KEWASKUM, WISCONSIN, FRIDAY, FEB. 6, 1942

NUMBER 19

Registration for Third Selective Service to Be Feb. 14, 15, 16

Registration for the third selective service will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 14, 15 and 16, from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. at the local registration in Village Hall. Carl Schaefer registrar.

Next Monday, Feb. 9, at 2 a. m. the nation goes on daylight saving time, officially to be known as "wartime saving time, which means that citizens of Kewaskum and the rest of the country are going to lose an hour's sleep. If you don't intend to stay up until 2 a. m. be sure and set the old alarm clock and your watches ahead one hour before retiring on Sunday night. Then you will be in line with the time Monday morning.

Daylight or wartime saving time was provided for in a bill passed by congress and signed by President Roosevelt on Jan. 20. The measure will terminate six months after the war ends, unless congress votes to make it inoperative before then. Daylight saving time has been in effect in some other states regularly but is something new added in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin has a statute prohibiting setting clocks ahead but the attorney-general's office has held that the statute will not apply in the present case, since the new daylight saving time has officially been established as standard time.

1,071 Auto-Use Stamps Are Sold at Postoffice Here

Postmaster Frank Heppie reports that a total of 1,071 motor vehicle auto-use tax stickers were sold at the Kewaskum postoffice by the time the deadline was reached Monday evening. This is a large number considering the population of the village. It is well over one-third of the total number of 2,227 stickers sold in the city of West Bend.

Although Feb. 1 was the deadline for purchasing the federal tax stamps, the stickers will continue to be sold at $2.00 throughout the month for motorists who forgot or were unable to buy them. Stamps will also be available each month at a decrease in price proportionately from now until July 1 for those motorists who have acquired different motor vehicles.

The stamps will be a different color each month. On July 1 motorists will be required to purchase new stickers at a cost of $5. An estimated 50,000 motorists had failed to secure the stamps up to Tuesday and these are warned that arrests and penalties can be expected.

Young Man's Car Skids on Road and Tips Over

William Roehrdanz, 21, of Kewaskum, R. D., who is employed in this village, was shaken up and bruised early Monday morning when his car left County Trunk Highway V about two miles south of Eden, skidded into the ditch and then came back and turned over on the pavement. Accounts elsewhere of the accident stated that Roehrdanz was in a serious condition at his home with a brain concussion, cuts and bruises. These reports were ungrounded as he was only very slightly injured.

However, the young man was rendered unconscious in the accident and was not found until sometime later by a passing motorist, who brought him to a local physician's office. Roehrdanz reported that two other young men who had been riding with him were still pinned in the car wreckage. Fond du Lac county highway police were informed of the accident at 5:30 a. m. by the physician and the investigating officer reported that no trace of the other young men could be found. It was found out later two young men companions from this village had been in the car with Roehrdanz but had left his company at their homes here after returning from a dance at Wayne. It was thought that the victim's statement resulted from his dazed condition resulting from the accident.

Marks on the highway indicated that the vehicle skidded into the left hand ditch, and travelled approximately 55 feet before it turned over on its side on the highway. The car was quite badly damaged.

CRASH ON AUBURN ROAD

Two cars were badly damaged at about 8:15 p. m. last Friday when they collided on Highway 55 in the town of Auburn. Both vehicles were southbound. Fond du Lac county highway police said that one car driven by Charles L. Helm, 16, of Campbellsport made a sudden sharp turn to the left and the other vehicle driven by Harold Kreif, 21, Campbellsport, which was at its rear, struck the left rear end.

The left rear end, body, fender, wheel, axle and tire of the first car owned by Elmer Helm, and the right side, front wheel, tire, radiator and grill of the Kreif car were damaged. Wm. Riley, Jr., who was riding with Helm and several youths in the other vehicle, as well as the drivers, escaped injury.

Buying Defense Stamps in All County Schools

In every school throughout Washington county, the children are becoming systematic buyers of U. S. defense stamps. Stamps are now available to all pupils in their own classrooms.

This program is being carried out through the educational committee of the Washington County Defense Savings staff. The co-chairmen of this committee are: M. T. Buckley, D. E. McLane, and Jerold C. Buckley. To start the plan a county-wide teachers' conference was called. At that time the following points were emphasized:

1. The necessity of presenting the savings program through a unit of work which will call for a motivating step that will bring meaning, vividness, purposefulness and life to the objectives of the program and to the attitudes, ideals and understandings that must be developed within the child before he can become an effective and intelligent participant of the program.
2. The necessity of having all of the pupils take an active part in the savings unit so a comprehensive understanding of the entire savings program can be developed on the grade or age level. That understanding cannot and will not be developed in all of its fullness if the teachers are going to religiously adhere to the inadequate, ineffective and antiquated formal approach in the presentation of the savings unit.
3. The necessity of establishing a foundation so strong, so powerful, so challenging, and so stimulating that permanency will be a definite part of the program.
4. The necessity of eliminating from the entire program the factor of competition between pupils or classes in the purchasing of stamps. If the unit on savings is skillfully organized and intelligently executed, the unfortunate child will contribute as much to the success of the savings program as the fortunate child who is qualified to purchase stamps.

The value of this program of instilling into children the habit of thrift should receive the cooperation of all parents.

400 at Badger Firemen's Banquet at Random Lake

Seven firemen of the Kewaskum department were among the more than 400 people in attendance at the mid-winter banquet of the Badger Firemen's association at Random Lake last Thursday evening. Nearly every department of the 20 in the association was represented. Delegates of the Kewaskum department were Chief Harry Schaefer, Norbert Doss and Clarence Mertes. Others attending were Arnold Martin, Philip McLaughlin, Bernard Sell and Wm. Martin.

A delicious dinner was served and this was followed by a program. The program was highlighted by a talk on civilian defense by Howard A. Gatley of Kenosha, prominent in the middle west for Boy Scout work, instructor in first aid, an for his activities in national defense. Others on the program were Lieut. Smith of Kenosha and H. B. Woldt of Jackson, who gave character impersonations. Music was supplied by the Rialto Rhythm Kings. At the annual meeting in the afternoon it was decided to hold the summer tournament at West Bend in connection with that department's July 4th picnic. The tournament is expected to be on a smaller scale than usual due to the war.

The Random Lake auditorium was patriotically decorated with flags, banners and slogans of "Remember Pearl Harbor." Behind the speakers' table the flag was kept flying by artificial breeze and a spotlight shone upon it.

Born April 20, 1869 in the town of Wayne, Mr. Rady was the son of the late John and Carolyn Rady. When he was still a child the family moved from the town of Wayne to a farm in the town of Byron and it was on this homestead that Mr. Rady spent practically his entire life, continuing to make his home there after his marriage to Johanna Ferdinand in Fond du Lac on Nov. 5, 1913.

SALVAGE COMMITTEE URGES ALL TO COLLECT MATERIALS

Persistent inquiry to the salvage committee of the Washington County Council of Defense indicates the great interest of people of the county in getting salvage materials into channels of manufacture. The salvage committee is now in a position to designate materials desired in the national defense program and these are the following: 1. All metals; 2. Paper of all kinds; 3. Rubber of all kinds; 4. Rags.

Several conferences have been held with dealers and peddlers who handle salvage materials in Washington county in order to assure that these materials, when collected in the homes and about the farms, will actually be collected and marketed to manufacturers and processors. Equitable prices are being developed by the salvage committee in order that there may be uniformity and fairness.

All citizens of Washington county are urged to continuously assemble and collect in their homes and about their places any and all of the salvage materials needed for defense. Farmers are urged to collect any old machinery, old wire, and any other metal articles, dismantle them and bring them close to the buildings or close to the road, so that they may be conveniently loaded for the market. All residents are urged to collect rags and paper and metals and rubber and have the same reasonably assembled at their homes, again for convenient collection.

A meeting of the county salvage committee, and the appointment of chairmen for the various cities, towns and villages was planned for Thursday evening, Feb. 5. Theo. R. Schmidt and Carl F. Schaefer of this village, members of the county salvage committee, attended the meeting. Following this meeting further recommendations and suggestions will now be made known to the public. Pending instructions from time to time regarding marketing of salvage materials, it will be genuinely patriotic service if all citizens will save and collect and assemble, at their homes, their salvage items for national defense, namely: metals, paper, rags, and rubber.

Council of Defense Endorses Kettle Moraine Bowl Corps; Free Membership and Instruction by Expert Skier

Organization of the First Wisconsin Civilian Defense Ski corps is being completed at the Kettle Moraine Forest Lake ski bowl northeast of Kewaskum. The corps contacted Governor Heil, the Wisconsin Council of Defense and the Fond du Lac and Sheboygan County Civilian Defense councils. Their endorsement was given and the corps is now permitted to go ahead with the organization. A report on the progress of the corps will be submitted to Mayor Promen of Fond du Lac, chairman of the Fond du Lac county council.

Skiers from Milwaukee, Neenah, Oshkosh, Green Bay, Sheboygan and Fond du Lac are joining the defense corps and the surrounding villages and towns will also be well represented in this program. Anyone who wishes to join the corps can sign up at this office or preferably go right to organization headquarters at the ski bowl on week ends. Regular defense identification cards for members will be received and distributed as soon as possible.

No financial obligations are involved in belonging to the organization. Joining, instructions by expert skiers and use of the ski bowl are all free. It is open to all men and women as well as children of high school and grade school age who like to ski or would like to learn. Instructions are offered free by Erik A. Lindgren, expert skier and army instructor at Camps McCoy and Custer last winter. He is president of the North American Ski Scouts who have their headquarters at Forest Lake and the members of this organization have pledged their services in the training program.

Purpose of the organization is for better health, to increase body endurance and to promote physical fitness, considered by army men as the first line of national defense. Lessons will be given to boys and girls every Saturday, while Sunday will be devoted to free instruction for adults who are unable to go to the ski bowl on week days.

Last week end 60 skiers of the North American Ski Scouts of Chicago made reservations to be at the bowl but owing to the lack of snow and warm weather they will not be represented there until some week end as soon as skiing can be done. They were to have come in two chartered buses and extra private cars. On Feb. 7 and 8 about 40 members of the A. Y. H. group of Milwaukee are scheduled to spend the week end at the bowl if weather conditions permit. On Feb. 14 and 15 about 43 members of the Humboldt Park Wheelmen, Milwaukee, members of the League of American Wheelmen, are planning to come. Officials would appreciate if a group from Kewaskum would be represented on these week ends and would join this corps as well as welcome them.

Jacob Schlosser, Jr., Leo Wietor Recalled by Army

Pvt. Jacob Schlosser, Jr. of Milwaukee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schlosser, Sr. of this village, and PFC Leo Wietor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wietor of Wayne, both of the U. He left Monday for Fort Sheridan, Ill., to be inducted and assigned to a camp. Word was received by his parents here on Thursday that he was still stationed at Fort Sheridan up to that time. PFC Wietor was discharged Sept. 21, 1941, and arrived home last Oct. 1. He will leave Saturday morning by train for Fort Sheridan, from where he expects to be returned to Camp Polk, La., where he was stationed at the time he was discharged last fall.

ALL COUNTY PLANTS ADOPT ALLOTMENT PLAN FOR BONDS

Industrial plants throughout Washington county are fast getting to 100% adoption of the pay roll allotment plan for the purchase of U. S. defense bonds. Every single plant in the county is now in operation on the plan. It will be just a matter of time before every employee will be participating in this plan of systematic savings for U. S. defense bonds.

The fact that this job is being done on a voluntary basis entirely shows the remarkable support that everyone in this county is giving to the government. Robert H. Rolfs, executive chairman of the defense savings staff for Washington county wishes to express his sincere appreciation for the fine work already done in this effort through Walter Malzahn's industrial committee.

Mr. Malzahn announces that several plants already have 100% participation, and that it is just a matter of days in other plants to get complete participation for the county. The plan is a voluntary pay roll deduction which money is then set up in a fund. As soon as the employee has enough accumulated for the purchase price of a U. S. defense bond, the company purchases the bond and delivers it to the employee.

Becoming an American

Within the last six years more than one million persons cut their last ties with the "old country" and became citizens of the United States. And now, with America at war, there is a rush to be American. Nor is there anything difficult about attaining citizenship in the U. S.—if one is fit to be a citizen. The following series of photos shows you some of the steps taken by the foreign-born in becoming American.

Doctors Study Own Health
The Philadelphia County Medical society, long concerned with the public's health, has got around to wondering about the well-being of its own members. Dr. Edward L. Bortz, retiring president, listed as one of the accomplishments of his administration the establishment of a committee for the preservation of the health of physicians. The committee will make a five-year study of the physical and mental history of 1,000 local doctors.

Six to One
For every six years of a man's life we can approximate one year of a dog's life. Thus, a dog five years old would be about as old as a man 30 years old. The average life of a dog has been placed at about 10 years, which coincides with man's average of approximately 60 or more odd years. However, the first two years of a dog's life might be compared to the first 20 years of a person's life, as far as training, education, etc., are concerned.

Household Hints

Always put knife in boiling water for a few seconds before cutting cake that has been iced. Then you will be able to cut without breaking the icing.
Use a clean sheet of wrapping paper to roll pies and pastry on. It saves a lot of cleaning up later.
Cut off the leg of an old stocking and stretch it over the new broom down to a short distance above the ends of the straws. This will prevent it from wearing out so fast and at the same time make it better for sweeping.
White enamel can be cleaned with turpentine. Rub with a cloth moistened in the turps; then with a dry cloth.
A teaspoon of flour mixed with the hot grease in which you fry eggs will keep them from popping.

HIGH PRICES Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay.
Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what you are getting more for your money—more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.

Enclosing Cellar Stairs
A FIRE hazard that is quite common in residences is due to the cellar stairs being under the stairs to the second floor. In the event of a cellar fire the draft up the cellar stairs would carry the flames to the under side of the stairs above, which in burning out, would leave the bedroom windows as the only escape for people trapped there. The best remedy for this condition would be the moving of the cellar stairs to a distant corner of the cellar. Another remedy is the enclosing of the cellar stairs with fireproof or at least slow burning materials; asbestos board, two or three thicknesses of plasterboard, or something similar. In addition to this, there should be a fireproof or slow-burning door from the cellar to the enclosure. With this door left open, however, the enclosure would be useless. For this reason it should have a spring or weight to keep it closed. With the stairs thus protected, a fire would be confined to the cellar for a long enough time to organize an effective fight against it.

Hot Water Relief Valve
Question: I have just installed a stoker in my hot water house heating boiler, to which is attached a 30-gallon tank for running hot water. With the constant heat of the stoker, is there any danger that the tank might explode?

Answer: If your source of hot water is a coil or a knuckle in the firebox of your boiler, explosion is a possibility, because of the possible formation of steam. If there is no check valve or meter in the cold water supply line, you will be fairly safe, because pressure developed in the tank will cause the water to back up into the main. With a check valve or meter you should put a relief valve on the tank to release the pressure before it becomes high enough to make trouble. This relief valve should be on the hot water outlet of the tank; not on the cold water inlet.

Soiled Paint
Question: Paint on our house is in good condition, but is darkened by smoke and soot. What can we use for cleaning it?

Answer: Scrub with any mild soap. You could also use a solution of one or two tablespoons of trisodium phosphate in a pail of water, for this chemical is destructive of grease. Begin washing at the bottom and go up toward the top. If you begin at the top and work down, dirty water running over the dry paint will make streaks that cannot be taken out. Follow by thorough rinsing with clear water.

Floor Cleaning
Question: Floors that were sanded and waxed are not marked, but black with dirt. How can they be cleaned before re-waxing?

Answer: You can use liquid wax—water wax—which will soften the wax on the floor and permit it, with the dirt, to be wiped up. It is probable that some of the dirt has gone into the wood, and washing with soap and water may be necessary. Wax does not give much protection to wood, because dirt will go through. The bare wood should have a coating of shellac, varnish or seal before waxing.

Fumigation
Question: In trying to rid my bedroom of bedbugs, fumigation with hydrocyanic gas was recommended. I have a formula, but do not know how to use it or where to get the ingredients. Will you inform me?

Answer: Do not under any circumstances attempt to use hydrocyanic gas, because of its deadliness. To breathe it would be fatal. In cities its use is permitted only by licensed fumigators. I am sending you a leaflet on the control of bedbugs that I am sure will be helpful, and which does not involve anything dangerous.

Refinishing Copper Pots
Question: The lining of our old copper pots has been worn through, and food that stands in them becomes contaminated. How can the pots be restored to usefulness?

Answer: The usual lining of copper pots is tin. The process of lining is difficult, and an excellent substitute would be to have the inside of the pots plated with chromium. This job can be done by plating shops at no great expense. Any garage can give you the name and address of one in your neighborhood.

Paint for Bricks
Question: Our house is rough red brick. We would like to paint it white, but my husband thinks that white paint would not last. What do you advise?

Answer: You will get good results with cement paint, which is intended for masonry. It comes as a powder to be mixed with water.

Roof Snow Guards
Question: During the last two winters the snows sliding off the roof damaged the shrubs and trees near the house. What can be done? Where can snow guards be obtained?

Answer: Snow guards made of heavy copper wire can be bought through most shops handling roofers' supplies and materials. To prevent staining on white house walls from copper dirt, wire the wire a thin coat of varnish, the kind that is applied with a cloth.

Harcourt seized his erstwhile superior in a grip of steel.

A sigh of relief like the passing of a vague wraith sighed through the room as he banged out. Men resumed their seats and their attacks on the waffles heaped on their plates. As the atmosphere cleared Harcourt demanded in a low tone:

"Why the dickens did you fly at Hale, Tubby? Keep out of this mess. Disappointment plus his habits has crazed him. The very absurdity of his accusation should have held you."

"Ba-gosh, I saw vermilion when he insinuated—"

"Forget it!"

"He wouldn't have been demoted had he behaved himself."

"He knows that. That's the tragedy of it. He has dug his own professional grave and realizes it. He's a wizard of an engineer when he's himself. I've learned so much from him that I shall be everlastingly grateful."

"Mebbe so, mebbe so."

Tatima came over to Harcourt's table and said: "Miss Martha she says for you to go to her cabin, soon's waffles eat. Walk in, she says. She come soon."

Stephen Mallory looked after her thoughtfully. Shook his head. "Tatima's a puzzle to me. In a crisis she'd revert to the pagan creed of her ancestors, which was to end a quarrel by the surest and easiest method."

"Ba-gosh, then she'll get Hale sometime."

"Cheerio, Tubby, Hale will be off before she realizes that he's going."

As he made his way to the living quarters of the Samp sisters he reflected on Hale's vicious thrust. Home-breaker! Evidently he intended to twist friendly sympathy for his wife into a sordid liaison. Tubby and he had been sorry for Millicent Hale. Dainty as a figurine, the woman, a little more than a girl, had taken her marriage vows, "And leaving all others cleave only unto him," literally. She had followed her husband into the wilderness. Once or twice when her brother had been away from headquarters, she had turned to him or to Grant in an extremity. They had done what they could to help.

He obeyed instructions and walked into the Samp cabin without knocking. The room was characteristically New Englandish, furnished as it was with the Lares and Penates the sisters had brought. It had an atmosphere of homey charm. An old-time melodeon stood in one corner, a radio kept it company. Curious samplers, quaint silhouette portraits brightened the moss-chinked walls. From the warm security of the hearth rug a coal-black cat regarded him unblinkingly with slightly disdainful green eyes. Over one arm of a wing chair drawn near the fire dangled a pair of legs and feet encased in leather leggings above heavy shoes. From its depths came the sound of soft, regular breathing.

Harcourt smiled broadly. Grant's secretary asleep, he'd bet a hat.

He tiptoed across the room. He noted the boots, small for a boy even. His eyes traveled over the curled-up body in its rough brown tweed to the face. His heart suspended action. His glance flew from the vivid mouth with the faint red line of irritation above the upper lip to the tapering fingers from which dangled a small golden mustache. A wavy lock of black hair had fallen over one eye. Long lashes, gold-encrusted, lay on the crimson cheeks.

The world crashed about his ears. The boy asleep in the chair wasn't a boy! It was the girl to whom he had said good-by in New York. It was Janice Trent.

COUNTY HOLSTEIN BREEDERS ASSOCIATION TO MEET

Washington county breeders of purebred Holstein cattle will hold their annual meeting in the court house, West Bend, on Thursday evening, Feb. 12. The meeting will begin at 8:15 o'clock.

Among the outside speakers who are expected to be present are Robert Geiger, national association fieldman; Jack Reynolds, secretary of the state association, and A. O. Collentine of the College of Agriculture. A good program of interest to dairy men will be presented.

POULTRY CLINIC

The agricultural department of the Hartford High school will sponsor a poultry clinic on Tuesday, Feb. 10, at 1:30 p. m. The clinic will be held in the Hartford High school gymnasium.

Dr. B. A. Beach, veterinarian of the College of Agriculture, will be in charge. You are invited to attend and to bring in specimens of diseased poultry. Dr. Beach may be able to help you with your poultry diseases, problems.

HORSES IMPORTANT NOW

Good work horses, strong harnesses, with properly repaired and adjusted farm machinery, will be called upon to do an important share of the farm work during the emergency.

So predicts J. G. Fuller, animal husbandman at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, who reports that the market value of horses has recently advanced from $5.00 to $10.00 a head with prospects for prices still going higher. The Omaha horse market reveals a preference for colts and young horses for replacement rather than for old, inferior horses.

Registration associations also report increased registration during the past month. This, Fuller interprets, as an indication of the importance with which horses will be held during the coming months.

Where farmers are unable to find harness shops to handle repair work, it is suggested that farmers take opportunity during the slack winter months to clean, oil, and repair their harnesses for spring use. Even harnesses that have been on the hook for a number of years may be reconditioned for years of extra wear by a good home repair job.

Take the harness apart with pliers, if necessary, wash with lukewarm soft water and soap. When dry supply two applications of Neats foot oil and it will be clean and easy to repair; proceed with a riveting machine, harness punch and Conway loops to make a harness. After it is completed, wash with a harness soap and one will be surprised what he has accomplished.

PREPARE FOR BABY CHICKS NOW

Have we enough feeders ready for that extra batch of baby chicks? What about water fountains? Is the brooder stove and chick guard ready?

Now that less new metal equipment is being made for poultry purposes and other farm use, many farmers and poultrymen, if they are to be ready for the baby chicks, will have to depend on homemade equipment. Fortunately much of the equipment needed can actually be made at home.

Feeders, for example, do not have to be made of metal, although they are easier to wash and keep clean. Feeders made of wood will do just as well. These are most commonly made of ordinary building lath. Two laths for the bottom and one for each side will make a feeder four feet long. Six of such feeders will be needed to start 300 chicks. After the chicks are three to four weeks old, larger feeders must then be put in the house. These are made in the same shape as the lathtrough, except on a larger scale. Six inches wide and three inches high is about the right size. Six such feeders each five feet long will be needed for 300 chicks.

As for water fountains, a good one may be made by taking a No. 10 tin can or one that holds about a gallon of water. Punch a one-half inch hole an inch from the top, fill it with water and invert in a galvanized pan. If the chicks are on range, wooden troughs three inches high, six inches wide and five feet long, made watertight by soaking or stuffing the cracks with tar, are all that are needed.

Ever since twine binders went into use, this high-quality twine has saved time, grain, and money for American grain growers. There has never been a year when its price didn't represent the greatest actual twine value for that year. Full length, full strength, uniformity, and protection against insects are worth-while considerations when the grain harvest is at stake.

In the face of increased labor rates and increased cost of materials, this year's McCormick-Deering Twine prices are practically at last year's levels.

We suggest that you give us your twine order right away and protect yourself against the possibility of any price change or shortage.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Japanese Lose Heavily at Macassar When Dutch and U. S. Forces Unite; Compromise Price Control Passes; Additional Food Rationing Forecast

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

There was no sightseeing for these Axis evacuees from South America as they went through the Panama Canal Zone to the United States. Part of the group of 111 persons, including seven German and seven Italian diplomats, are pictured debarking from the special train which carried them across the isthmus. Uncle Sam took no chances of any Axis sightseeing, which would have been possible had the passage been made by boat.

MACASSAR:

First Victory

Americans had hailed the Battle of Macassar straits as the first definite American victory over the Japanese, worked out in conjunction with the indomitable Dutch.

The action amounted to the virtual trapping of a large Jap convoy in the straits, probably heading for a frontal assault on Java or Sumatra, and its virtual decimation with heavy losses in men and ships for the Nippon forces.

The fight lasted several days, and a number of Japanese warships were engaged by light American naval vessels including destroyers and submarines, and by considerable forces of airplanes.

One of the earliest ships sent to the bottom in the engagement was a Jap aircraft carrier, and if she was not sunk she was immobilized by a direct torpedo hit, and that meant she was useless as a carrier.

This meant instant air supremacy for the American-Dutch forces, and they went to work without mercy. One vessel after another was destroyed and as others were damaged and the Japs attempted to keep their convoy intact by slowing their pace to that of the slowest vessel, they were hopelessly trapped.

It apparently took more than six days for the Japs to negotiate the less than 500-mile journey through the straits, and the toll was upward of 31 vessels.

The engagement showed several things—that strong air reinforcements had arrived from the United States into the area; that they were being deployed effectively to prevent a further southward Japanese invasion of the East Indies; that American naval units, once at grips with the Japs, could give a good account of themselves; that the early toll of two ships a day could easily be enlarged to a deadly amount of shipping, an amount which the Japanese could not lose and continue their pace in the South Pacific.

PRICES:

Bill Passed

The passage of the compromise price control bill, setting ceilings on 74 commodities, brought to a head a situation which now was in the hands of the government, namely inflation of commodity prices.

From this point on it would be a criminal offense to sell anything above the ceiling price.

The senate vote had been at a higher ratio than the house, 65 to 14; President Roosevelt had been expected to name Leon Henderson to the post of price administrator, set up in the bill.

Henderson had been doing what he could along this line from his OPACS office, and had been placed in the War Productions board under Nelson.

All Henderson's previous work, wherever it did not conflict with the bill, immediately was validated, and became the law of the land, just as though congress itself had announced the ceilings.

Maximum penalties were one year in prison and a $5,000 fine for willful violations of the law.

A fight had been expected against Henderson on the grounds that the former administrator had been close to the President, who himself had been chief critic of the bill.

U-BOATS:

Active in Atlantic

A constant succession of sinkings of American and allied vessels in the north Atlantic, many of them close to the coastline, had revealed that U-boat activity was being pressed to the utmost.

The U. S. navy reports from the eastern ocean had been that their efforts were being redoubled, and that certain successes had been scored. The policy of not announcing U-boat sinkings was being followed, however.

Though the activity was heavy, and the sinkings of freighters and tankers numerous, many of the seamen were being saved. When the tanker Francis E. Powell was sunk, for instance, 30 out of 32 were rescued.

This was one of the closest in-shore sinkings, having taken place off Lewes, Del.

Belief was expressed by Canadian naval officials at an eastern port that a "mother ship" must be operating in the western Atlantic, acting as a supply and refueling base for a "wolf-pack" of submarines.

LUZON:

MacArthur's Fight

Though MacArthur's men were admittedly in a desperate position, it had become evident that he was getting at least some reinforcement, as his latest communiques had told of American "fighter planes," and also of the work of PT boat squadrons in Subic bay and at other points, probably near Corregidor.

But it had not been believed that MacArthur's army had any air planes left, therefore his report that Curtis P-40 fighters had downed a number of Jap bombers led many to think that they might have been flown in there from a distant base.

How many of the Japanese estimated Luzon army of 300,000 was able to get at MacArthur's men in their tiny front on Bataan peninsula was a problem, as many of them naturally would have to be holding the rear and supply lines against constant harassment of guerrilla bands of Filipinos.

RATIONING:

To Increase

Additional rationing was deemed a certainty, with the placing of sugar on a pound-a-week basis.

In fact, it was known that those who controlled the priorities were frowning even on some of the civilian defense activities.

Among these were the "indiscriminate knitting of sweaters," which was said to have a bearing on a possible shortage of wool.

Another was the selling of commodities in tin cans when they could be otherwise packaged or sold in bulk. Among the list was baking powder, beer, biscuits, candy, confectionery, cereals and flour, chocolate and cocoa, coffee, dog food, petroleum products, spices and condiments and tobacco.

Shipbuilders were being asked to design their ships that they could use steel of the type milled for automobiles—somewhat narrower plates.

Leon Henderson would be in charge of retail rationing, and James S. Knowlson in charge of that which occurred in industrial quarters, it was announced.

RUSSIANS:

Find Going Tougher

As the Russians announced that the "last live German" had been removed from Moscow province, and that the invaders in the Rzhhev area were trapped and doomed, and as they swarmed ever closer to Smolensk, they reported that the Nazi resistance was growing stiffer.

This, the Red high command said, was to be expected, but they drew much cheer from the fact that one victory was following another still, and that the general tactical campaign was shaping up well.

One expert in Red tactics said much credit was being given to a new Russian system of putting fairly heavy artillery into the front line with the infantry.

This, he pointed out, was a bold procedure, but one which the Germans, with nothing heavier than trench mortars in the front line, were finding it difficult to combat.

The Russians have 46 mm. guns and some 76s in the front lines, and though they are not so mobile, they are even being handled by manpower when horses cannot be found to draw them.

These guns fire at point-blank range, and were given much credit in winning the battle of Mozhaisk, a heavily fortified point.

The death toll is terrific in warfare at 40 below zero. Correspondents at the front state that wounded die within 10 or 15 minutes unless kept immediately warm, as their wounds instantly freeze.

The Russians, however, being adept at life under such conditions are reportedly suffering much less than the ill-equipped and prepared Germans.

MIDWAY:

The definite announcement that Midway island still was held by an intrepid band of marines was coupled with citations to two men, one of them Lieutenant Cannon, who died of loss of blood rather than leave his post in the first attack.

The Midway story was the same as that at Wake island, with the difference that the Japanese naval units apparently fled in the face of accurate fire by the marines' shore guns, which scored a direct hit on at least two ships.

'Over There'

SOMEWHERE IN IRELAND.—Maj. Gen. James E. Chaney of the U. S. Air Corps, who has been made commanding general of the U. S. army forces in the British isles, is pictured above. He has a high rating as both a combat pilot and combat observer. His headquarters will be "somewhere on the British isles."

He has written probably as much on taxes, and with as full authority, as any man in America, but we can't find he ever said a good word for them. In his book, "Law of Federal Income Taxation," published in 1934, he said: "It (taxation) is an evil which is in direct proportion to the rate of taxation imposed, and in these days of resumed high rates it is more important than it has been for many years."

REINFORCEMENTS:

For 10 Areas

The arrival of a considerable force of American troops in northern Ireland had been an exciting bit of news which the press leaped on with avidity, and which brought from the White House the statement that this was but one of six, eight or ten areas to which reinforcements had been sent.

Pressing the President for more information, newsmen succeeded in getting the revelation that help is being rushed with all possible speed into the Pacific war theater.

Nothing was said officially about the identity of the Northern Ireland troops, but the fact that a major general was named commander and that his staff included brigadiers led many to believe it was at least a division.

News dispatches from Ireland, passed by censorship, used the words "from their training ground in Louisiana" and the fact that they had come "from midwestern homes," but this was as close to identification as the war department would permit.

President DeValera criticized the sending, said his government should have been consulted, but though President Roosevelt recalled that DeValera was a "warm personal friend," he expressed no sympathy with his viewpoint.

The soldiers were there, reportedly eager for a "crack at the Nazis," and getting accustomed to British fare, living conditions and surroundings.

The President was positive in stating that aid of the strongest sort was being poured into the Pacific theater of the war, and war department estimates of the total manpower of the Japanese in that area was 1,000,000 men.

ROMMEL:

Drive Halted

The counter-drive by Gen. Erwin Rommel's troops in Libya, which had hurled the British back over considerable ground to a former battleground near Bengasi, had apparently been halted with a terrific blast of air power, causing the Germans huge losses.

As Churchill told the house of commons that the German-Italian casualties had been three times that of the British, his cohorts in North Africa had just finished a devastating blow to the Germans, which many believed had halted them in their tracks.

The advance from Agedabia to near Bengasi had found the Germans forced to halt for a time to organize their supply services, and the British took advantage of this respite to do the same.

But the R.A.F. moved forward to attack the supply lines, and reported the destruction of literally "hundreds of vehicles including tanks" and that they had reduced the German rear to "utter and hopeless confusion."

MISCELLANY:

New York: Joseph Lash, friend of Mrs. Roosevelt and one of her proteges, for whom a naval commission had been sought and refused, had been changed from 1-H to 1-A and had not claimed or asked deferment.

Washington: The justice department has ordered the removal of all enemy aliens from vital defense areas throughout the nation.

New York: Discovery of a gigantic plot on the part of the Germans to dispose of diamonds looted in Belgium and Holland in 1940 was made when the government reported a list of indictments against members of several New York corporations. More than $100,000 worth of diamonds already had been disposed of, it was believed.

London: President Roosevelt has received an ornament as a present from the British government. It is of glass, and is composed of fragments of the stained glass windows of parliament, broken by an air raid.

Washington: A new group of initials, "ABDA," has been born. The President revealed he uses this term to mean the Southwest Pacific theater of the war.

Broken down, the initials mean American, British, Dutch, Australian.

Luzon: The American sentries have been able to fool the Japs who disguise themselves in order to filter through the lines. The Japs can pronounce L, which they call R. So the passwords always have lots of "Ls" in them, like Lalalalalooosa, for instance.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Randolph Everghim Paul, who is preparing the treasury's new tax program, is a suave, pleasant man with somewhat the manner of a kindly doctor who tells us it is not nice medicine but we've got to take it.

He has written probably as much on taxes, and with as full authority, as any man in America, but we can't find he ever said a good word for them. In his book, "Law of Federal Income Taxation," published in 1934, he said: "It (taxation) is an evil which is in direct proportion to the rate of taxation imposed, and in these days of resumed high rates it is more important than it has been for many years."

We had suspected as much, and just now it is apparent that Mr. Paul hadn't seen anything then. He is a New York lawyer, with the firm of Lord, Day and Lord, and for the last four years has been Sterling lecturer on taxation in the Yale university school of law, previously having lectured at Harvard. It is as special adviser to Secretary Morgenthau on taxation that he is now outlining the tax program. He was appointed to the post of full-time adviser on December 12 of last year, after past part-time service in this capacity.

He is believed to be wary of any prescription by which an over-dose of taxation not only would fail as an antidote for inflation but might bring worse evils.

He is a native of Hackensack, N. J., educated at Amherst college, the New York university law school. He became a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York last June. In his treasury advisory capacity he is a dollar-a-year man.

IT'S hard luck having a rubber shortage just when we need rubber head lines. Pity the poor copy-reader trying to work in this one:

He's Trimmed to Fit, Though Name Could Take a Cut

Jonkheer Alardus Lamertus van Starckenborgh Stachouwer. He is the governor general of the Netherlands and commander in chief of all the Dutch armed forces of land, sea and air which are bagging perhaps more than their full share of Japanese in the opening encounters of the war in the Pacific.

His person has none of the redundancy of his name. He is trim, fit, energetic and hard as nails. At 52, blue-eyed and blue-blooded, a cold, precise realist, trained in the world's toughest school of administration, he is an ascetic in his personal habits, an abstainer from liquor and tobacco—all this in refutation of the common stereotype of the fat burgher smoking a meerschaum pipe.

The governor general of the Dutch East Indies virtually absolute powers. But five years is the limit in which this dictatorial mandate may be exercised, and the crown, wary about dictators, may recall the governor general for inefficiency or malfeasance. That's how the canny Dutch get efficiency in their colonial empire, with a check-rein and a martingale on it.

The governor's term was up last December, but the Dutch saw this war coming and continued him indefinitely in office. At the same time, they automatically solved the problem of full centralization of wartime authority, the integration of land and air forces and of industrial and military effort. Only on one other occasion, in the first World War, has the term of the governor general been thus extended.

The governor, born in the Netherlands, studied law, entered the diplomatic service, became governor of his native province, served at six foreign capitals, including Washington and became president of the university from which he was graduated. His wife is a former Baltimore girl, Christine Marburg, the daughter of a former United States ambassador to Belgium.

A knowing friend of this writer, who spent two years in the Far East, tells me that Governor Stachouwer has achieved a miracle of organization and discipline in pulling together the European and Eurasian Hollanders and Indonesians. And, my friend added, "the natives are with him. That's going to be important in this war. They have organized jungle armies of their own and they're going to be hard to take. The governor has been tough but he has been fair and he is no tyrant."

Governor Stachouwer is exceedingly punctilious in dress, usually wearing light gray suits and never the tropical whites. Austere, abstemious, coldly intellectual, he abhors showmanship in any form, unnecessary verbiage and ceremonials, and to him self-indulgence is the blackest of sins. In his modestly appointed Koningplein palace in Batavia he puts in a hard, daily 12-hour work shift, with an hour out in the afternoon for a solemn and dutiful turn at badminton. That's to keep fit for the service of the empire, not that he seems to enjoy it.

History's Future Course Hinges on U. S. War Aid

Deciding How American Fighting Materials Are To Be Divided on World's Battlefronts Is FDR's Grave Responsibility.

By BAUKHAGE National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

Washington has at last waked up to the solemnity of the task America has before it. Donald Nelson has begun his assignment of sweeping clean the Augean stables of the inefficiency and selfishness which block our defense production. But suddenly there is revealed a new responsibility which rests upon the President's shoulders, as great spiritually as Nelson's is materially.

On every front men are dying and armies and fleets are impotent for want of the sinews which America alone can forge. We can forge them. But how are we to decide how our aid shall be divided while, as yet, there is not enough for all?

That is the problem which the President and his advisors face today. When Winston Churchill came to America at least one-half of his task was to convince President Roosevelt and the latter's military advisors and the latter's military advisors that the main objective is the defeat of Hitler. That we must not permit the Nazi strategy of forcing Japan into the war to accomplish its aim—namely, to divert American supplies from Europe to the Far East and neglect the battle of the Atlantic for the battle of the Pacific.

Litvinoff's Purpose Had Same Objective

Soviet Ambassador Litvinoff came to Washington for a similar purpose. He had two powerful weapons, his own persuasiveness and the knowledge that he had something we want—possible Russian aid against Japan. This aid, if not in the form of actual Soviet military assistance, could mean at least permission to use Russian soil—Kamchatka, the nearest Asian land to the Aleutian islands, and perhaps even the Siberian port of Vladivostok—as bases of operation against Japan.

Although neither Roosevelt nor Churchill stated flatly for publication that one of the "public enemies No. 1" should be defeated first as against the others, certain lesser lights rushed into print with interpretations. Secretary Knox was much more specific. He said that "Hitler was the enemy who must be defeated first."

There was immediate and outspoken protest from the Chinese over making the Far East a secondary theater of war. Earnest and equally emphatic protest leaked through behind closed doors—objections by the Australian and Dutch ministers.

The feeling was so evident that there were questions at a White House press and radio conference. The President answered in general terms, said he couldn't reveal military secrets but that if he looked at a map of the world he thought we would find that American aid (supplies or manpower) were "there." I can't describe his tone or the atmosphere but my own inference was that America was deeper in things, or on the way to more active participation in military activity at many points than most laymen guessed.

That same day, Lieutenant-Governor General Van Mook of the Netherlands Indies had left the White House saying that the President had encouraged him, that he felt more optimistic.

The President agreed that this was the impression he had tried to give and added that America was making real progress in strengthening the defense of the United Nations.

Goebbels Can See Only the Surface

The day that the Japanese propagandists boasted that Singapore's days were numbered and that Maj. Gen. Gordon Bennett, in charge of the Australian forces in Malaya said that the situation was serious, Senator Connally, chairman of the foreign relations committee, called a press conference. Senator Connally had always favored war against Germany. But at this conference he said:

"Great Britain is in the Atlantic and with her navy ought to be able to command that area. We're more vulnerable in the Pacific."

In Berlin, Propaganda Minister Goebbels probably smiled his cynicism.

While the house and senate fought over the painful questions of ceilings for farm and other prices, the Washington press and radio corps had some problems of their own. Byron Price had been named censor and had issued his instructions. A reporter observed: "The rest of the country may not have it but at least the press has its Price control!"

In order to convince parents in Cumberland county, Tennessee, that their children should be kept in school, parents were asked to trade places with the pupils for one day. Parents took school buses to school while children stayed at home. Parents sat at desks, scanned their children's books, did classroom, enjoyed recess, ate hot school lunches, discussed school problems with teacher and principal.

More than 8,000,000 acres of land scattered from Alaska to Florida have been made available by the United States department of the interior for national defense activities in the United States.

At the present rate of sales, it is estimated that more tractors will be sold to United States farmers in 1942 than were on all farms at the end of 1919. The department of commerce says that American farmers now employ more than a million and a half tractors, or six times the number used in 1917.

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

SYMPTOMS CAUSED BY DANGEROUS COLD 'BUG'

All who live in regions in which the thermometer often falls to zero or below, know some of the more common symptoms caused by cold, for example, that they develop much more quickly on damp days than they do on colder dry days. The most universal symptoms caused by cold are watering of the eyes and nose and the chapping of the lips from exposure to the cold watery secretions. The chapping of the hands is due to a combination of cold, tight gloves and the natural moisture of the skin. Many have also had experience with "frost-bite" or "freezing" of the ears, nose or cheeks, fingers or toes. They know that the part so affected often remains more sensitive to cold; perhaps because the nerves regulating the blood supply were destroyed; perhaps because they were rendered over-sensitive to cold.

Some people are sensitive or allergic to cold just as others are to pollens or foods. These people may develop asthma so distressing that they must remain in doors in cold weather or else move to a warm climate. Others develop hives on exposure to cold. Some develop a type of eczema with severe itching in cold weather.

Reaction to Cold. The smaller arteries (arterioles) of some individuals develop spasms on exposure to cold water or air. The spasms may completely cut off the circulation in a limited area; and cause blueness and then pallor and very severe pain. If these arteriole spasms last long enough they may cause gangrene, that is death of the tissue nourished by these blood vessels. There is another group in which there is also an arteriole spasm, but in which the skin first becomes red; then as it gets colder, blue; and when still colder, gets red again. It too causes severe pain. These types of reaction to cold usually develop during early adult life or even during the teens and are more common in women.

There are a few people who have a disease of the blood vessels, both arteries and veins, in which many of the smaller vessels become obstructed by clots. They react badly to cold and develop pain, blueness and pallor of an extremity even before the temperature reaches freezing.

Hardening of Arteries. As people grow older they almost always develop more or less arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) even with normal blood pressures. However, those who have diabetes or high blood pressure usually have more of it than do others of the same age. Cold may cause such diseased arteries of the extremities and of the heart to develop spasms that may completely cut off the circulation for a long enough time to cause gangrene.

The names by which the diseases caused by cold are known, have purposely not been given because they are difficult to pronounce or remember when they are descriptive and would mean little when they are designated by the name of the physician who first described them. Their cause is unknown, and until it is, little can be done to prevent or to effectively treat them. Yet by avoiding exertion or exposure to cold and rapid changes in temperature, by wearing plenty of warm and properly fitting woolen clothing, those who have even the more severe forms of these diseases can learn to live comfortably in spite of them.

"Our treatment is not an end in itself, it is a means to an end, and that end is the patient's comfort and happiness and peace."—D. W. Mackenzie Sr., M. D.

Q.—I have a small bump on the heel of my foot. It is under the skin and is not very large, yet it gives much pain and a great deal of discomfort when my shoes rubs of discomfort when my shoes rubs against it. What causes this? J. B.

A.—The rubbing of the shoe which doesn't quite fit is the probable cause, if the bump is on the back of the heel. Covering it with a strip of adhesive will relieve, but a strip of adhesive will relieve, but a strip of adhesive will relieve.

Q.—I am bothered with peeling skin between my toes. What is the best remedy? D. C.

A.—Make sure that you haven't a mild form of "athlete's foot." Daily washing with soap and water, and daily change of stockings will help especially if light wool socks or stockings are worn.

Q.—Is the average physician competent of passing upon the care of thin and dry hair? M. L.

A.—Yes, though it is not best for your physician and knows you for long time, a skin specialist might correct conditions more rapidly.

Smart Midseason Dresses Are Dignified and Simply Styled

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THERE is a new psychology in the matter of dress. It's a most wholesome one which yields to no compromise with feminine charm and flattery, but tends toward greater simplicity, careful selection and an appreciative evaluation of wearing apparel that avoids extravagance. Clothes are made to serve dependably and at the same time gracefully, during the stress and strain of the present war period.

It's well-mannered clothes that women are wanting, the sort that won't shriek with glitter and gewgaws, yet will be spirit-lifters in their colorfulness, suavity of line and genuine charm. The winsome little wool dresses now so popular give the answer. Not only do they exploit color but they are styled to a nicety with all sorts of "catchy" details that individualize them and make them of outstanding style importance, not only for immediate wear with fur wraps but also to wear into the summer.

The accompanying group picture eloquently tells the story of quality, materials of distinction and flattering color. The first of this trio, that shown to the left in the above illustration, is a clever sports dress for the teen-age girl. It is in chocolate colored wool panelled with brown-stitched beige. Simple tailored prettiness enhances this model, together with an easy grace achieved by the full-gored effect below the hipline.

The dress to the right in the picture above stresses the new 1942 classic simplicity to a nicety. It exploits the sleek-fitting long-torso lines now so popular with college girls and the junior set. One of the persuasive arguments in favor of the attractive colorful daytime wool frocks is that they are "up to tricks" in the way of ingenious detail. In this instance it is the lacing at each side of the long-torso bodice that is eye-catching. Self material is laced around gold hooks. This model comes in delectable pastels or in lush colors.

Centered in the group above is a perfect "date" dress for the girl who must wear her "special occasion" dress all day in the office. This gown of leaf green crepe has a striking triple-tiered peplum, a smartly curved yoke and the somewhat full, straight sleeve favored this season.

Too sweet for words are the dainty little afternoon dresses of light wool or rayon crepe in exquisite pastels. They are fashioned with cunning self-fabric trimming. One has three rows of tiny ruching applied to a medium flare skirt line, three huge hand painted wood buttons and matching ruching about a clever yoke. Made of China pink crepe it is the ideal answer to the demand for something dressy but not too dressy.

The fuss made by the younger set over white date dresses continues. White jersey seems to be the outstanding material for these dresses. Now that color is so important, many of these jerseys are made gay and bright with embroidered flowers and motifs done in multi-colored yarns. Some of the most attractive white jersey frocks are highlighted with effective trapunto quilted design. Others are made festive with gilt buttons and girdles.

Ribbed Jacket

If you're headed resort-ward, plenty of lightweight sports things should be in your trunks. Here is one of the new loafer coats (the name reveals its purpose) to wear when you roll around on the veranda or beaches or wherever the spirit moves you. These jackets are made of cordurella, a feminine version of cordurex, the popular velvety-ribbed men's wear fabric. If you are a husband-and-wife combination, his windbreaker and slacks should be made of the finest lightest cordurex in order to interpret fashion at its smartest.

Save Stockings to Help Student Work

Women throughout the states are being asked to join a unique campaign to save old, worn-out silk or nylon hose (no rayon), to help send American girls and boys through college. For every thousand pairs of old hose contributed one girl or boy is enabled to attend college for 12 months.

A curtailment of silk has forced many in the student body of Athens college in Alabama to stay home this year. They had been earning their way working in the college's hosiery mills.

The stockings sent in will be reconditioned and "backwound," the process done under government supervision.

For Blackout

Some of the stores are featuring blackout accessories, such as bags done in plaid fiber to wear over the shoulder. They have five pockets, and it is advised that they be kept stocked with emergency requirements—flashlight, sweater, and other useful items. You can even get shoes that have tiny flashlight attachments.

Floating Suit

For those who cannot swim it should be good news that a floating swim suit has been devised that is non-sinkable, its patented feature being the lining of a spongy substance that floats. You can get these novel, practical suits in fitted or in dressmaker styles.

Brunch Coat

A fad that is growing into a pronounced movement is the brunch coat. It's as practical to wear as the usual smock, but is more formal and can be found in a greater variety of styles.

Picked Up in Studios of Style Designers

Shirtwaist styles, the trend to femininity notwithstanding, are featured in the spring collections. One shirtwaist dress combines a blue silk jersey blouse with a black tulle skirt.

The latest jewelry fad is seen in ensembles made up of three matching rings. You wear them on the third, fourth and little fingers of the right hand. The rings are in graduated sizes.

AUTO RATIONING

Q.—Why do you want a new car?
A.—It's the only way I can get five new tires.

Q.—Are you aware of the restrictions?
A.—No, but I knew something was all wrong. I called up several auto salesrooms yesterday and in no case did a salesman show up at my home inside of five minutes.

Q.—You already have a car?
A.—Yes.

Q.—What's wrong with it?
A.—Nothing.

Q.—Then why do you wish a new model?
A.—My wife thinks our next-door neighbor's car looks better.

Q.—The kind of car your neighbors have is of no importance.
A.—That's what YOU think!

Q.—Only certain classes of people are eligible for new cars. Are you a doctor?
A.—No, but my feet are just as tender.

Q.—Are you a farm veterinarian?
A.—Is this a car rationing bureau or an Information Please program?
Q.—Are you engaged in fire fighting?

A.—No; that's just an impression some people get from the way I drive.

Q.—Are you engaged in crime prevention?
A.—No, but if you'll let me have a new auto I'll give any cop a lift from now on.

Q.—Are you engaged in law enforcement?
A.—Yes, I'm a lawyer.

Q.—I said "enforcement," not "evasion."
A.—I didn't come here to be insulted.

Q.—That's all right; we don't mind doing it. Listen, do you regard a new car as a necessity?
A.—Positively.

Q.—Give three reasons.
A.—Well, first of all, I live four blocks from my office, and without a car I would have to negotiate the entire distance on foot. Second, we use the car to go to church.

Q.—How far is the church?
A.—It's almost an eighth of a mile!

Q.—What's your third reason for regarding a car as indispensable?
A.—My third reason is the most important of all.

Q.—What is it?
A.—If I didn't have an automobile where would I store all those outdated road maps and useless tools?

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Japanese Lose Heavily at Macassar When Dutch and U. S. Forces Unite; Compromise Price Control Passes; Additional Food Rationing Forecast

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

There was no sightseeing for these Axis evacuees from South America as they went through the Panama Canal Zone to the United States. Part of the group of 111 persons, including seven German and seven Italian diplomats, are pictured debarking from the special train which carried them across the isthmus. Uncle Sam took no chances of any Axis sightseeing, which would have been possible had the passage been made by boat.

MACASSAR:

First Victory

Americans had hailed the Battle of Macassar straits as the first definite American victory over the Japanese, worked out in conjunction with the indomitable Dutch.

The action amounted to the virtual trapping of a large Jap convoy in the straits, probably heading for a frontal assault on Java or Sumatra, and its virtual decimation with heavy losses in men and ships for the Nippon forces.

The fight lasted several days, and a number of Japanese warships were engaged by light American naval vessels including destroyers and submarines, and by considerable forces of airplanes.

One of the earliest ships sent to the bottom in the engagement was a Jap aircraft carrier, and if she was not sunk she was immobilized by a direct torpedo hit, and that meant she was useless as a carrier.

This meant instant air supremacy for the American-Dutch forces, and they went to work without mercy. One vessel after another was destroyed and as others were damaged and the Japs attempted to keep their convoy intact by slowing their pace to that of the slowest vessel, they were hopelessly trapped.

It apparently took more than six days for the Japs to negotiate the less than 500-mile journey through the straits, and the toll was upward of 31 vessels.

The engagement showed several things—that strong air reinforcements had arrived from the United States into the area; that they were being deployed effectively to prevent a further southward Japanese invasion of the East Indies; that American naval units, once at grips with the Japs, could give a good account of themselves; that the early toll of two ships a day could easily be enlarged to a deadly amount of shipping, an amount which the Japanese could not lose and continue their pace in the South Pacific.

PRICES: Bill Passed The passage of the compromise price control bill, setting ceilings on 74 commodities, brought to a head a situation which now was in the hands of the government, namely inflation of commodity prices.

From this point on it would be a criminal offense to sell anything above the ceiling price. The senate vote had been at a higher rate than the house, 65 to 14. President Roosevelt had been expected to name Leon Henderson to the post of price administrator, set up in the bill.

Henderson had been doing what he could along this line from his OPACS office, and had been placed in the War Production board under Nelson.

All Henderson's previous work, wherever it did not conflict with the ceilings in the bill, immediately was validated, and became the law of the land, just as though Congress itself had announced the ceilings. Maximum penalties were one year in prison and a $5,000 fine for willful violations of the law.

A fight had been expected against Henderson on the grounds that the former administrator had been close to the President, who himself had been chief critic of the bill.

U-BOATS: Active in Atlantic A constant succession of sinkings of American and allied vessels in the north Atlantic, many of them close to the coastline, had revealed that U-boat activity was being pressed to the utmost.

The U. S. navy reports from the eastern ocean had been that their efforts were being redoubled, and that certain successes had been scored. The policy of not announcing U-boat sinkings was being followed, however.

Though the activity was heavy, and the sinkings of freighters and tankers numerous, many of the seamen were being saved. When the tanker Francis E. Powell was sunk, for instance, 30 out of 32 were rescued.

This was one of the closest in-shore sinkings, having taken place off Lewes, Del. Belief was expressed by Canadian naval officials at an eastern port that a "mother ship" must be operating in the western Atlantic, acting as a supply and refueling base for a "wolf-pack" of submarines.

LUZON:

MacArthurs Fight

Though MacArthur's men were admittedly in a desperate position, it had become evident that he was getting at least some reinforcement, as his latest communique had told of American "fighter planes," and also of the work of PT boat squadrons in Subic bay and at other points, probably near Corregidor.

But it had not been believed that MacArthur's army had any air planes left, therefore his report that Curtis P-40 fighters had downed a number of Jap bombers led many to think that they might have been flown in there from a distant base.

How many of the Japanese estimated Luzon army of 300,000 was able to get at MacArthur's men in their tiny front on Bataan peninsula was a problem, as many of them naturally would have to be holding the rear and supply lines against constant harassment of guerrilla bands of Filipinos.

RATIONING: To Increase Additional rationing was deemed a certainty with the placing of sugar on a pound-a-week basis.

In fact, it was known that those who controlled the priorities were frowning even on some of the civilian defense activities. "Indiscriminate knitting of sweaters," which was said to have a bearing on a possible shortage of wool.

Another was the selling of commodities in tin cans when they could be otherwise packaged or sold in bulk. Among the list was baking powder, beer, biscuits, candy, confectionery, cereals and flour, chocolate and cocoa, coffee, dog food, petroleum products, spices and condiments and tobacco.

Shipbuilders were being asked so to design their ships that they could use steel of the type milled for automobiles—somewhat narrower plates. Leon Henderson would be in charge of retail rationing, and James S. Knowlson in charge of that which occurred in industrial quarters, it was announced.

RUSSIANS: Find Going Tougher As the Russians announced that the "last live German" had been removed from Moscow province, and that the invaders in the Rhyez area were trapped and doomed, and as they swarmed ever closer to Smolensk, they reported that the Nazi resistance was growing stiffer.

This, the Red high command said, was to be expected, but they drew much cheer from the fact that one victory was following another still, and that the general tactical campaign was shaping up well.

One expert in Red tactics said much credit was being given to a new Russian system of putting fairly heavy artillery into the front line with the infantry.

This, he pointed out, was a bold procedure, but one which the Germans, with nothing heavier than trench mortars in the front line, were finding it difficult to combat.

The Russians have 46 mm. guns and some 76s in the front lines, and though they are not so mobile, they are even being handled by marines power when horses cannot be found to draw them.

These guns fire at point-blank range, and were given much credit in winning the battle of Mzhaisk, a heavily fortified point.

The death toll is terrific in warfare at 40 below zero. Correspondents at the front state that wounded die within 10 or 15 minutes unless kept immediately warm, as their wounds instantly freeze.

The Russians, however, being adept at life under such conditions are reportedly suffering much less than the ill-equipped and prepared Germans.

MIDWAY: The definite announcement that Midway island still was held by an intrepid band of marines was coupled with citations to two men, one of them Lieutenant Cannon, who died of loss of blood rather than leave his post in the first attack.

The Midway story was the same as that at Wake island, with the difference that the Japanese naval units apparently fled in the face of accurate fire by the marines' shore guns, which scored a direct hit on at least two ships.

'Over There'

SOMEWHERE IN IRELAND.—Maj. Gen. James E. Chaney of the U. S. Air Corps, who has been made commanding general of the U. S. army forces in the British isles, is pictured above. He has a high rating as both a combat pilot and combat observer. His headquarters will be "somewhere on the British isles."

REINFORCEMENTS:

For 10 Areas

The arrival of a considerable force of American troops in northern Ireland had been an exciting bit of news which the press leaped on with avidity, and which brought from the White House the statement that this was but one of six, eight or ten areas to which reinforcements had been sent.

Pressing the President for more information, newsmen succeeded in getting the revelation that help is being rushed with all possible speed into the Pacific war theater.

Nothing was said officially about the identity of the Northern Ireland troops, but the fact that a major general was named commander and that his staff included brigadiers led many to believe it was at least a division.

News dispatches from Ireland, passed by censorship, used the words "from their training ground in Louisiana" and the fact that they had come "from midwestern homes," but this was as close to identification as the war department would permit.

President DeValera criticized the sending, said his government should have been consulted, but though President Roosevelt recalled that DeValera was a "warm personal friend," he expressed no sympathy with his viewpoint.

The soldiers were there, reportedly eager for a "crack at the Nazis," and getting accustomed to British fare, living conditions and surroundings.

The President was positive in stating that aid of the strongest sort was being poured into the Pacific theater of the war, and war department estimates of the total manpower of the Japanese in that area was 1,000,000 men.

ROMMEL: Drive Halted The counter-drive by Gen. Erwin Rommel's troops in Libya, which had hurled the British back over considerable ground to a former battleground near Bengasi, had apparently been halted with a terrific blast of air power, causing the Germans huge losses.

As Churchill told the house of commons that the German-Italian casualties had been three times that of the British, his cohorts in North Africa had just finished a devastating blow to the Germans, which many believed had halted them in their tracks.

The advance from Agedabia to near Bengasi had found the Germans forced to halt for a time to organize their supply services, and the British took advantage of this respite to do the same.

But the R.A.F. moved forward to attack the supply lines, and reported the destruction of literally "hundreds of vehicles including tanks" and that they had reduced the German rear to "utter and hopeless confusion."

MISCELLANY: New York: Joseph Lash, friend of Mrs. Roosevelt and one of her protégés, for whom a naval commission had been sought and refused, had been changed from I-H to I-A and had not claimed or asked deferment.

Washington: The justice department has ordered the removal of all enemy aliens from vital defense areas throughout the nation.

New York: Discovery of a gigantic plot on the part of the Germans to dispose of diamonds looted in Belgium and Holland in 1940 was made when the government reported a list of indictments against members of several New York corporations. More than $100,000 worth of diamonds already had been disposed of, it was believed.

London: President Roosevelt has received an ornament as a present from the British government. It is of glass, and is composed of fragments of the stained glass windows of parliament, broken by an air raid.

Washington: A new group of initials, "ABDA," has been born. The President revealed he uses this term to mean the Southwest Pacific theater of the war.

Broken down, the initials mean American, British, Dutch, Australian.

Luzon: The American sentries have been able to fool the Japs who disguise themselves in order to filter through the lines. The Japs can pronounce L, which they call R. So the passwords always have lots of "Ls" in them, like Lalalalalooosa, for instance.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Randolph Evernghim Paul, who is preparing the treasury's new tax program, is a suave, pleasant man with somewhat the manner of a kindly doctor who tells us it is not nice medicine but we've got to take it.

Tax Authority Has No Good Word for Taxation System He has written probably as much on taxes, and with as full authority, as any man in America, but we can't find he ever said a good word for them. In his book, "Law of Federal Income Taxation," published in 1934, he said: "It (taxation) is an evil which is in direct proportion to the rate of taxation imposed, and in these days of resumed high rates it is more important than it has been for many years."

We had suspected as much, and just now it is apparent that Mr. Paul hadn't seen anything then. He is a New York lawyer, with the firm of Lord, Day and Lord, and for the last four years has been Sterling lecturer on taxation in the Yale university school of law, previously having lectured at Harvard. It is as special adviser to Secretary Morgenthau on taxation that he is now outlining the tax program. He was appointed to the post of full-time adviser on December 12 of last year, after past part-time service in this capacity.

He is believed to be wary of any prescription by which an over-dose of taxation not only would fail as an antidote for inflation but might bring worse evils.

He is a native of Hackensack, N. J., educated at Amherst college and the New York university law school. He became a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York last June. In his treasury advisory capacity he is a dollar-a-year man.

IT'S hard luck having a rubber shortage just when we need rubber head lines. Pity the poor copy reader trying to work in this one: He's Trimmed to Fit, Though Name Could Take a Cut Jonkheer Alidius Lambertus Tjarda van Starckenborgh Stachouwer. He is the governor general of the Netherlands and commander in chief of all the Dutch armed forces of land, sea and air which are bagging perhaps more than their full share of Japanese in the opening encounters of the war in the Pacific.

His person has none of the redundancy of his name. He is trim, fit, energetic and hard as nails. At 52, blue-eyed and blue-blooded, a cold, precise realist, trained in the world's toughest school of administration, he is an ascetic in his personal habits, an abstainer from liquor and tobacco—all this in refutation of the common stereotype of the fat burgher smoking a meerschaum pipe.

The governor general of the Dutch East Indies has virtually absolute powers. But five years is the limit in which this dictatorial mandate may be exercised, and the crown-wary about dictators, may recall the governor general for inefficiency or malfeasance. That's how the canny Dutch get efficiency in their colonial empire, with a check-rein and a martingale on it.

The governor's term was up last December, but the Dutch saw this war coming and continued him indefinitely in office. At the same time, they automatically solved the problem of full centralization of wartime authority, the integration of land and air forces and of industrial and military effort. Only on one other occasion, in the first World war, has the term of the governor general been thus extended.

The governor, born in the Netherlands Indies, studied law, entered the diplomatic service, became governor of his native province, served at six foreign capitals, including Washington and became president of the university from which he was graduated. His wife is a former Baltimore girl, Christine Marburg, the daughter of a former United States ambassador to Belgium.

A knowing friend of this writer, who spent two years in the Far East, tells me that Governor Stachouwer has achieved a miracle of organization and discipline in pulling together the European and Eurasian Hollanders and Indonesians. "And," my friend added, "the natives are with him. That's going to be important in this war. They have organized jungle armies of their own and they're going to be hard to take. The governor has been tough but he has been fair and he is no tyrant."

Governor Stachouwer is exceedingly punctilious in dress, usually wearing light gray suits and never the tropical whites. Austere, astemious, coldly intellectual, he abhors showmanship in any form, unnecessary verbiage and ceremonials, and to him self-indulgence is the blackest of sins. In his modestly appointed Koningsplein palace in Batavia he puts in a hard, daily 12-hour work shift, with an hour out in the afternoon for a solemn and dutiful turn at badminton. That's to keep fit for the service of the empire, not that he seems to enjoy it.

Washington Digest History's Future Course Hinges on U. S. War Aid

Deciding How American Fighting Materials Are To Be Divided on World's Battlefronts Is FDR's Grave Responsibility.

By BAUKHAGE National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Washington has at last waked up to the solemnity of the task America has before it. Donald Nelson has begun his assignment of sweeping clean the Augean stables of the inefficiency and selfishness which block our defense production. But suddenly there is revealed a new responsibility which rests upon the President's shoulders, as great spiritually as Nelson's is materially.

On every front men are dying and armies and fleets are impotent for want of the sinews which America alone can forge. We can forge them. But how are we to decide how our aid shall be divided while, as yet, there is not enough for all?

That is the problem which the President and his advisors face today. When Winston Churchill came to America at least one-half of his task was to convince President Roosevelt that the main objective is the defeat of Hitler. That we must not permit the Nazi strategy of forcing Japan into the war to accomplish its aim—namely, to divert American supplies from Europe to the Far East and neglect the battle of the Atlantic for the battle of the Pacific.

Litvinoff's Purpose Had Same Objective Soviet Ambassador Litvinoff came to Washington for a similar purpose. He had two powerful weapons, his own persuasiveness and the knowledge that he had something we want—possible Russian aid against Japan.

This aid, if not in the form of actual Soviet military assistance, could mean at least permission to use Russian soil—Kamchatka, the nearest Asian land to the Aleutian islands, and perhaps even the Siberian port of Vladivostok—as bases of operation against Japan.

Although neither Roosevelt nor Churchill stated flatly for publication that one of the "public enemies No. 1" should be defeated first as against the others, certain lesser lights rushed into print with interpretations. Secretary Knox was much more specific. He said that "Hitler was the enemy who must be defeated first."

There was immediate and outspoken protest from the Chinese over making the Far East a secondary theater of war. Earnest and equally emphatic protest leaked through behind closed doors—objections by the Australian and Dutch ministers.

The feeling was so evident that there were questions at a White House press and radio conference. The President answered in general terms, said he couldn't reveal military secrets but that if we looked at a map of the world he thought we would find that American aid (supplies or manpower) were "there." I can't describe his tone or the atmosphere but my own inference was that America was deeper in things, or on the way to more active participation in military activity at many points than most laymen guessed.

That same day, Lieutenant-Governor General Van Mook of the Netherlands Indies had left the White House saying that the President had encouraged him, that he felt more optimistic.

The President agreed that this was the impression he had tried to give and added that America was making real progress in strengthening the defense of the United Nations.

Goebbels Can See Only the Surface The day that the Japanese propagandists boasted that Singapore's days were numbered and that Maj. Gen. Gordon Bennett, in charge of the Australian forces in Malaya said that the situation was serious, Senator Connally, chairman of the foreign relations committee, called a press conference. Senator Connally had always favored war against Germany. But at this conference he said:

"Great Britain is in the Atlantic and with her navy ought to be able to command that area. We're more vulnerable in the Pacific." In Berlin, Propaganda Minister Goebbels probably smiled his cynical smile. Truly this looked like the dissension which has been the Nazis' favorite ally. But Herr Goebbels fortunately can see only the surface. Underneath there is a realistic policy being pursued which is based on certain facts. No one can predict the fortunes of war, but the picture as the persons in responsible position here see it looks something like this:

It is generally believed that the stories of violent dissension between the Nazis and the German High Command are largely party propaganda. In any case there is no evidence of a serious internal breakdown in Germany.

The Nazi invasion of Russia has failed of its two objectives: First, destruction of the Red army as a fighting unit. Second, the capture of large quantities of supplies such as oil and foodstuffs. The German losses have been heavy. Nevertheless, the German military machine is intact, and it still has oil and supplies for at least a year.

On the other hand, although the Russians have made a masterly defense and are conducting a successful counter-offensive, they have regained little more than one-tenth of the ground the Germans captured. There is no evidence that any permanent German winter line has been cracked.

This means that a German offensive is still possible in the spring and since Russia is exhausting her supplies it is doubtful if she will be either willing or able to attack Japan from Siberia.

In the Far East, Singapore has been the hot spot from the time the Japanese established their superior air power in the western Pacific. From then on, Singapore was no longer valuable as a base because its docks were no longer safe from air attack. Military men said from the first, however, that as long as it stood, it had a powerful nuisance value for it immobilized Japanese air, sea and land power and prevented successful invasion of the Netherlands Indies, or at least the key island of Java. Even if it fell, they said, that did not mean that the defense line of the United Nations based on Java would crumble.

As a result of this overall picture, those in charge of getting aid to the United Nations have worked out this division of supplies: Continue to send to Europe (Britain and Russia) the amount of supplies which she has been receiving. Send the increased production to the South Pacific.

Reinforcements are now arriving in the Pacific in greater numbers. As the tide of battle changes it will rest with the President and his advisors to make the choice of where and in what volume America's contributions to the defense of democracy shall go. On the wisdom of this choice will depend the future course of history.

Radio Censorship And News Casting Sometimes the radio commentator grows very wrath at those who steer the censorship of state. Recently into every broadcasting station which has a news service came a dispatch telling of the crippling of an American ship by a submarine off the coast of North Carolina. It was official. The censor had passed it for publication but NOT for radio.

Immediately, as president of the Radio Correspondents' association, I was stormed by colleagues demanding that I protest at such discrimination. But the decree was logical. If we had broadcast that the crippled ship was putting into port, the submarine could have picked up the message and pursued and perhaps caught its limping prey.

Next morning, when the papers came out with the story the battered ship was safe in harbor. It isn't likely that the submarine commander gets the morning papers.

What irked me as a commentator far more than this incident was my inability to tell you Washington's little secret of how spring came to the capital in January. I couldn't say anything about it at the time, because that might have helped the enemy, too. Now that it can be told, it doesn't seem so interesting. In fact it seems improbable.

While the house and senate fought over the painful questions of ceilings for farm and other prices, the Washington press and radio corps had some problems of their own. Byron Price had been named censor and had issued his instructions. A reporter observed: "The rest of the country may not have it but at least the press has its Price control!"

In order to convince parents in Cumberland county, Tennessee, that their children should be kept in school, parents were asked to trade places with the pupils for one day. Parents took school buses to school while children stayed at home. Parents sat at desks, scanned their children's books, did classwork, enjoyed recess, ate hot school lunches, discussed school problems with teacher and principal.

More than 8,000,000 acres of land scattered from Alaska to Florida have been made available by the United States department of the interior for national defense activities in the United States. It has been said that America has become a tired, toothless nation. If so, it won't last. With autos rationed few will be tired and then we'll have to use our feet.

At the present rate of sales, it is estimated that more tractors will be sold to United States farmers in 1942 than were on all farms at the end of 1919. The department of commerce says that American farmers now employ more than a million and a half tractors, or six times the number used in 1917.

Your Affections, Budget When Furnishing

Instead of Lavishing Everything on One Room

ARETH MACRAE BOYKIN
"front" is all right—at least it is in our living room. But when we are actually budgeting the bulk of our money on the living room, we should be more judicious. The furniture and most of the fabrics will be hand-me-downs, but she's willing to lavish all kinds of energy on making them over in order to have a really pretty room. She expects to paper the walls herself, paint the furniture, dye some faded old cretonne for curtains.

A floral wall paper would go well with a soft blue background. Then paint the furniture pale blue with drawer fronts decorated with pasted-on medallions of the flowers cut from the wall paper. Dye the old curtains in pale blue and have a white chenille bedspread. For lamps, get gallon jugs and paint them white, paste on cut-out bouquet from the wall paper and add crisp white shades.

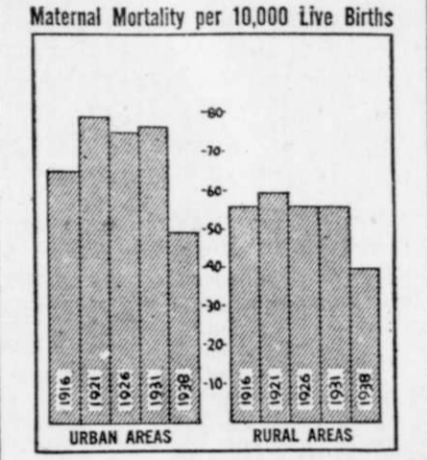

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

SYMPTOMS CAUSED BY DANGEROUS COLD 'BUG'

All who live in regions in which the thermometer often falls to zero or below, know some of the more common symptoms caused by cold, for example, that they develop much more quickly on damp days than they do on colder dry days. The most universal symptoms caused by cold are watering of the eyes and nose and the chapping of the lips from exposure to the cold watery secretions. The chapping of the hands is due to a combination of cold, tight gloves and the natural moisture of the skin. Many have also had experience with "frost-bite" or "freezing" of the ears, nose or cheeks, fingers or toes. They know that the part so affected often remains more sensitive to cold; perhaps because the nerves regulating the blood supply were destroyed; perhaps because they were rendered over-sensitive to cold.

Some people are sensitive or allergic to cold just as others are to pollens or foods. These people may develop asthma so distressing that they must remain in doors in cold weather or else move to a warm climate. Others develop hives on exposure to cold. Some develop a type of eczema with severe itching in cold weather.

Reaction to Cold. The smaller arteries (arterioles) of some individuals develop spasms on exposure to cold water or air. The spasms may completely cut off the circulation in a limited area; and cause blueness and then pallor and very severe pain. If these arteriole spasms last long enough they may cause gangrene, that is death of the tissue nourished by these blood vessels. There is another group in which there is also an arteriole spasm, but then as it gets colder, blue; and when still colder, gets red again. It too causes severe pain. These types of reaction to cold usually develop during early adult life or even during the teens and are more common in women.

Hardening of Arteries. As people grow older they almost always develop more or less arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) even with normal blood pressures. However, those who have diabetes or high blood pressure usually have more of it than do others of the same age. Cold may cause such diseased arteries of the extremities and of the heart to develop spasms that may completely cut off the circulation for a long enough time to cause gangrene.

The names by which the diseases caused by cold are known, have purposely not been given because they are difficult to pronounce or remember when they are descriptive and would mean little when they are designated by the name of the physician who first described them. Their cause is unknown, and until it is, little can be done to prevent or to effectively treat them. Yet by avoiding exertion or exposure to cold and rapid changes in temperature, by wearing plenty of warm and properly fitting woolen clothing, those who have even the more severe forms of these diseases can learn to live comfortably in spite of them.

"Our treatment is not an end in itself, it is a means to an end, and that end is the patient's comfort and happiness and peace."—D. W. Mackenzie Sr., M. D.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—I have a small bump on the heel of my foot. It is under the skin and is not very large, yet it gives much pain and a great deal of discomfort when my shoe rubs against it. What causes this? J. B.

A.—The rubbing of the shoe which doesn't quite fit is the probable cause, if the bump is on the back of the heel. Covering it with a strip of adhesive will relieve, but better fitting shoes are needed. Q.—I am bothered with peeling skin between my toes. What is the best remedy? D. C.

Smart Midseason Dresses Are Dignified and Simply Styled

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THERE is a new psychology in the matter of dress. It's a most wholesome one which yields to no compromise with feminine charm and flattery, but tends toward greater simplicity, careful selection and an appreciative evaluation of wearing apparel that avoids extravagance. Clothes are made to serve dependably and at the same time gracefully, during the stress and strain of the present war period.

It's well-mannered clothes that women are wanting, the sort that won't shriek with glitter and gewgaws, yet will be spirit-lifters in their colorfulness, suavity of line and genuine charm. The winsome little wool dresses now so popular give the answer. Not only do they exploit color but they are styled to a nicety with all sorts of "catchy" details that individualize them and make them of outstanding style importance, not only for immediate wear with fur wraps but also to wear into the summer.

Ribbed Jacket

If you're headed resort-ward, plenty of lightweight sports things should be in your trunks. Here is one of the new loafer coats (the name reveals its purpose) to wear when you loiter around on the veranda or beaches or wherever the spirit moves you. These jackets are made of cordurella, a feminine version of cordurex, the popular velvety-ribbed men's wear fabric. If you are a husband-and-wife combination, his windbreaker and slacks should be made of the finest lightest cordurex in order to interpret fashion at its smartest.

Save Stockings to Help Student Work

Women throughout the states are being asked to join a unique campaign to save old, worn-out silk or nylon hose (no rayon), to help send American girls and boys through college. For every thousand pairs of old hose contributed one girl or boy is enabled to attend college for 12 months.

For Blackout

Some of the stores are featuring blackout accessories, such as bags done in plaid fiber to wear over the shoulder. They have five pockets, and it is advised that they be kept stocked with emergency requirements—flashlight, sweater, and other useful items. You can even get shoes that have tiny flashlight attachments.

Floating Suit

For those who cannot swim it would be good news that a floating swim suit has been devised that is non-sinkable, its patented feature being the lining of a spongy substance that floats. You can get these novel, practical suits in fitted or in dressmaker styles.

Brunch Coat

A fad that is growing into a pronounced movement is the brunch coat. It is as practical to wear as the usual smock, but is more formal and can be found in a greater variety of styles.

Picked Up in Studios of Style Designers

Navy will be as good as ever for spring. But it will have such added touches as pale pink trimming or open work embroidery. College men have indicated a distinct preference for the bishop sleeve, brought out this year, especially when it's of a filmy material. Bright red trims many dark spring dresses. And it is frequently seen with navy and white in patriotic motifs.

AUTO RATIONING

Q.—Why do you want a new car?
A.—It's the only way I can get five new tires.

Q.—Are you aware of the restrictions?
A.—No, but I knew something was all wrong. I called up several auto salesrooms yesterday and in no case did a salesman show up at my home inside of five minutes.

Q.—You already have a car?
A.—Yes.
Q.—What's wrong with it?
A.—Nothing.
Q.—Then why do you wish a new model?
A.—My wife thinks our next-door neighbor's car looks better.
Q.—The kind of car your neighbors have is of no importance.
A.—That's what YOU think!

Q.—Only certain classes of people are eligible for new cars. Are you a doctor?
A.—No, but my feet are just as tender.

Q.—Are you a farm veterinarian?
A.—Is this a car rationing bureau or an Information Please program?
Q.—Are you engaged in fire fighting?
A.—No; that's just an impression some people get from the way I drive.

Q.—Are you engaged in crime prevention?
A.—No, but if you'll let me have a new auto I'll give any cop a lift from now on.
Q.—Are you engaged in law enforcement?
A.—Yes. I'm a lawyer.

Q.—I said "enforcement," not "evasion."
A.—I didn't come here to be insulted.

Q.—That's all right; we don't mind doing it. Listen, do you regard a new car as a necessity?
A.—Positively.
Q.—Give three reasons.
A.—Well, first of all, I live four blocks from my office, and without a car I would have to negotiate the entire distance on foot. Second, we use the car to go to church.

Q.—How far is the church?
A.—It's almost an eighth of a mile!
Q.—What's your third reason for regarding a car as indispensable?
A.—My third reason is the most important of all.

Q.—What is it?
A.—If I didn't have an automobile where would I store all those outdated road maps and useless tools?

CANDIDATES FOR THE FIRING SQUAD

A guy on whom I'd pour hot gravy is always asking, "Where's our navy?"

CAN YOU REMEMBER—

Away back when a post-office clerk sold nothing but postage stamps at the stamp window?

Ima Dodo bought one of those U. S. auto tax stamps today and she says she is going to buy one every day and save them until maturity.

Canned beer may be discontinued due to the need for tin. It is okay with us. We never did like reaching into the icebox for a glass of beer and coming out with a can of tomatoes.

Moe Berg, Boston Red Sox ball player, has retired from the diamond to become a government good will ambassador to Pan America. This is most encouraging. We have long had a distinct impression that our team in that area was weak both in the field and at the bat.

Mr. Berg speaks nine languages. But the umpires were always able to defeat him in one.

We favor more baseball players in our diplomatic forces. You can't name one in twenty in our entire diplomatic service who has color, speed, punch or even a good throwing arm. We will never think an envoy is really good until we see some kids surround him and ask for an autograph.

Why ban those radio quiz programs? If the enemy gets as much wrong information from them as the American people do everything will be just ducky.

THINGS WE HOPE WILL BE RATIONED

- 1.—Paper napkins.
- 2.—Lunchroom coffee.
- 3.—Paper cups.
- 4.—Railroad train sandwiches.
- 5.—Cigarette lighters.

With all these priorities, we wish somebody would announce severe rationing of the following items: Drug store salads. Musical auto-horns. Motion picture theater seat-stubs. Hair tonics.

Scholl Employees Sign Up 100% for Defense Bonds

AT a given hour recently, every one of the more than 1,000 employees of The Scholl Mfg. Co., Inc., located throughout the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean and from border to border, affixed his or her signature to a United States Savings Bond Pledge card. Thus, The Scholl Mfg. Co. secured 100 per cent co-operation in this campaign in the shortest time of any organization in the country.

As its contribution toward the employees' bond-buying program, The Scholl Mfg. Co. will pay a liberal share of the cost of the first bond purchased by each employee under the payroll allotment plan devised by the U. S. Treasury Department.—Adv.

Tickled Pink!

And why? Because he found there was a way to relieve that aggravating gas, headache, listlessness, coated tongue and bad breath, from which he had suffered, due to spells of constipation. He tried ADLERIKA—why don't you? It is an effective blend of 5 carminatives and 3 laxatives for DOUBLE action. ADLERIKA quickly relieves gas, and gentle bowel action follows surprisingly fast. Barred Girls From Schools

Although Indians were being educated at Harvard as early as 1642, the white girls of New England were not admitted to public schools until almost 1800, or more than 150 years after the first one was established.

How To Relieve Bronchitis

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Great minds have purposes, others have wishes. Little minds are tamed and subdued by misfortune; but great minds rise above them.—Washington Irving.

Liking One's Duty

The secret of happiness is not in doing what one likes, but in liking what one has to do.—James M. Barrie.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its busy and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
