

400 Volunteers are Needed to Give Blood

A quota of that number has been set for the appearance of the Red Cross mobile blood donor unit in West Bend Nov. 3 from 1 to 7 p. m.

Requirements are simple; the giving a "pint to save a life," painless and simple. Age limits are 18 to 66, with consent of parents needed if under 21.

R. J. Stoltz, chairman of the West Bend blood donor unit project, said appointments were being accepted row for the November date. Appointments should be on the half hour or hour and volunteers, by making their appointments early, would be able to have their request for the suitable time filled.

From past experiences it has been found that the time of 2 to 4:30 has been hardest to fill. Stoltz stated he felt this would be a good time for housewives and farmers. Regarding farmers, the project chairman felt it would be helpful on their part if they filed their cards with neighbors who might also desire to volunteer in giving their blood.

Factory workers will be contacted at their places of employment. Volunteers may make appointments with Stoltz by writing him a post card, stating their desired time, or phone 16. A special form for those under 21 years of age, who require parent consent, may be obtained from Stoltz.

With whole blood being air-transported to Europe and plasma being used on every fighting front, the ease of transfusions in saving servicemen lives has left no room for argument—it has proven itself. We at home can prove our spirit in this fight by giving blood for those who are losing theirs for us.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

The President has proclaimed October 8-14 as Fire Prevention Week. Once again the signal has been given for a renewed offensive against our remorseless enemy, uncontrolled fire. Despite the ceaseless efforts of fire prevention authorities, fire losses have doubled in nine years, reaching a total for the past year of more than $400,000,000.

In an appeal to the American people in commemoration of Fire Prevention Week, W. E. Malinlein, general manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, says: "If America's wartime fire waste is to be reduced it will be necessary for every interested person to cooperate in a campaign to spread information about fire dangers. Fire losses increase because most people are not sufficiently interested, and they are not interested because they have not been informed adequately as to the seriousness of losses and hazards. Citizens who do appreciate, can perform a patriotic job by transmitting information to others and convincing them of the need for special efforts to reduce fire waste. To be specific, begin in your own home by locating all fire dangers there and eliminating them. Branching out from there, tell your neighbors about fire safety and get them to clear all fire dangers from their premises. Then contact fire prevention headquarters in your community and offer your services. Finally, make an effort to promote fire safety in your business. If nothing is being done there, be the one to initiate a safety campaign, for it is patriotic to save materials."

In loving memory of our dear wife, daughter and sister, Mrs. William Otten, who passed away last Thursday, Oct. 5:

Not now, but in the coming years it may be, in the better land We'll read the meaning of our tears.

And there, sometime we'll understand.

We trust in God thru all the days. Fear not, for he doth hold our hand. Tho' dark the way, still sing the praise;

Sometime, sometime, we'll understand.

In the land beyond tomorrow, There will surely be a day. When we'll once more see our loved one.

Who has only gone away. Sadly missed by her husband, Pvt. William A. Otten, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Roden and son Lloyd.

The blow was hard, the shock severe. We never thought his death so near. Only those who have lost can tell. The pain of parting without farewell. We have lost our souls' companion. A life linked with our own. And day by day we miss him more. As we walk through life alone.

Sadly missed by his wife Elizabeth and his sisters, Mrs. Emma Stark and Mrs. Ida Demarest.

The following groups were represented: 4-H homemakers, Tumble Inn, rural schools, women's clubs, P. T. A., Girl Scouts, West Bend public schools, city recreation dept., Methodist youth fellowship, Emanuel Evangelical and Reformed church, West Bend Consumer's Co-op.

SATURDAY LAST DAY FOR MAILING OVERSEAS GIFTS

Persons sending overseas Christmas packages are reminded that Oct. 15 is the final day that post offices will accept mail of this type. That date falls on Sunday, making Saturday, Oct. 14, the last day for mailing these packages here as the post office will not be open Sunday.

Due to numerous inquiries people are reminded that overseas gift packages must be of the maximum length of 15 inches, the combined length and girth may not exceed 36 inches and the package may not weigh more than five pounds. The postal department warns persons not to send perishable articles to servicemen overseas. Gifts of candy, unless it is hard candy and is packed in a tin container, should not be sent.

Most important—the Statesman asks you not to let that boy over there down. Be sure there's a Christmas package for him when the mail is passed out. It would be awfully hard to take if he were left out. Do it right away.

War Fund Drive in Washington County Set for Oct. 23-31

Chairmen Appointed and Will Meet Monday; Theo. Schmidt Vice-Chairman; Mrs. Lay on Executive Committee

Washington county will again cooperate with 10,000 other counties in the United States in raising the national war fund. This was decided at a meeting on Wednesday of this week of the executive committee of the county council of defense.

The last war chest drive in our county was made in 1942 when sufficient funds were raised to last over a two year period. No war fund drive was made last year because sufficient money was on hand to contribute our share to the USO and the many other agencies which receive support from the national war fund.

This year, however, the organizations, United Nations relief groups, war prisoners' aids, and others are called upon for increased services in every quarter. In fact, many of these war relief agencies have doubled and tripled their services since 1942. That is one big reason why the war fund drive this year is more important than ever. We have more boys overseas who are in desperate need of the help which only these agencies can give.

The drive here has been set for Oct. 23 to 31 and D. J. Kenny has been selected as county chairman. Assisting him as vice-chairman will be: Basil Peterson of Hartford and Theodore R. Schmidt of Kewaskum; L. E. Tolack, West Bend, will be publicity chairman and E. B. Ekko of West Bend, executive secretary.

The executive committee for the county is made up of the following: Armand Hauser, Hartford; Ray Stoeck, Slinger; Jos. Weninger, Alton; Laverne Schaefer and Mrs. John Schwalbach, Germantown; O. P. Butzke, Jackson; Mrs. Otto Lay, Kewaskum; B. C. Ziegler and W. E. Malzahn, West Bend; W. L. Kissel, Hartford.

Township chairmen are: Addison, Carl Endlich; Barton, Paul Cypher; Erin, John Cleary; Farmington, Hugo Hauch; Germantown, Robert Klein; Hartford, Fran Zuern; Jackson, Paul Bartelt and Alwin Schoenwaller; Kewaskum, Alfred Seefeldt; Polk, Harry L. Kissinger; Richfield, Robert Laubenheimer; Trenton, Joe Kowanda; Wayne, George Kibbel; West Bend, Orrin Peters and Peter Roden.

Village chairmen are: Barton, Walter Gadow; Germantown, Dr. R. A. Dehmle; Jackson, Melvin Gunn; Kewaskum, Carl Schaefer and M. W. Rosenholmer; Slinger, Jos. A. Gundrum and Oscar Roth.

City chairmen are: West Bend, A. C. Kieckhafer and Constance Schloer; Hartford, A. A. Hauser and Fassl Peterson.

Chairman Kenny has called a meeting for next Monday evening of all the above committee members, to organize the war fund drive in Washington county. At that time the county quota as well as the individual township, village and city quotas will be announced.

Harvesting and Shipping of Sugar Beets Under Way

The annual harvesting and shipping of sugar beets was begun last week here and is now in full swing. The beets are hauled by truck to Kewaskum from the surrounding farms where they are grown. Many carloads have already been sent on their way.

Shipping will continue for some time yet. Growing and shipping is under the supervision of Ervin Schmitt of Kewaskum route, fieldman for the company. Pete Bies again is in charge at the loading station.

A mission will also be conducted at the St. Bridget's mission church the following week, Oct. 22-25. Religious articles will be sold in the parish schools throughout the mission.

All members of the parish as well as non-members are urged to attend the daily masses and conferences morning and evening. Weekday morning services will not last more than 45 minutes so that all will have ample time to get to their jobs. Anyone unable to attend the mission at St. Bridget's is invited to make the one here. The Holy Name society will receive Holy communion in a body at the 8 a. m. mass at the local parish this Sunday and a 100% turn-out is desired.

Ernestine Biersack Weds Edward Knoeck

In a nuptial ceremony performed at 9 a. m. Saturday, Oct. 7, in St. Mary's church at Barton, the Rev. Walter read the rite which united in marriage Miss Ernestine Biersack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Biersack of the town of Barton, and Edward Knoeck, son of Mrs. Henry Knoeck, also of the town of Barton.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was attired in a gown of heavy satin with lace inserts and having a long train. Her long veil fell from a tiara of pearls and rhinestones. She carried a bouquet of white roses and gladioli.

Her maid of honor, Miss Delores Biersack, wore a gown of light blue chiffon and a headpiece fashioned of red and ostrich plumes to match her gown. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and pompons. Miss Leona Biersack, the bridesmaid, wore a peach chiffon gown with a matching net and feather headress. She carried a bouquet of yellow pompons and chrysanthemums. Miss Marie Zeltner, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Lucille Knoeck, a niece of the groom, were the junior bridesmaids. They wore gowns of aqua blue chiffon and peach chiffon respectively with matching headpieces of netting and feathers. They carried bouquets of yellow and bronze mums and pcms. Little Miss Mercedes Biersack attended her aunt as flower girl. She wore a blue taffeta frock and carried yellow mums and pompons. She had rosettes of net in her hair to match her gown.

Quality Fruit Shown at County Late Fair

Those who visited the late fair and apple show held at the fairgrounds in Slinger last Saturday afternoon saw an excellent array of plates and trays of quality apples produced by Washington county fruit growers. Never before, according to C. L. Kuehner, fruit specialist of the college of Agriculture, who served as judge, has the quality of the apples been as good as this year. Mr. Kuehner credits much of this high quality to the fact that a careful orchard spraying program was carried out in most Washington county orchards during the past summer. The apple maggot, which ruined many bushels of apples a year ago, was well controlled this year by the application of one or two additional orchard sprays during the month of August. The fruit which was covered with a thin film of lead arsenate showed but little maggot or codling moth damage.

Among the larger exhibitors of orchard fruits at the late fair were Joseph Morawetz, West Bend, Route 4; Joe Emmer, Allenton, and Elias Kopp and Henry Kohl, West Bend, Route 2. Potatoes and corn were also exhibited by 4-H club members and others.

Wednesday evening, Oct. 18, village hall, Jackson.

Thursday evening, Oct. 19, city hall, Hartford.

County Agricultural Agent E. E. Skalskey will be the principal speaker. The program will be supplemented with motion pictures on 1VA farms in Wisconsin showing the benefits of extra phosphorus and potash plant foods in the soil. An invitation to attend is extended to all farmers.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

John L. Collier, president of The B. F. Goodrich Co., believes that it will be at least two years after the first recapture of Far East rubber-producing territories before normal operations can be restored.

Every time an escort of 1,000 fighter planes goes into action on the battle front or on a bombing raid, some 50 tons of rubber are being carried into the air.

Sees Forest Conservation Need: Vast Areas of Spent Timberland Attest to Careless Practices

By LYLE F. WATTS (Chief U. S. Forest Service)

Recently, in an address before a section of the Society of American Foresters at Milwaukee, Wis., I discussed the nation's forest situation and presented the need for reasonable public control of the treatment of private forest lands.

In discussing this question of scarcity versus abundance, I want to make it clear that forestry is something more than boards, ties, cordwood and other forest products.

Seventy per cent of New England is forest land, but 75 per cent of all the wood products consumed in New England comes from outside the region.

The hurricane of 1938, followed by abnormal wartime requirements for box boards, has left only scattered remnants of merchantable white pine in central New England.

Not so many generations ago Pennsylvania was the leading source of the nation's lumber supply.

The forest survey for Virginia showed sawtimber growth in 1940 some 25 per cent in excess of drain by cutting.

The coastal plain and Piedmont regions of the Deep South contain over 150 million acres of land wonderfully adapted to tree growth but not well suited for other purposes.

contributed so bountifully to the development of the Middle West are now little more than memories.

Having looked in vain for timber surpluses in other important forest regions, we turn at last to the West coast.

The timber of Idaho and Montana was almost untouched up to 1900.

The wave of depletion is rolling through this country with startling speed. In Idaho the five northern counties were opened up first and were soon pretty thoroughly exploited.

Throughout the hill country from eastern Ohio to western Missouri, millions of acres of once magnificent hardwood forests have degenerated into mere brush cover.

Even in New England, where this huge red oak towering 130 feet up and measuring almost 20 feet in circumference was cut, there is no real timber surplus.

hardwood industries of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys must now pay heavy transportation charges for raw material from other regions in order to continue operation.

The lake states affords one of the most serious chapters of our forest history. Here are some 52 million acres of generally level forest land, favorably located with reference to important industrial and agricultural sections.

A "home front" army four million strong went into action October 1 in every city and county of the United States to back up the fighting fronts in providing essential wartime services for our own and our Allies.

In a single united appeal in some 10,000 communities throughout the United States, this army of volunteer workers, enlisted under the aegis of the national war fund and unit war chests, is seeking contributions for the support of local welfare services and to provide for the needs of the men and women of our own armed forces.

The combined objective of the volunteers in this army is contributions in excess of $250,000,000. Beneficiaries of this vast fund will be an estimated 60,000,000 people who, in some way, will be touched by the services of the federated war chests and the 22 member agencies of the national war fund.

When the operations of this vast army have been concluded, it is believed that approximately 35,000,000 individuals and family groups will have contributed to the vital work of the various organizations, both at home and in some 91 major geographical areas in six continents.

Out of every dollar contributed for the national war fund agencies, 46 2/3 cents will be spent to provide comfort, entertainment and relaxation for our own armed forces.

The expenditure of this proportion of contributions will finance the activities of the following organizations: USO, which brings a touch of home to our fighting forces in some 3,000 units from Alaska to Brazil and from Newfoundland to Hawaii; USO camp shows, which carry professional entertainment around the globe to our servicemen and women in combat zones, in base stations and hospitals; United Seaman's service, which maintains a chain of hotels on six continents and rest centers in this country for the men of our merchant ma-

Usually, the cut in the woodlot should be no more than 30 per cent in any one year, and the sooner another cut can be made from the same woodland. Cutters should keep in mind that a well-formed hardwood tree 10 inches on the stump is probably 50 years old, but would yield only a six-inch log containing four board feet, Doyle scale, or 0.09 standard cord of wood.

approximately 100,002,451 letters sent and received through its service.

During April, 1944, the peak month for both postal services, the army moved 63,638,405 V-mail letters and the navy about 10,000,000 letters.

The navy uses portable V-mail units overseas entirely, but the army does not use mobile processing stations for V-mail.

Although the armed forces and war production plants have reduced the number of boys and girls in college and high school, something like 20,000,000 youngsters this fall registered in the public elementary schools of the nation.

Of the better vision institute. "Notwithstanding this great annual investment in public education, there are still important problems yet to be solved," Mr. Julian said.

"Chief among these problems is that of conservation and protection of the sight of children. Surveys indicate that visual defects increase rapidly from grade to grade. In New York City it was found that one out of every seven children had defects in vision requiring attention."

Kathleen Norris Says: Revenge Is Sweet—But Expensive

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

When we were married I had known Bob almost a year, but it was a year of dancing and dates—no serious thought ever bothered us.

"WE WERE married in October, two years ago," writes Betty Pearson from Oklahoma. "We had four happy months in a little place near camp, in Florida, then Bobby went off to Guadalcanal. Immediately afterward I could write him that there was to be a baby; I was wretchedly sick, but very happy about it, although I have no parents and home, and was holding a defense-plant job."

"Bobby's reception of my news shook the ground under my feet and for days I was miserable and crying. He hated the idea of a child, he didn't want it; there must be something I could do to get rid of it. I wasn't awfully smart to have gotten myself into this fix. It meant the end of our dancing and fun—in short, he said everything that could make me mad and break my heart."

"The letter stunned me, but I wrote briefly and coldly that nothing on earth would persuade me to destroy my hopes of motherhood and that the first minute he got and that he would get a divorce if he wanted one. Then there was a long silence, but last Christmas he sent me a shawl, and a tiny red emerald brooch, but no message to Margaret."

"I pulled myself together, had my baby in a yard, joined a woman friend whose husband also is overseas. Her mother keeps house for us, minds my baby mornings; I am on a night shift and can take Margaret out in the afternoons and put her to bed. We all adore her, everything works smoothly, and I never have been so happy in my life."

"Now comes a letter from Bob. He has lost all but the thumb from his left hand, and is discharged. He is coming home. His letter says, 'I want you to look out for a little place for us—the kid, too, I suppose. Maybe I can get my job back, but it looks as if I'd be doing dishes and washing baby-clothes for awhile. Somehow I never looked forward to my wife's supporting me, but it's only for a while.'"

"His letter sounds so discouraged and bitter that I simply dread meeting him again. More than that of the thought of his maimed hand sickens me; I have always had a perfect horror of physical disfigurement. If I break up this present arrangement what other can I make? I've read your letters to service wives and mothers, asking them to make provision for the boys' homecoming, but I have my child to think of, too; what is best for her? Her Daddy didn't want her and doesn't know her. We have not an inch to spare, even if it would be pleasant to have a man in the house. We have one bedroom; Emily's mother sleeps on the living-room couch, and Margaret's crib is moved every night into the kitchen. This arrangement suits us perfectly, but a man's presence is unthinkable."

"When we were married I had known Bob almost a year, but it was a year of dancing and dates—

no serious thought ever bothered us. He was just one of the crowd; when he was drafted he asked me to marry him and quite naturally I did. Four months later he was gone out of my life again, and that was 18 months ago. Bob's job before the war was with a farm machinery company; he was a good salesman, popular, good-looking, amusing. But he seems to have changed completely. Please give me a long talk, agree to a divorce; go your separate ways. But I will be influenced by what you advise whatever it is."

It seems to me, Betty, that there is material for a happy outcome here, without the inescapable unpleasantness of a divorce. You mustn't be too deeply influenced by what Bob wrote you when he knew the baby was coming. Perhaps he was lonely, homesick, mosquito-bitten, weary, longing for the old serene happiness of his girl and his little Florida bungalow. Perhaps he was worrying about money; wondering how long it would be before he could get the right job after the war, take the right care of you. Perhaps it stunned him to think of you facing so great a responsibility and he wrote hastily, not phrasing his letter tactfully, not waiting to think things over. The thought of that little red cap somehow touches me. That may have been a peace offering to his little girl."

Since you have no room for him, have you some motherly woman friend who could take you, all three, into her home for a week or two? Or perhaps Emily and her mother would move out, and give you and Bob a chance to make each other's acquaintance again. You owe him a real welcome; affection and reassurance and a week of home life may work a miracle in him; if once he was "popular, good-looking, amusing," he can be so again. Try to reestablish that happy little Florida home.

Understanding One of the hard but necessary tasks growing from the war is the understanding of changed dispositions of loved ones who have endured the upsetting rigors of military life. Although seemingly changed as a result of their experiences, in reality they are inwardly quite the same, their attitude being a reflection of the hard grating of the shock of war against their ordinary dispositions. To be able to restore their sense of tolerance, to bring back their balance of judgment, is a task that will lead to a renewal of the old, happy life, the kind of life that makes this a perfectly natural world. This task is a negligible one compared to the sacrifices made by those gallant loved ones of ours all over the world.

When we were married I had known Bob almost a year, but it was a year of dancing and dates—no serious thought ever bothered us.

Removing Partition Between the Rooms

HAVE you ever thought of removing the partition between your living and dining room but feared the ceiling would sag if supports were removed? Or, perhaps you have considered the idea and decided that after all it might not always be convenient to have the two rooms in one? Here is an answer to both of these questions.

The sketch shows the partition removed to give a greater feeling of space but the main supports have been left in. A balustrade division without spoiling the light between the two rooms makes an airy effect and a draw curtain matching the living room draperies make it possible to shut the dining room off when desired.

NOTE—Here is news for homemakers. This sketch is from a new booklet by Mrs. Spears called MAKE YOUR OWN CURTAINS. This 22-page book is full of short new curtain and drapery ideas with illustrated step-by-step directions for measuring, cutting, making and hanging all types from the simplest sash curtain to the most complicated lined, over-drapery or stiffened valance. Whatever your curtain problem here is the answer. Order book by name and enclose 15 cents. Address:

No Two Diamonds Alike; Differ in Fluorescence

Diamonds are so individual that no two can be expected to react alike to radiation, says Collier's. For example, under X-rays and ultraviolet light, their fluorescence ranges from a faint to a brilliant intensity and may be in any one of various shades of blue, green, orange or yellow. Heat also causes different reactions in these gems. There are two, one colorless and one pink, in which heat produces an opposite effect. The colorless one turns pink, the remaining pink and the pink one becoming and remaining colorless as long as they are kept at a certain temperature.

Many freak accidents occurred in the year 1943, but the following are the prize ones for that period, as announced by the National Safety Council:

First Prize: To soldier who was welded in his sleeping bag when a bolt of lightning struck his zipper.

Second Prize: To soldier whose left leg was broken by a coconut which was felled by a stray bullet.

Third Prize: To Washington rancher who was tossed in the air and stripped of all clothing except shoes and eyeglasses by the spinning reel of a combine.

British Flier Hero Wins Hard Fight Against Death

Rescued by Americans, He Finally Ends in Army Hospital in England

By Ernie Pyle

(EDITOR'S NOTE: While on his way back to the United States for a much needed rest, Ernie Pyle interrupted his vacation to bring readers this special story from London, England.)

LONDON.—The story about the RAF pilot who was trapped in his wrecked plane for eight days had a happy ending. He is alive, and doing nicely. And even though he has a long hospital ordeal ahead, he is happy and grateful and the sun shines for him again.

When I returned to London from France on my way to America I began tracing the pilot's whereabouts. It took almost a week to find him. Finally I located his hospital, and I traveled halfway across England to see him. My friend, Bill Strand of the Chicago Tribune, made the long trip with me just for company.

Ernie Pyle

An RAF station wagon, driven by a WAAF, met us at the station and took us to a hospital out in the country. The lieutenant had been informed we were coming. We were ushered into a small, sunny ward, and the lieutenant began smiling as we walked through the door. He held out his left hand, for the right one was still tender from bullet wounds.

When we got him out of his plane that day almost a month ago we knew that in a very few days he would either be dead or over the hump toward recovery, because his burned back was gangrenous, and gangrene works fast.

Well, he was first taken to a clearing station of the American 30th division. He was very drowsy from morphine. When he began to come to, all he could hear was a lot of chatter in German, with voices answering to Hans, Herman, etc.

The drowsy lieutenant figured that he must be in German hands after all. But it turned out that he was hearing wounded German prisoners talking to each other.

The lieutenant's back responded to treatment. The gangrene was cut away, and it was seen that he would pull through. He was moved next day to another field hospital, and then three days later he was evacuated to England by air.

You may remember that when we got him out of his wrecked plane he asked the date and said his wedding anniversary was only three days away and he hoped to make it back to England for that. He was nearer right than we had thought. He arrived in England one day after the anniversary.

After that he was in an American general hospital for 16 days. As his wife says, he was treated like "my lord." He was their prize patient. And then he was removed to the RAF hospital where he is now and will be for a long time to come. His wife and baby come to see him twice a week.

His present condition is this: His back is still painful but is healing excellently. Unfortunately he has to lie on it, because of his shattered leg being in a rack.

His right hand, on which a bullet had cut the fingers to the bone, is out of the bandage now but is still very tender. His right leg, which was not wounded at all, is giving him trouble. Because of lying for eight days in one position, with the leg bent and pressure on certain nerves, he has lost control over his foot. He can move the leg all right, but the foot just flops around. The doctors think it will eventually be all right.

His left leg is the worst problem. As you may recall, his left foot was pinned under the rudder bar all that time, and the calf of his leg had a shell hole in it. We couldn't tell just how bad the wound was when we got him out.

Well, the wound was apparently caused by a 20-millimeter shell which exploded inside his leg. It completely destroyed about an inch of both bones in the leg. There was simply a cap there, with no bone whatever.

He has already had three operations on this leg, and he will have many more. They will have to graft in new bone and then give it months to grow and strengthen. The doctors say it will be 10 months to a year before he can walk, but that

Pyle Recalls Events During the Rescue of Flier

As he lay on his stomach on the stretcher they tied a metal splint around his wounded leg. While they were doing this I bathed his head again in water from a canteen. A soldier lit another cigaret and gave it to him. It dropped through his fingers onto the wet grass, and became soaked. I lit another one and put it in his fingers. He took a long, deep drag, and put his head down on the litter and closed his eyes. The morphine finally was making him groggy, but it never did put him out.

The cigaret burned up almost to his fingers. An officer said, "It's going to burn him," and started to pull it from between his fingers. But the pilot heard and lazily opened his eyes, took another puff, and with his thumb pushed the cigaret.

Then again he rolled those great eyes up and said to me: "What date did you say this was?" "I told him, "That's wonderful," he said. "My wedding anniversary is just three days away. I guess I'll be back in England for it yet."

He wouldn't, but everybody said sure, maybe you will.

The medics were all through. They covered the naked pilot with a blanket and carried him to the road. Everybody in our little crowd loved the man who had the heart to be so wonderful.

eventually he should have 90 per cent use of his leg. That means he will probably walk with a limp, but he will walk.

As his wife wrote me, in a beautiful letter: "We have our fingers crossed to get him home for Christmas. After that I guess he and Clare Margaret can teach each other to walk."

Clare Margaret is their baby, now nine months old. At the hospital the RAF pilot and I enjoyed living over again the climax to those eight days of imprisonment in his wrecked plane in France.

When we rescued him that day I had not wanted to badger him with trivial questions, so there were some things I didn't get straight, and other things I had straight which he was mixed up on.

I thought his leg had been wounded while he was still in the air. But he told me it didn't happen until about three hours after he had crashed, when there was shelling and shooting all around him. He said that whatever kind of shell it was made a terrific racket when it came through the plane and struck him.

The little hole in the side of the plane through which he had thrust his hand—we thought that had been torn when the plane crashed. But actually the pilot had made it himself during those eight days, trying to tear a hole big enough to get out.

He worked at it off and on with a little crowbar he had in the cockpit. He asked me if I thought he could ever have made the hole big enough by himself. I told him there wasn't a chance.

He said the worst thing in those eight days was the thirst. After the first couple of days he wasn't hungry at all, but the thirst was torturing. He said that for hours and days he visualized creeks full of water, and all the pubs where he had left a little beer in the bottom of glasses.

He had seen the columns I wrote about his rescue, and he was modestly pleased about them. He laughed at one thing I had said—that his eyes, as he rolled them there in his imprisonment, were like "big brown tennis balls."

Actually his eyes did seem like that. But in the hospital that effect had gone, and his eyes seemed of normal size. His face had filled out and his color was fine. He smoked and laughed, and his discontent was only because the hospital wouldn't let him out on leave immediately.

The lieutenant has strong leanings toward America. He didn't tell us on that day of the rescue, but he had his flight training in the states. He trained at Clewiston, Fla., and was in America from October of 1941 till April of '42.

He had been flying in combat for two years, and although his plane had often been hit, this was the first time he had been shot down. He remarked over and over again how lucky he was to be alive.

He was regretful that his wound would take so long to heal that the war would undoubtedly be over before he was well again. As he said, he would "like one more crack at those Jerries."

The lieutenant was smoking Lucky Strikes when we visited him, and he said, "You can see I've been in an American hospital." I took him a Zippo lighter as a gift, and he was very proud of it. As soon as he can use a pen he is going to write notes of thanks to the two American soldiers who discovered him.

During those eight days of anguished imprisonment he never gave up hope that he would get out. It was even stronger than hope, for he said he was positive all the way through that he would get out.

He is Flight Lieut. Robert Gordon Falls Lee, of Selbourne, Orchard road, Shaflord, Surrey.

ON THE telephone, from Beverly Hills to New York, the voices of Amos 'n Andy had all the warmth and friendliness that have made their program a top-notch for 25 years. They packed a lot of information into that five-minute interview. Their once-a-week show is five times as much work as the old daily one, said they—they work on it at their office, keeping hours like any other business men. Guest stars must be used in believable situations—when Phil Baker appears with them next month, there'll really be a show within a show. Incidentally you'll be able to see as well as hear them when television comes; they have their show practically perfected.

The greatest number of prints ever prepared on a subject of his kind has been ordered by Warner Bros. for distribution of "The Battle of the Marianas," official U. S. Marine Corps film edited by Warners for the OWI. It portrays the conquest of Saipan and Tinian islands and the capture of Guam, and is being exhibited under the auspices of War Activities Committee-Motion Picture Industry.

Wounded American prisoners captured on D-day and recaptured in a German hospital during the Brittany drive were among 9,500 soldiers who attended the first world premiere of a movie in liberated France—the film was "Casanova Brown."

For George N. Niese the tough break came first; a radio actor, he went into the army air force, suffered spinal injuries in a plane crash and was hospitalized for months. Then came the break that made up for it—RKO signed him, he made his debut in "Experiment Perilous," which co-stars Hedy Lamarr, Paul Lukas and George Brent—and in his first scene, he had to take Hedy in his arms and kiss her!

Danny Kaye's next picture for Samuel Goldwyn will be "Fancy Free," a comedy built around a military policeman who gets into romantic trouble after the liberation of Paris.

New York city policemen in the midtown sector have been officially advised that Ralph Edwards' "Truth or Consequences" is back on the air. Since some of the program's wackiest stunts are performed outdoors, Edwards found he saved a lot of time and trouble if he took the precaution of appraising the cops first.

Cecil B. DeMille's radio theater celebrates its tenth anniversary on October 16—during those ten years it's been responsible for a lot of things, one being the parade of big radio stars to the West coast. By 1936 most of its talent was coming from Hollywood, so the show moved to the movie capital. It has outlived all other shows of its type, uses more than 1,100 actors every year.

There's never been a western picture that didn't make money, yet the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences refused to include western movie-makers in a special division. So the Western Motion Picture Awards association was formed and the first week in November will make its own awards, not at a stuffy evening session, but in Gilmore stadium, with guns firing and horses galloping.

ODDS AND ENDS—Geraldine Fitzgerald has checked in at Warners' for her costarring role opposite John Garfield in "Nobody Lives Forever." . . . Mr. Raleigh, "the double talking sponsor who recently made his debut on the Hildegarde program, has been retained as a permanent feature." . . . Frankie Carlo and his orchestra have been signed by RKO for one picture. . . . At Warner Bros. they're preparing a musical picture, "Pledge to Batavia," which will be released when General MacArthur retakes the Philippines. . . . Joan Blaine has returned to the cast of "Mary Martin" after an absence of three years—in the title role.

Louise Fitch, of CBS "Light of the World," admired a pair of earrings, but thought them too expensive. So Mitzi Gould, of the same show, bought her one earring for a birthday gift, and Louise bought herself the other one.

Jay Jostyn, radio's "Mr. District Attorney," has a 14-year-old son, Jean, who never gave a hoot about radio rehearsals till recently. Then he began going to rehearsals of "Stage Door Canteen"—his father was rehearsing with Shirley Temple.

MISSING: Schickelgruber, Adolf; 54, five feet 10; weighs 167; color: extra white. Last seen with both feet off ground looking for a secret airport from which to take off to a secret destination, but lacked secret running shoes. Once known as "Fuehrer" but now answers to the name of "Fido."

Wears funny mustache, has wild look in eyes, has passion for microphone and might be found in vicinity of amplifiers. Has illusions of grandeur; labors under impression he is Napoleon Bonaparte and always acts on hunches. Proof that he has just acted on a hunch is usually furnished by the fact he is eating rugs.

Is pasty faced and suffers from halitosis, double vision, battered chins, dandruff, hardening of the outlook, inflammation of the intelligence and bunions at base of spine due to recent travel on his posterior.

Three toes on right foot missing; may have had them removed to conceal ancestry. All teeth missing except one on lower jaw which Axis failed to kick out through carelessness. Limp gives him the appearance of being crippled, but is due to fact he has been walking around in two left-footed shoes most of life without knowing it.

Is of highly nervous temperament; subject to fits of violence at mention of Yanks, RAF, etc., or renditions of "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "Russian Lullaby" and "God Save the King."

This man is wanted for trying to subjugate Europe, giving the planet its greatest headache, committing untold brutalities, being a general nuisance and trying to make a frankfurter, a loaf of pumpernickle and a plate of saurkraut take the place of Magna Charta, the Statue of Liberty and the Ten Commandments.

Is noisy, irrational and altogether unpleasant. Boasted he would never remove military uniform until he had licked the world, but will probably be found in a costume no better than that of similar bums. Can dance a jig but there is hardly a chance he will care to now.

Is a vegetarian which explains that cauliflower odor.

Spent early years as a housepainter and paperhanger and may frequent stores selling short stepladders and new soaps for cleansing overalls.

This man may be traveling with others of his type, as many are known to be in similar flight. If they are traveling in one group their detection should be simple: they will be trying to alibi their flight to one another.

Asbestos Not New; Known And Used by the Ancients
Asbestos was known to the ancients. They discovered that it was heatproof, and used it to make funeral wrappings for people of rank. When they resorted to cremation they clothed their dead in such garments in order to be able to remove the ashes for preservation.

Asbestos almost suffered oblivion during the Dark Ages, when the art of weaving its long silky fibers was lost. Asbestos is really a mineral flax, and the fibers can be spun and woven on looms in much the same way as cotton and wool. In 1871 the art of asbestos weaving was rediscovered and commercialized.

KEWASKUM TAKES ST. MARY'S SPRINGS ACADEMY 49-24

In spite of winning the St. Mary's Springs academy game on Friday, Oct. 6, by a score of 49 to 24, it was not until the end of the second quarter that Kewaskum succeeded in piling up the big margin. This conference game was played at St. Mary's Springs.

In the first quarter an unidentified 200 pound fullback from St. Mary's made two touchdowns. Of the four touchdowns St. Mary's received he made three. G. Backhaus of Kewaskum carried the ball over and Krueger converted back to G. Backhaus for the extra point, making the score 12 to 7. Koth ran 50 yards to score after a pass from Krueger and G. Backhaus scored again after Krueger passed the ball to him. St. Mary's made another touchdown, but the Indians kept their lead when Koth intercepted a pass and ran 40 yards to score, boosting the total at the end of the half 25 for Kewaskum and 18 for St. Mary's. From there on Kewaskum stayed in the lead. Seefeldt made two touchdowns and Schaub carried the ball over after a pass to Stautz in the third quarter, ending with a score of 43 to 18. St. Mary's scored again in the last quarter and Schaub scored for Kewaskum after a 50 yard run from scrimmage, increasing the margin to 49 to 24 at the end of the game.

Schaub and Braun were outstanding in the line and Koth in the back field according to Coach Mitchell.

Kewaskum played Brandon here this Friday and will play Lomira there next Friday. The Kewaskum-Brandon game was not played when the paper went to press. Placements previous to Friday were:

	Won	Lost
Kewaskum	1	0
Oakfield	1	0

The 500 Minute Men working in each drive have canvassed the county from north to south, from east to west, doing a remarkable coverage job. These minute men have worked under the direction of a community chairman in each section of our county. These community chairmen have been the leaders in this effort. They have given unselfishly of their time to do this all important job of raising money to win the war. This week and the weeks to follow, we want you to meet these men, to know them.

JOHN H. FREY is the chairman of the TOWN OF HARTFORD. John has served on the Washington County War Finance committee ever since Pearl Harbor and has done a remarkable job in every drive in the town of Hartford. John was born in the town of Hartford 66 years ago and has lived there all his life. He's a real old timer in Washington county. John is married and has two sons. Besides the fine work he is doing on war bonds, he has spent considerable time on Red Cross and salvage work, doing all he possibly can at any time in serving the war effort. Besides running the farm he has been interested in the insurance business. At the same time, he has served in public office. He served four years as sheriff of Washington county and twenty years as school clerk in the town of Hartford. He is an enthusiastic hunter and fisherman.

RAYMOND W. JEFFORDS is the community chairman for the TOWN OF ERIN. He has been chairman in Erin during both the fourth and fifth war loan drives during which two drives the town went over the top. Previous to those drives Ray was vice-chairman while Tom Manning was chairman in the town of Erin. Ray is married, is 39 years old and has three sons. He was born in the town of Erin and has lived there all his life. Besides his war bond work he has been district commander of the citizens' defense corps of Erin during the entire war period. Ray has been a county highway patrolman for the last 16 years and has been deputy sheriff for Washington county the last 10 years. He graduated from the Hartford high school and took a dairy course at the University of Wisconsin "ag." college. His hobby is gardening and they say he's quite proficient at that.

PAUL W. BARTELT is co-chairman of the TOWN OF JACKSON. Paul, in connection with Alwin Schwalter as co-chairman, have put the town of Jackson over the top in the last several drives and they have done a very fine job. Paul is 52 and has four children. Two of them are in the armed services. Pvt. Carl Bartelt, who is located at Lowry Field, Colorado, and Cpl. Paul E. Bartelt, who is at Visalia Field, California.

Paul was born in the town of Jackson and has lived there all his life. Besides his activity in war bond selling, he has done Red Cross and salvage work. During the last war he was a member of the Washington County Council of Defense. He has a record in this war of donating ten pints of blood to the Red Cross. Besides running his farm down in the town of Jackson, which he has for the past 31 years, Paul has many other activities. He writes insurance and up until last spring he was a member of the board of directors, Milwaukee Co-op Milk Producers since 1930. He was chairman of the town of Jackson from 1927 to 1940 and was re-elected town chairman again in 1943. He is also a member of the county board.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Germans Counterattack to Slow Allies' Smash Into Rhineland; OWI Warns of Hard Pacific War

Released by Western Newspaper Union. EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

As Holland became a flaming battleground, civilians are shown fleeing from battle zone near Kerkrade to safety.

EUROPE:

'Greatest Battles'

In what the Germans said was "... the greatest battle of material in the world's history..." with 2,500,000 men facing each other on a 400-mile front, Allied forces moved slowly on the Siegfried line against stubborn enemy resistance.

All along the curving battle-line the Germans launched extensive counterattacks, throwing in large numbers of tanks to stem the Allied drive on their all important industrial belt along the Rhine.

Bearing the brunt of the enemy's aggressiveness were Lieut. Gen. S. Patton's American Third Army lunging for the coal-laden Saar basin beyond Metz and Nancy.

Gen. Dempsey

Gen. S. Patton's American Third Army lunging for the coal-laden Saar basin beyond Metz and Nancy. In Holland, strong German counterattacks were aimed at thwarting General Dempsey's Tommies from pressing past the northern anchor of the Siegfried line at Kleve, and of throwing an arm to the great water basin of the Zuider Zee to the northwest to cut off an estimated 200,000 Nazis still engaged in the lower extremity of the country.

In addition to employing masses of tanks against General Patton's men before the Saar, the enemy also made good use of the hilly and wooded terrain in the sector to reduce the valiant doughboys' advances to yards.

As the fighting raged to the north and south, Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges' First American Army launched a heavy attack between those two sectors east of Aachen, fighting its way through thick woods to draw up within 27 miles of the great industrial center of Cologne.

Having smashed through the upper reaches of the Germans' vaunted "Gothic line" in northern Italy, Allied troops fought toward the leveling plains of the great Po valley, erasing the majesty of the country's population, and its most highly developed resources.

Despite desperate German attempts to stem their drive, the Allies pushed on, with Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's American Fifth Army threatening to close an escape route for stubborn enemy troops ringed between it and the British Eighth Army to the east.

As the remnants of Germany's Baltic armies pulled out of Latvia, the spotlight on the eastern front swung back to East Prussia in the north and Hungary on the south, where the Reds pushed offensives to crack these anchors of the Nazis' eastern front.

While the Germans could fall back on swampy, wooded lake country in East Prussia to slow the Russian drive, they had no such advantage in Hungary, where the Reds pressed for the broad open plains to the southeast of Budapest.

Having landed on the western coast of Yugoslavia, strong Allied forces worked inland to cut off the retreat of an estimated 200,000 Germans moving northward from the lower Balkans.

LOANS DOWN Index of economic conditions, loans on life insurance policies outstanding in midyear approximated $2,100,000,000, lowest in 15 years. During the critical depression period of 1932, loans reached $3,800,000,000, almost double present figures.

Offsetting a decline in civilian mortality, increased deaths among policy holders in military service resulted in an 18 per cent rise in insurance benefits paid out so far this year.

WAR BONDS Because of the unusually good cash condition of the treasury, the increasingly good war news from abroad and light bond exemptions expected despite simplified procedures, the goal of the Sixth War Loan drive scheduled to begin November 20 was set at 14 billion dollars, 2 billion less than in the previous campaign. Under new regulations, any incorporated bank qualifying with the Federal Reserve system will redeem E bonds over the counter.

PACIFIC:

Airpower

Long is the reach of America's famed B-29 Superfortresses, which have flown to the wars to hamstring the flow of enemy supplies to his widespread Asiatic front by striking at principal Japanese industrial centers.

With recent improvements permitting the carrying of heavier bomb loads, no less than 100 of the B-29s flew the equivalent of from Atlanta, Ga., to the Arctic circle in attacking manufacturing plants in Anshan, Manchuria, second largest steel-making center in the Japanese empire.

While the B-29s were on the wing, other U. S. army and navy planes struck at Jap positions along the whole Pacific front in attempts to soften the enemy against further advances.

Jap Resistance

With Japan possessing many strategic materials in the home islands and Korea enabling her to increase war production; with the country capable of putting 8,000,000 men in the field, and with American supply lines stretched, U. S. victory in the Pacific may require from 1 1/2 to 2 years after Germany's defeat, the Office of War Information said.

To America's advantage in pressing for victory, OWI said, was its own tremendous war output, capable of turning out 8,000 planes a month to Japan's 1,500; the threat to cut the enemy's supply lines from the Indies area and blockade the homeland, and the overrunning of his outer defenses which has brought U. S. forces close to the inner ramps.

Far from slaking the Japs' fervor, Germany's fall might strengthen the enemy's determination to resist, OWI said.

POSTWAR GERMANY:

Allied Plans

With Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's proposal for stripping Germany of all of its manufacturing and reducing the country to an agricultural basis rejected, Allied post-war plans looked forward to the maintenance of the Reich's industrial machine under close supervision.

Challenging Morgenthau's position, Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of War Stimson declared that not only did Germany turn out certain essential industrial products for the rest of Europe, but that its business also put it in the market to purchase other countries' goods.

In order to check German industry's war-making capacity, Allied plans call for control over all strategic materials, with possible elimination of factories adapted to arms production.

BUTTER:

Tighter Supply

With only 12,000,000 pounds of butter in storage earmarked for civilians and consumption on a day-to-day basis, the point value on the product was raised from 16 to 20 points per pound, OPA officials said.

Despite the government's plans for withdrawing from the butter market in October until production climbs in the spring, no immediate relief in the tight supply was seen, said OPA Administrator Chester Bowles. "... We civilians are going to have to get along with less butter than formerly, at least during the next 90 days or so."

Besides reserving 126,000,000 pounds of the present stocks of 138,000,000 pounds, the government has been purchasing great quantities of butter fat from producers for powdered milk and other uses.

Cars

Thinking in terms of a utilization in space and weight, Ford Motor company officials are working on plans for large-scale production of the lowest priced automobile since Ford's model A.

Declaring that the vehicle would not be of a miniature doodlebug type, Henry Ford II declared: "Such a car would be in addition to our regular line. What it will sell for, what it will look like, are matters of conjecture at the moment. The logical result... would be a better automobile for the American family."

Fire

As the nation observed Fire Prevention week, it was reminded that there's a residential fire every 1 1/2 minutes, a farm fire every 7 1/2 minutes, a business fire every 8 minutes, and a factory fire every 18 minutes in the U. S.

Common fire causes include carelessly discarded cigarettes or matches; overheated or defective heating equipment; chimneys and flues; sparks on the roof; flammable liquids; rubbish; spontaneous ignition; children playing with matches; hot ashes and coals, and lack of fire protection equipment.

PRICE CONTROL:

Must Stay—Byrnes

Until total victory is achieved in the Pacific, price and wage controls must be maintained to prevent an under supply of goods and overly stuffed pocketbooks to set off a dangerous inflationary cycle, War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes declared.

Stating that figures of the bureau of labor statistics showed only an increase of 25 per cent since January, 1941, Byrnes said that farm income rose 81 per cent and the average weekly pay of workers 51 per cent during the same period.

"The stabilization program has hurt neither the farmer nor the worker," Byrnes asserted. "The white collar workers and the people with small fixed incomes have fared less well during the war, but the only way to help them is to continue to hold the line against inflation."

Seek Higher Wages

Even while Byrnes spoke, organized labor pressed for revision of the government's stabilization program, urging that the formula for limiting wage increases to 15 per cent over January, 1941, levels be junked.

In appearing before the War Labor board, CIO Chief Philip Murray argued that public members of a WLB panel had found living costs increased almost 30 per cent since January, 1941, rather than 25 per cent as claimed by the bureau of labor statistics.

Declaring that both labor and management were entitled to a quick settlement of the wage question so as to be able to solve immediate and reconversion problems, AFL leaders joined the CIO in the assault upon present wage stabilization.

Early Start

The six-foot-four, 200-pound blond was born in Boston 29 years ago last July 16 and was christened Bowen Charleton Tufts III. He's never been called anything but Sonny.

His family expected him to train for business and finance, his father being a famous banker. But Sonny, at eight, saw Eddie Cantor, and asked his dad, "Would you care if I became an actor?" Wise Tufts Sr. replied, "Not if you're a good one."

He went to the exclusive Phillips-Evans where he majored in Greek (honestly) rowed on the crew, was cheer leader during the football season, and organized a band. His hand made money, but Sonny was inclined to cockiness, and when he let a summer hotel engagement slip out of his mitts because he was too sure he had it, his father decided he needed a practical lesson. Sonny was sent to Plymouth as a house-to-house seller of refrigerators. He surprised everyone, including himself, by winning the district sales contest—and a silver cup.

At Yale he was a legend. He started out by spending two years in the freshman class. He majored (hold your hats!) in anthropology, and even today talks glibly about races and reads heavy tomes on the subject.

A Fling at Opera

The summer before his senior year he heard Tito Schipa sing. He decided he, too, would be a great opera star.

The big lunk worked his way to Paris on a freighter and spent 6 months studying. He was 19 months locked in a room back in New York learning opera scores. He was given an audition at the Met, but found out how little his starting salary would be, so he left to a Broadway musical, "Who's Who." He was barely in it—slightly more in "Sing for Your Supper."

So he turned to singing his own material at swanky hotel spots in New York and Palm Beach.

Hammed His Way In

Joe Egli, Paramount director, gave Sonny an audition, then a test. Sonny picked something from a batch of test scripts, choosing one he thought he could make funny. Long after this howling test had won him a contract he discovered he had loved Charles Boyer's most tender love scene from "Love Affair."

A week after the contract was inked Mark Sandrich saw the test, gave him another with Paulette Goddard, then the role opposite her in "So Proudly We Hail." That made the big bloke, and he went into "Government Girl," "I Love a Soldier," "Bring On the Girls," and then "Sister Come the WAVES," with Bing Crosby and Betty Hutton.

Sonny makes friends easily, quickly. He's colorful every inch of his frame and it would take more than a story like this to outline all of his adventures. But the best story he told me was about the four WAVES he gave a farewell party to before they took off for duty. He wanted to bring in a couple of his pals, but the WAVES said: "What—and spoil our fun? We want Tufts!" They made it their theme song.

Climbing Too Fast

Frank Sinatra walked off the set of "Anchors Aweigh" when he couldn't see his rushes, sulked a half hour, then came back, apologized to everybody and went on shooting. Joe Pasternak tells me Frank's the kindest hearted guy in the world, but the most confused. He's being driven crazy by requests from all over, from benefits, hospitals, camps, etc. He needs to learn self discipline. Well, Frank's young, and even older people can't learn that overnight.

Gregory Isn't Forgetting

When "Valley of Decision" started, it was Gladys Cooper who got Gregory Peck's roses. Gladys was responsible for Greg getting his Broadway break. She was doing "Morning Star" with Guthrie McClintic. Guthrie said, "I suppose you wouldn't want to play with an unknown." Her answer, "I certainly would." That unknown was Peck. ... George Jessel was telling Benny Goodman about a Hollywood party, when Benny asked "Who fought in the main bout?"

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

SONNY TUFTS is a fugitive from the social register. A blue-blooded rebel. A Boston Back Bay bloodsucker. He has lobbed up family tradition from childhood. This strange admixture of social breeding, good education, revolutionary spirit, utter frankness and self-belittling makes him the most colorful personality Hollywood has seen in many a moon.

Sonny tells me his family is in such a rut it hasn't moved out of a radius of three square miles in 300 years. A forebear of his founded Tufts college—must have had a guilty conscience, says Sonny. His family for generations were Harvard Men.

When Sonny broke away and went to Yale his mother wired him, "Yale may be for some people, but not for us."

His first year in the movies was amazing. A year after he had ambled through a Hollywood studio gate looking for a chance to do anything at all in a movie he was an official star teamed with Paulette Goddard in "I Love a Soldier."

He recently topped the 10 players elected for stardom by the nation's exhibitors in the Motion Picture Herald's annual "stars of tomorrow" poll.

Washington Digest Cartels Hinder Trade And Stifle Competition

Big Monopolies Regulate Commerce Between Nations; Valuable Information Given Axis Under Business Pacts.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building Washington, D. C.

When the political smoke of the campaign dies away we are all going to hear a lot more about cartels. Most people probably have a general idea of what they are but those of us who have followed the hearings of the Kilgore subcommittee on war mobilization learned a lot of things we didn't know.

I think I heard about cartels first from Bill Shepherd, a newspaperman whom I was always meeting in different parts of the world. He had just come back from Germany shortly after the last war and was full of the subject on which he had written an article for Colliers'. But we didn't know the half of it then.

I mention that because it seems incredible that more was not done to break down the cartel system before.

The simplest definition of a cartel is a monopoly and its most obvious effect is to gouge the consumer with monopolistic prices. A chemical plastic which can be sold to commercial moulders at 85 cents a pound, costs dentists $45.00 a pound. Same stuff. Atabrine, a synthetic substitute for quinine, sold to the government, presumably at a profit, at $4.50 for a thousand tablets, by a company with a cartel-controlled patent, under a contract that will end six months after the war. Atabrine costs you and me $12.00 per thousand tablets.

Another feature of some cartels involved patent-leasing and this practice has resulted in most of the furor today because, by means of international cartels, both Germany and Japan got hold of secrets of value in the war.

For example, the American Bosch corporation provided its German affiliate with information developed by the signal corps of the army which the German army used as the basis for radio communication between tanks and ground and air forces. The Bosch company got the information in the form of specifications in army contracts on which it was bidding.

Government Moves To Smash System

Naturally the government had to take action in cases like that. Recently the state department established an industries branch in the commodities division of the office of economic affairs and for some time the department of justice has been conducting investigations and in several cases has taken action. Cartels are one of the highly complicated matters which the peace negotiations will deal with.

Assistant Attorney Gen. Wendell Berge, who has charge of investigations now going on, said: "It seems abundantly clear that America can never have a foreign policy based on the principles of democracy and international goodwill so long as international trade is dominated by cartels."

Berge believes the principle involved in the operation of the internal pools and monopolies is the greatest threat to full employment and therefore in many respects is one of the central issues of our time. This type of organization, he believes, restricts rather than promotes trade because it not only drives out competition but also enters into agreements to limit production.

That came out in the war and wherever there was a serious shortage, rubber, aluminum, magnesium, a cartel was discovered in the woodpile. These combinations tend to become little governments of their own and their effect on foreign relations is clearly evidenced in the case of South America where the Germans obtained exclusive rights in many trade fields through these trade agreements and used these rights to build up their Nazi propaganda in many respects is one of the central issues of our time.

Before the United States entered the war Germany was able to supply firms in this country from supplying certain types of explosives to Britain because the American manufacturers had an agreement with the German affiliate not to do so. The same applied to optical goods. There are other examples which make your hair curl.

BRIEFS... by Baukhage

There is a rumor of a tie-up between the Farmers' union and the CIO.

At the Quebec conference, Fala, who chased a cat Churchill adopted at the previous conference, turned over and went to sleep in the midst of the Prime Minister's most dramatic remarks at the final press conference.

An investigation of conscientious objectors recently made revealed a group where the food was under average but the work very hard and the morale was high, and another, where there was little work, excellent food and considerable entertainment but the majority were always complaining.

Relaxation of prices to increase the manufacture of lemon drops and peppermint is announced by the OPA. Most be trying to sweeten up the young voters.

The Germans tried to boost morale of troops in Normandy by broadcasting the sound of approaching tanks. Hundreds of soldiers, believing tanks were supporting them, advanced and were killed.

Nearly four hundred million tires are saved yearly under a program being carried out by the dairy industry.

There is a rumor in Germany that Hitler is sleeping himself in Buddhist philosophy. Also an official denial that he tears down curtains and rolls on the rug when he hears bad news. No one has seen him in public for some time.

On September 12, German planes dropped leaflets on Milan, Italy, saying that Germany's second secret weapon was about to enter action and promised that Blackshirts would march into Rome carrying Mussolini on their shoulders.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Some homemakers serve raw turnips in strips to be eaten with salt, like celery.

The bottom part of a funnel may be used as an apple corer in a pinch.

Wax the metal wastepaper basket inside and out to prevent rusting.

To reheat bread, place in a paper sack, fasten tightly and warm for five minutes in a moderate oven.

A medium-sized gold fish bowl is excellent for use in whipping cream. Does away with splattering.

If the sound sleeper has difficulty in hearing the alarm clock sound the awakening hour, place the clock upon a china plate.

If you have difficulty in getting sonny boy to wash his neck and behind the ears, try giving him an old shaving brush and let him apply the soap.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—in fact, exposure and infection—throws heavy strains on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body wastes. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

M/SGT. UELMEN HAS STAFF OF 20 MEN IN ENGLAND; WRITES

M/Sgt. Jos. N. Uelmen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Uelmen Sr. of West Bend, former village residents, informs us in a letter that he is still serving as sergeant-major in England and has had his staff increased to 20 men recently. His address is also changed. He writes:

England
27 Sept. 1944

"Dear Bill:
Just finished perusing through several Statesmans so I thought I may as well say hello to you and the folks in good old Kewaskum.

"The weather is rather nasty these days, consequently I'm more or less confined to my little room. Top-ranking sergeants at our field have the privilege of their own quarters which makes it rather comfortable. My room is probably the only one in the ETO without pin-ups. I have an inspiration. Ha, Ha!

"I've noticed that more home town boys have gone to France. As yet I haven't been quite that fortunate. However, at present I am, as we in the army say, 'sweating it out,' getting assigned to an allied government unit, so that may afford my opportunity to see Paris and points east.

"I'm still serving as sergeant major and just recently had my staff increased to twenty. I'm rather proud of this setup, mainly because I could select my own personnel from various units. I did manage to land two Milwaukee boys, which gives us a more homey feeling.

"Congratulations on the winning ball team. Very interesting to note. I'm holding my thumbs for them to win the championship, which no doubt they have by the time I'll hear of it. Some time ago I picked up Ralph Kohn's address in your paper, wrote to him and readily got a reply. Thanks a lot for your co-operation. Note too that my address has changed again.

"There isn't much more to say except that I'm very well and hope the same of you. Rest assured we'll stay in, there pitching until the game is over. My very best regards to all. Say hello to all the boys for me.

Sincerely, Joe
P. S. We have an ample supply of beer, but it's not LITHIA."

SCHLOSSER GOING TO SCHOOL AGAIN IN HAWAII; WRITES

Harold Schlosser, son of Mrs. Jennie Schlosser, sends another letter from the Hawaiian Islands letting us know that he is attending an army school again, his eighth since entering the service. We note that he has also been promoted to the rank of corporal and he also has a change of address. His letter follows:

Sept. 29, '44

"Dear Bill:
Well, Bill, I guess it looks like I am going to spend most of my army life going to school. I started this one a few weeks ago and it surpasses anything I have ever attended. It's a swell school and I enjoy it immensely. Of course, there are quite a few dark moments, but a little extra studying at night helps to clear things up. This makes a total of eight army schools I have attended since entering the army. I have collected a lot of valuable information and which will be of great value to me in later years, even as a civilian. "I haven't received a paper for quite some time, so consequently I am not very well posted on the home town news, which is always very well welcomed. We have a very rigid schedule at this school and it keeps a fellow pretty well occupied as far as the time element is concerned. As a result I haven't been to the city on pass for quite some time. There isn't too much to do down there unless you know someone. I have had the good fortune to know a civilian family from the states (Chicago). So I spend most of my passes with them, and that helps to get around. We visit a few good museums, art studios or Hawaiian shows and concerts, also the large air field; we have here or Pearl Harbor. I guess that's about all the rews for this time Bill. Hope you are enjoying good health and happiness. My address remains the same. Best regards to all.

Harold"

Alois Voim, S 2/c, is spending a leave at the home of his father, John Voim, on Route 2, Kewaskum, after completing his boot training at the Naval Training station at Great Lakes, Ill. He has been promoted from apprentice seaman to seaman second class.

Twenty-five Years Ago

Sgt. Edwin Backus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Backus, returned home from overseas duty, having received his honorable discharge at Camp Grant. He is the first Kewaskum boy to return home from the firing line in France. Edwin enlisted in Co. E of Fend du Lac in June, 1916, and went from Camp Douglas to the Mexican border where he served until February, 1917, when he returned home. When war broke out with Germany he was again called and was assigned to the 32nd division, consisting of Wisconsin and Michigan men, at Camp MacArthur, Tex. After several months of training he was sent overseas and landed in France. After more training he entered the front line trenches at Alsace. He remained at the firing line until Aug. 3, 1918, when he became sick from drinking gassed water. He was confined at a base hospital and then returned to the states. He was in service 32 months and took part in many important battles. Edwin wears two gold service bars and the red 'v'oe' cleveron.

William Krahn, brother of Mrs. Adolph Backhaus, arrived here from his home in Loyal after receiving his honorable discharge at Camp Grant. He played French horn with the 127th Infantry band at camps in this country and France under the famous band leader, Theo. Steinmetz. The band played concerts in all the larger cities of France until ordered to enter the front line trenches. Bill took care of the wounded soldiers on the field of battle. After one battle in which the Americans advanced 18 miles his regiment picked up 1400 wounded soldiers in one day. On Oct. 15, 1918, he was wounded in his right leg below the hip by shrapnel, breaking the bone. He lay in the battle field eight hours before aid reached him.

Mrs. Wm. Geidel received news of the death of Carl Heller, 95, of Bonduel, former resident of the town of Auburn for 45 years. He was married to the former Sophia Ludwig—Elmore correspondent.

Pvt. Walter Schneider of New York is spending a furlough with home folks.

Alex Gilbert left for Milwaukee where he is employed by the Federal Tire Co.

The first official casualty report to strike this community announced the death of Pvt. Pearson "Sunny" Brown, who was with the Rainbow division on the firing line in France. The message, received by his father, Floyd M. Brown, at Campbellsport, stated that he died of ateliosis. Popular Pvt. Brown graduated from the Kewaskum high school with the class of 1917 and was a star member of the school basketball team. It is thought that he was one of the Sammies recently caught in the fumes of the demon gas originated and spread by the Huns. He leaves his parents and three sisters.

Robert McCullough, 80, native of County Down, Ireland, died at his home in this village of dropsy. A resident here since 1907, when he moved to Kewaskum from Town Wayne, he was familiarly known as "reel". He is survived by his widow, nee Mary Gleason, and six children, Robert, Wayne; William, Dennis and Nellie (Mrs. Fred Buddenhagen)

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war sure has made a lot of changes in this old world of ours, hasn't it, Judge?" "Plenty of them, John. One that few people realize is that the rubber producing center of the world is now right here in the United States.

"When the Japs conquered the big natural rubber producing centers of the world they thought they had us licked. But in two short years, thanks to American industry, we are now producing synthetic rubber enough to supply all our military and essential civilian needs.

"Our rubber experts knew how to make it but the problem was to get the huge amounts of industrial alcohol needed. Almost overnight the country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and converted 100% to the production of this vital ingredient. A high government official said recently this was '...an almost unparalleled example of the overnight conversion of an entire industry from peace to war.'"

"Come to think of it, Judge, it was a mighty fortunate thing the beverage distilling industry was in existence, wasn't it?"
