Students Hear Talk on Fire Prevention

On Tuesday afternoon, Mar. 17, J. J. Statz, deputy state fire marshal, presented a program on fire prevention before the student body of the Kewaskum high school. Mr. Statz told of various incidents and experiences throughout the program, which made it very interesting. He was assisted by Arnold Martin, assistant fire chief, and William Schaub, superintendent of public works.

In his talk Mr. Statz pointed out that the greatest majority of the people were entirely ignorant of the explosive power of kerosene and distillates. He added that 12 to 15 drops of kerosene is enough to blow the top off of a kitchen range.

Mr. Statz worked an experiment by placing two drops of gasoline into a small can. He then put the cover on the can tightly. As he heated the can with a candle the vaporized gas ignited and blew the top off the can. He went on to explain that 12 gallons of gasoline would blow the Statue of Liberty five feet in the air.

Among the precautions given for people to remember are the following: (1) Always pull the plug out of the socket when you leave your ironing. (2) Never lock children in a room and leave the building. (3) Every home should have practice fire drills so that everyone knows how to leave the building when a fire actually occurs.

Everyone enjoyed the program very much. The deputy fire marshal was in Kewaskum to make an inspection of various business places and other buildings.

PFC Leo Wietor, Service Battery, 54th Field Artillery, 3rd Armored Division Camp Polk, La., in a letter to this office, writes of the activities in camp and also sends a picture taken at the scene of the Feb. 11 head-on train collision at Wilton, Ark., in which he was involved while enroute to camp. PFC Wietor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wietor of Wayne, was recalled into active service by the army on Feb. 7. Sixteen persons were injured in the collision between the Kansas City Southern railroad's streamlined train, the Flying Crew, on which Wietor was a passenger, and a freight train. Wietor escaped injury, although thrown from his seat. The letter follows:

Camp Polk, La.
March 8, 1942

Dear Sirs:

Am sitting on my bunk by the fire-side and writing a few letters, after reading the Kewaskum Statesman and the Sheboygan Press. One of my buddies, PFC LEYS, is from Sheboygan and he also gets his home paper.

Am doing a lot of driving these days throughout the camp area, out to the firing range and also drive in blackouts. There are two armored divisions here, the 3rd and the 7th, the latter getting their basic training, so we are very much crowded with about 30,000 soldiers here and, still more coming. The 3rd armored force has moved into tents, five men to a tent. We all take turns in keeping the home fires burning, with the new selectees occupying the barracks.

The post has a new field house, dedicated to the name of Norbert DeFour. It is very large, the capacity about 6,000. This arena is used for all sorts of sports, meetings and speeches, etc. Also have six new churches or chapels, a service club and guest house.

The 54th Field Artillery battalion received more vehicles—quite a few scout cars, half-trucks and 11-ton wreckers. All these vehicles, besides the "peeps," "jeeps," cycles, tanks, trucks, etc. are being repainted and also receive a name. The official car which I happen to be driving received the name of "Shangri-La." This name was chosen by the commanding officer. All names for vehicles in service battery will start with the letter S. The boys sure are having fun selecting names.

Heard several good speeches at the field house, delivered by American men who had spent several years in Europe. From what I have heard, all Americans should feel proud of this civilized country.

Have been out on field problems several times and usually get caught in a rain. It really pours down here this time of the year. Had heavy rains about three times a week for the past two weeks.

All the enlisted reserve men are back. It was like a homecoming at our arrival. Still receive chicken and ice cream on Sunday, of course not mentioning anything about the beans. Well, in any way, am getting along fine and doing my best to serve Uncle Sam. Best regards to all friends.

Yours truly,
Leo

County 2nd Highest In the State in Sale of U. S. Defense Bonds

Washington county is running a close race for first place in the per capita sale of U. S. defense bonds series "E" for the month of January. The only other county that surpasses it in per capita sales on series "E" bonds is Milwaukee county. Figures have just been released by Frank J. Kuhl, state administrator of the defense savings staff showing the sale of series "E" bonds in the 71 counties in Wisconsin. Our county is in a "neck and neck" race for first place.

A total of $184,980.00 worth of series "E" bonds were bought by the citizens of Washington county in the month of January. Let us stop for a moment and figure out just what this means. The population of our county is 28,420. That means every man, woman, and child in this county averaged $6.51 worth of series "E" bond purchases in January. The average family consists of four, so in other words we can say that the average family bought $26.04 worth of U. S. bonds. At this rate in a year every family would buy $312.48 worth of bonds. There is a figure to repeat—$312.48 PER FAMILY.

That is a figure we in Washington county should be proud of. This fine result is due to the efforts of everyone—farmers, school children, teachers, bankers, postmasters, women's organizations, retailers, employees, employers, professional men—everyone has done his share.

Remember there is no quota, no budget, on the sale of U. S. defense bonds. We here in Washington county have started out well. Let us keep it up. The one thing that everyone of us can do to win the war is to provide the money to buy the machines needed to win the war. That's where every penny you save in U. S. defense bonds goes.

As you know, the series "E" bonds are commonly called the "Peoples' Bonds." They sell in denominations of $25.00, $50.00, $100.00, $500.00, and $1000.00 face value. No one person can buy more than $5000.00 (at face value) of these bonds in any one year. These bonds sell at $18.75, $37.50, $75.00, $375.00, and $750.00 respectively. If held to maturity they pay 2 1/2% interest compounded semi-annually.

The "pledge" campaign among the farmers is going along very well. It will only be a short time before there will be 100% participation. The pledge is not an order, it just lets the government know how much you expect to save in U. S. defense bonds each month—not what you have already bought but what you will buy. Every income earner will be asked to sign a pledge—the campaign soon will be finished among the farmers, and then it will start in all cities and villages in Washington county. Be ready to sign your "pledge" when you are called on.

Robert H. Rolfs, executive chairman of the defense savings staff of Washington county, wishes to express his appreciation to every person in the county for the way they have enthusiastically bought U. S. defense bonds, making it possible to give the county this status among the 71 Wisconsin counties. His committee, numbering close to 300, have functioned well in this effort and deserve a real good old-fashioned "thank you."

Washington county—we're in our way! Let's keep on "saving for victory!"

All Persons Urged to Collect Scrap Metal

Lying idle in Wisconsin backyards, attics and cellars, and on the farms, there are potential guns and cartridges, possibly even a light tank or two, and important parts of great bombing planes, D. J. Kenny, chairman of the Washington County Salvage committee, declared today.

How to uncover and return this estimated amount of critically needed material into war production is the task the salvage committee has set for itself. Current and impending shortages in most of the metals used in the manufacture of weapons of all kinds have brought the importance of salvaging so-called waste materials into the forefront of the nation's problems.

"Under normal conditions," the salvage committee chairman pointed out, "the steel industry, for instance, depends upon scrap for approximately one-third of its supply of raw material. With the vast expansion of our armament program, including the aid that we must continue to send to Britain, Russia, and China, it is obvious that the salvaging of metals heretofore wasted or destroyed must be augmented to a tremendous degree. In frequent instances recently, steel mills have been threatened with curtailment of production for lack of scrap."

Discarded tools, broken or obsolete household equipment, unused kettles, garden implements, old tire chains, broken farm implements and tools, old automobiles, trucks, and tractors, these and numerous other similar items are generally to be found in basements, backyards or attics of the average home, studies have indicated. It has been impossible to estimate the total amount of iron and steel scrap that may be available in a county such as Washington, but salvage experts feel sure that several hundred tons may be lying unused and wasted, when it might easily be collected and used to help fill the widening gap between the supply of essential metal and the ever-increasing demand.

The state salvage committee has recommended that any person who has an accumulation of scrap metal, in whatever form it may be, call a nearby waste material, or junk dealer, who will buy it at current prices. Persons who have been in the habit of giving such materials as waste-paper, rags and scrap metals to charitable agencies are urged to continue that practice, since these organizations sell their collections promptly.

Short Cruise on a U. S. Sub

Let's go for a bit of a cruise on one of Uncle Sam's submarines and see what it's like in these compact little vessels that pack such a big wallop. Watching the snappy efficiency of the crew makes even the landlubber forget to be scared on his first trip to Davey Jones' locker.

Picture Parade

This is how the bow of a submarine looks as the craft begins to submerge. There is no sensation of plunging, merely a tilting of the deck and an effort by the landlubber to adjust his balance to meet the pitch.

View of the depth gauge. Indicator here points to 38 feet. The man at the wheel controls the depth.

Living accommodations are not luxurious. Here is how the sleeping quarters are arranged, in three-tier bunks. The boys look happy.

The eye of the submarine is its periscope, a gadget something like the view-finder on an ordinary camera. Here you see a gentleman of the press taking a peek through the periscope. The whole horizon may be surveyed.

Standing inside a sub with the main conning tower shaft open, this is what you see when you look up.

On the submarine every man is an expert. This is a view of the engine compartment.

Different Now
Things are different in this man's army than they were in Dad's day. There's a whole new set of slang, machines have taken the place of mules, and the holes in the Salvation Army doughnuts are star-shaped instead of round. But top sergeants are about the same, the scientists haven't yet found a substitute for beans, and it's still the Old Army Game—no matter how thin you slice it.

Lots of Berries
Late statistics from the department of agriculture show that approximately 648,000 crates of strawberries were sold. Of the berries sold, growers estimated that they received for fresh market sales an average price of $1.36 per 24-pint crate, and expected final season payments from processors of 4.4 cents per pound. Processors handled about 78 per cent of the state's marketable production this year.

Pershing Had but One Rebuke for Doughnuts

From time to time there have been complaints about discipline in the U. S. Army. True that the American ways has been somewhat "cut," but he is a genius fighter—and it pays best not to be too smart. This leads up to a story of a dark night in France when an officer and asked for a rebuke. As he lit up, he said, "Pershing!"
The general smiled and said, "Say, son, you took a chance," he said. "I had been a second lieutenant."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Silver should always be polished following the shape of the object—flatware lengthwise and hollowware with a large circular motion.

If you wish to serve your guests individual cakes, bake your cake in a loaf. When baked, cut it in squares, frost them on four sides and decorate the tops with walnuts.

Don't run lamp cords under the rug. They wear out more quickly from being walked on, and present a fire hazard.

Avoid handling electrical apparatus with wet hands. Always turn off the main switch before trying to repair outlets or lights. Disconnect cords before working on them.

In removing paint, apply paint remover with a brush and scrape off the paint when it begins to curl.

Shabby leather upholstery may be revived by washing with a cloth wrung out in warm water, to which a little vinegar has been added. Polish can be restored after washing by rubbing with a mixture of the whites of two eggs beaten up with a dash of turpentine.

To save frequent dusting, a dust-cloth that does a thorough job is a household necessity. Put one tablespoon of furniture polish of good quality into a quart glass fruit jar, and shake the jar until the polish coats the sides. Put a yard of clean cheesecloth into the jar and cover it. Let the cloth remain in the jar several days before using. Refill the jar with another cloth and another measure of polish after each dusting.

INOCULATE LEGUME SEEDINGS

We are going to need more alfalfa, clover and other legumes—for forage, for hay, for silage.

The Wisconsin Experiment station has recently published a special circular entitled "What to Do, Crops and Soils, in 1942." This circular emphasizes the legume as a soil building agent in both cultivated field and pasture, and suggests the use of a fertilizer containing no nitrogen with legumes, and one containing nitrogen for other than legumes.

Legumes, of course, have to be supplemented by the appropriate nodulating bacteria. Without the bacteria the legume needs nitrogen in the fertilizer as much as do oats or potatoes; with the proper bacteria it can obtain its nitrogen from the air. It then becomes a true soil-building or soil-enriching crop.

One cannot be certain that the proper bacteria are in the soil of a field to be seeded with clover, or with alfalfa, or with soybeans. So to insure the presence of this necessary agent the seed should be inoculated with the proper bacteria. In other words, the field must be seeded with bacteria as well as with the seed of the desired legume.

The bacteria, like the seed of the legume, must have high germinating power and must be in adequate quantities. It costs about 10 cents to purchase the bacteria from the College of Agriculture needed for ONE acre. The preparation of the seed bed, the fertilizer and the seed cost about 100 times as much. The expenditure of 10 cents for inoculation may safeguard the $10.00 cost of seeding an acre to a legume.

GOOD PASTURE WEEK

A proclamation designating the week of April 5, as "Good Pasture Week" in Wisconsin was issued last week by Governor Julius P. Heil.

Governor Heil, in making his announcement, emphasized the importance of good pasture management practices as a contribution to the war effort and expressed a hope observance of the week would be helpful in directing attention to the part pastures can play in maintaining the milk production goals being asked of the state.

Dean Chris. L. Christensen, of the College of Agriculture, in a special statement, said representatives of the extension service of the college, the agricultural adjustment administration, the state soil conservation committee, and the soil conservation service are sponsoring the week.

All of these groups are endorsing pasture improvement work as an economical way of getting much of the increased milk production being asked by the government," Christensen said, "and all will participate in special events designed to call attention to the week.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne Jap Invasion Bases in New Guinea Strengthen Drive Against Australia; Promised Dominion Status for India Fails to Result in Expected Harmony

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Reports from Australia emphasize the importance of Allied attacks on the Japanese invasion bases of Salamaua and Lae in northeast New Guinea. From Salamaua to Thursday Island, off the northern tip of Australia, the distance is 400 miles. From Port Moresby, the nearest major harbor to the mainland, to Cape York, on the northern Australian tip, the distance is little more than 300 miles.

AUSSIES: On the Spot

Hardly had the battle of Java reached the mopping up stages than the battle for the approaches of Australia had started with rumblings from within the continent that the Aussies were far from pleased with the amount of preparedness they had.

The signal for the beginning of the "curtain-raiser" for the attempted invasion of Australia had closely followed the shut-down of communications with Java, and came at the same time news was received that some 3,000 Australian troops, badly needed at home, were still fighting a hopeless fight on the island of Java.

The spearhead of the projected invasion was apparently to be based on the island of New Guinea, just to the north of the continent and immediately threatening it as the shortest airline flight from the East Indies.

The Japs had landed large forces at Salamaua, Lae and at Finschhafen, and had been busily engaged in consolidating these positions as bases of supplies.

This was enough to set at rest any doubts Australians might have had that India and not they were going to be next on the Jap time table. Not only that, but the Japanese, with brutal frankness, had broadcast that Australia was going to suffer the same fate as had the Dutch East Indies.

How much American aid and reinforcement already was in Australia was dubious, and a closely guarded military secret. If we were weak, and if we were strong enough to defeat them, when and if they should land, these same leaders didn't want to warn them off.

The only stories concerning the amount of aid had come from McDaniel, who had written that the town of Perth was so full of American troops that it looked like an American city, and from British Correspondent Harr, whose despatch had caused an immediate dispatch which hadn't gone anywhere at all.

Harr it was who, apparently writing from the midst of an American convoy bound to Australia had said that the "sea was covered with ships" and that "hundreds of America's best fighting pilots" were aboard.

America also was sending men "from the plains states" he added, but gave no hint of their status.

It was from Australian leaders themselves that the hint came that the continent was ill-prepared. One said:

"It is the plan of the Japanese to attack us before we can get prepared, and before we can receive reinforcements."

Secrecy had muddled the picture for Americans, but certain it was that in going after Australia the Japs were really biting off a chunk which would take a bit of chewing, for they'd find no fifth-column there waiting to be taken over.

MISCELLANY:

Washington: Donald Nelson said he was frankly delighted with the way some factories were changing over to war work, citing in particular a linoleum plant now making guns.

Albuquerque, N. M.: A call went out for 200 women to tend a victory garden. They will accept one male volunteer. He must do the plowing and planting.

Balboa, C. Z.: Secretary of War Stimson, 30 years ago, had been the first war secretary to leave the United States to visit the Panama defenses. He had just repeated this precedent-shattering trip with a flight there in a plane, escorted by a dozen pursuit ships.

INDIA: Britain's Problem

Churchill had informed Commons, which had been demanding some forthright action on the problem of Hindustan, that nothing could be done now, but repeating his promise of dominion status for India "after the war."

So far this problem was the most trying one facing the British. In Burma they had found what they were up against, with the Burmese revolutionaries joining the Japs, and many of the others turning frankly against all white men.

The British defenders of Burma, cut off by these tactics, had been forced to retreat more and more, and finally, in a daring maneuver, had struck northward, and had smashed their way close to their Chinese allies.

What Britain feared more than anything was a frank and open uprising of all of India's 350,000,000 people, and to this the best Churchill could do had been to re-offer what had been offered back in August, 1940, and which, apparently, had accomplished nothing.

But this time he went a little further. He told the Indians that the government had adopted a definite plan as to how the dominion status would be carried out, and that he was sending his own right-hand man, Sir Stafford Cripps personally to India to explain it all to them.

India's religious and caste problems were, admittedly, severe, and whether Cripps could dig his hand into India and come out with Britain's little white rabbit remained to be seen.

He was a miracle man in Russia, and a miracle man before Commons. Could he perform a third in this war? Britain hoped so.

TAXES: Millions Pay

Millions of Americans, many of them making their first trip to Uncle Sam's tax returns, had made their income tax returns for 1942, but only a percentage of them were able to pay the full amount.

At the same time they were aware that 1943 taxes would be much higher, and there were thousands who had a different picture of their family budgets after making their returns than they did before.

In the meantime, in Washington, though some government authorities were against the sales tax as putting the burden on the weak, began serious consideration of some form of sales tax as being probably less painful and more sure of large returns than increased income levies.

The house ways and means committee had taken the bit between its teeth in demanding that treasury officials furnish them with data on the probable yield of some form of sales tax.

Secretary Morgenthau had taken the position that a sales tax would be not only inequitable, putting the heaviest burden on the poor, but that it would be inflationary.

The great question in Washington among certain congressmen was "who is now poor?" pointing out that the income tax was already taking all that most people felt they could pay, and the sales tax would, though increasing the cost of living, "come easier."

Strong support had come for these congressmen from William J. Schleflein Jr., head of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, who suggested a graduated retail sales tax to raise about $4,000,000,000 and only a billion more to be brought with increased income taxes.

LEND-LEASE:

The President himself gave congress the tipoff as to how slowly a nation has to move to become prepared and to give aid to its allies when he revealed that in the first year of lend-lease, about one billion dollars worth of material had been sent abroad.

NAZIS: Need Man Power For Spring Drive

Whether Germany was planning peace or not, London had been hearing reports that the Nazis were seriously short of manpower which was needed for the spring offensive against Russia.

The first indication of this was when the Nazis issued an estimate of losses thus far in the war which was by far the largest figure they had ever admitted, though still far short of the Reds' claims.

The Germans admitted loss of 1,500,000 men since the start of the war, and said that half of these had been lost in the winter on the Russian front.

The report had come out of London that the Nazis now were asking for 2,600,000 fresh troops from Italy, Hungary and Slovakia for the spring offensive.

Soviet authorities claimed that the Germans had lost 6,000,000 men on the Russian winter front alone, of these 1,700,000 killed, 2,000,000 seriously wounded, and the rest missing or prisoner.

Of the new troops Germany was said to be asking for, 1,500,000 from Hungary, 1,000,000 from Italy and 100,000 from Slovakia. Rumania was said to have given an army of 1,000,000 last fall, but the Reds asserted that practically all of these had been wiped out.

HARA-KIRI: On Bataan

Though there had been little action on Bataan peninsula, there had been a change in Japanese commanders with stoutish General Homma reported to have planned a ceremonial knife into his own retum vital, and General Yamashita, the conqueror of Malaya, reportedly taking the best tradition of the Samurai, to be replaced by another general as having failed calls for a quiet trip into a secluded room, there to take a swift trip to visit one's ancestors.

No soft berth at a desk awaits the unsuccessful commander in the field. For him comes swift dishonor, and death just as swift, at his own hand. Such is the code of the Samurai.

When General Homma met more than a superior general and superior fighting men—he met the end of the road.

At the time Yamashita was organizing his forces for the purpose of wiping out MacArthur and thus wiping away his predecessor's dishonor (or of encountering some of his own) there was a huge demand sweeping the country for some definite answer as to why substantial aid could not be sent to the Philippines.

Accompanying this was some fairly sharp criticism of the administration and its conduct of the war. But in the main the response of the public to the "Send Aid to MacArthur" campaign was rather a tribute to a hero than any suggestion as to how the job might possibly be done.

The President had told his press conference: "You tell me how to get the help there, and I'll send it."

To this poser the answer had not yet come.

MOVING DAY: For Aliens

Pacific coast residents were told that the huge machinery necessary for moving about 100,000 enemy aliens and American citizens of the Japanese extraction out of the coastal areas was finally complete.

The work of moving them, the government had said, might start any day.

Where they would be sent, there had been little hint, but two sections had been mentioned, one of them in Idaho and another in Colorado.

It was to be a huge task, but with the war going as it had been in the Pacific, white residents of the Pacific coast would breathe more easily when they had gone.

RUMORS:

As the war fronts were extended, so the rumor factories kept turning out bigger and bigger stories.

Widely circulated in the United States had been two of them, first, that Churchill would be out and Cripps in as premier in three months; the other that Germany was about to seek peace with Russia.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—There was a skinny boy over on Coney Island who in one day spent $100 popping off ducks and clay pipes on the shooting gallery.

$100 Wad Shot In Gallery Helped Net Garand Rifle He didn't go to college and if he had he probably would have been voted the least likely to succeed.

But, with young people, you can't be too sure what is monkey business or what isn't. This boy, as above, really had his mind on his work when he was banging away in the shooting gallery. He got himself a work bench and brought through the Garand rifle, which has increased our army small-arm firing power by two-fold, and which has brought to the 53-year-old John C. Garand special commendation from General MacArthur.

Mr. Garand is still a gunsmith at the Springfield armory, earning around $5,000 a year. He has had big commercial offers for his gun, but has refused them and has waited patiently for the army to make up its mind, during the years of controversy and many rigorous tests.

He is an erect, lean featured, mop-haired man, with alert, bespectacled blue eyes which focus sharply at about the distance of a gun-sight. He seems rather absent-minded about the medals he has won and the money he might have made and is puzzled that anyone should suggest that he ever had any thought other than handing his gun to the government. It was in 1923 that he offered the first rough model of his gun. The bureau of standards backed him, greased him into the Springfield armory, and it was in 1939 that the war department provided funds for the manufacture of the rifle.

He was born in Montreal, was a sweeper in a textile mill in a small Connecticut town at the age of 12 and was working part time in a machine shop when he found his laboratory in the Coney Island shooting galleries.

ONE defect of a non-authoritarian society is that people usually don't consult authorities before making up their minds. We have heard many expressions of our Draft Army Best Under Any Flag, Dr. Winslow

"right out of the feed-box," about the supposed general physical unfitness of our new army. It's just a cream-puff army if you listen to these croakers.

None of them took the trouble to telephone the man who knows —Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of Yale university. He has studied the physical fitness of our recruits, after a lifetime as a specialist in such matters. He says: "Our draft army is probably the most physically and mentally the most ever gathered together under any flag." Dr. Winslow's success in this field is reported in the "Fitness-of-Freedom" issue of the Survey-Graphic magazine.

Since 1915, Dr. Winslow has been lauder professor of public health at the New York Museum of Natural History, as director of the division of public health education in the New York state department of public health and has been associated with the Rockefeller foundation in public health research and education. He has written a wide shelf of books on subjects in his field, conducted innumerable surveys, contributed to countless forums and conferences.

Dr. Winslow was the founder of the American Hygiene movement. A 64-year-old Bostonian, he schooled for his life-long battle against physical unfitness at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Yale and New York university.

He has followed wider participation among college students in health-building sports and he has been a pioneer in both "positive health" and preventive medicine.

This department has noted a swelling tide of misinformation about the British stalling, the Russians getting ready for a fast double-cross, our war production a mess and our army a push-over. It is possible that somebody who doesn't like us is channeling this into dinner-table talk. It might be a good idea if every American newspaper would run a standing "get it straight" box, giving the names and addresses of trusted authorities in each field of war effort, and urging talkative citizens to hook up with headquarters, or else keep still.

SIR WALTER MONCKTON, British director of information in the Middle East, is doing a good job in blasting back at the Axis lie barrage, in broadcasts to the Arab world from Jerusalem. So intense has the word-battle become that some historians may yet write, "The battles of England are won in the classrooms of Eton." Sir Walter is a commonly spoken, a master of earnest authorities in each field of war effort, and urging talkative citizens to hook up with headquarters, or else keep still.

Buy Defense Bonds— One army chaplain makes a circuit of 200 miles in an old motor truck to bring the gospel of his faith to four or five groups of soldiers.

A time-worn menu uncovered at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, not long ago disclosed that the fighting men of 1827 were allotted a pound and a quarter of beef, or three-quarters of a pound of pork; 18 ounces of bread and one gill of rum a day.

The Fourth Corps area of the army in December reported a saving of $200,000 by mending worn, tins or ripped clothing and furnishings.

Washington Digest Farm Bloc in Congress Threatens Wickard's Policy

'Highly Insistent' Group Fights to Prevent Selling Farm Products Below Parity.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. It is the equal of five long blocks from where Secretary Wickard's windows look out on the wide sweep of agriculture building, along the winding roads to the White House. But Mr. Wickard, except for cabinet meetings, doesn't take that trip very frequently. It is not because he isn't as welcome as any other member of the President's official family. It is because he feels pretty sure if he tends to his agricultural knitting he won't be fired.

That can be said (and is said) in spite of the fact that he is probably the only member of the cabinet whom the President ever told a large group of listeners that he could fire.

That was at a White House press and radio conference when the President was being questioned concerning what seemed to be a conflict between the secretary of agriculture and Price Control Administrator Henderson as to who was going to regulate farm prices. He said if they didn't agree he could fire them both. The controversy has been forgotten and Secretary Wickard, who can talk only half as fast as Price isn't going to lose anything. If we sell our grain at 15 per cent below parity he knows that he can get that 15 per cent back through benefit payments for soil conservation. That is the explanation of the case which sounds simple even to the layman. But that isn't the way the President explained it. He said that if the department of agriculture did not have its way the cost of eating would be raised a billion dollars a year.

But the fact remains that the President is satisfied that Mr. Wickard knows what he is doing and that he is doing what the President thinks is right.

Of course this doesn't make it right, or if it did, it wouldn't make it necessary that the people accept it, if they prefer some other program. If the farm bloc has enough of a following among the voters it can write its own ticket. We are still a democracy. It is a lot shorter from the ballot box to the congress than it is from the office of agriculture to the oval of the White House.

The Basic Rule Behind War Censorship

In Washington we have a censorship for press and radio and also several propaganda organizations which are censorship in reverse.

A great many letters which I receive from listeners to my radio program say: "Of course we realize you are not allowed to say (this or that)," or "we realize you have to say (that or this)." But the surprising thing is how seldom the "this or that" which the listeners mention are the things the censorship forbids us to say, or the "that or this" is ever even suggested by the propaganda organizations.

As a matter of fact I have had only one direct contact with either the so-called propaganda bureaus or the censorship. A man whom I know personally who is connected with the Office of Facts and Figures once called me up and said that he would be able to give me some interesting information from time to time. He never has.

As to the censorship, the radio chains drew up their own code before the censorship organization was founded. It is based largely on common sense and except for certain specific details this code differs very little from the rules which the censor expects us to follow. Before I go on the air a member of the news staff of the Blue network reads over my script. So far nothing has been changed so far as I can recall.

Until we have official confirmation from the army or navy we are not allowed to reveal any troop movements, or any ship movements. Ship movements include vertical movements downwards (sinkings). When we report information contained in enemy statements we have to say they are enemy statements and if possible we balance them with some statement from a friendly source.

Behind all censorship, behind all government regulation of speech and action in wartime is one rule: do not give aid and comfort to the enemy. Specific information of a military nature gives aid and comfort to the enemy. We may feel positive that the enemy can get on with someone who was there.

Beyond the field of factual information which might give aid and comfort to the enemy lies another field: the field of speculation, rumor, comment of a nature which might be interpreted as giving aid and comfort to the enemy. Here we simply have to use our own judgment. Criticism of our government or of the government of one of the United Nations may give comfort, if not aid, to the enemy. But I have never been called on the carpet for reporting such criticism when it occurs.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

Many believe that when President Roosevelt invented the term "United Nations" he was doing some long range planning. Now the historian Edwin Bell predicts that there will be a world union with international courts, institutions, and other common organizations which will grow out of the alliance of the United Nations.

General Hershey, head of the selective service administration, is of Pennsylvania German descent, a collateral branch of the chocolate family. But his able assistant is Messrs. Culligan, in turn assisted by Messrs. Flynn and Shea. The next draft drawing will take place on St. Patrick's day and the capsules containing the numbers will be green.

The first Japanese attempt at invasion of the Netherlands Indies was made in 1931 by Japanese merchants. Their own currency was debased and they tried to flood the Indies with goods shipped, handled and sold by Japanese only. The Dutch blocked the move.

In some of the sinkings of ancient freighters on the Atlantic coast the torpedoes used by the Germans cost more than the ships.

Some of the soldiers stationed in this country refuse to wear long underwear. Wait till they get a job in Iceland.

Gardeners in Nation's Victory Drive

Number of Gardeners This Year Vital to Balanced Diets.

War-time food shortage has put the all-but-forgettable vegetable garden in the map. Millions of people are now poring over catalogs, checking tools and likely planting sites.

The frost is gone, and gardeners recruited from small towns and cities will prepare the earth and fertilizers. Then seeding, weeding and watering in a vast effort to produce fresh vegetables.

O. B., the kitchen which produced 528,000,000 pounds of food. But there was waste and unnecessary sacrifice, too. Many a hopeful big city garden yielded nothing but blisters and backaches.

These town and city gardeners are being cautioned that their gardens must be economical; that every seed, every pound of fertilizer and every implement counts; that there must be no waste.

Today an abundance of land is available for Victory Gardens without sacrificing landscape beauty or the growing of flowers which are just as important to morale, as vegetables are to physical well-being.

Nutrition is the watchword of the present program. First of all, our soldiers must be well nourished. So must defense workers in fields and factories.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard summed up the movement's philosophy when he told delegates attending a recent conference in Washington:

"This situation is different from 1917. Then the effort was to save food so there would be plenty for our troops in France. Now the need is for a balanced diet. When the farm family grows its own vegetables, it eats more and thus improves the family's health.

"Growing vegetables on the farm puts the food right where it is to be used; it doesn't take any freight cars or trucks to move food to those families. Home vegetable gardens release more commercial vegetables for other purposes. Commercially canned vegetables are packed in tin—and we are short of tin."

As a reinforcement to the farm garden movement, the work of small town and big city gardens will help swell Uncle Sam's food output. In communities large and small every family that has access to a favorably situated plot for producing part of its food supply is being asked to join a Victory Garden club.

Industrial centers and other defense localities now working at top speed for the nation's Victory program, the excellent business conditions there are overflowing into the more rural sections of the states as the above map shows. As farm crops and rural progress better business conditions will show in the "fair" areas.

American Farmers Now Winning War-Time Plans. With the biggest demand for agricultural products in the history of the nation, American farmers are planning—preparing—moving toward the single end of increasing production of crops, livestock, products, fibers and other raw materials. It has already reached the goal of parity, and the policy of the government is to maintain prices at around that level. In that way, farm income will be kept at the average rate.

The outlook is for increasing prosperity among farmers as well as among people in cities. Retail merchants in rural areas as well as in cities are experiencing an unprecedented demand for consumer articles. The volume of sales, large as it is, is not as great as the demand would normally produce, due to the effect of wartime production on the manufacture of some consumer articles. Retail sales will doubtless be still further affected as non-essential consumer commodities are discontinued for the duration.

Fresh Vegetables for the Family

Red beets . . . beans . . . lettuce . . . carrots . . . tomatoes . . . are just a few of the vegetables this young lady, busy in her garden, can look forward to during the coming months.

These town and city gardeners are being cautioned that their gardens must be economical; that every seed, every pound of fertilizer and every implement counts; that there must be no waste.

Today an abundance of land is available for Victory Gardens without sacrificing landscape beauty or the growing of flowers which are just as important to morale, as vegetables are to physical well-being.

Nutrition is the watchword of the present program. First of all, our soldiers must be well nourished. So must defense workers in fields and factories.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard summed up the movement's philosophy when he told delegates attending a recent conference in Washington:

"This situation is different from 1917. Then the effort was to save food so there would be plenty for our troops in France. Now the need is for a balanced diet. When the farm family grows its own vegetables, it eats more and thus improves the family's health.

"Growing vegetables on the farm puts the food right where it is to be used; it doesn't take any freight cars or trucks to move food to those families. Home vegetable gardens release more commercial vegetables for other purposes. Commercially canned vegetables are packed in tin—and we are short of tin."

As a reinforcement to the farm garden movement, the work of small town and big city gardens will help swell Uncle Sam's food output. In communities large and small every family that has access to a favorably situated plot for producing part of its food supply is being asked to join a Victory Garden club.

Industrial centers and other defense localities now working at top speed for the nation's Victory program, the excellent business conditions there are overflowing into the more rural sections of the states as the above map shows. As farm crops and rural progress better business conditions will show in the "fair" areas.

While production has been increasing, the prices received by farmers for what they sell have also been rising. Average prices are now the highest in 13 years. Prices which the farmers pay have also been going up, but not quite so rapidly, and the ratio between prices received and prices paid is steadily becoming more favorable. It has already reached the goal of parity, and the policy of the government is to maintain prices at around that level. In that way, farm income will be kept at the average rate.

LINING CHIMNEY FLUES FOR GAS

A HOME owner who is considering putting in a gas burning furnace has been advised by the gas company to put a lining in his chimney flue. He is told that if he does not go to this expense of $40, the chimney brickwork may be injured, and he will be required to sign a waiver by which he accepts the responsibility for a lining.

TO YOUR Good Health by DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

MEASLES

Of the acute communicable diseases, measles is most widely prevalent and most contagious. It spreads with great rapidity to any susceptible individual and as a result few children escape it entirely. Possibly in rural areas, children may miss it if they attend only the district school and somehow are not exposed to it when they go to town.

This is suggested because of the experience in the last war when many of the drafted men developed the disease. It hit them harder than it usually does children and many of those who contracted it in the winter of 1917-18 had a serious time because of complications. Many of the cases of measles were in that year followed by a broncho-pneumonia due to a variety of streptococci. The broncho-pneumonia was quite often followed by the development of a type of empyema (pus in the chest cavity) that was entirely different from that which followed many of the influenza pneumonias the next fall and winter.

Fortunately there has been no epidemic of measles of any consequence in the army camps during 1940-41. Perhaps with the development of the collective schools fewer children even in the rural areas have missed having the disease; perhaps it is being recognized earlier by the camp physicians who isolate the case before many have a chance to be exposed. Mothers should know the characteristic symptoms of measles. At the start when it is most contagious, the child may not appear sick enough to warrant his being kept home from school though there is usually quite a fever. Some white spots develop in the mouth; there is fever, a running nose, inflammation of the membrane over the eyes and eye lids, sensitiveness to bright light; watering of the eyes; a cough and then a characteristic red flat eruption that spreads over the entire body and is conspicuous on the face and chest. Whenever any measles is known to be in the vicinity, isolate the child when any of these symptoms appear and keep him at home and alone for two or three days to give the rash time to develop. You may not be able to recognize the spots in the mouth, but your doctor will and so can make the diagnosis even before there is any rash. The fever may be quite high for a day or two but usually subsides rapidly if the child is kept in bed in a darkened room and given plenty of fluids.

Measles is one of those childhood diseases which are usually so mild that many think the children might just as well have it and get it over with. But if any of them are infants or at all sickly, every effort should be made to prevent their catching it as they more often have severe cases and more frequently develop complications. Among the complications that have been seen frequently are the broncho-pneumonias and empyemas already mentioned, pulmonary tuberculosis, the resistance to which seems to be lowered by measles, eye, ear, nose and throat inflammation of the brain (encephalitis) which may cause permanent damage. There is enough danger to health that results from this usually mild and insignificant but highly contagious disease, that it should not be treated lightly. Note especially that 53.3 per cent of the deaths from measles are in infants under one year old.

What Should You Save To Help?

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The following table issued by the Treasury Department is intended as a savings yardstick for the average income-earner. It suggests how everyone of the 48,000,000 employed persons in the United States may participate in the war effort through the systematic purchase of Defense Savings Bonds.

"The job ahead of us is far bigger than most of us realize," Secretary Morgenthau declared in making the table public. "I know that the American people are ready to do their part to win the war. One of the ways we can do much more is by intensifying our effort in the purchase of Defense Bonds."

While persons without dependents may be able to set aside more than the suggested figures, persons with several dependents, or with other heavy family obligations, may be unable to save at the suggested rate, the Treasury Department pointed out.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The following table issued by the Treasury Department is intended as a savings yardstick for the average income-earner. It suggests how everyone of the 48,000,000 employed persons in the United States may participate in the war effort through the systematic purchase of Defense Savings Bonds.

"The job ahead of us is far bigger than most of us realize," Secretary Morgenthau declared in making the table public. "I know that the American people are ready to do their part to win the war. One of the ways we can do much more is by intensifying our effort in the purchase of Defense Bonds."

While persons without dependents may be able to set aside more than the suggested figures, persons with several dependents, or with other heavy family obligations, may be unable to save at the suggested rate, the Treasury Department pointed out.
