

First Army Goes to 'War'

The hills and countryside made famous by Stonewall Jackson and many other famous Civil war generals have seen thousands of troops this autumn engaged in simulated warfare conducted by the First Army under Lieut. General Hugh A. Drum. These photos were taken during training maneuvers in the locality of Camden, S. C.

Mapping out training maneuvers for the First Army. Left to right, Maj. Gen. J. P. Marley, commander of 8th infantry division; Col. Sumner Waite, and Col. Gano.

Scout car crew speedily dismount as they contact the enemy.

Members of 13th infantry with full combat pack.

Immediately after soldiers of the 13th infantry went into action, planes of the "enemy" swooped down with machine guns wide open.

Getting taste of real warfare as they charge through smoke screen.

First assault boats arrive on enemy shore to set up bridgehead.

Under heavy smoke screen infantry men land on opposite side of Wateree river, after being conducted there in assault boats.

Mechanized cavalry charges through field at their objective.

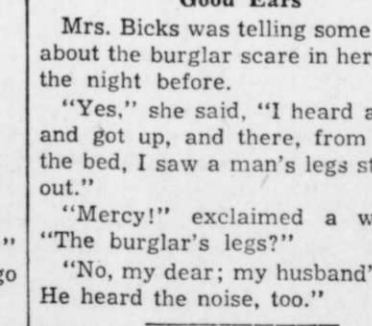

General Grouchy's Error
The error ascribed to Napoleon's General Grouchy in connection with the Battle of Waterloo was that Napoleon had expected Grouchy to engage the German army under Blucher, while he attacked Wellington. Grouchy fought against the German corps commanded by Thielemann at Wavre, which he mistook for the German army under Blucher. The error was costly to Napoleon, and has never been satisfactorily explained.

Light in Dark
"Where on earth is that switch?" You wouldn't have to ask this question, even on the darkest night, if you had one of the new electric light switch plates which glow in the dark. Made of plastic material into which luminous pigment is molded, the plates come only in ivory for toggle or push-button types. Single plates cost about 30 cents, double ones 60 cents. Five minutes' exposure to daylight or electric light completely recharges the plate.

RIGHT ANSWER
"Haven't I met you somewhere?"
"Undoubtedly, that is where I go on my vacation summers."

Good Ears
Mrs. Bicks was telling some ladies about the burglar scare in her house the night before.
"Yes," she said, "I heard a noise and got up, and there, from under the bed, I saw a man's legs sticking out."
"Mercy!" exclaimed a woman. "The burglar's legs?"
"No, my dear; my husband's legs. He heard the noise, too."

THE ANSWER
"How do you like your shirts done up?"
"With as few buttons off as possible."

Explanation
"And what did you say when your wife found a hair on your shoulder?"
"I told her the fellow who works next to me must have spattered some of his hair tonic on my coat."

Office Kid—Aw, I wasn't makin' much noise.
Stenog—You were, too. The boss was explaining to his wife over the telephone and I couldn't hear a word he said.

IMAGINARY DIALOGUES: MRS. ROOSEVELT AND THE OCD CHIEF

"Mrs. Roosevelt takes office as assistant to Fiorello LaGuardia, director of the Office of Civilian Defense."—News item.
Mrs. Roosevelt (making her first appearance)—Good morning, boss.
Mr. LaGuardia—Good morning. What can I do for you?
Mrs. Roosevelt—I'm the new girl here. Roosevelt is the name.
Mr. LaGuardia—Oh, yes. I remember. Let's see... just what were you to do?
Mrs. Roosevelt—You just said to report as your assistant.
Mr. LaGuardia—So I did! Well, are you all set?

Mrs. Roosevelt—I'm willing to give you all my spare time.
Mr. LaGuardia—Come, come! You'll have to do better than that!
Mrs. Roosevelt—Dear me! If it isn't one thing it's another these days!
Mr. LaGuardia—If it isn't ONE thing it's A DOZEN OTHERS!
Mrs. Roosevelt—I don't see how you get time to attend to so many matters in so many places.
Mr. LaGuardia—I'm puzzled about you in the same way. Gosh, I guess we are the four busiest people in America.
Mrs. Roosevelt—Four? There are only two of us.
Mr. LaGuardia—Let's not belittle ourselves!

Mrs. Roosevelt—I'm very anxious to get going.
Mr. LaGuardia (whipping out a bunch of timetables)—So am I.
Mrs. Roosevelt—I mean to get going here... on the new job.
Mr. LaGuardia—Oh, yes. My error. Let's see what the set-up is. I'm head of the OCD and I need help.
Mrs. Roosevelt—Fancy Fiorello LaGuardia needing help!
Mr. LaGuardia—It does seem fanciful, I admit. But I need a deputy and I thought of you, as the First Lady of the Land and such a great worker in so many causes, would be of great help.

Mrs. Roosevelt—What can I do that you can't do?
Mr. LaGuardia—Well, a daily column for one thing. And you have a radio sponsor, too. I heard you on the air. I went right out and bought some of that tea.
Mrs. Roosevelt—I spoke for a coffee program.
Mr. LaGuardia—Sorry! It must have been a bad reception on my radio set.

Mrs. Roosevelt—I've often wondered why you didn't do a newspaper column yourself.
Mr. LaGuardia—I guess the papers don't use that kind of language. But I've had a radio offer.
Mrs. Roosevelt—From a sponsor? Who?
Mr. LaGuardia—A cigarette company. It wanted some new noises for the Modern Design theme.
Mrs. Roosevelt—Are you going to accept?
Mr. LaGuardia—No. My doctor thinks I am doing too much already.
Mrs. Roosevelt—I don't blame him from worrying about the strain on you.

Mr. LaGuardia—That isn't it. He's worrying over the strain on him in worrying about the strain on me. To get back to business, do you think you understand just what our job requires?
Mrs. Roosevelt—Hark!
Mr. LaGuardia—What is it?
Mrs. Roosevelt—I thought I heard enemy bombers overhead.
Mr. LaGuardia—Excellent. You get the whole idea exactly!

CAN YOU REMEMBER—
Away back when people could always find out whether they were in a war or not without much trouble?

Vanished Men

By GEORGE MARSH

INSTALLMENT NINE

THE STORY SO FAR: Bound for the Wisconsin gold country, six men were on the Nottaway river. Red Isadore, Garrett Finlay, brother of one of the gold miners, half-breed guide, the six, and Blaise, half-breed guide, were on Nottaway posing as surveyors.

Finlay receives an anonymous letter suggesting that the six men were not who they seemed. Suspicion prevails that Isadore, rich fur man, has made a gold strike and aims to keep prospectors out of the country at any cost. The three men start out on the Nottaway, and visit Isadore in his magnificent home where they meet Blaise, his pretty stepdaughter. In response to her desperate plea for aid, Finlay meets her secretly. After she left, Finlay attacks him.

men start out on the Nottaway, and visit Isadore in his magnificent home where they meet Blaise, his pretty stepdaughter. In response to her desperate plea for aid, Finlay meets her secretly. After she left, Finlay attacks him.

"She was so natural!" Finlay shouted inwardly, "so terrible real! Her story seemed so straight. That was just the bait to catch the mouse! Poor Red and Blaise! How have I done to them?"

tim of clouds of black flies that hovered around him like smoke. What would they do? Shoot him or leave him to be stung to death by the flies and mosquitoes? Men had died that way in swamps. He heard again the crash of his .45, and his tortured lips twisted in a smile. It had been a fight while it lasted. He'd got three — perhaps four. They'd remember that! But the man he wanted, whom he'd promised Bob he'd get, stood there with a leer on his hideous face under his thatch of yellowish-white hair. He'd missed Tete-Blanche. Beside him were Batoche and two others, one a bow-legged dwarf with the darting eyes of a mink—Tetu.

lacerated skin and the throb of his head stopped him. "Sergeant Garrett Finlay, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, lost on duty! Lost neglecting his duty! I begged for the detail and I got it. And this is what I've done with it—walked into a trap with my eyes open! Forgot duty and a clean record for a lying cheat of a girl! Red, Blaise! He pleaded. "Forgive me for what I've done to you!"

From the fact that they had shot him on the beach, their intention was to take him alive. But he must think him armed or they would have waited. That meant some devilish scheme of theirs. "All right!" Finlay muttered. "We'll play it that way! That's a break!"

"How you like fly, surveyor?" taunted Tete-Blanche. "Mosquit he start to make hees music, soon, and you swell up like poison dog." There was laughter from the three breeds.

Under the lash of his remorse Finlay grew numb to the stings that were fast poisoning his blood. Then a sound back in the bush silenced him. Shortly he called: "Come and finish it, you bush rats!"

Some devilish scheme of theirs. "All right!" Finlay muttered. "We'll play it that way! That's a break!"

Finlay's face, neck and arms were stippled with blood. On his head was a lump left by the clubbed gun. His eyes were almost closed. Shortly the light would go out. His undershirt had been ripped open and armies of black flies stabbed at his chest with the thrusts of hot needles. He writhed with the torture as the breeds gloated over his misery.

They had returned. If he could only taunt them to cutting it all short with a bullet. "Isadore's handsome, white-haired fur comes back!" he jeered. "And the cross-eyed M'sieu! Batoche who was bitten in the face by a rabbit!"

He was plain, now, why they had taken him alive. Only Tete-Blanche would have thought of the flies and mosquitoes.

He was plain, now, why they had taken him alive. Only Tete-Blanche would have thought of the flies and mosquitoes.

Flame! God bless your old bones! You followed their trail from the shore! Boy, I'm glad to see your whiskered meek again!"

Mixing Prepared Paint.
AN OWNER recently blamed the paint for a job that was rough and uneven. As a matter of fact, the paint that he used was of excellent quality, and the fault was his own for not mixing it completely. When a can of paint is allowed to stand, as it will on a dealer's shelf, the heavier parts separate from the oils and collect in a dense mass at the bottom of the can. Before using, this mass must be thoroughly and evenly blended with all the liquid. For this reason, a second can should be at hand, as large or larger than the paint can. Much of the paint liquid is poured off into this and the remaining liquid stirred into the mass remaining in the can. When this has been softened, some of the liquid is poured back and stirred in, and this process should be continued until the entire can of paint is brought to an even consistency. For final mixing, the paint should be poured back and forth from one can to the other, several times. The paint is then ready for use. Instructions on the label for the possible thinning of the paint should be carefully followed.

Cleaning Enameled Fixtures.
Stains on the enamel of a washbasin, sink, bathtub, or other plumbing fixture should not be rubbed with steel wool or any other harsh abrasive, for the glass-like surface would be dulled and roughened, and would then stain more easily. Neither should acids, or strong alkalis of the kind used as drain cleaners, be applied to the enamel, for the effect might be to eat the enamel and to destroy it completely. One safe method for removing stains is continued rubbing with a scratchless cleaning powder moistened with kerosene. A special cleaning powder can be had at a dime store or from a plumber, and one of my correspondents reports complete success by mixing this with borax before adding water to make a paste. The success of these cleaners depends on continued rubbing. Many stains can be taken out with a bleaching liquid. The fixture is filled with water to above the level of the stain, a cup or more of bleaching liquid is added, and the mixture allowed to stand for several hours or overnight.

Crack in a Table Top.
Question: What is your recipe for filling rather bad cracks in the top of a fine old cherry drop-leaf table, otherwise quite perfect? I do not hope to conceal the fact that the cracks were present, but I do want to fill them with something that will stick and not shrink.

Answer: If the table is really valuable, I should have an expert cabinet maker do the job. But if you wish to do it yourself, get strips of cherry wood, cut them to fit snugly, and glue them in. Another way is to get fine sawdust, preferably of cherry-wood, make into a paste with spar varnish, and pack into the crack, filling it to the top. Press some dry sawdust on top to take up any exposed varnish. When dry, rub smooth with very fine sandpaper. If you cannot get cherry-wood sawdust, use any fine sawdust and color with a small quantity of mahogany or cherry oil stain, mixing it in the varnish before making the paste. You will have to experiment to get the proper shade.

Dull Black Marble.
Question: I have a beautiful black marble fireplace in my home; but it is very dull and the beauty of the marble is gone. No amount of elbow grease or the usual cleaning compounds do any good. Can you recommend anything?

Answer: The polish can be restored by long rubbing with water and putty powder applied with a damp felt pad or a piece of an old felt hat. Hard rubbing will be needed. You can get the putty powder at a monument or marble yard. Or you can engage a marble contractor to come to the house and do the job for you.

Protecting Windows.
Question: Does pulling down window shades help to keep a room warm?

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Allow mud stains to dry, and then brush off.

Lard has the greatest shortening power of any of the plastic edible fats.

Use a clean sheet of wrapping paper to roll pies and pastry on. It saves a lot of cleaning up later.

If a cloth is dipped in vinegar and rubbed over the kitchen stove before it is blackened, it will remove all the grease that may have accumulated on it.

For perspiration stains, use soap and warm water and then bleach.

When taking a pie from the oven do not put it on flat surface of a table to cool, but on a high wire rack. The rack helps to keep the crust crisp.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled,
The one his love had given,
And though the body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

U. S. Destroyer Is Torpedoed and Sunk While on Convoy Duty West of Iceland; Strike in 'Captive' Coal Mines Ended; 34 Are Killed as Two Airliners Crash

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Myron C. Taylor, left, former board chairman of U. S. Steel, William H. Davis of national mediation board, and John L. Lewis of United Mine Workers are shown as they left the White House after conferring with President Roosevelt on the strike of 53,000 miners of nation's 'captive' coal mines. It was shortly following this conference that Lewis announced that the miners had accepted the President's proposal for opening the mines and would go back to work pending further consideration of the issues under dispute.

SHOWDOWN: The Lewis Affair

The captive coal mine strike, in which 53,000 men engaged in digging coal out of the ground to supply the defense-laden steel companies laid down their tools, approached a showdown in the fight between John L. Lewis and President Roosevelt.

It has been an odd chain of events that has brought Lewis, once a close ally and supporter of the President and his labor policy, to the point where he had become, for the moment, Administration Enemy No. 1.

After a four-day tie-up of the mines there came a truce. Lewis, with Myron Taylor, former U. S. Steel chief and William H. Davis of the National Mediation board were called to the White House for a conference with President Roosevelt. Following this meeting Lewis called his district mine labor chiefs into a parley and then came the announcement that the miners would go back to work pending mediation proceedings of the dispute. It was declared that arrangement called for a 15-day truce with signs pointing toward a complete settlement.

TRANSPORTATION: Tragedies

After five months without a fatal crash the commercial airlines had a tragic 24 hours in which two airliners crashed to the earth with a death toll of 34.

First accident was that of a plane which crashed and burned in the fog and mist within a short distance of the Fargo, N. D., airport where it was preparing to land. Fourteen persons were killed with the pilot being the lone survivor. He suffered minor injuries and severe shock. Unofficial investigators indicated that ice had formed rapidly on the wings of his plane as he descended for the landing but a complete official investigation was immediately launched to find all the facts.

Twenty persons, all those aboard, were killed in the other crack-up when a plane bound from New York to Chicago plunged to earth and burst into flames near St. Thomas, Ontario. This plane too had been flying low in a heavy fog. No explanation of the cause of the crash was immediately determined.

WEATHER: In Moscow

The military miracle needed to save Moscow from almost certain conquest by the Nazi mechanized hordes occurred, and came in the form of a heavy rain which turned a sea of snow into mud and slush, and bogged the Germans down.

Prior to this the defending Russians had reported the pep gone from the invading forces, and that the presence among the prisoners of one-eyed men, soldiers with limping legs and other basic physical defects had been significant.

Most confirmatory evidence that something serious had happened to the German drive just when it was on the threshold of success came from the pen of Goebbels, ace Nazi propagandist, when he warned that hard weeks were ahead.

The rain was the crux of the situation, however, the Nazi official pronouncements admitting that roads had disappeared, blending into fields; that motor transportation had been utterly halted, and that the problem of supplying German troops at the front had become paramount.

The communiques turned from claims of advances and of heavy damage inflicted on the Reds into reports of "bold courage" of German troops in stemming counterattacks. Whether a wholesale withdrawal would occur was problematical, but the attack had stopped.

The Soviet defenders, it was admitted, had thus gained valuable time to recover from the psychological shock of the attempted capture of the capital, and were using it to reform their armies, further to fortify the approaches to the city, and to reorganize supply sources.

'Port Is Reached' ...

Among the first photos to reach the United States following the arrival in port of the U. S. destroyer Kearny following its torpedoing was the above one of Lt. Commander Anthony L. Danis, commanding officer of ship. Photo was made and released by the U. S. army signal corps and was taken aboard the Kearny.

LIFE: In Germany

Through a pronouncement by Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister, one had received a partial picture of what the Royal Air force had been doing to Germany and how life was changing there as compared with that before the bombing of the Reich started in earnest.

He said "I know you have it hard today. You must all work as never before. Your wives must sometimes stand for hours before stores in order to buy some vegetables.

"Your children frequently are sent into the country and separated from you for months. Sometimes you have to go without a glass of beer, sometimes without cigarettes.

"Then, because necessary hands are not available, you have to shovel coal. Then, at nights, go into air-raid protection cellars, and after two hours' sleep go back to hard work.

"That is the way it is in many cities of the Reich, and in some even worse."

JAPAN: More Restive

Nippon, chafing under the terms of American-British peace with Japan under her present policy was evidently becoming more restive.

The newspaper Yomiuri, writing of President Roosevelt's promise of full aid to the Chungking government, said:

"American aid to the Soviets and Britain is reasonable and acceptable, but support to Chungking, which is not at war with Germany, is inconsistent in view of the United States' aim of destroying Hitlerism."

"This promise of all-out aid may be taken as a direct challenge to Japan."

In the meantime it was reported from Shanghai that Japan, despairing of ever being able to build a real government under the regime of Wang Ching-Wei in occupied China, was now turning to a new plan.

The Japanese were seeking, it was said, to establish small new local governments. The first of these was to be set up at Kukiang with jurisdiction over three occupied provinces and part of a fourth.

LABOR: General View

Generally speaking the labor front in the United States was troubled, with several defense plants involved, and others threatened.

A machine-gun factory in Detroit was silenced by a walkout, with wages at the bottom of the controversy. There were 1,500 workers and they were asking a five-cent minimum raise.

There was a fear that three other plants of the same company in the Detroit area would suffer a sympathy strike.

The wages were $1 an hour for men on machines, and 85 cents for women. One of the union issues was the removal of the lower-paid women from the factory.

The OPM office demanded that striking welders in a Seattle shipyard return to work, and were met by the defiant retort that the request should come from the White House direct.

The welders' organization, an A. F. of L. union, stated that it had appealed three times to the President, and that the OPM had let them down.

This was an odd strike, because the basic point was said to be a charge by the welders that under existing union arrangements, they had to pay dues in several unions at the same time in order to ply their trade.

These were instances, but Washington was fearful that the whole labor situation was growingly touchy.

MISCELLANY:

WASHINGTON: The OPM had ordered the washing machine industry to reduce its output to a point 17.3 per cent below that of the 12 months ended June 30.

LONDON: The Soviet forces were reported to be mining the city of Rostov preparatory to a retreat further to the east.

ROME: A Yugoslav had been executed following the investigation of a ship sinking last February. The vessel was sent to the bottom by a bomb.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.) NEW YORK.—It was last August that Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby of Houston, Texas, became head of the women's division of the army's public relations bureau.

She said she would organize the division to tell women what they wanted to know about the army. Her success has been such that today her achievement is being nationally recognized as a bang-up score for women in the defense effort.

Mrs. Hobby is executive vice president of the Houston Post, and hence a specialist in telling people what they want to know. Newspaper women are happy in finding a government public relations bureau which offers some thing more than hand-outs in press co-operation. The post is important as a liaison between soldiers and wives and mothers.

She is 35 years old, pretty, slender, stylish, brisk and businesslike, the wife of William Pettus Hobby, twice governor of Texas. Her achievements in the above few years are such that they may only be briefed in the space available here:

In addition to running the Houston Post, she is the active executive of a national bank; director of a national newspaper publishers' association; a member of the board of regents of the Texas State Teachers' college, of the Junior League, of the Houston Symphony society and of the National Association of Parliamentarians.

She studied law, was admitted to the bar, codified the state banking laws, was parliamentarian for the Texas assembly for several years, was assistant city attorney of Houston, wrote a book on parliamentary law called "Mr. Chairman," which is used as a text book in the schools of Louisiana and Texas, syndicated a column on parliamentary law and served as research editor, literary editor, assistant editor and, since 1938, executive editor of the Houston Post.

In 1939, Mrs. Hobby was awarded the annual certificate of merit of the National Federation of Women's Press Clubs, for outstanding work in journalism. She was born in Temple, Texas, the daughter of an attorney of the town.

With all the above activities, she says she has had ample time for her children, a boy of nine and girl of five.

EIGHTY-year-old Rep. Joseph Jefferson Mansfield of Texas has made a career of planned river and harbor development and control. It goes back to his boyhood days in Virginia when he was riding a horse to the grist mill, with sacks of corn stowed fore and aft. When he forded an angry stream, corn and horse were swept away and he had a hard time making shore, with no end of trouble thereafter.

Then and there he became a flood-battler, ready to take on any undisciplined waterway, for its own good and the well-being of the commonwealth. So, naturally, in his 25 years in congress he has been chairman of the rivers and harbors committee. He's in form and in his stride today, as he contends that only river and harbor projects qualify as bona fide defense undertakings, and rate advancement in the "immediate construction" file.

He has been 54 years in politics, a resident of Texas since 1881, when he settled in Eagle Lake—city attorney, mayor, county attorney, county judge for 10 terms, and congressman. In 1926 he suffered a malady which cost him the use of his legs. He campaigned and won in a wheel chair and carried on in congress, from his special wheel chair stance to the right of the speaker's dais.

His father, a Confederate soldier, was killed in battle six months after his son was born. He battles valiantly for a sea-level Panama canal and for transportation of Texas oil eastward on inland waterways.

JUST before the war started, Vladimir Kyrylovitch, a son of the late Grand Duke Cyril, and pretender to the throne of czarist Russia, was working in a Diesel engine factory in England. He said he would learn and impart to his following of 2,000,000 White Russians the skills necessary to reclaim their homeland.

He was soon back to his Britanny estate and now news of his reports that the Nazis are encouraging him to believe that he might yet stage a Romanoff comeback.

In December of 1938 he paid a hurried visit to Berlin and there had several intimate talks with Adolf Hitler, and it was not long thereafter that the White Russians in Paris proclaimed him to be the "Head of All the Russias."

Young Vladimir is a handsome, pompadoured, rather solemn lad. He is a great grandson of Queen Victoria, through his mother, a sister of the late Queen Marie of Rumania. His father, the grand duke, died in Paris in 1938, when Vladimir was an undergraduate at the University of London.

Dirigible as Air Weapon May Play Important Role

Almost Forgotten Air Arm Gets Serious Study; Federal and State Agencies Team In Unique Farm Experiment.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

While Washington debated the question of arming American merchantmen, the British were trying out a new and hazardous means of protecting their precious life-line of supply from attack from the air. Fighter planes were being placed on the crowded decks of freighters to be catapulted off when enemy bombers approached. When news of this move reached Washington it woke a slumbering plan for an almost forgotten defense of the skies.

The heroic British measure is an expensive undertaking, for there is no way to return a fighter plane to the ship once it is launched. Unless the vessel is within an hour's flight of land the plane must land at sea and sink. Unless the planes can land near the ship in quiet waters, the pilots have very little chance to escape a similar fate.

"Arming" their ships by means of this suicide measure is an example of the risks the members of the Royal Air force are willing to take as their heavy share of battle and is evidence, too, of the extent to which the other arms of the British service have come to depend on these reckless knights of the air.

Englishman Tells Why William Courtenay, member of the Royal Flying corps, in the last war, flight commander of the R.A.F. in the present war, explained to a little group of American officers and members of congress in Washington recently why this step was taken.

"Just as command of the air won the battle of Britain," said Courtenay, "so command of the air is necessary to win the battle of the Atlantic."

Fire-power, he explained, is the essential in this war as it was in the last. Machine guns drove the armies of the last war underground and produced a stalemate which gave the British time to get their navy (and the United States navy) into action, break the German submarine blockade of the British Isles and blockade Germany.

To avoid such a stalemate again the Germans invented the panzer columns—high fire-power from very mobile units which ran the enemy down.

Thus Hitler won the battle of France, forced the British from the continent.

Then Goering began the battle of Britain. In Poland and in the low countries he had destroyed much of his opponents' air forces on the ground. He did this by surprise attack and because airfields were concentrated and the airplanes on them were close together. With the major part of the enemy fighters destroyed in Poland and in the low countries his bombers did their work without having to fight in the air for control of the air.

Luftwaffe Over Britain The Luftwaffe lost the battle of Britain because the British dispersed their own forces on the ground—separated the airfields, spread out the planes along the edges. That saved their fighting planes and fighting planes gave Britain superior firepower in the air. Because the bomber is built to carry a heavy load of bombs and gasoline to give it a longer cruising radius, it cannot contend with the more mobile, more heavily armed and armored fighter.

The fighter's weakness, of course, is the fact that its cruising radius is short. It cannot remain long in the air and therefore, "the crying need," as Courtenay put it, "is a long-range fighter." If Germany had had long range fighters the battle of Britain might have turned out differently.

One way of giving the fighter range is to place it on a ship, but few ships are equipped so that planes can land on their decks. The aircraft carrier is an attempt to solve this problem but the aircraft carrier is the most vulnerable of ships.

Rigid Dirigible Considered And so the attention of a little group in Washington has turned to an air arm which has been almost forgotten, the great rigid dirigible airship. True, 48 small airships have been authorized by congress for shore patrol duty and one has been completed, but the United States has no great dirigibles.

Capt. Charles Rosendahl has always believed in the dirigible. He was navigator of the first American-built airship, the Shenandoah, was the only senior officer who survived when that obsolete ship cracked up in a storm in 1925. Two more American airships, the Akron and the Macon, were destroyed, and then the German Hindenburg burned. This record discouraged almost everyone except Rosendahl. Today he believes that the airship would make an ideal patrol and air-forged carrier to supplement the other craft in modern warfare.

The airship, Captain Rosendahl says, can carry planes as easily as a surface aircraft carrier. They can return and anchor to her bosom. The great ship can spot submarines and mine fields below the surface, she can hover, even fly backwards, can drop depth charges.

Britain's latest step in "arming" merchant ships with planes may bring Rosendahl's dream to realization. Before the war is over we may see these great ships patrolling the sky-lanes once more, and the precious fighters tucked under their breasts, helping to solve the problem of establishing air superiority over the Atlantic.

There is always some starvation in the midst of plenty. With a record farm income ahead and prices on agricultural products going up there are still some folks who cannot make a go of it on the land because of circumstances which they cannot control. How federal and state assistance pulled some of these folks, through in two North Carolina counties makes an interesting story.

Up in the Blue Ridge mountains in Allegheny and Ashe counties, farming among the boulders has always been tough going. It is a question for these farmers of getting part-time, outside work or going hungry. The trees used to solve the problem, the cutting of timber and selling it or working for the lumber companies. But the trees have gone.

The farms are not big enough to rate loans from the Farm Security Administration, but properly run they could provide garden truck and grain for food and feed for their owners and pigs and chickens.

So the WPA stepped in, offered to give these mountain farmers from three to five months work a year provided the FSA would co-operate. An agreement with the North Carolina welfare department was worked out. Road building, a county office building, a hospital, needed conservation work, gave a small cash income to 500 certified families.

The farmers and their families did their part. They budgeted the money earned on the projects, improved their homes, water supply, sanitation, raised more food for their own consumption, canned an average of 300 quarts of vegetables and fruit for the winter.

The experiment was successful enough to interest the Farm Security Administration to plan further, similar projects in the southern Allegheny region, which covers 55,000,000 acres. There is plenty of conservation work that needs to be done in that county and the forest service is expected to co-operate.

The net result of this program is work for men who need it, better food, better farms. This type of federal and state co-operation may grow into a great post-war conservation program.

The Office of the Chief Chaplains has sent out the following order issued in 1776 by George Washington to the chaplains in the camps to support them in their arduous duties against profanity:

"The General is sorry to see profanity, the foolish and wicked practice of profane cursing and swearing, a vice heretofore little known in an American Army, is growing into fashion; he hopes the officers will, by example as well as by influence, endeavor to check it, and that both they and the men will reflect that we can have little hopes of the blessing of heaven on our arms if we insult it by our impiety and folly; added to this it is a vice so mean and low, without any temptation, that every man of sense and character, detests and despises it."

HERE'S TO BUTTERY FINGERS AND A TAFFY PULL (See Recipes Below)

CHILDREN'S DELIGHT

Want your children and friends to give you a rating of "super," then give just one party for children alone, and make that party a good, old-fashioned taffy pull. Think back a moment and remember how you looked in a taffy pull just as much as to a circus.

Taffy pulling is exciting fun because it gives you a chance to help refreshments. Yes, taffy with their fingers all day, and watching the dark mixture get lighter and lighter as it's pulled. They'll like it because a taffy pull isn't a party. When you send out invitations, let the mothers know that the party is for the children and refreshments.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

- *Chop Suey, Rice or Noodles
 - Bean Sprouts
 - Apricot-Cream Cheese Salad
 - Bran Bread
 - Orange Chiffon Pie
 - Tea
 - Coffee
 - Milk
- *Recipe Given

Cakes iced with pink and chocolate icing, fruit, and of course, the taffy. Although the taffy pull will be the main event of the party be sure to have games planned to fill out the evening. Quiz games are popular and lists for these can be made up beforehand using questions on slogans, famous personalities, historical events, interesting facts, and riddles as questions.

Children will want some lively fun too, and for this you can have a sack race. The leaders of two lines of players are given two large paper sacks. They place the sacks on their feet and at a signal run to the opposite goal and back, take off the sack and give it to the person next to them. The object is to see which line finishes first.

Speaking of children, are you having a time with their school lunches? Variety is the big problem in packing a complete meal in one small box is hard to vary and doesn't have as many possibilities as the table at home. Having at least one hot food helps loads, and put this in the thermos bottle. You can have cream soups, vegetable soups, then again hot milk drinks for variety.

Sandwiches are a standby, but don't get into a rut with these. Don't have soggy fillings. Wrap each one separately in wax paper. Favorite fillings include: Peanut butter and jelly, Chopped meat mixed with mayonnaise and relish, Chopped hard-cooked eggs with bacon, Cheese and luncheon meats, Vegetable salad sandwiches, Flaked fish with celery, lettuce, Chopped figs or dates, nuts, moistened with orange juice.

Color peeps up the lunch box, so occasionally pack a salad in a paper container. Use fresh fruits or peaches, or canned ones also packed in small glass or paper containers. Economy is highlighted these days, but it needn't be dull if you use attractively garnished platters.

Chop Suey or Chow Mein. (Serves 6)
1/2 cup butter or shortening
2 1/2 cups cooked meat, cut in strips
1/4 cup onions, cut fine
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 can bean sprouts, drained
2 1/4 cups celery, cut fine
1 cup hot water

For thickening and flavoring:
1/2 cup cold water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon sugar

Melt butter, add onions, fry for 3 minutes. Add celery, salt, pepper, hot water, cover and cook for 5 minutes. Add bean sprouts and meat, mix and bring to a boil. Combine thickening and flavoring ingredients, add to first mixture. Cook 5 minutes. Serve hot with Chinese noodles for Chop Mein, or with steaming rice for Chow suey. Garnish platter with thin strips of fried egg and green onions if desired.

MILK MAID STOPS SMALL POX SPREAD

Vaccination has been so successful in eliminating small pox that people are apt to become careless and fail to make sure that they and their children are immune to that dread disease. But there still are scattered cases which might cause a serious epidemic to develop in a community in which there were many who had not been recently vaccinated. We are too apt to believe small pox to be such a rare disease that it is no longer necessary to adequately protect oneself against it.

It is said that during the Eighteenth century in England 995 out of every 1,000 inhabitants had small pox; that one out of four who had it died. Nearly all were disfigured by the resulting scars. Most blindness was due to its ravages. While purposeful inoculation with small pox usually caused those so treated to have the disease in a milder form, it did nothing to reduce the numbers who had it.

About 1790, Dr. Edward Jenner, a country doctor in England, was impressed by the chance remark of a milk maid who said that those who acquired cowpox lesions from sores on the udders of cows did not get small pox. By questioning others, he substantiated her statement. Not thoroughly convinced, he decided to try an experiment and found a young boy who was willing to serve as the "guinea pig." Dr. Jenner inoculated this boy with cowpox (vaccinia) and after that lesion had healed, inoculated him with small pox. To his great gratification, the boy did not acquire that dread disease. He then commenced to inoculate his patients with cowpox and found that none of them, even though exposed to it, acquired small pox.

Dr. Benjamin Waterhouse of Boston soon obtained some of the cow-

The Farm Woodlot

It is a trifle surprising to be told that practically one-third of all the forest land in the United States is in farm woodlands, yet such is actually the case. Such woodlands are for the most part small and scattered, yet they comprise some of America's best forest lands.

Properly handled, the farm woodlot is of almost inestimable value to the farmer. W. R. Mattoon, extension forester in the U. S. forest service, says that "Timber is a savings bank. The trees are the capital or principal; new growth is the interest. Each day the interest is added—and the cashier can not run away."

The farm woodlot, properly forested, provides wood for fuel, fencing, and often for building; moreover, it produces a cash crop, in the form of sawlogs, piling, pulpwood, posts, and cross ties. Too often the farm woodlot is neglected and becomes merely a tangle of undergrowth and fallen trees, through which the new growth must struggle as well as for the sun. Such management is wasteful. To get the best results from his woodland, the farmer should handle it according to the best practices worked out by trained and experienced foresters. Information in this field may be secured from state forestry associations or from the bureau of forestry, U. S. department of agriculture, at Washington, D. C.

CONTINUOUS GROWTH

No timber should ever be cut haphazardly but on the contrary, with careful consideration of its continuous production. Not everything that is salable should be cut; at least five or more seed-producing trees should be left, per acre, as well as plenty of young trees as the nucleus for another crop. If the timberland has been neglected, it will need thinning. The least valuable kinds of trees should be taken out, just as a dairyman weeds out his less productive cows. So, also, should all dead timber and all crooked or crippled or stunted trees. Such thinning will permit the tall, well-growing trees to grow and develop until they are fit for use or market. If the timberlot has been taken care of, cutting will consist of taking out trees of market size and leaving younger stock to mature. KEEP TIMBER LAND PRODUCTIVE

It has been well said that "one of the outstanding reasons for the present low farm income is the large number of practically idle acres" and certainly many a farm supports 10 or 20 or more acres of idle land in unproductive timber lots. Yet timberlands, when rightly handled, can be kept producing yearly crops with cash value.

USING TIMBER INTELLIGENTLY
All wood placed in contact with the ground, such as sills, stable floors, gates, fence posts, and so forth, should be creosoted before being used. Such treatment greatly extends the life of the materials, thus saving the farmer money not only for new materials but for labor in replacements and repairs. For posts it is advisable to use only the more durable woods such as black locust, redwood, white oak, chestnut, or sassafras.

Wood which has been cut for fuel should be carefully seasoned. Seasoned wood makes more heat and saves trouble and inconvenience in the house. To season it rapidly, rick it up in long narrow piles where sun and wind can dry it out—and protect it from rain.

Freshly cut timber that is to be used for posts or as poles in building, should be peeled, to further the seasoning process and as a protection against insect attack. It is well, also, to paint the ends of logs, to prevent injury by checking.

MARKETING YOUR TIMBER

Harvest your own timber crop, rather than to sell it standing, if that is possible; otherwise, sell it under a written contract. Naturally, before selling, you will obtain reliable, up-to-the-minute prices, particularly local prices. Often timber may be sold locally to good advantage because transportation costs are thus saved.

PLANT A WOODLOT

It will give you shelter from cold winds, shade from the hot summer sun, wood for the fireplace, posts, poles, and timber for building, and, in due time, a cash market crop.

For further information, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., for each of the following publications or fifty cents for all: "The Farm Woods," Leaflet No. 29; "Cutting the Farm Woods," Leaflet No. 30; and "Farmers' Bulletin No. 1660."

STURDY OLD SASSAFRAS

At Keswick in Virginia stands a great sassafras tree, 18 feet, 4 inches in circumference, five feet from the ground—probably the largest sassafras tree in the country. Some years ago the tree was a hollow trunk, broken off at the top and apparently dying. Someone built a fire in the interior and, though the fire was quenched, it was assumed that it must have killed the tree. However, when the fire actually did was to kill the bugs which were sapping its strength.

FACTS ABOUT PEAFAWOL
Peafaws seldom lay during their first year. They usually produce a few eggs during their second and third years, gradually increasing to their usual production of five to nine eggs per year. The cocks do not attain the full glory of their magnificent trains until their third year. The cocks are belligerent and are sometimes dangerous to smaller poultry. If they are given plenty of room, the cocks will choose special parade grounds to which they will repair to display themselves.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

It is just like big sister's, that is why this jerkin, skirt and blouse outfit will be so dear to the heart of your teen-age daughter! She'll enjoy starting off to school in it—the jerkin buttoned down the side, the skirt smoothly flaring and the blouse fresh and clean! Pattern No. 1296-B is the kind you know you can't go wrong with. You can make the skirt and jerkin in a long wearing corduroy, tweed, plaid wool or gabardine and make up a set of blouses in washable cottons and one in wool jersey. The jerkin can also be made to contrast with odd skirts, the skirt to go with sweaters and jackets and the blouse to be worn with suits and jumpers.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1296-B is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 10 jerkin and skirt require 1 1/2 yards 44-inch material; 2 1/2 yards 35-inch. Blouse with long sleeves requires 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch material; short sleeves, 1 1/4 yards. Send your order to:

Lincoln's Beard Result Of Little Girl's Suggestion

A little girl from Westfield, N. Y., once wrote Abraham Lincoln a letter as follows:

"I am a little girl, eleven years old . . . have you any little girls about as large as I am . . . If you will let your whiskers grow, you would look a great deal better for your face is so thin . . . I must not write any more answer this right off. Good bye, Grace Bodell."

A few months later, Lincoln let his beard grow. On one of his trips he passed through Westfield and immediately sent for Grace. He thrilled her by pointing to his beard and saying: "You see—I let those whiskers grow for you, Grace."

Equal Right

The equal right of all men to the use of land is as clear as their equal right to breathe the air—it is a right proclaimed by the fact of their existence. For we cannot suppose that some men have a right to be in this world, and others no right.—Henry George.

ARE YOUR Bowels Stubborn?

Then try kindness! First of all you can't expect them to act unless you give them a chance. Most people make sure to get 3 meals a day. But they never think of giving their bowels a regular time (daily) for evacuation.

If you've neglected YOUR bowels until they finally became stubborn and unwilling to act, ask your druggist for ADLERIKAL. It is an effective blend of 4 carminatives and 3 laxatives giving DOUBLE action. Gas is expelled and bowel action follows surprisingly fast. After that, make up your mind to give your bowels 5 or 10 minutes' time at regular hour, daily. Your druggist has ADLERIKAL.

When you send out invitations, let the mothers know that the party is for the children and refreshments.

Children will want some lively fun too, and for this you can have a sack race. The leaders of two lines of players are given two large paper sacks. They place the sacks on their feet and at a signal run to the opposite goal and back, take off the sack and give it to the person next to them. The object is to see which line finishes first.

Speaking of children, are you having a time with their school lunches? Variety is the big problem in packing a complete meal in one small box is hard to vary and doesn't have as many possibilities as the table at home.

Sandwiches are a standby, but don't get into a rut with these. Don't have soggy fillings. Wrap each one separately in wax paper. Favorite fillings include: Peanut butter and jelly, Chopped meat mixed with mayonnaise and relish, Chopped hard-cooked eggs with bacon, Cheese and luncheon meats, Vegetable salad sandwiches, Flaked fish with celery, lettuce, Chopped figs or dates, nuts, moistened with orange juice.

Color peeps up the lunch box, so occasionally pack a salad in a paper container. Use fresh fruits or peaches, or canned ones also packed in small glass or paper containers. Economy is highlighted these days, but it needn't be dull if you use attractively garnished platters.

Chop Suey or Chow Mein. (Serves 6)
1/2 cup butter or shortening
2 1/2 cups cooked meat, cut in strips
1/4 cup onions, cut fine
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 can bean sprouts, drained
2 1/4 cups celery, cut fine
1 cup hot water

For thickening and flavoring:
1/2 cup cold water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon sugar

Melt butter, add onions, fry for 3 minutes. Add celery, salt, pepper, hot water, cover and cook for 5 minutes. Add bean sprouts and meat, mix and bring to a boil. Combine thickening and flavoring ingredients, add to first mixture. Cook 5 minutes. Serve hot with Chinese noodles for Chop Mein, or with steaming rice for Chow suey. Garnish platter with thin strips of fried egg and green onions if desired.

SEAT—A wooden seat with deep seat and a slight curve for comfort. Usually on long narrow strips of linen, the designs were worked out in colors. Later samplers of oblong shape were made, both as a record of stitches and as a way of teaching a well-brought-up young girl how to sew nicely. Letter types usual had a name, the alphabet, sometimes numbers, often a quotation, figures, flowers or other designs.

SANDALWOOD—A hard light brown fragrant wood from India, especially popular for boxes and chests but also for small furniture.

SASH CURTAINS—A curtain made to hang inside the frame of the window rather than made to cover the frame. Usually curtains for the top half of the window are made separately from those at the bottom, and often only the bottom part of the window will have a sash curtain.

Are you considering joining a MILITARY SERVICE?

Why not choose the NAVAL RESERVE!

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT
by the Secretary of the Navy

"All men now enlisting in the Naval Reserve will be retained on active Navy duty throughout the period of the national emergency, but they will be released to inactive duty as soon after the emergency as their services can be spared, regardless of the length of time remaining in their enlistment."

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

HERE IS THE OPPORTUNITY THAT THOUSANDS OF MEN HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR

Here is your opportunity to have all the advantages and privileges of Navy life but with a shorter enlistment.
 Many men do not realize—but it is a fact—that your pay, your training, and your chances for advancement in the Naval Reserve are exactly the same as in the Navy itself.

FREE TRAINING WORTH $1500

Take your own case. Let's assume that you have had no special training. In that case here is your opportunity to learn one of the Navy's 45 big-pay trades, from aviation engineering to radio. You may receive training worth $1500 the first year alone. In addition you get all the advantages listed in the second column of this announcement.

HIGHER PAY OPPORTUNITIES

But perhaps you have had special training or know a trade. In that case the Naval Reserve offers you the opportunity to use your knowledge. If you qualify (high school or college not necessary), you can join as a petty officer right away—with higher pay and allowances.

 Also, if you have two or more years of college credits, there are special opportunities to become a Naval aviator or a commissioned officer.

LOOK WHAT THE U. S. NAVAL RESERVE OFFERS YOU

- FREE TRAINING worth $1500. Nearly 50 trades and vocations to choose from.
- GOOD PAY with regular increases. You may earn up to $126 a month.
- EACH YEAR you are entitled to a generous vacation period, with full pay.
- GOOD FOOD and plenty of it.
- FREE CLOTHING. A complete outfit of clothing when you first enlist. (Over $100 worth.)
- FREE MEDICAL CARE, including regular dental attention.
- FINEST SPORTS and entertainment any man could ask for.
- TRAVEL, ADVENTURE, THRILLS—You can't beat the Navy for them!
- BECOME AN OFFICER. Many can work for an appointment to the Naval Academy or the Annapolis of the Air at Pensacola.
- FUTURE SUCCESS. It's easy for Navy trained men to get good-paying jobs in civil life.
