

Waukesha Team Tips Kewaskum in Finals of Lakes Tournament

Juniors Place Second Out of 11 Teams and Will Be Awarded Tro- phy; Won 8, Lost 2 During the Season

In the championship finals of the Land O' Lakes Junior baseball tournament played on a neutral field at Menomonee Falls Sunday afternoon, the Kewaskum Juniors were outclassed by a strong, experienced Waukesha Legion team. The final score was 13 to 1 in Waukesha's favor. Although they could not win the championship, the Juniors can be well satisfied with their record for the first year of organization and first tournament competition in the strong Lakes junior circuit. Much credit is also due to "Pessy" Dreher, who organized and managed the team and gave up his time almost every evening to give the boys practice and coaching. The team will be awarded trophies for coping second place and will be guests at the Land O Lakes banquet after the close of the current season. Menomonee Falls beat Hartland in the first game Sunday for third place.

Kewaskum was not as bad as the score against Waukesha indicates. The teams were evenly matched in fielding and the winners had only a slight edge in hitting power. Where the big difference in superiority came in was in pitching. Waukesha had an exceptionally good pitcher with a lot of stuff and a very fast ball for a 16-year-old kid. Kewaskum got only one hit off Lawrence, Legion pitcher. Waukesha got nine hits but the wildness of the local pitchers, along with one or two costly errors, accounted for their big score. Backhaus started for Kewaskum but was not up to his usual par. Krueger relieved him but was too wild. Finally two outfielders, Koth and Tessar, were called in to finish the contest. Many local fans followed the team to Menomonee Falls.

Waukesha's big advantage in experience made much difference. The Legion has had a team for years and the boys have been playing together for a long time. Waukesha has played in numerous tournaments and it is no dishonor to lose to them. They already participated in a district and regional tourney this summer before entering the Lakes tourney. They lost out in the regional tournament to Beloit and this kept them from advancing to the state competition. Kewaskum defeated West Bend, Menomonee Falls, Waukesha CYO and Hartland before losing in the finals. They also have a record of four wins in five games played against surrounding teams before the tourney.

Column on the Side

DON'T BE A QUITTER —STAY IN SCHOOL

Joining with other state and federal agencies interested in child welfare the Wisconsin Education association at Madison urges that all children of school age return to their classes with the opening of school.

While jobs are now easy to get, and pay is good, the association observes, this situation is temporary—it may not even last through the coming school year. When war contracts end the youngsters with little education or technical skill will be the first to lose their jobs. By quitting school now these boys and girls are building a future of unemployment and blind alley jobs.

Many of them contend that they will get the "big money" now and go back to school when jobs are scarce, but the association terms this "wishful thinking." History shows that pupils quitting elementary or secondary schools never come back, in the overwhelming majority of cases.

Boys about to be drafted into the armed services are urged to continue their high school training up to the time of their induction. The pre-induction program of most high schools is regarded by military authorities as the best preparation for military service.

In urging pupils to remain in school, the association holds that it is patriotic and in the best interest of American democracy to continue the education of its children. In the words of Paul McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission addressed to the high school boys and girls of America—"The opening of school this fall is your 'D-Day' in the struggle for a better world."

Don't Get Clipped

or husband which they will forward for a stipulated sum. In most cases the clipping is from the home town newspaper, one the family already had. This is a cheap racket that can't be prosecuted because it comes within the letter of the law. The established price for clippings is 5c and reputable clipping bureaus do not solicit individual clippings.

87th Annual County Fair Now Under Way

The 1944 annual Washington county fair, one of the oldest county fairs in the state, is now under way at Sling-er, County Agent E. F. Skalsky, secretary of this village is secretary of the fair, which opened Friday and will continue until Sunday night.

Much interest is being shown in the fair this year. Advanced entries exceeded those of former years. Especially is this true in the open classes where, for the first time in the history of the fair, no entry fees are being charged. Applications for display space for commercial products were also more numerous than formerly according to E. E. Skalsky.

The fair operates mainly as a junior fair and encourages participation in it by the youth of the county. However, adults may make entries in all departments except livestock. It offers a wide variety of good clean entertainment to young and old. In order that all may attend, no entrance or parking fees are charged. Ample parking space is available on the Roecker and Rosenheimer properties adjoining the fairgrounds. Car parkers are on hand to direct the orderly parking of all cars.

Entries in all departments of the fair closed at 8:00 p. m. on Friday, Aug. 25. Livestock need not necessarily be brought to the fairgrounds until Saturday morning by 8:00 a. m. All exhibits must be in place and ready by that time. To keep the fair up to date, and to meet the needs of a wartime showing, extensive changes were made in the entry requirements. Exhibitors were cautioned to keep this in mind when preparing their exhibits.

The Ellman shows and rides, coming to the fair for the fourth consecutive year, brought a number of new rides and shows. Some of them have been on state fair circuits for many years. Music concerts will be presented by the West Bend Moose and Civic band on Saturday evening and by the Fremont's Post all-girls' American Legion band of Milwaukee on Sunday afternoon and evening. Sunday has been designated as American Legion day at the fair and all activities will be directed at paying due honor to those who served in the armed forces in World War I or in the present war.

The judging of exhibits will start Saturday noon. The departments to be judged on Saturday are foods, canning, clothing in the home economics departments. In the agricultural departments judging of all entries in the cods, sheep, swine, beef classes, grains, vegetables, field crops and flower classes will be done on Saturday. All other classes including the dairy cattle, poultry, and demonstrations will be judged on Sunday starting at 10:00 a. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend the fair. The 4-H clubs and other youth organizations of the county have spared no efforts in providing a daily program of interest to both old and young. The fair is definitely a part of the rural life of Washington county. Let's support it by our attendance and thereby give encouragement to the youth of the county to carry on.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Little Barbara Schelder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schneider of Milwaukee, who is spending the summer vacation with her grandmother, Mrs. Tillie Zemet her, submitted to an appendectomy at St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend, Friday, Aug. 18. Barbara returned to the home of her grandmother here Wednesday.

VILLAGE BEACH TO CLOSE FOR SEASON NEXT FRIDAY

The public beach in the Kewaskum park will close for the season next Friday, Sept. 1. The beach will also be closed this Sunday but from Monday through Friday of next week a life-guard will be on duty from 1:30 to 5:20 p. m. and from 7 to 8 o'clock each evening.

DUMP CATCHES FIRE

Some of the members of the fire department were called out Wednesday evening to put out a blaze at the dump on the Paul Backhaus farm east of the village. The firemen had to haul water by truck to extinguish the burning dump due to a lack of water there.

Bring in local news items.

STORE, STUDIO CLOSED

Due to circumstances beyond our control, Miller's Studio and Electric Store will be closed mornings until 12 noon during the month of August.—adv. 9-4-44

Tech. Sgt. Earl Kohler Weds English Girl in London Church

Miss Dorothy Jean Owen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Owen, 65 Niton street, Fulham, London, SW 6, was given in marriage by her father to T/Sgt. Earl J. Kohler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Kohler of this village. The ceremony took place at St. Augustine's Catholic church, Fulham Palace road, Hammersmith, London W2. The nuptial mass was read by the Rev. Thomas A. Daly, O.S.A., a friend of the couple.

T/Sgt. Kohler is a member of a service squadron which repairs and maintains P-51 Mustang Fighters. He is with the 8th air force at a fighter station in England, where he has been stationed more than a year and a half. He enlisted in the army air corps on Jan. 5, 1942.

His bride graduated from the London schools and is a graduated comptrometrist. She is employed in a large London office as a comptrometrist. She is making her home at 65 Niton street, Fulham, SW 6, London, with her parents until such a time when she can join her husband and come to the states with him to live.

For her marriage the bride wore a burgundy suit with hat and accessories to match. She wore a corsage of orchids and carried a white prayer book, a gift from Rev. Daly.

The bride was attended by Miss Grace Wade, a close friend, as maid of honor. She wore a gray suit with accessories to match and wore a corsage of roses. The bridegroom was attended by Staff Sgt. Maurice R. Barton of Manchester, New Hampshire, a close friend and buddy of the groom. After the ceremony a luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents and a reception was held for relatives and friends. The couple received many beautiful and useful gifts.

BEISBIER-WESTERMAN

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Beulah M. Westerman, daughter of the Edward J. Westermans of Route 2, Kewaskum, and Byron W. Beisbiere, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Beisbiere of near St. Killian, Campbellsport route, 1, St. Bridget's church at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, Aug. 22, before the Rev. F. C. La Buwi.

The bride wore a lovely gown of silk marquisette fashioned with a long scalloped train. Ruffles cascaded from the waistline to the hem of the skirt. Her fingertip veil was of silk tulle and fell from a beaded tiara. She carried a shower bouquet of white asters centered with an orchid.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Florence Hartmann as matron of honor and the Misses Corrine Wahlen and Genevieve Murphy as bridesmaids. The matron of honor was attired in a peach chiffon gown made with a full skirt ruffled at the bottom. The neckline and sleeves were enhanced with soft, full ruffles. Her headpiece was of peach net illusion and she carried a bouquet of blue larkspur and pink roses. The bridesmaids wore identical frocks in aqua and carried colonial bouquets of lavender asters and pink roses.

Vincent Schmitt attended the groom as best man, while Harold Westerman acted as groomsman. Cyril Westerman and Ray Beisbiere ushered.

Following the ceremony a reception for 95 guests was given at the home of the bride's parents. The young couple left on a wedding trip and will be at home after Sept. 1 on the bridegroom's farm near St. Killian.

The bride graduated from the Kewaskum high school and before her marriage was employed at the Amity Leather Products company in West Bend.

RODENKIRCH-AUSTIN

Miss Violet Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Austin of Barton, became the bride of Richard Rodenkirch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rodenkirch of Route 1, Kewaskum, in a nuptial ceremony read at St. Michael's church, St. Michaels, on Saturday, Aug. 12, at 11 o'clock by the Rev. R. G. Kastner.

The bride wore a white wool jersey suit with navy blue accessories. With her ensemble she wore a corsage of staphanotis and swansonia. Gertrude Kaiser attended the bride as maid of honor. She was dressed in a beige frock with brown accessories. Her corsage was also of staphanotis and swansonia.

Marvin Kaiser served as best man for the bridegroom.

A wedding dinner was served to the bridal party at the Republican hotel in Kewaskum. At 7 o'clock supper was served to guests at the home of the bride's parents.

The newlyweds are now at home on the groom's farm near Boltonville. Prior to her marriage the bride was employed as a timekeeper. She is a graduate of the Bruce high school.

Arthur Peterman is Injured in Accident

Arthur Petermann of the town of Auburn, Campbellsport, Route 2, sustained serious injuries in an automobile accident occurring shortly before 10 p. m. Tuesday on Highway 28 about five miles west of Kewaskum. Petermann, who is employed at Theresa, was on his way home from there when his car left the road and ran into a ditch.

Petermann, who was driving alone, was found in his badly damaged car at the side of the highway by George b. the Herman home and a local physician was called. The injured man was given first aid and rushed to St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend, in Miller's ambulance. There it was found that he sustained a brain concussion, injured vertebrae bone in his neck and lacerations of the face.

Considerably shaken in the mishap, Petermann was unable to remember clearly what happened but thought his car was sideswiped by another vehicle.

CAR COLLIDES WITH TRUCK

A car owned and driven by A. P. "Tony" Schaeffer of this village was damaged when it was struck by a truck at an intersection on Highway 27 about three miles west of Belgium on Wednesday night of last week. The vehicles approached the intersection from opposite angles and the truck ran into the rear part of the Schaeffer car while crossing the highway. Tony was thrown out of the car and knocked unconscious but was not injured otherwise. His wife, who was a passenger, escaped injury. Tony was able to drive the car home on its own power.

HOLY TRINITY CHURCH

All children of the congregation who expect to attend the parish school this coming term, accompanied by a parent, registered at the school at 1 p. m. Tuesday. Children under six years of age cannot be accepted until they have passed a test proving their ability to do the required work.

Because of transportation difficulties it was not possible to take the altar boys and choir members of the parish and St. Bridget's mission to the state fair this year but instead some treat will be arranged for them after school opens.

Masses Sunday at 8 and 9 a. m. The collection will be given to the establishing of a fund to acquire a more suitable library for the school. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament after the last mass.

ST. BRIDGET'S MISSION

HAVE ALL RENEWALS AT THIS OFFICE TEN DAYS BEFORE EXPIRATION DATE.

NOTE: Those truck owners who did not call for this quarter's ration before August 1st will be notified by the Milwaukee office of the ODT. DO NOT bring this letter to the local ration board. You must answer this letter and get in touch with Milwaukee ODT office, NOT the ration board.

TIRE INSPECTIONS

Trucks must have regular tire inspections. Do not destroy any inspection records for cars which might have as they are always required for gasoline and tire applications.

The demand for grade 1 passenger tires far exceeds the supply of tires and quota available for August. Only B and C holders essential to the war effort will be considered for tires. The truck tire situation has become extremely acute. Truck drivers must check air pressure and overload at regular intervals. Abuse of any kind will disallow new tires. Large-size truck tires will be processed at the district office. Send the applications to this office and we will forward them to Milwaukee. Be sure inventory slips are sent with first application. They can be obtained from inspection stations.

All people working in an office or plant having an organized transportation committee must have a member of this committee sign their application on the reverse side before they are eligible for any tires.

STOVES

No application needed for stoves used over 60 days. All certificates must be endorsed by applicant.

All stove applications must be filled out completely including statement by stove expert, or we cannot issue a stove purchase certificate.

Auburn Officer Entered France With Invasion Forces on D-Day; Lost Life July 26, Week After Being Awarded Bronze Star for Bravery in Action

Lieut. Delbert R. Backhaus, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Backhaus of the town of Auburn, residing several miles north of Kewaskum, was killed in action in the fight in France on July 26, his parents were officially informed in a telegram from the war department received last Friday, Aug. 18.

Lieut. Backhaus entered France with the invasion forces on D-Day, June 6. A week before being killed he was awarded a bronze star for bravery in action. The last letter from him was received on July 25 and at the time he wrote the letter he was in a very cheerful mood.

The young man was mustered into the army July 14, 1941, and was sent to Camp Wolters, Tex., where he received 14 months of training. He then attended officer candidates' school at Fort Benning, Ga., graduating there Dec. 7, 1942. Lieut. Backhaus was then transferred to Camp McCoy, Wis., where he was stationed until October, 1943, when he left for overseas. He arrived in Ireland and saw service there and in England before going into France on the first day of the invasion.

Delbert was born in the town of Auburn Sept. 27, 1918, in the same year that World War I ended. He was educated in the public schools and graduated from the Kewaskum high school with the class of 1936. Later he enrolled in the University of Wisconsin Department of Agriculture short course, from which he graduated in 1939. Following his graduation he was employed in Green Lake county until the time he entered the army.

Lieut. Backhaus was married to the former Arlene Aas of Westby on Sept. 3, 1943, at Camp McCoy. Surviving are his widow, his parents and three sisters, Dorothy and Vernice at home and Beatrice (Mrs. Carl Drey) of Sheboygan Falls. His father is town clerk of the town of Auburn.

Lieut. Backhaus was a member of St. Lucas Evangelical Lutheran church in this village and a special memorial service was held Sunday night for him. Another courageous young man has fallen on the field of battle, made the supreme sacrifice in the valorous defense of his country to preserve the liberty and freedom we all cherish. The sympathy of the community is extended to the survivors in their great sorrow.

Air Evacuation of Wounded Takes Its Place With Sulfa Drugs and Blood Plasma as One of Modern Military Medicine's Greatest Life-Saving Plans

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
Released by Western Newspaper Union

HE WAS one of the doughboys who jumped down from a landing barge to the sandy shore of Normandy on D-Day.

A chattering machine gun in a German pillbox, that hadn't yet been silenced, sprayed lead across his path and he slumped to the ground. There was a cry of "Medic! Medic!" and a moment later skilled hands were binding up his gaping wounds.

The next morning four planes (unarmed C-54s) swooped down near the field hospital where he lay. Land mines were exploding 150 yards away when the first two ships landed. Out from these planes sprang two flight nurses—Marjean Brown of Columbus, Ohio, and Suella Bernard of Waynesville, Ohio. "All right, soldier, you're going to take a little trip with us!" smiled one of them.

Within two hours they had gathered up not only this GI Joe but dozens of other desperately wounded, loaded them into the planes which were soon winging their way back to England. Two weeks in an American army hospital there and then on June 29 a huge Air Transport Command plane settled down on an airfield on Long Island, N. Y. It was just 19 hours since it had left the British Isles.

A day's rest in a hospital near New York—then aboard a plane again. And today this GI Joe is convalescing in an army hospital out in the Colorado Rockies, near enough to his home so that Dad and Mom and Sis can come to see him get well. It's several thousand miles from the place where his blood dyed the sands of the French coast to this place where both his body and mind are being healed of the wounds of war but this cycle of life, near-death, then life again, is encompassed within the time span of less than four weeks!

The reason for this can be summed up in two words: air evacuation. No wonder that Maj. Gen. David N. Grant, air surgeon for the army air forces, was able to declare recently that the army's system of air evacuation of its wounded takes its place with sulfa drugs and blood plasma as "one of the three greatest life-saving measures of modern military medicine!"

Because of air evacuation, men are alive today who would have perished in the jungle of Makin island or on the Anzio beachhead, and personnel of the air transport command's ferrying division, who have participated in the air evacuation of more than 7,500 war wounded, have no hesitancy in indorsing the air surgeon's statement.

It's a part of the army's policy of handling wounded soldiers through a progressive system of unit hospitalization which has been developed to a high degree under the direction of Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the army. Because of front-line treatment given American soldiers, more than 97 per cent of the wounded brought from battlefields to evacuation hospitals have been saved.

Once the wounded have been treated, they must be sent to hospitals far from the scene of battle where they can rest and recover and, of course, the quickest way to get them there is by airplane. Part of these wounded have been flown from foreign theaters of war to their homeland and thousands of them have been flown from hospitals on the coast to hospitals near their homes where they can convalesce and benefit in spirit from visits of family and friends, for it is a basic army policy to get its wounded soldiers as close to home as possible for the convalescent period.

In a recent report on the handling of men wounded during the invasion of France, Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, chief surgeon of the European theater of war, stated: "There has not been the slightest hitch in the chain of evacuation. As a result of the speed with which these wounded were evacuated from Normandy, the condition of the casualties on arrival in the United Kingdom has been surprisingly fine." To that comment might be added the fact that approximately 4,000 sick and wounded have been returned to this country aboard Air Transport command planes, part of them over regularly scheduled transport services operated by the ferrying division of ATC.

GOING HOME—A soldier is carried aboard a plane operated by the ferrying division of Air Transport command and in a few minutes will be flying to a hospital in the vicinity of his home. Flight surgeons inside the aircraft supervise the job.

Many hops are as long as 12,000 miles. Only one patient among those evacuated by the Air Transport command has been lost as the result of air travel.

Cooperation Does It. Close cooperation between the several organizations of the army makes possible successful air evacuation of the war wounded. The combat air forces outside the United States, the foreign wings of Air Transport command and various air commands in the United States, notably the First Trooper Carrier command, have done experimental work on the problem. In 1943, a total of 173,527 sick and wounded patients were evacuated by American military aircraft throughout the world, ATC carrying all those returned to this country.

Here is the way evacuation from the combat areas is accomplished: Suppose the scene is Anzio beachhead. Medical corpsmen have toiled across the bullet-swept area, given a guy named Jim emergency attention, then inched back with him to the beach where he receives more extended treatment. At a nearby clearing station, the flight surgeon classifies the patients. He determines that this soldier, just arrived from the front, has a serious head wound which requires immediate surgical attention. When the transport plane flies in, Jim is among the outgoing patients.

The medical air evacuation units transform the plane from its troop or cargo-carrying mission and do it quickly lest snipers or bombs disable the aircraft. Litter equipment is installed in three or four tiers and as many as 24 patients are loaded. Two men carry each litter to the plane, two more place it in position inside and a third man inside fastens it in place. In an emergency, the flight nurse in the plane must use untrained personnel for this work and occasionally she takes the place of a loader.

When the plane takes off, the flight nurse is in medical charge. Only in extreme emergencies does the flight surgeon accompany her. A surgeon checks, when possible, during the refueling stops. Otherwise the flight nurse and a surgical technician, an enlisted man with non-commissioned officers' rating, handle the patients. The plane is equipped with an ambulance chest which is a small trunk containing bandages, medicine for the relief of pain, equipment for administering intravenous medication and blood plasma also is on the plane.

Once in the air, the flight nurse is in complete charge, aided by a trained staff sergeant. Aloft she handles any emergency and does anything a doctor would have to do—except operate. Already the men have afloat from Anzio were feeling better. Removed from the din of battle, their shock condition improved. Jim, for example, mustered sufficient interest in life to ask where he was going. Six hours after he left Anzio he was in a base hospital in North Africa undergoing a delicate brain operation.

The evacuation chain does not end at the base hospital overseas. Efficiency and medical factors suggest that the men be kept moving rearward until they are as close to home as possible. Part of the wounded, of course, come home by ship. Patients for the trans-ocean flights are selected by flight surgeons.

Four Kinds of Patients. Patients' general fitness for air travel is the deciding factor and they are grouped into four medical categories: (1) Mental patients requiring security accommodations en route; (2) Hospital litter patients who must remain in bed, services rendered by other individuals; (3) Ambulance patients requiring medical care en route from other individuals; (4) Troop class patients needing little medical care en route who can take care of themselves, even in emergencies.

Air evacuation increases enormously once the patients have reached coastal receiving hospitals in the United States, either by aircraft or by surface shipping. The same system of screening is employed at the coastal receiving hospitals that was described previously as prevailing overseas. Urgency of the patients' conditions, together with their susceptibility to air transportation are primary considerations.

Sergt. Walter A. Smith of Springfield, Mass., can testify that the army doesn't stint on its resources when one of its wounded needs special attention. On May 9, 1944, he was wounded in action in Italy. He reached the United States June 14 on a conveyer and entered Baker General hospital at Martinsbury, W. Va. An examination by the staff there revealed that immediate surgical attention was necessary. Ashford General hospital at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., had the specialist for the type of operation required.

Two mornings later a ferrying division plane was at Hagerstown, Md., when Sergt. Smith arrived by ambulance. He was placed aboard with a full crew making certain that the military patient received every attention. By noon that day, the sergeant was on the operating table at Ashford General hospital receiving the best surgical care that the army has.

7,000 Patients Moved. Ordinarily ferrying division planes engaged in air evacuation are completely utilized with all space occupied. Within the continental United States, the evacuation by air of the army's war wounded is the responsibility of the ferrying division of the Air Transport command. Since this responsibility was assumed more than 7,000 patients have been moved without injury to any of the personnel involved.

"The air evacuation of sick and wounded personnel of the armed forces was pioneered by the medical services with the AAF and it can be considered as one of the greatest life-saving measures in modern military medicine," Lieut. Col. Andrew G. Oliver, surgeon of the ferrying division comments. "Its rapid and comfortable delivery of the patient to a hospital where he or she will get the best (and most specialized) treatment; or to another closer to his home, where his convalescence will be shorter and far more pleasant, has become a great morale factor among our returning heroes."

Thus justice is being served when the aircraft, so terrible an instrument of death and destruction, can be converted to such humanitarian functions as air evacuation.

Flight Nurses Who Evacuate Wounded Are Unsung War Heroines

Important members of the air evacuation crews which fly the wounded to the rearward zones is the group of volunteers known as flight nurses. They contribute impressively to the morale of Johnny Doughboy as he flies toward hospitals for treatment or convalescence. The public generally does not recognize the dangers faced by the flight nurse working in combat areas. She is flown to the scene in a heavy transport plane which carries paratroopers, airborne infantry, tow gliders or carries supplies into the combat zone and takes the wounded to safety on the return trip. Because of its mission on the outgoing trip, the unarmed outgoing aircraft can not be marked with the protective Red Cross.

Air Medal Ribbon Winner
MORALE BUILDER—Typical of the flight nurses assigned to the ferrying division of the Air Transport command is Lieut. Gerda H. Bouwhuis of Kalamazoo, Mich. In this picture she is giving a wounded soldier some attention that is obviously much appreciated. Lieutenant Bouwhuis wears the Air Medal ribbon in recognition of heroic services performed in the South Pacific war theater.

recalls vividly seeing from a fox hole, with about 20 other people and plenty of rats and mosquitoes, a Jap bomber attack on Guadalcanal. "Every time our fighters would shoot down a Jap," she says, "cheers would go up from each foxhole like an American college football game." Army nurses continued to distinguish themselves, on the Normandy beachhead, as they have in every other theater of war, and flight nurses were right up at the front,

THE PRIVATE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Harriet:
Well, I just seen that list of magazines what has been approved by the army for GIs and I feel better now knowing what it is okay for me to be pretending I am reading. The list is twenty or one comics and this is the first time I ever knew there was so many published. Movie magazines is a bad second and I am glad to find National Geographic and House and Garden on the list on account of I do not want to laugh all the time.

Right between something called Blue Beetle and Big Shot Comics what do you think I find? Better Homes and Gardens! If that ain't a running broad jump in any library at home or at the front what have you? I think at first maybe Better Homes and Gardens has put in a funny supplement but it ain't.

Sandwiched in between a magazine called Gags which the army thinks we should read and Human Torch which Washington has a idea GIs can see without being done no harm is Good Housekeeping, which looks funny in that location. Well, I would like to see a GI concentrating on Good Housekeeping over here and get caught by his top sergeant.

Right in between Click, Captain Midnight and Dare Devil comics is Country Gentlemen and I never seen no travel or looking so uncomfortable. Harper's is listed surrounded by Flash Comics, Funny Animals and LaF. The Saturday Evening Post is sandwiched in between Radio Hit Songs and the Scientific American which I started once but did not finish on account of there is not much sex interest.

You could knock me over with a V-mail postscript when I find Outdoor Life on the list. That is a fine magazine but if there is one thing a soldier does not need to look up it is the facts about living outdoors. Physical Culture is there, too, I guess in case I do not know what to do for exercise.

I see Field and Stream surrounded by Downbeat, Flash Comics and Famous Funnies but I forgot to bring my fishing rod to the war and I don't get much time off to dig bait. Fortune is listed in between Front Page Detective and Funny Animals.

But what mixes me up is that I find Ladies Home Journal and the Woman's Home Companion on the list sent to me. Maybe it is just a gag. I have been shifted around a lot in this war but I have not been made a WAC yet.

Well, I hope you are fine and you ain't no sorerrier than me that the bomb missed Hitler.

All my love,
Oscar
P. S.—Send me copies of Wow Comics, Colliers, the American Medical Journal, Ten Story Western, Nifty and Harper's Bazaar I want a all around library.

Tojo—Almost nothing; that's the trouble. As a naval chief you're pretty bad.

Shimada—Nobody seems to rate you much higher as a military leader, I notice.

Tojo—It isn't so much a question of blame. Didn't you listen to the radio? The cabinet is merely being renovated.

Shimada—I like that word renovated. It makes me feel less embarrassed.

Tojo—Yes, but being renovated with an ax isn't so comfortable.

Shimada—I wonder if we could have been wrong about those decadent Americans.

Tojo—I've been wondering for months. We are away behind schedule with what we were going to do to them.

Shimada—Weren't we to have been making peace in the White House by this time?

Tojo—Why bring that up? It only makes me feel worse.

Shimada—And it all looked so easy at Pearl Harbor!

Tojo—Didn't it!

Shimada—What we did to their fleet there!

Tojo—And what their fleet there has since done to us!

With Ernie Pyle at the Front Bombers March Across Sky as Crack Troops 'Breakthrough'

Ernie Joins Infantry and Finds Men Tops and General Real Leader

By Ernie Pyle

IN NORMANDY—The great attack, when we broke out of the Normandy beachhead, began in the bright light of midday, not at the zero hour of a bleak and mysterious dawn as attacks are supposed to start in books.

The attack had been delayed from day to day because of poor flying weather, and on the final day we hadn't known for sure till after breakfast whether it was on or off again.

When the word came that it was on, the various battalion staffs of our regiment were called in from their command posts for a final review of the battle plan.

Each one was given a mimeographed sketch of the front line area, showing exactly where and when each type bomber was to hammer the German lines ahead of them. Another mimeographed sketch of the front line area, showing exactly where and when each type bomber was to hammer the German lines ahead of them.

Officers stood or squatted in a circle in a little apple orchard behind a ramshackle stone farmhouse of a poor French family who had left before us. The stone wall in the front yard had been knocked down by shelling, and through the orchards there were shell craters and tree limbs knocked off and trunks sliced by bullets. Some enlisted men sleeping the night before in the attic of the house got the shock of their lives when the thin floor collapsed and they fell down into the cowshed below.

Chickens and tame rabbits still scampered around the farmyard. Dead cows lay all around in the fields.

The regimental colonel stood in the center of the officers and went over the orders in detail. Battalion commanders took down notes in little books.

The colonel said, "Ernie Pyle is with the regiment for this attack and will be with one of the battalions, so you'll be seeing him. The officers looked at me and smiled and I felt embarrassed.

Then Maj. Gen. Raymond O. Barton, Fourth division commander, arrived. The colonel called, "Attention!" and everybody stood rigid until the General gave them, "Carry on."

An enlisted man ran to the mess truck and got a folding canvas stool for the General to sit on. He sat listening intently while the colonel wound up his instructions.

Then the General stepped into the center of the circle. He stood at a slouch on one foot with the other leg far out like a brace. He looked all around him as he talked. He didn't talk long. He said something like this—

"This is one of the finest regiments in the American army. It was the last regiment out of France in the last war. It was the first regiment into France in this war. It has spearheaded every one of the division's attacks in Normandy. It will spearhead this one. For many years this was my regiment and I feel very close to you, and very proud."

The General's lined face was a study in emotion. Sincerity and deep sentiment were in every contour and they shone from his eyes. General Barton is a man of deep affections.

The tragedy of war, both personal and impersonal, hurts him. At the end his voice almost broke, and I for one had a lump in my throat. He ended:

"That's all. God bless you and good luck."

Then we broke up and I went with one of the battalion commanders. Word was passed down by field phone, radio and liaison men to the very smallest unit of troops that the attack was on.

There was still an hour before the infantry were to move. There was nothing for the infantry to do but dig a little deeper and wait. A cessation of motion seemed to come over the countryside and the brown-clad inhabitants—a sense of last minute sitting in silence before the holocaust.

The first planes of the mass onslaught came over a little before 10 a. m. They were the fighters and dive bombers. The main road running crosswise in front of us was their bomb line.

They were to bomb only on the far side of that road. Our kickoff infantry had been pulled back a few hundred yards this side of the road. Everyone in the area had been given the strictest orders to be in foxholes, for high-level bombers can, and do quite excusably, make mistakes.

We were still in country so level and with hedgerows so tall there simply was no high spot—either hill or building—from where you could get a grandstand view of the bombing as we used to in Sicily and Italy. So one place was as good as another unless you went right up and sat on the bomb line.

Having been caught too close to these things before, I compromised and picked a farmyard about 800 yards back of the kickoff line.

And before the next two hours had passed I would have given every penny, every dime, every hope I've ever had to have been just another 800 yards further back.

Our frontlines were marked by long strips of colored cloth laid on the ground, and with colored smoke to guide our airmen during the mass bombing that preceded our breakthrough from the German ring that held us to the Normandy beachhead.

Dive bombers hit it just right. We stood in the barnyard of a French farm and watched them barrel nearly straight down out of the sky. They were bombing about half a mile ahead of where we stood.

They came in groups, diving from every direction, perfectly timed, one right after another. Everywhere you looked separate groups of planes were on the way down, or on the way back up, or slanting over a dive, or circling, circling, circling over our heads, waiting for their turn.

The air was full of sharp and distinct sounds of cracking bombs and the heavy rips of the planes' machine guns and the splitting screams of diving wings. It was all fast and furious, but yet distinct, as in a musical show in which you could distinguish throaty tunes and words.

And then a new sound gradually draped into our ears, a sound deep and all encompassing with no notes in it—just a gigantic faraway surge of doom-like sound. It was the heavies. They came from directly behind us. At first they were the merest dots in the sky. You could see clots of them against the far heavens, too tiny to count individually. They came on with a terrible slowness.

They came in flights of 12, three flights of a group and in groups stretched out across the sky. They came in "families" of about 70 planes each. Maybe these gigantic waves were two miles apart, maybe they were 10 miles, I don't know. But I do know they came in a constant procession and I thought it would never end. What the Germans must have thought is beyond comprehension.

Their march across the sky was slow and studied. I've never known a storm, or a machine, or any resolve of man that had about it the aura of such a ghastly relentlessness. You had the feeling that even had God appeared beseechingly before them in the sky with palms outward to persuade them back they would not have had within them the power to turn from their irresistible course.

I stood with a little group of men, ranging from colonels to privates, back of the stone farmhouse. Slit trenches were all around the edges of the farmyard and a dugout with a tin roof was nearby. But we were so fascinated by the spectacle overhead that it never occurred to us that it might need the foxholes.

The first huge flight passed directly over our farmyard and others followed. We spread our feet and leaned far back trying to look straight up, until our steel helmets fell off. We'd cup our fingers around our eyes like field glasses for a clearer view.

Salt Worth Its Weight In Gold in Some Areas

A few cents buys a packet of salt in this country. Its very abundance here makes it difficult for us to realize its value to mankind. The fact is that salt is one of the most precious products in the world, and in desert areas it is literally worth its weight in gold. Intrinsically, it is even more valuable, for gold cannot buy health, but salt can maintain it.

The famous traveler, A. Tschiffely, who rode horseback from Buenos Aires to Washington, says that when journeying in desert regions, acting on the advice of natives, he always carried a bottle of lemon juice mixed with salt water to save him from fatigue.

Rome Has Monument to King Costing $5,000,000

Rome's monument to Victor Emmanuel II, king of Italy from 1861 to 1878, is the costliest memorial of its kind in the world, says Collier's. Part of what marble and ennobled with numerous sculptured groups and reliefs as well as a great equestrian statue of the king, this massive structure occupies almost a square block. It is as high as an 18-story building, cost $5,000,000 and was under construction for 26 years before its dedication in 1911.

Some of Brave Fliers Crash With Planes

Someone shouted that one of the planes was smoking. Yes, we could all see it. A long faint line of black smoke stretched straight for a mile behind one of them.

And as we watched there was a gigantic sweep of flame over the plane. From nose to tail it disappeared in flame, and it slanted slowly down and banked around the sky in great wide curves, this way

Department of Wartime Distorted Values—The other day a soldier offered to trade a French former three horses for three eggs. The soldier had captured the horses from the Germans. The trade didn't come off—the farmer already had three horses.

And—at one of our evacuation hospitals the other day a wounded soldier turned over 90,000 francs, equivalent to $1,500. He'd picked them up in a captured German baggage train.

But before it was done there were more cries of, "There's another one smoking and there's a third!" Chutes came out of some of the planes. Out of some came no chutes at all. One of white silk caught on the tail of a plane. Men with binoculars could see him fighting to get loose until flames swept over him, and then a tiny black dot fell through space, all alone.

And all the time the great flat ceiling of the sky was roofed by all the others that didn't go down, showing their way forward as if there were no turmoil in the world.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Husbands, Take Notice!

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

"Marty is quarantined for the measles, and the thermometer at 82... and Dirk saying, 'Bathroom windows crying for five minutes of soap and water.'"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"YOU'VE been harping for months on the wartime duty of wives to keep the home front happy," writes Daisy Chalmers, a spirited young matron of Springfield, Mass., "why don't you sometimes blow up the men for the ridiculous demands they are making on us, their stiff-necked insistence that everything shall be exactly as it always was, war or no war, and their calm expectation that a house without servants will run just as smoothly as a house with a good cook and a nurse in it!"

"I have three adorable, noisy, destructive little boys," the letter goes on. "Dick wanted boys and boys only, and fortunately I was able to oblige. They are healthy, I am healthy, I am a good cook, with, I think, a fairly even and amiable disposition. Until just before Paul, the youngest, was born, I had a domestic helper of sorts. She was old, slow, stubborn, but she was absolutely faithful, scrupulously clean, and she loved the babies for their very naughtiness. We paid Josie $15 a week. Dirk's income is $6,000 a year—doesn't it sound big? But it isn't as big as it once was. And whatever it's worth now, it won't pay for a maid."

Cramped in Apartment.

"We live in a six room apartment, up two flights of stairs. Of course, the children can't go out without me, and when they do all four of us, including Paul, now a year old, have to be dressed for the street, the coach has to be bumped out from the locker under the stairs, pillow and covers dumped into it, and Paul established in state. Crossing a street with a baby buggy and boys of two and four is no fun; getting the groceries home is no fun either. We have no dumbwaiter, but the delivery boy pants up our stairs twice a week; everything else I carry myself, sometimes including Jack, or even my eldest, Marty."

"Now, I love all this; I'm equal to it; I'll get through. But what upsets me is my husband's mild, sweet, incessant hinting and criticizing of everything I do. Our part of town is dirty and dusty, grit comes in and Dirk runs his fingers over polished surfaces and shows me the grit."

"All this distresses Dirk terribly. 'Would you mind touching up your hair before we sit down, dear?' he says. 'May I have a spoon that isn't quite so sticky?' He asks if the boys have been out in the glorious fresh air; scowls when I say only for an hour's marketing. They ought to have more of an airing than that. 'But I've been washing today, Dirk,' I say. 'I've got almost a hundred pieces out on the line.' Let's have no excuses, Daisy," he says gently. 'I'm not criticizing, I'm only disappointed.'

"When I had influenza he took care of us all for three days, then he got a nurse in at eight dollars a day," the letter goes on. "He was furious; the house was never clean"

QUIT NAGGING

With laundry and delivery, and practically every other sort of service curtailed, with domestic help almost impossible to get, a mother of three little boys is bound to be very busy. She is willing to do everything she can, but necessarily she must neglect her housekeeping a bit.

Everything would go along all right, excepting that her husband is one of those neat, efficient souls who want cleanliness and order, no matter what the situation is. He will rub his finger over the piano, and hold it up to show the dust, or he will hint that the drapes need washing. While he is polite and even sweet, he is constantly nagging. These people are well off. They have an income of $6,000 a year, and live in a six-room apartment, and are accustomed to a rather high standard of living.

or orderly or quiet, and he spooned cold cereal into the boys and went out for his own meals. Once, afterward, I asked him what he thought of my job. He merely observed that if he had it to do he would so organize it that there wouldn't be all that confusion.

War Conditions.

"I'm a college graduate, intelligent, enthusiastic, but I won't stand too much of this! Please write an article saying that unless men understand the infinite difficulties of housekeeping these days, the endless job that is that of a wife and mother, the complications of no-laundry, no-tailor, no-household help, no-deliveries, marriages will continue to go on the rocks."

"What started all this," Daisy concludes, "was something that happened this morning. Marty is quarantined with measles, the thermometer at 82, the baby refusing his breakfast, and Dirk putting his head in the door after he had left to say sweetly 'Bathroom windows crying for five minutes of soap and water!' Please write something that will make these exacting husbands ashamed of themselves."

Dear Daisy, I say in answer, your letter seems to me to be as good an argument as any I could think up. Dirk isn't the only husband who has grown exacting and critical in these tense days. It's partly a nervous reaction to the fearful events that are shaking the world, and as such ought to be treated with patience and kindness. But at the same time a lot of husbands ought to wake up and take stock of themselves. If she's sweet, if she's distractedly and gaily doing her best, if she can cook, if she loves her children, home, and husband—then for the duration try to regard her as she regards you, a high-spirited, finely-trained, courageous individual who is managing to get through the most convulsed and agonizing period of all history with a minimum of nerve-center damage.

Removing Mildew Stains

Fresh mildew stains will often come out if you simply wash the material with soap and water and put it in the bright sunshine. If this doesn't work, try covering the spots with lemon juice and salt, and placing the garment in the sun. Or you can use sodium perborate as a bleach on white or colorfast fabrics, 4 tablespoons of sodium perborate to a pint of soapy water. Clothes must be well rinsed in cold water, and then hung in the sunshine for at least four hours.

Dust Skin With Sulphur to Discourage Chiggers

Bites of those pesky little mites known as chiggers should be treated promptly. Delay means itching, scratching and sometimes infection, warns Miss Fannie Brooks, health education specialist, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

In some sections of the country chiggers are in the grass and woods practically all the warm-weather season. Entomologists say that it is difficult to protect completely from chigger attack. During the worst of the chigger season they suggest a daily dusting of children's bodies with fine sulphur. Dusting sulphur on the clothing and legs of adults will also give much protection. When children have been exposed to chiggers, give them a hot bath as soon as possible afterwards. Lather them all over with a good mild soap, rubbing into the flesh with a coarse wash cloth. Then rinse well to dislodge any chiggers that may be on them.

County Agent Notes

CONTROL SECOND BROOD COOLING MOTH

According to the orchard authorities of the College of Agriculture, the hot dry weather of the forepart of August has resulted in an unusually heavy flight of the second brood of cooling moth. Orchardists which received no spray since the first week in August will benefit by another lead arsenate spray between Aug. 24 and 30. This spray should be applied only to the late or winter varieties. Use two pounds of lead arsenate to 100 gallons of water.

DELEGATES WANTED TO ATTEND CONSERVATION CAMP AT DELLS

The 10th Wisconsin 4-H conservation camp will be held at the Wisconsin Dells on Sept. 7, 8, 9, 10. Washington county is entitled to send four delegates. The only cost to you is $1.00 for incidentals. All remaining costs are paid for by donations from private sources. Transportation will be provided by the extension department. Any 4-H club leader is eligible to attend. If interested, apply for the chance to attend with the county extension office, post office building, West Bend, before Aug. 30.

POISON FOR GRASSHOPPER CONTROL

Poison for the control of grasshoppers may be obtained through the agricultural extension office. About one-half pound of poison is ample for one acre. This, when mixed with 25 pounds of bran or sawdust and moistened so a crumbly mass results, should give ample coverage per acre. Detailed directions for preparing the poison bait are provided. Farmers must mix what bait they expect to use. There is no charge for the poison.

ORDER CERTIFIED SEED FOR 1945 PLANTINGS NOW

Inquiries for certified seed for sowing next spring are already being received by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

E. D. Holden, agronomist at the college, says that is especially true of Veland oats, which has won popularity in many states. It also applies to the new spring Henry wheat which was developed by and has just been released by the college.

Farmers wishing to plant foundation seed stock which must be certified and sold for seed purposes should place their orders for such seed now.

ERADICATE NOXIOUS WEEDS

August and September is a good time to eradicate noxious weeds like field bindweed, Canada thistle, quack, poison ivy, and others by using sodium chlorate. The use of chemicals for weed eradication should be restricted to small patches. From two to four pounds of the chemical should be applied per square rod. Individual applications may be made on scattered plants. Larger areas should be planted to thickly growing crops like alfalfa or by clean cultivation for the balance of the season.

BARLEY—A POOR CROP IN 1944

Barley was a poor crop in almost every county in Wisconsin this year. Just why this crop failed to come through when other grain crops were normally good is hard to say. Barley fields that were planted early and where the soil was not too wet and the seed treated before planting came through best. Farmers who can spare a few acres for cash crops should not become discouraged by this year's failure of the barley crops. 1945 may bring better results.

SCHOLARSHIPS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

A number of scholarships are available to prospective students who contemplate attending the farm short course during the coming winter season. Any prospective student desiring to qualify for such a scholarship should make application with the agricultural extension office, post office building, West Bend. These scholarships carry a value as high as $75 each and this money will pay for about one-half of the cost of attending the farm short course. Their purpose is to aid deserving young men in training themselves for future leadership in rural communities.

RED CLOVER SEED PROSPECTS GOOD IN WASHINGTON COUNTY

Prospects for the production of a good crop of red clover seed in Washington county never looked any better. The second growth in most fields has made a good recovery but is not too rank for seed production. Seed is being set in older blooms right now and if warm and fairly dry weather prevails for the next few weeks most of the heads should have a good set of seed. County Agent E. E. Skallskey suggests that with enough hay it will be good business to save at least enough of the second crop to produce plenty of seed for your needs, and also that there will be a good market for any surplus seed that you may harvest.

When some of the heads in fields with a good bloom have turned brown, examine them by tearing them apart to see if green seeds have formed at the base. This will enable you to determine whether or not the yield will justify leaving the field for seed. An old guide that has long been used for fields with a good stand and bloom is that ten seeds per head should give a yield of one bushel per acre, twenty seeds per head should give a yield of two bushels, and thirty seeds a yield of three bushels or more. At this stage of development the field can still be cut for hay if there isn't a satisfactory seed set.

Seed is badly needed—seedlings in 1945 are dependent upon seed harvested in 1944. Wherever feed supplies permit, let's save the promising second crops for seed.

E. E. Skallskey, County Agent.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Yanks Set Pace in Paris Drive; New Pacific Blows Loom as U. S. Bombers Strike at Philippines

Released by Western Newspaper Union. (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

EUROPE: Fronts Afire

The whole French battlefront quivered to the clatter and clatter of gunfire as U. S. and British forces pressed their twin offensives against the German lines, with American troops reported approximately 50 miles from Paris.

While mechanized columns speeded the U. S. advance upon the former French capital from the west, British and Canadian forces were making slower progress to the north below Caen, where strong enemy armored formations hacked away to contain the onslaught while still other large concentrations defended their exposed flank.

As the Allied drive on Paris rolled on through good tank country, U. S. forces in Brittany threw in all the weight of their superior gun and tank fire to reduce the coastal ports of Brest, Lorient and St. Nazaire, which would open up important supply lines from the Atlantic ocean.

With every man, woman and child in East Prussia mustered for civilian war service, and Russian forces

Tough German paratroopers, who faced the American onslaught at St. Lo, developed a deep respect for U. S. fighting qualities. According to one of their reports, which fell into American hands, they declared: "Enemy artillery is distinguished by the accuracy of its fire and maneuverability. Employment in depth, changes of positions, self-propelled guns—during infantry attacks close to the front lines—is the doctrine followed. A great number of observation planes makes it possible . . . to fire effectively even on small targets."

Speaking of U. S. fire and phosphorus bombs and high explosive ammunition, the report revealed: "They cause stomach trouble and headaches. . ."

lurching on the threshold of their "holy soil," Nazi armies fought bitterly to hold off the Red forces advancing on that Baltic province of Germany.

Farther to the south, the Nazis countered Russian advances upon the former Polish capital of Warsaw with equal stubbornness, with the Reds seeking to relieve the stalemate by switching their attack from the front of the city to the northeast in an encirclement attempt.

On the southern end of the long eastern battlefield, the Russians pushed within 75 miles of the German industrial province of Silesia, while other Red forces moved within 27 miles of the Czechoslovak border in the towering Carpathian mountains, where the rugged terrain was suitable to Nazi defense.

As U. S. and British troops poised for their assault on the enemy's "Gothic Line" in the hills north of the Arno river in Italy, Polish and Italian units harassed the Germans on the eastern Adriatic end of the battlefield.

With the Allies girding for an all-out drive on the latest enemy mountain fortifications, their problems of supply over earthy, choky roads in the rugged country were relieved by the restoration of the seaports of Livorno, Civitavecchia and Piombino.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

CANNED FRUIT PRICES: Government support prices on canned peaches, pears, apricots, fruit cocktail and fruit mix packed in 1944 will be set at 86.4 per cent of the area average ceiling prices for the industry, or 86.4 per cent of the canners' gross civilian ceiling prices, whichever is lower, according to an announcement of the War Food Administration.

LAUNDRY STOVES: Coal-and-wood burning laundry stoves were removed from rationing restrictions August 15. Gas ranges with non-metallic outside back or side panels were also freed.

BOND VALUES: Total value of all the bond issues listed on the big board of the New York exchange passed 100 billion dollars for the first time in history. The exchange reported that there were 1,065 bond issues listed on July 31, with a par value of $101,559,136,057, and a market value of $102,234,657,208. The average price was 100.71 on that day.

PACIFIC: Battle Plans

"It's good to see you, Doug," said the President upon greeting General MacArthur at Pearl Harbor, and on that note did the nation's chief executive open a three-day war conference with Pacific military and naval leaders on the development of new offensives for the unconditional surrender of the Japanese.

Heralding things to come in the Pacific theater, American Liberators raided the Philippines for the first time in 27 months, striking at airfields on Mindanao island, while giant B-29s flew over Japan itself to rain fire-bombs on the shipbuilding center of Nagasaki, and attacked oil refineries at Palembang in the East Indies.

Completely restored after the attack of December 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor was bristling with acres of planes, tanks and other battle equipment as Mr. Roosevelt inspected installations during the conferences. As a result of these developments, the President said, Hawaii was no longer an outpost of U. S. defense, but "one of our rear areas."

WEATHER: Rain Needed

As another heat wave struck parts of the Middle West, drought conditions were intensified east of the Mississippi river, with crop growth faltering in many sections.

According to the weather bureau, Kentucky may harvest only 50 per cent of a corn crop, while condition of the grain was spotty in Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio, due to heat and moisture deficiency. In southern Illinois, soybean growth was poor to good, while extensive failures of potatoes, pastures and gardens were reported in Ohio.

West of the Mississippi, however, corn prospects were excellent, with promise of a banner crop in Iowa where the drought was broken in the south, and a record harvest in Nebraska, with one more good rain.

OIL: Allied Accord

The withholding of raw materials from prospective aggressor countries to contribute to postwar peace loomed as a result of an oil pact signed between the U. S. and Great Britain, which conditioned future distribution of the product on supervision of an international organization to maintain world security.

Calling for availability of oil to all peaceable countries at fair prices and the orderly development of resources without competitive wastes, the pact envisions the future organization of an international oil commission to advise governments on how they should produce and sell the product.

Other provisions of the pact seek to assure the recognition of the principle of equal opportunity in obtaining concessions.

APPLES: An average crop of apples is predicted for the year by members of the International Apple Association. About 123 million bushels will be harvested, according to the association. Of these, 10 million bushels will go to the armed forces, and 36 million will be sent out as lend-lease food. Maximum prices have been set for the 1944 crop.

POWDERED COFFEE: Practically all of the nation's output of powdered, or soluble coffee for the remainder of the year will be taken by the armed services, the war department says. The quartermaster corps will buy about 80 per cent of the supply for the army, navy and marine corps, and the remainder will be bought by the Red Cross for shipment to war prisoners.

NO RENT HIKE: Birth of a baby in a family does not give the landlord an excuse to raise the rent on the claim that the number of occupants in the residence has increased.

RATIONING: New Values

In an effort to control consumption, OPA removed utility grades of beef and lamb from rationing, restored pork loins, hams and canned fish to the lists, and increased the point values of cheese.

OPA's removal of utility grades of beef from rationing was prompted by the large movement of such classes of cattle to market, while the elimination of points on lamb was intended to spur the consumption of such meat.

Restoration of pork loins and ham to rationing, on the other hand, resulted from a seasonal decline in hog marketing. Canned fish was put back on the lists because of short supplies throughout the country.

Increases in point values of such cheeses as cheddar, colby, cream, neufchatel, creamed cottage, Swiss, Italian, Munster and limburger were necessary to slow down their movement into consumer channels.

WAR PRODUCTION: Big Speedup

Army officials continued to stress the need for an increase in the production of tanks, trucks, big guns and ammunition in view of greater demands from the flaming battlefronts.

Latest army bigwig to call for more production was Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, director of material for the army service forces, who declared that schedules for the last half of 1944 called for a 77 per cent boost in output of aircraft bombs over the first six months.

Production programs for heavy artillery ammunition will be up 110 per cent; heavy artillery weapons, 23 per cent; light-heavy and heavy-weight trucks, 40 per cent; heavy-weight trucks, 123 per cent, and tanks, 50 per cent.

New Oddities

Birth of quadruplets to the second wife of a 75-year-old artisan of Amalfi, Colombia, brought the number of his children to 47. He had 30 by his first wife and now has had 17 by the second.

Craving excitement, 19-year-old Mary Phillips of Trimsaran, Wales, stowed away on a landing barge which took her to the bustling Normandy beachhead.

After spending two weeks on the beachhead amid the rumble and roar of guns and bombs, Miss Phillips returned to Britain, none the worse for wear.

When Sheriff Claude Sullivan of Murphy, Idaho, decided to close his store after suffering injuries in an automobile accident, the town which serves as seat of Owyhee county has left with only a billiard parlor as a place of business.

Ann Dvorak and Leslie Fenton. Fenton was wounded in the now historic commando raid on the port of St. Nazaire. He holds the distinguished service cross, presented to him by King George personally at Buckingham palace.

When Fenton departed for England he was directing at M-G-M. He had just finished production on "Arouse and Beware," starring Wallace Beery. His wife was playing in a Warner's picture. She could not accompany him, but followed on the next boat. She made arrangements for relatives to take over the running and management of their prosperous 40-acre San Fernando valley walnut ranch, which they purchased shortly after their marriage in 1931.

On arriving in England she enlisted in the M. T. C., Britain's mechanized transport corps, and drove an ambulance under bomb fire during the Nazi blitz.

Good Job Well Done When Fenton was invalided out of the service and ordered home, Ann, her patriotic duty in that phase of the war effort ended, accompanied him as nurse.

Producer Lester Cowan was about to film the Broadway stage success "Tomorrow, the World," with Fredric March and Betty Field. A story Fenton understood and warned to. Fenton signed to direct this production.

Ann, her home in order and her garden growing, signed with Republic and is currently doing a starring role in "Flame of the Barbary Coast."

Full Appreciation "It's almost like the war's over, coming back here," they say, "after living in England, and we don't mean this as any criticism, merely observation. The war is so close in England. For a long time it was right overhead and at your front door. No one knew what would happen next."

When Fenton first came to the screen from the legitimate stage, he played the neurotic young soldier who went berserk in "What Price Glory?" From this he gravitated to sinister roles through the gangster era, which began with "Public Enemy No. 1," with James Cagney; "The Hatchet Man," with Edward G. Robinson, and similar underworld films.

He was given a part in "The Strange Case of Molly Louvain," opposite Ann Dvorak, whom he'd never met. They fell in love, and in 1931 they were married.

Change of Character He and Ann went to Europe on their honeymoon. There he played romantic roles for a year in European productions in London and Berlin.

When Fenton returned from this trip he decided to forsake acting and try directing. Ann meanwhile went back to Warner's and resumed her contract.

Fenton retired to the obscurity of a shorts director at M-G-M and after a two-year apprenticeship was given a contract to direct features. "Stronger Than Desire," with Walter Pidgeon, and "The Golden Plover," with Lew Ayres, were among the productions he made.

He'll continue directing and Ann will continue acting.

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

AS ONE of the first, possibly the first, young couple to return from active service on the fighting fronts, Hollywood's Director Leslie Fenton and his actress wife, Ann Dvorak, are providing a pattern for thousands of other couples who will shortly be returning to pick up the threads of their personal and professional lives which they dropped when they heard the call to duty.

Fenton and his wife departed for England early in 1939. He served as commander of a British PT boat patrolling the English channel and waters off the coast of Scotland,

Washington Digest Capital Answers Urgent Appeal for Farm Help

Political Bigwigs, War Workers, Service Folk, Pitch In to Aid in Production of Orchard and Field Crops.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building Washington, D. C.

Washington, the town of bureaucrats, of desk-soldiers and sailors, the place that tells you what to do and "don't do nothin'" itself but "jes' keeps rollin' along."

I know that's what you say about us. But when it comes to volunteering for the emergency farm labor program—how about your national capital?

Believe me, Washington is in there pitching. I use the figure of speech advisedly for the man who rallied a corps of volunteer farm help which will probably amount to fifteen thousand citizens of the District of Columbia by the time the peach and apple harvest is at its height, is an old ball-player. Not so old at that for Johnny Jones, formerly of the Philadelphia Athletics, farm boy from Coatsville, Pa., and now of the department of agriculture extension service, is practically fresh off the diamond. He quit baseball in 1936 and is now back as near to the calling of his fathers as he could get.

Jones' job is dealing with the farm-help shortage and I interrupted him while he was in batting for a ian help either. As elsewhere there are the boys' and girls' camps which run all summer; there are other vacation camps where grown-ups stay a week, get a dollar and a half a day expenses, and earn 35 cents an hour, or at peach-picking as much or more than $3.50 a day at 10 cents a basket, if they are handy. Some earn $10 a day at that rate but they are old hands.

Postwar German Underground Seen There is nothing new to Europeans about an "underground movement" which might be defined as a group of persons, united by a group, which persists as an opposition to a particular government with the purpose of eventually overthrowing that government.

With the defeat of Germany it can be taken for granted that two German movements will begin to burrow, perhaps retiring to "previously prepared positions" in the language of the communiques of a retreating army. They are the Junkers and the Nazis.

At the present writing, for the first time in history, military control of Germany has been wrested from the hands of the junker-generals. They did their best to act on their ancient adage: "We as a caste, must always live to fight another day." A lost war to them is an incident and considered merely a temporary set-back on the road to eventual world-domination. To that end they planned a peace before their ranks were too greatly weakened or their resources exhausted.

But the Nazis stepped in, wrecked their plans. As a caste they will probably be completely destroyed, their estates and therefore their means of livelihood removed. What many people do not know is that the German high command had their own private funds, voted by the government, which they managed themselves for the benefit of the army.

Whether the Nazis have obtained this, remains to be seen. But in any case, you may be sure the burning patriotism of those junkers who survive will keep an underground organization alive.

And then comes the Nazis, with a younger but equally fanatical loyalty to national socialism. Their underground organizations we know are already prepared.

Meanwhile there is a strong suspicion on the part of many persons in Washington that a third breeding place for totalitarian militarism is being cultivated right here in the Western hemisphere.

In the past weeks I have received several letters and one telephone call protesting against the action of the state department in breaking relations with Argentina. So far as I could tell the persons who communicated with me were perfectly honest. They all stressed the known fact that the chief characteristic of the Argentine attitude is traditionally "pro-Argentine," nationalists. The inference was that the government was not anti-North American or pro-Nazi-fascist, and should be let alone.

As a matter of fact, aside from Argentina's own aims there seems to be evidence that the German Nazis and perhaps some of the German Junkers are transferring their wealth to Argentina.

There is not the slightest doubt that the Buenos Aires government has aided and abetted in the spread of Nazi-fascist propaganda and is that, at this very moment looking sympathetically on the activities of Nazi agents within its borders. The army has long been indoctrinated with Prussian militarism through its officers who have been trained in Germany.

Unless the United States takes the lead in applying sanctions in the form of a strict embargo on Argentina, we may find ourselves with a full-fledged war of aggression on our hands right here in our own hemisphere.

In the case of Argentina we may be witnessing not only the growth of a powerful military dictatorship but one which will be used to nourish and sustain the very forces which we have spent our blood and wealth to suppress in Europe—an "overground" underground.

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR

By THEODORE PRATT
W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Forty-four-year-old Wilbert Winkle, who operates a repair shop in the back of his home, is notified by his draft board that he is in 1-A. He breaks the bad news to his domineering wife, Amy. The night before leaving, Mrs. Winkle tells Wilbert she is worried that he may take up with other women but he tells her she has nothing to worry about. On arriving at camp Mr. Winkle is given his physical, and to his great surprise and dismay, is accepted. He takes the oath of enlistment, is given instructions in bed-making, and later given so many "shots" he cannot remember how many. He is sent to Camp Squibb, a thousand miles from home, where he meets Mr. Tinker.

CHAPTER VII

"Me," said Mr. Tinker, "I feel good. I was going to join up anyway." After a moment he growled, "My kid brother was at Midway. He was a fier. Yeah, he got killed there. After the family squeezed every nickel for years sending him to college and on."

"Oh," said Mr. Winkle. "Me," Mr. Tinker went on, "all I want to do is kill me one Jap. I don't want to shoot him. I just want to get him between these." He pushed out two great hairy hands and clenched each into a fist. "That'll be for the kid. The rest I'll get will be gravy."

Mr. Winkle wished that he had only a small part of the plumber's lust for vengeance. "If I don't get to the Japs," proposed Mr. Tinker, "and you do, will you strangle one for me?"

Mr. Winkle swallowed. His throat felt dry. "Why, yes—certainly," he promised.

"Don't go back on me," Mr. Tinker searched Mr. Winkle with his beetling gaze. But he didn't give Mr. Winkle the mouse-look.

In appreciation, Mr. Winkle said, "I won't go back on you."

As if he weren't quite sure Mr. Winkle would keep to his word, or was capable of keeping to it, Mr.

and he breathed hard. Then, abruptly, the muscled exercise Sergeant would call: "Hey, you there—John!" Mr. Winkle realized he was being addressed.

"What's your name?" the exercise Sergeant demanded.

"Winkle," replied Mr. Winkle quite as if his nameplate, pinned on his chest, did not announce the fact.

"All right, John," he was advised, "when you feel you're three-quarters done, stop. That's an order. You know what an order is, John?"

Mr. Winkle said that he did. "So I don't want to waste time picking up any guys who pass out," the Sergeant instructed him.

Mr. Winkle noticed that he was the only man told to take it easy. Mr. Tinker wasn't told anything, but kept right on with the others, even though he puffed.

At bayonet practice he could find no satisfaction in jabbing at the swinging stuffed figure. He simply could not conceive of himself ever thrusting that wicked blade into another human being, no matter how much a German or a Jap deserved it.

He shuddered when it was explained that it was often difficult to withdraw the blade from a body, and sometimes it had to be twisted out.

Certainly he didn't lunge at the figure the way Jack Pettigrew did. Everyone knew that when Jack thrust his bayonet into it, he was sticking Freddie with it. When Freddie sliced with his bayonet, you could take your choice whether he thought of the figure as Jack or the Alphabet. Mr. Tinker swung viciously, and the figure then became a Jap. But Mr. Winkle had no ferocity at all.

The Lieutenant was patient with him, explaining, "Some day you may be in the position where you either get the other fellow first, or he gets you. Think of it that way. Now, try again. Jump at it! Lunge! Kill it!"

Mr. Winkle jumped. He lunged. He killed it with a blow that hardly penetrated the figure. The Lieutenant shook his head and called the next man.

The bayonet and exercise incidents gave Mr. Winkle an attack of imagination, the first he had had since being made into a soldier. He became convinced that he could never compete with the others. He wouldn't be as hardened as they, he wouldn't be sufficiently trained, and this would be his own fault. When the test came on the battlefield, he would not be in condition, nor would he be enough of a killer even to protect himself.

He saw himself in retreat before the enemy. He couldn't keep up. Finally he could go no farther. Mr. Tinker and Jack offered to carry him, but Mr. Winkle wouldn't have it, knowing they would be caught with him. He made them go on, leaving him, and then an enemy soldier appeared. The man raised his rifle high, the bayonet gleaming.

Mr. Winkle explained that it was to fit each man into work according to the best of his abilities and experience.

"You mean," asked Mr. Tinker, "they may be might not make me into a shooting soldier?"

Mr. Winkle said there was a possibility of this, especially in view of Mr. Tinker's background of being handy with tools.

"Not a plumber?" Mr. Tinker asked in alarm. "I won't be no plumber."

It was Mr. Winkle's opinion that the Army had all its plumbing taken care of by civilian contractors. It would be in some other mechanical capacity.

Mr. Tinker looked glum. "Then how am I going to get me a Jap?" He held up his hands and stared at them as if he were going to fall them. "I knew I shoulda told that guy I take down my jalopies and put them together again."

"Well," Mr. Winkle consoled him, "it isn't decided yet."

He didn't confess his fear that it was. He had heard the stories—and met a few examples—of the Army habit of learning that a man was a baker and then promptly making a truck driver out of him. Thinking of himself as a round peg, Mr. Winkle was sure that he would remain in the square hole of training for the infantry in which he now found himself fastened securely.

Mr. Tinker scowled. Something was bothering him. "I didn't like all them questions they asked," he said. "What's the idea of all that stuff?"

Keep Cool With Shrimp Salad in Aspic (See Recipes Below)

Keeping Cool

There are still warm days ahead through late summer and early fall, and plenty of opportunity for keeping cool.

Formerly it was thought that one should eat extremely lightly in such low-calorie salads with hardly enough nourishment for the body, and cold drinks. Now we recognize the necessity of using enough proteins in the diet to keep the body in good condition, and also know that a cup of hot soup will be as cooling as the coolest drink.

Naturally our proteins may be in the form of salads for we like them especially well in the summer. Here is a good one using a shrimp in aspic, both cooling and nutritious:

Lemon Aspic.
(Serves 6)
2 tablespoons gelatine
1/4 cup cold water
1 1/2 cups hot water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 cup cooked or canned shrimp
1 cup chopped celery
Chicory or other salad greens
Sprinkle gelatine into cold water. Add hot water, salt, sugar and lemon juice. Cook then add shrimp and celery. Chill in ring mold. Unmold on crisp salad greens. Fill with:

*Shrimp Salad.
(Serves 6)
1/2 cup cooked or canned shrimp
2 tablespoons french dressing
1 cup diced celery
1 cup lettuce, cut in pieces
1 cup peas
Mayonnaise to blend
Marinate shrimp 15 minutes in french dressing. Combine with remaining ingredients. Garnish the lemon aspic with lemon quarters and shrimps.

Do you ever feel that potato salad has a flat taste? This can easily be remedied by marinating the cubed potatoes in french dressing to give them an extra flavor.

Creamy Potato Salad.
(Serves 6)
4 cups cold, boiled potatoes, cubed
3/4 cup french dressing
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 medium onion, minced
3/4 hard-cooked eggs
1/4 cup diced celery
3 slices bacon, fried and crumbled
6 sliced radishes
1/2 cup mayonnaise or boiled dressing

Go-Togethers: Some foods served together are inspired combinations. You'll like:

Roast loin of pork with minted applesauce, creamed onions, brown bread and coconut cake.

Curried Chicken with boiled rice, corn muffins with fig jelly or jam, or quince honey; lettuce salad; date and nut pudding with cream.

Beef in casserole, with potatoes, carrots and green beans; apple salad; bread and butter pickles; bread with plum jam; peach crumble.

He was informed by the Alphabet that he hadn't hit any part of the target. On successive tries he didn't do much better, but he learned to keep his eyes open and sight.

A rifle was bad enough, but when the day came that the mysteries of a machine gun were revealed to them, the palms of Mr. Winkle's hands perspired copiously and his stomach crawled.

Nevertheless, he carried out his duty. Sitting before the weapon, the white cloth of the target became a blank, with the horizontal, perpendicular, and slanting boxes marked on it as erasable as far as he could see them. He was so hot when he squeezed the trigger that his glasses became clouded and he might as well have been blind.

The gun jumped, spitting out a hail of lead. A great vibration was in his hands. It felt like a series of sharp electric shocks. He let go hurriedly.

Except for the chatter of other guns down the line, there was silence.

The Alphabet filled it. "You plowed up plenty of ground," he told Mr. Winkle. "Now see what you can do to the target."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Using a combination of natural and synthetic rubber in the post-war period may result in automobile tires that will establish new high marks for longevity, according to a B. F. Goodrich chemical technician. He cites the big mileage returned from Goodrich synthetic tires, made in 1940 and composed of both types of rubber, as the basis for his predictions about post-war tires.

Another reason for tires for essential transportation! At the beginning of last year, 85,168 school buses were in service transporting 4,258,738 children over 1,383,091 miles of one-way route.

Decorator's Diary Brings News Of Postwar Washers and Color

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN
Monday—Seems odd to remember that George Washington was once a colonel in the British army—under George II. And in that capacity he wrote stout protests to Governor Dinwiddie of Virginia on how the Americans were treated or rather mistreated. Governor Dinwiddie toned the original letter down before passing it on to England, but curiously enough the original too strongly worded letter has recently turned up in London among some old papers and has been acquired for the collection of Washington relics at Sulgrave Manor house, the home of the Washington family in England.

Tuesday—American boys in Rome must be sightseeing on their time off. . . discovering among other ancient wonders the grandeur of the baths built by the Roman emperors. And learning that bathing has a regal history!

Wednesday—Postwar washers will undoubtedly be automatic—the kind that do all the work. You'll just dump in the dry clothes, set the dials for time and temperature, adding soap or water softener. Then switch on the machine and it fills itself with water, washes the clothes, rinses them through three waters, twirls them damp dry ready to hang up, turns itself off!

Thursday—Color is one of the least expensive and most effective elements in decoration. So put it to work. The easiest and safest range of colors for the amateur to work with are the pastels a little above middle value, not too pale, not too deep. In deciding on a color, be sure to see it in both daylight and artificial light and don't depend on a tiny sample of it—if it's a paint tint for the wall, have the painter swash it over a big piece of cardboard, let it dry, then study it in the different parts of the room.

FLYING FORTRESS ON WHICH LIEUT. HAFEMANN IS CO-PILOT CRASHES, SINKS IN GULF; CREW MEMBERS HURT BUT ESCAPE IN RAFTS; OFFICER NOW ON LEAVE

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hafemann received a letter from their son, 2nd Lieut. Bernard Hafemann of MacDill Field, Fla., last Thursday informing them that he suffered injuries when the B-17 (better known as the Flying Fortress) on which he is co-pilot crashed in the Gulf of Mexico one night recently. The Fortress sank 30 seconds after hitting the water but the members of the crew, thoroughly trained crew succeeded in getting out of the plane and into life rafts in the short time, although nearly all were injured. Hafemann, who was confined to the hospital several days with other members of the crew, arrived home on Thursday of this week on a 10-day leave, which originally he was supposed to have been given the day after the crash. Before coming here he spent two days at Rockford, Ill. with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schreiber and family, and his mother, who spent the past week there. Lieut. Hafemann paid this office a call Thursday and told us all about the crash. He informed us that this was the first time on record that none of the crew lost their lives in a crash of a B-17 in the water. Bernard is almost completely recovered from his wounds and told us that he expects to leave for England after his leave. He may fly to that country. Following is Lieut. Hafemann's letter to his parents received last week, in which he describes in detail his experiences in the crash:

"Dear Mom & Dad:
"Sorry I didn't write for so long but I wasn't in condition. We had an accident a couple weeks ago which all goes to show you that flying isn't dangerous at all.

"We were on a cross country flight from MacDill Field to Key West and back. We got to Key West O. K. and on the way back we were forced down into the Gulf of Mexico about 45 miles north of Key West. This put us about half way between Key West and Miami. It is 88 miles between them. We hit the water at about 9:00 p. m. It was quite a jolt but not as bad as I had figured. We all got out O. K. and into the life rafts. It seemed like it took an hour but it was only about 20 seconds. The plane sank in less than a minute. We had saved part of our first aid equipment so I went to work on the boys. As co-pilot I am the crew doctor.

"Two of the fellows had had cuts over their eyes and another fellow had a chunk out of his leg. If somebody would have told me an hour earlier that I could bandage somebody with cuts like that I would have told them they were crazy but it didn't affect me a bit. The radio operator and engineer, who were in my boat along with the ball turret gunner, got sick but the turret gunner, who had the worst cut, watched while I bandaged it. He had plenty guts.

"I didn't think I was cut at all until the engineer (Gerry) told me I was bleeding above my eye. After looking things over I found I had a small cut over my left eye and my right hand was cut up pretty bad. I was all out of bandages so I sprinkled some sulfanilamide powder on them. We started paddling, four men in each boat, and between paddling and keeping an eye on the fellows, who were cut up I kept pretty busy. At 4:00 a. m. we pulled alongside a patrol boat (coast guard) that was anchored for the night.

"Those boys really treated us swell. It was only a small boat so they didn't have a doctor on board but they had plenty of bandages etc. and I really had fun for about an hour. After getting fresh bandages on all the boys I decided to look myself over and discovered I had three deep gashes in my right knee and about 50 small cuts on other parts of me. They took us into Key West and a doctor looked us over. About an hour after we got to Key West our field had a bomber down there to take us home. They stitched my knee and hand up and stuck me in the hospital for a couple days to rest up. We are all out now and they have taken my stitches out. The ball turret gunner (Burch) is still in with his bad leg.

"We were supposed to leave here tomorrow for a ten-day leave but they are keeping us here for a while now. I don't think we will ship out with our old bunch.

"They are trying to determine what made the engines quit on us and that is what is holding us up right now. After this is over we will get a leave and then head for England. I am grounded right now until my leg is completely healed.

"I figured I had better write and give you the whole story in case they would have something in the paper up there. We only had an eight man crew that night. Two of our boys were sick and weren't along.

"I lost most of my flying clothes but they will give me new ones if we start flying again. I lost my billfold which was the worst blow. I had about $150.00 in it and a lot of my papers.

Love, Bernie"

S/SGT. HOWARD SCHMIDT SERIOUSLY ILL IN CHINA
Mr. and Mrs. George H. Schmidt received a telegram from the war department at Washington, D. C. on Tuesday morning advising them that their son, S/SGT. Howard Schmidt, was seriously ill in a hospital in China, where he is stationed. The message was not dated and did not state the nature of his illness. However, mention was made that he had been ill since July. In letters received recently by the Schmidts from their son, Howard wrote that he expected to return home soon.

PFC. HAROLD BUNKELMANN SUFFERS WOUNDS IN ITALY

In a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bunkelmann, Pfc. Harold Bunkelmann wrote that he was wounded in Italy but failed to mention how or where he was injured. He sustained a cut on his head and a sore neck, ribs and chest and wrote that it was beautiful in England and first. He was confined to a hospital somewhere in Italy for 10 days and is now at a rest camp. When last heard from before being wounded Pfc. Bunkelmann was stationed somewhere north of Rome. He has a new A.P.O. number, which is 512.

TERLINDEN, SCHMIDT AND FELLEZ NOW IN ENGLAND

Three more Kewaskum soldiers who left for unknown destinations several weeks ago have arrived safely somewhere in England. Mrs. Tillie Schaefer received a letter from her son, Cpl. Sylvester "Tiny" Terlingen, on Thursday morning informing her that he had reached England. "Tiny" wrote that it was beautiful in England and that he made a few "bucks" on the boat on his way across, also that he hopes the Statesman will catch up to him soon. Mr. and Mrs. Ted Schmidt received word the same noon of their son, Pvt. Robert Schmidt's arrival there. Friends were notified that Pfc. Arnold Fellez is also now in England. The three were among 10 Kewaskum servicemen who were transferred to unknown destinations at about the same time recently. Word has not been received as yet of the arrival of the other men.

KOCH LEAVES FOR OVERSEAS DESTINATION; IS PROMOTED

Harry E. Koch, yeoman third class, U. S. coast guard, son of Mrs. Arthur Koch, has been transferred to an unknown overseas destination. He was transferred recently from Charleston, S. C. to Alameda, Calif. and now to an address in care of the fleet post office, San Francisco, Calif. Harry telephoned his mother here Friday, informing her that he was leaving for overseas duty, also that he had been promoted to yeoman second class. His wife is residing at her home in Chicago at present.

KEWASKUM SAILORS MEET IN HAWAIIAN ISLANDS; WRITE

A letter was received from Edward Pankelman, M.M. 2/c, son of the Louie Bunkelmans, and LeRoy Muckerheide, S 1/c, son of the Miles Muckerheides of Route 2, both of whom are stationed in the Hawaiian Islands. The boys wrote when they met recently and spent their first liberty together. The letter took only four days in getting here. The boys write:

U. S. Navy
Aug. 14, 1944

"Hi Don & Bill:
"Bunkey and I have returned from our first liberty together in this beautiful paradise of the Pacific as the people back home would say.

"We have been stationed a short distance from one another. It has been but recently that we met. It sure was a great surprise for both of us, especially to meet in this forgotten island of the Pacific.

"This is the first time we had liberty or the same day. So we spent the greater part of the day at the beach. Coming in on a wave with a surfboard was our specialty, trying to ride them as the natives of the island do. The only trouble was we usually came in minus the surf-board. Later we visited the Royal Hawaiian Hotel which is a navy recreation center. We had a late noon chow there before going to Honolulu. Spent some time window shopping and visited several shops. One part of town is like a fair sized carnival to the people back home. The only hula girls in grass skirts are found in picture studios for servicemen.

"The first thing we knew it was three o'clock. Time to start back for liberty expires at six. Transportation back to the base was very crowded. We had to line up for hours waiting for a bus.

"We made it back in time and had our evening chow together at the base. We were talking over old times in my compartment and decided to write you a letter.

"Have to close for now. 'Bunkey' has to get to his compartment. However, we go to see each other quite often.

SCHLOSSER WRITES FROM HAWAII; MEETS ED. THELEN

Comes a letter from Pvt. Harold Schlosser, son of Mrs. Jennie Schlosser, who is stationed at Oahu, Hawaiian Islands. Harold met Pfc. Edmund Thelen, another Kewaskum man stationed at Oahu, recently. He also writes that he is attending school again and has a change in address. Here's the letter:

"Dear Bill:
"It has been quite some time since I have last written to you but things have been so changeable that a fellow don't have much chance to keep his correspondence in tip-top shape. So mine has suffered unbearably the last few months. I am going to school again.

"First of all I would like to inform you of a change in address. We have omitted the address due to censorship regulations.—Ed. note). "This occurred some time ago but I was looking forward to another change soon but so far it hasn't occurred yet.

"I also had the good fortune, while attending a Bob Hope show near Waikiki, Honolulu, to meet Ed. Thelen, a home town man. It was a thrill and a great surprise I assure you. We have met several times since then. Sure is good to see someone from the good old home town. Well, Bill, I have to close for now. Will write more later. Good luck and best regards to all.
Harold"

PFC. TECHTMAN SENDS LETTER; TRANSFERRED

Pfc. Harvey Techtman, son of the Wm. Techtmans, who saw duty in North Africa, Sicily and Italy, has been transferred from Ft. Warren, Wyo. to Ft. Robinson, Nebr. His wife is with him there. Harvey's address is Pfc. Harvey Techtman 36247033, Box 63, Ft. Robinson, Nebr., c/o Major Kercheval. His letter reads:

Aug. 13, 1944

"The Kewaskum Statesman Kewaskum, Wis.

Hello Don & Bill:

"It's been some time ago since I wrote to you last. I'm spending a quiet evening at home catching up with my correspondence.

"I've been transferred from Ft. Warren, Wyo. to Ft. Robinson, Nebraska. This is a very small post, having about 700 men. It's a cavalry post and now they are training horses and rules for pack carrying. They also train dogs for use in combat areas.

"The weather is quite hot and dry here. It rains very little and is usually dusty. There are very few crops raised.

"I'm now working as a dining room orderly and enjoy the work. Working conditions are pleasant and everything is operated very efficiently.

"My wife and I are living on the post. We have a nice apartment and it's more convenient than living in town.

"It's getting late now so I'll have to close.

"I hope I can be back in good old Kewaskum before long.

Best wishes, Harvey"

BRAUCHE'S "LOVE" FOR THE SOUTH EXPRESSED IN LETTER

Robert C. Brauchle, H. A. 2/c, son of the Dr. Leo Brauchles, a member of the naval hospital staff at New Orleans, La., sends us a letter which bears evidence that he is not in love with the South. His opinion corresponds with that of others of our boys down here. It might not be a bad idea to send the Chamber of Commerce a clipping for the benefit of our boys. Bob writes:

August 14, 1944
U.S.N.H., N. O., La.

"Dear Bill:
"Just a line to let 'ya' know I am still here in New Orleans. Since I arrived here in May I have gotten a good look at this fair city. Now I can truly say that I don't care to see any more. The city is wide open with its taverns, liquor stores and gambling joints thriving on the servicemen's money. The people in general show cold feeling toward the servicemen but sure like his money. In some instances, such as taxi fare, they try to overcharge us. They sometimes succeed by catching an unfortunate newcomer to the South.

"New Orleans has furnished me with a change of scenery. That is about all

I am getting out of my stay here. Now that I have seen some of the high spots such as its French quarters, harbor, lake shore drive, Huey Long bridge, canals, Canal Boulevard and Canal Street, I am ready to move on. Here is where the navy steps in and maybe decides for me to sweat it out a little longer.

"There are a lot of boys from Wisconsin stationed here at the hospital. We try to console each other as long as we are here but are acquiring a slight southern drawl plus a typical southern lazy feeling in doing so. I stay here much longer we will, say we say, be in a 'battle fatigue' condition at which time we will get discharges. Don't we wish we could do that!

"Oh, yes, when I talk to a 'Badger' and I say I am from Kewaskum, they look at me and wonder if I am from Wisconsin. Maybe our great little city isn't known now but there are a lot of sailors who will have heard of it by the time I get out of this outfit.

"It's just about time for the lights to go out, ending another usually hot day for me. Give my regards and best wishes to all the lucky 'Yankees' back in Wisconsin.

As ever,
Bob "Whitey" Brauchle

"P. S. Just a reminder to Pete and Tess that they owe me a letter."

Our Armed Forces and Our Voters

The National regime in power for the last twelve years have corrupted more people than has any other organization on this continent.

On the domestic front their plan takes earnings from future voters and gives it free to present day voters. The Nazis and the Nips take wealth from captured territories without compensation to the owners. Both processes are equally bad. Our armed forces are stopping it on the Foreign front. Our voters can stop it on the Domestic front by voting this year. Success to you both.

THEY'RE ALL IN THE SAME BOAT...

The Sailor, the Lady, and the Serviceman

All three are doing their best towards winning the war, and they're working hard and making many sacrifices. If our service is slower than it used to be — if you have to wait longer and can't get the luxury services that you used to, it's because we're a little short of men and materials just now. We're doing our level best to give you services as nearly like what you've learned to expect from us as we can. Remember — we're all in this together!

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The more I read about it, Judge, the more I realize the tactics and requirements of this war are as different from the one I fought in 25 years ago as night is from day."

"Yes, and I can give you an example of how true that is, Fred. In World War I the chief uses of alcohol produced for war purposes were found in smokeless powder, medical supplies and chemical warfare materials. In this war the need for this product is far more vital because it is also used as a fuel to propel torpedoes, to make shatterproof glass for airplane windshields and instrument covers, to make lacquers used in camouflage equipment and as a base for synthetic rubber needed for tires, gas masks, paratroop equipment and dozens of other things."

"Every time I think of it, Fred, I realize how fortunate we were in having a beverage distilling industry in existence when war broke out... ready and eager to convert 100% to the production of this critically needed war product. I'm mighty sure bootleggers wouldn't have been of much help."
