Quotas for 7th War Loan Announced at Meeting on Tuesday

At the meeting held on Tuesday night, May 1, at Thomas's resort, Little Cedar lake, Robert H. Rolfs, executive chairman of the Washington County War Finance committee, announced the quotas for the twenty communities in Washington county. The quotas for each city, village and township are shown boxed off separately on this page. Washington county's quota in the seventh war loan drive is $1,470,000.00 FOR SALES TO INDIVIDUALS ONLY. This is an increase of 40% over the sixth war loan quota. The national quota for individual sales in the seventh war loan drive is 7 billion dollars. This also is an increase of 40% over the sixth war loan quota.

On Monday night, May 7, there will be held minute men meetings simultaneously in each city, village and township throughout Washington county. All minute men are urged to attend this meeting as it is an important meeting and the only one held at which they will receive their instructions for work in the seventh war loan drive.

The drive will start on Monday, May 14, during which time every home in Washington county will be contacted. The drive is under the dual jurisdiction of the community division and the banking division. The county chairman of the community division is Harold O. Leiser and the county chairman of the banking division is Louis Kuehlthau.

The organization for the seventh war loan drive is practically the same as it has been operating for the past few drives. The men working on the war finance committee have stayed on the job from drive to drive. Robert H. Rolfs at the dinner the other night announced the appointment of a new chairman for the town of Germantown. William Kuhn who has served on the Germantown War Finance committee as a minute man since the inception of war bond financing has been named the new chairman. VITAMIN PILLS—A FAD?

One of the things that makes America great is advertising. Probably the most potent force in the world it is actually the force that keeps the wheels of American industry spinning.

But great and important as it is advertising sometimes goes off on tangents that are wasteful. One of these is the advertising of vitamins.

The state medical society snickers at the claims made in such advertising. To listen to all the agonizing vitamin commercials on the radio, to read the numerous vitamin ads in newspapers and magazines is enough to convince us that Americans are spending $250,000,000 for these pills as claimed. Moreover, the addition of vitamins is advertised in some of the strangest places—bread, milk, cereal and even soda water.

The joke of the whole affair is that people in some places who don't read such advertising have better teeth, better eyesight and less sickness. If big city bakeries would use flour like our great grandmothers used and other processed foods would be left in a condition nearer their raw state, all of us would be better off.

While vitamin pills don't help, they probably don't harm. Americans who love fads can have a lot of fun with vitamins.

Advertising would receive praise, however, if its power could be used for more important things than fads. One such thing is proper diet. Oddly enough, a proper diet as determined by medical science, obviates the use of vitamin pills.—Ozaukee Press.

Washington county has already done a tremendous job in the payroll savings division headed by Walter Malzahn. Washington county leads the state of Wisconsin in the number of firms who have gone over the top on their seventh war loan quota. Shown boxed off separately on this page are the names of those firms who have gone over the top on their plant quota.

The Washington County War Finance committee is determined to again put Washington county over the top in this drive as has been the custom in every drive in the past. It is planned to finish the work as soon as possible after May 14th. All bonds purchased up to the first few days in July will count towards the quota in this drive. Any bonds that are purchased during the month of April will count towards the quota in this drive.

Your minute man will be around to see you within a short time. Decide now how much you can put into war bonds. Every dollar that you can possibly put in is the patriotic thing to do today and at the same time you are putting your money in the safest investment in this whole world.

Miss Alice Slater is Bride of Roger Stahl

In a candlelight nuptial service read by the Rev. Clarence Krueger in St. Stephen's church, Batavia, on Saturday, April 28, Miss Alice Slater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vorpahl of Randon Lake, became the bride of Roger Stahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stahl of this village.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Selma Janke and a vocal selection was sung by Oscar Schneider and sons, Robert and Ralph.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride was lovely in a white silk marquisette gown fashioned with long sleeves, a long train and inserts of lace. Her long, matching veil was held by a crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white roses, sweetpeas and mums. The bride wore a gold cross, a gift from the groom.

The bride was attended by Miss Doris Mae Stahl, sister of the groom, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Lorraine Strack, cousin of the bride, Joyce Stahl, cousin of the groom, Mildred Mehlos and Yerna Rehm, friends of the bride. The newlyweds left on a short honeymoon trip to Milwaukee, Lake Geneva and into Illinois and will be at home in Kewaskum after May 7. The groom is employed as a machinist at the West Bend Aluminum company.

Village Mourns Loss of Norton A. Koerble, Well Known Resident

Norton A. Koerble, 46, familiarly known to his many friends by the nickname of "Mickey," a popularly known and esteemed resident of our little city, passed away at 7:25 p. m. last Friday, April 27, at St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend, following a serious illness of one week. Mr. Koerble, a diabetic patient since 1923, became very ill on Saturday noon, April 21, and upon the advice of his physician, was taken to the hospital at once. During the remaining days of his illness there seemed no chance of recovery and hence he peacefully passed on there Friday evening.

Mr. Koerble was a faithful employee of the Kewaskum Aluminum company since 1921, a period of nearly 25 years, and was an active member of the Kewaskum fire department for more than 20 years. At the time of his death he held the office of secretary and was a trustee of the St. Lucas Evangelical Lutheran church and was president of the local branch of the G. U. G.

The deceased was born in Kewaskum on April 18, 1899, and resided here throughout his life except for a few years when he was employed in Milwaukee prior to his marriage. His marriage to Celeste E. Martin took place on August 16, 1923, in Kewaskum.

Surviving are his widow, one son, Donald, 22 (R. M.) U. S. navy, who left for sea duty from Shoemaker, Calif. April 7, three weeks before his father's death, after having been stationed at Madison, Wis., and two daughters Valeria Jean and Betty Jane at home. Another son was born dead on Feb. 13, 1937. He is further survived by two sisters, Mabel (Mrs. Ervin Koch) of this village and his twin sister, Norma (Mrs. Arnold Hansen) of Barton; one brother, Oscar Koerble, of this village; his aged mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Koerble, who makes her home with her son-in-law and daughter, the Ervin Kochs; his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Martin; four brothers-in-law; three sisters-in-law, and many other relatives and friends who mourn his early departure.

The remains were in state at the Techtman funeral home from Saturday until Monday morning, April 30, when the Rev. Gerhard Kanies conducted services for the immediate relatives at 11 a. m. The remains were then taken to the St. Lucas Ev. Lutheran church to lie in state until the time of funeral services at 2 p. m. Pastor Kanies also officiated at the last rites. Burial was made in the new Lutheran Memorial park just south of Kewaskum. The deceased was the second person to be buried in the cemetery.

Mrs. Gerhard Kanies was organist and also played the accompaniment for the hymns, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," which was sung by the senior choir of the church. Members of the Kewaskum fire department viewed the remains in a body at the funeral home Sunday evening and also just preceding the services at the church Monday. They also attended the last rites in a body and stood as a guard of honor outside the church and at the cemetery. Members of the church council stood watch at the coffin at the church and also stood at attention in the church vestibule. There was a large and beautiful floral offering and the funeral was largely attended.

Pallbearers were August Bilgo, president of the St. Lucas church, and Alfred Seefeldt, parish treasurer; William Guenther and Elmer Klug, fellow-employees of the Kewaskum Aluminum Co., and Chief Harry J. Schaefer and Clarence Mertes, fellow-members of the fire department.

Creamery Wins Gallon Milk Bottle Case Against State

Milk sales in gallon bottles are legal, the state Supreme Court decreed in a decision rendered this week at Madison. Thus the state department of agriculture's long fight to ban such sales, carried on principally by roadside dealers in Milwaukee and neighboring counties, ended in victory for the more than dozen dairies which fought the state. The Kewaskum Creamery company was one of the principal defendants in the case. The local creamery has been selling milk in gallon bottles since 1941 and an attempt was made by the state to stop the sales.

Justice Chester M. Fowler, who delivered the affirmative decision, said gallon sales could be prosecuted only under a section of the statutes prohibiting use of false measure in the sale of milk or cream. He wrote: "There is no charge that gallon or other nonconforming bottles are false measure. The use of gallon bottles is thus not shown to be a violation of the statutes."

The court's decision upheld Circuit Judge Edward J. Gehl at Waukesha.

WASHINGTON COUNTY WAR FINANCE COMMITTEE

Pfc. Pirmin Kohler, Wilmer Bunkelmann Wounded in Action

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Kohler of this village received a letter from their son, Pfc. Pirmin, last Thursday in which he informed them that he was wounded in action in Italy on April 16. He wrote that he was hit in the left leg in three places by enemy gun fire and is now confined at a hospital in northern Italy. Pfc. Kohler is a member of the 363rd Infantry and was fighting with the 5th Army.

Pfc. Kohler was inducted into the army March 18, 1941, and was sent to Camp Grant, Ill. the same day. After a week there he was sent to Fort Riley, Kans. where he served in the cavalry three months. In June he was transferred to Camp Sibert, Boulder City, Nev. to receive military police training and later guarded Boulder Dam. In the first week in October he was sent to Fort McArthur, San Pedro, Calif. and was there when the Pearl Harbor attack came. After that he was kept busy guarding the Japanese and helping evacuate them.

In March, 1942, he was sent from Ft. McArthur to Exposition Park, Los Angeles and from there came home on his first furlough the first week in October at the same time his brother Earl was home on furlough. In July, 1943, he was sent to San Francisco to a radio school to become a radio operator. After three months there he graduated and was sent back to Los Angeles as a radio operator. He was then sent to San Fernando, Calif. in October. On Nov. 6, 1943, he was married to Antonio Edessa of Los Angeles, who is now making her home with her parents there. On Jan. 15, 1944, he came home on a 15-day furlough with his wife and when he went back was transferred to Santa Anita, Calif. From there he left for Camp White, Oreg., where he was stationed two months and where he joined the infantry. From there he was stationed at Camp Adair, Oreg., a short time and then left for an unknown destination.

He was sent overseas in March, 1944, and landed in Africa, passed through Oran and up into Sicily. From there he proceeded through Italy, to Rome and up to northern Italy in the Apennine Mountains region. There he fought in the front lines up to the time he was wounded.

In his letter Pfc. Kohler wrote that he was operated for his wounds the same day he was hit and although his leg is in a cast from the ankle to the hip, he is all fixed up and feeling fine. He hopes to be up soon. He wrote that he cannot mention more about his being wounded because of censorship.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bunkelmann learned in a letter received on Tuesday from their son, Pvt. Wilmer Bunkelmann, that he was wounded in the leg by a German sniper's bullet while fighting with the 305th Infantry along the Elbe river near Berlin, Germany. He wrote that he was "lucky" the bullet missed the bone in his leg and he was now recovering in a hospital in France.

Pvt. Bunkelmann entered service April 26, 1944, and received his training in the States at Camp Hood, Tex. and Camp Shelby, Miss. He left Camp Shelby last October and was sent overseas in November. He entered combat in Germany around Christmas time.

WASTEPAPER COLLECTION ON SATURDAY, TIN CANS MONDAY

ALL your wastepaper must be used again. It is urgently needed, mainly for making cartons for shipping war materials and civilian goods. We must do better here than we have done. Tie your cardboard, newspapers and magazines in separate bundles or boxes. Put them on the curb this Saturday morning, May 5, when they will be picked up.

ALL your tin cans must also "go to war." Tin is critically needed. The Japs control the main supply of tin. We must re-use the tin from cans to plate more cans for food and other supplies for you and our fighting men. Do your part. Help the war effort. Put your flattened tin cans in a box. Place them on the curb early Monday morning, May 7. The village truck will collect them.

World Peace Hopes Converge On Conference in San Francisco

An Organization With Responsibility, Power Envisioned by Planners

By JOHN E. JONES

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Out of the Yalta conference of the Big Three came the electrifying news that San Francisco had been selected for the coming United Nations conference — "We have agreed," they said, "that a conference of United Nations should be called to meet at San Francisco in the United States on April 25, 1945, to prepare the charter of such an organization, along the line proposed in the informal conversations at Dumbarton Oaks."

Official announcement came to San Francisco's Mayor Lapham from Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew with the further advice that "Representatives of the department of state will get in touch with you in a day or so with regard to necessary arrangements for the conference."

And so San Francisco, most western of our American cities, founded in 1776, the same year as our Declaration of Independence, becomes the focal point of men's hopes from all parts of the world for enduring peace. San Francisco, the Golden Gate of the '40s, becomes now the new Golden Gate to future security for all mankind. If you take a map of the world and draw lines from Russia to South Africa, from Egypt to China, from Central Europe to India, from the Philippines to the Scandinavias, from Greenland to Australia, and from Canada to New Zealand, all of these lines will cross or converge at San Francisco. So San Francisco becomes the world peace center.

No World War III. Indicative of the importance of this meeting are some of the statements made by statesmen and pressmen. Veteran newsmen Mark Sullivan: "The greatest present need of the world is to see that there shall be no World War III. This is the beginning of everything and the objective of everything."

Lt. Cmdr. Harold Stassen, delegate: "I hope that San Francisco may mean for the world of tomorrow what Constitution hall at Philadelphia meant for the United States of America."

Anthony Eden, foreign secretary of the British empire: "This may be the world's last chance to create an effective peace organization combining responsibility with power."

Attendance at the meeting bears out this importance. Forty-four nations from all continents of the earth are represented. It has been estimated that delegates and their attendants, secretaries, advisers—experts on all matters of government—total some 1,500 persons. News gatherers—press and radio—number upwards of 1,000. San Francisco is host to from 2,500 to 3,000 persons.

ferences between them must be ironed out in order to build an organization that will be effective and enduring.

Everything Arranged Early. Experienced protocol officers have had to work out in advance details of seating arrangements at meetings — both general and committee—as well as at banquets and dinners, and hotel room assignments. Transportation from air fields to hotels and from hotels to meeting places had to be provided.

San Francisco is a cosmopolitan city with a population made up of persons from all parts of the world. Many of its taxi drivers speak other languages in addition to English. Each taxicab carries a sign indicating the languages that its driver speaks, so that foreign delegates may pick out a driver conversant in his own language.

Headquarters for the United Nations convention are in one of the large hotels on Knob hill. Meetings are being held in several of the large public buildings in San Francisco's Civic center, such as War Memorial Opera house, Veterans' auditorium and the Civic auditorium.

Rules governing the press and the public follow in general the pattern established at the Chapultepec conference in Mexico city, where the press had admittance to all general meetings and information sources from committee meetings. Many of the general meetings are open to the public, so far as space makes that possible. It is a privilege long to be remembered to sit in on a session where a constitution of the United Nations is being created.

Details to Committees. Much of the actual business of the convention of necessity is done in committee meetings where plans and details are formulated, discussed, changed, and worked up into a cohesive program, to be presented to the general conference. Here differences come up necessitating reference back to committee, often time and time again. It is no easy job to create an instrument to govern international relations acceptable to people from every continent of the earth.

But present day transportation and communications have erased the barriers of distance and isolation. There is no isolation, we are a part of a family of nations. Kipling wrote, "East is east and west is west — and ne'er the twain shall meet." But Kipling was probably wrong. The "twain" are meeting where the east and the west come together geographically and spiritually at San Francisco, at the Golden Gate to future peace and security among the nations of the earth.

The peoples of the United Nations look to San Francisco—Australians, Asiatics, Europeans, Africans, Americans—north and south—all have their hearts and hopes in the convention beginning on April 25. Who knows but that in their hearts the common people of our enemy, both European and Asiatic, are putting their hopes in this world meeting for an end to the catastrophe which they started but could not finish.

Vets Opportunities Under 'G.I. Bill' Explained by Legion Auxiliary Workers

By MRS. CHARLES B. GILBERT, National President, American Legion Auxiliary.

The American Legion Auxiliary, ever since its organization, has centered its work on aiding the war veteran and his family. The Auxiliary in past years has aided veterans of the last war. With the increasing number of veterans in the present war, the Auxiliary has stepped up its program to help the veteran in every possible way.

A million veterans returned home in 1944. More and more are coming home each month. There are bound to be questions they will want to ask and problems they will have to solve.

To ease this burden the Auxiliary under the leadership of its national president, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert of Norwich, Conn., has prepared questions and answers on some of the problems which will affect the veterans and their families. Here are some pertinent questions:

Q.—Just what does "farm loan guaranty" mean?

A.—Under Title III of the servicemen's readjustment act of 1944, provision is made for the guaranteeing by the administrator of veterans affairs of a loan to be used in purchasing land, livestock, machinery to be used in farming operations conducted by the applicant.

Q.—Does this mean that the veterans administration will make the loan?

A.—No. The law provides that the administrator of veterans affairs may approve an application for the loan within certain limitations, but the actual loans are made by regularly established banks, lending agencies and private lenders.

Q.—What does the law specifically provide regarding the purchase of a farm and farming equipment?

A.—Any application made under this title for the guaranty of a loan to be used in purchasing any land, buildings, livestock, equipment, machinery or implements or in repairing, altering or improving any buildings or any equipment to be used in farming operations conducted by the applicant may be approved by the administrator of veterans affairs if he finds—

1. That the proceeds of such loan will be used in payment for real or personal property purchased or to be purchased by the veteran, or for repairing, altering or improving any buildings or equipment to be used in bona fide farming operations conducted by him.

2. That such property will be useful in and reasonably necessary for efficiently conducting such operations.

3. That the ability and experience of the veteran, and the nature of the proposed farming operations to be conducted by him, are such that there is a reasonable likelihood that such operations will be successful.

Your 1945 Garden Tomato Growing Important Project In Victory Garden

BY ALL odds the tomato is the universal favorite of home Victory gardeners because they will grow 'most anywhere, are productive, a pleasure to grow and to eat. And they are rich in vitamin content.

In full sun, on any reasonably good soil with a medium to good supply of moisture, tomatoes can be grown at some season in every state of the Union.

Tomatoes do not like shade and they do not like too much nitrogenous fertilizer. With these conditions, the plants often grow very rank, but the blossoms drop off instead of forming fruit.

If good tomato plants are available for transplanting from dealers, the small gardener should purchase them rather than grow the few needed in the average small garden. They are not difficult to produce, however.

Good plants about eight inches tall that are well established for transplanting. Transplanting should not take place before the frost-free date in your community.

If barnyard manure is applied to the garden where tomatoes are to be grown, it should be supplemented with four to five pounds of superphosphate for each 100 pounds of manure. Twice that amount should be added to sheep or poultry manure. It is generally unwise to work manure into the holes into which tomato plants are to be set, but a handful of commercial fertilizer should be well mixed with the equivalent of a bucketful of soil where each plant is to be set.

In most gardens it is desirable to prune the plants to a single stem or to two stems and tie them to stakes. The stake should be about eight feet long, driven into the soil about two feet and at least 1 1/2 inches in diameter. As the plant develops, side shoots or branches appear at the points where the large leaves are joined to the main stem. These shoots are easily broken out, thus restricting the plant to a single stem. When growth is rapid it is necessary to go over the plants every two or three days to remove the new side-shoots as they arise. Care must be taken that the growing tip of the main stem is not inadvertently pinched out.

A paper collar around young tomato plant protects it from cutworms.

In staking up the plants, strips of rag are best, but soft twine may be used. The string must be tied firmly about the stake first, so that it will not slip, and then passed loosely around the stem, not far below a large leaf, and then tied again. Do not draw the stem too tightly against the stake.

In setting out tomato plants it will be helpful if a heavy paper or light cardboard collar be placed around the stem to protect it from cutworms. The bottom of the collar should extend about an inch below the surface of the soil. A paper clip is handy to hold the collar together. An old post card will do nicely.

Ways to Grow Tomato Plants

Growing of tomatoes calls for as uniform moisture content in the ground as possible. A long dry spell or wide variations in soil moisture content bring about damage by blossom-end rot. You will note a black or brown spot on the blossom end of the fruit, and staked and pruned plants seem to be more generally affected by this rot. On the other hand, plants growing naturally on the ground usually show more roots of other kinds, caused by the fruits lying on or too near the soil.

A light mulch of dried lawn clippings, leaves or similar materials beneath plants grown without supports will help keep the fruit off the soil and help avoid some of the loss due to rot.

Tomato plants for the garden may be started indoors in quart berry boxes, paper drinking cups, paper bands or in regular clay flowerpots. The containers are filled with sifted soil and placed in the hotbed, or if in the house they are placed in a shallow box. A small amount of seed is sown in each container, and after the plants are well under way they are transferred to the garden, the container usually removed from about the roots of the plants when set in the planting plot or hole. Care should be taken so as not to disturb the roots of the young plants.

Gardeners usually spot the plants in the hotbed or coldframe four or five inches apart in each direction.

In moving them to the garden a knife is run to a depth of four or five inches in each direction between the plants, cutting the soil in blocks. Each block, with the plant in its center, is removed direct to the garden. Plants moved in this manner should be watered when set, unless the soil is very moist. The soil should be pressed well against the roots if it has become loose during the transplanting.

Okinawa Landing Like Putting Foot in Enemy's Kitchen Door

By Ernie Pyle

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—Ernie Pyle's columns will continue to appear in this newspaper for a few weeks. Dispatches for these releases have been cleared by the censors and some may be en route from the island where the famous war correspondent met his death.)

OKINAWA.—Our war with Japan has gone well in the last few weeks. We are firmly on Okinawa, which is like having your foot in the kitchen door.

Our wonderful carrier pilots have whittled down the Jap air force daily. Our anti-aircraft ships and from shore batteries has plugged Jap fighters for the highest ratio I've ever known from ack-ack.

Our task forces have absolutely butchered the only Jap task force to put to sea in many months. B-29s are hitting Jap with fighter escort from Iwo Jima. Airfields are springing up on Okinawa. We all say we sure are glad we are not in the Japs' shoes.

One main question asked over here now is, "How long will the Japs hold out?" There are all kinds of opinions, but actually nobody knows. We don't know, because no one in his right mind can pretend to understand the Oriental manner of thinking. They are unpredictable. They are inconsistent. As one officer said, "They are uncannily smart one day, and dumb as hell the next."

Their values are so different from ours. The news broadcasts from Tokyo and Shanghai are an example. These broadcasts are utterly ridiculous. During our first week on Okinawa they constantly told of savage counterattacks when there weren't any. They told of driving a large part of our landing forces back to the boats and far out to sea, when actually they fired only a few shots onto the beach.

On D-Day plus four, they broadcast that despite their counterattacks we finally succeeded in landing 6,000 troops. The truth is that by sunset of the first evening we had an incredible number of scores of thousands of Americans on Okinawa!

The crippled Jap air force cannot do us anything but spasmodic harm from now on. And their navy needn't ever be considered. If you could see the colossal naval power we have here you could hardly believe your eyes. It's one of the most impressive things I've seen in this war.

We have plenty of troops in reserve, and new convoys of supplies have already begun to arrive just as we finished unloading the original massive supply fleet.

Converting Island Into Big Base

On Okinawa the majority of the Japs are on the southern tip, and in considerable strength. The northern area is being combed and a few scattered ones mopped up.

There is tough fighting in the south and it will remain tough to the end. I've heard some officers say the south end of Okinawa may turn into another Iwo Jima. That will mean heavy casualties on our side, but the end of Okinawa is inevitable.

And while the army's 24th corps of infantry is doing that job, the rest of the island apparently is wide open for us to develop and we are doing it with our usual speed.

This island has everything we could want in such an island. There is plenty of room for more airfields, room for roads and vast supply dumps and anchorages for ships. And the civilians from whom we had expected trouble are docile and harmless.

Of course, Japan's vast land armies are still almost intact. But if it does come to the great mass land warfare of continental Europe, we now are able to build up strength for that warfare right on the scene.

There is a fighting spirit among us. People are conjecturing about the possibility of the Pacific war ending sooner than we had ever allowed ourselves to think.

For years it looked endless, but now you hear people talk about being home by Christmas. Some really believe they will. Others have their fingers crossed, but they are more hopeful than ever before.

Our forces to sweep on and on, and wind the thing up in a hurry.

The bulk of the battle of Okinawa is being fought by the army—my old friends, the doughfoots. This time the marines had it easy, and by the turn of circumstance the army is the one that has the job to do.

But my self-assignment on the Okinawa blitz was to write about the marines and that's what I continue to do. I landed with the marines, crossed the island with them, and have been living with them amidst fleas, mosquitoes, goats and a few Japs, hiding under bushes. So naturally I want to tell you about them.

Marine corps blitzes out here have all been so bitter and the marines have performed so magnificently that I had conjured up a mental picture of a marine that bore a close resemblance to a man from Mars. I was almost afraid of them myself.

Finds Marines Human, After All I did find the marines confident, but neither cocky nor smart-alecky. I found they have fears, and qualms, and hatred for war the same as anybody else. They want to go home just as badly as any soldiers I've ever met. I found them good, human Americans.

They are proud to be marines. They wouldn't be in any other branch of the service. Yet they are not arrogant about it. And I found they have a healthy respect for the infantry.

One day we were sitting on a hillside talking about the infantry. One marine spoke of a certain army division—a division they had fought beside—and was singing its praises.

"It's as good as any marine division," he said. "What was that you said?" a listener cut in.

The marine repeated it and emphasized it a little. Another marine stood up and called out, loudly: "Did you hear what he said? This guy says there's an army division as good as any marine division. He must be crazy. Haw, haw, haw!"

And yet other boys chimed in, arguing very soberly, and sided with the one who had praised the army division.

Before I came into the field, several marine officers asked me to try to sense just what the marine spirit is, just what causes it, and keeps it alive.

In peacetime when the marine corps was a small outfit, with its campaigns highlighted, and everybody was a volunteer, you could understand why marines felt so superior.

But since the war the marine corps has grown into hundreds of thousands of men. It has been diluted, so to speak. Today it is an outfit of ordinary people—some big, some little, some even draftees. It has changed, in fact, until marines look exactly like a company of soldiers in Europe.

Yet that marine corps spirit still remains. I never did find out what perpetuates it. They're not necessarily better trained. They're no better equipped and often not as well supplied as other troops. But a marine still considers himself a better soldier than anybody else, even though nine-tenths of them don't want to be soldiers at all.

The marines are very cognizant of the terrible casualties they've taken in this Pacific war. They're even proud of that, too, in a way. Any argument among marine units is settled by which has had the greatest casualties.

Many of them even envisioned the end of the marine corps on Okinawa. If the marine divisions had been beaten up here as they were on Iwo Jima, the boys felt it would have been difficult to find enough men of marine corps caliber to reconstitute all the divisions.

They even had a sadly sardonic song about their approach to Okinawa, the theme of which was, "Good-by, Marines!"

Button-On-Frocks For Old Furniture

WOULD you ever guess that the homely old chair at the right could be made to seem at home in a smart modern room? A simple frock of medium blue

Kathleen Norris Says:

The Women We Need

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"When Pete was five years old he was killed by a car driven across the sidewalk."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

MY WIFE is so darned cheerful," writes a man from Butte, Mont., "that you can't help loving her!"

It seems to me that no sweeter or more sincere tribute was ever paid a woman. There was a soundness and fineness about this man's letter that struck a heartening note in these days of broken homes and easy divorces.

"We've had 14 years of joys and sorrows," his letter goes on, "and when the smoke blows over, just one person is carrying on, sensibly and quietly and bravely, and that's Molly. When we were married I was making $200 a month, and three years later, with a second baby coming, I was laid up with muscular rheumatism for almost a year. Molly carried on, had her baby, worked, borrowed, managed somehow—and always was cheerful!"

"Financially we got straightened out again, paid bills, began to buy a home, and our third child, our first boy, was born. Those were good years. But when Pete was five years old, he was killed by a car driven straight across the sidewalk and into the garden where he was playing with his sisters. Molly carried on. Our third girl was born a few months later.

"Then came the war, and the importing firm for which I worked went to the wall; no job, no savings, and my mother, widowed and an invalid, came to live with us. We rented our house, moved into town, shortened sail everywhere. This was before the big defense plants and the big salaries got started.

"Never Failed Us Once." "The joy and hope Molly put into our lives then will never be forgotten by me. She never failed us once. Her life had been shattered; motherhood had brought her anguish, I had contributed months of sickness, helplessness, unemployment. But wherever she was, the little girls were laughing, and she was laughing with them; hospitality wasn't ended, nor good home meals, home fires, home talk. Her affectionate appreciation of my mother's help—for mother, with mending and watching the children, did all she could, made my mother love her like a true daughter.

"This is my tribute to the most gallant wife any man ever had. We have no money troubles now, and we have three lovely little girls to go on into better times with us. But whatever is ahead, I can never be afraid while this woman is beside me."

Could a letter be pleasanter reading? I don't know how. But about one thing you are wrong, Walter. This is not mere "Cheerfulness." Cheerfulness is a more or less natural quality; it can come from perfect health, from youthful optimism and high spirits, even from shallowness and selfishness.

What Molly has is something much finer than that. She has the rare fineness of a soul and mind tried and purified by fire. To be comforting, hopeful, with a sick husband and dependent babies is not mere "cheerfulness." It is true

I was laid up for a year...

Children Should Be at Least 16 to Handle Auto

Sixteen is a good age at which to learn to drive, in the opinion of Amos E. Neyhart, administrative head of the Pennsylvania state college's institute of public safety.

Under that age, Neyhart says, a youth hasn't matured enough to accept responsibility.

"Children," the Penn state expert pointed out, "generally look to father to pay the bills in case of trouble. At 16," he added, "they begin to see how any unexpected expense affects

BEYOND CALL OF DUTY

We seldom read about the wives and mothers who are quietly doing their part without fanfare, in good times and bad, in happiness and in sorrow. The selfish, the unfaithful, the undutiful wives get in the news, but the great majority, who are doing all that can be expected of them, seldom get a line of commendation.

Then there are some women whose courage, energy and unalterable cheerfulness is so extraordinary, that they seem almost to be superhuman. They are daily giving the best that is in them—and far more than anyone has a right to demand.

Such a wife is described in this article—one who carried on in poverty and sorrow with a buoyant heart. On the other hand, she was not changed by a touch of prosperity—she did not ask for luxuries to compensate for her endurance of difficulties.

saintliness. Cheerfulness will not carry a woman over the dark abyss that opens before her feet when an only son is torn from her by the cruel carelessness of an irresponsible driver. Cheerfulness does not face illness, weariness, doubt, anxiety and change with a head held high and colors flying.

"Others Come First."

With Molly, fundamentally, and first of all, comes thought for others. She will not let them see that she is hurt. Nobody must feel any worse because Molly is stricken. Selfish grief will not bring little Pete back; and if the others see her serene and busy, interested in their welfare, their interests, just as she always was, it will go far to make life seem good to them again.

We are going to need many women like this in the years immediately ahead of us. Women will look at the conditions of their lives and say to themselves; "this is just what I have said I couldn't bear—and here it is." Women will find the men who come back from war are almost strangled; women must care for a crippled husband or son, a blind husband or son, all the rest of their lives. Women, who have been financially independent, will find now that they must go back to the status of housekeeper, or else sacrifice marriage itself. Women must meet every mental and psychopathic problem in those they love; depression, despair, distaste for work of any kind, cynicism as regards the future, bitter disillusionment.

Brace your soul for this postwar ordeal. It won't last; things do adjust themselves; conditions that seem insufferable have a way of smoothing out. Normal home life is a great tonic for bruised nerves and spirits, and even the blind—once the first shock is over, are not necessarily unhappy people.

One woman like Molly in every home would solve the whole world's problem in the approaching days of reconstruction. Be that woman in your household.

Blocking Hand-Knit Garments. To "block" a new or newly-washed hand-knit garment, here is an easy method. Sprinkle two heavy bath towels slightly and spread the garment between them, pulling to desired measurements and pinning to shape. (Before washing it is handy to lay garment on paper or cloth and draw outline to use in reshaping.) Cover with a board or other firm, flat surface. Weight this down and leave until the garment is dry. A light steam-pressing, without washing, also gives a finished look.

Lions or Timekeeper, Benchley Tamed 'Em!

At one time Robert Benchley wrote for a magazine which employed a timekeeper whose duty it was to dispatch nasty notes requesting explanations from employees who were absent or tardy. Upon receiving one of these unpleasant missives, Benchley hastened to explain.

"It's true I was five minutes late this morning," said Benchley, "but it was unavoidable. In passing the circus, on my way to work, I was brutally attacked by a dozen escaped lions. Summoning every ounce of strength in my body I fought the angry beasts off alone!"

The timekeeper discontinued his practice of sending sharp notes.

LIBRARY CLUB ON VISIT TO MILWAUKEE LIBRARIES

Kewaskum high school's library club spent Friday, May 4, in Milwaukee visiting libraries of various types. The morning was devoted to an examination of the various departments of the Milwaukee Public Library. Before lunching, the girls took a little while to view the reference library of Marquette university which is housed in Canisius Hall. The afternoon was devoted to tours of the Shorewood High School library and of the Milwaukee State Teachers' College library.

The members of the club will give a report on their observations next week in a panel discussion before the general assembly. Their faculty advisor, Miss Hulda Kohlbeck, who accompanied them on the tours, will act as chairman of the panel.

The girls earned money to finance this educational outing by selling soda water at the basketball games and by sponsoring the showing of movies.

ST. KILIAN SCHOOL NEWS

On Sunday, April 29, three games of ball were played at St. Kilian school grounds. The first game was played between St. Martin's, Ashford, and St. Kilian. The latter were victorious. The second game was played between St. Martin's, Ashford, and St. Andrew's, Le Roy. The latter won the game. The third game saw St. Andrew's, Le Roy, and St. Kilian in action. Again St. Kilian's were the winners.

On Tuesday, May 1, our reverend pastor distributed report cards. Father stressed the character traits an encouraged the children in their last period of the year.

On Wednesday, May 2, the first and eighth graders were vaccinated at the Campbellsport high school.

The eighth graders are finishing their assigned work which will win for them their "ribbons" which they are very anxious to display as a sign that soon they will graduate from the eighth grade.

One of our fourth graders, Kenneth Sarauer, was operated for appendicitis at St. Agnes hospital. Kenneth is doing nicely and we hope that he will soon be back in school.

The following have an average of 90 or above: Annabelle Wondra, Leander Ruplinger, Corinne Wahlen, Richard Kern, Margaret Gitter, Katherine Wanner, Lorraine Kuehl, Sylvan Wondra, James Schmitt, Hugo Straub, and Lucille Marian.

Canning Is Food Insurance for Winter
(See Recipes Below)

Early Canning

Strawberries and rhubarb, green peas and asparagus are all flaunting their gay colors before our eyes and begging to be eaten, either now or later.

One of the most basic rules in canning is that fruit and vegetables should be canned at the peak of the season to be their best. If you want a good product, you will have to put up a good food in another way of putting this rule across.

Canning at best does not improve the food, it simply preserves it for future use. Unless strawberries are sweet and bright in color, they will not become so in the jars. The same is true of everything else which we put up.

Less canning sugar will presumably be allotted this year than previously, and it would be well to decide just how much of what you are going to put up before you start in using sugar. It will have to be strictly budgeted if it is to reach over all the winter's needs.

Those of you who have canned while sugar has been rationed know that it is possible to can with a great deal less sugar if you will put the fruit up not quite so sweet. Most of us can do with less sugar as long as we have nice looking jars of fruit.

One of the "musts" on your canning list this year should be several jars of jams, jellies and preserves to spread on bread next winter if butter supplies are low. The family will greet these fruit concoctions with cheers:

Strawberry Marmalade.
(Makes 12 6-ounce glasses)
2 oranges
2 lemons
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 quart strawberries
1 cups sugar
1/2 bottle fruit pectin

Remove peels from oranges and lemons; cut off white membrane. Force peels through food chopper. Add water and soda. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Add orange and lemon pulp and juice. Simmer for 20 minutes. Add crushed strawberries. Measure 4 cups prepared fruit; add sugar. Bring to boiling and boil 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in fruit pectin. Let stand 5 minutes; skim; seal in hot, sterilized glasses.

Currant Jelly.
(Makes 4 to 5 small glasses)
1 quart currants
1/4 cup water
Sugar

Wash and pick over currants but do not remove stems. Mash a few in the bottom of a preserving kettle and continue until all berries are added. Add water, cover and heat slowly. When fruit is thoroughly heated, put into a jelly bag or in several thicknesses of cheese cloth and drain off juice. Measure 4 cups

Lynn Chambers' Point-Saving Menus.

- Chocolate Souffle Beverage

juice, bring to boiling point and boil 5 minutes. Add 3 cups of sugar and boil 3 minutes, or until jelly sheets off a spoon. Pour into several hot sterilized glasses, cover with paraffin and store.

Strawberry and Rhubarb Jam.
(Makes 6 to 8 Glasses)
3 cups cooked pink rhubarb
3 cups strawberries
4 cups sugar

Use tender red rhubarb, trim off hard ends, wash without skinning, cut into small pieces. Mix fruit and sugar, let stand several hours. Cook gently in preserving kettle until thick and clear. Pour into hot sterilized glasses and paraffin at once.

For canning spring's first fruits, use the directions given in these recipes to save color, food value and quality.

Canning Rhubarb.
Wash tender, rosy rhubarb and cut into 1/2-inch pieces with a sharp knife. Measure the rhubarb and place it in a baking dish and add 1/4 as much sugar by measure as rhubarb. Cover and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 30 to 35 minutes until rhubarb is tender, but whole. Pack into hot sterilized jars immediately after removing from oven and process 10 minutes in a boiling water bath or 5 minutes at 5 pounds pressure in pressure cooker.

Canning Asparagus.
Wash young, tender asparagus and remove tough ends. Cut to fit into jar or in 1/2-inch lengths. Tie into small bundles and place in a saucepan. Add a small amount of boiling water and cook 4 to 5 minutes. Place immediately into hot sterilized jars, adding boiling liquid to within 1/2 inch of the top along with 1 teaspoon salt to each quart. Adjust cap and process immediately in a pressure cooker, processing pint jars 35 minutes at 10 pounds pressure.

Canning Peas.
Select tender, even-sized green peas. Shell and wash. Place in saucepan with boiling water to cover. Heat to boiling. Pack as hot as possible into sterilized jars. Add 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon sugar to each jar. Process in the pressure cooker 50 minutes at 10 pounds.

Vitamin Value and Retention.
The more quickly you work once the fruits and vegetables are collected, the better will they retain their nutritive qualities. Everything should be in readiness so there is no time lost going from step to step. If jars are stored in a cool, dark place there is a better chance of their keeping their vitamins and minerals.

Proper Accessories Are Important to Rooms Just as They Are to Clothing

By ELIZABETH MACRAE BOKYIN

We're just as down on junk and trinkets as anybody—maybe more so! But that doesn't mean that the right accessories don't still "make" a room, just as they add that certain something to a costume.

But as with costumes, rooms should have their accessories changed from time to time. In fact, a change of accessories can change completely the decorating scheme if you plan your changes smartly. Suppose, for instance, that your living room is drab. Maybe it's deliberately so, like a neutral coat or dress—because you want it to be a background for scintillating accents, because it has to take a lot of hard wear, because you just happen to have that drab stuff and can't change it. Whatever the reason, plan to sparkle it up with just the right comment in ornaments, bibelots, flowers or whatever.

Such things need not be expensive. There's usually nice colored glass to be had at reasonable prices, lovely pottery that doesn't cost a fortune, and at this time of the year, plenty of flowers. Stop to think what yellow might do to that drab and dreary room—yellow flowers to begin with, maybe a pair of lemon-yellow cushions for that old taupe sofa, a yellow pottery pitcher and cake plate for informal refreshments, a pair of yellow lamp bases (point old ones if you can't spurge on new ones).

Or maybe turquoise would be the best accent color for that dowdy-forn room. Use turquoise glass or pottery ornaments, turquoise lamp bases, turquoise slip covers for a chair or two and maybe a pair of old tables painted turquoise.

Or maybe your room needs to be toned down, rather than keyed up. In that case, have all the accessories in beige, gray or in some dusty edition of another color used in the room.

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived at Adano, a seaport in Italy, with Major Victor Joppolo, the Amgot officer in charge. Sergeant North, an M.P., was in charge of security. The Major set out immediately to win the friendship and confidence of the citizens and vowed to replace the town bell, which the Germans had taken. Major Joppolo talked with Father Pensavento, local priest. He promised the priest to attend mass the following morning. When time for mass arrived, the Major was busy in his office and overlooked the appointment, until church bell awoke him to the fact that he was late. He arrived before mass was over, much to the relief of the priest.

CHAPTER V

At this angry moment, Gargano, Chief of the Carabinieri, came up to the line. This man was called by the people The Man With Two Hands, because of his continuous and dramatic gesturing. He was he seemed to think, an actor, and he could not say two words without gesturing with both hands. He possessed and exercised all the essentially Italian gestures: the two forefingers laid side by side, the circle of thumb and forefinger, the hands up in stop position, the salute to the forehead with palm forward, the fingertips of the two hands placed tip to tip, the fingers linked, the hands flat and downward as if patting sand, the hands up heel to heel and pulled toward the chest, the attitude of prayer, the pointing forefinger of accusation, the V as if for victory or smoking cigarettes, the forefinger on the chin, the rolling of the hands. All, he used them all.

When he approached the line, everyone thought that he was coming to restore order. There was a question in some people's minds whether he still had authority, but they did not feel that this was a good time to flout the question. It would be better to see first whether he made any arrests.

He did not make any arrests. He merely went up to Carmelina, wife of the lazy Fatta, and squeezed between her and the door of Zapulla's shop, and stood there. The people could see that he was merely taking his place at the head of the line to wait for bread.

Carmelina, who was annoyed by having had wood-coke thrown at her, said truculently: "Mister Gargano, you were Chief of the Carabinieri under the old regime, and that entitled you to stand at the head of the line. I am not sure that you are still Chief of the Carabinieri."

Gargano said: "I am the Chief," and he made a kind of Fascist salute with both hands.

Carmelina said: "I doubt it. Where is the proof?"

Gargano said: "See my uniform," and he ran his two forefingers from his shoulders to his knees.

Carmelina said: "That is no proof. The Americans do not care how we dress. I could dress as a rabbit and the Americans would not arrest me."

Gargano said: "Woman, stop your shouting, or I will arrest you," and he gripped his own left wrist with his own right hand, signifying arrest.

Carmelina said: "Where is your authority?"

Margherita the formidable wife of Craxi said: "I believe that this man is still Chief, since the Mister Major is keeping many Fascist scoundrels in office until they prove themselves bad. But I do not believe that under American law he has the right to go to the head of the line. That is where I think you are right, Carmelina."

Gargano said: "I have always come to the head of the line. I shall continue to do so," and he ran his forefinger along the length of the line until he came to the head, where he stood, then he pointed the finger at the ground.

Maria Carolina, the wife of the noisy cartman Afronti, who had once been arrested by Gargano, shouted: "You have no right, Two-Hands. The Americans would not permit it." This was the first time Gargano had ever been called Two-Hands to his face. He did not understand the reference.

Gargano stepped out of the line. "Who questions my right?" he roared, and he pounded one clenched fist on the other clenched fist.

Carmelina, wife of the lazy Fatta, standing right beside him, startled him by whispering in his ear: "I question it, Two-Hands."

Up to this time Zapulla the baker, standing in the front of his shop, had been torn between the two authorities, the old and the new. But he was so annoyed with Carmelina for having prodded him that he now said: "Arrest her, Mister Chief, if you have any courage."

Up to this time Gargano the Chief, somewhat unsure of his ground, had been trying to think of a way of retreating gracefully. But now his manhood, as well as his authority, was challenged. He moved toward Carmelina and said: "Woman, you are under arrest."

Carmelina shouted: "Keep your two active hands off me, Gargano." Zapulla said: "Will you let this woman shriek down your courage?"

Gargano clapped his hands on Carmelina. She screamed. All up and down the line women shouted: "Out with the Fascist Chief of Carabinieri. Out with the new. But with men who push themselves to the head of a line ahead of women who have been waiting three hours."

Gargano dragged Carmelina off screaming and kicking, and the anti-Gargano, anti-Fascist screams in the line grew louder and louder. Even Mercurio Salvatore, although as crise he was more or less an official and should have remained neutral or even taken the side of Gargano, raised his huge voice in a careful shout: "Down with injustice!"

When Gargano pulled Carmelina into Major Joppolo's office, she was still screaming. But the Major jumped to his feet and said sharply: "Silence, shrew," and she fell quiet at once.

"What is this all about?" the Major asked.

Gargano said: "This woman questioned my authority," and he pointed at her with both forefingers.

Carmelina said: "There is more to it than that."

Major Joppolo said: "Your authority to do what, Gargano?"

Carmelina shouted: "To push his way to the head of the line in front of Zapulla's bread shop."

Gargano said: "It is a privilege the officials of the town have always enjoyed."

Major Joppolo said: "Is that so?"

Gargano said: "I charge this woman with disturbing the peace and questioning authority." Gargano was shrewd in saying this, for he saw that things were going against him, and now he had put the matter on an official rather than a personal basis. The Major would have to decide the case officially.

The Major decided with a speed which dazzled Gargano. He decided that the woman was right but that he could not say so, because if he did the Chief would never regain his authority, and the Major wanted to keep him in office. Therefore he said: "I sentence this woman to one day in jail, suspended sentence. Let her go, Gargano, and gather all the officials of Adano for me at once."

When Carmelina got outside, she ran straight back to the bread shop. The bread was not ready yet, and the people gave her back her place at the head of the line and shouted to her: "What happened, Carmelina? What did they do to you?"

Carmelina told what had happened and she said: "Did you ever hear of such a light sentence in Adano? I believe in my heart that the Mister Major thought I was right. And what was the meaning of assembling the officials? I believe that he was for me."

In the Major's office, the officials gradually assembled. Some were held-over Fascists, some were new appointments to take the place of Fascists who had fled to the hills. In whispers, and with ample gestures, Gargano described to them the humiliation he had suffered, until Major Joppolo said: "Silence, please."

The officials drew up in a circle around the Major's desk. The Major stood up.

"I want you to be my friends," he said. "As my friends, I will consider it my duty to tell you everything I think, for we do not want Adano to be a town of mysteries and a place of suspicion."

"Adano has been a Fascist town. That is natural, because the country was Fascist, therefore the town was also. But now that the Americans have come, we are going to run the town as a democracy."

"Perhaps you do not know what a democracy is. I will tell you."

"Democracy is this: democracy is that the men of the government are no longer the masters of the people. They are the servants of the people. What makes a man master of another man? It is that he pays him for his work. Who pays the men in the government? The people do, for they pay the taxes out of which you are paid."

"Therefore you are now the servants of the people of Adano. I too am their servant. When I go to buy bread, I shall take my place at the end of the line, and I will wait my turn. You too must behave now as servants, not as masters. You must behave as the servant of the man without shoes just as much as of the baron. If I find that any of you are not giving the type of service that I desire, I shall have to remove you from office."

"Remember: you are servants now. You are servants of the people of Adano. And watch: this thing will make you happier than you have ever been in your lives."

On the ninth morning, General Marvin was driving along the road toward Vicinamare and came to the town of Adano. From time to time along the road his driver had had to slow down behind the little Italian two-wheeled carts of the countryside until traffic from the opposite direction had gone by. Then he passed the carts.

As they passed each cart, General Marvin waved his riding crop in such a way as to indicate that the cart should move over. Since there was nothing to move over into except the ditch, which at intervals along the road expanded into tank traps, the carts never did move over. The General grew angrier and angrier.

Now it happened that just as he came to the Fiume Rosso, or Red River, just before Adano, the General's armored car was obliged to slow down for a cart which meanted along right in the center of the road.

The General stood up in his car and shouted in his deep voice (you've read about that voice in the supplements; it's famous; one writer said it was like "a foghorn gong articulate"): "Get off the road!"

Unfortunately the driver of the cart was one Errante Gaetano, who earlier that morning had sold three dozen eggs to American soldiers at fourteen times the proper price, had immediately sunk most of his profits in the wine of his friend Matallano, and was now sleeping a deep and happy sleep on the seat of his cart. At this particular moment he was dreaming about eating the nicer parts of a fish nine feet long. Naturally he did not pay much attention to the voice of General Marvin, no matter how famous the voice, because he could not hear it.

The driver, a nice boy from Massachusetts, put the heel of his hand on the horn button against his own wish. He was in no hurry, and knew that no matter how fast they went, he would only have to wait when they got wherever they were going.

The mind of Errante did not react to the horn, even though the horn was something urgent called a klaxon. The cart kept right down the middle of the road, inasmuch as Errante's mule was a cautious creature, just as wary of ditches on the right as of ditches on the left. This was a quality in his mule of which Errante Gaetano often boasted to his friends. "Give me none of your lop-sided mules," he would say, "give me a mule with a sense of the middle."

This sense was going to be the undoing of his mule just now, because General Marvin's face was beginning to grow dark, and some veins which have never been described in the supplements began to wriggle and pound on his forehead.

"I've had enough of these carts," the General shouted. He was standing up in the car, waving his riding crop around. "Do they think they're going to stop the invasion with carts?"

Errante slept beautifully. He was coming to the gray part of the fish just under the ribs. It melted in the mouth of his dream. There was, however, a sound of thunder in the distance which made him think perhaps he had better cover the fish and finish eating the nice parts after the rain.

General Marvin roared: "Do these Italians think they're going to stop a bunch of tanks with a bunch of wooden carts?"

Colonel Middleton, the General's Chief of Staff, and Lieutenant Byrd, his aide, could see the violence coming. Lieutenant Byrd looked back along the road, but he couldn't see any bunch of tanks. The only thing he could see that was being held up besides the General's armored car was one seep, or amphibious jeep, which did not seem to be in a hurry.

Here it came. General Marvin shouted: "Throw that cart off the road!"

Colonel Middleton, Lieutenant Byrd and the nice boy from Massachusetts ached all over with regret, but there was nothing they could do but obey. The driver stopped the car. The three got out. They held up the seep and enlisted the puzzled aid of three sergeants who were riding in it.

The six men walked forward on the road with the bass aria of General Marvin's anger ringing in their ears. They did not have to run to catch up with the cart. That was another thing about the mule of Errante Gaetano which he liked. The mule was good and slow. "It is a mule," he would say, "which lives in the present and is not always trotting into the future."

Errante stirred in his sleep. The thunder of his dream was the most beautiful and most continuous thunder he had ever heard.

The six men surrounded the cart. Colonel Middleton reached up to waken Errante, but the General's roars grew louder. "What are you doing?" he bellowed. "I told you to throw the thing off the road."

"We were just going to wake this fellow up and get him off first," Colonel Middleton shouted back, but the shout was weak because he knew what the answer would be.

"Serve him right. Throw him too. Just turn the whole thing over."

There was no protest from any of the six men. The only thing which was said was muttered by Lieutenant Byrd: "The old man hasn't been getting enough sleep lately."

Colonel Middleton went to the head of the mule and guided it to the side of the road. He directed the other five men to take positions on the left side of the cart and to lift together when he gave the signal.

General Marvin roared: "Come on, get it over with. What a bunch of softies. Get it over with."

Colonel Middleton gave the signal. The five men lifted.

In his dream, Errante rose up above the nine-foot fish and soared off into space. The sensation was extremely pleasant.

To avoid a musty odor in metal teapot that is seldom used, keep a lump of sugar in the pot.

To keep the potholder handy when working around the stove, tack a piece of tape onto the holder and place around your neck.

A secret to making delicious potato salad is to cut the potatoes while they're warm and while warm add the onions and salad dressing. As the salad cools, the flavors will penetrate the potatoes.

To clean a vase, cut newspapers into small pieces and swish the pieces around in soapy water on the inside.

Hang up dresses and suits, but not sweaters. Lay them flat in a drawer so they will retain their shape.

MAJ. FRED MILLER IN STATES AFTER 3 YEARS IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC; HOME THIS WEEK END

Edward E. Miller received a surprise on Monday when his brother, Major Fred Miller telephoned him from California to inform him that he arrived back in the States that day after three years of overseas duty in the Southwest Pacific. Maj. Miller flew back to the States from Leyte Island in the Philippines where he was in complete charge of the 6th army camp. He told his brother that he had to attend a military conference in California for a few days and then would arrive home. It was reported Friday morning that Maj. Miller had already arrived at Fort Sheridan, Ill. and was expected to be home this week end. He is a son of Mrs. Edward F. Miller.

Maj. Miller left for active service three years and seven months ago. When he went overseas three years ago he first landed in Australia. From there he was sent to New Guinea, and later returned to Australia to recuperate from malaria. After that he served in the New Hebrides Islands, New Guinea again and the Philippines. He will arrive home in time to meet his pal and former fellow-employee, Pfc. Byron Bunkelmann, who is also home from the Philippines. These two buddies met on Leyte in the Philippines before Pfc. Bunkelmann left for home recently and Maj. Miller arranged for Byron's plane trip. The two also met on one or two other occasions in the Southwest Pacific. Fred informed Byron before he left Leyte that he would also be home in May.

Pvt. He wrote that he had a 5-day furlough to visit his brother Pfc. Bob Gruber, also stationed in Hawaii, whom he also saw before going to Iwo Jima.

M/Sgt. Jos. N. Uelmen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Uelmen Sr. of West Bend, residents of Kewaskum before the war, and a Kewaskum high school graduate, sends the following letter telling of his travels through France, Belgium and Germany:

France
2 Apr. '45

"Dear Bill:

"Hold on pal, it's really me. Since it's quite some time that you heard from or of me, I must tell you of my wanderings during the past six months or so.

"Last October a change seemed very welcome so I cast my lot with an intelligence unit. One week after being assigned I found myself in a position as school teacher. That terminated after three months and have since wandered in and around France, Belgium and Germany. It is very interesting indeed, principally because my knowledge of the German language, plus some acquired French, has played an important role in my position, and the kind of work I perform.

"On these tours I have made extensive inquiries for and about some of the boys, but have so far been rather unsuccessful. No doubt it is due to the fact our armies advance so rapidly of late, and of course, my time is somewhat limited in most cases. But I'll keep trying.

"I have visited numerous cities and towns in the above-mentioned countries and have discovered many things of great interest, and have had some thrilling or shall I say exciting experiences. Some day soon I hope to be able to relate some of them. Paris is wonderful to say the least. I have spent considerable time there.

"Such cities as Cologne, Metz, Coblenz, etc. are interesting enough in spite of their terrific bombardment. My prized booty acquisitions are a storm trooper official's cap and a German-French typewriter, which I acquired under peculiar circumstances. More of that later on. I'll send the cap to Eberle's as soon as possible.

"May I add that I have been receiving the Statesman quite regularly and am at present up to the February 9 issue. That's very good considering my

Ward C-1, O'Reilly General Hospital
Springfield, Missouri
April 25, 1945

"Hello Bill:

"This morning after I received the Statesman I was transferred to another ward so I thought it would be best to write the new address to you. However, the only change in the address is the ward number; as you will note it is now C-1 instead of C-2.

"From the looks of things we will have a longer stay here in Springfield than we had expected. I am getting along just fine and hope I continue to do so. The main reason for the detainment is some more work to be done for me. But it all goes to make one tip-top again and one's health is the most important.

"Both Violet and I seem to like it better here in Springfield than we did in Topeka. At least the town is not so dead there being quite a bit to do. Our pass system here is not quite as good as Topeka but for married men with their wives here it's not too bad.

"The weather here has been rather unsettled, lots of rain and dreary days. Sure hope it changes soon and nice summer weather sets in.

"I also hope it will not be too long before we can return to Kewaskum again on furlough but the army will decide that for us.

"It was great news to hear about Marlin Dreher's whereabouts and from all reports he should soon be freed if not already. Enjoyed reading about my best buddy Otto Weddig. Sure wish his next leave and mine will be the same time. Your service notes are always interesting and I say keep up the good work. You've done 100% already. As I did while overseas, so I do now, that is await the arrival of your paper.

"So long now and best regards to your folks, your family and to our friends.

Howard"

When Johnnie comes marching home be sure to have a comfortable bed ready for him. Why not select a complete new bedroom suite for his room. Millers will be glad to help you with this problem.—adv.

War bonds, paid-up life insurance, and advance payments on debts are being suggested by agricultural economists as better investments than over-priced farm land.
