SPAB has ruled that no new public or private building may be started unless it is essential to the health and safety of the country. Pop, there goes that idea of a new two-car garage! . . .

The government must save all "critical material" for the war. Critical material is almost everything from the blueprint to the architect's bill.

The man who has just dug a cellar for anything may find he is just the custodian of a hole for the duration of the war.

. . . Director Donald M. Nelson says that if you have a building partly finished he will try to take you out of your position in mid-air, but it is more than likely that the man with a house only 50 per cent finished will save himself a lot of trouble by just putting a sign "Opened By Mistake" on the whole project.

This is an all-out war and it appears to be leaving the building all out of most everything from cellar door hinges to lightning rods. * * *

"Is the construction directly necessary for national defense, or for the health and safety of the civilian population?" This is the test question Washington asks. How are you going to make a new country home fit into that?

In fact, how are you going to make a garage fit?

Almost everything is necessary to defense, including those bronze door-knockers and the bathtub faucets.

"The House That Jack Built" is becoming the Bungalow That Nelson Stopped.

Mr. Nelson says the restrictions will halt "pork barrel" projects The answer to that is "Wanna bet?"

He will have his work cut out for him trying to convince a congressman that the new power dam at Corncob Valley isn't essential to the safety of the country and that the de luxe post office in Cribbage Hollow isn't vital to the health of every politician involved.

Some questions and answers issued by the SPAB to explain the situation include: Q.-If I were building a 10-story

The following morning Blaise and the fretting airedale, circled by the hostile post huskies, waited on the beach beside the loaded Peterboro. Over at the stockade gate Thistle's eyes clung to Malone's sober face.

"I've guessed what you are-you two," she said, her chestnut brows meeting as she searched his candid eyes in an effort to read what lay in his heart. "It's the way you Mounties carry yourselves-something so cool and masterful about you. You can't fool me, Mr. Man. I know you're police." Tears suddenly blurred her eyes as she drew a quick breath. "And I know from the way father acted this morning that he never expects to see you again! Oh, Red," she flung out desperately, "I want to see you again! I want you to come back, Neil!" Red had the girl's trembling hands in his. "I'm coming back, Thistle!" he said, and his voice was hoarse with feeling. "I'm coming back straight to Matagami-to you, kid." Then with a shrug of his heavy shoulders he swallowed hard and the dancing lights returned to his eyes. "Now flash those white dazzlers of yours in one of those smiles that makes my heart go pitty-pat or I'll rumple that gold stuff you call hair right before your mother who's watching us through the window." A smile broke through the girl's clouded face at the sally of the irresistible Red, but the pulse beat McNab returned the letter. hard in her brown throat. Over at the trade-house Finlay and McNab were saying good-by.

"My men should reach the steel with your report in thirteen days, but I wish you'd change your mind, Sergeant. Ask for immediate help and wait here for it!"

Finlay's thoughts were with the girl who waited for his message at Waswanipi. His mouth curled at a corner. In his eyes was the glint of sun on young ice. "McNab, the Mounted Police never send for immediate help!"

"I know! I know!" McNab wagged his head resignedly as he gripped Finlay's hard hand. "But I like you two boys! It's a shame-a rotten-" The trade-room door swung wide

Painting Doors T IS not always easy to paint doors when hanging normally, for the paint is likely to streak along the edges of the panels and in the mouldings. The job is much simplified by taking the door off its hinges and laying it flat on boxes or on something else that will bring it to a convenient height. In taking off a door, it should first be opened, so that the outer corner can be blocked up with pieces of wood or books to relieve the hinges of the weight. In all modern hinges the two parts are held together by pins, which can be driven out to separate the hinge halves. The lower hinge should be the first to be separated. If the upper hinge is separated first, and the door should tilt, the leverage would be so great that the lower hinge would be bent or even broken. In replacing the door, the upper hinge should be the first to be put together. With the door laid flat, paint or other finish goes on smoothly and evenly, with little chance that "tears" or "beads" will form.

Attaching Wood to Concrete. It is often necessary to attach shelves or other woodwork to concrete walls, and the job may be something of a problem. One sure method is to drill holes an inch or two deep in the concrete, making use of a star drill, which can be had at a hardware store. The hole is then plugged with a piece of soft wood, into which a screw can be driven. In place of the wood, the thread of the screw can be wrapped with a thin piece of sheet lead. Hardware stores carry prepared plugs for the purpose, usually sold with a drill. These plugs and drills come in different sizes. For a thin wall, as in the case of concrete block or lath and plaster, bolts with hinged ends, known as toggle bolts, can be had. The hinged end is pushed through the hole, and turns at right angles, which gives a solid support when the nut is screwed down.

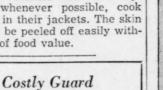

New Floor Over Old.

Question: Can a new hardwood floor be laid over an old floor? Or should the present floor be removed and the new one laid on the subfloor?

Answer: The new one can be laid on top of the old one, which will save labor. The old floor should first I smooth: protruding nails made either driven in or pulled out, and roughnesses of the floor planed or scraped down. At lumber yards you can get flooring intended to be laid over an old floor; it comes completely finished, so that no further finishing will be needed after laying. It is thinner than ordinary flooring, for it serves only as a finish.

"Yes, if you get back through the Quiet Water alive. They'll be waiting for you, you know." "We'll get back if we have to shoot our way through.'

"I hope so." "By the way, McNab, why did Isadore build such an elaborate outfit?'

"I can't account for it. It must be sheer vanity. He's certainly made big money in fur. But there must be something else. He's got a partner in Montreal, Blondell, who flies here every summer and, I'm sure, carries the liquor. They say he lives like a prince in the city. What my people are wondering, is what Blondell does in Montreal besides handle the fur."

"And they can't find out?"

"No. it's a mystery." "How about placer gold?" asked

Red. "That's what they've suspected. Flake gold and nuggets would be easy to transport secretly in a plane.

He may have struck some rich sandbars in the upper Waswanipi. That may be the answer. But Sergeant," muskeg and water and the trader rested his hand on Finre's fifty miles of it. It's lay's shoulder as they parted for don't want you to go back to Waswanipi. With the Indians loose and Isadore not knowing you're police it's deliberate suicide.

Finlay took the trader's big hand. The shadow of the pain which lanced his heart crossed his face as he thought of the boy in his grave beside the thundering Waswanipi. "As yet I've nothing tangible on Isadore except this liquor business with the Indians. Before I'm through I'll have something he'll swing for. I'm not sending for help, McNab. To-

"Do you recognize any of them?" he asked McNab.

"Not yet. But it's from Isadore's. He's got the only outboard motor in this country."

The two returned to the traderoom while Finlay made his plans. "Whoever it is, McNab, get them in here and pump them dry. We'll lie up there in the fur-loft and hear it Tell them we stopped for grub yesterday, on our way to Rupert. That may send them hunting us down river. And we'll surprise Isadore when we show up at Waswanipi "Correct. I'll handle those Indians.

"Make them talk even if you have to feed them some of that scotch of yours. It will be legal for it's an order from the police."

The two men grinned. "Leave it to me, Sergeant.' Red and Blaise appeared with their Lee-Enfields. "Don't think you'll need them, Red," said Finlay. "Now we'll hit that ladder for the loft."

"I'll have another look and let you know what I see," said McNab, as the three men disappeared through the trap-door of the fur-loft. As they lay on the floor of handhewn, spruce planks near the opening, Finlay outlined his conversation with McNab.

Sound-Proof Door.

Question: What is the simplest way to sound-proof a door between two apartments, or at least to deaden the sound?

Answer: Sound can be deadened by hanging two or three thick portieres over the door. For a better job, set four or five pieces of 1 by 2 across the door opening, from side to side, not touching the door. On these set a sheet of insulating board, cut to fit the opening. The joint between the door and the frame, all around, should first be packed with moth-proof felt, soft rubber strips, or something similar, for much of the sound comes through the joint.

Cleaning a Cellar.

Question: What is the best way to clean an old cellar in which there is a hot air furnace?

Answer: Everything in the cellar is probably coated with coal and ash dust, and the first step should be to loosen this by brushing. Then followed with a vacuum cleaner. Question: We live on a road intersection that is very noisy. Is there any kind of sound-proof glass that could be put in the windows of our living-room?

Answer: Glass in two thicknesses, separated by a quarter-inch or more, might do the trick, but would require new window frames. Double windows woud give you the same effect. Metal weatherstrips around the window should do quite as well. Another method would be to equip each one of the windows with an electric ventilator of a kind that admits air, but keeps out sound. These can be had from dealers in electrical equipment.

British Open New Offensive in Libya In Attempt to Divert Axis Attention And Create Second Front for Russia; Demand for Strike Legislation Grows

(EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) eleased by Western Newspaper Union.),

BRITISH:

Second Front

British tank units armed with U.S. military supplies opened what London termed a "second front" against the Axis powers when they opened smashing drive into Libya in North Africa.

Berlin sources denied London's claims that (1) the attack was a surprise and (2) that it really amounted to a second front. Berlin said that what Russia had been hoping for was not a drive in Africa but a campaign on the continent of Europe so that Nazi forces would have to be diverted from their efforts against Leningrad, Moscow and the southern Russian fronts.

But Britain's campaign in Lybia did take most world capitals by surprise and first reports indicated that 750,000 British troops aided by the R.A.F. had started their attempt to drive all Italian and German forces from North Africa.

First objective was the relieving of the besieged British forces at Tobruk, Libya. Here a British garrison had been holding out against the Nazis and Italians since mid-April.

STRIKE:

'Unsound Premise'?

The breakdown of negotiations between President Roosevelt and John L. Lewis over the "captive coal mine" strike had been followed by the actual walkout of some 53,000 miners, an immediate loss to the involved steel companies of close to a million tons of coal.

The walkout had come to cap a previous climax reached when the house was considering the neutrality act. This found the members openly deserting the administration, feeling that the President was too lax on labor, and was letting Lewis dictate to the White House?

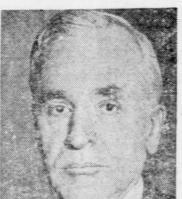

The President, who long had kept thumbs down on anti-strike legislation, had stood his ground although the pressure on him to give way to JAPAN: Carrying the Ball? Treading gingerly, much as a novice would attempt to walk barefooted over a Hindu fakir's bed of spikes, were Secretary Hull and Saburo Kurusu as they had started their conversations looking to a better understanding between America and Japan-or a better misunderstanding.

Kurusu, using a familiar autumnal term in the United States, had said that he was carrying the ball for Japan, and that he hoped to make a touchdown.

But neither he nor Hull were setting any speed records in their broken-field running. . Early stages of the talks were "exploratory," both said, and if there was anything sinister about the affair it came from Kurusu, who asked reporters, "Why are Americans so war-minded?' This brought a smile to the correspondents who were thinking in terms of Japan's record as opposed to that of the United States.

After the first conversation with Hull, the Nipponese envoy was asked, "Still think you'll make that touchdown?" He answered gravely, "I don't know."

RUSSIA: Offensive

The Red army had taken the offensive in the northern and central sectors, but on the south was losing an important battle to preserve connection with the Caucasian oilfields, vital to her armed forces. The Nazi invasion force in the Crimea had taken Kerch, last port on the eastern tip of the Crimean peninsula, and only a two-mile strait separated her troops from a foothold on the Caucasus itself. Yet it was to be a difficult foothold to gain, and even more difficult the popular congressional demand for such a law became terrific.

He made strong statements on the issue, charging Lewis with an unsound premise in demanding a closed shop for the miners in captive pits simply because the Appalachian agreement in the coal industry had given the closed shop in commercial mines.

There had been evidence that the strike which began in the steelowned mines would spread to commercial mines as well, on a "sympathy" basis.

The expected stories of violence and disorder appeared, but still there had been no immediate move to call out the troops, the only such maneuver being the mobilization of two companies of the Alabama home guard.

There also had been threats of sympathy strikes in steel plants, but one of these was called off on the plea of members of the United Mine Workers themselves, who urged the steel employees to stay on their jobs until the mine strike was settled.

REPERCUSSIONS:

From Walkout

The expected aftermath of the actual strike, particularly in view of what had gone before in the way of pleas from the President and refusals from Lewis, was widespread excitement concerning the labor situation, particularly as strikes were of the English channel for 50 minthreatening which would involve thousands of other workers in vital industries.

A railroad strike, which would call out 1,200,000 workers, for instance, was impending and mediation was having tough going.

Also there was a threat of a strike of the long distance telephone employees, and it required little imagination to conceive of how disastrous that would be to defense work.

To it all the President said, in his message to the C.I.O. convention which backed up his foreign policy: "We need guns, tanks, planes and ships and we must produce guns. tanks, planes and ships without delay and without interruption . . .

"I have every confidence that the C.I.O. . . . will co-operate . .

Oddest of all reactions, yet typical in its scope was that of the Lee County draft board at Fort Myers. Fla. The board signed a statement sent to the President declaring:

"We do not feel that we can conscientiously sign induction papers for any more trainees as long as of intelligence activity." John L. Lewis dictates the labor policy of the U. S. government and deprives these $21-a-month soldiers struck for 30 minutes, a out the scourge across the sea."

They are Miss Caroline Haslett of Great Britain and Senora Ana Rosa S. de Martinez Gercero of Argentina. Miss Haslett is an engineer and adviser to the British ministry of labor, somewhat comparable in her career and achievements to our Lillian Moller Gilbreth of Montclair. N. J. She will study the participation of American women in the defense effort and will deliver some and spelling, was that of Gilbert addresses on the technical and industrial mobilization of British women in the war. She is president of the Women's Engineering society, director of the Electrical Association of Women, founder and editor of the Woman Engineer and the Electrical Handbook for Women. With many variants and on many occasions, she has said: Women once asked for equality of opportunity. Now we ask for equality of responsibility."

The career of Senora De Martinez Gerrero has been a close parallel to that of Miss Haslett in its repeated stress on social responsibility. She came to Washington to attend the annual meeting of the Inter-American Commission of Women of which she is chairman. A spirited evangel of Western hemisphere solidarity against totalitarianism, she tells the meeting that the mission of women is to "rekindle the flame of a living faith in democracy." Senora De Martinez Gerrero is the wife of a wealthy cattleman and the mother of three children.

She is president and founder of the Argentine Union of Women, president of the League for the Protection of Young Girls and organizer of the Accion Argentine, as a bulwark against Fascism. Just a few years ago women interviewers would have had a field day with the coiffure and the gowns which the modish and beautiful senora wears. These are but casually noted now, possibly in deference to the new adulthood of intelligent women who seek "equal responsibility," without undue emphasis on such adventitious matters as dress.

certain amount of inflation.

When full war production is fully achieved, when every human unit and every piece of material which is not actually needed for the minimum non-defense production is at last being utilized in the war effort, then prices can be frozen, the British believe, and not before. It is perhaps this philosophy which some of the administration leaders have borrowed and which eventually will be adopted by congress-if it is not too late by the time congress makes up its mind to act.

'Farm Bloc' And Inflation

In the next few weeks you are going to hear some unpleasant things about the farmer. He is going to be blamed, whether justly or not, for encouraging inflation by refusing to allow farm prices to be curbed sufficiently to hold off inflation. In this connection you are going to hear the term "farm bloc" applied to al lthe interests working rightly or wrongly for the farmer. This inclusive use of the phrase is incorrect. A bloc, according to the dictionary, is:

"Bloc, (French, bloc or lump) 1. Politics (a) in European countries, especially in France and Italy (this was before Mussolini and Petain, of course) a combination of two or more groups or parties willing to make common cause for some definite object. Paint It Yourself There is no great trick to putting on paint. Almost anyone can do it, with a little practice, and few things add so much to the appearance of the home, inside or out, as does a coat or two of fresh paint. You can give your house and other buildings new life with a few simple strokes of the brush. Here are some pointers on how to begin.

If the surface which is to be painted is of new wood, it will need little preparation to receive the paint. It should be brushed to remove dust or loose dirt, or, if speckled with mortar or cement or similar material, it should be scraped until it is clean. If, however, it contains pitchy knots, such knots should be charred to kill the pitch. Yellow pine or other very resinous wood should be brushed with turpentine just before painting; cypress, with naphtha or benzol

If the surface to be painted has been painted before and has begun to scale, all old paint must be removed. This is usually done with a wire brush. If nail holes show loose putty, this, too, must be removed. The holes may be refilled with putty after the first coat of paint has been applied. A surface that has been enameled or varnished should be rubbed with an abrasive until the gloss is removed. Painted or varnished walls in kitchen or bathroom must be washed in soapy water, thoroughly rinsed, and dried before applying paint. A shingled roof or outside wall that has been creosoted can not be painted unless it has been weathered for several seasons, nor can a whitewashed surface be painted until the whitewash has been completely removed. Any brick surface that has once been painted can be repainted if the surface is gone over carefully to remove any loose paint, but if the bricks have never had a coat of paint it is advisable to apply an undercoat of some sort-either a prepared undercoat or kettle-boiled linseed oil-to close the pores before painting.

Before applying either oil or wa-ter paints to a plastered surface, all old coats of calcimine, coldwater paint or whitewash, or wall paper must be removed. Unless a surface has previously been coated with oil paint or sized, such coverage must be made before applying calcimine or cold-water paint. ESTIMATING THE AMOUNT

A recent government bulletin offers the following general estimate: "For a two-coat repainting job on a house of moderate size and in good condition, it is fairly safe to get as many gallons of paint as used is lamb shanks, but I assure there are rooms in the house. PEOPLE OF ALL AGES The sudden chill, followed by fever, rapid and painful breathing, a distressing cough with the raising of bloody sputum, and blueness of the lips, that mark the onset of a pneumonia, strike terror to the hearts of all. In one or another of its types, it attacks all ages. Until very recently, one-fourth to one-third of those Dr. Nathan S. who had it died. Davis III

From 1921 to '23, its annual death rate among males was 81.9; among females, 63.9 per 100,000.

Beginning about five years ago, the death rate from pneumonia has fallen rapidly. As a result of the use of improved sera and of the development of rather specific chemical therapy for its treatment, its annual death rate had for 1938 to 1940 fallen to 38.8 per 100,000 for males and to 23.9 for females.

The number of cases of pneumonia has, however, not been reduced appreciably, yet the sting has been removed as the death rate has been more than cut in half.

Some progress seems to have been made in the prevention of pneumonia by the use of a vaccine but for the conquest of the pneumonias, we still depend on improvements in the methods of treatment.

Developments have been so rapid in this field during the last few years that it is not possible to state definitely what the most effective method of treatment is. A few doctors depend chiefly on the various types of specific sera. Others use both free.-Adv. the sera and the sulpha drugs.

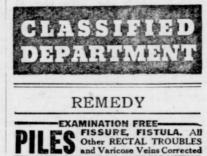

Oxygen therapy which was largeresponsible for the improvement in the mortality statistics prior to 1935, is also of great value.

Fortunately the new preparations for the treatment of the pneumonias seem to be equally effective in all age groups. The sulpha remedies are, however, sufficiently toxic to make them unsafe for indiscrimi-

MAKE AN OLD ROOM NEW

• It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy It. It gives us the most priceless feeling In the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

• When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets-shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.
