HIGH PRICES

Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay.

Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what, you are getting more for your money-more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.

caught the wind of Montagnais on the other island he would have waked the sleeping men at once, for the airedale could wind an Indian d you will die against at a half mile. No, it was some unusual game smell that baffled him; something that had aroused the dog's curiosity but had not irritated him. He was not gagged because he was fall, Blaise started to circle the tied up and had been trained not to bark when tied. But when he finally struck game on the island he | the dog leading into the moss, and would let go that bark of his. That would be bad.

Now what was the dog doing over there all this time to keep so quiet? The problem was too deep for Blaise to solve offhand. And he was worried. Something strange had happened.

Something so unusual that it called for action. It might involve their lives. Flame might even be dead, already, if the Montagnais had discovered the camp and were waiting for night to come across the strait and knife them in their sleep. Yet Flame had not winded Montagnais on that island. If he was dead he had been killed suddenly before he could bark. What could have Blaise, he navare forget you. He

Blaise Brassard determined to investigate. Retracing his steps he shouldered the Peterboro hidden near the camp and made his way through the scrub to the mud beach. Then with his rifle across a knee he paddled to the island and found the tracks of the airedale on a narrow beach. Caching the canoe in the brush Blaise started to follow the dog's trail into the heart of the timber.

He had traveled less than a hundred yards from the shore when he suddenly squatted while his narrowed eves roved the thick forest growth about him. Lifting his head his nostrils caught a pungent odor in the air. Then his gaze fell to the birch shoots in front of him. Reaching, Blaise drew the shoots toward him and sniffed at the green, scalloped edged leaves which glistened as if smeared with oil.

"Beaver castor!" he muttered. "I bin smellin' dis all de way from de shore. Dat w'at make Flame swim to dis islan'-beaver castor."

"Beaver castor!" he repeated, rubbing his square chin, his swart face wrinkled in thought. "No beaver on dis islan'!" Slowly the slits of eyes widened as a solution of the mystery began to crystallize in Blaise's active brain. He moved on through the undergrowth and, shortly, found more birch shoots with leaves smeared with the pungent oil, from the glands of the beaver, widely used by Indians as a game lure at trap-sets and carrying an irresistible appeal to the furred and shaggy owners of fang and claw.

"Dey are here, on dis islan'!" he murmured. "Dey use dis castor to draw de dog ovair here and kill him. Den dey come tonight. He navare get dere wind, w'en he come, becuz dey smear de beaver castor s which hovered on demself. All poor Flame smell a look. Silently following the trail of beaver castor smeared at intervals on low bush, like a fox stalking woodmice, Blaise worked through the timber into the heart of the island.

At length the timber began to thin out and Blaise reached the edge of a natural clearing. What had become of the dog? Hidden in a clump of seedling spruce which commanded a view of the opening Blaise waited. Where were the Montagnais who had enticed the dog to his doom?

Blaise had waited for some minutes in his "hide" when he chanced to glance at the sky and notice an eagle circling high above the break in the timber.

"W'at dat fallar see, down here?" Blaise muttered. "He got his eye on somet'ing. Is it de dog?"

Wings spread, the eagle drifted down in wide spirals while the man in the spruce watched, his heart sore with knowledge of what the bird's movements meant. So it was "a'voir" to poor Flame! The eagle was making his last circle prepara-wheeled in the air and flapped away over the spruce tops.

"Ah-hah!" The cocked Lee-Enfield covered the center of the clearing. "Somet'ing scare dat eagle from landin' out dere! W'at was it?"

Convinced that Flame lay stiff in death out there in that spagnum moss, crushed in a trap or deadclearing. Shortly, as he crawled, he came upon the unmistakable trail of moceasin tracks in soft soil leading away from it.

Reckless with wrath and grief for his friend Brassard rose and waiked boldly from cover into the patches of moss and Labrador tea. Halfway across the open space he found what he had dreaded. Under the heavy drop-log of a dead-fall lay Flame's limp body.

Lured by the irresistible scent of the beaver castor the gallant airedale had followed its trail directly to the dead-fall. With a groan Blaise dropped to his knees beside the dog he had loved from puppyhood.

"Flame!" he muttered "W'y you do dis, Flame? You poor chien! navare-Brassard was lifting the drop-log of the dead-fall, easing the dog's body, when he suddenly caught his breath. "By gar! Dat dog is warm, yet!" His swiftly groping fingers sought the dog's breast ribs and explored his neck and spine. "Dat log not break his neck or back!" he gasped in his joy. "And his heartit beat! He still live! De drop-log crack him on de head, by gar, and knock him out!" Blaise's ear pressed against the shaggy ribs. "For sure! For sure, Flame! Dat old heart, she go good!" Brassard's fingers touched the dog's skull. "Dere it is! Right on de head! Big lump dere! It hit you on head, not de back or neck, and de t'ick moss save you, by gar!" Because the builders of the trap of logs had been careless in removing the thick carpet of moss on which it stood, the dog's neck and back had not been crushed by the release of the drop-log when he reached the bait of moose meat smeared with beaver castor. Instead he had taken a glancing blow on the skull which had knocked him out.

Reaching, Blaise took the inert body of his friend into his arms and laid it on a soft bed of moss. Then the overjoyed man rubbed and kneaded the circulation back into the iron frame. At length the dog's legs twitched and his blood-shot eyes met recognition. The stub of a tail lifted and fell. Shortly the airedale struggled to get to his feet, but sank back on the moss where Blaise's hand restrained him.

"Quiet, now! Take your time, boy! By gar, it is good to see you alive! Bad crack you take on de head. Blaise stay wid you right here ontil you not so dizzy, eh?" After a space Flame again insisted on getting to his feet. Blaise watched the dog slowly regain his equilibrium, shaking his head in an attempt to clear the mists from his brain. At last Flame's strength began to return, for he no longer reeled as he walked about Brassard whose roving eyes covered the edges of the clearing. When Flame began to show interest in the smeared bait of the trap and his nostrils quivered as they caught the seductive aroma Blaise felt that the dog could make the trip back to the canoe. He picked up his rifle and, followed by Flame, left the clearing.

As they entered the thick timber there was a warning rumble from Flame. He leaped past the surprised Brassard, fell, recovered and roared his airedale challenge as two bodies catapulted into Blaise's back hurling him headlong to the ground As he fell and instinctively rolled from the weight of the men on his back the halfbreed tore the .45 from its holster. A hand gripping a knife drove past his neck and buried its blade in the leaves. Blaise caught the Indian's wrist and with a wrench had the writhing body beneath him. Clubbing the .45 he bludgeoned the Montagnais into unconsciousness. Leaping to his feet he saw the injured airedale drive at the second Indian's legs, dodge a knife thrust as the Indian backed away, then leap again as the Montagnais reached for the rifle which had slipped from Brassard's hands when he was struck from the rear. Indian and airedale rolled over and over in the brush, the dog slashing with his long fangs as the other tried to use his knife. With a leap Blaise reached them and the clubbed .45 struck again. Holding the maddened dog off the stunned Indian Blaise swiftly bound his hands and feet with strips of his shirt, and repeated the operation on his companion lying unconscious a few yards away. A quick examination proved that the raging Flame had escaped with a surface cut. Picking up his rifle Blaise and the dog started for the canoe. "You t'ink I am crazee not to shoot dose fallar, Flame?" the man said to the dog at his side. "If I shoot dat old .45 we have t'ree-four, mebbe ten-twenty on our heel before we reach de cano'. Dere are plenty Montagnais across de islan' waitin' for night. You and Blaise now go wake up Red and Garry and start up de lake, tout suite, w'en dark comes. Crossing the strait with the dog Blaise carried the canoe to the camp and waked his sleeping friends 'Wal, you fallar sleep pretty hard w'ile Flame and me make a little troub." for ourself."

Infants Under Year Old Enjoy Christmas Gifts, Baby Claims

Phoey! If I couldn't talk better than this I'd keep still. And then they have the audacity to assume that babies under one year are too young to enjoy Christmas. Last month we conducted a poll among babies 12 months of age or younger, asking them if they considered themselves capable of enjoying Christmas. Exactly 987 of the 1,000 babies questioned replied emphatically in the affirmative. The 13 who voted "no" are going to be a year old before Christmas and felt they would have a better chance of getting presents from relatives if their younger cousins were left out. But that's a purely selfish motive and doesn't affect the unanimity of the Other children want only toys they can play with, but we babies can appreciate the more practical gifts such as cribs, playpens and jumper-swings. They are virtual necessities to us and make our lives much more pleasant.

Clothing also makes excellent gifts. A few of the many articles we would be glad to receive include shirts, night gowns, dresses, rompers, shoes, stockings and bonnets. One of the most practical and welcome gifts for any baby would be an automobile seat. These can be attached to the seat of any automobile and permit babies to see out, but prevent them from falling out. Babies must be able to sit up before using them, but all babies learn to sit up before they are very old. And we enjoy looking out of the window of the car as much as you do. There may never be a Casey Jones of the air, the bucko lad who will ride anything, anywhere, on the slightest provocation. Just a look at the dashboard of a modern plane is enough to convince one of that. Even the Lindbergh saga might have been different if it had been paced to differential equations. But, of course, there will be another Kipling with another "Night Mail," who will find in modern air transport an exalted theme-this time fully realized. Just now there seems to be no master or journeyman of say they do and some say they don't. Miss Cathrine Curtis, the tall, Junoesque lady who organized women investors in America, a few years back, not only insists that women do have all this money and sav-so, but makes it a business to see that they get a play for it-a big new feminine pressure group if you want to put it that way.

At Washington, Miss Curtis leads her embattled 70 per cent -if that's what it is-into a fight against price control legislation. Her battle is one of many, on various public issues, which she has centered at Washington.

In her home town, Glen Falls, N. Y., where her father ran a hotel, the 18-year-old Miss Curtis saw Gus Thomas' play, "Arizona." She followed it around the up-state circuit and became so saturated with its romantic glamour that she kept right on going-to Arizona. There Harold Bell Wright saw her and put her in his moving picture, "Shepherd of the Hills." This was her start in various moving picture and ranching enterprises. It was in 1935 that, in New York, her present home, she organized the women investors. It appears that nobody ever has figured out how much of that 70 per cent is merely something in the wife's name for safe-keeping.

I N 1840, the principality of Sarawak, in Borneo, was a safe retreat where one might hide out and let the world go by. James Brooke of England, and his descendants found it so, for 101 years, ruling 500,000 persons. There's an end of that, with Lieut. Gen. A. E. Percival, flying from Singapore to Sarawak, 400 miles, to inspect and enlarge defense operations on the Borneo northwest coast. Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, white rajah, co-operates. Sarawak is important in empire survival, as an air base.

No more privacy for the white rajahs, and probably never again. In 1936, they sent out A. W. D. Brooke, young Oxonian and nephew of Sir Charles, to run the country. With increasing world tension, Sir Charles found his nephew "unfitted for the job," and took over himself. Ever since the discovery of oil in Sarawak in 1910, England has been more watchful and interested, and Sir Charles has taken on more of the functions of a colonial administrator. # Changes Are Proposed In U. S. Sugar Quotas

Administration Holds That Revision of Present Arrangement Would Represent a Slap at America's Good Neighbor Policy.

By BAUKHAGE

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W,

Washington, D. C. Sugar Quota And 'Good Neighbors'

In 1934 "after long and extensive hearings," as the Congressional Record puts it, a sugar law was The law stabilized the passed. sugar industry by establishing quotas to be raised, imported and refined and provided for benefit payments to growers for following certain agricultural and labor practices. Again, in 1937, after long and extensive hearings it was renewed. Behind that phrase "long and extensive" lies the story of a ferocious battle on the part of the sugar inthe last 15 years shows that he had terests to defeat the administration to keep his mind on his work to atmeasure. Each time they failed, but early this month in 40 minutes and in the teeth of the state department, the department of interior, the department of agriculture and the White House, the law was so rewritten by the house of representatives as to amount to defeat of administration wishes. The senate is as yet to act, after studying reports from the above named departments. The bill as originally written authorized the secretary of agriculture to estimate the amount of sugar required by American consumers for a definite period. Then, according to a prescribed scale, it apportioned quotas among the producers of continental United States, Puerto Rico, the Ha-waiian Islands, Cuba and other foreign countries.

As passed by the house, the present measure would increase the amount of sugar purchased from the beet and cane sugar growers on mainland and reduce the amount of raw and refined sugar purchased from other growers.

This step, if finally enacted into law, says the administration, would be a slap in the face of good-neighborship: Cuba alone would have her quota cut by 50,000 tons of raw and 75,000 tons of refined sugar. And it would completely dislocate the computations of Secretary Wickard who thinks that the sugar quotas and benefit payments for certain practices have kept the sugar situation pretty well in hand.

The only lobby I ever heard the President mention by name is the 'sugar lobby." It is one of the most powerful pressure groups in the capital.

Speaker Rayburn Has Power, Energy

I looked down from the radio gallery of the house of representatives the other afternoon on a large pink globule in the well of the chamber. Every eye in the house was centered on it. It seemed to glow, to radiate power and energy as well as a roseate hue.

It was the all but hairless head of Speaker Sam Rayburn, and out of that head came the energy which directed the action which saved from defeat the administration's measure to revise the neutrality law. It was that energy which jammed through the Security Exchange law against stone wall opposition. It was that energy which carried out an idea starting in that same head when it was on callow shoulders and finally made him speaker of the United States house of representatives.

A barefoot boy curled up in the corner reading biographies of the country's great men was the avatar of this congressman. And he was still a schoolboy when he announced the fact that he was going to run for the state legislature as soon as was going to be speaker some day and after that run for congress. And that's just what he did. And all he had to start with was $25 and his father's blessing.

Young Sam Rayburn was 1 of 11 children, whose forbears came by way of Tennessee from Virginia to stars, to say nothing of the advice a borderline county in Texas (he was born in Bonham) and there turned the virgin furrows in a neighborhood that still wins its bread from the

The country schoolhouse was the community center of the times and burn buggy was tied while the whole family heard the local politician's oratory, or attended the recitations or spelling-bees and discussed the latest news in the weekly editions of the Courier-Journal.

When Sam had absorbed all that the country school had to offer either in its regular sessions or when some visiting pundit proclaimed his views, he went to his father and said he had to go to college. The father was in favor of the motion but regretfully explained that there was nothing in the till for racoon-skin coats or flivvers or the local equivalent of the day. He did, however, present his ambitious son with $25 in coin of the realm and escorted him to the station on the branch line that was to take him to the Texas normal college. The boy was a good student, bright and determined to learn all that there was taught him. But when he finished his course and since he was, as we have noted, already on his way to congress, the next step was naturally the State university law school

His shingle was hardly floating on the Bonham breezes when he was already ready for the legislature. At 24 he was elected. He was a member for four years and then, as per schedule, was elected speaker and served in that capacity for two more. Meanwhile in the summers he practiced law. Then one day in 1912 the county paper announced in blackfaced headlines:

"Stores Closed All Day and Everybody Out to Hear Fannin County's Gifted Son Who Is Candidate for Congress.'

Just how this specialist in measures dealing with some of the most intricate and abstruse principles of political economy translates his record into votes for his constituents would seem difficult to fathom. His purely agricultural district is far more interested in stock with four legs and a moo than it is in a stock exchange, and a transportation act to them is chiefly the act of transporting a bale of cotton from hither to hence. But he gets things done for the folks and they seem to take him and his other achievements at their face value.

Written in large letters of achievement against his name are the Securities Exchange act, the Holding Company act and the Rural Electrification act, all, and especially the first two, representing long and bitter battles.

The pressure exerted on Representative Rayburn during the battle for the securities and holding company laws was terrific. The President knew this would be the case and that was the reason the Texan was chosen to handle them. Everybody knew that once he got his teet into the measures neither fine words nor offered favors nor threats would make him let go.

It is still Sam Rayburn-now stepping down from the speaker's rostrum-who is picked to lead some of the President's biggest battles on Capitol Hill.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Plan For U. S. 'Farmerettes'

You can take the city girl out of the city but can you take the city out of the girl?

That will be the problem of the Office of Civilian Defense if Mrs. Roosevelt's idea, which she discussed at one of her recent press conferences, goes through.

The idea is to create a "land army" of women to help the farmers handle their crops next year when male hands will probably be scarce. If an unpaid land army of volunteer women workers is created, Mrs. Roosevelt's idea is that the Physical Training division of the Civilian Defense organization unhe finished his law course, that he dertake the training of the "farmerettes." This division is headed by the famous athlete, former Olympic scull star, John Kelly. Obviously skull practice is necessary for contestants on an agricultural team. Mr. Kelly has as his assistants Alice Marble and Mary Brown, tennis and counsel of former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey and the famous sports writer, Grantland Rice.

Undoubtedly Mr. Dempsey, who has tossed many a haymaker in his day, would be an excellent trainer here on many a festal day the Ray- for the ladies who hope to emulate Maude Muller. Perhaps the best evidence of unpreparedness came from New York, where a simple query about a rumor of a plane sighted out to sea nced back and forth until nearly 300 planes at Mitchel field took off and criss-crossed the approaches to New York, and a goodly portion of New England's war production industries evacuated with considerable loss to production.

The originator of it all turned out to be an identifiable civilian who was absolved of all blame. New York, however, realizing how tenuous its preparedness was, proceeded to carry through a program of test warnings designed to get the machinery in order.

First and most salutary reaction of the attack by Japan on the United States and the subsequent declaration of war by a practically unanimous congress was the vanishing of all controversy, and the unity of the people as to our war aims.

President Roosevelt's speech in which he outlined the U.S. aims as 'victory in war and victory in peace" met with universal approbation, even from those who had been his sternest critics.

Latin-America, as a whole, was swift to rally around the American banner, and though there were exhave been better if the planes had ceptions as to a whole-hearted declaration of war, even these nations assured the United States that they were with us at heart.

Mexico made arrangements to rush her troops around through American territory into Lower California to present a defense front there against a possible Japanese land invasion.

of this country, and Argentina, which said she would remain neutral, declared she would consider this country a non-belligerent, thus permitting us to refuel or repair war vessels in her ports without time limit.

The Pan-American Republics decided it would be a good thing for all the foreign ministers to meet and to map out a united front for this hemisphere against the enemy.

To the north Canada, its West coast sandwiched in between the United States and Alaska, girded itself for the conflict, the United Kingdom having followed this country promptly with a declaration of war against Japan.

President Roosevelt truly pointed out that "four-fifths of the people of the world are on our side," and in this hemisphere the groundwork done during the past year and a half was bearing fruit.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE by Roger B. Whitman

Settlement of New House

A NY newly built house can be expected to show cracks in plaster walls and elsewhere through the effects of settlement. Settlement occurs as the foundations are forced deeper into the earth by the weight of the house, and also by the shrinking of timbering as it dries out. Settlement of the foundations can be prevented by adjusting the size and thickness of the footings to the character of the ground; wide footings for ground that is soft or that has been filled, and narrower if the ground is firm and solid. The greatest shrinkage in timbers will be in the cross section; that is, in breadth and thickness. If there are many more layers of timber in the framework of an outside wall than in that of an inside wall, the outside wall will settle more than the other. The walls should be so designed that they have the same thicknesses of timbers. Settlement will then be equal in all parts of the house, and there should be no cracking of plaster or distortion of door frames. Some degree of settlement cannot be avoided, and cracking is worse when it is greater in one part of the house than in another. With equal settlement there is no trouble.

Bathroom Decoration Question: How can I cover or remove an enamel combination of orchid and black from my bathroom walls? I should like to finish the walls with white enamel. Answer: If the walls are now tiled, the color can be changed only by sandblasting or with an acid treatment that will eat into the glazed surface, which will then hold enamel. If the surfaces are of plaster or a tile substitute, the enamel can be taken off with a paint remover. Another method would be to cut the glaze of the enamel by rubbing with medium coarse sandpaper, which would give a "tooth" for new enamel to bond with. However, if the black is not removed, more coats of enamel must be used to hide it than would be needed over a lighter

Clogged Drain

Question: The drain pipe outside my house has very little pitch, and makes a right turn. It frequently clogs with grease at the angle. The only way to clear it out is through a cleanout plug. Can you make any suggestions?

Answer: One way to get around Cuba, Panama, Costa Rica and that trouble is to install a grease others went all the way in support trap under the kitchen sink, which would separate out the grease before it could reach the drain pipe. The trap would require occasional cleaning, but this would be a much simpler matter than your present arrangement. A good plumber should be able to supply the trap and install it.

Baseboard Crack

Question: Through settlement, there is a crack up to three-eighthsinch wide between flooring and baseboard. The house is 14 months old. Is it time to close the crack by moving the quarter-round moulding? Answer: You can do that job at any time, provided you do it correctly. The strip of moulding should not be nailed either to the baseboard or to the flooring, but with long nails put in diagonally to pass through the open joint between flooring and baseboard, and into studs and other timbers behind. This will keep the crack closed, regardless of settlement.

Porcelain Sink

Question: I am told that lemon juice will injure a porcelain sink, and that hot water in which potatoes have been boiled will make a stain. Is this true?

Answer: Any kind of an acid will eat into ordinary porcelain on plumbing fixtures; but fixtures of good quality, and especially sinks and drainboards, are finished with acid proof porcelain. Stains in sinks can usually be removed with a liquid

Damp Ceiling 1 teaspoon powdered ginger Question: On one of our bedroom

1/4 teaspoon mace ceilings there is a spot which becomes wet in damp or rainy weather, although there are no leaks, the water cannot get in. What will pre-Bake in a shallow, buttered casse-

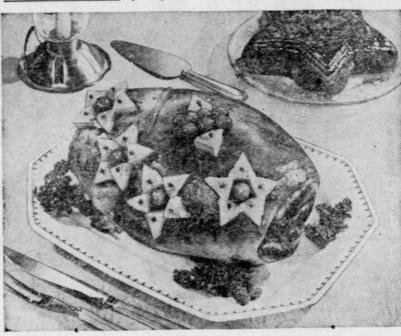

Answer: The plaster at that spot is evidently of a kind that absorbs dampness from the air. To prevent trouble, put a coat of aluminum paint on the spot at a time when it is dry, decorating it with the rest of the ceiling.

Smokepipe Spacing Question: What should be the space between the smokepipe of a combination coal stove and the Answer: For a plaster wall the space should be 18 inches. If the wall is wood, the space should be greater, or the wall should be covered with a sheet of asbestos board. Heating System Question: My large single house has nine rooms. The hot air system is in bad condition. Would it be better to have it repaired, or to install radiator heat? How can I get in touch with a reliable concern for this work? Answer: Whether or not the system is still in good enough condition to justify repairing can be told only by examination. Ask for recommendations at your bank, and at large real estate agencies. Names which appear on all of their lists should be dependable.

Christmas Dinner

*Grapefruit-Persimmon Salad *Sweet French Dressing Baked Ham *Holiday Sauce *Virginia Cranberry Mold

*Green Peas With Beets Crescent Rolls Olives Plum Pudding with Sauce Coffee Recipes Given

*Sweet Potato Pone

There's a touch of the traditional in the menu in the baked ham and sweet potato pone, topped off with the plum pudding, and then there's a dash of newness in the cranberry mold, the salad and its perky dressing and the holiday sauce. Whether you're welcoming your sons from camp, your daughters from college, make this their gala feast, for Christmas dinners are something to cherish and remember. *Grapefruit-Persimmon Salad.

Be versatile with your grapefruit. Peel, separate into sections, then slip the thin peeling off the sections being careful to leave the section whole. Alternate the cections of grapefruit with thin slices of persimmon, having the outside sections on top so the fruit together gives the appearance of a mound. Use three sections of grapefruit per serving. Lay this on a crisp bed of lettuce and serve with dressing. Avocado and pink grapefruit sections may also be used in this way.

*Sweet French Dressing. (For fruit salads)

9 tablespoons oil 31/2 tablespoons powdered sugar

½ teaspoon salt 3 tablespoons paprika ½ teaspoon worcestershire sauce

4 tablespoons lemon juice Set all ingredients in icebox for three hours before mixing. Combine in order given, blending thoroughly. Chill again in mason jar. Before using, let melt, then beat until thick with wooden spoon.

*Sweet Potato Pone. (Serves 6 to 8) Delicately spiced, heart-warming

and gracious accompaniment to your dinner is this sweet potato pone. Satisfy your desire for sweet potatoes with ham this new-old way. It's like grandmotherused to make, homey, tasty, just wonderful food!

21/2 cups grated raw sweet potato 1/2 cup butter ½ cup sugar 1/2 cup milk

Grated rind of 1 orange Blend sugar and butter. Add sweet putato and milk. Beat well. then add spices and orange rind.

role in a moderate (350 degrees) oven, 30 to 35 minutes.

*Baked Ham. You can depend upon your holiday dinner to go over if you serve a ham, glistening and shimmering. baked in sweet. spicy juices. Wrap the nam in clean wrapping paper. Place fat side up on a rack in an open pan. Use no water. Bake in a slow oven. Hams weighing 16 to 18 pounds require 4 to 41/2 hours baking; 12 to 15 pounds, 31/2 to 4 hours; 10 to 12 pounds, 3 to 31/2 hours; and 8 to 10 pounds, 234 to 3 hours.

Remove paper and all rind. Cover with a glaze of pickled peach juice or 1 cup honey and 1/2 cup orange marmalade, or 1 cup pureed apricots for extra special goodness. To make stars, cut slices of pineapple and form into a star. Use a maraschino cherry in center. Bake until brown (about 15 minutes) in a hot (400 degrees) oven.

*Holiday Sauce. For your masterpiece, the ham, serve a sauce that's rich and jewelred. Ladle it over the ham generously to bring out the best in the meat. Like all good things, the sauce is a simple, good-tasting combination. Melt 1 small glass of currant jelly in double boiler, add 3 tablespoons chili sauce, blend, and serve

*Green Peas With Beets. Bright red and green touch in the best tradition of Christmas is your beet and green peas vegetable combination. Boil the beets with two nches of their tops left on until tender, 25 to 35 minutes depending on age and size. Plunge into cold water and remove skins. Scoop out center, add salt and butter. Just before serving, heat beets, fill centers with cooked, seasoned green peas, heated piping hot. *Virginia Cranberry Mold. You'll want something tantalizingly tart as foil to the bland sweetness of the ham. Here it is:

1 17-ounce can cranberry sauce Juice of two oranges Grated rind of 1 orange 1 cup hot water

3 packages gelatin Mash cranberry sauce fine; add rind and orange juice. Dissolve gelatin in hot water and add to first mixture. Pour into molds and put in cool place to set.

Few holidays can offer you the same decorative possibilities as Christmas season, so make the most of the evergreens, berries cones, candles, ornaments, and rich colors.

Here are some centerpiece ideas which would be effective: Use a green wreath on a mir for and fill with evergreer branches dipped or sprayed with white paint and place brightly colored ornaments or fruits among the branches.

Surround candles with pine branches and cones and have sev eral small silver bells around the base of the centerpiece as though they came out of the branches.

Home-Maker's Role During Defense

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

There's no virtue in being abstemious in the present emergency, for business must go on as usual so far as possible . . . so that men can keep their jobs and industry won't be completely disorganized. Therefore, the homemaker's role is not to curtail her buying, but to be lenient about shortages and content with what the stores have. For inevitably there will be a smaller selection of merchandise than we're accustomed to . . . but it would still look abundant to the Europeans right now.

Within present limitations, there is still margin for plenty of charm, as a recent exhibition of new interiors proved. These rooms illustrated the present trend toward livable, homey decoration . . . there was no froth and little elegance, but plenty of fine comfort.

The entrance hall, in mist blue and terra cotta, had panels of scenic wallpaper of Mississippi river scenes, while the chairs were covered in terra cotta glazed leather. A small library with yellow walls and a light beige shaggy carpeting had Eighteenth century mahogany furniture, blue and white homespun upholstery. The master bedroom had colonial mahogany furniture, walls of beige and blue striped paper, a crochettype hooked rug in blues and beiges, a camellia patterned chintz in rose and pink on white for upholstered bed, spreads and draperies, beige damask for two easy chairs. A bedroom for two little sisters had a garden patterned wallpaper on a white ground, light green rug plaid chintz for curtains and chairs, white muslin spreads, maple furniture.

A young girl's room had yellow painted walls, a yellow gray and white braided rug, yellow silk curtains, vellow flowered chintz for headboards and spreads of bed, dressing table and chair, French provincial furniture in butternut

To toast nuts, sprinkle them in thin layer in shallow pan. Heat slowly and cook until nuts are light brown in color, stir frequently with fork.

Cooked dough stored in a refrigerator often becomes hardened on the surface. To prevent this sprinkle the dough with cold water and wrap it tightly in waxed paper before you store it.

Toasted nuts are very good served on ice-cream sundaes, puddings or frozen desserts. Try toasted almonds or cashews with chocolate mint sauce on vanilla ice cream.

Potatoes bake more quickly if placed on the broiler instead of the floor of the gas oven, and the flavor will be much improved by quick baking.
