The car was critically injured and was completely wrecked. The driver's body was found in the wreckage. The car was a 1938 Ford coupe. The driver was killed by a skull fracture and lacerations in his face, arms and legs. The wreckage was removed to the Milwaukee Journeymen's hall on Thursday. ## Very Rev. Dean Ph. J. Vogt, Beloved Priest of Village Many Years, Dies Suddenly

Served As Pastor of Holy Trinity Catholic Parish and St. Bridget's Mission for 46 of 58 Years as Priest; Death Casts Pall of Sorrow Over Community

1859—Rev. Ph. J. Vogt—1941

Wednesday, Sept. 17, was a day of heartfelt grief for members of Holy Trinity Catholic congregation here and the mission church at St. Bridget's, as well as for all residents of the community. On this day the Very Reverend Dean Philip J. Vogt, venerable pastor of the two churches the past 45 years, and very highly honored and dearly beloved citizen of this village, was stricken and peacefully passed away at 10:45 a. m. at the parish home. Although he had not been in the best of health the past few years the end came suddenly and as a tremendous shock to his parishioners and very numerous friends. Death was attributed to chronic leukemia and the complications of advanced age. The Lord and Master summoned the esteemed pastor to his heavenly reward at the age of 82 years, one month and 23 days.

Not only in this vicinity did Father Vogt have many intimate acquaintances but he was widely known throughout the county and state. He was active up to the time of his demise, reading mass daily and performing the other duties of his priesthood with remarkable stamina considering his age. He first complained of pains the evening before his death and spent a restless night. Feeling somewhat improved the next morning he read mass as usual but not long afterward took a turn for the worse. Medical aid was summoned but a short time later Father Vogt lost consciousness and passed away.

Father Vogt was born July 30, 1859, at Kilmour City, Wis., at the Wisconsin Dells, the son of the late Philip and Louisa Vogt. He was brought up in a Catholic home and had good training. At the early age of 14 years, feeling the call to the sanctuary he followed the impulse of his heart and to prepare himself for his life work entered St. Francis seminary in the fall of 1873 to take up the classical philosophical and theological studies prescribed for the holy priesthood. He gave his heart and life to God in his youth when the call to the priesthood came to him. On June 24, 1882, he was ordained by the Most Rev. Archbishop of Milwaukee, Michael Heiss, D. D. and sang his first mass at Holy Angel's church at West Bend on July 5th. His first mass sermon was preached by the Very Rev. Dr. Otto Zordetti, professor of St. Francis seminary and later Bishop of St. Cloud, Minn. Father Vogt's first appointment was as assistant priest to the Rev. Father Holzhauser at St. Joseph's church, Milwaukee, also attending to the newly organized St. Michael's parish in that city, of which church he was the first pastor.

Before coming as pastor to Holy Trinity parish, Kewaskum, and St. Bridget's mission at St. Bridget's 46 years ago, Father Vogt held very successful pastorates at Granville, Theresa, Lomira, Professor at St. Francis seminary, Marytown, St. Mary's, Fond du Lac, and Platteville. He succeeded the Rev. Father Gromé here in July, 1895. His coming brought new united activity to the two parishes here. Under his able administration the beautiful new church was built and consecrated in 1905, the parochial school and sister home renovated and many other modern improvements were made. As pastor of Holy Trinity parish he also attended to the spiritual welfare of St. Bridget's mission church, reading mass there every Sunday and occasionally on week days, also maintaining a parochial school there when fire destroyed St. Bridget's church in November, 1931, he directed the building of the new edifice.

Besides scrupulously fulfilling his calling as a priest and pastor of his parishes, Rev. Vogt took a deep interest in the welfare of his congregations. During his pastorate here he accomplished so many good works that he will long be remembered by the men, women and children of his church for whom he labored unceasingly. He loved the work of the Lord and the word of God was very precious to him. His sermons were always excellently prepared and delivered in unctious of the spirit.

A day of great joy and jubilation for the members of Holy Trinity and St. Bridget's parishes was June 24, 1933, when Father Vogt completed fifty years in the sacred ministry and celebrated the golden jubilee of his ordination to the holy priesthood. The Reverend Father gave public thanks to God on his jubilee day at a solemn high mass surrounded by his many friends and relatives, friends, parishioners and citizens of Kewaskum. He was assisted at the mass of thanksgiving by Rev. Peter P. Schaeffer of Oklahoma as presbyter assistant, Rev. Roman Stoffel of Sheboygan as deacon, Rev. Clarence Stoffel, then of Milwaukee, as subdeacon and Rev. Aloysius Felenz, then a Theologian of West Bend, as master of ceremonies. All of the above priests are former sons of Holy Trinity parish and were guided to the priesthood by Father Vogt. The pastor also guided William Mayer of this village to his studies for the priesthood and he will begin his tenth year of studies at St. Francis seminary next week.

Up to the time of his death Father Vogt served as district diocesan dean over the Catholic churches in this district. Churches included in the district are those at West Bend, Campbellsport, Newburg, St. Killian, Barton and Kewaskum. He was the oldest active priest in the district.

Father Vogt is survived by a sister, Mrs. George Volz, of Milwaukee, a nephew, Rev. Cyril A. Volz, of St. Wenceslaus church, Milwaukee, eight nephews and four nieces.

The body lay in state at Holy Trinity parsonage from Thursday afternoon until Friday morning when it was taken to the church, where a children's requiem high mass was celebrated.

Rev. Aloysius Felenz officiated at the mass as celebrant, assisted by Revs. E. Stehling and Goebel of West Bend. Fathers A. J. Klapoetke of St. Michaels, J. Reichel of St. Killian and A. Biber of Campbellsport were in attendance in the sanctuary. Following this mass the body was left in state in the church throughout the day and Friday night, where it will remain until the time of the funeral Saturday morning, Sept. 19. At 10 a. m. the funeral mass will be preceded by the office of the dead which will be sung by approximately 100 priests, who will be in attendance. The solemn requiem high mass for Father Vogt will follow at 10:30 a. m. Celebrant at the mass will be Father Vogt's nephew, Rev. Cyril A. Volz of Milwaukee. Rev. Peter P. Schaeffer of Tulsa, Oklahoma, will deliver the sermon. The Most Reverend Archbishop Moses P. Kelly, of the Milwaukee Archdiocese, will attend the services. Burial will be made in Holy Angels cemetery at West Bend.

The members of the Knights of Columbus, Catholic Knights of Wisconsin, St. Francis Aid and Holy Name societies gathered at the church Friday evening to recite the rosary in a body. Members of the Married Ladies' and St. Theresa's sodalities also offered prayers, as did the children of Holy Trinity school. All night vigils Thursday in the parsonage and Friday in church were kept by men of both congregations. Six men were on vigil at all times during the night with two standing beside the bier steadily.

Pallbearers were Fathers A. Biber of Campbellsport, J. B. Reichel of St. Killian, John Gruenwald of Ashford, A. J. Klapoetke of St. Michaels, O. Winninghoff of Fredonia and Knoernschild.

It is with the greatest sadness in our hearts that we record the death of our spiritual father, friend and shepherd, Rev. Ph. J. Vogt. He was a man of God, if any people in the surrounding community and county were more respected, more beloved, more favorably known, no matter what religion, what denomination, everyone truthfully looked up to Father Vogt as one of the finest men who ever lived. Yes, tears are being shed over his death, extending even outside of his congregation, and these people were among the first to express their sincere regret over his passing. After all these years Holy Trinity parish cannot seem the same without Father Vogt. Many of his parishioners were baptized, received their first holy communion, were confirmed and married and some of these were even buried by the same holy father during his 45 years here. Many others survive to keep his memory ever sacred and dear.

Father Vogt cared nothing for the riches, pleasures or follies of this world but lived his entire life in the service of God, laboring and praying ever for the extension of God's Kingdom, for His greater honor and glory and his own salvation. Rev. Vogt had an intense sense of duty and always performed the tasks of his life work to his very best ability, sometimes against extreme odds. Fifty-eight years of his life were spent faithfully and honorably in holy priesthood. During these years he labored daily, with infinite patience and kindness in the service of his Heavenly Father, molding character by his own exemplary example. And there is but one thought in all minds, one feeling in all hearts, and that is, that all are sad to learn of the reverend father's leaving. Though we will miss him so much we cannot regret too strongly his passing, as such a glorious life of service, the labor of a lifetime, is deserving of its just merits in eternity.

More details regarding the funeral and names of the many priests attending the funeral will be published next week.

Home Canning

There is much to be said in favor of home canning. Lazy people say "It doesn't pay; things can be bought so cheaply in the market," just as the same lazy people assert that "it doesn't pay to make a garden." The facts, however, are otherwise. Fruits and vegetables and meats which might otherwise go to waste may be saved by home canning. Moreover, home-canned products are frequently more palatable, because individually seasoned, than are the market products, and they are always available. No matter what the sudden emergency may be, there, in cellar or storeroom, the competent housewife has at hand the wherewithal for a good meal. There, on demand, are meats, pickles, sweet relishes, vegetables, and fruits for desserts.

In the preservation of foods by canning, it is important to recognize the difference between the acid and the non-acid foods. In the first group are tomatoes, rhubarb, pickled beets, and ripe pimientos; in the second group are all other fruits and vegetables, and also meats and poultry. The acid foods may be safely processed in the oven, in a steamer without pressure, in a boiling-water bath, or may be canned from an open kettle. The non-acid foods must be processed in a steam-pressure canner at temperatures of 240 to 250 degrees F. Such temperatures can be secured only by 10 to 15 pounds of steam pressure. Therefore, for the sake of safety in the consumption of canned foods, it is imperative that the housewife have a pressure cooker. The use of chemical preservatives, so-called "canning powders" and the like, should be avoided.

Since some of the vitamin value of foods may be lost in canning, it is important to make the canning process as brief as possible. Fruits and vegetables should be canned as soon as gathered; meat as soon as killed. It helps in preserving the vitamins in foods to precook them for a short time, pack hot, and process in the containers. Liquids used in precooking should be used to fill up the containers, so that no vitamin-value may be wasted, and the liquid in the containers should all be used when the canned food is opened for use.

In buying a pressure cooker, bear in mind that the smaller ones (10 to 12 quart capacity) are suitable only for cooking purposes. Larger ones should be bought for canning, the size depending upon the kind of containers to be used and the number to be processed at a time. For example, an 18-quart cooker will carry, at one time, 14 No. 2 cans, or 8 No. 3 cans, or 8 pint glass jars, or 5 quart glass jars. For the average family a 25-quart cooker is better, carrying 16 No. 2 or 10 No. 3 cans, or 18 one-pint, or 7 one-quart glass jars.

STEPS IN CANNING PROCESS

Following are 12 steps to be followed in the actual process of canning:

1. Select clean, fresh, sound foods, in prime condition;
2. Prepare jars or cans;
3. Make the syrup for fruits in advance, so that there will be no delay when it is required;
4. Precook many foods, for a short time before packing into containers;
5. Pack, keeping glass jars hot, and packing quickly so that the precooked food will remain hot. Use a sufficient quantity of liquid to prevent too close a pack; work out air-bubbles with knife blade or spatula;
6. Exhaust glass jars by screwing covers on tightly, then turning backward a quarter of an inch; seal tin cans;
7. Process, at the temperature and for the time necessary;
8. Remove and cool. Glass jars should be cooled in air but protected from drafts. After they are cool, invert and inspect for leakage. Cool tin cans in cold water—running water if possible;
9. If any containers show leakage, open, and reprocess the food;
10. Label with name, date, and, if more than one lot is processed at the time, with the lot number also;
11. Keep at room temperature for a week or 10 days; if any show signs of spoiling, examine that entire lot; reprocess if necessary;
12. Store in a cool, dry place; protect glass jars from light to prevent fading of contents.

For extensive information as to the processing of fruits, vegetables and meats, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Farmers' Bulletin No. 1762.

HINTS FOR GAS SAVINGS SLOGANS

Harold Jekes has labored and come forth with a sticker, "I Am Using One Third Less Gas" as a terrific weapon in the drive to save fuel. Well, to this department it seems feeble, trite and ineffective, especially when dealing with human beings who have shaken off their real skin and donned the tough hide of automobilists. Nobody reads the stickers on a windshield, not even the fellow who pastes them on.

If they are to be used, however, why not put a kick in 'em. Something along this line:

"I Am Not a Hog, Even When in an Auto."

"I Wouldn't Cripple Uncle Sam Just for a Few Extra Miles of Touring."

The idea of tipping railroad porters ten cents per bundle or bag is now being denounced by both porters and railroads. DAIRYMEN INTERESTED IN ARTIFICIAL BREEDING OF CATTLE

Many dairymen in Washington and surrounding counties are fast becoming interested in the artificial breeding of their cattle, particularly dairy cattle. The East Central Wisconsin Artificial Breeding association, which includes Washington and five other counties, has been giving artificial breeding service to dairy cattle for more than two months. Co-operating dairymen are well pleased with the services they have been getting.

To give Washington county dairymen efficient and effective service about 1200 cows must be pledged to the association. About one-half that number have already been signed up. Sires of all dairy breeds are available to those who belong to the association. In order to employ a veterinarian in Washington county to do this breeding work, farmers interested in the artificial breeding of their livestock should sign up their cattle now. This will give the association time to complete the necessary organization on work before the cattle breeding season begins.

USE SODIUM CHLORATE ON FIELD BINDWEED

Field Bindweed, also called Creeping Jenny, can best be destroyed during the fall months by the use of a chemical known as sodium chlorate. September is the best month for applying the sodium chlorate. About four and one-half lbs. of the chemical should be applied on each square rod of surface area. Dry applications of the chemical is as good as other methods of applying. Some still prefer to dissolve the chemical in water and then sprinkle the water over the infested area. There is no special advantage to this method. The application of the chemical should extend several feet beyond the infested area.

If the Field Bindweed area is larger than one-half acre, methods other than the application of sodium chlorate should be used. For larger areas farmers will find it more economical to combine a rye pasture and fallow method.

This method consists of seeding rye in the fall and pasturing the following spring. Then cultivate and work the ground during the summer months. Repeat this for several years.

FRUIT GROWERS TOUR OZAUKEE COUNTY ORCHARDS

The new and the old in fruit growing and the fact that the southeastern Wisconsin can produce fruit ranging with the best from all parts of the country were highlighted in the annual picnic and tour of southeastern Wisconsin orchardists held in Ozaukee county on Wednesday of the past week. Viewing large orchards in which Delicious, McIntosh and Cortland form the chief varieties, observing the results of a well-planned spray program and noting other examples of good orchard management, the group went home firmly convinced that fruit is destined to take an even more important place as an income producer for this part of the state.

The tour and picnic were sponsored by the Southeastern Fruit Growers' Co-operative, an organization of 800 farmer and commercial orchardists in Washington, Waukesha, Ozaukee, Milwaukee, and Racine counties.

FRUIT GROWERS TO MEET

A meeting of the fruit growers of Washington county will be held in the county agricultural agent's office (West Bend post office building) on Wednesday evening, Sept. 24, at 8:00 o'clock, to discuss plans for an apple show which has been an annual event for several years past.

The 1940 apple show was held in the city hall at Hartford, West Bend was the scene of the show for the two years previous to the one of last year.

This year's fruit crop in Washington county is of excellent quality. The rains and wind of the past week caused considerable dropping of the poorer fruit and leaving the better quality fruit to mature. The commercial crop in Wisconsin is about 25% above the average.

Uncle Sam's hand-outs to farmers were $1 million dollars less for the first five months of 1941 compared with the same period a year earlier. The source of the farmer's extra cash is in the sale of his products.

Wisconsin's 473 mills in 1940 indicated a production of 190 million board feet of softwood lumbers and 240 million feet of hardwoods. Hemlock served as the greatest source of the softwood lumbers, with white, red, and jack pine coming second. Maple, oak, and birch were the most important sources of hardwood lumbers.

IN REMEMBRANCE

In fond and loving memory of our dear departed husband, father and grandfather, John A. Schulz, who passed into eternal sleep one year ago, Sept. 21st, 1940:

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled,
The boon his love had given,
And though the body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.
Sadly missed by his wife, children and grandchildren.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Attacks on U. S. Ships in West Atlantic Termed Acts of Piracy by the President; Orders Navy to Shoot Any-Axis Raiders In Waters Held to Be Out of War Zone

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

When news was flashed that the U. S. freighter Steel Seafarer had been sunk in the Red Sea, the war came home to more than one family in the U. S. Here you see Mrs. Rose McCade in Jersey City and members of her family eagerly listening to bulletins which finally told them that her husband, Alexander McCade, and the rest of the crew of 35 had been rescued by passing ships.

INCIDENTS: Piling Up

Incident was piling on incident when President Roosevelt in a radio broadcast heard all over the world declared German attacks on American ships, twice on U. S. warships, as acts of piracy and ordered the U. S. navy to shoot first when sighting any of the Axis submarines or surface raiders in the western Atlantic. The President in vigorous fashion declared for the freedom of the seas and announced ships of any flag would be given protection when plying their peaceful trade in waters which the President maintained were not in the war zone. The incidents, the President stated, were plainly calculated by Hitler as part of his plan to control the seas as well as land areas by a series of aggressions. The President vigorously assailed obstructionists who would lull the nation with any false thought that with the British navy gone we could possibly be a match against the Axis navies.

To the Greer affair was added the sinking of the Sessna, a former Danish ship, and the Steel Seafarer, an American vessel, the latter carrying lease-lend aid to the British Middle East command.

All but three of the crew aboard the Sessna were drowned, and the vessel, it was said, carried no war materials whatever, solely food and other supplies for the Danish government of Iceland. The sinking took place prior to the Greer affair, and was only announced following the picking up of the survivors.

The Steel Seafarer was sunk in the Red sea, and all hands were saved, but only by their own brisk action in difficult straits. The vessel, according to survivors, was sunk by a heavy-caliber aerial bomb, perhaps an aerial torpedo.

The explosion, which would be heard for 10 miles, tore open the starboard plates of the ship amidships, and sent her to the bottom so swiftly that the captain's boat only left the side two minutes before the doomed ship took her final plunge.

Members of the crew said it was impossible that the boat could have been mistaken for British, for the American flag was flying in the vessel's floodlights, and she was not in convoy, traveling alone.

The import of the loss was considered trifling, being less than 2 per cent of the lease-lend aid sent to the Middle East so far. That would roughly place the amount of this aid at 50 shiploads. It was a typical general lend-lease cargo.

Two Americans were lost on the Sessna, but in the President's recapitulation of the events for which he intends to hold Nazi Germany strictly accountable he cited five American-owned ships sunk presumably by German action, and at least 65 American citizens who suffered loss of life in the sinking of the American and other vessels.

Many felt that the recent three incidents, coming so close together, might have been the result of an order from Hitler for an "all-out effort" against the American lend-lease campaign, as Hitler might be fearing the effect of an all-winter war with Russia.

In this event, it was felt, he might be afraid that the U. S. would strengthen Britain's hand so much in the interim that a successful military move against the British would be impossible for all time, thus making victory for Germany well-nigh hopeless.

GERMANY: A Warning

After first stating positively that the Greer was the aggressor in the battle with a German submarine in the waters off Iceland, Germany issued finally a flat warning that all ships, of whatever nationality in her war zones were "subject to attack without warning."

This was similar to the warning issued in the last war which brought about the sinking of the Lusitania and a definite American demand for entry into the war.

The state department in Washington at the same time lifted its restrictions and said it would permit American citizens journeying from Britain and the United States to travel on "belligerent ships."

The Nazis said that there was no use talking about a general order to attack American ships. They said the only general order was to attack all shipping.

They added that they considered President Roosevelt's dictum that the Red Sea constituted neutral waters, and that American-flag ships could navigate there was "provocative" and constituted a "provocation" to the Germans and Italians to attack such ships.

SPY: Thrills in Trials

The expected thrills in the spy trials in New York, in which 16 persons are accused with having taken part in espionage on behalf of Germany against the United States, panned out early in the case.

FBI witnesses revealed that the German spy system had been tricked for months. The G-men built a radio station on Long Island, arrangements having been made through an informer, entirely at the request of the Germans for a quick method of getting information.

For months the station operated, "kidding" the Nazis with false information about the army, navy and air force. However, all the victories of wits were not on the American side. For one witness testified that, thinking to make his German masters happy, he offered to steal plans of the secret American bomb-sight and send them over. His "higher-up" told him:

"You needn't worry yourself. It already is in our hands."

STRIKE: Halted by F. D. R.

The railroad strike, which had seemed imminent, and which would have thrown the entire defense production structure into a turmoil, was at least temporarily halted by President Roosevelt, who personally set up a five-man mediation board.

Fourteen non-operating unions had voted to walk out September 11, and four days later the big five brotherhoods had decided to quit work.

Legally this put the strike in mothballs for 60 days. The Railway Labor act stipulates that the President's board has 30 days in which to examine the evidence, and another 30 days in which to make its report.

During this 60-day period the workers are under obligation not to leave their jobs.

Though this single strike threatened in this country, the general labor situation was completely quiet. Germany was having more serious labor troubles in the occupied countries, with sabotage rampant in France, and a state of civil siege being declared for the port of Oslo, Norway.

The Nazis cracked down on the civilian population again, declared Communists among the labor unions were preparing to strike, and ordered that no Norwegians could appear on the streets between 5 p. m. there after the fall of France.

Way Up North

Map shows the Spitzbergen Islands, also known as Svalbard, in the Norwegian archipelago, successfully raided by British and Norwegian forces under Canadian command.

SPITZBERGEN: A Coup

Though censorship hid from the public many of the details, the British invasion of Spitzbergen, group of islands close to the Arctic circle, undoubtedly was a coup of considerable industrial and military importance.

It gave the British another base threatening German-occupied Norway, also important coal mines, and more important still, willing workers to go to England and aid in the operation of British mines.

It also freed several French officers and men who had escaped there after the fall of France.

When the British warships hove into the Spitzbergen harbor, these French came out in their small boats, and some of them were seen to kiss the war-painted side of the big transport.

One grizzled captain, former commander of a tank battalion, said:

"For 14 months we were dead men. Britain and Canada have given us new life."

All planned to get back to various fields where they could join the Free French forces of DeGaulle.

The military import of the far north was made obvious in the British commentary on the occupation. Iceland, Greenland, Spitzbergen, Vladivostok, Siberian ports further north, Petsamo, Murmansk—these are the Arctic circle ports which Britain believes vitally important. Most of them are in British hands.

The British have felt the effect of the Nazi control of Narvik, Norway, of Murmansk and other points of that nature, and still did not apparently realize it when the first Nazi victories brought them under German control.

Now they realize that the Far North constitutes a flank against the enemy, and the Spitzbergen adventure was in order to add one more strong point to the list already held. Short sea routes exist up in those regions, and may yet be used in the plans for British-Russian-American trade routes.

MOVIES: Pro-British?

The long-awaited probe of the movies and the radio as to whether they are carrying on pro-war propaganda brought sparks right from the start.

Senator Nye, leading non-interventionist, appeared as the chief prosecuting witness, and ran slap and headlong into Wendell Willkie, who appeared as counsel for the film industry.

Nye proceeded to list a number of films as pro-British propaganda, and then made the declaration that he had been informed that if Britain lost the war, a number of American film companies would go into bankruptcy.

He painted a picture of these companies desperately making pro-British and pro-war pictures, endeavoring to get the American people to take up the cudgels more vigorously, and thus to "save their bacon."

But Willkie countered by calling Nye's statements "wild and unsupported," and scored a telling blow against the witness when he charged him with "fighting a rear-guard action against the foreign policy of the administration, which the senate on more than one occasion has overwhelmingly supported."

Thus the former Republican presidential nominee in a few adroit words aligned the cause of the film industry with that of the administration.

LENINGRAD: Battle Technic

The Nazis, admittedly on the outskirts of Leningrad, and officially opening its siege, followed their customary technic of making general sweeping claims, and then being forced to contradict themselves day by day.

They announced that Leningrad was completely cut off by land from the rest of Russia on September 8, and two days later had to admit that this was a premature claim.

While the battle for Leningrad was actually in progress, the Russian communiques were almost entirely devoid of comment about the fight.

All the Russians talked about was their successful continued counter assault on the central front, the fighting in the Gomel sector, which is about midway between Smolensk and Kiev.

Apparently the Reds were merely attempting to hold off the Germans until King Winter clambered on his throne—figuring that the Russian winter starts by mid-October.

Washington Digest Billion More of Lend-Lease For Agricultural Products

But It's Some Job to Decide What Should Be Ordered Curtailed and What Expanded on Farms.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

By the time this is in print another billion dollars will probably be allocated from the lend-lease fund to buy farm products.

When word of this was impending the well-prepared legions of the department of agriculture pushed the button and started one of the biggest campaigns in the history of farming to turn the product of field and pasture, sty and coop and creamery toward their most effective goals.

These goals are the expansion of production of those products which are needed for shipment to England, for commercial export and for home use. And it takes a nice eye and a sharp pencil to figure out in advance what products to curtail so the farmer will come out right with enough to sell and yet without a glut on his hands.

Of course, milk and poultry products are high on the list of British needs. There are pork products, too. And all edible fats. And meat.

We have to have enough meat for home consumption, of course, and that has to be figured in, and when it comes to fats we face a possible shortage at home because imports are cut off. Take coconut oil. Normally, we use tons of that and we are not getting it now.

A series of meetings of members of the department of agriculture and other employees of state agriculture organizations and others started with the September 1 gathering in Salt Lake City. Then they moved eastward—September 18 in Chicago, on the twenty-second in New York and one in Memphis on the twenty-eighth.

These meetings are designed to instruct those who will go out and contact the farmers with regard to the need for expansion of production in certain lines, and the curtailment in certain others. It has taken a long time to find out just what Great Britain needs from us. But Undersecretary of Agriculture Paul Appleby and Triple A Administrator R. M. Evans have been in England for some time and they have managed to get together with the British food ministry and iron things out. Meanwhile, the experts here have been figuring out just what we need for ourselves and for commercial export and as well as the farm capacity to fill the need.

A Few on Platform

Long before it is time for the special train to pull out of Union station a few favored citizens are on the platform. The secret service has been busy. A special police detail is waving cars away from the south entrance to the waiting room reserved for special parties. A whole crew of railroad men, detectives and others whose functions are mysterious to the layman are hurrying about.

The newsmen who are to accompany the President on the trip arrive and take their places in the dining car. This car is the busiest on the train. The genial Clarence Queen, dusky chef, has a well-stocked larder.

The President won't use the diner tonight. It is nearly 11 and a secret service man comes up and whispers in the ear of William Hassett, the secretary who usually accompanies the President to Hyde Park and Secretary Early holds the fort in Washington.

Hassett hurries off. In a few moments a limousine drives right up to the private car. It stops opposite the ramp which has been set up from the floor to the platform of the car. The President, without ceremony of any kind, makes his way up the ramp alone. There will be a last word with Hassett, perhaps a lemonade, and the presidential valet will be called to the compartment. The secret service men will take up their vigil. The train pulls out.

Business Goes On. The lights in the diner and in the club car will burn long. There are some early morning stories to be written by the reporters. But in the President's car where the secretaries and other staff workers have their compartments, there will be silence.

Next morning the President will breakfast at his home in Hyde Park and out will come the brief case again. There will be trips around the estate, perhaps a picnic in which the newsmen and the neighborhood joins as they always do on Labor day. But between times there will be phone calls to Washington and frequently official visitors. Government goes on.

Members: William Knudsen, successful, efficient master automobile producer. Not so good at planning but he won't have to.

Sidney Hillman, successful labor leader, shorn of many of his powers but free to do the administrative work he is capable of doing.

The secretaries of war and navy (Stimson and Knox) both Republicans, both with competent, co-operative staff men under them.

Harry Hopkins, close friend of the President, hampered by ill health, able to say "no" to the President.

Leon Henderson: Here is probably the most controversial subject on the board. However, I have heard many who disagreed with him thoughtfully speak of his abilities with respect. He is a forceful figure.

Eight men with the greatest task of production ever put on any group of men in America. Upon their success or failure may depend the shape of the world to come.

The Business of Government Never Ceases. In the news room of the National Broadcasting company in Washington there is a bulletin board. About

The cans of vegetables which the army eats would make a pile nearly 9,000 miles high, according to the department of agriculture.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull has received an apology from the Japanese ambassador, Kichisaburo Nomura, who took Mr. Hull's hat by mistake.

According to the National Safety Council, the nation's Labor day death toll this year exceeded that of other years with a total of 600 casualties.

Already looking ahead to the post-war period, the National Resources Planning board has announced that its program of public improvements has been adopted by 52 cities in 19 states. Begun by President Roosevelt, the program is designed to provide work after the current defense boom is over.

Army Weathermen

As the weather plays a vital role in war, Uncle Sam is taking steps to insure a supply of weathermen as a defense measure. At the department of meteorology in New York university thirty college graduates are learning the art of "doping out" the weather before becoming members of our armed forces. Part of the training consists in operating a weather station on a 24-hour basis. These photos show how they work.

CORN ON THE COP... John Quigley, chief cop and campus cop at the university, telling the young weather experts that he'll be on the corn against all their gadgets as weather forecaster.

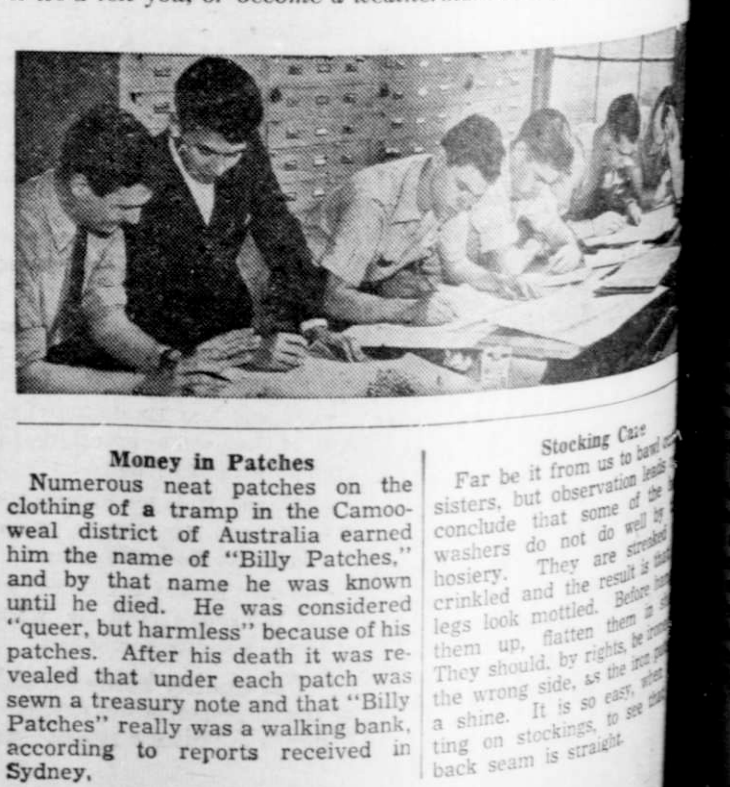

HIGHBOY... The gentleman atop the pole is adjusting the cup anemometer and wind vane, a device for determining the speed of the wind. Student weathermen taking observations. The balloon has been released. Its flight is timed with the theodolite, and observations are taken and recorded.

Professor A. Spilhaus explains the operation of a radiometer to some of the student weathermen. Attached to a balloon, it aloft to ascertain conditions in the upper air.

Now you'll have to take the prof's word for this. He is explaining equations of motions of atmosphere to the class. If we know more, we'd tell you, or become a weatherman ourselves.

Money in Patches. Numerous neat patches on the clothing of a tramp in the Camoo-weal district of Australia earned him the name of "Billy Patches," and by that name he was known until he died. He was considered "queer, but harmless" because of his patches. After his death it was revealed that under each patch was sewn a treasury note and that "Billy Patches" really was a walking bank, according to reports received in Sydney.

BRIEFS

Tokyo: A continued softening of the Japanese attitude toward the foreign policy of the United States was noted in the press generally.

Paris: The new cigarette ration has been cut from 180 to 120 cigarettes a month. Many American cigarette smokers used from 20 to 40 per day. Another restriction limited the number of Jewish doctors and lawyers in the city to 2 per cent.

Rio De Janeiro: Fritz Wiedemann, former Nazi consul general in San Francisco, expelled by government decree, who is trying to get a foothold in South America, was permitted to fly to Buenos Aires, and by that country to go to Chile. But his welcome in South America was dubious.

The navy will soon have the world's largest flying boat, which is being completed at Baltimore by the Martin plant.

It is said that ex-Chief Justice Hughes has refused offers to write for magazines and newspapers.

BRIEFS... by Baukhage

In Washington, the Institute for World Organization is meeting at the American university. Many persons connected with the League of Nations are attending. They are trying to find out why and wherein the League failed, in the hope of making practical suggestions for a new world organization after the war that will work.

Wendell L. Willkie, as lawyer for the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, takes the spotlight in big fashion. Isolationist senators are none too backward in jumping both on him and "war propaganda" films at a senate committee hearing.

Stocking Care. Far be it from us to bandy words, but observation leads us to conclude that some of the washers do not do well by their hosiery. They are stretched, crinkled and the result is that legs look mottled. Better to stretch them up, flatten them out, and wash them on the right side. They should be, as the saying is, washed on the right side. It is so easy to do. It is so easy to do. It is so easy to do. It is so easy to do.

XII. IN TIMES OF WAR

CIVIL WAR—The state of Wisconsin had a population in 1860 of 800,000, a tremendous growth from 1846 when the population was 155,277. Heavy immigration from Germany swelled the number of inhabitants. When the Civil War came upon the people, it found Wisconsin woefully unprepared. It had a state militia of only 1989 enrolled as follows: Infantry, 922 men; artillery, 198; cavalry, 104; riflemen, 765. There was little organization and little attention had been paid to drill and discipline.

According to the census of 1860, Wisconsin had 130,000 men eligible for service. Of these, eventually more than 91,000, almost 92,000 men, served. Wisconsin mustered fifty-three regiments, a company of sharpshooters, three cavalry regiments, thirteen light artillery batteries and one heavy artillery battery.

The fact that Wisconsin was a growing and young state was, no doubt, the reason why so many of her men served or were ready to serve in the war to preserve the Union. Many men enlisted from the logging camps of whom future communities built on the sites have no records.

Kewaskum, like other Wisconsin communities, did its share. The roster of remembered names who enlisted or were drafted and took part in the Civil War from Kewaskum reads as follows:

Aug. F. Backhaus, Frederick Behnke, Charles Black, William Colvin, Peter Dricken, John Haback, Christopher Haug, Tobias Haug, Christopher Klukas, Peter Kohn, Theobald Kohn, Fritz Koehner, Charley Meritz, Philip Metz, John Perschbacher, Simon Pfum, John Remmel, Frederick Schenhaar, Philip Schleif, Jacob Schmidt, Valentine Schmidt.

The first full company which Washington county furnished for the war gotten together in West Bend during September, 1861. Men who enlisted were promised $100 in gold and 160 acres of land, besides their regular monthly pay. (J. G. Gregory, Old Milwaukee County, 11, 1141).

On Saturday, October 5, the Union Guards and their friends, about 400 in all, followed an invitation of the citizens of Kewaskum to partake of their hospitality. When within half a mile of the village, they were met by the Kewaskum Home Guards who escorted them to their place. Speeches were made, and those wishing to enlist were invited to step forward. Strong, husky men came forth, signed the roll, and took the oath. J. Myers then offered the following preamble and resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, our fellow citizens and associates are enlisting under the banner of our country for the purpose of maintaining our government and the honor of our flag, it is therefore

RESOLVED, that we fully appreciate our obligations to them for the commendable course they are taking.

RESOLVED, that we pledge ourselves to provide for their families during their absence, and to faithfully look after the interests of all those who go forth for the purpose of maintaining our government and free institutions. (Ibid, 1142).

Vanished Men

BY GEORGE MARSH

Around the campfires in the Canadian wilderness men began muttering over the mysterious disappearance of six frontiersmen who had hit the Chibougamau Trail and never returned. They were in terror of Jules Isadore and his right-hand man, Tete Blanche.

But Garry Finlay, brother of one of the missing men, marched into the forbidden country with two others and Flame, his giant airedale. Neither bullets nor poison could hold them back. At last, scorched by the leaping flames of a forest fire, they solved the mystery of the missing men and brought retribution upon the murderers.
