The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gerhard Kanies at 3 o'clock in the afternoon on Christmas day in the St. Lucas Evangelical Lutheran church.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Orlena Diener, sister of the bridegroom. Byron Bunkelmann, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

A wedding dinner was served to the immediate families at the home of the bride's parents. Later Mr. and Mrs. Diener left on a brief wedding trip to Illinois, from which they returned the forepart of this week.

The bride, a graduate of the Kewaskum High school and Dodge County Normal school at Mayville, is engaged as teacher at the Spring school in the town of Wayne. Mr. Diener operates a farm at Batavia. For her marriage the bride was prettily attired in a white brided satin gown with sweetheart neckline and train. Her fingertip veil was fashioned with a bonnet and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Harter, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor and Miss Lucille Schoofs, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid. The attendants wore identical gowns of blue brocade satin with sweetheart neckline and matching blue bonnets and carried pink carnations.

Mrs. August Miller, Amelia Degner Dead

Mrs. August Miller, nee Backhaus, aged 78 years, six months and one day, beloved farm resident of the town of Kewaskum, passed away at St. Joseph's Community hospital, West Bend, on Monday afternoon, Dec. 29, after a week's illness resulting from a stroke. Mrs. Miller suffered the stroke Monday morning, Dec. 22, while working in the yard of the farm, located about 2 1/2 miles northeast of the village. She was removed to the hospital on Christmas day and although everything possible was done, her life could not be prolonged.

Mrs. Miller was born June 28, 1862, in the town of Kewaskum and her marriage to August Miller took place Nov. 17, 1885, in the old Moldenhauer church in that township. The couple settled on the present homestead following their marriage and occupied the farm since, covering a period of 56 years in which they pioneered in the town. Although elderly, the couple was very active up to the time of Mrs. Miller's stroke and they operated their farm alone. Mr. and Mrs. Miller had the distinction of celebrating their golden wedding anniversary in 1945 and last November observed the 56th date of their marriage.

Deceased was the mother of six children, two of whom preceded her in death, namely Otto, who died in infancy, and Reinhardt, who passed away in 1927. Surviving, along with her husband, are three daughters, Anna (Mrs. Otto Backhaus) of this village, Elsie (Mrs. Wm. Bassil) of Milwaukee and Selma (Mrs. Herbert Backhaus) of this village; one son, Edwin, of Milwaukee; five brothers, Charles, Fred, William, Paul and Herman Backhaus; three sisters, Mathilda (Mrs. Wm. Birkholz), August Backhaus and Louise (Mrs. Robert Yoost); 13 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The body lay in state at the Techtman funeral home, from where funeral services were held at 1:30 p. m. Friday, Jan. 2, 1942, at 2 p. m. at the St. Lucas Evangelical Lutheran church. The Rev. Gerhard Kanies officiated and interment was made in the church cemetery.

Pallbearers were Howard and Herbert Backhaus, Milton Eisenbraut, Carl Stange, Lloyd Lynn and Alex Schaeff. Regrettably we record the death of this fine old lady, who was a loving mother, cheering companion and a souling friend. She will be missed by her old acquaintances as she always proved to be a good neighbor, ready to assist those in trouble at all times. She was capable of performing bodily tasks until her last sickness despite her advanced age. To the bereaved survivors we extend heartfelt sympathy.

MISS AMELIA DEGNER
Miss Amelia Degner, aged about 63 years, was called in death at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday, Dec. 31, at her farm home in the town of Kewaskum, located about 2 1/2 miles southeast of the village, death resulting from a complication of diseases. She had been ailing for the past two years.

Miss Degner was born on the present Degner homestead and resided there all her life. She is survived by two brothers, Henry, with whom she resided, and August of the town of Farmington.

The body will lie in state at the Techtman funeral home in this village from 1 p. m. Saturday until the time of the funeral. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday, Jan. 4, at the funeral home. The Rev. Otto of West Bend officiating. Interment will be made in the Gage cemetery in the town of Auburn.

Due to the blizzard on New Year's day and snowblocked highways Friday deceased's brother was unable to reach the village and therefore no further details were obtainable.

MRS. CHARLES RIEKE
Mrs. Charles Rieke, 65, nee Martha Beger, of Fillmore, sister of Mrs. E. L. Morgenroth of this village, passed away Tuesday, Dec. 23, at 10 a. m. at the Sheboygan Memorial hospital following an illness of three days.

Mrs. Rieke was born Feb. 18, 1876, in the town of Fredonia and her marriage to Charles Rieke took place in that township on July 25, 1900. The couple made their home at Wausau three years following their marriage and then resided at West Bend a year before moving to Fillmore.

Deceased is survived by her widow, two sons, Erwin at home and Carl of Fredonia; one grandson; one daughter-in-law, and the following sisters and brothers, Clara (Mrs. Edw. Kratsch) of Chicago, Richard Beger of Fredonia, Ottilia (Mrs. Morgenroth) and Elver Beger of Chicago.

Funeral services were held Friday, Dec. 26, at 1:30 p. m. at the Fillmore Reformed church, the Rev. Paul Olsen officiating. Interment was made in the Fillmore cemetery.

Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Morgenroth were among those at the funeral which was largely attended.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Commentators and war correspondents are now recalling the famous "Memorial to the Emperor," supposedly written by Baron Giap 'Mein Kampf' Ichi Tanaka in 1927, in which, if the document was not a forgery, Japanese plans for world conquest were formulated much in the manner of Adolf Hitler's blue print for homicide in "Mein Kampf."

Baron Tanaka died September 29, 1929, a few weeks after the fall of his cabinet, his premiership having lasted about two years.

This department is supposed to deal only with the living, but breaks pace today to note the possibly historic significance of the baron and his document—and the life story of the suave little man who died of high blood pressure, at 66, after many years of deep absorption in "sword romance," the Japanese equivalent of the blood and thunder pulp thrillers of our country.

History may give him a nod in view of the fact that his document ticked off the later steps of Japanese aggression as neatly as a pool-player calling his shots. The Japanese repeatedly have denounced it as a forgery. Whatever it was, it jumped the clock and told "the shape of things to come."

The first reference to the document in this country, so far as this reporter could discover, was in published quotations from the Russian newspaper, Pravda, of November 5, 1931. Pravda did not reveal how it had obtained its copy of the "Memorial," but it flared it out as "a startling revelation of the Japanese carefully prepared plan for world conquest."

"Japan's aggressive tendencies will not end in China," said the Pravda article. "She has designs on the Philippines, the Malayan archipelago, Guam, Tahiti, Samoa and Australia. It presages a fight for a new division of the world, for it is inseparably linked with conflict among imperialist nations for control of the Pacific."

The newspaper then quoted from the document: "If we intend to gain control over China, we must first crush the United States. To capture China, we must also crush Manchuria and Mongolia. In order to conquer the world, we must first conquer China. If we succeed in conquering China, the rest of the Asiatic countries and the South Sea countries will fear us and surrender to us."

For understandable reasons, the Pravda story got scant attention in the American press. Tanaka Memorial, in view of many previous propaganda stories issuing from this source and was, for the most part editorially dismissed as an effort to "cause dissension among friendly capitalist nations."

But, American correspondents, digging into the story in the Far East, discovered that, in 1929, the "Memorial" had been examined by members of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations, in Mukden. It was submitted to them by members of the entourage of the Chinese Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang. One of this delegation was reported to have said:

"We pledge the full authenticity of this document and we plead with you to understand that Japan has begun a program of world aggression which inevitably must involve the United States."

So far as we can learn, news of this incident was not published in this country until after the Pravda story. This, however, is not certain. It may have appeared in a British newspaper of five or six years ago, the Manchester Guardian, if memory serves, in which was cited documentary evidence of the validity of the document and pleaded for a re-shaping of British policy in the Far East and the strengthening of the naval base at Singapore.

On April 23, 1940, Rear Admiral J. K. Taussig, retired, appeared before the senate committee on naval affairs and insisted on the validity of the Tanaka Memorial. He begged for a consideration of Japanese relations in this light, but the navy, however, repudiated his testimony. Pierre Van Paassan, in his recently published book, "This Day Alone," reviews the history of the document, defends its authenticity and launches indignation against the civilized world for failing to heed it.

As premier, and as a leader of the powerful Japanese war party, Baron Tanaka was a wily and effective opponent of the Kellogg pact and came near preventing Japanese participation. This was one of the causes of the fall of his cabinet, in 1929, but a more direct cause was the assassination of the "Old Marshal," Chang Tso-Lin, when Chang's train was blown up in Manchuria. Charges of official responsibility hit close to the baron's villa. He was a general, of the old army caste, much decorated in the Russo-Jap war, and later war minister.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL

For one thing... it was precedent-shattering.

CHURCHILL: Drama
The arrival in Washington of Winston Churchill, prime minister of England, for a long series of Christmas conferences with President Roosevelt and the working out of a united method of conducting the war was dramatic.

It was a triumph for American and British censorship, for another thing.

It burst on the American press at 6:59 one evening after most of the newsmen in Washington had known all about the plans for a week, and "hadn't breathed it to a soul."

Churchill, his pipe, his cane, his navy jacket and the rest, looking very much as he did during the August conference, was escorted in the White House while Mr. Roosevelt sat smiling on the sidelines, watching his conferees from overseas fence with the newspaper men and chuckle into his cloak.

One of the prime minister's wisecracks made history. A newsman asked him, "How long will it take to win the war?" He replied, "About half as long if we do it well as if we do it badly."

The reporters roared, the President laughed merrily and the prime minister gave one of his well-known chuckles of merriment.

RUSSIA: Finds Line
After disastrous withdrawals all along the nearly 1,000-mile front in Russia, late dispatches from that district of the world war seemed to indicate that the German resistance was stiffening and that at long last the Reds had found the Nazi "winter line of resistance."

Up to that point the withdrawal had been practically a rout, and there was photographic evidence appearing in the press to bear out the Russian claims of enormous losses of material in the snowy wastes of that part of the Soviet the Germans had invaded.

Whether Hitler, reported raging at his generals, would be able to halt the backward sweep with Russian pressure apparently undiminished, was a problem.

But the tone of the Reds' dispatches had changed somewhat, and were no longer full of pessimism, but rather of break-throughs that indicated a German effort at holding was now in progress.

Most of the other theaters of war hoped the Germans would leave plenty of troops in Russia, and Churchill, in the United States, frankly said that "Stalin had done the world an enormous service."

SARAWAK: Navy Successes
An "allied navy" and air force, which might or might not have included Americans, was reported by the British to have fallen with terrific force on an enemy landing force at Sarawak.

The attack occurred shortly after Sir Charles Brooke, the rajah, had sharply criticized the British management of the Far East defense, and had said that the leadership had been poorly selected.

Plenty of Action

From the Philippines came the report that before he had removed his base of military command from the city of Manila General MacArthur had rushed to the fighting front to take personal command of fighting off the Japanese attacks.

HITLER: At the Helm

The holiday period had been electrified by the German disaster in Libya and Russia, and the "firing" of leading Nazi General Marshal Brauchitsch, and his replacement by Adolf Hitler himself.

Many believed this "purge at the top" would be followed by other generals leaving their command rather than trust themselves and their troops to Hitler's "intuitive" policies of military management.

At the same time all Europe had been in a state of jitters wondering what "Der Fuehrer" would pull in the way of trickery out of the hat of his ingenuity to scare his opponents and to cause what he might call a "victory" to bring him forward into public favor again.

Most thought that an occupation of Spain and France's north African bases, and perhaps the taking over of the French fleet might be the answer.

In line with this it had been reported that Petain had given up his position as dictator of unoccupied France and head of the Vichy government, turning the reins over to pro-Axis Darlan.

It was also reported that 15 divisions of Nazi troops were on the march toward Spain through France and that the occupation of Bizerte and other important Tunisian and Moroccan points was as good as accomplished.

Europe, "waiting to see," was having a bad case of nerves.

Farmer Has a Vital Role
In Helping to Win War

Repairing of Machinery, Conservation, and Improved Farm Gardens Listed as Best Methods of Aiding in Emergency.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.
America's two important weapons against her enemies in the long war we see ahead of us today are the assembly line and the farm. In Washington in the department of agriculture a war cabinet has been created for Secretary Wickard made up of the heads of the action-agencies—the agencies that are created to help the farmer do things.

"We, in Washington, can't do a thing by ourselves," said an official to me. "We can't grow a bushel of wheat or raise a peck of corn. But we can line up behind the department's field men to help the farmer in this emergency. We are now organized to put our maximum effort into that kind of help."

The three most important things for the farmer to do now, according to Washington officials, are:

1—Repair Machinery
First, get agricultural machinery repaired. SPAB has allocated material for repair parts. There is no sign that these allocations will be cut down but there is no chance of increasing them. The farmers got out record crops in 1940 and 1941 with their old machinery. They can't do it a third year unless that old machinery is repaired now. And if it isn't repaired now it won't be ready for spring.

2—Conservation
The second important word for the farmer is conservation. Get every piece of scrap metal off the farm and into the hands of the junk man. Watch your bagging. Remember we import jute and there is likely to be decided shortages. Cotton can't entirely fill the gap because the machines making heavy cotton materials are being utilized by the army. Save waste paper, too. (This column is being written on the back of a mimeographed newspaper release.)

3—The Farm Garden
And here is a third reminder: The farm garden. Remember that there is a sharp shortage on tin-plate. Everything in the way of food that you can preserve for yourself saves the need of can. Not only the things that you can put in glass jars but also root crops which can be stored without the use of containers—carrots and turnips and cabbages, too.

So much for what the farmer is expected to do. Now what is going to be done to the farmer?

In the first place he is going to be asked to produce more with less help. Secretary Wickard says that goals in the "food-for-freedom" program are just about right but that they have to be reassessed in the light of the war with the Axis. Here are some of the main changes:

First of all, because we are going to be a harder-working nation, on the home front and elsewhere, an increased amount of vitamin-containing strength-bringing vegetables will be needed.

The sugar situation will have to be considered very carefully. We may lose imports of a potential million tons from the Philippines. The Hawaiian islands as a sugar source are uncertain. Much of the Cuban sugar will have to be turned into industrial alcohol. As to production on the continent, the labor situation—of which I shall say more later—cuts deeply into that program, for sugar labor is always rapidly absorbed by competing interests.

The supply of oils and fats is another problem which may require a reassigning of the food-for-freedom program. Fats and oils make up a heavy import from the East Indies. They represent essentials as food and also for manufacture—the oils which go into the glycerin products for explosives, the drying oils for paints, for instance.

Farm Labor Problem
Of course, the worst problem the farmer has to face, and the one that must be solved before those I have already mentioned, is the labor problem.

Young, strong, mechanically minded young men are the backbone of the successful farm. Young, strong, mechanically minded young men are the backbone of a successful army. Especially a modern army. The same segment of the population is also needed in industry.

BRIEFS . . . By Baukhage
Cecil Davidson, 18-year-old farm boy of Moore county, Texas, has built himself an adobe house for $120, the department of agriculture reports. The young man is a sophomore at the West Texas State college, and worked on the structure during his summer vacation and week-ends. Davidson used 2,000 hand-made adobe bricks in the undertaking.

One of the best written "hand-outs" from the standpoint of Washington correspondents was Secretary of the Navy Knox's statement on Pearl Harbor. It was written by Knox, who is a newspaper man, on his flight back from Honolulu.

Officers nowadays have to wear Sam Browne belts because a British general lost an arm in the second Afghan war of 1878. The general devised the belt to hang things on which he could reach with his remaining arm.

Reindeer Farming
In Alaska

Nearly all Americans are still close enough to pioneer conditions—if not in actuality, at least in spirit and heritage—to be interested in the development of the reindeer industry in Alaska.

The reindeer were imported into Alaska during the decade of the decade between 1891 and 1902. They were established on the Seward peninsula—about 1,300 of them—and from that beginning have been developed the present immense herds, numbering now approximately one million. The herds are distributed from Point Barrow in the north to Kodiak island on the south, and from the Bering sea inland to Ophir, with the heaviest population still on Seward peninsula.

The original purpose of the importation was to supply food for the Eskimos but the herds have been so successful that it is now possible to export reindeer products, the most important of which are meat and hides. Reindeer hides are delicate and pliable, and are much used for the manufacture of kid gloves and leather jackets. Of course they are also used where they are produced, for a variety of purposes such as the manufacture of boots, leggings, parkies, sleeping bags, mittens, socks and trousers.

FUTURE OF INDUSTRY

Various conditions tend toward stability of the reindeer industry in Alaska. For one thing, there are in that territory at least 200,000 square miles of grazing land which is particularly suited to raising reindeer. Further, when reindeer are slaughtered for market, there is practically no waste in the carcasses. Not only is the flesh, including heart, liver and tongue, good for human consumption, and the hide suited to the manufacture of many necessary articles of apparel, but even the antlers, bones, viscera and blood are used in the preparation of food for the dogs which are indispensable in that region and for the foxes raised on various fur farms.

Moreover, reindeer are of gentle disposition and easily handled. Except in the mating season, when the bucks become dangerous, it is possible to go freely among a reindeer herd, just as one would among beef or dairy cattle. It has been said, by those familiar with them that "they flock together like sheep, graze more like cattle, and in intelligence and activity more nearly approach the horse." They become attached to any accustomed range and if moved away, will return to it. They are good swimmers; they graze on the wettest ground and, like the moose, will frequently wade out into a pond or lake to feed on aquatic plants.

REINDEER RANCHING

Many features common to the reindeer country remind the observer of the Old West. The reindeer are herded in much the same manner as were the cattle on the old western ranges, and are rounded up at intervals for marking or branding, for sorting, and for marketing.

APPEARANCE OF REINDEER

The reindeer pictured with Saint Nick have been considerably idealized, running mostly to slim legs and branching antlers. Actually, the reindeer, which is a domesticated caribou, although symmetrically built gives an impression of stockiness. In color reindeer are brown and gray, with head and legs dark and with a white mane. Individual animals vary somewhat from this pattern and may even be all white or spotted. The average full-grown reindeer stands from 42 to 44 inches high. The average dressed weight is about 150 pounds, infrequently increasing to 200. Both the males and the females bear antlers which are grown and shed each year.

CALL OF THE WILD

For young men and women with the blood of pioneers in their veins, with good health, and with a willingness to endure the cold of the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions, reindeer ranching in Alaska has great attraction and promises reasonable returns. At the present time, the reindeer rancher does not have to depend entirely upon experience to learn how to manage his herd. A Reindeer Experiment Station was established at College, Alaska, in 1928 and substations are maintained at Nome on Nunivak island in the Bering sea.

For additional information, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Department of Agriculture Miscellaneous Publications, No. 207.

SPICED NUTS

Sift together, three times, the following dry ingredients: 2 cups confectioners' sugar, 1/2 cup of cornstarch, 2 teaspoons of salt, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/4 cup of cinnamon, 2 teaspoons of ginger and 1 tablespoon of ground cloves. Beat 1 egg white, slightly, and add to it 2 tablespoons of cold water. Place in a wire strainer 1 1/2 cups of nut kernels and dip into the egg mixture until each nut is well coated. Drain the nuts, roll them in the spice mixture, and bake for three hours.

COLORING AND HARDENING PICKLES

It is inadvisable to use any coloring or hardening agents. If right pickling methods are used the acid and brine will give the desired hardness.

THE CLEANLY RACCOON

The raccoon—sometimes called "the little brother to the bear"—insists upon washing his food before he eats it. It is said that a raccoon will go hungry rather than to eat food which he has not been washed.

High Time for Pert Miss To Catch Up on Reading

Clifton Fadiman, in his book, "Reading I've Liked," warns the layman against spending all his time trying to keep up with the latest books. He tells about one of his old professors who sat beside a pert young thing at a dinner party.

"Professor," she piped up, "have you read so-and-so's new novel?"

He confessed he hadn't.

"Oh," she said, "you'd better hurry—it's been out over three months."

"Young lady," he said, "have you read Dante's 'Divine Comedy'?"

"Why, no."

"You'd better hurry—it's been out over six hundred years."

County Agent Notes

DAIRY CATTLE FEEDING MEETINGS

Many Washington county dairymen are anxious to have more information in the feeding of their dairy herds so that they will produce an abundant flow of milk at a low production cost. To give to dairymen and others information on the economical and practical feeding of dairy cattle and upon the raising of dairy calves the following four meetings are being arranged namely:

Tuesday, Jan. 6—2:00 o'clock p. m., schueck's hall, Ackersville.

Tuesday, Jan. 6—8:00 o'clock p. m., G. etz hall, Mayfield.

Wednesday, Jan. 7—2:00 o'clock p. m., Bootcher's hall, Kohlsville.

Wednesday, Jan. 7—8:00 o'clock p. m., Spring School on Highway 28.

Mr. Al Cramer of the College of Agriculture will discuss the dairy cattle feeding program and county agricultural agent E. E. Skalsky will talk on dairy herd management.

The price of milk is the highest it has been in years. The demand for milk is increasing daily. More milk is needed now than is being produced. How can the dairymen make the most of this opportunity and how can he maintain the biggest flow of milk possible? Suggestions on these and many other questions will be given at these meetings.

Attend the one nearest and most convenient. It will mean increased profits to you.

Uncle Sam's Aerial Giant, the B-19

It is comforting in these days of air blitzes to know that Uncle Sam can boast the largest bombing plane in the world. It is the $3,500,000 B-19, a four-engined Douglas whose engines produce a total of 8,000 h. p. The gross load weight of this aerial giant is 82 tons, and it has a wingspread of 212 feet. These pictures acquaint you with our new flying fortress.

Snapped in flight over a river in southern California is the giant B-19. The picture was made during a test flight, with twenty persons aboard.

Looking aft from the pilot's cabin we see the radio and control panel which, with the pilot's instrument panel, comprise the "brains" of the world's mightiest plane.

A glimpse into the rear compartment of the B-19. Lieut. L. J. Doyle, veteran test pilot, is shown at the inter-plane phone. Machine gun mounts (not shown) are on sides opposite the lieutenant.

The B-19 being escorted by two P-40 pursuit ships.

'Love & Kisses' Better
Charles Valdez, Toledo, Ohio, told police he was going to be careful about writing notes in the future. It was rent day and he didn't want to remain home until the landlord called, so he wrote a note to the landlord telling him he had left the $23 on the kitchen table and to walk in and get it. Valdez pinned the note to the unlocked front door and went about his business. The $23 vanished before the landlord arrived, he told police.

New-Born Babe Buried
When a baby is born in cannibalistic Guinea all sorts of funny things happen to it. The mother buries it in the sand up to its waist so it can't get into mischief. And this is the only cradle it knows anything about. The Lapp infant is cradled in a shoe—its mother's. This is a big affair covered with skin and stuffed with soft moss. It can then be hung on a tree or covered up with snow while mama goes to church or to any place where baby is not invited.

YANKEE DOODLE
I
He fumbles and he misses—
He often fans the air;
He makes his share of boners
And often splits a hair;
He wastes a lot of motions
And has a wagging tongue . . .
But, boy, he packs a wallop
When once his chin is stung!

II
He does much shadow-boxing
And dances in the dark;
His oratory often
Goes far wide of the mark;
He dearly loves to muddle
And seems a little queer . . .
But not a second after
His duty is made clear.

III
He can be fooled and kidded.
And often seems a boob;
Amid the foreign slickers
He sometimes plays the rube;
He often seems the duffer,
And likes to play the clown . . .
But it's another story
When once the chips are down!

IV
He often plays the sucker
In ways a little dumb;
In fact he's pretty childish
(Until the punches come);
He trusts a lot to fancy
And harks to fairy tales . . .
Until he gets his wind up
And then he NEVER FAILS!

V
He often is too gabby
And trusts a lot to facts;
He sometimes wears dark glasses
So he won't know the facts;
He's futile and loquacious
Until he's good and sore . . .
But, boy, he packs a wallop
When he gets into war!

VI
He glorifies debating
And dearly loves the stump;
He likes to hear the gossip
Around the village pump;
He certainly can fiddle
Upon the old dishpan . . .
But when it comes to fighting—
It's "Gangway for a MAN!"

VII
He dearly loves his pleasures
And all his comforts,
He much prefers life festive
Than when it's very blue;
The peaceful road's the best one—
He nourishes that hunch;
But once that road ain't open,
You'd better duck that punch!

THE V DRIVE
V is for Victory,
Vigor and Vim;

On Wrong Trail
A Negro preacher was heard confessing. In the middle of it stopped the young snorer.
"Young man," he said, "you ain't confessin'—you's braggin'."

A silent man often has a reputation for knowing about ten times as much as he really does know.

Assumed
"Do you think you could learn to love me?"
"Perhaps. But if I were a man I'd hate to think I was an acquired taste."

Vanished Men

By GEORGE MARSH

THE STORY SO FAR: Six men traveling the Chibougamau trail and six more on the trail were reported missing. Murder is suspected. Isadore, rich for man, is thought to have made a gold strike and aims to keep prospectors out. Later, they visit Isadore, rich for man, at his magnificent home and meet Lise, his step-daughter. Finlay falls in love with her. They learn that Isadore's men with Tete-Blanche are hunting them. Several weeks later Lise went swimming with Corinne, her mother.

and Wabistan up when the trouble starts?"
"You are in de bush by big Jack-pine. It will be black dere. Dey will not see you but you see and hear dem."
"The moon will be shining right into that clearing. They'll see the faces of Wabistan and his friends. That will start trouble."
"Ah-hah! Dere will be moch trouble, but Wabistan has friends."
"So there's just a small chance we see the sun rise?" laughed Red.
Blaise nodded gravely. "Small chance, ah-hah!"
"Red," said Finlay, "this whole show is going to depend on the breaks we get. Blaise thinks it can be done. I'm not so sure, but it's worth trying. If it doesn't work, we're in a trap. We'll never get off that island. But unless something happens pretty quick we can't last much longer on this lake, anyway."
"You're right, chief," admitted Red.
"So far we've managed to dodge them—played in fools' luck!" went on Finlay. "But luck changes. If Blaise does win, we may be able to hang on until that plane shows up. Then we'll crawl into those old red blouses, take a long chance and go on Isadore for a show-down."
"If Blaise is wrong, God help us! But what a dog-fight it'll be there in the moonlight!"
"It's one of the boldest and cleverest ideas I've ever heard of," said Garry. "We may have trouble justifying it at headquarters but we're committed now."
"I'll say it's an idea. But it may lose us our jobs, chief; and you close to promotion!"
"Our jobs won't be important if they bury us, Red. Tonight three more may be snuffed out on the Chibougamau Trail."

"We'll take plenty with us when we go, then!" snarled Malone, biting savagely at the sturgeon steak he lifted from his tin plate.
The Waswanipi wilderness dozed under the spell of the full August moon.
One by one, dark shapes of canoes crossed a shimmering ribbon of moonlight bound for the island of the Medicine-Stone.
Long since Wabistan and his son had left. Garry and Red stood on the shore, silent. Finlay was wondering if the plane from in front of Isadore's—wondering if he would ever again look into Lise Demarais' dark eyes when Blaise touched him on the shoulder.
"All right! We go!"
The three men left their rifles in the Peterbor beached at the foot of a steep bank and worked across the small island.
"Remember, we don't use our guns unless we're trapped!" warned Finlay.
The two moved nearer the clearing and stood in the velvet gloom of a thicket of young spruce.
"What a mob!" whispered Red. "Must be fifty or sixty! Where's Wabistan?"
"I don't see him, but he's there somewhere with his friends. He'll be back at the time comes!"
Near the Medicine-Stone stood the sorcerer's tent.
"There's the medicine-ledge!" muttered Red. "Small, isn't it!"
"Red, I think I see Batoche—the bird with the hat pulled over his eyes!"
"The Isadore mob's all there, backing up Kinebik!"
"We've got to get closer," whispered Garry. "If anything starts we're too far away."
Inch by inch the two worked nearer to the clearing drenched with light.
"Look!" Red nudged the man beside him. "They're passing a bottle!"
Suddenly, silence dropped like a blanket over the clearing. The faces of the Montagnais were turned toward the medicine-ledge.
"Kinebik's in the tipi, Red! See it shake?"
Shortly there rose the muffled beating of the conjurer's caribou-hide drum accompanied by a low sing-song. The shell-rattle joined in and the beat quickened. The listeners in the clearing strained forward where they sat. Louder crowned the voice of the shaman in a rhythmic chant. The sorcerer was a superb mimic. His voice ran the gamut of the voices of the night.
The voice again ceased, and the

TO YOUR Good Health

By DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

FOR THOSE WHO ARE OVERWEIGHT

True obesity is a constitutional disorder in which there is a compulsory tendency to gain weight unless the intake of food and expenditure of energy are kept under control all of the time. In this condition, the body tissues have a greater tendency than normal to deposit fat.
Fortunately many people who are overweight do not have this abnormal condition. During childhood, adolescence and early adult life, a high calorie, high vitamin, high protein diet containing adequate minerals is necessary for normal growth. At this period of life people are most active physically and need more calories. Thus they become accustomed to eating large amounts of food, are not satisfied with smaller quantities. When they stop growing and go to work they are apt to be less active physically and require less food. But they continue their usual high calorie diet and the portion no longer needed for the production of heat and energy is converted into fat. Sometimes such a gain in weight does not come until the individual changes from hard manual labor to some less arduous type of work.

Gains During Pregnancy.
During pregnancy and while nursing their babies, women have to eat enough to nourish two and so eat much more than they did formerly. Then when the baby is weaned they continue on the high calorie diet. As they no longer require the extra nourishment, they gain weight and lose their lovely girlish figures.

The change of life in some 20 or 30 per cent of women so affects the balance between the various glands that their diet causes them to gain weight.
It is relatively easy for those who are overweight because they eat more calories than they require, to reduce. Those who have the hereditary abnormal tendency to accumulate fat, water and salt find it much more difficult. Many believe that exercise, even violent exercise, is necessary if weight is to be lost. Those who have never engaged in athletics or who are too old to engage in them, consider passive exercise or massage indispensable. While exercise is good if started gradually and not carried to extremes, weight can often be lost more easily and rapidly without it. Exercise increases hunger and thirst and makes it more difficult to stick to a restricted diet and so harder to lose weight.

Low Calorie Diet.
A low calorie diet (1,000 to 1,200 calories) is absolutely necessary for weight reduction. Such a diet can often be best tolerated if a cracker, a glass of fruit juice, or of skim milk is taken between meals. Those low blood sugars that cause ravenous hunger are avoided. Any reducing diet must contain enough vitamins, minerals and proteins to satisfy the body requirements. It should contain one pint of skim milk, one egg, two ounces of fish, meat or fowl, three servings of vegetables (one of them raw) including potatoes, two servings of fruit (one of them raw) and one and one-half pats of butter. It should contain a minimum of fats, sugars, sweets and starches and the fluid intake should be decreased. To make it quantitatively more satisfying, eat more meat, cheese and leafy vegetables may be taken.

When you have thus lost enough, add to your reducing diet just enough to enable you to maintain the desired weight. If you go back to your old diet, you will gain rapidly up on the pounds.
"The constant drip will wear away the stone; the constant imperfection of nutrition, though this be relatively slight, will wear away the body."—Sir Robert McCarrison.

QUESTION BOX
Send questions to Dr. Nathan S. Davis III, Waukegan, Ill. (Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)
Q.—What is vitamin B, and what vegetables or foods are highest in this vitamin? S. L.
A.—Vitamin B is a complex mixture of chemical compounds required to aid the utilization of foods by the cells of the body. Lima, navy, kidney and soy beans, buckwheat, whole wheat flour, ham and pork, beef, kidneys, liver, yeast, peas, and various nuts contain this vitamin.
Q.—What is a good remedy for chigger bites and head lice? W. A.
A.—Chigger bites: Extraction of insect with a needle, antiseptic dressings. Head lice: Wash thoroughly with a mixture of kerosene and sweet oil or with vinegar to destroy nits.
Q.—Is it wise for the average person to take vitamin B complex, and should he take it without the advice of a physician? M. M.
A.—He should seek the advice of a physician. Otherwise he might take less than required or more than is needed.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

Cleaning Rugs and Upholstery
SOILED carpets, rugs and upholstery can be cleaned by shampooing with soap jelly. Ordinary soiling will come out easily, but other methods should be used for obstinate and unusual stains. These may call for professional work. Further, shampooing should be applied only to fabrics of which the colors are fast.
The jelly is made of chips or flakes of pure and mild soap; the kind of soap that is used for fine laundering. Four cups are put in a bowl or wide-mouthed jar, and one cup of water is added. The jelly will form within an hour. A portion of the jelly is put into a mixing bowl and beaten with an egg-beater, which will raise suds as stiff as whipped cream. Using a soft brush, jelly is worked on the fabric in a space 12 inches or so across. After a few minutes for the loosening of the dirt, the space is wiped with a cloth damp with clear water, and with a stiff brush, the nap is brushed in its proper direction. An adjoining space should then be cleaned. The suds are so dry that upholstery fabric will not be soaked, as would be the case with soapsuds as usually used. After cleaning, the fabric should be quickly dried. A rug can be supported on boxes and chairs, so that air can get at the back as well as the front.

Mounting Maps
There have been few times when maps have been studied to the extent that they now are; maps of Europe, Africa, the Near and Far East, as well as the parts of the world not at present involved in war. For a map to be useful, it should be mounted on a stiff support. One-eighth plywood, is excellent. The first step in mounting is to lay the map on the plywood, and to mark the positions of the four corners. The plywood is then given a coat of shellac on both sides and on the edges. When this is dry, another coat of shellac is applied, the map is rolled up, and one of its ends is laid down with the corners on the marks. With the worker leaning over the board, the rest of the map is then thrown over the head, to be supported by it. The rest of the map is then quickly laid on the damp shellac, and smoothed with the two hands, which are free. As soon as the map is down, it should be gone over with a stiff brush, working from the center toward the edges, to push out air bubbles that may have been caught. Should any remain, they can be disposed of through a pin hole in the paper in the center of the bulge.

Room Decoration
Question: A study used by four people has a white ceiling, walls are light blue, and window frames are light yellow. Walls and ceiling are dirty and should be done over. The room is 11 feet square. In redecorating, what colors would make the room appear larger?
Answer: A light room will seem larger than if finished in dark colors. Had I your problem I should use one single light color for everything; ceiling and woodwork as well as walls. My choice would be light ivory or a pastel shade. Colors to relieve the monotony could be in curtains and upholstery.

Floor Cleaning
Question: Good oak floors are discolored and revarnished. How can I clean them and make them light? How can I clean stair treads? Sanding would be expensive.
Answer: At a hardware store you can get an alkali powder to be mixed with water that will take off the varnish and the discolorations. Directions on the label of the box should be carefully followed.

Floor Finish
Question: What would make a good finish for a newly sanded oak floor? We dislike varnish.
Answer: Use a treatment called a seal, which soaks into the wood and becomes part of the surface, rather than lying on it. Any good paint store should have a sealing liquid. If you want to, you can finish it with wax.

White Paint on Red
Question: How can I give a white finish to a red seat without the red coming through?
Answer: Take off all present finish with paint remover, which will also take out much of the red. The remainder can be sealed in with one or two coats of aluminum paint, to be finished with white enamel.

Alcohol Stain
Question: What will remove white spots left on my walnut bed by spilled alcohol?
Answer: Rub with camphorated oil, or use scratchless cleaning powder moistened with household oil, rubbed on with your finger tip.

Removing Verdigris
Question: What will remove verdigris from brass pipes and bathroom fixtures?
Answer: Verdigris can be taken off with household ammonia or by applying a paste made with sal ammoniac and water. Green stains on enameled plumbing fixtures can be removed by rubbing with scratchless cleaning powder moistened with kerosene, or with a powder for cleaning porcelain that can be had at dime stores. Be sure to obtain a "scratchless" type of cleaning powder.

AROUND THE HOUSE

To remove finger marks from washable wallpaper, rub gently with a soft cloth dipped in warm water. Wipe off quickly and then dry with a clean soft cloth.

Try dipping the knife in boiling water before cutting cake or pie.

If, when you stand in front of the sink, you can lay the palms of your hands on the sink bottom without bending your elbows, then the sink is the right height.

If doors and drawers swell so much that they won't close, sandpaper or plane the edges, and then varnish the surface to prevent further swelling or shrinking.

Grapefruit and oranges will peel more easily if you soak them three minutes in boiling water to cover. That will make the membrane come off along with the skin. Then chill the fruit for use in salads, cocktails, or desserts.

If your vacuum cleaner has several attachments, make the best use of them. They come in handy for cleaning behind radiators, book cases and the refrigerator.

The white part of orange and lemon rinds is usually bitter. So when grating use only the outside yellow part.

NAVY COURTMEN PRACTICE BASKETBALL ON SHIPBOARD

Perfect physical fitness is required of sailors in the U. S. Navy and Naval Reserve. Excellent athletic facilities are provided both afloat and ashore.

Pictured above are bluejackets on the aircraft tender U.S.S. Wright holding basketball practice on shipboard. Almost every ship in the U. S. Navy has its own basketball team. Rivalry among the crews of the various crafts runs high. In addition to basketball—football, baseball, boxing, bowling, wrestling and tennis all rank high as sports with Uncle Sam's sailors. Organized intrifleet competitions are held for most sports. Trophies and individual awards usually are presented to the championship winning teams and players.
