Congressional Neutrality Act Revision Permits Armed U. S. Merchant Ships To Sail Through Belligerent Zones; U. S. Faces Serious Labor Situation

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Everyone in Soviet Russia is learning the soldier's trade these days. Even the students in school. Here an instructor is shown teaching secondary school students methods of bayonet fighting. Note that girls as well as boys are present for instruction in this class.

NEUTRALITY: Revision Complete

When the house voted 212 to 194 to permit the arming of U. S. merchant ships and allow them to sail through war zones into ports of nations at war it amounted to a repeal of the neutrality act's main provisions. For as the senate had already adopted the same measure, the administration's battle on this vital issue was over.

As a vote neared on the measure a warning came from President Roosevelt that its defeat would be evidence to Hitler that "the United States is disunited." For a while there were strong indications of a Democratic revolt in the house, as many members were reported to be demanding a firmer presidential stand on defense strikes in return for "going along" with the Roosevelt foreign policy.

When the President's warning, in the form of a letter to Speaker Sam Rayburn, was read before the house, it was inferred that assurances were being given that the strike situation would be dealt with and many members were reported to have then fallen in behind the White House revision plans.

GERMANS: Fighting Front

Frank admissions from Berlin that the attack on Russia was entirely stalled no longer had been withheld as the Germans were finding it necessary to explain to the people the failure of their armies to capture Leningrad, Moscow or the defenses in the Donetz basin.

WAR: And Mr. Welles

Administration forces saw the approach of America's entry into actual hostilities as closer, not because of repeal of the neutrality act's main restrictive paragraphs, but as a result of increased pressure on this country by Japan and Germany.

FINNS: To Continue

Finland, in a lengthy reply to Secretary Hull's message urging withdrawal from the war against Russia, had politely rejected the plea of the United States, and, in effect, said that her objectives were not yet accomplished.

Thus the pressure from the hard-fighting and winter-acclimated Finns had continued on Russia's northern front, keeping a big portion of the Red's planes and armies in action, and complicating her defense.

The Finnish note pointed out certain points still held by Russia which, it said, were within Finland's 1939 borders, and named especially the Fischer peninsula and the Hangö air base.

Russian guns on the former, the Finns had said, menaced their only open port, Petsamo, and the air base at Hangö was being used by Russian planes for bombing attacks on Finnish territory.

Most notable in the message was the claim by the Finns that their government was entirely free of German or Axis influence.

Queen's Job

LONDON, ENGLAND.—A queen's job includes many things and here the cameraman pictures Queen Elizabeth of England having her shoes "fitted" upon visiting a shell factory. In order to prevent accidents when entering the "danger zone" of the factory special attention must be given to the fit and type of shoes worn.

ROME: And Hostages

Italy, by arresting 150 hostages in Yugoslavia as an aftermath of a Serbian uprising in which a large number of Italian soldiers and civilians were slain and wounded, had placed herself in position to go into the hostage-execution business in a similar manner to that of the Nazis in France and other occupied countries.

In the official casualty list in Greece and Yugoslavia issued by the Italians since their armies occupied those countries 179 Italian soldiers had been reported killed, and 128 wounded.

It was the first time since the outbreak of the war that the Italian command had resorted to the "hostage method" of control or reprisal.

MEDITERRANEAN: Battle Report

British warships, under the guns of a highly superior Italian naval force, had engaged a convoy in the Mediterranean, and had sunk several freighters, also three destroyers.

The British admiralty announced in a later communique that four more Axis troopships had been sunk, two sailing vessels sent to the bottom, and four other vessels damaged.

All of this was accomplished by submarine action, the British asserting. It was considered possible that the action might have been a prelude to activity by the British in North Africa.

MARSHALL: On Morale

Gen. George C. Marshall, head of the army, declared there was in progress a "sudden and widespread" attempt on the part of the Nazis to "sabotage United States munitions, utility and transportation industries—also the army's morale."

Already, the general revealed, there has been uncovered an Axis propaganda attack designed to disrupt army morale.

This campaign, using "clever methods" has succeeded already in upsetting the families of soldiers and has also misled some members of congress.

The general's daily mail, he said, reflects "German scheming through letters from families who are worrying about their boys in the army, who have been led to believe, for instance, that the soldiers lack food, proper shelter or medical attention."

ELEPHANTS: Circus Tragedy

The sudden death of 10 elephants in the Barnum Bailey circus at Atlanta was followed by a statement from the management that it was clearly a case of "elephant murder."

Autopsies determined what the poison was, and that it was an "inside job." Arrests had been promised.

The story had much "human interest," and it was expected that it would blossom into a detective fiction. Most of the animals that died were young for elephants, 30 to 35 years old.

MISCELLANY:

Berlin: The Germans claim that the British, since they took the air offensive on the west front had lost 1,744 planes from May to October, inclusive, while the German losses were only 376.

Philadelphia: Temple university students are planning to adopt a British university, and to provide moral and financial support to its students. The Temple organization will be called the Collegiate V (for victory).

London: It was revealed that a London insurance firm has continued to pay an annuity of 600 pounds annually to Marshal Petain, an annuity which the chief of the French state purchased some time ago. This is in spite of the fact that there were rigid restrictions against withdrawal of British cash.

Vichy: The Paris press had reported that a woman had been jailed for attempting to get bread with forged food cards, and that on the way to the police station had "insulted the name of Marshal Petain." She was given eight months.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—When Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth brought their pioneer quiz broadcast to New York city back in 1934, it took them just about eight weeks of diligent quizzing to get an answer to the question, "Where is Singapore?"

The other day the ninth anniversary of their Vox Pop program, the first outbreak of the growing quiz craze, now rampant on all networks, was celebrated. In an age of deepening uncertainty, people find great felicity if they happen to know how many toothpicks there are in a cord of birchwood—and sustenance for an ailing ego. Messrs. Johnson and Butterworth cash in in a big way.

Parks Johnson is the son of a Methodist minister. He had been a captain in the World War, a newspaper reporter, a cotton broker, and in 1932 was running a one-man advertising agency in Houston, Texas. A client wanted a radio idea. Mr. Johnson quizzed himself at length and got the right answer.

He set up a microphone in the lobby of a Houston theater and began his quiz. At first he had to hand out one-dollar bills to lure participants, but the "mike-fright" soon passed and Vox Pop quickly became a successful program.

Mr. Butterworth, former phonograph salesman, radio singer and announcer, came in later. Soon after they were established in New York their program was on a big network. In 1940, they carried their microphone more than 50,000 miles around the country, and to date, have asked about 300,000 questions.

Newspapers were ahead of radio, however, in getting at the question-and-answer mother lode of interest in their own field. It was in 1920, that Miriam Tichenor, a reporter on the New York Daily Mail, suggested to George T. Hughes, the city editor, the daily questioning of five or six citizens at random. Mr. Hughes started the feature and slugged it "The Inquiring Reporter."

Under this and other titles it still carries on in many newspapers. This, however, is an opinion, rather than an information inquiry.

A NEW YORK doctor, a friend of this writer, says physicians who have made a life-long study of diet, nutrition and mass conditioning are wondering why physical specialists ask training for defense is being organized by athletes, instead of specialists in physical fitness. Without disparagement to any of the persons mentioned, he cited Gene Tunney, Alice Marble and John B. Kelly, the last an undefeated oarsman, as examples in which eminence in athletics is substituted for precise knowledge of how to "toughen-up."

The discussion had to do with Mr. Kelly's current prescription of a "courage diet" for the nation, in which he says he has listed caloric and vitamin combinations which will enable us to lick our weight in wildcats.

Mr. Kelly, a former bricklayer and contractor, is chairman of the Philadelphia Democratic committee, and last August became director of physical training for national defense. He was formerly a Republican, and is veteran of much fast and intricate milling in both parties.

The tall and athletic "Handsome Jack" Kelly, as he is called, quit the Philadelphia public schools at the age of 16 and got a job in a brickyard. He was an ambulance driver in the World War, came back with a capital of $40 and opened his own brickyard. Twelve years later, at the age of 31, he was the Olympic single sculls champion, winning for America at Amsterdam. In 1926, he retired from rowing as the undefeated champion oarsman of the world. At the age of 52, he still rows five miles every morning.

In September, 1940, President Roosevelt saw an article "handsome Jack" had written for a physical culture magazine and summoned him to lead the national "physical preparedness" endeavor. He now officially and formally heads this department and is working up plans for national mass calisthenics.

He is one of four eminent brothers, George, a playwright; Walter, the famous "Virginia Judge" of the stage; Patrick H., deceased in 1937, who was the builder of the Free Public Library in Philadelphia.

T. P. WRIGHT, aviation authority, reports that U. S. and British aircraft production outstrips the Axis. He was director of engineering of the Curtiss-Wright corporation and is now technical expert of the OPM. His was the Curtiss-Wright "Tanager" airplane which won a prize of $100,000 in the 1929 safe aircraft competition of the Guggenheim foundation. Designing planes has been his profession since his graduation from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1912.

Washington Sees Conflicts of Authority, Effort Builds Defense Log Jam

Washington Sees Conflicts of Authority, Effort And Viewpoint as Threat to Satisfactory Carrying Out of Program.

By BAUKHAGE National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

There is a log jam today holding up the defense program that is going to take dynamite to blow up. Whether there is the courage and the unity and the understanding to do the job remains to be seen.

It will take understanding because the men who make the charges will have to know the facts and realize the conditions and the traditions which have created the evils.

It will take courage, for a premature burst may damage a lot of innocent bystanders. As far as can be judged from information leading out of the cracks in the defense machine it is a three-way pulling match. The difficulty in analyzing the situation is the difficulty in classifying and identifying the opposing forces.

The usual classification is: One, the New Deal group. Two, the dollar-a-year men. Three, certain army and navy officials.

But this is a very misleading classification because there are some dollar-a-year men who are working with the administration. There are some members of the administration charged with playing into the hands of the dollar-a-year men. There are some army officials who are co-operating with the so-called New Deal element.

Roughly—the charges

Roughly the charges are these: Those sympathetic with the viewpoint of the New Dealers say that some army officials insist on favoring the dollar-a-year men who manage to steer defense contracts to big business, block sub-contracting to the smaller firms.

Some of the army and navy officials say that they are not going to let amateurs run their affairs; that they have dealt with certain firms for years who know how to do what they want done.

The champions of the small business men and congressmen have attempted to help them say that priorities assignments are sending essential materials to the big business firms—and they mention the utilities in particular. Small manufacturers and public projects like rural electrification which is bidding for precious copper for its power lines, are being passed by, is the accusation.

The dollar-a-year men say that they are protecting free enterprise and that those opposing them are trying to turn business over to government control.

These bitter conflicts of authority, effort and viewpoint naturally prevent the co-operation essential in the tremendous undertaking which the Office of Emergency Management is attempting to carry out.

This is one reason for the log jam. There is another. In Washington itself criticism is growing. This is not new. It is criticism of the overlapping and conflicting authority among the officials of the O.E.M.

Theoretically, Vice President Wallace is the responsible head of all defense effort and in that capacity he reports only to the President but the money he requires to carry out his functions is controlled by Jesse Jones, head of the RFC as well as secretary of commerce. That is just one example of similar anomalies right down the line.

The strange thing about it all is that everybody in Washington seems to know all about the log jam except the President himself who is the only man who can straighten it out.

'ABCD' Countries In New Trade Pact

The "A B C D" countries have just drawn up a trade agreement which bottles up a large share of the raw materials of the world. The ABCD's (America, Britain, China and the Dutch East Indies) control a large share of the things that do not or will not grow anywhere else. The agreement has a two-pronged purpose. One is a horn of famine, one is a horn of plenty. The horn of famine is pointed today at Japan as a threat to keep her within her own domain. The horn of plenty is a peaceful promise. Its purpose is to provide a working arrangement so that all nations may share in the riches of the earth, the

Instead of waiting for migrant families to find their way to the jobs, up in the Northwest hop and apple country the State Employment services are opening offices at each of the 20 Farm Security migratory labor camps. Already job placements in the hop and potato fields and in the apple orchards have outstripped all previous records.

About 14 per cent of the national income is going into national defense and the figure will soon reach 18 per cent, according to a recent estimate by Harold D. Smith, director of the bureau of the budget. England is reportedly spending 40 per cent of its national income for war and Germany about 50 per cent.

Department of agriculture experts are finding that some of the worst so-called weeds are very useful in checking soil washing, stopping gullies, and providing feed.

Sweden's Tobacco Monopoly has estimated that about 800 tons of tobacco are literally thrown away each year in that country in discarded cigarette stubs, the department of commerce reports. It is proposed, therefore, to avoid this economic waste by use of hollow paper tips on cigarettes of a size approximating the length of the stub usually discarded.

Farm housewives co-operating with Farm Security in Valley and Phillips counties, Montana, have learned how to make 10 varieties of cheese. FSA home management experts have taught them that this is an economical way to use up surplus milk.

Rickshaws will be banned from the streets of Rangoon, Burma, effective April 1, 1942, in an effort to make local traffic regulations more effective, according to the department of commerce.

Birds, Traffic Signals And Early Risers

Some people here in Washington have been living dangerously before you and I start our day. They are up and doing before the traffic signals begin their rhythmic cycle of red, yellow and green. It is a period of comparative freedom, the lights flash yellow—a warning to be careful, not a command to stop. To some of the mad, pre-dawn motorists the flashers are not warnings at all. They are simply lures for the heedless autos dashing at the intersections like moths at a candle flame.

That makes it stimulatingly dangerous for early folk whose reveille has sounded long before our bacon sizzles. They have to be wide awake. Except the birds—one of the few forms of life, feathered, furred, or pajamaed, whose waking is pleasant to hear—the plaintive peep that gradually swells in a soft crescendo to a cheerful chatter.

And the birds are about the only living creatures who can risk an early start for they can cross the street without regard for the traffic lights.

Chicken a la King for Fifty
(See Recipes Below.)

Church Supper Ideas

It is so gay as a grand, big dinner full of informal fun, the pleasant conversation and the good food thrown into the mix. A church supper, of course, will take care of itself. It is well, almost if you get the right amount of it, for the cooking is as simple as only simple can be. Chicken is a treat any way you serve it, but very easy to prepare and serve if you use the old-fashioned Chicken or Turkey a la King. (Serves 50)

THIS WEEK'S MENU

- *Chicken a la King
  - Scalloped Potatoes
  - *Sunset Salad
  - Bread and Butter
  - Assorted Cakes
  - Coffee
- *Recipe given

soned water, to which a small onion, 2 carrots and a small bunch of celery are added. Chickens are handled best if disjointed and the breast and back sections cut into convenient-sized pieces.

Baking Powder Biscuits.

- (Serves 50)
- 4 pounds flour
- ½ cup double-acting baking powder
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 1 pound shortening (2½ cups)
- 5 cups milk

Sift the dry ingredients together, add fat and mix lightly. Make a well in the center and add the milk. Mix just until the dough holds together. Divide dough into fourths and make ¼ at a time. Roll on a floured board, pat to ½ inch thickness, cut and place on baking sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in a hot (450 degree) oven until golden brown.

Best idea for a salad is one that's made in advance and needs only to be sliced and placed on lettuce leaves for serving. It's as gay and colorful as the get-together itself.

*Sunset Salad.

- 18 ounces lemon gelatin
  - 2½ quarts hot water and canned pineapple juice
  - 1½ quarts grated raw carrots
  - 1½ pints crushed pineapple, drained
  - 2 teaspoons salt
- Dissolve gelatin in hot water and pineapple juice which has been heated to 130 degrees F. Chill. Combine carrots, pineapple and salt. When mixture is slightly thickened, fold in carrot and pineapple mixture. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise and grated carrots. Makes 32 portions.

Just in case you want to make up a church supper menu of your own, I'm listing additional recipes:

Meat Loaf.

- 10 pounds ground round steak
  - 2 pounds ground pork or salt pork
  - 4 eggs
  - ½ pound bread crumbs
  - 2 onions
  - 2 tablespoons salt
  - 2 teaspoons pepper
  - 1 quart cold mashed potatoes
  - 1 quart milk or canned tomatoes
- Mix thoroughly, mold into five loaves, and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., until done. Makes 50 servings.

The wife of one of our famous football coaches, Mrs. Lou Little, likes to serve a simple but hearty meal after the game. For this one she has an idea for an after the game supper or church supper idea: Hot mulled cider, casserole of pork and beans, buttered hot date-nut bread, celery, pickles, and chili sauce; jellied cole slaw; doughnuts and coffee.

For the casserole, use canned pork and beans with tomato sauce; heat in the oven about 20 minutes. As a decoration use half slices of date-nut bread. Put them around the top of the beans for 5 minutes before the casserole comes out from the oven.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Removing Dents in Wood. WHEN a table top is dented by the dropping of a candlestick or other heavy object, the dent can usually be taken out by a process that will swell the fibers of the wood. For this the finish around the dent should be scraped off so that bare wood is exposed. The dent is then covered by a cloth dampened with warm water, which is pressed by a warm—not hot—iron. The steam produced will be absorbed by the dented fibers, which will then swell, and return to their original positions.

The refinishing of the table top will be required, at least in that part around the dent. Should the wood be actually gouged, that some of it is removed, the hole that is left can be filled with stick shellac. This can be had in all shades of wood colors at many large paint stores and from dealers in cabinet makers' supplies. An old screwdriver is heated to a point at which it will melt the shellac, and a little of the shellac carried by the blade is then transferred to the hole. If the correct amount of shellac is picked up, the surface can be smoothed by the warm blade; if too much is used, the surface can be cut off with a razor blade. A job of this sort can be so neatly done that the patch will hardly be noticed.

Thermometer Setting

One of my correspondents describes an interesting experience with a thermostat. He could not understand why the house felt so cold with the thermostat thermometer standing at 70 degrees. After a time he checked with a second thermometer, and found that the thermostat was registering two degrees higher. His service man was called in and adjusted the thermometer by lowering the glass tube, so that it registered correctly. He says that home owners might be interested to know that thermostat thermometers are often so made that they can slide in relation to the scale, to change the reading, should it be out of adjustment. I am sure that the above information will be found useful. An experiment with thermometers that is usually startling to those who have not tried it is to take the temperature of the air at floor and ceiling at a time when the wall thermometer is standing at its normal 70. Only too often the low temperature on the floor is the unsuspected cause of chilliness.

Avoiding Greasy Hands.

When a dirty or greasy job is to be done, time will be saved by first coating the hands with something that will keep the dirt from working into the pores of the skin. One good material for this can be made by dissolving 2 ounces of gum arabic in 1 pint of water, to be mixed with ½ pound of soap chips, dissolved in 1 pint of water. The liquid is heated in a double boiler, and 1 ounce of lanolin is then added. The result is a soft paste, to be rubbed well into the skin, and especially under and around the finger nails. On finishing the job, the hands can be washed with clear water, or with soap and water. It is worth while to make up a quantity of the compound, to be stored in tin cans or glass jars until needed.

Smoky Furnace.

Question: A piped hot air furnace admits soot to the rooms, in spite of a recent cleaning. What treatment should it have? Answer: Smoke and soot are escaping from the firebox into the air passages through open joints between the furnace sections, due to the giving out of the cement with which they were packed. The best remedy is to renew the cement, which should be of a variety made for the purpose and resistance to heat. Even with the best cement, the job usually gives out in five years or so.

'Woody' Smell.

Question: About a month ago I was given a bedroom suite of maple furniture. I do not like to put any of my things in the chest of drawers because of the very strong 'woody' smell inside. Airing does not seem to help. Is there any way to get rid of this odor? Answer: 'Paradi' (moth) crystals make an excellent deodorizer. Put a generous amount of the crystals in each drawer and allow to remain for several days.

Faded Veneer.

Question: A damp towel was carelessly left on brown walnut veneer, and made a grayish cloudy stain. How can this be restored? Answer: The damage is probably due to the effect of water, scraping it off with a razor blade. This also removes the color apply successive thin coats of oil stain of the proper shade; get a color sample with a paint store. Finish with a thin coat of varnish.

Noisy Flush Tank.

Question: What is the cause of the continual noise in my flush tank? Answer: The washer of the intake valve is probably worn, so that the water does not shut off. Replacing the washer should end the trouble.

Log Cabin Finish.

Question: In the past, I have finished the outside surfaces of the logs of my cabin with linseed oil, but this does not last. What could I use in place of it? Answer: Put on two coats of good quality spar varnish.

Wool and Fur Combinations Make Stunning New Outfits

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WITH surpassing artistry and craftsmanship American designers are setting a new high in costume design. Especially are our American style creators doing themselves proud in the campus, town and country ensembles which they create of gorgeous colorful wool and stunning fur.

Not only do the costumes pictured redound to the glory of American designers but there is fascination and patriotic thrill in the thought that the fur, American opossum, which is combined with the beautiful wools of these stunning costumes, is itself decidedly all-American.

The possibilities presented in this new alliance of wool with opossum are endless. Not only is opossum a flattering young fur when used for general utility costumes, but through scientific skill it has also been made available for dressy daytime and evening wear as well as for all-purpose wear.

A beautifully cut coat is shown to the left in the group. The exquisitely colorful wool stripe of which it is made speaks for itself. Now that fashion is—advocating color, women are going in wholeheartedly for coats that add a bold dash of color glory to the winter landscape. The soft front fullness achieved by skillful manipulation of the stripes is decidedly effective. The wide notched collar and cuffs of natural American opossum are perfect with the subtle blue, lavender and pink in the tweed.

When one invests in a three-piece outfit as perfectly ensembled as the handsome model shown to the right, she has underwritten for herself a feeling that wherever she goes she is sure to be among the best dressed. This important ensemble for town carries an air of matchless distinction. The suit is a masterpiece of fine tailoring. The three-quarter length cape of American opossum with striped tweed to match the suit will carry through triumphantly as a wrap to wear through the winter with daytime frocks and party dress as well. A sure, safe, sound and sane investment, this, that will pay big dividends in chic, charm and self-gratification.

Centered in the picture is another example of the intrigue and glamour expressed in the alliance of bright wool with smart fur. The coat is lined with a plaid wool in glowing high color to match the hood and blouse. When thrown back the hood forms a colorfully lined collar. The jacket and skirt pick up two of the colors in the plaid. Mittens too, if you please, of matching fur!

If your new wool ensemble happens to be of wool in the now-fashionable magenta color, and if it is without fur, you will look very smart if you carry with it a stunning huge muff of opossum, and, of course, there must be a hat of the same fur to wear with it. The hat and muff twosome is an accessory combination especially cited among to-morrow fashions.

Colors highlighted in wools this season especially stress browns and dark greens. The new bright blue is the talk of the town. With furs it is outstanding in any fashionable gathering. Amethyst tones and purples also are being played up to heights of distinction in wools, their beauty accentuated with handsome amethyst jewelry and sumptuous furs.

Crocheting Has a Gay Fashion Role

Crocheters, now is your big moment. Crocheting is rising to dizzy heights of style prestige this season. It is nothing less than astonishing to see what novel and intriguing costume accents can be achieved with crocheting. This new enthusiasm for crocheting is 'going big' with leading designers everywhere who are bringing new artistry and imagination into the field of crocheted design.

One of the most fascinating gestures noted this season is that the new longer length heralded for the smartest vividly colorful suede or fabric gloves is being achieved by either gauntlet or mosquitoire tops done in simple crocheting decorated with tiny crocheted flowers or tiny ruffles that finish the top edge and then go meandering down the glove.

Wool suits and dresses are cunningly detailed with pockets crocheted of yarn in either a matching or a contrasting color. A crocheted patch pocket embroidered in your monogram will add a thrilling touch to your long middie-length jersey sweater.

Other ideas include a border of crocheting that widens the brim of your gay colored felt hat. Add a bag and belt with related crocheted detail. Cover big button molds with plain crocheting adorned with an applique of crocheted flowers. Designers are also bringing genius to play in the crocheting of scarfs and triangular head coverings. In fact, there is no end to the charming and unique uses now being made of crocheting.

Tips Picked Up in World Fashion Centers

Blouses may be popular and varied, but the sweater remains the year 'round favorite of the younger girls.

Have you seen the crystal jewelry? It is newer than gold and quite as popular, because it goes with any color or colors.

Crepe continues to be the favorite fabric for dinner clothes, but it is often combined with another material, such as satin or taffeta.

Silk Jersey

Here is a perfectly charming dinner gown made of silk jersey that combines sun tan beige for the blouse with black jersey for the skirt. The skirt is subtly draped in the new long sleek lines so popular this season. Note the new, long dolman sleeves. A wonderful black crepe felt turban has superfine sheer black lace veiling arranged over its crown, the ends brought down and fastened under her chin. Gold buttons adorn the blouse.

Removal of Stains From Fabric

Perhaps Dad's best shirt has been inadvertently scorched in ironing; perhaps sister's white tennis shorts are suffering from grass stains; perhaps Junior's white flannels annexed greasy stains while their owner struggled with an automobile that wouldn't start. And Mother herself may have a stained-fabric problem. Here then are a few "first aids."

FOR SCORCH

If the scorched fabric is washable, and if the scorch is slight, if soap and water will remove it. The spot may be wet with water, or soap and water, and exposed to the sun for a day, or longer if necessary. Sometimes scorch will disappear if the fabric is merely exposed to the sun, provided the scorch is not deep. If the emergency is great, and the article needed at once to wear, it may be rubbed lightly with a cloth dampened in a bleaching agent or with hydrogen peroxide, though these will, of course, lighten the color. If the garment is of a colored material, Safer to use them only on white goods. Sometimes hot water, or hot water and lemon juice, poured through the stain will remove it, but the water must be very hot.

FOR GRASS STAINS

If the material is washable, grass stains may be removed by hot water and soap, rubbing the stain vigorously. If a trace of the stain remains, use a bleach for which lemon juice will usually serve.

FOR GREASE OR OILS

Brush off any dust or dirt that may adhere to the fabric. After brushing, any one of three possible methods of removal may be used: (1) wash in soap and warm water to remove the grease; (2) absorb the grease by the application of dry substances; (3) use some sort of solvent.

If soap and water are used, soaps containing naphtha or kerosene will be found effective, and the spots must be rubbed thoroughly. Among the absorbents that may be used are corn meal, white talcum powder, powdered magnesia, fuller's earth, brown paper or blotting paper. In using blotting paper or brown paper, place a thickness below the stain and one above it and iron with a hot iron, changing the paper as it becomes soiled. In using magnesia, corn meal or other dry absorbent, spread it thickly over the spot and leave until it is impregnated with the grease; repeat as many times as necessary. The use of solvents is difficult since it frequently results in a "ring." Place a pad of clean cloth or a white blotter beneath the stain and sponge with a clean cloth—preferably of the same material as the garment—moistened with the solvent. Use small quantities of the solvent and work toward the center of the stain. It helps to surround the stain with some absorbent material such as those mentioned above, before beginning the use of the solvent.

FOR TEA AND COFFEE STAINS

Fresh coffee stains, and most old ones, can be removed by ordinary laundering, followed by drying in the sun, or by the use of an ordinary bleach. For coffee stains on silk or wool, sponge with cold or lukewarm water. If a grease spot remains, from cream in the coffee, remove with a solvent. Tea stains, when fresh, are easily removed by laundering. If they have persisted for some time, more drastic measures are required, such as boiling in a strong soap-solution made in the proportion of a half-inch cube of soap to each cup of water. If the stains are kept wet with lemon juice and exposed to the sun for a day or two they will nearly or quite disappear.

FOR FRUIT STAINS

If the stain is on white or fast-color material, stretch it over a suitable container, fasten it with an elastic band, and pour boiling water upon it from a height of three or four feet so that the water strikes the stain with force. Whatever stain remains after this treatment will bleach out if the article is hung in the sun to dry. For an old stain, which does not respond readily to the hot water treatment, moisten with lemon juice and expose to hot sunlight.

PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES

Attack any stain as soon as it is made. The longer it is left, the harder it will be to remove.

For information concerning the removal of a very large number of stains, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Farmers' Bulletin No. 1474.

ROSE PLANTING

Dig the plants carefully to prevent mutilation of their root systems; keep the roots moist until the plants are reset; make the holes in which they are planted large enough to receive the roots, spread in a natural position; do not allow either manure or commercial fertilizer to come into direct contact with the roots; spread the roots well, with rich, crumbly soil between them; see that the soil is not too wet, and that it is firmly compacted about the roots of the plants.

PRAYERFUL PINE TREE

On a ranch in Mariposa county, California, stands a tree with a unique history. In 1924 a student at the University of California noticed a scar on a pine tree. When the scar was scratched with a knife, bits of paper were found. Further excavation by means of a sharp axe, which cut through several inches of new growth, disclosed to view a small leather-covered Bible or prayer-book. The book was in good condition and the print was legible.

'They Got Me Covered' Is Funniest Book of Year

A NEW all-around champion has been crowned... in the entertainment world. He is Bob Hope. Not satisfied with being rated tops on the radio, Number One in screen box office receipts, he is author of one of the nation's best sellers, which just about nails down this triple crown for Bob. "They Got Me Covered," Hope's autobiography, has been claimed by critics and readers alike as one of the year's funniest books. It is a hilarious story, in narrative form, of Bob Hope's life, generously illustrated with photographs, in addition to having cartoons depicting scenes from his life.

The book is now available at drug and department stores throughout America at 10 cents per copy with the purchase of a Peppodent product. This low price is possible because the sale of the book has been sponsored by the Peppodent Company.—Adv.

Duty to Neighbor

There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good: myself. But my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy if I may.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

How To Relieve Bronchitis

Cremoluson relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Cremoluson with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Sleep Leads
The long sleep of death closes our scars, and the short sleep of life our wounds.—Jean P. Richter.

OVER 50? Constipated?

Most of us find that age and living habits bring on occasional bowellaziness. These spells of constipation, with aggravating gas, may cause restless nights. ADLERKA can help you face the future more cheerfully. Its ingredients attract to the bowels extra moisture which softens packed wastes and assists in comfortable bowel action. ADLERKA helps to leave your bowels refreshed and clean. Next time constipation and gas threaten your comfort, try ADLERKA. Druggists have it.

Weaken by Exaggeration
We always weaken whatever we exaggerate.—LafHarpe.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffing under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DICTIONARY OF DECORATION

ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN (OR SATEEN)—A stout woman with a smooth surface somewhat like satin but with woft floats, particularly made of cotton.

WOOD—A hard light-colored wood, usually grained wide, with fine rays, veneers and panels. It polishes to some small pieces of furniture with a satin finish and a pale golden color with a fine marking. It is particularly used with designers of the late eighteenth century, notably the Adams, Heppel and other designers of this period. It is also grown in the West Indies.

YAGI—A Japanese pottery of good quality usually in cream and with a fine cracked surface and a decoration of enamel or other colors.

YAGI—A head or face of a person, especially that of a woman.

YAGI—A classic source.

SAVERY, WILLIAM (1722-1787)—An American cabinetmaker of the Eighteenth century who did most of his work in Philadelphia and is responsible for perhaps the finest furniture of colonial America. His early work was quite simple but his later work was elaborately carved in the Chippendale style and ranks with that of Chippendale himself. He is especially notable for his highboys and lowboys.

SAVONAROLA CHAIR—An X-base chair with interlaced shaped slats which is identified with the Italian Renaissance.

SAWBUCK—A table made with boards placed over a pair of cross-legged or X-shaped saw horses, similar to a trestle table. A basic primitive type of table.

SCAGLIOLA—An imitation marble made of gypsum, inslagging, bits of marble, granite, porphyry or other materials. It takes a high polish and has been popular for table tops.

Sunday, Nov. 23: "Soul and Body."

The "Big Three"—size of farm, soil productivity, and feeding efficiency—largely determine success or failure on a dairy farm, a study made by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture reveals.

Modern, efficient kitchens are replacing old ones on many Wisconsin farms. Homemakers are finding that an up-to-date kitchen besides making housework easier is likewise the pride and joy of the whole family.

INTERNATIONAL LIVESTOCK SHOW ATTRACTS BIG ENTRY

America's finest farm animals from the farthest sections of the continent, as well as from the cornbelt and Chesapeake, will be gathered in Chicago's International Amphitheatre the last of this month for the opening of the country's largest annual show of the finest products of farm and ranch, the International Livestock Exposition and Horse show.

The exposition will be on from Nov. 23 to Dec. 6, marking the 42nd annual renewal of this celebrated event.

KEEP BARLEY SEED PURE

At present there is a reasonable margin, as much as 15c a bushel, between good malting barley and feed barley. Many farmers may find it profitable to purchase feed barley for grinding into their dairy or swine rations. Much of this poorer grade of barley comes from the western states and often contains mixtures which local barley growers find unprofitable to grow. Barley growers who purchase such feed supplies should be very careful in handling it to avoid mixtures in the home granary. Under no conditions should such feed barley be planted next spring.

PROLONG LIFE OF FARM MACHINERY

The emergency in farm equipment isn't coming; it's here now.

That's the way it now appears to Floyd Duffee, head of the agricultural engineering department at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. He sees an urgent need for increased production of farm products but is well aware that only a limited supply of new machinery is available for doing the job.

FEED FLAVIN TO LAYING HENS

A new word is creeping into the vocabulary of Washington county poultrymen. It is flavin—pronounced with a long "a" which poultrymen are using as a new name for vitamin G, a chemical substance needed by poultry for good growth and good egg production.

STORING GLADIOLUS BULBS

While storing gladiolus corms for the winter, home gardeners can do much to get rid of the gladiolus thrips, a small insect that does big damage to gladiolus, by employing either of these control methods recommended by the state department of agriculture:

1. Store the corms at a temperature of about 40 degrees all winter, since thrips do not survive in cold temperatures.
2. Treat the corms with chemicals.

STATE DAIRYMEN TO MEET AT WISCONSIN RAPIDS DEC. 8 AND 9

The annual meeting of the Wisconsin Dairymen's convention will be held at Wisconsin Rapids on Dec. 8 and 9. For the first time in history, the five major dairy breed associations are joining with the Wisconsin Dairymen's association to make this an all-Wisconsin dairymen's convention. A strong dairy program has been prepared for both days of the convention. The annual banquet will be on Monday evening, Dec. 8.

WHITEWASH THE DAIRY BARN

The farmer will find it easier to produce high grade milk if he gives his barn a thorough whitewashing at regular intervals, the state department of agriculture advises. White washing fills cracks and crevices, makes the barn lighter, encourages cleanliness and serves as a disinfectant.

WISCONSIN FEED SUPPLIES FROM 1941 CROPS

Based on the September crop report, estimates of feed production in Wisconsin show that feed supplies from 1941 crops will be smaller than last year. Hot, dry weather late in July and in August reduced the production of corn, oats, late hay, and pastures. While crops in the state were somewhat uneven, being better in some counties than in others, the supplies of feed grain are well below

NINE-IN-ONE FREAK

The result of a freakish quirk in Mother Nature was reported by Chas. Eisenbraut, town of Farmington farmer. It was a single branch of an apple tree holding nine full-size snow apples in one compact cluster. The branch was picked just before the frost. Mr. Eisenbraut is well satisfied with the 10-year old tree from which this freak was plucked. He reports that in addition to several bushels of windfalls the tree has yielded 12 bushels of hand-picked apples from its heavily laden branches. This apple tree came up from seed.

Steeds for Manhattan Mounties

Every year the New York police department buys 28 horses to replace that number retired from the four hundred that make up the "cop cavalry." These horses are as nearly alike as the buyer can get them. Age 4 to 8 years; geldings of between 1,000 and 1,250 pounds and between 15.3 and 16.2 hands high. Color must be bay (don't ask why). These photos, made at the remount depot, show principal stages in the training of police horses, under the tutelage of Sgt. James Gannon.

Sergeant Gannon and an assistant are putting the rookie horse through a lesson in control here.

Taking a high barrier all on his own. Riderless horses are put through their paces to accustom them to obey the spoken command.

Sacks of sawdust represent people in a mob. At left a rookie horse is being faced into a "mob." When trained this horse will know how to nudge people out of the way without hurting them. Right: The shrill thrill of a police whistle gives the ordinary horse a turn, but the police horse is taught to disregard it.

Ready for Four Horsemen, this quartet of rookie police horses is near the end of their training grind.

INSTALLMENT ELEVEN

STORY SO FAR: Bound for the gold country, six men lost their way on the Nottaway river. Red Isadore, Garrett Finlay, brother of one Lise, his pretty stepdaughter. After answering her appeal for help, Finlay is

"This is luck!" whispered Malone. "They're so drunk they've forgotten us."

"We can't be sure. They may have a guard on both shores," warned Garry. "We'll take the right-hand channel, Blaise. What in—"

The sudden scurry of feet and wings as a flock of disturbed shell drake skittered ahead downstream, stopped the boat.

"That cooks our goose!" cursed Red, softly. "They'll know something startled the ducks and will lay for us!"

"Go on, Blaise!" snapped Finlay. "We're in for it, now!"

With a push of his blade Blaise drove the canoe past the point of the island. In the bush drunken laughter still rose from the fire. Closer drifted the canoe. Cocked rifles covering the invisible shore aiders, Finlay and Red knelt, listening.

The canoe was passing the fire. In seconds they'd be clear and lost downstream. Then there was a grating sound as the nose of the Peterboro slid over a sand bar and the canoe came to a dead stop. They were trapped, yards from the shore!

Finlay and Red swiftly traded rifles for poles while Blaise strained to free the boat. One false move and they'd draw a blast of fire. They threw their weight desperately on their poles. There came the low call of "Kekway!" from the murk. The three men stiffened.

Crouched in the gloom the crew of the canoe waited for the crash of their rifles in their faces. A silence so deep it beat like sound, pulsed in their ears. Ten—twenty seconds and ambushed, but later escapes. They continue to keep it a secret that they are Mounted Police. Sent to investigate the deaths of the six "drowned" men, Finlay believes Lise was innocent and writes her a note.

gami. The door of the white-washed log trade-house opened and two men started for the landing. At the gate of the slab dog-stockade surrounding the trader's quarters a tall girl, whose golden bob the sun touched into flame, curiously watched. From a window of the frame house a woman and two half-grown children stared at the three men on the beach, for white travelers were rare at Matagami, buried in the Nottaway wilderness.

"Good day, gentlemen! Welcome to Matagami!" The trader, a sandy-haired man of fifty, shook the hands of the strangers. "I'm Duncan McNab, in charge here, and this is David, my head man."

Finlay introduced himself and his friends. "We passed through the lake some time back, Mr. McNab, on our way in to map Waswanipi."

"Map Waswanipi?" The shrewd blue eyes of the trader pictured his amazement. "You're a government survey party, then?"

"We were," Finlay shot an amused look at Red.

The heavy brows of the trader lifted. "Then you've finished?"

"No, Mr. McNab, we're not on the survey, now, but we haven't finished with Waswanipi." Finlay's face stiffened. "We've come to you for help and information. Then we're going back—to finish."

The clamp of his lean jaw and the points of fire in the speaker's eyes snapped McNab's head forward in a narrow-eyed stare. "I don't get you, Mr. Finlay. Let's talk it out over a pipe in the trader's room. Of course, you'll stay the night with us. We're pretty lonely, here, for a white face. Your men can stow your stuff in that shack. David will show him."

"Thanks," said Finlay. "I'll shut up my dog, too, before there's a fight."

Shortly the three white men sat in the trader's room.

"Now, Mr. Finlay," said McNab, exhaling a cloud of smoke, "would you mind getting down to brass tacks?"

Finlay was measuring the caliber of the man whom circumstances had forced him to trust in order to insure the delivery of his message to the railroad. This trader looked a man full in the eye and had a straightforward way with him. He seemed staunch. According to reports he had been worsted by Isadore in the fight for the fur trade. That was in their favor and should keep his mouth closed. There was nothing to be gained by waiting. "How well do you know Jules Isadore?" Garry suddenly asked.

The veins lifted in McNab's neck and temples as he tore his pipe from his teeth and rasped: "Too damned well!"

Finlay nodded at the grinning Red. "I thought that would be it, Well, Mr. McNab, we're going to tell you a story. It concerns the deaths of six men. First, possibly you'd be interested to look at that." Finlay produced his police badge and handed it to McNab, whose jaws sagged in his surprise. "We're Mounted Police and we're here to have a message relayed to the railroad."

McNab slowly returned the badge. His eyes strayed from the bronzed faces of the Mounties to the lines of their hard bodies filling the wool shirts and whipcord breeches. "Police, eh? I might have known from your eyes and the set of your shoulders. Well! Well! Up on Waswanipi posing as surveyors! So it's Isadore, at last!"

"Yes," said Finlay, "it's Isadore, at last!" Then he described the events of the past weeks while McNab, drawing furiously on his pipe, punctuated the narrative with outraged grunts.

"That's the story, McNab. For the present, not a word, even to your wife. When can you send a canoe to the railroad?"

"We're sending one shortly," he said. "But their firing on you on the Nottaway, then ambushing you, and you supposed to be on the government survey! I can't get over it, Sergeant! Of course I'd heard at the railroad of these reported drownings and had had my suspicions."

"They didn't believe we were on the survey," replied Finlay. Into his gray eyes crept the mist of memory. His voice was rough with pain as he asked: "Did those boys stop here last summer?"

"Yes. Nice boys, too!"

"One was my brother."

"Your brother? Oh, I'm sorry! You didn't say one was your brother when you told of finding their bodies."

"No."

"It's tough, Sergeant Finlay, damned tough! That crook—" McNab stopped his pacing to stand over Garry and shake a thick funk of "Why-why the man's a lunatic—mad as a wild wolf! He can't get away with this!"

"He's managed to so far."

McNab's face filled with blood as his anger increased. "I've seen a lot—guessed a lot, since the Comrade party to save the trade on this lake. We learned that Tete-Blanche was bribing our hunters with whiskey to leave us and trade their fur with Isadore. I reported it to the Company and the authorities. His freight was searched at Nottaway but he found nothing. They thought I was trying to hurt him because he was a competitor, and dropped it. I was reprimanded by our District Inspector for bringing charges. I couldn't prove it. Couldn't prove it," snorted McNab. "I had all the proof in the world."

"Garrett Finlay."

Reading Red said: "Please don't worry. We'll take care of you. I've just received good news from the railroad. The break in the night. Kinebuk has double-crossed Isadore to save his hide and has turned tonight for the head of Isadore. Keep a brave heart. You will be safe."

Finlay's reading Red said: "Please don't worry. We'll take care of you. I've just received good news from the railroad. The break in the night. Kinebuk has double-crossed Isadore to save his hide and has turned tonight for the head of Isadore. Keep a brave heart. You will be safe."

"Go on, Blaise!" snapped Finlay. "We're in for it, now!"

the men in the bow felt the canoe tremble. Blaise's signal to go! Like one man they strained against their poles. There was the scrape of wood on sand, the low wash of water and the canoe was backed clear.

The nose of the boat had sheered off into deeper water when again, the call of "Kekway!" rose from the invisible shore. The three stopped breathing as the boat drifted. Suddenly there was a movement in the alders and sprouts of flame from exploding rifles stabbed the gloom. With a savage thrust Blaise jumped the canoe downstream. The enraged airedale rose under his blanket, but was forced flat. There was a stampede of feet along the shore and full in their faces blazed a barrage of rifle shots. A splinter from the gunwale flicked Malone's cheek. Again lances of flame searched the river for the fleeing canoe.

"Steady!" muttered Finlay, as they raced into the murk.

The canoe grounded and was cleared again while the rifles of the Montagnais spat blindly at the invisible target. At last, far downstream Blaise trailed his paddle.

"Thanks, Isadore, for that whiskey!" panted Red, splashing water on his bleeding cheek. "If it hadn't been for the fact that they were drunk for a fare-thee-well, they'd have slaughtered us on that bar! Good thing we didn't let them have it, though! They'd have fired at the flashes. I thought they'd jump into the canoe."

"They didn't know what they were shooting at, Red! The guards on shore heard the duck pass; then the wash of water when we shoved off. By now they probably think it was one of those bank beaver we saw when we came up the river."

"Wen Injun gret drunk dey like to shove de gun," grunted Blaise. "Dey navare know if we pass or not onlies nose of cano' leave mark on dat bar. I tink not. De current take care of dat."

"You're right, Blaise," said Finlay. "We had them guessing. And we'll keep them guessing. I wonder if Kinebuk has won them all over or if these were only a few of the wildest Tete-Blanche bribed with Isadore's whiskey."

"It looks like Wabistan had lost all his influence," said Red. "Mebbe," replied Blaise. "We see." And his long paddle bit chunks from the water.

"Lise was right when she warned that Isadore is trying to bottle us up," said Finlay. "With the Montagnais hunting us all over the lake we'll have to step lively or we'll never see that plane from the north."

CHAPTER XII

Three days later the keel of the Peterboro slid into the gravel beach at the Hudson's Bay post at Matagami.

TO YOUR Good Health

By DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

RABBIT FEVER COMES DURING 'OPEN SEASON'

The open season for cottontails is just beginning and therefore it seems advisable to describe in some detail the rabbit fever disease to which man is most susceptible. First of all, I want to stress the fact that it is most commonly contracted by those who handle diseased rabbits shot for market or food. While few have died of this disease, three out of four cases in one family all of whom had what is known as "conjunctival" type died inside of eight days. Therefore, when you skin and dress cottontails even though you shot them yourself, be sure that the rabbits are healthy for the sick ones are easier to hit than are those that are well.

Deer fly or rabbit fever (Tulareemia) is an infectious disease caused by the bacterium tularensis which in 1912 was found to be the cause of a fatal epidemic among the ground squirrels in Tulare county, California. The disease is also epidemic among the cottontail, jack and snowshoe rabbits which constitute the great reservoir of the infection. High susceptibility is also found in man, in monkeys, guinea pigs, mice, woodchucks, opossums and coyotes.

Study of 121 Cases.

While man may acquire the disease from the bite of the deer fly which has bitten a rabbit or other rodent that has the disease, he does not acquire it from the rabbit tick that carries it from animal to animal in nature as that tick does not bite human beings. Most human cases are, however, acquired by those who skin or dress diseased rabbits. As a result, most of the human infections occur during the "open season" for wild cottontail rabbits, the months of November, December and January. A study of 121 case histories shows that 58 were in people who would clean and dress or cook the rabbits; 32 in farmers, ranchers and sheepherders and their help; 18 in laboratory workers who were studying the organism; and only 13 in all other occupations. Human cases due to manipulating diseased jack rabbits have occurred from April through September. Those due to the bite of a tick that infests man and rabbits occur in March, April, May and June and those due to the bite of the deer fly in June, July and August.

There is an incubation period of about three days in most cases followed by a sudden onset, often while the person is at work, of headache, vomiting, chills, aching bodily pains, sweating, prostration and fever. During the active stage of the disease which may last from two to three weeks, weakness, loss of weight, recurring chills, sweats and prostration are common. In the type with conjunctivitis there may be convulsions, delirium and stupor but fortunately no permanent impairment of vision has been reported. In the typhoidal type, fever is the only symptom and its course is very similar to that of typhoid fever from which it can only be differentiated by laboratory tests. Convalescence is slow. Most people who have the disease are unable to return to full time work for about three months and a few have been at least partially incapacitated for from six months to a year yet few have died because of it.

"In whatever diseases the eyes weep voluntarily, it is a good symptom, but when involuntarily, it is a bad."

QUESTION BOX

Send questions to Dr. Nathan S. Davis III, Winnetka, Ill. (Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Q.—What causes recurrent cases of hiccoughs? L. M. A.

A.—Irritation of the diaphragm, gall bladder disease, pleurisy, stomach trouble, emotional disturbances, and various toxins or poisons.

Q.—My fingernails are brittle and scale, but my teeth are in perfect condition. Can you explain this? E. A.

A.—Nail polish often causes the nails to become brittle.

Q.—What could cause a stabbing pain in the right side of the chest. This pain usually occurs while walking.

A.—Stabbing pain on right side of chest may be due to a simple condition such as a slight cold or congestion in chest muscles. It may, on the other hand, be due to an early gall bladder condition. One visit to your physician may be all that is necessary to find the cause.

Q.—Does smoking cigarettes cause eyestrain? N. L.

A.—It does not cause eyestrain but often causes trouble with vision.

EXPLAINING THE PRICE RISES

Customer—How much are fresh eggs today?
Retailer—Sixty-five cents a dozen.
Customer—I said a dozen, not two dozen.
Retailer—I heard you. Sixty-five cents a dozen. Five cents extra if I make an explanation.
Customer—How about storage eggs?
Retailer—Forty-two cents, and I'll make my explanation a cent cheaper.

Customer—Give me twenty cents' worth of eggs and one cent's worth of explanation. Why should eggs be up?
Retailer—It's the defense program.
Customer—Are we sending eggs to Russia?
Retailer—No, but Europe is getting a lot of our hens. And you know about the straw shortage, don't you?
Customer—No.
Retailer—All the straw is being used for Gallipoli straw votes. And with so little straw in their nests the hens won't lay. Is it clear?
Customer—No. I'll take a loaf of bread. Is that up?
Retailer—Yes, and I'll explain that. The country is short of dough.
Customer—If it ain't it soon will be. How about baloney? There is no shortage of that, is there?
Retailer—No, but it's gone up in sympathy. Baloney is one of our most sympathetic products. And don't forget we are sending a tremendous amount of baloney to Europe.
Customer—This is the first time I've heard anybody admit it.

SCENE II—A HABERDASHERY

Customer—How much are $2 shirts today?
Retailer—Three dollars and fifty cents. And I'll throw in a full explanation.
Customer—Shirts aren't necessary to the defense, are they?
Retailer—Of course they are. Would you defend the American way without a shirt?
Customer—I may have to!
Retailer—Could you use some socks? They've only gone up fifteen cents a pair.
Customer—Is there a sock shortage?
Retailer—No, but it's harder for me to explain why they should cost more, so I charge extra.

SCENE III—A RESTAURANT

Customer—What would you suggest?
Waiter—Our 85-cent order of goulash is very good at $1.25 a plate.
Customer—Good heavens! Why should goulash be up?
Waiter—It's the O.C.C.G. Office for the Control and Co-ordination of Goulash.
Customer—Must there be a federal board to control goulash?
Waiter—Sir, today there must be a federal board to control everything.
Customer—Bring me a ham sandwich. With mustard and a complete explanation why it should cost more.
Waiter—I'll be glad to explain everything. Do you understand inflation at all?
Customer—Not at all.
Waiter—Good! I'll explain it then.

THE BACHELOR LOOKS AT A FRIEND'S CHILD

Blessings on the little boy, Bellowing with fiendish joy! My heart leaps to see you, lad, Riding bareback on your dad.

When your daddy opes his trap, How you prattle, little chap! A cheerful hail, you lusty scion! I'm glad you're hizz'n and not "mion."

Drinks are to be made shorter in cafes because of higher liquor taxes. It was evidently found impossible to meet the situation by using worse bar whisky.

TYPING DEMONSTRATION
On Friday, Nov. 14, Barney Stapert former world's champion amateur typist, proved his excellent typing ability to the students of the Kewaskum High school. He was brought to the school by Mr. Sommers, a representative in this district, of the Underwood Typewriter company.
Mr. Stapert's official record is one hundred thirty-six words per minute for one hour of typing. He demonstrated the various rates of speed and also typed a few one-minute tests to prove his speed and accuracy.
Mr. Stapert gave the students a few pointers of achieving typewriting ability which they hope will prove to be helpful to them in their typing ability. The demonstration was enjoyed by all the students and was especially beneficial to those taking typing.

RED CROSS DISPLAY
During the Red Cross drive in this community there has been a display arranged in Renschelmer's window by the home economics department of our high school. The display is made up of garments made for the Red Cross by West Bend and Kewaskum workers with the Red Cross flag in the background. These garments were obtained from Miss Clara Jaehrig, executive secretary of the West Bend chapter. The purpose of the display is to remind all citizens of Kewaskum to join the Red Cross during their annual drive for membership.
The following home economics students had charge of arranging the display: Patti Brauchle, Marjorie Schmidt, Lois Koch and Margie Bartelt.

DR. GUDEX SPEAKS
On Tuesday Dr. Gudex from the state department of health gave a talk in the assembly.
The one thing that made the speech interesting was the humorous jokes told by Dr. Gudex.
Although the speech was humorous it also contained many suggestions for body nutrition. He stressed the idea that many school lunches lacked the necessary vitamins. We can get all the vitamins our body needs from the foods we eat.
The vitamin tablets we buy are not necessary unless a person uses alcohol. Alcohol burns up vitamin B.
The slogan of the state is, "When you drink don't drive and when you drive don't drink." This point was greatly stressed by Dr. Gudex and was the most important part of his speech.
—Helen Ferber

FOOD FARM defense FACTS

Payment rates for staying within wheat and potato allotments have been announced by Guido Schroeder chairman of the Washington County, AAA committee. The rates apply to the 1942 agricultural conservation program.
A payment of 10.5 cents a bushel has been set up for wheat, compared with 8 cents under the 1941 program. This payment applies to all counties in the state.
Potatoes for commercial use will bring a payment of 2 cents per bushel, as compared with 2.3 cents this year.
Chairman Guido Schroeder has pointed out that Washington county farmers will be able to earn 70 cents for each crop acre if no special crop is grown on that acreage. The money must be earned by approved soil-building practices. Acreage planted to special crops will be deducted from the total cropland when figuring payments on the 70-cent basis. Farmers of the state will have opportunity to earn more than $4 million dollars by soil-building practices.
Chairman Schroeder says that county AAA farmers are expected to devote at least 20% of the cropland on their farm to conserving crops during the entire 1942 crop year.
As in previous years, payments under the program depend upon the $500,000,000 annual appropriation authorized in the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, and rates are subject to a 10% revision up or down, depending upon the degree to which farmers generally participate in the program—when final payments are made.
Chairman Schroeder stresses the importance of farmers planning their programs this year in line with defense needs. The conservation program is aimed at increasing production of specific crops needed for defense. Our county is asked to increase the milk production by 13%; egg production by 6%, and hog production by 10%.

An urgent appeal is made to farmers of Washington county to contribute to a nationwide farm machinery repair program and a scrap iron drive. Chairman Schroeder appeals to county farmers to market scrap iron, saying that marketing now will make it possible for farm machinery to be produced in 1942.
Farmers contacted in the current sign-up campaign for the 1942 Farm Defense program, from now on will be urged to check their machinery and order needed repair parts at once.
The Washington county USDA defense board has been requested to organize at once and carry out a complete program before March 15.
"Farmers will be working for record production of food," said Chairman Schroeder. "There will be much less new farm machinery manufactured in 1942 than in 1940 and 1941. In addition in many areas fewer farm workers will be available than in recent years.
"With steel mills working at 100% production to meet defense needs, agriculture must get along with less than its usual supply of steel for machinery," he added.
A survey was made in Wisconsin county by county, of the 1942 needs.

A 1942 increase of 29% was shown in the demand for milking machines and 26% increase for hayloaders. Apparently, Badger state farmers are not too concerned about the tractor situation. An increase of about 3% was estimated. Each farmer is urged to check old machinery, order necessary parts from dealers immediately, and notify his county USDA defense board if parts cannot be obtained.
"Enough metal will be set aside for repair parts for farm machinery, but farmers must order repair parts early," said Chairman Schroeder. "Machines that would be discarded in normal times must be used in 1942 and must be maintained at maximum operating efficiency if we are to reach our record production goals."

Christmas Seals Light the Way

With a lighthouse as its theme, the 1941 Christmas seal sale will be held from November 24 until Christmas. The picture shows Kurt Tobias, first class seaman in the United States coast guard, explaining to Peggy Craig and John that just as a lighthouse guides vessels into port and warns them of rocks and other dangers, the Christmas seal signifies hope to thousands of tuberculosis sufferers and safety to the rest of us. Peggy already has her supply of 1941 seals.
