting the cuttings in partial shade.

Roses grow well on both sandy loam and clay loam soils, but as a rule the best results are obtained from deep, rich soils, which are well drained. Good growth of stalk and plenty of bloom will usually result from soil which is enriched, at time of planting, with well-rotted cow manure. Mixed farmyard manures are satisfactory, but horse manure, alone, is the least desirable of all animal manures. Other fertilizers may be used, also, such as dried blood, tankage, fish scrap, cottonseed meal or ground bone. When manure or compost is used, it is advisable to apply a layer two or three inches deep, or even more.

As to cultivation, it need only be said that roses require clean cultivation, or, as an alternative, must be well mulched.

For slugs, caterpillars and beetles, the following spray is recommended; three teaspoonfuls of lead arsenate to one or two ounces of soap, to one gallon of water. (NOTE: Lead arsenate is a dangerous poison and must be handled with care.)

For sprays, spider mites, and aphids, with a solution of one to two teaspoonfuls of nicotine-sulphate, one to four ounces of soap, and one gallon of water.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—What causes pernicious anemia and how could it be prevented?

A.—Generally speaking, ordinary anemia is a decrease in the iron in the red cells of the blood. Pernicious anemia is a decrease in the iron and also in the number of cells.

Q.—Do you know of any cure for lateral amyotrophic sclerosis?

A.—There is no known cure for lateral amyotrophic sclerosis, hardening of certain parts of the spinal cord.

Q.—I. What would cause a slight swelling, little pain and extreme burning sensation around ankle which has never been injured? 2. Is there any cure for phlebitis?

A.—1. Pain in ankle not due to injury may be due to arthritis. Consult your physician and dentist. 2. Rest is usual treatment for phlebitis. Exercise without putting weight on legs—bending and straightening knees, raising legs and lowering them, may prevent development of phlebitis. Walking and then putting legs up after walking is sometimes prescribed.

COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD DRESSING

Add a half cupful of cottage cheese to a thick mayonnaise made in the usual quantity of oil and eggs, and mix thoroughly. Such a dressing will keep for a considerable time without separating.

THE BOMBARDIER BEETLE

This little beetle, like the polecat or skunk, carries at the rear of its body a little sack filled with a foul-smelling liquid which it squirts on its enemies.

RENOVATING AN OLD LAWN

If the lawn presents a fairly even distribution of grass it can usually be renovated. Fertilize it liberally and top-dress with one-quarter to three-eighths of an inch of rich garden soil, or a compost made of equal parts of topsoil, sand and manure.

FARMSTEADS NEED ATTENTION

The appearance of the farmstead is a criterion of the success of the farm business. It always pays to make the farmstead attractive.

LEAVES from Uncle Sam's Notebook

Roses From Rose Cuttings

If you desire new bushes from your own stock, or if your neighbor has a desirable rose and will let you take a few cuttings from the plant, proceed as follows:

For Greenwood Cuttings: The base of a flowering shoot after the flower has fully opened is in good condition for a greenwood cutting; wood, equally mature, from a non-flowering shoot is also suitable.

Order of Procedure: 1. With a sharp, thin-bladed knife, cut a piece from three to six inches long, with three buds, making the incision close below the lower bud and any distance above the upper bud;

2. Remove the lower leaves; leave the top one on. All leaflets except two should be cut away to reduce the amount of leaf surface exposed to the air;

3. Drop the cuttings, as made, into water or wrap in moist paper for protection;

4. Plant immediately in sand or light loamy soil, setting about an inch apart and deep enough so that the top bud and leaves just protrude from the soil;

5. Pack the sand closely around them, particularly at their lower ends;

6. Water them thoroughly after planting, and enclose, to keep the leaves from wilting. A coldframe or spent hotbed is suitable for rose cutting if the glass is shaded or if a cheesecloth-covered frame is used in place of glass.

In handling only a few cuttings, many persons successfully invert fruit jars or glass dishes over them;

7. As the cuttings begin to absorb moisture, admit a little air to coldframe or jar to prevent the growth of mold and fungi;

8. In frames, frequent spraying should be given; under jars, this is not necessary;

9. When roots have formed freely, transplant the plants to good soil, water well, and shade from the midday sun for a few days;

10. Water moderately until the plants are well established.

For Hardwood Cuttings: Strong, well-ripened shoots of the previous summer's growth should be selected. Cut after the wood matures, but before freezing weather. Proceed in the following order:

1. Cut into pieces four to six inches long, with the lower cut just below a bud;

2. Plant in sand beds with jars placed over them, as described for greenwood cuttings, or in frames;

3. If the cuttings are not to be planted until the following spring, they may be tied in bundles with raffia, plainly labeled, buried in a box of moist sand, and placed in a cool cellar or buried with the tops down in the open ground, below danger of frost;

4. In early spring, plant in the open ground, deep enough so that one eye or not over one inch of the cutting is above the ground;

5. Take care not to injure the calluses that have formed while the cuttings were buried;

6. Sometimes better results are obtained by planting the cuttings in partial shade.

Fertilization and Cultivation. Roses grow well on both sandy loam and clay loam soils, but as a rule the best results are obtained from deep, rich soils, which are well drained. County Agent Notes

CANKER WORM DESTROYING OUR SHADE AND ORNAMENTAL TREES

Many of our shade and ornamental trees are being heavily denuded and seriously injured by the larvae of the canker worm. Unless owners of affected trees apply a poisonous spray to destroy these larvae, many trees will die as the result of the injury done to them.

To control these insects apply a spray consisting of four pounds of lead arsenate dissolved in 50 gallons of water. A pressure sprayer such as a power orchard sprayer is required. Residents of Cedar lake, as well as in other areas of the county, where the infestation of these larvae is exceptionally severe, will do well to arrange to have their trees sprayed. Since these trees are private property they are the responsibility of their owners, and must be cared for by them. The county cannot assume this responsibility.

ORCHARD SPRAY

The "10-day" after-cure spray should be applied during the first and second weeks of June. Spray apple, cherry and plum trees. This spray is very important for curculio. Spray materials to use:

2 gallons of liquid lime sulphur, 2 1/2 lbs. of lead arsenate, 100 gallons of water.

COUNTY 4-H CLUB WINNERS

Eugene Binzen, West Bend, Route 2, and Norbert Dettmann of Boltanville were judged county winners in certain 4-H activities in Washington county during the past year. Eugene was selected as being best in the crops and fruiting contest and Norbert Dettmann was named winner in the farm accounting contest. Both boys will be presented with a gold medal at the 4-H picnic on July 17th. Congratulations Eugene and Norbert!

PABST FARM MANAGER TO JUDGE LIVESTOCK

Howard Capp, manager of the Fred Pabst stock farm, has been selected to judge the Holstein exhibits at the Holstein Breeders Black & White show on Saturday, June 21st. The committee in charge will meet at the county agricultural agent's office (West Bend post office building) on Friday evening, June 6th at 8:15 o'clock.

MANY FROM HEREBOUT PLAN TO ATTEND FARM FIELD DAY

A considerable number of residents in this area are planning to attend Farm Folks' Field Day on the College of Agriculture campus in Madison Saturday, June 7.

Dean Chris L. Christensen is sending out announcement cards bearing the slogan, "It means dollars in your pockets to know what's new in farming." He says the field day committee has selected an impressive list of practical new developments in farming to demonstrate.

Heading the list are recent findings of the Wisconsin experiment station that the correct amount of salt in a poultry ration will prevent cannibalism that vitamin C injections cure breeding troubles of cattle in a high proportion of cases, that ground corn makes a satisfactory preservative for grass silage and that certain new varieties of potatoes do not discolor after cooking the way older varieties often do.

Effects of the war on farming will be considered, with economists explaining the government's plan to increase production and support prices of such products as evaporated milk, cheese, eggs, pork, dried beans, and canned tomatoes.

Other subjects, according to Dean Christensen, include milk house construction, new methods of cooling milk, newly designed portable hog houses, and the use of trench silos to hold surplus feed. There will also be moving pictures on farm subjects.

A women's program will be conducted in the home economics building during the forenoon, and in the afternoon there will be a style show in Basement theatre.

Word comes from Madison that remembering the overflow crowd of 5,000 or more who thronged to field day last year, plans are to operate the short course dining hall on June 7, as well as a lunch stand and other refreshment stands. Those who wish to bring their own lunches may picnic on famous observatory hill.

County Agricultural Agent E. E. Skalskey is advising field day visitors to drive right to agricultural hall, where there will be guides to show where to park cars and to direct visitors to the places where programs are being conducted.

Let's Face The Facts

Someday this emergency will be over. Someday our boys will be back from the army looking for jobs. Factories will slow down, unemployment will be up, prices down. Taxes will be terrific.

Isn't it plain horse sense to save now for the time when the going will be rough? We don't mean for you to hoard but lay something aside now, while you can.

May we offer you the help of a friendly bank?

Making Our 'Flying Fortress'

One of the large cogs in the U. S. defense machinery is the Glenn L. Martin aircraft factory in Baltimore, Md., where the B-26, Uncle Sam's super "flying fortress," is being turned out in quantity lots. This is one of the most powerful airplanes in the world. These photos take you inside the workshops of Vulcan.

Wearing heavy metal shoes, a fireproof suit and a helmet that looks like a diver's, a worker pours molten metal.

This worker is using a bandsaw to trim a compound contour formed on a Martin drop hammer. The piece will go on a bomber.

There are two miles of wiring in the B-26. At the left we see a cross section of the tail section with equipment and gadgets being installed. Right: Like a modern Jonah emerging from a flying whale, this workman is coming from the tail of the B-26.

Mass production—1941! A line of noses moves toward the final stage of assembly.

The first step after one of the giant B-26's leaves the assembly line is to give it a thorough ground test. This flying fortress, destined for the U. S. army, is pictured undergoing such a test.

Below: Glenn L. Martin, with models of two famous Martin bombers of other days. On the table is the Martin bomber of the first World war.

Above: Wings for the Martin 167. Most of these 167s go to England, where British fliers call them "Marylands." The wings make a special package.

A new type mid-wing monoplane Martin bomber. Construction is all-metal monocoque. The landing gear is a retractable tricycle type.

Social Security Law

There is no provision under the social security act for the payment of a supplementary benefit in behalf of the husband of a retired female worker. In other words, the insured wife of an uninsured man may receive only the retirement benefit to which she is entitled in her own right, with no supplementary benefit as in the case of an insured man with an uninsured wife. This is one of the apparent inconsistencies of the existing law.

Home Industry on Farm

Hard-pressed farmers in various parts of the country are supplementing their incomes from crops by operating novel home industries in off seasons. In Arkansas, for example, is a resourceful farmer, Riley Miller, who makes his mule split shingles. As the mule walks on a home-made treadmill it raises and lowers a large knife that shaves off a shingle each time it drops. The mule thus produces 7,000 shingles a day which nets its owner a clear profit of $12.

Everything about the British air headquarters was interesting to the visitor, and he asked a never-ending string of questions. "Say," he exclaimed, "how is it that you have so many Scots among your pilots?" The guide, a bit fed up, snatched at the opportunity. "Well, sir," he said, "since the Scots have learned that every cloud has a silver lining, we can't keep 'em out."

Hmmm!

Grandpa—I don't approve of all this lipstick business. Art cannot improve upon Nature. Granddaughter—Oh, I don't know, Grandpa. Where on earth would you be without your false teeth. Giveaway "I know a girl who thinks her husband is simply wonderful," remarked the man. "Ah," murmured his companion, "so you've just come from a wedding."

ABSOLUTELY SURE

Teacher (lecturing on perseverance)—He drove straight to his goal. He looked neither to the right nor to the left, but pressed forward, moved by a definite purpose. Neither friend nor foe could delay him nor turn him from his course. All who crossed his path did so at their own peril. What would you call such a man? Graduate (quickly) — A truck driver!

Not Guilty

Master—It is awful the way my cigars are disappearing. Can you account for it, Charles? Valet—It is not my fault, sir, I assure you that I still have three boxes left from my last post. Honest Best Policy Mother—Sally, I saw you deliberately put your arms around Fred's neck and kiss him. Sally—Well, he had to have it somehow. He's too honest to steal and too proud to beg.

Answer Please

Teacher (lecturing on perseverance)—He drove straight to his goal. He looked neither to the right nor to the left, but pressed forward, moved by a definite purpose. Neither friend nor foe could delay him nor turn him from his course. All who crossed his path did so at their own peril. What would you call such a man? Graduate (quickly) — A truck driver!

These Changing Times

Kind Lady—What are you crying for, little man? What's your name? Where do you live? Small Boy—That's what's the matter. I don't know my name or where I live. We moved yesterday and mother was married again today. Thoughtful Wife Husband—The bank has returned that check. Wife—Isn't that fine! Now it's your turn to buy something with it.

MEN'S STYLES

While there will be no change of basic patents involved in men's clothing styles for 1941, and it will still be impossible to get in and out of this year's clothes the same as in 1940, this department's look-see into the situation has convinced it that there will be new touches to pants, coats and vests. If you expect to remain in civilian clothes, bend an ear: Colors will switch sharply from the loud tendencies of previous springs. This is due largely to the fact that, with the draft on, no male wants to be more conspicuous than necessary. Even males beyond the selective service age will prefer the duller hues on the ground there is no sense being an oriole during a bird hunt. Coats (jackets) and trousers (pants) will be roomier. There is so much going on and so much to be seen in these critical days that the ability to turn completely around inside a suit of clothes is paramount. Pockets will be cut much larger, but they will be cut much larger, tailors having awakened to the fact a man has to carry so many things around on him these days that a well designed suit of clothes must combine some features of a satchel, filing cabinet and old-fashioned desk. There was a time when pockets were expected to contain little except loose change, seat stubs, matches and an old letter or two, but with the changes in the social system, the war, et cetera, there must be ample pocket room for federal summonses, government notices, correspondence with various Washington commissions, lawyers' briefs, instructions on how to read tax forms and analyses of new laws, ordinances and regulations. In fact, the so-called "business suit" to be adequate today must have a loading capacity up to two tons, and there should be deep inside pockets for carrying records of conferences attended to date and conferences impending. In addition, a business suit should have room for at least a bottle of spirits of ammonia, a digest of latest congressional action, divers bulletins from the labor front and the usual vitamin tablets. (This is exclusive of room for old mutual tickets, data on mud horses, 11 or 12 keys which fit nothing whatever, chewing gum, odd crumbs and those letters you were supposed to mail a week ago Tuesday.) Designers of clothes for the well-dressed man have, however, been alert to the situation, and some of the best ones have put zippers on the entire lining of a business suit so it can be opened, filled and closed again, like de luxe golf bags. PANTS will be longer than ever, there being no demand at all for short pants in a season when the desire to seem under 21 is practically nil. BUTTONS: Smart tailors will feature bright buttons on men's clothes, possibly adding a few bells, reflecting the conviction that anything that will give a man a cheerier appearance should be provided. HATS, SHOES, ETC.—There will be little change in men's hats, but it is a year when a mug is going to feel particularly silly going round with a gay band and a feather. Men's shoes will continue to look like shoes and will permit males to keep their toes to themselves. Should they follow the ladies open-toe shoe styles it would be but a step from that, they feel, to wearing hats with their heads out and clothes with their bodies out. SUSPENDERS, jumpers, overalls —It looks like a good year for 'em. THE SEASON'S CALL Now that the ice has left the lakes And leaves sprout on the limbs, It's time to shake the girl who skates And grab the girl who swims. —Gridley Adams. RURAL APPEAL Ad men with gusto invite you to fight With various weapons the crafty termite: 'Tis now the homeowner hears this song and dance: "The chances are, kid, you have ants in your manse!" —John L. Stoutenburgh. Judging from the news that has been coming in throughout this war from all areas, one of the big problems when peace comes will be the transportation of captured generals. THE EXCEPTIONAL MAN Although my fame may not spread far I'm the first to pioneer, For I'm the first to drain my car Of alcohol this year! —Merrill Chilcote. "Senate Okays Imports of Argentine Beef."—Headline. "I thought we had enough of those Latin rumba dancers in the country already," remarks Edwin K. O'Brien.

Household Hints

Tea makes a good punch. There is nothing so handy in kitchen as a shelf above the sink for soaps, etc. Common kerosene will grease from the kitchen and remove that ring from the tub. Hard-boiled eggs can be eaten if the knife is first heated in water. When laundering clothes, use too much soap because it becomes so slippery that it "pastes" instead of penetrating fabrics. Offensive odors from sinks and drains can be removed by pouring in a string of borax and hot water. Covering uncooked meats in the refrigerator favors bacterial growth. A wire screen, galvanized or copper, can be fitted over tops of roof gutters to keep leaves and trash. If laundering water is set on the soil. If too hot, put your arm down into the water, but cannot leave it there for the heat, it is of the temperature.

Hand-Crocheted Hat, Bag Sets, To Be Popular This Summer

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

What dame fashion has given us this year is a hand-crocheted hat and bag set. It behooves every style-conscious woman to stop, look and listen to this very smart trend. The crocheted hat, a spool of cotton, or perhaps a spool of washable cotton—look-at styles may be right, use mercerized cotton thread. The star detail is somewhat military in effect, as so many fashions are this summer. Mercerized cotton thread was used also for the beret in the inset below. Note the colorful crocheted emblem which adorns the front of the crown.

Describing other attractive crocheted items, a prim little Gibson sailor is worth noting. It is crocheted of mercerized cotton in a firm, even single stitch and is so manipulated it keeps in perfect shape. A cluster of crocheted berries in self color is its only trim. Be assured this sailor is very good looking.

As clever a headpiece as any modern school girl would want is the "pigtail calot." It is really very similar to the popular schoolgirl "beanie" and is worn on the back of the head in exactly the same manner. The novel and amusing part is a long braid of yarn that starts from the crown center of the calot and dangles to the waist in back, just like a Chinaman's pigtail. To add more interest, the braided yarn is tied with a hair ribbon in school-girl fashion.

If it is a lace-trimmed hat you want, it may be crocheted in a lacy open-work stitch and when finished, starched very stiff.

Sports Fabric

After a long period of inactivity, sports fabric is making a comeback. It is a new and unusual sports fabric, because of its outstanding attractiveness plus its durability, may be regarded as a real "find" for women who are looking for a new and reliable material. It is a special twist in the yarn, a special process is produced—described as a splash effect. The fabric will be well liked because of the ripple effect that fashions it and its wearability. Note the variety it is styled, with the pleated neckline.

Picked Up in the World Fashion Centers

A new bathing suit, in the manner of the gay 90s, is made of cotton or taffeta with rickrack trimming. The little bloomers are ruffled to show beneath a fared skirt.

The addition of white to late spring and early summer costumes is done with a hat or with flowers that trim dark hats, with veils, in neckwear of all kinds, in the new plunging neckline or ruffy jabot blouses, and in covers.

New Cottons Make Fashion Headlines

Cottons are not news, but the cotton materials manufactured today are not only news, but front page news!

One of the highspots on the summer program of cottons is the suit of crinkly seersucker. At the races fashion-wise women are wearing these suits. The perfected tailoring of these suits gives them a thoroughbred air that is recognized at a glance.

Chambray is also gaining in popularity. Emphasis on striped chambray leads to such intriguing styling as the dress of monotone stripes. Matching hat and bag complete the costume.

A word about the new colorful denims and gabardines. The latest message is bright yellow denim for news!

In the evening cottons go forth in party frocks of gingham and flowered prints, and in peasant skirts with blouse or middie tops. This season's cotton sheers never were prettier.

Cotton Fabric-Type Lace Enters Fashion Picture

Lace is "all set" for a tremendous vogue this summer. Special emphasis is on a new all-over—pattered cotton lace that is so fabriclike that it is practical for dresses, redingotes and all types of summertime ensembles, including the suit tailored of starched cotton lace, either in white or colors.

Week-End Matchmates

Practically a complete wardrobe within itself is the five-piece matchmate cottons now selling throughout stores the country over. Very practical and very attractive are these ensembles made up of five pieces—pajamas or slacks, shorts, bra-top, butcher-boy smock and knee-deep coat.

A bride and groom completely waterlogged the first four rows of the Truth or Consequences studio audience recently; maybe you heard the shouts of consternation and laughter on the air. They couldn't answer Ralph Edwards' question—so the bride had to go up in a beaver-board plane hanging from the ceiling and throw paper sacks of water on her husband and football helmet. She scored four direct hits on her husband and gave the nearest spectators a shower bath.

GRETA GARBO has not only acquired a new hair-do for her next appearance on the screen—she's to have a new tint as well. It's a special one concocted for her by Sydney Guilaroff, Metro hairdresser, and he has named it "Moonlight Blonde."

As for the hair-do, it's Napoleonic—a fringe, with a soft point in the back, and "a studied shagginess characterizing the whole coiffure, complete even to forelock"; there's also the influence of the Botticelli paintings, shown in a cap of short curls.

Tim Holt, young star of RKO Westerns, and his father, Jack Holt, will be seen together with Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe in the RKO production, "The Marines Are Ready." They'll appear as father and son for the second time on the screen. The first time was 12 years ago, when Tim, a boy of 10, played the son in his father's starring vehicle, "Vanishing Pioneers." Tim is also a skilled polo player.

Tim Holt

Between the scenes in the household dining salon that you'll see in Paramount's "Nothing But the Truth," Bob Hope, Edward Arnold, Leif Erikson and Glenn Anders were amusing themselves by filling the crystal goblets to different levels with water, then playing chimes on them with silver spoons. The prop man nearly had a fit—seems the glasses were part of a dinner service worth more than $2,000.

"Send over to my house for something less expensive," urged Hope. "Our goblets are cottage-cheese glasses!"

Years ago Ruby Keeler was famous on Broadway for her dancing, in the days before she married Al Jolson. On the screen she danced along with other people; now she'll dance alone for the first time in pictures in a musical, "Sweetheart of the Campus," in which she shares top honors with Harriet Hilliard, Gordon Oliver, and Ozzie Nelson and his orchestra. Miss Keeler was a star at the Texas Guinan night club when a lad named George Raft used to stop the show with a skating Charleston.

Charles Boyer finished his work in Paramount's "Hold Back the Dawn" and took a train for the East; after a week's vacation he planned to go to Montreal, where he will do a series of plays in French, proceeds going to British war relief funds.

Virginia Weidler's become soloist with a band; she's spending all her time between her scenes in "Barnacle Bill" practicing in her dressing room. The band belongs to her three brothers, and has made a name for itself playing at country club dances.

Larry Parks, young Group Theater actor, played the Robert Montgomery part in tests with other actors seeking the starring role in "Heaven Can Wait"; as a result he'll have a featured part in the forthcoming Paul Kelly-Lola Lane "Mystery Ship."

If you've seen "The Lady Eve" you'll remember those slapstick falls of Henry Fonda's long after you forgot the plot of the picture. Preston Sturges, who wrote and directed the picture, is also responsible for "Sullivan's Travels"—and he started right off by dropping Jolson McCrea from a rope's end into a barrel of water. Furthermore, McCrea had to wear a tramp's rags and a five-day beard. Veronica Lake is McCrea's co-star in this newest of the Sturges comedies. They say it will be as funny as "The Lady Eve."

Marlene Dietrich has selected the five men who, she says, have the most "womanpower"—she doesn't say what she means by that, except that it's the opposite of "manpower." Anyway, here's the list—Clark Gable, Orson Welles, Ernest Hemingway, Erich Maria Remarque and Howard Hughes.

ODDS AND ENDS—Olivia de Havilland and George Raft are Warner Bros. star selections for "All Through the Night" . . . Olivia's sister, Joan Fontaine, has recovered from the flu and gone back to work as Cary Grant's co-star in RKO's "Before the Fact" . . . Herbert Marshall will play Bette Davis' husband in "The Little Foxes" . . . When he finishes "Bullets for O'Hara" Roger Pryor will tour the nation's draft camps with an orchestra . . . Joan Crawford gives what's probably the best dramatic performance of her career in "A Woman's Face" . . . Metro's doesn't star, Rise (Reese) Stevens, doesn't think her name unusual—her mother's is Sahah.

A bride and groom completely waterlogged the first four rows of the Truth or Consequences studio audience recently; maybe you heard the shouts of consternation and laughter on the air. They couldn't answer Ralph Edwards' question—so the bride had to go up in a beaver-board plane hanging from the ceiling and throw paper sacks of water on her husband and football helmet. REFRESHMENTS PLUS!

Summer nears. You think of lots of things—new, crisp, cool clothes . . . vacation trips . . . gardening . . . and yes, even parties, especially gay ones that all for a minimum of "home work."

I think I understand. You love to have people in your home. In spite of the warmth of June days, you want those of your friends who remain in town to drop by often for conversation, relaxation and refreshments. But, of course, you want what you serve to be easy to make, delicious, entirely different from anything that you've ever served before, and economical. In the last two of these points, I've found homemakers hold a unanimous opinion.

So today I'm going to give you what I think are ace-high ideas on easy entertaining. I'm sure you'll find the recipes worth trying.

Dessert bridge parties will do wonders to round up the "Mrs." crowd who feel free, after feeding hubby and the children, to don dress-up frocks and skip out for dessert and an afternoon of fun. If your friends don't play bridge, substitute another hobby, but the serving of dessert upon the arrival of guests can nevertheless be carried out.

Serving dessert when guests arrive gives the hostess lots of leeway. She doesn't have to keep in mind that her friends will be going home to dinner soon, as she does with later-on refreshments. And, she can provide a really filling dessert.

Pictured at the top of the column is a dessert which I'm sure will answer your desires. It's

THIS WEEK'S MENU

Dessert-Bridge Refreshments
Devil's-Food Pudding with Ice Cream Sauce or
*Orange Chiffon Cake
Mixed Nuts Mints
Coffee or Tea
*Recipe given.

1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 egg yolks, unbeat
3/4 cup granulated sugar
2 egg whites, unbeat
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons granulated sugar

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together three times. Add water and lemon rind to egg yolks, and beat with rotary egg beater until light colored and at least tripled in volume. Add 3/4 cup of granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating well with rotary beater after each addition; then add sifted dry ingredients, a small amount at a time, beating slowly and gently with rotary beater only enough to blend. Beat egg whites until they form rounded mounds when beater is raised; then add lemon juice and 2 tablespoons sugar, and continue beating until stiff enough to hold up in moist peaks. Fold into flour mixture. Pour into two ungreased 8-inch layer cake pans, stirring lightly while pouring. Bake in moderate oven of 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Remove from oven, and invert on rack until cakes are cold. Fill with Orange Chiffon Cake Filling according to directions below.

If it's an extra-special party you're planning, I've included a special dessert-bridge menu in today's column. You'll spend more hours in the kitchen preparing these particular foods, but they're so good that your guests' ohs and ahs will amply reward you for your efforts.

*Orange Chiffon Cake.

2 8-inch Cream Sponge Cake Layers
1 envelope plain, unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
4 eggs separated
3/4 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange rind

Make and bake the Cream Sponge Cake Layers, following the recipe. Meanwhile, soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Place beaten egg yolks, 6 tablespoons sugar, orange and lemon juices, and salt in double boiler. Cook while stirring until like custard. Add gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Remove from heat, stir in orange rind, and chill. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in meringue made by beating egg whites until frothy, but not dry, and folding in 6 tablespoons sugar gradually, while continuing to beat until stiff. Prepare cake layers for the filling by placing one layer on a cake plate; make collar of double waxed paper about 3 inches high to fit tightly around edge of cake; secure with pins or paper clips. Pour orange filling over the top of this layer; top with second cake layer; then place in refrigerator to chill until set. Before serving, remove waxed-paper collar from cake. To add finishing touch to top of cake, place lace-paper doily over top layer, sift confectioners' sugar over it, and remove doily carefully to preserve design.

LYNN SAYS:

In thinking of party foods, I remembered these few suggestions my mother passed on to me. Maybe you'll find them helpful.

To remove pecan meats whole, cover the shells with boiling water and let them stand until cold before cracking them.

Chocolate cakes usually call for unsweetened chocolate. This blends with the cake mixture much better if it is cut in small pieces and melted, rather than grated.

Rhubarb juice is a good substitute for iced tea as a basis for iced fruit drinks.

Wise to Make Furniture Budget

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN

It makes pretty conversation—this business of how a bride can get settled for a cool thousand or two dollars. But what an awful lot of brides this June want to know is how to furnish a pleasant living-dining room for about three hundred and fifty . . . furnish it completely and conveniently without resorting to makeshifts so they have to spend all those first glamorous years waiting for the things they need now. This idea of starting with one fine treasure and "getting along" with oddsments doesn't appeal to those who want to be comfortable in the meantime.

Well, we saw three answers to that problem . . . three gay and livable answers they were too. Each a variation of a basic room plan that lists the necessities and the prices to pay for each. This gives the bride a chance to express her own personality in that little home, and at the same time provides her with a guide so she won't get out beyond her depth on some alluring purchase.

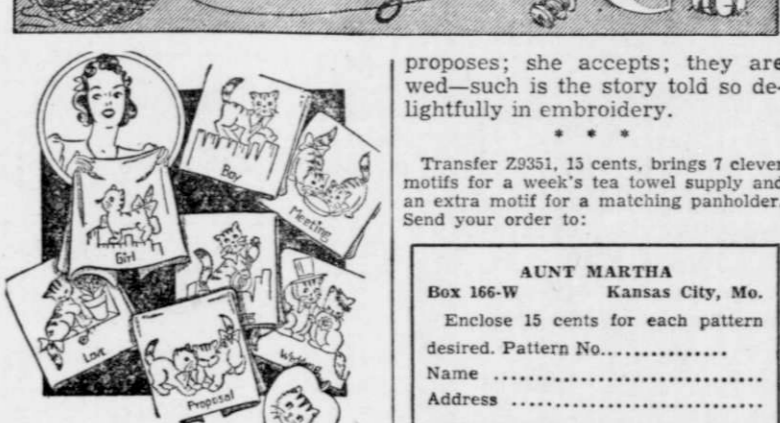

The Budget.

The fundamentals in this basic room plan are:
Sofa	$59.95
Four side chairs	27.80
Easy chair	29.50
Easy chair	24.50
Two lamp table at $9.95	19.90
Coffee table	11.95
Console that opens into dining table	32.50
Desk	32.50
Console chest of drawers for linen or silver	22.50
Occasional chair	19.95
Two table lamps at $5.95 each	11.90
Extra table lamp	6.95
Two pair draperies	13.90
Fringed rug	40.00
	$353.80

There now—who couldn't make a glowing little home with that budgeting!
