Beating Davy Jones on His Home Grounds

Divers, like physicians, must learn to "see" through their fingers. That is just what student divers are learning to do at the United States Navy's salvage school in New York.

Here students are taught to work by touch and to use all kinds of tools under water. Conditions here are purposely made difficult so that when the students are on their own they will have confidence.

Members of the officers' class at the salvage school are pictured under the diving tank. One student is going down to do some underwater welding and burning.

Right: Hanging from the rafters to prevent creases or puckers in the rubber, are some of the suits worn by the student divers. Below: Divers bob around a float as they practice air control.

Right: Students listen carefully to a lecture on modern navy diving methods. This course consists of 14 weeks of hard work. Handling the mechanism of his suit must become second nature to the diver.

These divers' shoes were made at the school as are the tool bags which are carried by the men who are beating Davy Jones on his home grounds.

The comic note creeps in now and then, even in the grim catalogue of the year's accidents. A few ludicrous examples from the files of the National Safety Council indicate what vaudeville-like mishaps can happen.

Residents of Coconut Grove, Fla., were mildly surprised one day when their morning mail was delivered by a mailman who, of all things, wasn't wearing any pants.

Dr. W. A. Franklin stood before his junior high school class in Ponca City, Okla., to demonstrate the safe way to handle matches.

Private Ernest M. Scofield of Denver, Colo., huddled in a foxhole in the Solomons, dodging enemy shot and shell, a stray bullet dislodged a coconut from a tree limb overhead.

Residents of Dayton, Ohio, were startled one fine day this summer to see a small electrically-driven invalid's chair scoot through a red traffic light and crash into a huge six-ton trailer truck.

Blitz Welding. During army maneuvers in Tennessee, a bolt of lightning struck the upper of a sleeping bag, neatly welded it all the way around and sealed up a soldier who happened to be inside.

In Chicago, Colton Ankebrandt was testifying in the case of a driver who inadvertently had piloted his auto into Mr. Ankebrandt's parlor.

Engineer Corps Has Only Half Accidents Of Private Industry

The army's corps of engineers has achieved a reduction of 45 per cent in accident frequency and 31 per cent in accident severity below that of private construction.

As compared with the accident rates for the five-year period, 1935 to 1940, it is estimated that the engineers' safety program during the past two fiscal years has saved more than 1,000 lives, averted 34,908 lost-time injuries, and prevented the loss of 6,306,374 man-days, with the saving in wages of workers amounting to $46,604,104.

Regulations of the corps, rigidly adhered to, require that all lost-time accidents on construction projects over which the corps has jurisdiction be reported.

When the army's construction program was expanded in 1941 to the greatest the world has ever known, specific uniform safety requirements were established by the engineers and compliance enforced in all construction contracts.

Outstanding among the requirements were those providing for mobile first aid stations; central infirmaries staffed with trained nurses under the supervision of one or more full-time physicians ever assembled, where a thousand or more workers were employed; the employment of a full-time safety engineer on all similar projects, and the maintenance of a first aid log at all field stations and infirmaries.

The current program is placing the most stress on the proper use of heavy construction equipment which, although responsible for but 25 per cent of the total injuries, causes up to 52 per cent of the time lost in all accidents on construction projects.

ONE of the air's best programs, "Shipmates Ashore," may soon be broadcast nationally; it's a variety show, done by British Broadcasting company, with an American star and an English one.

The warlords were in the inn sumptuously quartered, lolling in fine chairs in their stockings, their muddy boots on the beds.

And in the corridors of the first floor a great bully of a man slashing about with a sword, reviling his companions, and boasting of some book he had written about conquering all mankind and reducing those who did not agree with him to slavery.

Now there were in the country humble people with no hate in their hearts, keeping the faith, watching over their own and affrighted by the horrors that were about them.

And behold an Angel of the Lord stood over them, and the brightness of God shone round and said, "Fear not; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy that shall be to all people: for this day is born to you a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord, in the city of David, and who is the Prince of Peace, the Deliverer of the afflicted and the Christ of love and tolerance.

And they came with haste and found the infant lying in the manger. And the arrogant within the inn were silent; and the drone of the ships of destruction, sweeping overhead, was no more, neither were there sounds of distant cannonading.

JACKSON FARM INSTITUTE MEETING WELL ATTENDED

More than 166 farmers attended an all day farm institute meeting held last Thursday at the Jackson village hall. The meeting was devoted to discussions on potato improvement, poultry care and management, preparation of income tax and victory tax statements, and corn borer control. The businessmen of the village of Jackson are to be highly complimented for the special interest they showed in the meeting by donating a number of attendance prizes. The following merchants made such donations: Hoge & Cumm store, Held store, Butzke Electric & Implement company, J. A. Schneider tavern, Reinhold Kressin, Frank of Jackson, Jackson Lumber company, Liesner Hardware, and Job's tavern.

WASHINGTON COUNTY TO BE SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT

Washington county's newly formed soil conservation district will enable its farmers to launch an organized attack on soil erosion and at the same time increase their land's productivity. County Agent E. E. Skalsky said in explaining the recent action of the county board.

Skalsky explained that the board after a study of the seriousness of the county's erosion problem, created the district under the provisions of Wisconsin's state law.

Under the provisions of the law, the county agricultural committee of the county board comprises the supervisors of the district.

Skalsky said that the district, a unit of local government, cannot levy taxes or issue bonds. Participation on the part of landowners is wholly voluntary.

Under an agreement with the federal department of agriculture, the soil conservation service will assign to districts trained personnel to work with farmers in solving soil washing through such practices as contour strip cropping, contour cultivation, terracing and pasture renovation. The men also work with farmers in wind erosion control.

Next month Marvin F. Schweers, state conservationist of the soil conservation service, Otto R. Zeasman, extension soil conservationist, and Skalsky will meet with the county agricultural committee to draft a program and work a plan for the district. Upon request of the district supervisors, the soil conservation service will then assign a staff of technicians to the district.

Members of the county agricultural committee are Guido Schroeder, Route 5, West Bend; George Rettler, Route 2, Hartford; Harvey Dettmann, Route 1, Rand Lake; Ed. Campbell, Route 3, Kewaskum; and M. T. Buckley, county superintendent of schools.

4,000 CALFHOOD VACCINATION PERMITS ISSUED BY STATE

Widespread interest in the official calfhood vaccination as a means of controlling Bang's disease among Wisconsin cattle is indicated by the fact that approximately 4,000 vaccination permits have been issued by the state department of agriculture to herd owners of this state.

Of this number, 1,817 were issued from Jan. 1 through Nov. 24 this year.

according to Dr. V. S. Larson, chief of the livestock sanitation division, in recent weeks the number of applications for vaccination permits has ranged from 16 to 26 daily. Dr. Larson reports. Calfhood vaccination was inaugurated in this state in 1930 as a supervised program. Five procedures for vaccinating calves are now available. Under four of these plans, the vaccination is done by an approved veterinarian on permit from the department and the vaccination receives official recognition. Under the fifth plan, the herd owner vaccinates his own herd and needs no permit from the department since the vaccinating is not officially recognized.

Calves officially vaccinated are identified by ear tag number or, in the case purebred registered calves, by registration number if the herd owner so requests. All vaccinates are tattooed in the left ear with the letters WY indicating Wisconsin-Vaccinated, and figures designating the month and year of vaccination.

E. E. Skalsky, County Agent

Corporal Walter Bodt's squad was spying out Jay position in the Pacific. We needed information badly. The squad got it, but Corporal Bodt was wounded from furious enemy fire, but his men were urgent. Fingerprinting the Tuberculosis Germ

The tuberculin skin test, which screens out the members of a group infected by tubercle bacilli, is a valuable operation, especially in the early detection of tuberculosis among young people. In 1942 penny Christmas seals paid for over 11,000 tuberculin tests by Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association physicians, and many thousands were given by private physicians and public health doctors. Shown above is Dr. I. F. Thompson, public health commissioner of Racine, administering the tuberculin test to a group of graded school youngsters.

Electricity Grows Food for Freedom

Electricity is the cheapest hired man any modern farmer can hire — in fact a Modern farm cannot run without it. In spite of the demand war industries have put upon Electricity there still is enough to supply farm and other civilian needs. A successful farmer depends upon Electricity to do many farm chores to relieve him and his farm help for other important farm tasks. Co-operate with the government's conservation program. Eliminate waste — waste of Electricity, Gas, coal, manpower and transportation facilities. By doing so you will help to shorten the War.

In War, any waste is Sabotage! Don't waste Electricity just because it isn't Rationed. Plenty to Use but None to Waste.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Water Camel

This is one enemy of armies and navies that may be frustrated by a generous supply of water. Typhus, another dreaded plague is another enemy that must be subdued in Africa, in the jungle islands of the Pacific.

So the "Water Camel," more often called the "water camel," or just "camel," is used. The "Water Camel" is a khaki colored canvas bag having a capacity of about 30 gallons. It will require many War Bonds to provide enough "camels" for our fighting forces at home and abroad. Yours too! "Back the attack with War Bonds." U. S. Treasury Department

If you have outstanding or overdue obligations, why not make a determined effort to clean them up by the first of the year? At least talk with your creditors and make some satisfactory plan for payment. That's the fair and square thing to do.

It pays to guard your credit jealously. It can prove mighty useful when needed.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. Forces Advance in South Pacific As New Air, Sea, Land Blows Hit Japs; 1944 Farm Machinery Output Doubled; Germany Stunned by Bombing of Berlin

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

SOUTH PACIFIC: Outposts Crumbling

Less than a week after U. S. forces under Maj. Gen. Holland Smith swarmed onto the shores of the Gilbert islands of Makin, Tarawa and Apamama, the stars and stripes floated bravely over them and most of their 6,000 Japanese defenders lay dead.

Even as U. S. forces were mopping up the Gilberts, from which the enemy once threatened Allied supply lines to the southwest Pacific, American airmen struck another heavy blow at

Maj. Gen. Holland M. T. Smith

Jap naval forces serving their embattled troops on their last Solomon's holding of Bougainville island. Of a force of six Jap destroyers, two were sunk by torpedoes and two more by gunfire by a smaller squadron of U. S. warships.

In ground fighting on Bougainville, U. S. forces expanded their base of operations under support of heavy artillery barrage and bombing attacks of Mitchells and Venturans.

FARM MACHINERY: Doubling Output

Rationing of farm machinery will be reduced to 81 types next year as increased raw material allotments will allow the manufacture of almost twice as much equipment as was made in 1942 and about 80 per cent of the 1940 total. Production of repair parts will be unrestricted.

With sufficient carbon steel available, only uncertainty of supplies of anti-friction bearings, malleable castings and forgings is ruffling farm machinery manufacture.

Despite the improved outlook for farm machinery, difficulties may arise from the scarcity of hauling vehicles, including trucks, and in acquiring replacement tires for trucks now in operation.

LIVING COSTS: Up 23 Per Cent

While the War Labor board's "Little Steel" formula restricted wage increases to 15 per cent over the January, 1941, level, living costs have risen 23 per cent since then, according to figures of the department of labor.

Originally, WLB awards were based on a 15 per cent increase in living costs from January, 1941, to September, 1942. Since September, 1942, however, there has been another 5.6 per cent rise, with labor demanding a corresponding reduction in living costs or higher wages to equalize the present condition.

Further, labor charged that the government figures on living costs were inaccurate, and the President appointed a special committee to look into the subject.

WORKING WOMEN: More Needed

With 16 1/2 million women already at work, another million are needed to round out war production demands.

As of October, only 700,000 people remained unemployed, and with this sharp reduction in the number idle, it has been found necessary to call on women to fill in many jobs, especially in busy war production centers.

The extent to which women have been recruited for industry since the armament program got under way can be glimpsed by the fact that only 10,800,000 were working in October, 1940.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

SHIPS: Shipyards under management of Henry J. Kaiser have launched 1,087 vessels since January 1, 1941. Mr. Kaiser told the New York Economic Club. Of these, 985 are Liberty ships, 40 or more are tank-landing ships, 40 are fast tankers, and 12 are aircraft carriers. "Two or three," he said, "are troop transports with seven decks, carrying 4,000 passengers."

ROAST TURKEY: Congressmen crowded into their private restaurant the day before Thanksgiving to enjoy a turkey dinner with all the trimmings for only 60 cents. The price is about half what an ordinary citizen would have to pay. Congress votes a subsidy of $85,000 a year for its favorite luncheon.

RADIO: No person or corporation may control more than one single standard radio broadcasting station within any one area, the Federal Communications commission has ruled. The order affects possibly 50 localities.

CONGRESS: Ban Subsidies

To the senate for approval went a house bill prohibiting payment of subsidies to reduce or maintain retail food prices and only allowing their use to stimulate agricultural production.

Championed by the administration as a means of keeping living costs down, retail subsidies were attacked in the house as inflationary, in that such savings to consumers only added to their purchasing power, and money borrowed for the purpose increased the national debt.

The administration is now spending approximately 800 million dollars annually on retail subsidies for meat, butter, milk, and other products. Under the house bill, subsidies would be continued only for domestic vegetable oils, fats and oil seeds.

In approving subsidy payments to stimulate production, the house voted to extend the life of the Commodity Credit corporation to June 30, 1945, and maintain its borrowing power at three billion dollars. CCC also was given permission to resell at a loss perishable fruits and vegetables bought to support prices.

Vote for Higher Taxes

Also to the senate went a house bill providing for 2 1/2 billion dollars in additional taxes, far below the 10 1/2 billion dollars requested by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau.

Largest source of new revenue in the bill would be obtained from taxes on goods, such as beer, liquor, jewelry, luggage, bulbs and cosmetics, and from services such as telephones and telegrams, amusements, transportation and club dues.

Adjustments in individual and corporate income taxes would provide substantial revenues, with approximately 600 million dollars being obtained from additional levies on business.

Local postal rates would be increased to three cents and charges would be raised on money orders and special deliveries.

EUROPE: Fortress Smoulders

With its home front rocked by Berlin's devastation by 1,000 RAF bombers, Germany sought to bolster the southeastern flank of her smouldering Fortress Europe by turning to military maneuvers to influence wavering, neutral Turkey.

While Berlin's populace dug out of its ruins, Germany was reported moving troops through Sofia, Bulgaria, to the Grecian frontier, fronting Turkey.

The moves closely followed the Nazis' recapture of the strategic Aegean islands of Kos, Leros and Samos, from where they could threaten Turkey's western coast.

The Germans' movements appeared to be their answer to Allied pressure on Turkey to cast her lot with the U. S., British and Russian cause. Under terms of the Turkish-British alliance of 1939, each country promises to come to the assistance of the other if attacked.

In Italy, Britain's 8th army occupied lowlands along the Adriatic coast, in preparation for an assault against the Nazis' mountain positions immediately to the north. U. S. casualties in Italy since September 8 were placed at 1,613 killed; 2,685 missing, and 6,361 wounded.

WORLD RELIEF: Big 4 to Cooperate

In accordance with the principles of the Big Four pact of Moscow, the U. S., Britain, China and Russia will work together in the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration for obtaining supplies for the postwar's needy countries.

The U. S., Britain and Russia will co-operate in estimating the requirements of the different European peoples. To get the necessary supplies as speedily as possible, it was suggested that raw materials be especially allocated to pre-war industrial nations with available machinery for manufacturing goods.

United Nations not invaded are to contribute 1 per cent of their national income toward a fund for financing relief and rehabilitation operations.

Rationing After War

Because of prospective demands on U. S. food supplies for feeding other nations, rationing will not only continue but also may be more severe after the war, Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard told a senate committee.

Declaring that the time needed to feed other people will determine how long rationing will go on in this country, Wickard said the severity of the control will depend to a great degree on the supplies we have on hand when the war ends.

All tillable land out of the 20,000,000 acres owned by the government should be returned to farming by sale or lease after the war, Wickard said.

WORLD BANK: For Reconstruction

To join with private capital in reconstruction and rehabilitation in the postwar era, the U. S. treasury has proposed a world bank and laid details before congressional committees for study.

Announced by the treasury's financial wizard, Harry D. White, the bank not only would help in advancing long term credit for rebuilding the shattered economies of nations, but in some cases it would also guarantee repayment of loans made by private capitalists.

U. S. contribution to the bank would amount to 700 million dollars at the start, and possibly 3 1/2 billion dollars in all. Great Britain would advance less than a billion dollars, Soviet Russia's share would be substantially less.

RUSSIA: Counter-Punches

Red armies launched a heavy attack on the northern sector of the 1,200 mile Russian front as German Marshal Ritter von Manstein's troops pecked out new gains in the vicinity of important railroad junctions to the west of Kiev.

In their drive in the north, the Reds took another step closer to the pre-war Polish border, and pressed against the upper section of the railroad system constituting the Nazis' last north-south rail link in Russia.

After recapturing the rail hub of Zhitomir in a whirlwind comeback, the Nazi attack lost some of its impetus against stiffening Red resistance, and although the Germans beat forward for further gains and spread the scope of their drive northward to take in still another section of the rail line previously cut, their pace was slowed by concentrated Russian artillery fire.

U. S. SPENDING: Sees Need

Special advisor to the board of governors of the Federal Reserve bank, Economist Alvin H. Hansen proposed annual government expenditures at the rate of 15 to 18 billion dollars to prevent postwar depression.

Clarifying that the last great depression was the result of a drop of 15 billion dollars in private investment between 1929 and 1932, Hansen said it was necessary for the government to develop a program for meeting such crisis, so as to halt big dips in consumer buying and attract capital back into business.

The present war will be followed by a period in which people will spend money for accumulated needs, Hansen said. But unless government stands by with some kind of program to take up the slack in employment that will follow the filling of all these orders, we might well run into another depression, Hansen asserted.

LIGHTING: A New Type

A new type of electric light that requires no wires, but obtains its current from a beam of high-frequency radio energy, was demonstrated recently in New York. Experts said that this will be the lighting of the future. Also shown were radiant heat lamps that gave off enough heat to cook food, and a mercury vapor lamp, the most brilliant known. It uses 10,000 watts, and produces a light one-fifth as bright as the surface of the sun, it was reported.

WAR BONDS: Record Purchases

Record purchases of government securities were made in the third quarter of the year—July, August and September—the Securities and Exchange commission reports. During the period individuals and non-corporate businesses invested more than 5 1/2 billion dollars in federal bonds, largely war issues.

For the first nine months of the year, bond buying amounted to more than 12 billion dollars worth, of which nine billions were war bonds.

NEW YORK: In those days Detroit, Mich., was full of easy money.

At the Central Drug store a boy from Cass high in short pants, Stephen Foster could pick up $2.50 a week just for delivering prescriptions—4 p. m. to 9 and every other Sunday off. Out of that he had to repair his bike, but usually he could manage a dime or a nickel, for the Empire theater. Marvelous movies, and a fat little singer named Brown! Brown sat on a piano long before Helen Morgan, and in 1911 he was forever singing Alexander's Ragtime Band. "Come on and hear! Come on and hear!"

Irving Berlin, himself only 23 then, marked a whole high school generation with that enduring song. Other songs of his marked other generations, and two wars. And now "My British Buddy" is melodic quick silver in London where Berlin's "This Is the Army" repeats its American success.

Ever since he rose above the job of singing waiter, Berlin has composed in F sharp. That is a toughie, six black keys hard to pick out, and only two easy white fellows. But it hasn't lowered output of quality. And at 55, more nearly than any rival, he is the Stephen Foster of this day.

Luckier than Foster, he is rich. Instead of the 33 cents his first song earned, each one now nets baskets full of bills. His first wife died after his first success, but for 17 pleasant years he has been married to Elin, daughter of the late, rocco Clarence H. Mackay. They have three girls.

He is a gloomy self-critic and his own list of his best 11 leaves out "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," and "God Bless America." Cass high students of 1911 will be glad, however, to learn that it includes "Alexander."

Hubert Scott-Paine had been a little quicker at blocking upcuts, maybe the Nazis would be doing better these days on the English Channel.

TURNED FACE AWAY FROM UPDATES TO BUILD SPEEDY BOATS

British MTBs and MGBs, all Scott-Paine-designed. And he turned to such work only after a boxing tour with a French circus convinced him he was in a business in which a man rose only to fall again.

The turn, lucky for Britain, was made before the last war. First off Scott-Paine designed aircraft and through the war years he layed the foundation of a fortune so sizeable that 15 years ago he could plan to lead the rest of his born days. He had a wife, a son, three daughters to enjoy them.

About then, however, he came upon a derelict Southampton shipyard, irresistible to a man who had always wanted to build a better marine engine. He set to work with the help of various men, including one long-jawed fellow called Shaw. This was really the incredible Lawrence of Arabia.

The Southampton yard after a time produced the fastest single-engine speedboat in the world. And in this war it sets the pattern for those terrific little motor torpedo and gun boats flying the Union Jack under Nazi noses. There will be no second retirement for Scott-Paine for a while. He isn't, of course, at retirement age even now. He is only 53.

SIR HERBERT EMERSON, a nearly perfect product of the British civil service, lays plans these days for cleaning up the polyglot mess that Hitler is about to leave in the country.

With Peace, His Task Is to Return 30 Millions Home

Sir Herbert heads up the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees. When peace comes he will direct and attempt to shift as nearly as possible back to their own homes 30,000,000 men, women and children uprooted by the Nazis forced upon Europe.

This isn't a bureaucrat's job, but it is probably one for a man who knows all the ways of snipping bureaucracy's red tape and on that count Emerson qualifies.

He triumphed over the maze of civil service to become one of India's chief administrators. He was Britain's top man in forested Bashahr, and again in fertile Mandi, and finally governor of all the Punjab with its five enriching rivers and its 30,000,000 or more souls. He has held his present post for nearly four years.

About then he came over here to consult with Washington, and turned out to be medium tall, fairly heavy, with a direct quizzical gaze, and a trick of taking off his glasses and twiddling them as he talked.

In England, he rates high. He is a member of the Athenaeum, most famous and exclusive of English literary clubs, an honorary fellow of Mogdalen college, and is entitled to wear the jealousy bestowed ribbons of the Order of the British Empire, of the Indian Empire and of the Star of India.

Today's Battlefield Victims Get Speedy, Effective Care

Blood Plasma, Sulfonamides and Organization Of Medical Services Insure Prompt Treatment of Wounded Men.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

near as effective as modern treatment. The army estimates that 80 to 90 per cent of the wounded get first-aid treatment within an hour of being wounded. Ships are well equipped, the larger ones as well as a hospital.

The man with a not too serious wound, and that is by far the majority of cases (amputations are included), has a splendid chance for recovery and a resumption of his natural existence in civil life when he is discharged.

In two categories this war has been harsher than any preceding. There is a greater proportion of killed in action to wounded. Also the mental casualties are higher in the present war.

Careful efforts have been made to screen out those showing characteristics indicating they are unable to stand up under the mental strain of modern warfare. More might have been held out of service if the psychiatrists had been able to carry out their plans. They would have been able to do so if there had been as thorough an understanding of that branch of medical science as there will be after the war. And because of that fact, more of the mental cases will be restored to normal.

The reason for the increased number of mental cases is variously explained: our troops have endured longer periods of offensive action than in the last war; the increased fury of modern warfare; the domination of the machine, and also, to some degree, the complications of civilian life which encourage neurotic conditions.

The science of warfare has moved forward with seven-league boots. Killing has become a mass production affair. But along with the chariot of Mars, Mercury has advanced on winged feet and the healing arts have progressed to the point where for those who escape the scythe of the grim reaper there is a strong, helping hand along the road back.

The general gave three reasons: first, the use of blood plasma to avoid shock and hemorrhage; second, the use of sulfonamides to combat infection; and third, the mobility and organization of the medical services which insure prompt and efficient medical and surgical treatment.

The Reasons

I heard of widespread use of blood plasma first in the Spanish Civil war and imagine much valuable experience was gained from that conflict. We know it was a proving ground for Nazi and Fascist killing and undoubtedly the Allies profited by the efforts in life-saving as well.

The use of sulfa drugs is one of the great blessings which modern chemistry has given us. Recently I stood in one of the plants of the Monsanto Chemical company in St. Louis, Mo., letting the soft, healing powder drip through my fingers. Before me, in a space hardly 25 feet square, was a collection of small kegs containing this wonderful antibiotic. There was enough within my easy reach to serve the whole Sicilian campaign, they told me. Each soldier has his packet and fills his wound with it. It stymies the germs until natural processes annihilate them.

The mobility of the medical units has been described in many dispatches and you have all seen photographs of the flying hospitals, the great air transports with their equipment and nurses. The wounded are rapidly returned to bases where they get the best of care. Treatment on naval vessels is equally effective.

It must be understood that the drugs and the plasma in themselves are not cure-alls. They are not even cures in many cases. They are preventatives. They are what you "do with" until the doctor comes—more accurately, until you come to the doctor. Surgery is necessary in the cases of most wounds.

Capt. W. M. Craig, chief of surgery at the Naval Medical center, Bethesda, Md., just outside of Washington, puts it succinctly: "In the last war, when a man's head was cut open by a shell fragment," says Captain Craig, "the surgeon had to operate at once, even though the patient was in such a weakened condition that he hadn't one chance in a hundred to survive the operation. The surgeon had no other choice; he knew if he waited, infection would set in and that would be the end. In this war it is different; the patient is given blood plasma treatment to build him up, sulfa to check infection, and if his condition permits, he is flown to a hospital in the rear where the operation is performed under ideal conditions."

Short Time Lag

In the last war, all wounded had to have a powerful injection, a most painful thing to endure, and nowhere

CARIBBEAN CONSPIRACY

by BRENDA CONRAD

THIS STORY SO FAR: Anne Heywood, beautiful daughter of a wealthy New York newspaper publisher, goes to Puerto Rico on an island as her father's paper.

CHAPTER VIII

Taussig put his green visored cap on the table and removed the dark glasses from his spectacles. "I've been wasting my time being cautious," he said. "Wasting—did you say?" "I did. I'm afraid it's true."

"I'm afraid not," Don Alvaro said simply. "And my brother-in-law says you wish to see a sugar mill," Don Alvaro said. "Would you care to go tomorrow?"

"It would be wonderful." "I believe my friend Mr. Taussig is to go along also—if that is agreeable to you."

For a moment Anne hesitated. A quick little banner of fear fluttered on some inner rampart. "Perfectly," she said. "Shall you go too?" "I'm afraid not," Don Alvaro replied. "I have many things to go over with my son. My brother-in-law and his daughter will accompany you."

Anne stopped in the middle of the broad sun-baked Plaza Principal and looked around her in surprise. Five minutes before it had been crowded with people, teeming with motor cars, carts of all sorts, fruit vendors and flower sellers. Now it was as empty as the inaudible air raid warning had been sounded, and life of every kind had taken miraculous flight to invisible shelters. It had happened so quickly that she could hardly believe it. She looked at her watch. It was ten minutes past twelve. Then she remembered the siesta. Whatever changes the American occupation had made, it hadn't done away with that. For the next two hours everything stopped in its tracks, and nobody would venture out in the broiling midday sun. Nobody with any sense, anyway, she thought.

She looked around again. As a matter of fact it wasn't particularly hot, actually, and the contrast of the sudden silence with all the movement and noise and blaring of horns was very pleasant. She had set out to see the old city without realizing what time it was, she realized, and she might just as well do it.

It was not until she crossed the cobbled road in front of the Cathedral and started down Caleta San Juan, the steep lane that leads to the old gate, that she began to wish she had not been so energetic. It really was hot.

She stopped and looked back up at the Cathedral. As she turned around again, a man came out of one of the doorways near the bottom of the street and took a few steps up the hill—Or he had done that before she turned, she thought suddenly, because it was hardly an instant before she wheeled about quickly—so quickly that he could not have been aware she had seen him—and disappeared into a doorway.

Anne stopped abruptly. It was Miguel Valera. She had not been sure as he turned, but she was sure seeing his back in the three or four steps he took before he vanished. But why had he vanished? He must have recognized her.

pected but not yet proved; and Russell Porter, a young American engineer, and his wife, Sue, who believes Mr. Taussig can help Russell. Anne lets Taussig know she suspects him. He has gone to see Diego Gongoro, Valera's uncle.

stony box beside the protecting battlement, and turned around. She wasn't mistaken. It was Miguel. He had come out again and was going rapidly up the hill. She could see him through the shadowed rectangular frame of the gate. She knew the way he walked, the set of his head, the movement of his shoulders. They were as distinctive as the way his gray eyes smiled slowly before his lips did, and the little habit he had of pulling down the cuff of his right coat sleeve. It was odd how many things she was aware of about him that she'd ordinarily never notice in people.

"I'm being crazy," she said to herself. There could be a dozen reasons why he mightn't want to see her just then—Or be seen by her, she added with a vague sense of uneasiness. She glanced back at the door. A man was coming now who looked rather more as if he belonged there. He was small and dark, with a blue shirt open at the neck and cotton trousers and straw hat that had both seen better days. He was coming down the hill.

Anne moved out to the stony box and wandered aimlessly along, looking up at the blackened time-stained wall. The man came through the gate and went down the ramp to the long pier stretching out into the shallow dirty water of the bay. The pier was empty except for a man at the far end leaning over the barrier, watching the harbor.

Anne went back to the stone battlement in front of the pilastered gate, watching the two of them. The man at the end of the pier had turned and was coming back, stopping once to level his camera at the seawall with the gardens and white round towers of Fortaleza shining above it. Anne leaned forward. It was Mr. Richard Taussig in his yachting cap with the breeze flapping his white linen trousers around his ankles the way it had on the promenade deck of the ship.

She stepped quickly down from the ledge and slipped into the stony box. Through the narrow slit in its circular wall she could see Taussig shade his eyes with his hand and look along the ramp.

The man from the house in Caleta San Juan stopped from time to time to look down into the muddy water. In a minute or two they would pass each other. Or would they? Anne waited. The Puerto Rican stopped again. Mr. Taussig was on the other side of the narrow pier taking another picture of La Fortaleza. Then, as casually as an ordinary tourist, he crossed over within a couple of feet of the other man, and to all intents and purposes devoted himself to taking snapshots of the unlovely expanse of beach and wall under the Casa Blanca.

Anne glanced at her watch. Eleven minutes dragged slowly by on its tiny face before either of the two men below her moved—the tourist or the native. It was a long time for anybody to stand in the broiling midday sun looking down into the mud. Then quite abruptly Mr. Taussig moved away and was coming up from the pier.

Anne slipped quickly out of the stony box and through the gate. The hill up under the wall to La Fortaleza was shorter than the other. At the top, in front of the palace, she glanced back. Mr. Taussig was crossing the street headed up toward the Cathedral. Anne looked at her watch again and waited, ostensibly interested in the simple elegance of the palace facade and the handsome field blue-uniformed policeman on duty at the entrance. It was less than three minutes before the Puerto Rican came slowly through the gate and disappeared up the hill.

"You can come in and see the palace if you want to, miss," the policeman said. "Some other time." She smiled and turned across the tiny plaza into Fortaleza Street. Richard Taussig had certainly been waiting for the other man. If there was nothing illicit in their meeting, why had they gone to such elaborate trouble about it? And what did Miguel have to do with it?

She walked slowly along the narrow street. At the corner, as she waited to cross, she felt a light touch on her elbow. "What are you doing out at this hour, Miss Heywood?" Her heart gave an excited little leap as she turned. It was Miguel Valera. It flashed through her mind that he had been waiting there for her. . . . to find out if she'd seen him, maybe. But that didn't matter, not really.

STAINED SINK

Question: How can I clean brown spots from my sink? They have appeared around the drain.

Answer: The cure will depend somewhat on the nature of the stain. Try filling the sink with water—after you have finished with it for the evening—and mix in two cups or so of Javelle water or some similar bleaching liquid containing chlorine; grocers usually have two or three kinds in stock. Let it stand all night. If this does not work try continued rubbing with a scratchless cleaning powder made into a paste with kerosene; ammonia also would help. One of my readers had success with a mixture of salt and lemon juice.

Waxed Floors

Question: My oak floors have been given several coats of a penetrating wax finish. What is the best way to clean soiled spots at the entrances to rooms and stairs? Is it advisable to use a non-rubbing wax to touch up the spots?

Answer: The easiest way to clean the kind of floors you have is to moisten some cheesecloth with a liquid wax (not the non-rubbing variety); go over the floors with this, turning out a clean part of the cloth frequently. Polish with a thin coat of paste wax, allowing it to dry hard before polishing. You may be able to get a booklet on the care of floors from the manufacturer of your own particular finishing wax.

DAMAGE FROM OXALIC ACID

Question: After removing varnish from a mahogany mirror frame, I stood the mirror in my bathtub while applying a solution of oxalic acid to the frame. When I attempted to clean the tub I found the acid had roughened and eaten into the porcelain.

Answer: There are many different substances; one of them is a mixture of fine sawdust or wood flour and varnish, with oil stained added to match the color of the wood. Wood putty, on sale at many of the better stocked paint stores, also is used for this type of work.

Holes in Fami

Question: I have seen a substance used for filling the holes in antique furniture that gives good results. It is not as brittle as a shellac stick. I think that it is a combination of beeswax and something else, with color added. Do you know what it is?

Answer: There are many different substances; one of them is a mixture of fine sawdust or wood flour and varnish, with oil stained added to match the color of the wood. Wood putty, on sale at many of the better stocked paint stores, also is used for this type of work.

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

BENZEDRINE SULFATE

In my articles on health and weight, I have mentioned the use of benzedrine sulfate (amphetamine) in reducing weight. It has a "double action" effect in that it takes away the appetite for food and causes the individual to be more active. He is inclined to move about more instead of allowing his excess weight to keep him lazy.

That benzedrine sulfate has this same double action effect in the treatment of alcoholism has been reported. Some months ago I mentioned the work of Dr. W. Bloomberg, Boston, as recorded in the American Journal of Psychiatry. While this article has aroused interest and helped many alcoholics, there are many who have not heard about it and so I am again passing it along to my readers.

"When an alcoholic stops the use of alcohol, he is severely depressed and very uncomfortable and feels that he must take something to relieve him. As the only thing he knows to give relief is alcohol he turns to it and the vicious circle continues. Because he continues to take alcohol to obtain relief, it is often necessary to place him in an institution."

Dr. Bloomberg's method of treatment is simple and effective. The alcohol is stopped at once and he is given 10 to 30 mg. (sometimes more is needed as determined by test) of benzedrine sulfate daily, in two equal doses, one with breakfast and the other at noon. It is not usually given later than noon and never in the evening as it keeps mind and body active and would interfere with sleep. This dose of the dose best suited to his needs should be continued until the patient is reasonably comfortable and able to work without his alcohol. It should then be gradually reduced and finally stopped, after which an occasional dose can be taken in periods of depression in place of alcohol. This drug should not be used to give an individual a "pick-up" following an occasional spree.

Dr. Bloomberg states that benzedrine sulfate is a dangerous drug in unskilled hands and should never be taken except under the supervision of a physician.

Cobra Venom Eases Agony of Cancer

As one of the most severe pains that afflict man is that of cancer which cannot be reached by surgery, X-rays or radium, the use of morphine has come into almost general use. While morphine dulls or deadens the pain of cancer, it also deadens the mind, eyes, hearing, taste and other senses of the body. In addition, the forming of the morphine habit quite often follows.

However, all severe pain is not due to cancer but to many other conditions, so that a substitute for morphine that would give relief from pain and not dull the senses, nor establish a habit, has been the aim of research workers throughout the world. That cobra venom is a worthy substitute in many cases of severe pain is now established.

Some years ago Dr. David I. Macht was able to show that the pain of cancer could be relieved in at least 50 per cent of cases by injection of cobra venom.

More recently, in the Transactions of the American Therapeutic Society, Dr. Macht has been able to show that cobra venom also relieved the pain in tic douloureux (trigeminal neuralgia), arthritis, locomotor ataxia, sciatica, angina pectoris, shingles and other painful diseases.

THE TWITCHELL CHILD-DISARMAMENT PLAN

Elmer Twitchell came out today with a proposal for a Disarmament Conference to precede the end of the war. "I want it at once in the interest of national safety," he declared. It was quite startling until Mr. Twitchell explained that it would apply to children only.

"I am for the disarmament of kiddies under the age of eight," he said. "The infants are swarming all over the premises heeled to the teeth, blood in their eyes and disposed to give and take no quarter."

"Little Willie, aged seven, sleeps with a tommy-gun, comes to breakfast with a mortar and spends all his spare time doing commando work. Jackie, aged five, attends him as a sort of armed bodyguard. Jerry, aged three, toddles around the house dragging a cannon, a couple of tanks and an airplane carrier. Wallie, aged one and a half, has a big force of toy soldiers, a dozen airplanes and a hangar in his crib."

"There ain't a toy in the home that doesn't represent carnage. Hardly an hour passes that mother doesn't find the kids in the course of remodeling a chair or vacuum cleaner into a landing barge for amphibious operations."

"The infants seem to be concentrating their attack on the skies, but amphibious stuff comes next. They do all kinds of ground and under-seas fighting, too; heavy rocks through the windows now and then for purposes of realism."

"What are the nicknames of little children today, 'Red,' 'Skinny' and 'Huck'? Not at all. They are called 'Butch,' 'The Gaffer,' 'Two Gun' or 'Kayo.'"

"Every visitor is a Jap or a Nazi. The minister called yesterday and the kids decided he was an enemy airplane carrier and stalked him during his entire visit. The maid has to be on the alert every minute or she will be set upon as hostile territory."

"The little dears insist they are only playing, but you can tell from the hard glint in their eyes that they would love to have mother say: 'Now if you are good and eat your spinach you can have a real rifle and go out and shoot up Mr. Burns next door this afternoon,' or 'I want you to be quiet for an hour and then I'll let you get fire to the Woolson house and throw Mr. and Mrs. Woolson into a stockade.' I heard a kid ask, 'Mother, can I have a roll of barbed wire?' yesterday."

RUSSIAN WAR SONG

We're smashing through the Nazi lines, Our forward drive is unabated; It isn't much, but pretty good For people once annihilated!

We've got the Heines on the run— They now know better how we're gaited; We'd even hit 'em harder if We hadn't been annihilated.

We knock 'em down and drag 'em out To prove 'em very overrated; We'd even land a kayo but We all are so annihilated.

We sock 'em here, we sock 'em there— They flee with signs that read "No Waiting"— It's wonderful how helpful is A little stiff annihilating.

We've got 'em groggy on their feet Each day we land another blow— A souvenir from just a state That "will not rise again" you know.

We send 'em reeling in reverse— A craven folk knocked on our ears! Who never will be any good For (so he said) 1,000 years!

This Fish Uses Its Mouth As Incubator, Nursery

Some fish have curious breeding habits. The curious haplochromis, for example, uses its mouth as an incubator, meanwhile going on a self-denying diet. This fish is only two to two and a half inches long, as a rule.

When the time comes for spawning, the male will make a hollow in the sand, and in this the eggs are deposited and fertilized. The female then picks up the eggs in her mouth, carrying them about this way for about two weeks until the young hatch out.

The mouth of the female continues to act as a refuge for the little fish until they are able to forage for themselves. During the period of hatching the mother does not take food, but after hatching she chews food particles fine enough for her offspring to devour.

Horse and Cattle Owners!

Dead animals are essential to help win the war as they are processed into a high grade feed for Poultry, Cattle and Hogs which in return produce essentials which we must have to win a war. Glycerine is taken out of all Fats and Oils from dead animals and this is made into T. N. T. for high explosives, and only Rendering Plants produce these products; as all dead animals buried or used otherwise are a waste to our country. Call your Renderer, Wm. FARM AND HOME LINES

Clark county farmers contour plowed 1500 acres this fall according to soil conservation leaders.

More than 1200 farms were added to FEA lines in Wisconsin so far in 1943. These lines now supply current to more than 25,000 farms.

One-sixth of Wisconsin's milk trucks have run more than 100,000 miles, reports Rudolph Proker, agricultural economist at the University of Wisconsin. Sixty-five per cent of the trucks were made in 1939, 1940, and 1941.

FOOTBALL BANQUET ECHOES

—by Ralph Liepert—

The annual football banquet which was given Thursday night, Dec. 2, was well received and attended by twenty-six members of the football squad and the manager. Together with teachers, school board members, the speaker, fathers and other guests, the banquet supper was served to fifty-eight persons. Dave Bartelt acted as toastmaster and thanked the school for the opportunity of playing football and issued a challenge to the under-classmen of the squad to continue the conference victories started this year.

Mr. Rose welcomed the guests and complimented the football squad and coach on their fine record of the season. Following that, Mr. Mitchell gave the hi-lite of the season and presented awards to the eleven letter winners. The awards were miniature sterling silver footballs with the word "champions" engraved on them. He also commended the boys for a fine spirit of co-operation.

Attorney Lyle Bartelt, the main speaker, gave a talk on what football does for a high school boy and emphasized that football teaches the boys to give and take, to co-operate to succeed, and this carries over to actual living. Honorary captain James Bartelt thanked the fathers and the school for their help in making football possible.

The banquet supper was well prepared and served by the home economics girls, who were directed by Miss Joan Flanagan.

ANNUAL PICTURES TAKEN AT HIGH SCHOOL

On Friday of last week individual pictures of high school and grade school students were taken by Mr. Robinson of the National School Studio company of Minneapolis, Minn. The price of the pictures will be somewhat higher this year. This is because we dealt with a different company.

In past years Mr. Sinclair took pictures, not only of individuals but also group pictures, which were not taken this year. The photography purpose was for the school's annual. Plans for the annual of this year have not been made because it would cost the school a considerable amount of money if they were to be available.

It was decided that dues of a penny a week be collected to gain funds so a party may be given at the end of the semester.

PVT. ANDRE DODGES BOMBS, CLIMBS VOLCANO IN ITALY

We have received another of our regular, very interesting letters from Pvt. James Andre, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Andre, Sr., who is with a special engineers unit in the fight in Italy. He was sent to Italy from Sicily some time ago and even his stationery is Italian. Besides telling of being in several air raids and climbing to the top of Mt. Vesuvius to get a good view of the volcano, Pvt. Andre describes a visit to the ancient ruins of Pompeii and writes of the damage to some of the Italian cities among other things. He also sends a picture showing the "Piazza Municipale e Stazione Marittima" in Napoli and Mt. Vesuvius in the background. He visited there on a pass. Here's the letter:

Somewhere in Italy

Hello Bill:
Spending a quiet evening at home with nothing much to do, so will write you a letter. Wish I could tell you more of what I am doing and where I am. You would be surprised if you could see me writing this letter. Christmas packages are starting to arrive and there is plenty of candy and nuts to eat tonight. Will have a real Thanksgiving tomorrow. The turkey came today.

Could have fresh brook trout if we had some hooks. The creeks here are loaded with them. I got a willow fish trap from a native last Sunday afternoon and he is making two more for me which should be done in a few days. He lived in the States 24 years ago and still speaks fair English. He said he often caught 25 trout in a trap in one night. Of course, I would not break the game laws at home but when one finds it impossible to get a single hook, anything is fair.

Here in Italy I have been in Naples, Salerno, Surrento and the ancient ruins of Pompeii. Have sent quite a few post cards of these places and also some of Sicily. These cities did not look as nice as they do on the post cards. The war has turned most of them into ruins.

While on pass I went to Pompeii and Mt. Vesuvius. Climbed up to the top of the volcano and to the crater. Was a hard climb but worth the trouble of climbing the mountain. One can see many miles over the sea from the peak. At the top of the volcano can be seen from a great distance. Pompeii lies at the foot of the volcano. About two-thirds of the buried city has been uncovered. Pompeii must have been a city of wine, women and song when the ashes covered it. There were many wine shops in the city, also other places where there are the original drawings and writings on the walls. Some were interesting and I will tell you more of them over a stein of Lithia. It takes about 5 hours to look over the ruins. The water pipes were made of lead and are still in good shape. The city was covered in '83, at least that's what the guide told us.

Also spent a day at the resort town of Surrento. While there an English soldier and myself hired a boat and guide who rowed us thru the many caves and passage ways which are under the cliffs along the sea. It is a very nice trip along the sea coast of Italy.

Naples must have been a good place to be before the war turned parts of it into ruins. It will take many years to repair even part of the damage. At Salerno there is no building that is not damaged. One town near Salerno was completely destroyed.

Have been in several air raids here in Italy. When all the guns are going and the bombs are dropping there is plenty of noise. The raiders drop flares which makes the night seem like day. I don't think a snake could get closer to the ground than I did several times. About bed time, so I will close. Received copies of Sept 24 and Oct. 1 today. I am still in the best of health. Will be in the army 1 year on Nov. 27 and hope to see you before another year rolls around.

HEISLER BROTHERS MEET IN ENGLAND SECOND TIME

Staff Sgt. Franklin Heisler and Pvt. Russell Heisler, both of whom are with the army air corps in England, met recently for the second time in London, according to word received from the letter by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Heisler. Pvt. Russell is now back on duty after an operation in an English hospital. After leaving the hospital he was given a 5-day sick leave and went to visit his brother at his station. Sgt. Franklin obtained a week end pass and the brothers spent an enjoyable week end together in London. Sgt. Franklin recently sent his folks a huge, antique smoking pipe from England which is a couple of feet long. It is understood that he purchased the pipe in Scotland where he spent a furlough. Although as yet he has sent no details regarding the pipe, he writes that it is historic and very valuable. He also sent his niece, Carole and Sharon Harbeck, each a chinaware drinking cup from England.

WAC ELSIE BRUHN PROMOTED, DREAMS OF WHITE CHRISTMAS

A letter arrived Thursday morning from Elsie Bruhn, daughter of Herman Bruhn, who is in the Women's Army Corps at Foster Field, Tex. We note that she has been promoted from private first class to the rank of corporal and also has a change in her address. The weather is warm and the flowers in bloom, writes Cpl. Bruhn, who likes her field very much but longs for a white Christmas. Her letter:

Monday afternoon

Dear Friends:
I received my billfold and wish to extend my sincere thanks to all of you and the Bar-N Ranch. It's mighty nice of you people to remember us like this. I am so proud of it I sure enjoy getting the Statesman and always turn to the letters from people in service first. I find them most interesting. It is still comparatively warm here. At times it turns cold enough to wear an overcoat, especially when a northerblow is in. The poinsettias are in bloom and they are gorgeous. They grow from three to five feet tall and seem to be in everyone's yard and around the buildings. The palm trees look nicer this time of year too. Otherwise the country here looks like early fall. The fields have all been plowed. The cotton crop is the main crop this year. Cotton picking time is like our grain harvesting only it requires more people. Cotton pickers are mostly Mexicans and colored people. Saturday was payday and they all flocked to town. Spanish is spoken a great deal here. Then of course there are huge cattle ranches bordering this field with thousands of head of cattle. Cowboy boots are seen in all the stores and on the streets. Other stores sell nothing but oil well parts. There are lots of wells near here and by lots I mean thousands.

We had a grand Thanksgiving dinner. The girls were allowed to ask their boy friends over so we had quite a crowd. Otherwise the day was just another work day.

This is really a swell field. We have more entertainment on the field than in town and I like it here very much. Although I should appreciate being down where it is warm this winter, I miss the snow as do most of the northerners here. The favorite song of the camp these days is "Dreaming of a White Christmas" but we can dream, can't we? Here's wishing you all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Cpl. Elsie Bruhn A605892
AAF, WAC DET.
Foster Field, Texas

EDITOR'S NOTE—So far we are "Dreaming of a White Christmas" up here the same as you in Texas. We are enjoying mild, sunny weather without a trace of snow. Even the good earth isn't frozen yet and shades of green still linger in the grass just two weeks before Christmas. It seems like early autumn. Last month, however, we had a light snowfall a couple of times but the snow soon vanished.

GAS HOUSE GANG STARTS FUND FOR POST-WAR PARTY

While home on furlough recently, Lt. Ralph Marx of Camp McCain, Miss., and Sgt. Ray Zeimet of Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., with local members and auxiliary members of the Kewaskum Gas House gang, started a fund to be used for a grand celebration for all members of the gang when all those in service come home after the war. Each member and others who want to join the celebration have deposited 25 cents in the fund. Every member in service must deposit 25 cents in the fund when he or she comes home on furlough or the money can be sent by mail. A glass jar has also been placed in a local business place, into which members are dropping their loose change to add to the fund. So far $10 or $12 have already been collected for the servicemen's party.

KARL HOME ON SHOR. LEAVE

Pvt. Sylvester Karl of Camp Kaw-

I know it has been a long time since I have written to you but my reason for writing to you now is to tell you of the surprise I had this last Saturday night. Since I have been in service I never ran into anyone from the home town. Oliver Petermann, whom I haven't seen in about two years, looked me up and it was quite a reunion for both of us. Oliver, who was just recently sent down to these parts, is stationed about twelve miles from Charleston.

This was his first opportunity to look me up and I must say it was a happy surprise. We enjoyed being together and spent a sociable night talking over the good old home town and the rest of the boys in service. Oliver, who is uncertain of his stay here, expects to get into town again so we may spend a few more nights together. Oliver, or "Dexter" as they call him, sends his regards to all.

Very truly yours,
Harry F. Koch

SECTION LABORER AND FATHER OF FIGHTERS

Fred lives in Bronson, Iowa, and has been with the "North Western" for 20 years. Although his work probably will never make headline news, his job is vital. For he belongs to that vast army of workers who keep roadbeds in top condition.

No "fair weather" men, these! Come rain or shine, sub-zero temperature or blizzard weather, they're on the job. Ties need replacement—new rail is to be laid—ballast is to be added—whatever the job they do it cheerfully and well.

But when Fred's driving a rail spike or tightening a bolt we wonder if he doesn't wish occasionally, for the sake of his fighting sons, that a uniformed Jap or Nazi were the objects of his attention.

He'd hardly be human if he didn't. For his son, Sergeant Walter, has seen action as a bomber gunner in Sicily; Sergeant Ray has had nine months in North Africa; while Bill's two hectic years in the Merchant Marine included service on the tanker USS Arrow when it was torpedoed! Then there's Lieutenant Elsie, who has seven years of service behind him and is now an instructor at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland.

Fighting fathers and fighting sons—"North Western" has many of them. Some are fighting on the Transportation Front, others on the Battle Front. But they're all playing a real part in this war!
