Fourth War Loan Drive Set For Jan. 18-Feb. 15

The treasury department has just announced that the fourth war loan drive will take place from Jan. 18 until Feb. 15. This is a decrease from the third war loan drive of one billion dollars—the quota at that time being 15 billion dollars. However, as far as individual participation is concerned, the increase is 10%. The individual participation in the fourth war loan drive is five and a half billion dollars—in the third war loan drive it was five billion dollars.

The Washington County War Finance committee is already laying plans for this drive. The local quota has not, as yet, been announced but, undoubtedly, it will be within the next few weeks. Fortunately, here in Washington county many year end bonuses are paid, which money, no doubt, this year will be invested in war bonds during the fourth war loan drive. At the same time, for the rural communities the timing of this campaign is very appropriate for it enables the many rural workers to really go out and do the job without interfering at all with any work on the farm.

As Washington county has always gone over the top in every drive up to date, the war finance committee is optimistically looking forward to again doing the job that the treasury department will ask us to do.

Earla Prost a Bride; 3 Other Couples Wed

In a double ring ceremony read by the Rev. R. G. Beck in the Peace Evangelical and Reformed church here at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Nov. 20, Miss Earla Prost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold C. Prost of the town of Kewaskum, became the bride of William D. Maurer, son of William L. Maurer of Milwaukee. During the ceremony Clifford Rose sang two vocal selections, "I Love Thee" and "Be-Lieve."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white brocaded satin gown made with long fitted sleeves and a fitted bodice designed with a cliffon yoke. She wore a fingertip veil which fell from a seed pearl tiara and was edged with applique. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and white mums.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marcella Prost, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Beulah Schowalter as bridesmaid. Preceding the bride to the altar, the attendants wore identical gowns of silk taffeta in aqua blue and old rose respectively. Their hair and shoulder length veils matched their gowns and they wore strands of pearls, gifts of the bride. The attendants carried matching bouquets of mums.

Ralph Schowalter served as best man for the bridegroom. Willard Prost, seaman second class, brother of the bride, acted as usher. Seaman Prost was able to be home on a short leave for the wedding after returning to the States from England.

After the nuptial ceremony dinner was served at the Republican hotel in Kewaskum for 40 guests and a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The newlyweds, who left on a honeymoon trip to an unknown destination, will be at home in Milwaukee after Dec. 1. The groom holds a position as an electrician in that city.

Mrs. Maurer, who graduated from the Kewaskum high school and also attended the Fond du Lac Commercial college, was formerly employed as payroll clerk at the Gehl Bros. Mfg. Co. in West Bend. ## County Campaign For Old Clothes and Rags

Mrs. Lena Rosenheimer on Executive Committee For Drive Nov. 22 to Dec. 4; Clothing Needed For Relief at Home and Abroad

In Kewaskum and Washington county, the familiar cry of "any old clothes, old rags" is being heard again as a war cry Nov. 22 to Dec. 4 in a campaign to collect discarded clothing for relief in liberated lands and at home. D. J. Kenny, West Bend, county and state salvage chairman, announces. He declares rags of all kinds are needed by war plants for cleaning.

"The campaign for old, discarded clothing is a major contribution to winter warfare for America and our Allies," he says. "It is part of a vital program to supply discarded clothing for relief at home and abroad. We are asking every citizen of Washington county to give anything made of cloth or she knows will not be personally used again. We do not want clothing which still serves the needs of any family in our county."

"This discarded clothing will not only find an outlet in local relief, but will help us to clothe civilians abroad at a time when clothing production is shut off in some allied and liberated countries."

"The rag collection is meant to help overcome the shortage of wiping rags in the army, navy, and war plants," Kenny says. "Wiping rags of any material are needed for cleaning in machine shops and war plants."

The Washington county collection will be handled by a county committee for the collection of discarded clothing and rags. The committee is headed by Mrs. T. F. O'Meara, West Bend, as chairman.

Others on the executive committee are: Mrs. R. E. Brauns and Mrs. John Russell, Hartford, and Mrs. Lena Rosenheimer, Kewaskum.

The committee is asking women's societies of the churches in the county to join with those throughout the nation in assuming the responsibility of collecting the discarded clothing and rags because the women's organization of the churches have been successful in this sort of charitable work. The campaign is to be completed by Dec. 4.

It is to be hoped every citizen in this county will fully co-operate in this campaign because the need for old, discarded, but usable clothing and rags is imperative. Further information on the drive will be published in this newspaper next week. Additional information on how to deliver the old clothes and rags may be obtained from Mrs. O'Meara or any member of the committee.

IN LOVING MEMORY

In remembrance of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Jacob Bruesel, Sr., who died four years ago on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 23, 1939:

In the graveyard softly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly,
In her lone and silent grave.
Mother, you are gone but not forgotten—
Sweetest thoughts will ever linger
'Round the grave where you are laid.
We loved you, yes, we loved you,
But the Saviour loved you more,
And so the angels sweetly called you
To that bright and happy shore.
It was hard to part with you,
Oh, so sad to see you die,
But then we'll try to meet you
Some sweet day by and by.
Sadly missed by her husband and children.

Many Deer Hunters From Here Up North

A seemingly larger number of deer hunters than ever from Kewaskum and community invaded the north woods to hunt deer this season. This year there are two separate seasons. The first season of four days, Nov. 18-21, was for bucks and then after a three-day closing the second four-day season for does opened Nov. 25 and continues to Nov. 28. Some hunters remained up north for both seasons, others went for the season on bucks only, some went for the does. Some hunters have returned and others are still leaving.

Among hunters from Kewaskum and vicinity who invaded the north are the following who have been reported to this office:

Earl Dreher and Herbert Backhaus, village, and John Muckerheide and Loran Backhaus of the town of Kewaskum were up north several days last week end for the buck season. Loran and Herbert Backhaus each returned with a buck.

A party of hunters reported to be composed of John Albright of West Bend, Miles Muckerheide, Lawrence Wallenfels and John Etta of the town of Kewaskum, left last week and have not yet returned. They remained for both seasons.

A group consisting of Allen Rick and Elmer Backus of Barton, Claude Michaels of West Bend and Art Buddenhagen of Route 2, Kewaskum, left for the opening of the buck season last week to hunt in Florence county.

Al Naumann accompanied a party of friends from Milwaukee to the north to hunt several days last week end but failed to return with a buck.

Ray Stahl and son Roger, with Jack Schoetz of Boltonville and Joe Webb of Greenbush, left Tuesday evening to hunt near Mercer during the season on does. They are expected home Sunday.

Donald Koerbie, village, who left already last week Monday with L. Shaw, Ivan Buss and John Koeppke, Jr. for the north, has not returned as yet.

Wallace Geidel and party left on Wednesday evening of this week to try their luck during the doe season.

Fred Dorn and Willard Prost left on Tuesday morning to hunt during the four-day doe season in the vicinity of Cam lake near Haysard.

Roy Zuehlike of the town of Wayne, with Byron Klein, Lyle Belger, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Zuehlike and Arnold Bler, are spending both seasons hunting near Medford.

Elwyn Romaine, with a party of friends from Milwaukee and Brimwood, hunted near Crandon during the buck season. Elwyn got his deer.

Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brauchle spent the week end up north where the former went deer hunting but failed to be successful.

John Gruber and family went up near Wausau last week where they visited relatives and John and his son also hunted. We have not learned whether they have returned as yet.

Henry Rosenheimer accompanied a party of Milwaukee hunters up north for the buck season. Hank returned empty handed but expects to return to the woods to hunt Saturday and Sunday, the two last days of the doe season.

Dr. R. G. Edwards hunted during the buck season with an out-of-town group of hunters and also returned last week end holding the bag.

Firemen of the Fleet

During times of peace or war there is one foe eternally feared by every man that goes to sea—fire. In wartime ship fires reach their maximum deadliness. Ignited by enemy shells or bombs, the flames menace personnel already busy at battle stations. Also, every man called from his post to fight fire gives the enemy that much more advantage. Thus, the navy has founded fire-fighting schools to train specialists in the art of extinguishing fires anywhere aboard ship quickly and methodically. Fire-fighters train aboard imitation ship sections built on land in which fires can be ignited and extinguished by students as they practice the use of modern equipment.

SOOT SUITS might be a proper slang term for these weird looking asbestos suits and oxygen breathing apparatus. These student firemen are equipped to go below decks and fight flames in a ship's hold.

AT ANNAPOLIS midshipmen fight a test blaze. Fire-fighting is part of their regular training.

NOZZLE KNOWLEDGE—Fireman First Class George Gruber, above, explains the uses of a spray nozzle to a class. Practical demonstrations follow the explanation.

INFERNO—A member of the fire-fighting school is almost veiled from the camera by smoke arising from a roaring blaze below the decks of a training ship.

Victory Parade

TONGUES OF FIRE that flash out 40 feet are ignited at the school. Inset: A Briton and Yank attending the same fire-fighting school.

DOWN THE HATCH go asbestos clad fire-fighters and soon a blaze spreading below will be out.

GASOLINE is poured by the men at left by the school where techniques are taught that will probably save hundreds of lives and many valuable ships.

That Picture on the Calendar on Your Wall Is the Most Widely Known—Also the Most Profitable—Form of 'Art' in America Today

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

YOU gaze upon one there on the walls of your home or your office every day and you enjoy looking at it. Chances are that you never give a second thought to that picture on the calendar any more than you do to any other familiar object in your daily life. But the truth is that when you look at a calendar picture you're looking at the most widely-known and most popular form of "art" in America today.

For "calendar art" is truly the "art of the people" and it is seen and enjoyed every year by more people than have seen or enjoyed the combined output of all the "Great Masters" in history. Moreover, it's the most profitable form of art because the art-calendar business is estimated at $20,000,000 annually and that has been going on for a number of years.

Who selects these pictures that adorn our calendars? (Certainly, not the grocer or hardware merchant, or insurance agent, or some other business man or institution which provides us with a new calendar at the beginning of every year.) How do they know what subjects will be appealing and draw the eye to the picture (and incidentally to the advertising message that's usually just below it)?

Well, the answer to those, and many other interesting questions which suggest themselves when you begin investigating the subject of calendar art, can best be answered if you pay a visit to one of the "Big Six" art calendar companies—Brown and Bigelow of St. Paul, Minn.; the Osborne company of Clifton, N. J.; the Shaw-Barton company of Coshocton, Ohio; the Thomas & D. Murphy company of Red Oak, Iowa; the Gerlach-Barklow company of Joliet, Ill., and the Kemper-Thomas company of Cincinnati, Ohio. Talk to the officials of one of these companies—Brown and Bigelow, the

This is one of Andrew Loomis' paintings of the Dionne Quintuplets which, appearing on a Brown and Bigelow calendar, have made them America's favorite "pin-up girls" for the last nine years.

Dionne Quintuplets. Moreover, they've held that honor for the last nine years and it's doubtful if any Hollywood star or curvaceous Powers model will ever displace them since it seems that the plain people of America have, both figuratively and literally, pinned their devotion to Annette, Cecile, Yvonne, Emilie and Marie Dionne, whose childish charms have been displayed the length and breadth of this land in paintings by Artist Andrew Loomis on Brown and Bigelow calendars. By actual count calendars bearing the picture of the Quints have sold into the tens of millions!

What is true of this picture is true to almost as great an extent of pictures produced by other artists mentioned above. For they have produced pictures in every field—landscapes, portraits, "leg art" and nudes, also some of the best and most sporting pictures in the world. Undoubtedly the average American knows the baby pictures of Maud Towsey Fangel better than the "Boy With the Fire" of Manet, and the Norman Rockwell "Boy Scout" better than the "Blue Boy" of Gainsborough. He has become better acquainted with the landscapes of Maxfield Parrish, and feels closer to his famous blues and purples than to the landscapes of Turner and Corot.

And from daily glances in his office and on his living room walls, the average American who hunts and fishes (and there are 15 million more of him) has come to know and love pictures like Frank Hoffman's "At Bay," one of the outstanding calendar pictures in the Brown and Bigelow catalogue, better than any of Rosa Bonheur's masterpieces. No, the average American may not be tremendously art-conscious, but he likes pictures and knows what he likes. Moreover, you'll find what he likes hanging in his office, home, garage, work room, and places of recreation.

And he can hardly wait till his bank, grocery, gas, or tire company, or other concern with whom he does business, or doesn't, sends him a calendar with his favorite artist's picture on it. Whether it's a nude or revealing bit of anatomy by Rolf Armstrong or Zoe Mozart, or a more artistic landscape by Maxfield Parrish, a tragi-comic situation painted in his inimitable fashion by Norman Rockwell, or a hunting scene by Frank Hoffman, each of these artists has his fans, and as soon as the calendar is brought in by the postman, it is unwrapped, and the plain American or his Missus hangs it up at the time-honored spot on the wall.

The subjects they like run from the Dionne Quintuplets to historical scenes such as Columbus Discovering America or Washington Crossing the Delaware. If you think the present "pin-up" craze is big, remember back to the days when practically every American home either hung "September Morn" on the wall, or fought bitterly about the propriety and even morality of having it there.

But the favorite subject, according to Brown and Bigelow surveys, has always been the landscape. The scene must be a homely, comfortable and comforting one—not the noisy, over-colored, flashy, modern art. However, the outstanding favorite of the average American, a favorite that has held its leadership for nine years, are the calendars picturing the Quints. Andrew Loomis' drawings of Canada's chief peacetime industry have sold into the millions each year; 2 1/2 million at their peak, in 1936, and never less than a million a year.

Girl calendars, nudes, leggy pictures, what is known to the newspaper man as "cheeseecake," are next in popularity. Men like nudes, best, and steel companies and tire companies send these to their men customers, garagemen, contractors, mechanics, etc. But a close runner up is the plain picture of a wholesome American girl, the clean-cut type of young girl of about 17. These are favorites with storekeepers, small town banks, beauty parlors, etc. A more sophisticated type is chosen by city shops, florists, milliners, and laundry and dry cleaning places.

Besides the Quints, who are the essence of human interest, the human interest scenes go biggest in the average home—pictures like Norman Rockwell's, and the etchings of a boy and his dog. Religious pictures, which had waned somewhat in popularity, have spurred recently, and the subject that is always sure of its popularity is the outdoor scene. Even the busiest of executives like them hanging in the office because it gives them a chance to relax for a moment by imagining themselves in the wide open spaces.

Back in the decade from 1920 to 1930, the mother and child theme in calendar art was a popular one but it has fallen off somewhat in the last 10 years. Just why, no one knows. Calendar makers will tell you that the idea is "fundamentally sound" and the only explanation they have is that no artist recently has drawn a mother-child picture with exactly the right idea and technique. Similarly, ship pictures—especially the sailing ship scudding along in a stiff breeze—have declined in popularity. However, as the American navy wins more and more victories, it is probable that pictures of warships will appear more frequently.

But whether they choose the Quints, landscapes, human interest, or girl art, the American public is "pin-up" minded. It has been long before the war, and will be as long as, about this time of the year, the postman comes around with a calendar and its picture by the American's favorite artist.

Calendars Have Grown to a $20,000,000 Business in 55 Years

The American public has been "pin-up-minded" for many years—since shortly after the close of another war, the conflict of 1861-65, when some unknown but enterprising genius had the idea of combining a calendar and a sales message. It wasn't until 1888, however, that E. B. Osborne, "the daddy of the modern advertising calendar," not only brought advertising to the calendar on a nation-wide scale but also brought profits into the picture as well.

Osborne was smart enough to see the pictorial possibilities in the new and beautiful county court house built in Montgomery, Iowa. He drew a picture of it, attached a calendar to it and then went out and sold the idea of printing their names on the calendar to 22 advertisers. This calendar was sold widely throughout the Hawkeye state and that started the modern calendar industry which has now grown into a $20,000,000 a year business.

Calendars are made in every conceivable size and shape—from the smallest which will fit into the vest pocket to the "jumbos," 29 by 42 inches in size, which will cover a large blank wall. These "jumbos" go well in rural areas where wall space isn't at such a premium as it is in small apartments and small business offices in the congested metropolitan areas. Here the average size calendar is only 16 by 33 inches in size.

MOST CALENDARS HANG IN KITCHENS

In what room in your house do you hang your calendar? If you're like 90.8 per cent of Americans, the kitchen is the favorite place, according to Brown and Bigelow's survey. The next most popular place is the dining room, although, of course, that calls for a somewhat different type of calendar. It is one with the picture on a wide mount, or frame, with a very small calendar and a dignified, unobtrusive sales message.

The kitchen calendar can be more colorful, also more utilitarian. It's usually equipped with household hints, recipes and a pad for the housewife to jot down various notations to aid in her housekeeping. Next to the dining room, the survey showed, the most popular place for a calendar was the bedroom and the last on the list is the bathroom. Yes, people actually do have calendars in their bathrooms—4.1 per cent of the homes in the Brown and

GALL BLADDER

If an individual does considerable belching, has occasional sharp pains in upper right hand side of abdomen, and at times his skin shows a yellow tinge, his, or more often her, physician suspects liver and gall bladder disturbance. He may have tests made of the ability of the liver to filter out poisons or harmful substances from the blood, and an X-ray of the gall bladder to show its shape, presence of stones, and ability to empty its bile into the small intestine. The liver is the largest organ in the body and can lose many of its cells and be damaged to a considerable extent without endangering the life of the individual. The gall bladder which holds about two ounces of concentrated bile can be distended so that it holds almost a pint of bile diluted with a saline or salt solution. Generally speaking, as practically two of every three middle-aged or elderly individuals have some disturbance of liver and gall bladder, the need for operation of any kind does not include a large percentage of this number. It is severe pain in the region of the gall bladder, or the intense pain of gall stone colic, caused by a small stone trying to pass through a small tube or duct, that calls for consideration as to the need for operation. In the Canadian Medical Association Journal, Dr. L. C. McCabe, Windsor, Ontario, states: "While I would urge most emphatically the importance of operating early in the course of chronic gall bladder disease, I should like to sound a warning against operating for 'indefinite' symptoms. The individual who has flatulent dyspepsia (indigestion with much gas formation) but gives no history of gall stone colic, or of any attack of pain that might be an acutely obstructed gall bladder, and gives no history of jaundice, is better carried along by medical treatment, not surgery. Even if his gall bladder does not empty or fill completely as shown by X-rays, I would let him go on belching and perform no operation. The belching will rarely be changed by removal of gall bladder because this belching is usually due to over-eating, over-drinking, or to emotional disturbances. The thought then is that belching and pain in the region of the gall bladder should be investigated."

'There's So Much Good In the Worst of Us'

Once when I came running to the house complaining about a pain in my side, Mother picked up an old pair of scales and weighed me. "Now we'll play a game," she said. "I'll place a block on this side of the scales to represent each of your faults. Now tell me what I named them and blocks were piled in the tray. "Tell me something good about him," said Mother. "Don't let you ride his bicycle! And his candy with you?" "Yes," I admitted. Blocks were placed on the other side to show his good points. I started laughing as Mother's qualities overbalanced his. Through all the years I have forgotten that little weighing incident. Before criticizing a person I always compare his good points with his bad.

Emotional Factor in Rheumatic Children

Rheumatism receives intensive study in Great Britain because such a large percentage of the population is afflicted. Although the damp climate has much to do with causing and aggravating the symptoms of rheumatism, British physicians give perhaps more thought to the "nervous" or emotional factor in rheumatism than we do here. Of course, all physicians are aware of this factor and of the relation of that nervous ailment chorea (St. Vitus' Dance) to rheumatism. In the British Medical Journal, Dr. D. Hubble states that there are two parts to the rheumatic state in childhood—nervousness and infection. Both are present in differing amounts so that it may be impossible in one child to distinguish any nervous instability (or lack of nervous balance) or in another to detect any evidence of infection. In one the emotional factor is most pronounced and infection apparently not present or occurs after the emotional factor is apparently entirely absent. As to "growing pains," Dr. Hubble points out that these pains result not from growth of the body but because of some difficulty attending the growth of the personality of the individual, and it is easier to find evidence of nervous instability than of infection in these cases. Although many physicians believe that infection is present first and causes the rheumatism with emotional instability following, Dr. Hubble states that there is more evidence to prove that the emotional or nervous excitability occurs before infection and "probably even prepares the ground for the infection."

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Is surgery commonly resorted to in correction of defective eye muscles?
A.—Surgery is commonly resorted to if other methods—exercise, prisms—fail, as they often do.
Q.—Can I get into any branch of the service with a perforated ear drum?
A.—The perforated ear drum would likely prevent you joining an overseas unit, but home service would be all right.
Q.—What causes arthritis?
A.—Arthritis may be caused by infection, cold and dampness, nervousness, etc.
Q.—For years I have been annoyed with an intense itching all over my body. When I use soap my skin breaks out in red blotches. What could cause this?
A.—The red blotches may be due to the soap or certain foods eaten. I think you should consult a skin specialist. If condition were recent it could readily be due to the gland changes that come on at middle age.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE MEETING

With the approach of the winter season a number of farmers' meetings will be held throughout the county on topics of special interest. One such meeting is being held for farmers in the Jackson trade area and will be held on Thursday, Dec. 2, in the Jackson village hall. The meeting will begin at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

The program to be presented at this institute meeting follows:

10:00 a. m.—"Potato Diseases and Their Control," J. G. Milward, potato specialist of the College of Agriculture.

10:45 a. m.—"Managing the Laying Flock," Gerald Annin, poultry specialist of the College of Agriculture.

11:30 a. m.—"Corn Rorer Control," E. E. Skalsky, county agricultural agent.

1:00 p. m.—"Federal Income Tax Reports," O. L. Weber, internal revenue department.

1:45 p. m.—"Improved Cultural Practices for Growing Better Potatoes," J. G. Milward.

2:30 p. m.—"Poultry Feeding and Feusing," Gerald Annin.

An interesting feature of the meeting will be an exhibit of the newer varieties of potatoes grown in the state. These will be supplied by the Wisconsin Potato Growers' association. A so, local growers who have potato seed stock to sell are invited to bring a sample for exhibition purposes.

Attendance prizes will also be awarded at the close of the morning and afternoon sessions.

FRUIT GROWERS HOLD INTERESTING MEETING

The fruit growers of Washington county recently held an interesting meeting in the circuit court room of the court house in West Bend. The meeting was held for the purpose of reviewing fruit growing problems of the past season.

The meeting was opened with a brief review by County Agricultural Agent E. E. Skalsky, of the problems confronting quality fruit production during the past season. In this discussion it was pointed out that because of the prevailing cool and rainy weather during the apple blossoming time last spring, bee and insect activity was at a minimum. Hence, only a small percentage of the blossoms were fertilized. Sprays containing lime sulphur applied during May and June were effective in reducing apple scab to a point where it was not an important factor in apple growing in the county.

However, in late July and early August an insect known as the apple maggot worm infested the fruit in many of the orchards of the county. Sprays containing lead arsenate were used to combat this insect. However, the sprays were not as effective as they might have been.

To learn more about the nature of this insect as well as the preventive measures for controlling it, the fruit growers invited C. L. Kuehner, orchard specialist of the College of Agriculture, to speak to them on this subject. Among other suggestions made by Mr. Kuehner were that growers should spray which are the ones that control the apple maggot. He pointed out that all fruit must be carefully protected with a thin covering of lead arsenate at all times between July 15 and August 20. He concluded by saying that this extra precaution will be necessary to free orchards already infested with this insect. Mr. Skalsky continued the program with a discussion of the winter and early spring care of orchards.

Following the meeting, coffee and doughnuts were served by the wives of fruit growers present.

"DYNE," THE NEW DAIRY SPREAD

The dairy industry department of the University of Wisconsin has developed a new dairy food which has been called "dyne." Recently when made available to Madison housewives the new product won general and generous approval.

Dyne was designed as an entirely new dairy food, to join that select circle which at present includes the various kinds of cheese, butter, cream cheese, and other dairy products.

Because 16 points for butter has made very heavy inroads upon the point allotments of many families, many determining housewives are using dyne now to stretch their butter supplies.

The new product contains about 28 percent butterfat and 16 percent other milk solids, making it an exceptionally nutritious food. Its consistency is somewhat like that of butter, though heat and cold have less effect in hardening or softening it. The flavor is somewhat of a blend between butter and mild cream cheese.

Dyne can be used as a spread for bread or sandwiches, alone or in a sandwich combination. It has a wider range of uses than cream cheese. It can be used like butter as a spread, and in baking, but not like butter in frying.

APPLY WHITEWASH TO BARN EARLY IN FALL

Dairymen will find it easier to produce quality milk during the winter if their barns have been whitewashed inside during the fall, according to a state department of agriculture bulletin. Whitewashing fills cracks and crevices, a fact which prevents dust and dirt from collecting. It also makes the barns lighter, encourages cleanliness, and serves as a disinfectant.

Since best results are obtained when weather, the job should be done before cold weather sets in. All dirt and loose particles of the old coat of whitewash should be removed and surfaces made smooth by scraping and brushing. Most barn walls are stone or concrete. Cracks and crevices in the walls should be repaired, not only to secure a smooth surface but to increase the life of the building. Before the fresh coat is applied the surface should be dampened so that the new coat will dry gradually, since whitewash applied to a bone-dry surface will usually chalk and rub off rather easily.

An inexpensive formula for whitewash, effective if properly mixed and applied, is made by mixing 7½ gallons of fresh water, two pounds of salt, ten pounds of hydrated lime, and four ounces of powdered alum, allowing the mixture to soak over night. For wood or stone surfaces, three-fourths to a pound of powdered lime is usually added. Other formulas recommend the use of casein and formaldehyde. However, it must be remembered that when casein, formaldehyde or glue solutions are used, they must be cold when mixed with the lime paste.

E. E. Skalsky, County Agent.

Can You Picture WISCONSIN without Schools?

We've come to think of a good education for our children as a natural birthright of young Americans. But building up and administering a school system as fine as Wisconsin's is a gigantic task—nearly 588,621 students are enrolled each year in Wisconsin's schools and colleges. There are 8,207 primary and secondary schools and 61 colleges and universities. Thousands of teachers are devoting their lives to this work and to them goes most of this credit for its success, as well as to the administrators of each institution, to local and county school boards, and to the office of Superintendent of Public Schools.

We of the Greyhound Lines take the same pride in our citizens in our state's educational achievement.

In war-time even more peace-time, the things that us all together, that efforts, that make a nation's greatness in every sense, things that count most, are both good education and transportation have their parts to play in preparing present as well as the future Wisconsin for the peace world.

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF

As our guns groped blindly for vital enemy targets in Tunisia, Sergeant Donald V. Peterson of South Minneapolis crept beyond our lines. Snipers and machine guns raked the ground, but he pushed on, snaked forward into view of our targets. Sheltered from withering fire by one small bush, he radioed fire commands and our guns battered the enemy. His country recognized Peterson's bravery with the silver Star. You can recognize it with another War Bond.

THE "DIRT" ABOUT YOUR WASHER

We are cooperating with the War Production Board's Voluntary Conservation Program to conserve electricity. Your cooperation is also asked as electricity is vital to the war effort.

To conserve electricity with your washer:

- Don't run your washer longer than necessary. Needless washing wastes electricity.
- Don't overload! It's hard on the motor and your clothes.
- Take care of the rubber rolls. Dry well after using and release pressure. Rolls are hard to replace.
- Be careful of the cord. Wipe it dry—don't kink it—don't let washer roll over it.
- Oil motor and check gear grease at least once a year to avoid needless repairs.

In War, any waste is Sabotage! Don't waste Electricity just because it isn't Rationed. Plenty to Use, None to Waste.

This capitol-capped tower on the state capitol at Lincoln looks out upon one of our important grain and livestock states. Its founders came from the corners of the world and built a great commonwealth.

In Europe too, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Holland, France, Norway and other countries were striving for better, more peaceful days and then Austria spawned Adolf Hitler.

CARIBBEAN CONSPIRACY

by BRENDA CONRAD

THE STORY SO FAR: Anne Heywood, beautiful daughter of a wealthy New York newspaper publisher, goes on a vacation to Puerto Rico where Pete Tausig, a reporter for her father's paper, is stationed as a U. S. Army intelligence officer.

CHAPTER VI

It was half past five when Richard Tausig got out of the Army car and walked through the cool lobby and down the stairs to the bar and out onto the boardwalk above the smooth curve of the beach. It was a beautiful evening and he was in a good mood. He had just finished a long day's work and was looking forward to a quiet evening at home. He walked along the boardwalk, looking at the people and the buildings. He saw a girl in a white dress and a red cap walking towards him. He recognized her as the girl who had been with him in the hotel. He called out to her and she turned back. They walked together for a while and then she disappeared. He was looking for her when he saw a man in a suit and a woman in a dress walking towards him. He recognized them as the man and woman who had been with him in the hotel. He called out to them and they stopped. They talked for a while and then they went on their way. He was looking for them when he saw a man in a suit and a woman in a dress walking towards him. He recognized them as the man and woman who had been with him in the hotel. He called out to them and they stopped. They talked for a while and then they went on their way.

ally back, hung in a long bob around her neck. "Sue's busy with the guest of honor," she said. Her voice had the same slow monotonous quality as her face. "My name's Barbara French. That's my husband over there erupting the soda all over everybody. He always does. His name's Ben. Yours is Anne, isn't it?" Anne nodded and sat down on the cushion at the end of the long chair. "It's supposed to be a cliché to ask people how they like it here, but I'm interested," the girl said. "I like it," Anne said. She said "Thanks" to Ben, bringing her a Scotch and soda. "This is Anne Heywood, Ben. We're going to like her." "I hope she's going to like us," Ben said, grinning and sticking out his hand. "It's wet—there's something wrong with Russell's soda." "It's probably got carbon dioxide in it," Barbara said. She looked up at him with her unsmiling eyes. "Sometimes it has." "Not often," Ben said. "One bubble to a bottle. I'll be back. Say, where did Sue pick up that egg?" "In the bottom of last year's nest," Barbara answered calmly. "Ben's with Electrical Products," she added, as he went back to the bar. "He's nice." "Have you been here long?" Anne asked. "Three years." "Do you like it?" "Love it. I hate to think of going home—not until the children have learned Spanish so well they'll never forget it." Anne looked at her with interest. There was something very attractive about her effortless unsmiling calm. It was an extraordinary contrast to Sue's sparkling vivacity lighting out from the porch.

"If you don't care what kind of a girl you marry..."

tive about her effortless unsmiling calm. It was an extraordinary contrast to Sue's sparkling vivacity lighting out from the porch. "Sue says she hates it." "Sue hasn't learned that great big fish used to be little tiny fish tucked safely under the edge of a rock where the big fish wouldn't eat them up," Barbara answered. "—Is it me her barracuda doesn't like... or is it you?" "What do you mean?" Anne turned to follow her gaze across the porch. "The guest of honor. But it must be you. He's looking the other way. It was what they call 'veiled scrutiny' in books, I think." Anne turned away. She had almost decided that Miguel hadn't told him. She wasn't so sure now. Not if Barbara was right... and Barbara was probably pretty generally right. "I think our hostess is ready," Barbara said. She pulled herself up out of the deep cushioned chair. Sue had come out on the porch. "Come along, children," she said. "Anne, you didn't meet everybody, did you—how awful!" "She's coming to the Club tomorrow and she'll meet everybody then," Ben said cheerfully. "They'll all look different anyway." Anne sat at Russell's right at the foot of the table. Terry was next to her. Barbara was on the other side next to Mr. Tausig at Sue's right. "Of course it will ruin the Island," Sue was saying. "—She's talking about the law to prevent corporations from owning more than five hundred acres of land," Terry said, tackling his lobster thermidor. Anne listened. She couldn't distinguish the voices because behind the scraps of conversation that pelleted around her ears like rain on a tin roof. "But something has to be done, doesn't it?" (That was Barbara.) "But they don't have to bankrupt the Island." "Foreign investors built up the sugar industry." "But they take all the money out of the country." (That was Barbara again.) "But they took the risk." "The natives won't work." "You couldn't work on a diet of rice and beans—if any—either. You couldn't cut a day's cane on a diet of beefsteak and spinach." (That was Barbara too.) "They don't raise any of their own food. It's all imported." "I don't see why we don't just pull out and give them back their Island. Just show 'em." "They'd love it." (It was Barbara speaking.) "The population has increased one hundred per cent since we took it over... cut down infant mortality... cleaned up the yellow fever... malaria..." "Without doing anything drastic to solve the problem of feeding the people we've saved..." "A Puerto Rican told me if the population kept on at this rate they'd have to build a second story to the Island..." Sue looked helplessly at Anne. It had become a conversational free-for-all in which the guest of honor was unable to get a word in edgewise. He sat smiling blandly. Only once or twice Anne, turning her head, caught the glint of the tall candles in their crystal hurricane globes on his thick lenses. He was watching her—there was no doubt of that, because he looked away again without ever really meeting her eyes. Each time she had a chill like feeling in the pit of her stomach. "They thought we were awful, going without stockings. Now they all do it themselves." "I remember my father nearly died when he discovered I didn't have stockings on," Barbara said. "He hadn't noticed it the first couple of months. My aunts in Boston still think it's awful." Sue smiled enchantingly. "—Don't pay any attention to Barbara, Mr. Tausig. She's just being contrary." She put her napkin down on the table. This was the moment she'd been waiting for. The men could sit and talk, and Russell would have his chance. "Shall we let the men have their coffee here?" She started to get up, but Mr. Tausig was out of his chair. "Frankly, I prefer coffee with the ladies," he said blandly. Sue had not gone to Miss Oakley's for nothing. "How wonderful!" She smiled brightly and led the way through the dining room back to the porch. Anne glanced at her watch. It was almost time to go. The party had settled into three groups, with Barbara and Terry and a silent young man who became visible only at the mention of a race horse in one of them in the center of the porch. Behind them Ben was with Sue and Russell talking to Mr. Tausig. The others were playing some kind of game inside the living room. Anne was listening to Terry and Barbara arguing the distance to a place she'd never heard of. She was listening more intently to the conversation behind her. Mr. Tausig was saying it couldn't be done. Anne had missed what it was. Russell Porter was insisting that it could. "We're doing it," he was saying. "Right here, now. It's a wonder Colonel De Voe didn't show it to you this afternoon." "There was so much to see," Mr. Tausig said. "Our time was limited. My point is that it's one of those engineering dreams that's a practical impossibility. If you can do it you're a wizard, my boy." "That's just what he is, Mr. Tausig!" Sue cried. "Darling, why don't you show him those drawings you have, with all the specifications in them. Then he'd believe you." It seemed to Anne that there was an abrupt silence. She couldn't be sure, because Terry was trying to beat down Barbara's monotonous resistance to something by banging on the table. "I tell you it's crazy!" he was shouting. Then she heard Russell Porter saying, "I'd like to, Mr. Tausig, but they're not supposed to be shown around. You know how it is." "Certainly," Mr. Tausig said. "And very wisely, in my opinion." "—But Russell..." "Run along, little girl, and look after your children. I hear one of them is squalling." Building a Cistern Question: Where can I get information on building a cistern? Answer: Consult the local representative of your state department of agriculture, who is familiar with your local conditions. You can get an excellent government pamphlet on this subject by sending five cents to the Supt. of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Farmers' Bulletin No. 1448, "Farmstead Water Supply."

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

Roger B. Whitman—WNU Features.

You may not be able to replace worn or broken household equipment. This is war. Government priorities come first. So take care of what you have as well as you possibly can. This column by the homeowner's friend tells you how.

REPAINTING CEILING

Question: Our living-room ceiling formerly was finished with calcimine. After several years this became dingy looking, and we decided to take it off and put on casein paint. The painter tried to wash off the old calcimine, but it would not come off. So he put two coats of casein paint on over it. The finish now is bubbling and peeling. What is the best way to refinish the ceiling? Can wallpaper be put on the ceiling as it is now? Answer: Whether you use paint or wallpaper, all the present finish will have to come off. Calcimine will come off when washed with water containing some household ammonia. To remove the calcimine and casein paint, wash with a solution of three pounds of washing soda or trisodium phosphate in a gallon of water. Then rinse with clear water. When the plaster is clean and dry, you can refinish the ceiling with paint or wallpaper.

ROUGH PLASTER WALLS

Question: I am planning to paper the walls in my kitchen and dining room with washable wallpaper. The walls and ceilings at the present time are finished with a rough, colored plaster. What should I do to these walls before I paper them? Answer: You can remove most of the roughness in the plaster by rubbing it down with coarse sandpaper wrapped around a block of wood. The remaining light depressions can be filled with a mixture of glue size, thickened with powdered whiting. For smoothing the surface, use a trowel. You might consider using wall cloth, which comes in handsome patterns and is strong and washable.

Leather Top

Question: What can I do about the leather top on a drum table? It has several indentations from a heavy table lamp. Answer: Place the lamp on a flat sheet of beveled glass or wood. Heavy objects having sharp projecting supports should not be allowed to stand on leather. The indentations might disappear if the top is washed with mild soap, then polished with paste wax.

Well Water Analysis

Question: I should like to have the water from a newly drilled well analyzed. Where could I have this done? Answer: Your local classified telephone directory will show a list of laboratories that will analyze water. Or ask your druggist to arrange to have the work done. Or inquire of your board of health.

Cleaning Percolator

Question: How can I clean an old aluminum coffee percolator that is stained brown inside? I have tried cleansing powder, but without success. Answer: Try boiling for half an hour with a half-and-half mixture of vinegar and water in it, using enough to fill the spout, if possible. Boiling tomatoes in it also would be good, and scrubbing with steel wool or scratchless scouring powder. Ask your hardware dealer if he still has a spout brush.

HOW TRUE!

Is There a Spare Room for the Goat?

The Once Over by H.I. Phillips

THE BETTER MOUSETRAP

1—A man decides to build a better mousetrap. 2—He tries to interest somebody with capital. The first prospect listens with interest up to a point where he is convinced he would double his money. This scares him out. 3—The inventor sees another capitalist. He almost gets him with the argument that if they are careful they can avoid quantity production. 4—Spurred again, he contacts a group of financiers who have been very successful at losing money. They think the mousetrap will be a flop and decide to back it. 5—They ask him how much money he needs. He says about $100,000. They refuse to go in unless he will take a million. He reluctantly accepts.

6—He needs only wood, wire and a few holes. Owing to a wood shortage he is asked to use plastics. He nearly gets some wire, but priorities set in and he is told to use soybeans. 7—He can still use holes for holes, he thinks. But he is now stymied by an OPA decision to ration holes. He can only get three to a trap. 8—He phones his backers that there are so many obstacles confronting him that they will all lose money, and he suggests dropping the project. They bring suit to make him go ahead. 9—He turns out his first trap. It costs $3.50. As it has to sell for 30 cents retail it looks bad. He notifies his backers. They are quite pleased but suggest he turn out traps at a cost of $10 each and sell them two for a quarter. They are not taking any chances on more surtax burdens.

10—The Better Mousetrap man asks for a factory in Elmira, N. Y., that can be bought for about $40,000. His backers buy him four in Detroit at a cost of $1,500,000 with government aid. 11—He gets into production but has to suspend work to answer federal questionnaires and fill out new tax forms. 12—After a long struggle he resumes operations. The Mousetrap Makers' Union calls a strike demanding fewer holes in the mousetraps. He offers to cut the holes to one. The WRLB is called in and rules that one hole is too many under the Wagner Act. 13—He asks the board how mice can get into such a trap. It says: "They can't get in under Roosevelt; let 'em wait until Willkie is elected."

14—After long negotiations he is allowed to put one hole into each trap except on Saturdays and Sundays. 15—Ultimately he is all set for business except for a radio theme song. He listens to 400 goofy jingles. He picks one sufficiently silly. 16—He discovers that the lyric says the product contains the essential vitamins, is made from sun-kissed lemons and puts iron in the blood. 17—He says vitamins and iron do not appeal to mice. His advertising man tells him that radio results prove him wrong. 18—Just when he seems out of the woods OPA rations cheese. It suggests that traps be baited with pig tails and chitties. 19—The Mousetrap Workers' Union now walks out in sympathy with a strike of Rat Poison Mixers. The War Relations Labor board tells him unless he gives in inside of ten days the government will seize his plant.

20—He now goes nuts and insists he never designed a mousetrap or was in business for himself for a single hour. He swears he is a college professor. 21—This lands him a job in Washington as a counsel to business men. Moral—Nothing succeeds like a deficit, plenty of confusion and a story that you were once on a college faculty.

Secretary Morgenthau is giving up his dairy farm after 20 years. We understand he finds it hard to make a profit these days because of the government's financial policies. Probably Mr. Morgenthau had an extra difficult time trying to make both ends meet in the milk business. Every time he tried to milk a cow he would have trouble trying to begin at Section 1, Paragraph A, or skip to Item 4, Paragraph D.

And it's tough figuring out a surtax while sitting on a milkstool with a cow knee-deep in questionnaires. We can imagine Henry, sunk in a sea of milk and deficits and exclaiming: "In business today, if it isn't one thing it's an udder."

Here is a great chance for the Republican party. If Wendell Willkie is smart he will buy in the Morgenthau herd and make it pay even if he has to sell the movie rights. Mr. Morgenthau will henceforth raise fruit, he announces. His success in supplying millions of Americans with raspberries may have gone to his head.

Franchot Tone ran out of feed for his chickens a while ago; practically fed them from hand to mouth, and every day, on his way to and from work in "The Hour Before the Dawn," he'd stop his station wagon at every feed store he passed, picking up a little here, a little there. And then—he found that he'd been driving around all week with a bag of feed in the back of the car, that belonged to Fred MacMurray—put there by the studio purchasing department, who'd mistaken his station wagon for MacMurray's.

IT'S one of the tales that people will be telling years from now—that Abbott and Costello story. Last March, when Costello was stricken with rheumatic fever, and doctors said that he would never walk again, Abbott was urged to get himself a new partner. He refused. He went off the air, stopped all picture work. He and Lou had been partners in pictures and radio for 13 years, he was sure that Lou would recover, and he'd wait. His faith was justified last September, when Lou took 60 steps, one for each year of the birthday anniversary his mother was celebrating. They're back on the air now, start a picture late this month. But Fate again has dealt cruelly with the roly-poly comic, for his infant son, Lou Costello Jr., was drowned in the family swimming pool three hours before his adoring dad went on the air, brushed the tears aside and laughed as loud as he could on a coast-to-coast hookup.

"Youth in Crisis," the latest March of Time release, is going to startle a lot of complacent people. Dramatically, movingly, it tells the story of what is happening to our young people because of the disruptions and excitement of war. Dealing with the same problem, RKO Radio is making "Are These Our Children?" Ruth Clifton, 18-year-old high school girl who originated the famous Moline Plan, has been brought to Hollywood to confer with California officials and to act as technical advisor on the film.

When "Vox Pop" transferred from the sidewalks of Houston, Texas, to those of New York, in 1935, Variety, the theatrical paper, predicted that "This show ought to last indefinitely." Recently Parks Johnson celebrated "Vox Pop's" 12th birthday, so the prediction may come true.

Shirley Temple's Pekingese died recently, while his mistress was playing a comedy scene in David O. Selznick's "Since You Went Away." She'd had him for eight years. Any girl who's come home to learn that she's lost a childhood pet knows how she felt.

At last comes the definite announcement from Columbia Broadcasting System that Fred Allen will return to the air on Sunday, December 12. It's said that he has staged a marked recovery to good health, and is all ready to resume his feud with Jack Benny.

Maurice Murphy's playing a fighting pilot in Paramount's "Submarine Alert," doing all right, but he has one deep regret. As a small child he portrayed the star, John Gilbert, as a child in "Flesh and the Devil," and the leading lady often held him on her lap. The leading lady was Greta Garbo. "And when it happened," says he, "I was too young to appreciate it!"

Carlton E. Morse, writer and producer of "I Love a Mystery" and "One Man's Family," has signed to put the latter on the screen. Morse will write an original story for the film, which will be produced by Charles Rogers for United Artists release.

ODDS AND ENDS—Although Sidney Lanfield has never directed her, he manages to secure a gag around Dorothy Lamour into each of his pictures; the latest is in "Standing Room Only," with Paulette Goddard and Fred MacMurray. Hedy Lamour has been selected as the army movie "The Yank's Pin-Up Girl of the Week" for the second time. Elmo Lincoln, the original "Tarzan," has a role in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey." Anos 'n' Andy have been deluged with fan mail proclaiming their new show to be a success. Pat O'Brien has been booked to appear on the air's Radio Theater on November 29th, in "The Iron Major," based on his new picture.

Franchot Tone ran out of feed for his chickens a while ago; practically fed them from hand to mouth, and every day, on his way to and from work in "The Hour Before the Dawn," he'd stop his station wagon at every feed store he passed, picking up a little here, a little there. And then—he found that he'd been driving around all week with a bag of feed in the back of the car, that belonged to Fred MacMurray—put there by the studio purchasing department, who'd mistaken his station wagon for MacMurray's.

KEWASKUM WINS CONFERENCE OPENER OVER LOMIRA 38-17

—by Marvin Schmidt—

With Lomira playing a zone defense which didn't click too well, a good Kewaskum basketball team took advantage of the opportunities and led at the end of the first half by a score of 22 to 2 at Lomira Tuesday evening. In the second half Lomira came out using a man to man defense and the second half proved to be a tight battle.

Dave Bartelt, the 4 ft. 3 inch Kewaskum center, again led all scorers with 15 points on 7 field goals and one free throw and was especially outstanding on rebounds. Two sophomores, Merrill Krueger and Glenway Backhaus, were again outstanding while the guards, Ralph Koth, Wilmer Bunkelmann and Allen Tassar, did a good job in working the ball through the defense.

On Tuesday, Dec. 7, the West Bend team will come to Kewaskum to play a non-conference game.

DR. GIBOULEAN DISCUSSES INDIA

A humorous as well as serious lecture was presented by Dr. G. H. Gibouleau on "Mysterious India" to the students of Kewaskum High last week Friday Nov. 19. The lecture was on the country and its people, and how they live and die. He also demonstrated the unusual costumes of the people.

The doctor spent nineteen years doing educational, social, and medical work in India. He had many interests in this strange country besides that of a missionary doctor; a founder of schools and at times principal of these same schools; a hospital inspector, responsible for having decent hospital buildings erected in the community; a delegate to the Roman mission exhibition and while there was decorated by the late Pope in recognition of this excellent all-round work; a Norwegian vice-counsel for Arakan, and founder of the Boy Scout movement in the same district.

Doctor Gibouleau comes from Three Rivers, Mass., where he received his primary education. Later he went to Montreal to complete his studies before leaving to take up work in foreign lands. Upon his return to America a few years ago, he found it necessary to go to an American college to brush up on his native English. He had become more familiar with Bengali, Hindustani and Burmese than his native English.
