Audrey Ehnert Makes Journal Column High School Soph Buys Two $1000 Bonds; School Total $3,395.25

Richard S. Davis, Milwaukee Journal columnist, who writes the daily "And So It Goes..." column in the Journal Green Sheet, in one of last week's issues featured a letter written to him by Miss Audrey Ehnert, Kewaskum high school freshman. Mr. Davis wrote in his column in part as follows:

You probably have no idea, unless the foreman has placed you in a job somewhat similar to this, how many people are writing poetry these days. Always in the spring, there is a rush for it, but the combination of both war and spring seems to have freed many more freshets than usual. Sometimes as many as a half-dozen verses come tripping into this dull corner in a single day.

There has come, for example, this letter from Miss Audrey Ehnert of Kewaskum, Wis., who writes:

Walter Theusch, Jr., 7, Instantly Killed by Milk Truck in Front of St. Bridget's Church Sunday

Fatality Occurs When Boy Dashes Across Road After Serving as Flower Boy at First Communion Services in Morning; 11th Traffic Victim of Year

Little Walter Theusch, Jr., aged seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Theusch, Sr. of Route 3, Kewaskum, became Washington county's 11th traffic victim of this year when his life was instantly snuffed out at about 9:30 a. m. last Sunday morning May 24, after leaving St. Bridget's Catholic church in the town of Wayne, mission of Holy Trinity church here following services. The lad ran into the road directly in the path of a milk truck, which struck and injured him fatally. The truck, owned by John Kleinbans of St. Kilian, was driven by Ralph Ruppinger of Campbellsport.

The truck knocked the child down and the rear dual wheels passed over his body causing a fractured pelvis and neck, internal injuries and multiple lacerations. The boy was rushed to a physician's office in this village but was pronounced dead upon arrival. The truck was traveling at a slow pace at the time of the accident.

Walter had just left the church after attending mass as one of the flower boys for a class of seven children who received their first holy communion at the services when the said accident took place. The lad's sister, Lorraine, was one of the members of the class of first communicants. The lad had attended services with his parents, after which he was crossing the road to enter the auto of his grandfather, Jos. Theusch, of this village, with whom he was to return to the home of his parents while they were to bring the daughter to this village for photographs. As he dashed out from the row of cars in front of the church he failed to notice the approaching truck, the driver of which was unable to see him in time to avoid striking the child.

Dr. A. W. Frankow, West Bend, deputy coroner of Washington county, was called to the scene. He said death was accidental and no inquest would be conducted.

Walter Theusch, Jr. was born near Campbellsport on May 16, 1935. He came to his present home in December, 1940, when his parents moved on to the former Bruhn farm near Wayne. Surviving besides the grief stricken parents are two sisters, Carol Jean, 9, and Lorraine, 3; and three brothers, Richard, 4, Bobbie, 3, and Francis, 3 months. He is further survived by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Theusch and Mr. and Mrs. Anton Wiesner of this village.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday, May 27, at 9:30 a. m., about the same time the boy was killed, at St. Bridget's in the same church in front of which the fatal accident occurred. The Rev. Frank C. La Buwi, pastor, officiated and burial was made in the new Holy Trinity church cemetery, Kewaskum.

Six cousins of the deceased acted as pallbearers, namely Roland and Delbert Mondloch, Marvin Wiesner, Jackie Ross and Francis and Edward Volm.

The instant, shocking death of a fine, strong and healthy little child such as Walter is one of the most pitiful occurrences that could befall any parents. It couldn't be helped—no one can be blamed—it just happened. That is the sad realization that must be faced. Walter was a happy, peppy and friendly little fellow and he was liked a great deal by his brothers, sisters and many little acquaintances. To the bereaved parents, grandparents and other relatives heartfelt sympathy is extended.

$179,800.00 is County Bond Quota for June

Washington county's quota for the month of June for the sale of U. S. War Savings bonds is $179,800.00. This figure has just been released by Robert W. Rolfs, executive chairman of the war savings staff of Washington county. This figure exceeds the May quota.

According to Mr. Rolfs, from reports he has received to date the May quota will be met. The job now is to keep the money rolling in month after month. The people in Washington county have done well in this effort and it should not be difficult to continue to meet the quotas that the U. S. Treasury Department sets up.

This quota of $179,800.00 when broken down on a per capita basis means that every man, woman and child in Washington county must purchase $6.33 worth of U. S. War Savings bonds in June. Or put it your way: If there are three people in your family it means the purchase of one $18.75 bond in June. One always has to consider that there are those who are not able to meet the average figure, for which reason many must invest more than the average in order to meet the quota.

When we invest $179,800.00 in June, what will that amount of money buy? It will buy one two engine light bomber ($150,000.00) and three 75 mm. guns ($10,000.00 each). Guns and planes are needed now to win the war. Let us here in Washington county tell those boys on the fighting front that we're buying a bomber and guns for them in June—we can't fail them!

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

RAF Reich Blitz Forecast of Invasion; Hoover Urges Greater Power for FDR; Soviets Push Ahead on Kharkov Front; U. S. Outlines Pay Deduction Tax Plan

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The thanks of a grateful nation and the Congressional Medal of Honor pinned on his breast by President Roosevelt were the rewards received by Brig. Gen. James Doolittle for his valor in leading the bombing raid on the mainland of Japan, including Tokyo, a few weeks ago. Above, left to right, are Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of air forces, Mrs. Doolittle and President Roosevelt congratulating America's newest hero, General Doolittle.

DOOLITTLE: Secrets Well Kept

Three questions remained unanswered when President Roosevelt pinned the Congressional Medal of Honor on the breast of Brigadier General Doolittle in an unheralded White House ceremony commemorating the recent history-making American bombers' raid on the Japanese mainland.

Where did daredevil Jimmy Doolittle's squadron take off from? Where did the Yank fliers land after they bombed Tokyo and sowed a whirlwind of fire, death and destruction in their wake? By what route did Doolittle reach Washington?

While the mystery remained a well-kept secret, Doolittle, who had won international renown as a peacetime speed flier before his latest exploit made him America's No. 1 hero, revealed some significant facts.

The Yanks outflung and outflung Japanese planes and retired without losing a single plane. They "hedge-hopped" over Tokyo low enough to see a ball game in progress. Yankee bombers played havoc with vital Japanese industrial areas 40 miles long and 5 to 20 miles wide. They scored direct hits on a battleship or cruiser under construction near Tokyo and scattered incendiary bombs over airplane factories in Nagoya.

In extending Doolittle the nation's thanks, President Roosevelt announced the award of 79 Distinguished Service Crosses for the 79 volunteers—pilots, machine gunners, bombardiers and radiomen—who participated in the raid.

Speaking over the radio following his decoration, General Doolittle declared that the April raid over Tokyo was only the beginning of many more.

HOOPER URGES: More Power for FDR

Former President Herbert Hoover urged that President Roosevelt be given additional "dictatorial economic powers" as a means of winning the total war.

"There must be no hesitation in giving them to President Roosevelt and upholding him in them," Mr. Hoover said in an address before the 26th assembly of the National Industrial Conference board.

Economic dictatorship, however, must not encroach on civil liberties, he declared. "From a philosophical viewpoint," he said he would like to see the "sixth columnist" given a little more liberty.

"Criticism of the conduct of the war is necessary if we are to win the war," he added. "We want the war conducted—right. Democracy can correct mistakes only through public exposure and opposition to them."

Mr. Hoover did not define specifically the new dictatorial powers he advocated for President Roosevelt. He said, however, "We must start our thinking with a cold, hard fact; that the economic measures to win total war are just plain Fascist economics."

STEEL WORKERS: To Be 'Missionaries'

As his conflict with John L. Lewis for control of millions of American workers tightened, Philip Murray, president of the CIO, urged delegates who attended the Steel Workers' Organizing committee convention at Cleveland, Ohio, to become "missionaries of national unity."

"I do not want internal strife in this union nor in the CIO," Murray said. "Men's minds must rise above internal bickering when the nation is embroiled in a world war."

"Every leader and every institution has the duty to unite for the purpose of winning the war. Don't waste time discussing the internal differences within unions, by resolutions or otherwise. Our job is to help America win this war. The steel workers must become the missionaries of national unity; nothing is to be gained through bickering."

INVASION PRELUDE: RAF Blitzes Reich

While Royal Air Force bombers blasted war factories and chemical plants in Germany and blitzed Nazi submarine bases in France and enemy airdromes in Holland, the Churchill government announced that the RAF's heavy air offensive was a prelude to an ultimate invasion of continental Europe.

Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal and government spokesman in commons said: "These bombings are, in our view, of material assistance to Russian resistance and the best way in which we can give assistance until such time as we are able to make a carefully planned attack on the continent of Europe, which we intend to do."

The accelerated tempo of Britain's air offensive was seen in the performance of one detachment of bombers which unloaded 40,000 fire bombs over the city of Mannheim in southwest Germany, second largest inland port of Germany and the site of a number of important chemical, armament and engineering factories.

NEW TAX PLAN: Collect at Source

To help Americans pay heavy income taxes that would affect millions of workers in the small-income group for the first time and to combat inflation, the treasury department outlined to the House ways and means committee a "collection-at-source" program.

Under the new plan, employers would withhold on behalf of the government part of the pay of single workers making more than $11 a week and childless married persons making more than $26. The amount deducted would be used as a credit against income taxes.

Increased individual income surtaxes ranging from 12 per cent on the first $2,000 to 80 per cent on taxable earnings exceeding $200,000 yearly were written into the pending war revenue bill.

The ways and means committee's plan did not incorporate President Roosevelt's suggestion that no American's income should exceed $25,000 a year after payment of all taxes.

REDS VS. NAZIS: Soviets Still Ahead

Stubborn battles on which the decision of World War II appeared to hinge still persisted on the Kharkov and Kerch fronts.

On the Kharkov front the Russian armies under Marshal Timoshenko continued their advances in the face of stiffened German resistance and sharp counterattacks. On the Kerch front, the Russians denied Nazi claims of a clean sweep to the gateway of the precious Caucasus oil fields.

That the Red army was keeping alive its offensive in the Kharkov sector at a swiftly rising cost to the Nazis in men, heavy weapons and supplies was indicated by the latest war bulletins.

"On one sector near Kharkov," said a report, "our troops annihilated 1,650 German officers and men and destroyed 27 tanks, an ammunition dump and a gasoline dump. Booty captured included 37 guns, 87 mortars, 10,000 shells, 40,000 rounds of ammunition, three wireless stations and other material."

In commenting on the situation on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea, a communique said Russian forces were barring the way to the Caucasus in a way that resembled the long American defense of the Bataan peninsula in the Philippines.

MAC ARTHUR:

From Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Australia came heartening news from the Southwest Pacific in the form of a communique announcing the sinking of a Japanese 7,100-ton cruiser and two big supply ships by U. S. naval forces. Although details were not disclosed, observers believed Yankee submarines accomplished the feat.

The sinkings were the first announced since the Battle of the Coral Sea in which at least 21 Japanese warships and auxiliaries were sunk.

NAZI FOOD RATIONS: To Be Smaller

MARSHAL GOERING "It's a hard war."

Following reports of conditions in Axis countries by diplomats and newspaper men released from internment in Germany and Italy came an announcement by Reich Marshal Herman Goering, war time Nazi economic commissioner, that "a temporary reduction in the food rations" of Germany would be necessary because of an unfavorable crop outlook.

Addressing 137 war workers assembled at the chancellery in Berlin to be awarded service crosses for the first time in history, Goering said:

"Three extremely hard winters are behind us. The elements have not been kind to us. Last year's harvest was bad. Now, however much we enjoy the warm sun, we are longing for rain to bring what the farmer needs."

Goering termed the present war "the hardest Germany has had to fight."

"The winter campaign has been terrible. The Fuehrer suffered deeply for his troops, but he knew he must not yield. There was no question of giving up our front positions because behind us there was only a heap of ruins."

EARLIER VICTORY?: Maybe, Says Hull

Secretary of State Cordell Hull's cautious indication that increase of United Nations striking power might bring victory sooner than was formerly expected, brought comfort to many an American family and generated new optimism over the war effort in official Washington.

Mr. Hull had been asked at a press conference whether developments in recent weeks on the home and foreign fronts encouraged him to believe in an early victory. In reply he pointed out that the powers and facilities of the United States have been developing on a more and more massive scale, not only for offensive-defensive operations, but for outright offensive war.

Making no effort to disguise the fact that he was increasingly impressed by America's growing power, the white-haired secretary suggested it was only natural that calculations as to the duration of the war should be made in the light of this fact.

Observers pointed out that a number of factors re-enforced Secretary Hull's views. Among these were the steady rise in armed personnel, unprecedented increases in production from factory production lines, growing air and naval strength and the uninterrupted flow of men and materials abroad.

GAS RATIONING: Looms for All U. S.

Restriction of gasoline consumption by the 20,000,000 car owners outside the East and the Pacific Northwest to a point where pleasure driving would be almost completely banned before the end of the summer was predicted as a result of conferences between Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman and Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

New emphasis to the seriousness of the nation's rubber shortage was lent by Mr. Eastman's disclosure that the United States may not have a sufficient supply of synthetic rubber "in short of three years and perhaps not then."

Disclosure of impending steps toward universal gas limitation followed an indication by President Roosevelt that rationing might be extended to other parts of the country outside the East and the Pacific Northwest where it is already operative.

Australia: Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who is an engineer himself, and Brig. Gen. Hugh Casey, his chief engineer in the Philippines, were made honorary members of the Australian Institute of Engineers.

New York: Pan-American clipper service across the Atlantic entered its fourth year. Behind it was a record of carrying 18,647 passengers.

Fort Bliss, Texas: Private Roy Enders now knows of the power of the press. Enders wrote to his home town paper at Benton Harbor, Mich., asking someone to correspond with him. The request was published. Enders reported he had received 642 letters and couldn't find time to answer them.

Ottawa, Canada: All French consulates in Canada were ordered closed, because they have become "centers of suspicion and misunderstanding," Prime Minister W. L. McKenzie King told the house of commons.

Coast Shipping Losses May Bring Investigation

Airing of Blanket Charges May Result From Nazi Torpedoing of American Vessels In Coastwise Trade.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

"You commentators," said an earnest young lady to me recently, "talk about sinking ships and shooting down planes as if you were talking about somebody moving inanimate chessmen on a board."

I hadn't thought of it that way. We do. We have to. And the people take it that way. They are a long way off from actual combat. You just can't translate a war into personal experience—until it hits you.

That is why it has taken the reverberations of the Nazi torpedoes that are sending down ships within eyesight of our coast so long to reach Washington. But they have reached at last and there promises to be a resounding echo in the Maritime commission and in the shipyards of America.

The need for ships is the greatest need the allied nations face today for the boats are going down faster than they are being built. They are not being built as fast as they might be. Those we have are not being used to best advantage. Those are the blanket charges soon to be aired, if certain people in Washington have their way.

The details of these charges may appear before this reaches print. The story seems to be exactly the same story that lay behind the delay in the manufacture of tanks and planes and guns which resulted in overhauling of the OPM. The charges which were made in that case, you will recall, were—that industry did not want to change over from the manufacture of civilian goods to war products; that labor refused to co-operate; that the government failed to crack down on industry and labor and, in the case of the OPM, retained dollar-a-year men in its service who put the business they represented ahead of the nation's needs.

Whether or not these charges can be made to stick and their causes removed in the case of the Maritime commission and shipbuilding (management and labor) remains to be seen, but the chances are they will.

These are the things you hear: More bananas were shipped to the United States in the first three months after Pearl Harbor than there were last year (before Pearl Harbor). Couldn't those boats have been put to better use?

Why wasn't the pipeline, suggested a year ago, built so that necessary oil could be sent through it instead of aboard tankers that are being sunk at the rate of three a day? Couldn't the railroads have been forced to cut down on their passenger traffic earlier to haul some of that oil?

What was done about the men "loafing in the shipyards" after Admiral Land, head of the Maritime commission, made the public charge?

Diitto concerning foremen who were said to have been instructed to tell the men to slow down? But nothing will be done until the smoke of those burning ships gets into the public's eyes. It has already gotten into some eyes and I am passing along this personal story exactly as it was told to me. Here it is in the worker's exact words except for deletions which are a military necessity:

Eyewitness Story "I have just been watering my garden in the cool of the evening and, looking up from the petunias and carnations I was able to see the thick, greasy smoke billowing up from a ship that was torpedoed few hours ago. A good many men were killed on this particular ship. The rest were brought into the coast guard station; some of them sent to the hotel and the rest to the local hospital, whose ward is again filled with shipwrecked survivors.

"I have a special interest in that ship because . . . I watched her lying off shore all through the moonlight night. She was three miles off shore and she got under way just at sunset steaming south in the presumed safety of daylight. We . . . quit watching her at 7 a. m. and half an hour later, off the . . . she was blown up.

"It has been a comparatively quiet 24 hours in this vicinity only two ships being torpedoed within sight of shore. The other one went down at midnight and there were so many flares from lifeboats that it looked like Greek fire on the Fourth of July. Small boats . . . brought them ashore . . .

"The survivors of this ship (another one which was sunk in the same vicinity) said that the safest run in the world today is between New York and Liverpool. The worst stretch is . . . (a portion of the Atlantic coast). This particular ship passed nine wrecks between . . . and . . . (a stretch of some 450 miles). The coast guard is doing a wonderful job around here but why the . . . (the rest deleted, for other than military reasons)."

That is the picture which is starting in Washington's face today.

Chicle Situation All Gunned Up

My jaw dropped the other day when I learned that the United States government was carrying on negotiations which might interfere with the chicle importations to the United States. My jaw dropped and if I were in the habit of chewing gum, the gum might have dropped, symbolically. For what would the millions of jaws of the millions of American gum chewers do if the chicle supply stopped? They would stop, too, and so would an industry which earned $61,000,000 the year of the last census and probably much more since.

Why should this trickle of chicle be stopped? Well, the answer is, it won't be stopped but it may be reduced—slightly. It seems that a chicleo, one who makes the chicle trickle from the tree down in Central America and Mexico, could if he would, apply his art to the castilla tree, as well. And the castilla tree produces a very good brand of rubber, something which we cannot eschew, even if we cannot chew it.

Do not chuckle at my tale of chicle. It is based on hard facts which are these:

A large group of men called chicleeros collect chicle from trees many of which are located in the forests of Central America and Mexico. They are experts. The chicle trees grow frequently near the castilla tree. If the chicleeros were induced to do so they might tap the castilla as well as the chicle and thus obtain for America some of the raw material needed to make raw rubber.

This might cut down the chicle supply. Nevertheless negotiations are about to be concluded to this end.

If they are successful it will be another achievement of the Board of Economic Warfare with the aid of the state department.

Rubber Classifications

There are three classifications of rubber, all of which although allied in their uses are different. They are crude rubber, reclaimed rubber and synthetic rubber.

Crude rubber comes from our fast diminishing stocks on hand, from the trickle that may come from the castilla, from the wild rubber and other similar trees of South America and from general plantings of trees and shrubs in the Western hemisphere. The most important source in this third classification is the guayule plantations which will be coming into yield in a year with more in succeeding years. The department of agriculture is supervising and helping with this production.

Of reclaimed rubber the sources are the scrap piles. There is a certain amount already collected. This is already in the hands of reclaimers and declainers.

The third classification of rubber is synthetic rubber. The manufacture of synthetic rubber is the quickest potential source of supply. Its manufacture is in the period of development. There are various methods of obtaining it and recently Secretary of Agriculture Wickard urged a program for the making of synthetic rubber from alcohol made from corn and wheat.

We have plenty of corn and wheat and a number of distilling plants. If these are supplemented with others and we can start soon, the chicle supply may not be endangered at all.

Luck-Bringing Hump

The Egyptian Pharaohs and their wealthier courtiers employed living hunchbacks as talismans against evil and to bring them luck. But when a real cripple was not available a reasonable facsimile seems to have served as well, as ancient bronze and terracotta images of him have been unearthed at Alexandria. No matter how crudely executed, all have striven to portray his luck-bringing hump as realistically as possible.

Malaria Still Active

Every year the world produces 500,000 for quinine in the treatment of 47,000,000 cases of malaria. In giving these figures the annual report, which has just been made public, the British Medical Council comments: "The common and erroneous belief that the quinine discovery has been a world from malaria has been astrous results in checking development of further work."

NEW TEST FOR LIVER

When we think of the work done by the liver most of us are likely to think of the manufacture of bile. The statement that life (and health) depends upon the liver has behind it the thought of the value of bile in keeping up fats, in breaking the liver itself active and healthy and in the prevention of constipation.

The fact also that the liver can store sugar and proteins—meat, eggs, fish products—for future use may also be in mind as we think about the liver and its work.

However, one of the most important jobs done by the liver is the filtering out from the blood substances that would be harmful to the body, allowing only helpful products of the food to remain in the blood. Thus it can be seen how important to health is this filtering power of the liver.

The testing of the ability of the liver to filter out or remove substances from the blood has been done for a number of years by injecting a dye into the veins or taking the dye by mouth and finding how long it takes the liver to remove all this dye from the blood.

Ever since the dye method has been used there has been a controversy as to whether dye taken by mouth or dye injected into the veins, is the more accurate method.

It is gratifying to know that a new test for liver function (ability) is reported from Cuba by Drs. A. Castellanos and J. Beato-Nunez, Havana, in the Bulletin of the Cuban Society of Pediatrics.

The patient takes fruits or fruit juices instead of breakfast. A small quantity of blood is withdrawn. Then an injection of colloidal carotene is injected into the veins, the amount injected depending on the weight of the individual. Five minutes later blood is again withdrawn. The amount of total carotenoids in the blood is separately determined in the two different blood specimens. If the specimen of blood withdrawn five minutes after the carotene is taken is the same as the blood withdrawn before the carotene was taken, it shows that the liver is normal, doing its work properly. Any increase of the carotene in the blood five minutes after the injection into the veins of the carotene shows that the liver is not doing its work properly.

These physicians found that this simple test is as reliable and better than the "classic" tests now in use.

Rheumatic Fever
Foe of Children

There is a disease of children that destroys seven times as many children as infantile paralysis, and it seems only fair that we should know about these children and what public and private help be given them. I am referring to rheumatic heart disease.

Dr. Alexander T. Martin, New York city, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, says:

"In one sense the child stricken with infantile paralysis is more fortunate than the child stricken with rheumatism, because the child with rheumatism may have more attacks which may further cripple his activities or even cause death. In fact, each fresh attack means the likelihood of further attacks. On the other hand, infantile paralysis, as dread a disease as it is, usually causes no further attacks and the afflicted child may expect some improvement. Many children who contract infantile paralysis recover completely. Very few children who contract rheumatic fever escape without some damage to the heart."

How can these crippled hearts be helped? Dr. Martin reports his investigation over a period of 20 years (1921-41) of 1,398 children with rheumatic heart disease who were given after care in three country homes. The average age of the first attack was from six to eight years.

Of this 1,398 children 431 were dead after 20 years. Of the 967 living Dr. Martin was able to follow about 90 per cent.

To show what watchful care in an institution or in a foster home can accomplish for these heart cripples the report states that 337 are regularly employed at gainful occupations, 10 have irregular employment, 260 are in a regular or public school, 83 are in a special class in school for heart patients and 14 have a visiting teacher.

Impressible Man

Every man, however obscure, however far removed from the general recognition, is one of a group of men impressive for good, and impressive for evil, and it is in the nature of things that he can not really improve himself without in some degree improving other men.—Charles Dickens.

Twins Painting

The Leibovitz sisters of Philadelphia, identical twins and both artists, sometimes produce "joint pictures," says Collier's. Freda, the right-handed twin, paints one side of the canvas while Ida, who is left-handed, does the other side. When the painting is finished, it appears, even to experts, to be the work of a single artist.

Rich Husbands in India

Rich husbands are a must in India. If a girl fails to find one she is married to a bunch of flowers! Then the "husband" is dropped into a well. And presto! the bride is a widow—with the privilege of marrying again. For some reason, the "second" husband doesn't have to be rich.

FARM BUILDING PERMIT

To conserve materials needed by the government to carry on the war, the U. S. War Production Board has issued an order freezing most building materials. This order was put into effect on April 9, 1942.

Briefly, this federal freezing of construction material affects all farm buildings costing $1000 or more, farm houses costing $500 or more. Farm buildings or farm houses costing less than the above mentioned amounts may be constructed without obtaining a federal permit. However, the government does not give anyone who intends to build any assurance that the lumber and materials can be obtained.

Farm building construction costing more than the amount stated above must be authorized by the U. S. War Production Board. The following three rules will be used in determining if a permit is to be granted for a proposed building:

(1) Is the construction necessary in order to meet the agricultural production goals on this farm?

(2) Is the intended construction consistent with sound agricultural practices? Farm building cannot be justified on the basis that the owner now has the money to build them.

(3) Is the use of metals and other scarce materials and equipment reduced to a minimum in planning the building program?

In order to obtain a permit to expend more than $1000 during any twelve month period the farmer will definitely have to prove that his building meets the three requirements listed above. The building of a new farm house is practically prohibited by the federal freezing order. Plumbing, bath room and heating fixtures are very hard to obtain. A priority is needed to obtain them.

The exemption of $1000 per farm of non-residential construction will permit ordinary construction jobs that are needed on the farm and that will help to produce more food stuffs. This exemption will make possible the construction of necessary smaller buildings or an ordinary remodeling job. To do such building work one does not need a permit. To obtain the materials needed for such a building or remodeling program a priority rating may be necessary.

To obtain a building permit or to obtain help to get a priority rating farmers should fill out forms PD-200 and 200-A which can be obtained from the county agricultural agent's office.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Our army spells and pronounces it pontoon, not "pontoon", as you do. Pontoon bridges cost all the way from $15,000 to $700,000. The smaller bridge using individual metal pontoons is pictured here. The largest pontoon bridge is 1,080 feet long and is made of rubber instead of aluminum.

One small bridge has a weight capacity of 25 tons, using about 2,000 individual metal pontoons. The smallest is used only to take troops over smaller streams. But whether our army uses the smaller or largest pontoon, our engineers need plenty of them. If you and every American invests at least 10 per cent of income in War Bonds every pay day we can supply our fighting forces with these essentials to a victorious war.

As we pause to honor our Nation's heroes of previous wars, American boys are fighting bravely on many battle fronts throughout the world to preserve freedom... so dearly won and so highly prized by every American.

Our people are united. Our strength is great. Our cause is just. Victory is assured because every man, woman and child stands ready and willing to give to the utmost in hard work, thrift and self-sacrifice needed to win the war.

PREPAREDNESS by the AMERICAN RED CROSS

When disaster strikes, the Red Cross is first in and last out. VOLUNTEER Special Services of the American Red Cross have been geared to meet war requirements and war priorities.

The Red Cross Motor corps has been active since the early days of the First World War, but since last year its work has tripled. Many of the 6,576 members, on account of tire priorities, are restricting the personal use of their cars so that their motor corps work may be continued.

A new canteen aide corps has recently been formed in preparation for wartime emergencies, when feeding of large groups of people such as evacuees or disaster victims may have to be hastily organized.

Red Cross nurse's aides, who have learned how to help the trained nurses in hospitals and clinics, are now being trained to work on the emergency medical field units set up in large centers in case of air attack.

Softball Notes

HOLY NAME TEAM OPENED SCHEDULE AT ST. KILIAN
The Holy Name team of Holy Trinity church opened its league season at St. Kilian Sunday afternoon against that village's Holy Name line-up and lost a protested game, 7-5. In the other league game St. Bridget's defeated St. Michaels, 16-10. Ashford had a bye. The game at St. Kilian was protested because some of their players were not Holy Name members. Kewaskum used only members of its society.
Kewaskum built up a 5-0 lead in the fourth inning but St. Kilian came back with a run in their half of the inning and weakened fielding and pitching gave them 3 more in the sixth and 3 in the seventh. This coming Sunday Kewaskum has a bye. A complete schedule has been drawn up by the league but because probable changes will be made and due to the fact that an agreement must be reached by officials of the five teams as to whether only Holy Name members may play or others can be added, publishing of the schedule has been withheld.
The lineup: Kewaskum—Schmidt, If; Bath, ss; Harbeck, cf; Miller, p; R. Smith, cf; Haug, c; Wietor, 1b; Van Blarcom, 3b; F. Felix and A. Zelmel, 2b; Heider and W. Kohn, rf; St. Kilian—A. Felix, cf; Luetke, ss; J. Felix, 1b; C. Wietor, p; L. Felix, c; R. Darmody, 3b; Schmitt, If; Schraut, cf; P. Flaseh, rf; Karnitz, 2b.
Monday evening the Holy Name team tackled the Peace church team in a practice game. Only about half of the Holy Name team's regular players were present and the Peace team won a decisive victory. In the first game between these two a week ago Monday evening the Holy Name team was ahead in the regulation 7 innings but the teams played nine frames and the Peace team came from behind to win, 23-20.
A practice game scheduled for Tuesday evening between the Holy Name teams of here and St. Bridget's was rained out.
PEACE TEAM PLAYS DUNDEE
On Sunday the heavy hitting Peace church team will play the Dundee church team at Dundee. This will be their first game with an outside opponent.

Con Cameron grew up in Chicago and worked in the stockyards. But, as his uncle, old Hugh Norris, had said, "You can take a boy out of Texas, but you can't take Texas out of the boy." So he rode the rails down into the cattle country.

There he joined the 20th outfit headed for Wild Horse. How he fought for a chance to live and work there in the "Panhandle" is a thrilling story of the early days of the west, when a quarter was asked and none was given.
