Crippled Indians Team Gives Falls Real Scare

With four players out of the lineup and only two regular starters available, the Kewaskum Indians went to Menomonee Falls just the same Sunday afternoon to tackle the strong Falls five which has lost but one game in Lakes play. The Indians gave Falls a real scare before finally losing out in the last quarter, 42 to 27. In the preliminary the Kewaskum Paposes took a 27 to 14 beating from the league leading, undefeated Menomonee Falls Amvets in a Rivers loop contest.

The Indians played without Dreher, Ketter, Dorn and Stahl, the only two regulars on hand being Honeck and Prost. As a result the Indians had to use four players from the Rivers team and the game turned out to be the best played all season. The short Bunkelmann brothers, Schief and Bartelt, all of whom played in the preliminary game, played again in the Lakes contest and did a great job. While most teams would postpone the game with so many players out of the lineup, Kewaskum showed its sportsmanship by going through with the affair.

The crippled Indians were ahead of the big Falls team 5 to 4 at the quarter and by halftime Kewaskum had increased its lead to 15 to 12 much to the bewilderment of the Falls players and amazement of the crowd on hand. Falls couldn't understand where this very small Kewaskum team got all its fight from and how they could tie up the big Falls players and force them to shoot so hurriedly. Little Byron Bunkelmann, probably the smallest player in the league, held big Fred Benz, one of the league's most consistent high scorers, to six points in the first half. Schief and Bartelt combined held Limbach and Schaik of Falls to two points between them in this half and Kewaskum's fourth player from the Rivers team, Harold Bunkelmann, held his man, Tamms, another big fellow, to one free throw.

In the third period Kewaskum's Rivers players tried out after having played in two games, and Falls worked ahead although the Indians kept them in check. The third quarter ended 30 to 24 in favor of Falls. But in the last quarter the Welders took advantage of Kewaskum's tiredness and scored 12 points to the Indians' 2 to take the battle 46-27. Kewaskum's drive in the first half was sparked by "Barney" Prost, a guard for years, who was outstanding at a forward position. Prost was all over the floor and dropped in 12 points as well as playing a fine defensive game along with Honeck. Benz, top top honors with 18 points, 12 of which came in the last half after Bunkelmann, his guard, became pooped.

In the preliminary contest the Falls Amvets (American veterans), all discharged vets of World War II, won their sixth straight game over the Paposes. The Amvets were ahead all the way, the only time the score was close being in the first quarter when the Paposes held Falls to an 8-6 lead. Mathiak and L. Ullsperger led the winners' attack. The lineups and points scored: Kewaskum—H. Bunkelmann, 2; Boettcher, 0; Bartelt, 0; Kanies, 0; Schief, 0; Goidel, 1; B. Bunkelmann, 0; Mertes, 2; Amvets—Mathiak, 13; Ische, 5; R. Ullsperger, 2; L. Ullsperger, 12; Arnold, 0; Lembo, 0; Wenzel, 0; Clarke, 2; Griehle, 0.

MENO FALLS COMING HERE TUESDAY WITH TWO BUSLOADS

This Saturday night the Kewaskum teams will travel to Hartford for two contests. In the first games played here recently both Hartford teams won only one game. These were the only games won by Hartford thus far and the Indians and Paposes both are confident that they can turn the tables.

Next Tuesday night the Menomonee Falls teams will play return games here, the first starting at 7:30 between the leading Falls Amvets, all discharged vets, and the local Paposes. The Paposes hope to hand the unbeaten Amvets their first setback. In the main game the Indians will try again to upset the strong Falls Lakers, losers of only one game. Miss Bremser Wed to Jerome Schellinger

Miss Caroline Bremser, daughter of William Bremser of Route 2, Kewaskum, became the bride of Jerome Schellinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Schellinger of Route 3, Hartford, in a nuptial service read in St. Michael's church at St. Michaels by the Rev. R. G. Kastner at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning, Dec. 29.

For her marriage the bride chose a gown featuring a white satin bodice and a long-trained celanese skirt. Her fingertip veil was held in place with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses, carnations and baby mums in a steamer bouquet.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Harold Narges as matron of honor and by Miss Ursula Thull as bridesmaid. They wore red velvet bodices and white celanese skirts. Long white gloves, pearl brooches, and white plumed headresses completed their ensembles. They carried bouquets of carnations, baby mums and poinsettias.

The groom was attended by Ralph Schellinger as best man, while Robert Schellinger served as groomsman. Ambrose Bremser and Frederick Schellinger were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in St. Michael's hall for 125 guests. In the evening a wedding dance was held at the Lighthouse ballroom. Mr. and Mrs. Schellinger will reside on the groom's farm on Route 3, Hartford, following their wedding trip.

THE first settlers in Ohio, remembering the nation which had materially assisted the cause of the American Revolution, named their settlement Marietta, in honor of Queen Marie Antoinette of France. That was in 1786, during the stirring years of expansion and growth following the birth of the new republic. It was a group of New Englanders, led by Manasseh Cutler and Gen. Rufus Putnam, that founded the frontier town at the confluence of the Ohio and Muskingum rivers.

The story of Ohio might be told in the study of names. The word Ohio, from the Indian, means "Beautiful River," but the names of Ohio's sons are known around the world. Seven United States Presidents were born in that state: Grant, Garfield, Hayes, Benjamin Harrison, McKinley, Taft and Harding. Howard Chandler Christy, the artist, was born in Morgan county, Buckeye state authors, teachers, lawyers and doctors are known around the world.

Thomas A. Edison and Orville and Wilbur Wright are examples of Ohio names in invention. Others now household words include Van Sweringen, Goodrich, Firestone, Seiberling, Willys, Proctor, Gamble

Rich In Resources.

There are many empires in the state of Ohio, for it is rich in its natural resources as well as in men. The farmer's Ohio is 22 million acres of agriculture. The business man's Ohio is the fourth wealthiest state in the Union. The manufacturer's Ohio is the factories, the mines, the products shipped around the world. The homemaker's Ohio is blessed with an abundance of human and material resources for wholesome, happy living for typical Americans, urban or rural. The vacationist's Ohio provides parks, game preserves, smooth highways, 110 lakes, many rivers, good fishing, deer and small game, rugged hill country, archaeological relics such as Indian mounds, and caves, geological formations, etc.

Ohio is largely a manufacturing state, deserving this industrial prominence mainly because of its natural resources. The advantages afforded for transportation by water as well as by rail cannot be overestimated. Lake Erie and the New York state barge canal make a direct outlet to the Atlantic, while the Ohio and the Muskingum rivers offer communication with Pennsylvania and the Mississippi basin.

The manufacture of iron and steel and their products constitutes the most important industry in Ohio and entitles the state to a place only below Pennsylvania. It includes the work of the blast furnaces, rolling mills and steel plants. Pig iron production in Ohio represents approximately one-fourth of the nation's total.

World Rubber Capital.

Akron is the rubber manufacturing center of the world. Cleveland and Cincinnati are the centers of the state's clothing industry. East Liverpool has one of the world's most extensive pottery works and together with other nearby towns produces about half of the nation's pottery.

Ohio ranks first in the production of tires and tubes, machine tools, stoves, ranges, furnaces, electrical appliances, printing and publishing of periodicals, soap, matches, pottery and porcelain ware, pumps and pumping equipment, collars and steam shovels.

The state ranks second in the production of motor vehicles, bodies and parts; blast furnace products, iron and steel; generating, distribution and industrial apparatus; and machine shop products.

Ohio ranks high in meat packing, bread and baked goods, eggs and poultry, dairy products, hogs, sheep, cattle, wheat, corn, oats, soy beans, hay, apples, grapes, peaches, potatoes, sugar beets and vegetables. Ohio grows more vegetables under glass than any other state in the Union.

A Leader in Manufactures. Ohio is also in the top ten states in the production of paper, chemicals, paints and varnishes, men's clothing, footwear, rolling mill products, petroleum refining, stamped and pressed metal products, hardwoods, limestone, dolomite, clay, sandstone and gravel.

made from ocean to ocean by English kings to various colonies along the Atlantic seaboard.

After the settlement of Marietta, a considerable migration from Virginia was directed to the southern part of Ohio. A great impetus was given to settlement when Gen. Anthony Wayne defeated the Indians of the Northwest in the Battle of Fallen Timbers near the Maumee river.

By an act of congress of April 30, 1802, the territory was authorized to draft a constitution; and on February 19, 1803, Ohio was declared a state.

Edward Tiffin was elected the first governor. Chillicothe became the first capital and Lancaster, Newark and Zanesville each shared the honor of being the seat of state government before it was permanently located in Columbus in 1816.

Mysterious Mounds. Even back in prehistoric days, men must have found Ohio a good land in which to live. The Mound Builders, whose origin is as mysterious as their destiny, devoted an estimated 100,000 man-years of labor to the building of 10,000 mounds and earthworks. These village sites, fortifications and burial places remain in Ohio as the record of these ancient people.

Intermingling in the fabric of Ohio's history and romantic heritage are the French explorers, Jesuit priests, British officers, French traders and Colonial frontiersmen. George Rogers Clark, "Mad" Anthony Wayne, Ebenezer Zane and "Johnny Appleseed" march across its pages of history, for Ohio was once the wild frontier, the unconquered Northwest.

Segall, who wrote "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," so maybe the public will like it as well as they did that one. It's a film fantasy, laid mostly at the Devil's estate in Hades. Muni will play the role of a gangster there, Rains will be seen as the Devil himself. Meanwhile, Art Director Herzbrun is having his troubles; he's investigating all the conceptions of Hades which exist today, trying to decide just what most people think it looks like.

Want to swap predictions for 1946 with Darryl F. Zanuck? Last year he said that Jeanne Crain, Vivian Blaine, June Haver, William Eythe and Dick Haymes would achieve stardom within a year. Now he predicts that Mark Stevens, Glenn Langan, Richard Conte, Nancy Guild and Rex Harrison are those most likely to achieve stardom in Hollywood during the next 12 months.

For months Dick Powell and his wife June Allyson, have been looking forward to the day when they'd move into their remodeled Brentwood home. The work was delayed and delayed, while the Powells were evicted from one hotel and apartment after another. Came December 20, the great day—Dick had to spend it rehearsing his "Rogue's Gallery" broadcast, and June supervised the moving alone.

Claudette Colbert plans to spend the first three months of 1946 in New York, just resting. During 1945 she made three pictures; now, with attendance at the New York opening of "Tomorrow Is Forever" her only definite date till Easter, she hopes to do nothing but catch up with all the things she's been wanting to do for the last four years. But watch those radio dates bob up!

Joan Davis' daughter, Beverly Willis, used to spurn Joan's bedtime story offers, saying, "What! With that voice?" Now, "that voice" starred coast to coast Monday nights on CBS, has the last laugh on daughter—in the movie, "George White's Scandals," Beverly does a take-off on Joan as a child. And Joan's voice was dubbed in to replace Beverly's girlish tones.

It all sounds pretty fantastic, and nobody could be much more in the dark about the whole thing than Hedy Lamarr. The tale is that she and George Englefield submitted to the U. S. government complete details of their own invention of a steering device for torpedoes, four years ago. The plans and model were accepted for investigation, then nothing more was heard about it. But just as Hedy was about to start work in Hunt Stromberg's "The Strange Woman," London newspapers broke a story about the invention, inferring that it was one of the war's secret weapons. Could be. But who can be blamed for thinking it's just a beautiful dream of a smart press agent?

Bob Hawk, of "Thanks to the Yanks," drew a capacity audience recently in a rather unorthodox way. Missing a plane in New Haven, Conn., en route to Boston from New York, he fell asleep in the airport waiting room. One hour later he woke up to find a large audience of men, women and children watching him—maybe hoping he'd talk in his sleep and divulge a few answers.

ODDS AND ENDS—That tap-tap-tapping you may mistake for added sound effects on "The Theater Guild of the Air" is Harold Levy boating a baton tattoo on his music stand to arouse Florence Wightman, harpist—she becomes so interested in the way that she sometimes misses her music cues. . . . On the day when Sidney Blackmer's son, Brewster, was born, he received a fan letter postmarked "Brewster, Oct. 31, 4 P. M., the exact moment of the baby's birth. . . . Michael Curtis interviewed 50 applicants for the role of the four red-headed sons in "Life With Father," just as a starter. It'll be filmed in technicolor.

Maybe this is your chance to earn $10,000. Harpo Marx is offering that tidy sum for a print of a movie he and his brothers, Groucho, Harpo and Zeppo, made in 1922. It was their first, titled "Humoriseque."

An outsider slipped into the rehearsal of "Kate Smith Sings" recently and applauded wildly when swing organist Ethel Smith finished her guest spot on the show. It was Ethel's most ardent fan—also her husband, Ralph Bellamy.

Cake Is a Welcome Treat for Returning Servicemen!
(See Recipe Below)

Welcome Home Parties

If your favorite serviceman is coming home, either on a furlough or a discharge, then you'll want to welcome him home with plenty of mouth-watering cakes and cookies. These, among other things, are the foods they've been dreaming about, so plan to have them in generous quantity.

What about the shortage of sugar? There's no need to worry about that as long as you can get syrups which substitute so nicely. If you follow the recipes exactly as they're given, the texture and taste will be perfect. You won't even miss the sugar.

Keep simplicity in mind for these "Welcome Home" parties. Cake or cookies, perhaps some ready-made sandwich fillings in the refrigerator, fruit and beverages are all you will need. There should be no fuss or bother, just plenty of good food, served appetizingly.

The following cake is made by the newer, shorter method, and can be done either by hand or with an electric mixer, if you are lucky enough to have one. Use the clock or count accurately when beating.

Delicate White Cake.

- 2 cups sifted cake flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 3 egg whites
- 1/2 cup vegetable shortening
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure into sifter with baking powder, salt and 1 cup of sugar.

Beat egg whites until foamy. Add remaining 1/2 cup sugar gradually,

LYNN SAYS:

To Make Soup: Place soup meat and bones in cold water and allow to come slowly to the boiling point. Soups should be simmered slowly to bring out their full flavor.

A good proportion to use is 1 quart of water to every pound of bone and meat.

Soup stock will keep several days in the refrigerator if stored in freshly scalded jars or pitchers. The cake of fat which forms on top should not be removed until all the stock has been used. Then it can be rendered and used for frying or for the fat salvage.

A good batch of soup stock can be used for several days. The first part can be cooked with vegetables; the second batch with noodles or rice; and the third time herbs or dumplings may be added.

To make clear soup, the white of 1 egg may be mixed with 1 teaspoon of cold water and boiled in the soup for 2 minutes. The crushed egg shell may also be used before boiling, and removed by straining through a cheesecloth.

If You Live in a Two-Story House Here Are Ways to Save Steps

By ELIZABETH MACRAE BOYKIN
There are two ways to look at those stairs—either they're an opportunity for constant slimming exercise that maybe you wouldn't otherwise get around to, or else they're something to dread like doing the dishes day after day the rest of your life.

Actually though, dreading another trip upstairs isn't the way to feel about a two-story house. Even if you're not the type who needs the exercise! If you plan your routine a little better, you'll find that many of your trips up and down the stairs aren't really necessary.

But let's take the first point—is this trip necessary? Are you running up with one thing in your hand when perhaps there are several things you should be taking on each trip? A good way to settle that is to have a table, cabinet or chest near the top and bottom of the stairs for collecting the things to go beating only until the mixture will hold up in soft peaks. Set aside.

Have shortening at room temperature; mix or stir just to soften. Sift in dry ingredients; add milk and vanilla and mix until all the flour is dampened. Then beat 2 minutes. Add egg white mixture and beat 1 minute longer. (Count only actual beating time, or beating strokes. Allow 100 to 150 full strokes per minute. Scrape bowl and beater often.) Turn batter into two 8-inch layer pans which have been greased, lined on the bottoms with waxed paper and greased again. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven about 25 minutes. Spread prepared Butterscotch or Chocolate filling in between layers and sprinkle top with powdered sugar.

Corn Syrup Substitution: Use 1/2 cup corn syrup and 1/4 cup sugar in above recipe. Measure 1/2 cup sugar into sifter and use 1/4 cup sugar in meringue. Decrease milk 2 tablespoons. Combine syrup with milk and vanilla.

If you prefer icing the cake to sprinkling powdered sugar over it, then you will want a festive Furlough Frosting.

- Furlough Frosting.
- 2 egg whites
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup light corn syrup
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat egg whites with salt until stiff enough to hold up in peaks but not dry. Pour syrup in a fine stream over the egg whites, beating constantly about 10 to 15 minutes, or until of the right consistency to spread. Add vanilla.

Mince-meat Refrigerator Cookies.

(Makes 7 dozen cookies)

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1 egg, beaten
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 cup mince-meat
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts

Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add lemon extract and lemon rind. Add beaten egg and mix well. Sift together flour, salt, soda and cinnamon. Fold gradually into the creamed mixture alternately with the mince-meat. Add nuts. Mix into a stiff dough. Form into rolls and wrap in waxed paper. Store in refrigerator until ready to use. Slice 1/4 inch thick and bake on ungreased cookie sheets in a moderate (350-degree) oven about 15 minutes.

Kathleen Norris Says:

The Case of Two Wives

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

"Archie and I went on a trip as so many people did when gas rationing stopped, and we were quietly remarried in a distant town."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"IN ALL your long experience of answering problems," writes Hilma Johnson, of Salt Lake City, "I don't know that you've ever had quite this one before. I've done something wrong, somewhere along the line, but I don't know just where."

"I was married seven years ago to a man named Archie; we were both 23. Ours was a true love match, and it was a great grief to us both that no children were born to us. We were, I believe, unusually congenial and happy."

"When the war came, Archie was one of the first to go, with the engineers. I did not see him for three years. About a year after he left he wrote a desperate letter, telling me that he and a young Belgian girl, a nurse, had been lovers, and that she was expecting a child. He begged me for a divorce, and for the child's sake I agreed to it. I pretended a business trip to Elko, Nev., and quietly obtained it there."

"I closed the apartment, stored our furniture, and went back to live with my parents. I had gotten a good job, and had told no one, not even my mother, of the changed relationship between Archie and myself."

"Seven months ago Archie came back, a broken man. He looked years older, his hearing had been permanently — but slightly — injured, and to reinstate himself in his old job seemed to him more than he could do."

Resume Old Life.

"He turned to me, and as nobody suspected what had occurred, it was quite natural that he should be taken back into my life on the old terms; he had never been taken out of my heart. Everyone rejoiced with me, and nobody suspected the existence of the Belgian wife and baby. A few months ago my happy suspicions that I was to have a child were confirmed by our doctor, and I thought the secret of the divorce and marriage could be kept forever. Archie and I went on a trip, as so many people did when gas rationing stopped, and we were quietly remarried in a distant town."

"Now Marie, the Belgian wife, writes that she is going to come to America immediately after Christmas, that their divorce has never been valid in her eyes, and that she wishes once more to be his wife. Archie, for the sake of the boy, has been sending her money regularly, but when she left him it was with the statement that their marriage was not a real marriage, because of his divorce, and that before she returned to Belgium she would change even her name."

"This predicament finds us completely dazed, and we don't know what to do. My employers want me to continue with them as long as possible, and to return as soon after the baby comes as I can. Archie is already making himself valuable; we cannot tear up roots here, especially as my father has had a stroke, and I am needed to keep up my mother's spirits. What can we do?"

"My dear Hilma, a divorce lawyer here tells me that Archie's Belgian-born wife has no claim on him except for support of the child, and I can tell you that when she married a divorced man she knew that

STAND YOUR GROUND

A wife who apparently did the right thing all along finds herself in an unfortunate mess. Her husband, Archie, met a Belgian woman while he was serving abroad in the army. Eventually he wrote Hilma, telling her that the Belgian woman was going to bear him a child, and that he wanted to marry her to protect her and the baby. He asked Hilma to obtain a divorce.

With much misgivings, Hilma did get a divorce, so quietly that none of her friends knew about it. Then Archie came back, tired and deafened. He slipped back into the old relationship with Hilma. A little later he got a divorce from his Belgian wife, and remarried Hilma, very quietly. No one knows about the complications and all would be well, excepting for the Belgian woman. She threatens to come to America, and wants Archie to become her husband again. She is receiving support money from Archie for herself and the baby.

Miss Norris advise Hilma to stand her ground. The Belgian woman can probably not get any satisfaction in American courts, if she should come. It is probable that all she wants is to rid of the responsibility of the child.

she was doing something that in her own mind was illegal, however, the actual law stands. It seems to me that safety for you and Archie lies in facing the music and not being afraid of the consequences. Trying to hide and pretend are the real things to fear.

Tell Her to Stay in Europe.

Have Archie write her, of course, that he entirely disapproves of her coming to America, and that there is no possibility of the restoration of conjugal rights, as the British law-courts put it. Let him tell her that if she remains where she is, her allowance will continue, but that if she comes to Salt Lake City she will have to fight through the courts for her claims and may — and probably will, lose her suit and remain her of the conditions under which Archie and she asked you for a divorce.

If this fails and she comes, have no fear of publicizing this affair. Only concealment will make it interesting to the newspapers; to admit that it all occurred and is to be handled openly and honestly, will be to lose all value as news. It is possible that it is the child who is complicating matters; if her purpose is to get rid of that responsibility, then it might be a magnificent gesture on your part to offer to take this little half-brother of your own child, telling anyone interested that you have adopted a Belgian baby refugee. Say little, but avoid all the difficulties that secrecy engenders, and you'll find the thing will present itself over and be forgotten.

Bright Clothes for Children

Grown-ups sometimes wear drab colors, but children like gaiety. Also there's a safety factor to consider — a child's bright clothes may give the first slow signal to a motorist, or, in rural sections, to a hunter. So, when the main part of an outfit must be of a dull, uninteresting fabric, try adding bright trim or accessories. Dress up a little girl's black or gray coat with a red collar or a plaid ascot tie. Or complete the picture with a red cap or mittens.

Boiling Is Best Way to Whiten Clothes in Winter

Rainy, cloudy washdays are the rule as winter comes on, and washings will seldom benefit from bleaching as they do in the summer sun. The greatest single factor to help keep white clothes white, in spite of indoor drying, are correct washing and rinsing in hot soft water.

In the old days, boiling was one of the regular washday operations; but now it is recommended only for sterilizing clothing, bedding and handkerchiefs after illness. For regular use, it is more work than it's worth and may even be a health hazard to the homemaker who goes outdoors into the cold air suddenly. If whitening is needed, boiling is an effective way to do it and is not harmful to white cotton and linen fabrics. Habitual use of an excessive amount of a commercial bleach weakens fabrics, especially if thorough rinsing does not follow. A commercial bleach is suitable only for white cottons and linens.

Man in Search of Hotel Room

Applicant.—Can I get a suite?
Clerk.—You're in the wrong line; the psychopathic cases are in that other one.
Applicant.—I'm not crazy; I'm just over-planning.
Clerk.—Please stop annoying me.
Applicant.—Very well, I want to be reasonable... I'll forget the suite and take a double room with bath.
Clerk.—You just wish to be real fair?
Applicant.—That's it. I might even consider a single.
Clerk.—For what week next July?
Applicant.—Don't make it that difficult. I've got to have a place to sleep tonight.
Clerk.—Anybody who sleeps here tonight has been booked since Pearl Harbor.
Applicant.—There must have been somebody cancel since that time.
Clerk.—There is no such thing as a cancellation any more. If a man decides not to come he raffles off his reservation.

Applicant (confidentially).—Listen, I have a reservation. I wrote in four months ago.

Clerk.—What was the name?
Applicant.—Eisenhower.
Clerk.—There are 26 Eisenhowers here now.
Applicant.—Come to think of it, my name is Chester Bowles.
Clerk.—We have 11 Chester Bowles, 18 General Marshalls and 7 MacArthurs ahead of you.
Applicant.—You look like a feller I want to school with back in Ansonia.
Clerk.—That's an old one.
Applicant.—How's your mother?
Clerk.—That's been tried, too.
Applicant.—What of democracy? ... the pursuit of life, liberty and indoor sleeping?
Clerk.—Don't rub it in. I tell you flatly there are no rooms.
Applicant.—Then why do they put clerks at these windows?
Clerk.—We're being DISCIPLINED!

THOUGHTS IN A HOUSING CRISIS

The woodchuck now seems smart to me—

On me he has the laughter; He digs himself a winter home— And pulls the thing in after—

I'm even jealous of the skunk— His odor I'm forgivin'; I'd gladly smell that way if I Could dig a place to live in.

The housing crisis has reached a point where it is suggested that "Tenting Tonight" or "Home, Sweet Home" was an American folk song.

Six Argentine autists have completed a trip from Buenos Aires to New York by automobile over the Pan American highway. They report the most disturbing feature of the trip to have been those constant cracks, "Hey, where do you think you're going?"

Elmer Twitchell is writing a book about congress. Title: "Forever Yammer."

The Office of Price Stabilization says the cost of living increase since January, 1941, has been 33 per cent. You can tell from this that it hasn't tried to buy an apple pie, a pair of socks, a bathtub faucet or toy for Junior in all that time.

Barney Oldfield has remarried the wife he divorced almost a quarter of a century ago. The old models are the best.

MacArthur's war criminals hunt is now so close to the throne that Emperor Hirohito must feel as if he were sitting on one of those disappearing chairs at Steeplechase Park.

There is every indication that among their New Year resolutions for 1946 many people took a pledge to give up working.

County Agent Notes

RICHFIELD DAILY TO VISIT COUNTY AGENT LABORATORY
On Friday afternoon, Dec. 25, the members of the Richfield Dairy Herd Improvement Association visited to join the County Dairy Herd Improvement Association which operates a milk testing laboratory in West Bend. To date more than 100 dairy farmers are keeping monthly records of the production and feed costs of their herds. This type of service and good feeding practices have made Washington county one of the top leading dairy counties in the state.

FARM MANAGEMENT GROUP FORMS COUNTY ORGANIZATION
County farmers who are subscribing for the Farm Management Service to be offered by the College of Agriculture have set up a county organization with the following officers:
President—Milo Salter, R. 1, West Bend.
Vice-president—Clarence Connell, Route 1, Germantown.
Secretary—Don Zinke, Route 1, West Bend.
Mr. Zinke and County Agent E. E. Skallskey on Saturday, Dec. 29, were delegates to a district meeting representing eight counties in which this service is to be offered.

WHITE CLOVER GROWING AN IMPORTANT CROP
About 150 white clover growers of Washington county and surrounding area met in Roth's hall, Slinger, and discussed problems affecting the growing of Dutch white clover with professors Briggs, Ahleren and Burcalow, all members of the agronomy department, College of Agriculture.

Washington county in 1945 was the leading white clover seed producing area in the United States and every effort is being made by local growers to maintain this record. There are, however, certain obstacles that curtail quality seed production. One of these is the presence in many white clover fields of a weed known as yellow trefoil. The seeds of this weed are almost identical in appearance and size with those of white clover. They cannot be easily separated. The elimination of this weed was given much consideration.

Considerable discussion was also given to the growing of Ladino clover which is closely related to white clover and which readily crosses-pollination with white clover. It was thought best to grow Ladino clover in areas not commonly growing white clover seed. Ladino clover is used largely in pasture mixtures.

An urgent appeal was also made by representatives of the Midwest Barley Improvement Association for the continued growing of barley as a cash crop by farmers of eastern Wisconsin. The soil in this part of the state, it was pointed out, is well adapted to the growing of quality mowing barley.

DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION CONVENTION DATES CHOSEN
Members of the Wisconsin Dairymen's association will hold their annual convention Friday and Saturday, Feb. 15 and 16, at the College of Agriculture, Madison, R. R. Dugdale, secretary announced this week. Plans for the convention were outlined at a recent meeting of the association's board of directors. State dairy cattle breed associations have been invited to hold their annual meetings at the same time. Friday, Feb. 15, will be devoted to these breed meetings, with a joint breed association and dairymen's banquet in the evening.

Outstanding speakers on dairy research and herd health will take part in the program.

FEED BRED GILTS ALFALFA MEAL
Heavy snowfall and close winter confinement of gilts and bred cows have made it difficult to feed the bred gilt.

As long as the weather was nice and there was still some green feed to be had, almost any ration would let the herd "get by" in fair shape. Animals were able to protect themselves, if given a chance, by 100,000 to 500,000 protein, the vitamins, and the minerals that they needed. It may show hints the search for these great feeding essentials.

In making the needed change in feeding plans, James Lacey, specialist in animal husbandry, suggests the use of some leguminous hay in the feeds for winter. He states that alfalfa or clover fed in some convenient manner, comes the nearest to pasture itself. This hay provides the extra protein that may be needed for the unborn pigs. It furnishes minerals in plentiful amounts. It is an excellent source of vitamins, both A and D. Hay may be fed in racks, uncut and unmixed with other feeds. Or it may be fed as a meal and may make up as much as 25% of the grain mixture.

QUALITY EGGS PAY WELL FOR EXTRA EFFORT
Quality eggs are going to pay their producers well for the extra care taken to obtain them.

"Barry" Hayes, extension poultryman at the University of Wisconsin, points out that recent weakness in egg markets, particularly on under-grade and current receipt eggs, has apparently resulted from concern over disposal of between 75 and 100 million pounds of frozen eggs held by egg driers whose contracts with the armed services have been cancelled. This concern has been so great that the United States Department of Agriculture has assured the poultry industry that there will be no "dumping" of frozen eggs as surplus property. They will be disposed of in an orderly manner.

However, the farmer who produces quality eggs does not have to be concerned over the dumping of frozen eggs. There is a demand for quality eggs. They bring better prices. There will be a greater demand for them.

Therefore, Wisconsin poultrymen would do well to plan to sell eggs on grade rather than as current receipts in the immediate post-war future, because quality eggs will bring a better price. This fact has been borne out this last summer. During August a little more than $2 per case was paid by a dealer for eggs sold on grade than paid for those if sold on a current receipt basis.

To produce quality eggs they need to be gathered two or three times per day and stored in a cool place until marketed. The shells should be uncleaned and all eggs marketed within a week after being produced.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Pushes Unification of Armed Forces; U.S. Moves for Active Participation in UNO

Released by Western Newspaper Union. (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Composed of war widows and children and men needed to care for their families in Japan, first batch of Nipponese repatriates are shown aboard small steamer leaving Shanghai. In all, some 300,000 Japanese, including troops, will be evacuated from the greater Shanghai area.

SERVICE MERGER: On Way

With President Truman throwing his full weight behind a merger of the fighting services, early congressional action on unification of the army, navy and air forces was foreseen.

Meanwhile, rougher sailing loomed on the chief executive's proposal for compulsory military training for youths 18 to 20 years of age to build up an experienced reserve adequate to meet future emergencies.

In casting his lot for the merger of the armed forces after strenuous naval objections to unification, Mr. Truman called for a single department of national defense under a civilian head, with assistants for the various branches, and a military chief of staff, with commanders from the three services.

The military leaders would join with the President in an advisory council. Maximum efficiency would result from unification, the President declared, because close co-ordination would acquaint each branch of the armed forces with the capabilities and limitations of the others, and economy would be achieved by eliminating a duplication of effort and supply.

FARM BUREAU: Discuss Parity

Despite imperfections in the present parity formula, American farmers were urged to retain the system by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson addressing the annual convention of the Farm Bureau in Chicago, Ill. Referring specifically to the government program for price support at 90 per cent of parity, Anderson said varying conditions for different crops might fail to promote maximum production.

Even with milk 100 per cent of parity at the 1910-14 base, output is below requirements, he said, while eggs at 90 per cent might lead to plentiful production.

Declaring that the parity formula should be based upon the 10 years preceding the present program rather than on the 1910-14 level, Edward A. O'Neal, farm bureau president, called for all agricultural products to unite on an over-all plan rather than insist on a separate system for each commodity.

Pointing up the need for additional rural health and education facilities, Senator Hill (Dem., Ala.) said that with millions of farm dollars ending up as profits in industrial districts after consumer purchases, only federal taxation and expenditures for social service could assure the return of some of the money back to agricultural areas for public purposes.

TELEVISION: Charge Restriction

Accusing Scopony, Ltd., of Great Britain and Television Productions Inc. and General Precision Equipment Corporation of America of retarding development of television in the U. S. through a cartel agreement dividing markets between Europe and the western hemisphere, the government filed anti-trust charges in New York City.

In stating that the companies had agreed to stay out of competing areas, the government declared that the American firms had obtained exclusive rights to an advanced television set controlled by Scopony, but had done nothing to either develop and exploit the apparatus here or promote its sale and use.

Employing an independent light along the principle of the motion picture projector, the British product is capable of transmitting images 20 by 24 inches on home sets, 3 by 4 feet on school and club sets and 12 by 15 feet through a central agreement government said. In contrast, American sets are limited to reproductions of 4 by 6 inches and 6 by 8 inches.

JAPAN: Tells Secret

One of the top disclosures was Konoye's report on the evolution of a peace plan covering the Far East after unofficial negotiations in which former Postmaster General Walker and Bishop Walsh of the Catholic Maryknoll missionaries figured with government knowledge. Sabotaged by Ultra-Nationalist Japanese officials, the plan called for Jap withdrawal from China, restriction of immigration thereto, and co-operation in the restoration of the open-door trade policy. In return the U. S. was to recognize Manchuria.

In another revelation, Konoye reported Russia's tentative agreement to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis in 1940 under inclusion of Iran and India in her sphere of influence. No concrete alliance developed, however, because of the failure of the Nazis and Reds to work out details, and the whole plan collapsed with Germany's drive to the East in 1941.

LABOR: Talk Turky

With early maneuverings for position jolted by President Truman's request for fact-finding anti-strike machinery to speed settlement of labor disputes, the CIO United Automobile Workers and major producers entered into discussions of principal issues, with Ford continuing to steal the show.

With the UAW's Ford division having provided the first real break in the deadlock with agreement to penalize wildcat strikers hindering output, the company took one step closer toward agreement by proposing a 15-cent an hour wage increase. Despite Ford's alteration of the union's security plan and the UAW's rejection of the company's wage offer, the two propositions provided a meeting ground for a settlement somewhere between.

Meanwhile, the Sinclair-United Oil Workers (CIO) pact providing for an 18 per cent wage raise and union assistance against wildcat striking loomed as the model contract for all of industry. In arriving at a settlement, H. F. Sinclair declared that the two parties agreed that voluntary solution of disputes was preferable to government intervention, such as proposed by Mr. Truman.

SHIP SINKING: Convict Skipper

Acquitted on a charge of inefficiency in the sinking of the cruiser Indianapolis in the Pacific last July with a loss of 880 lives, Capt. Charles B. McVay was found guilty of negligence in the operation of the ship, with sentence subject to review of the secretary of the navy.

Clearance on the charge of inefficiency for not issuing timely orders to leave the vessel after it was struck by a torpedo followed McVay's testimony that he had at first believed the ship could be saved but then called for its abandonment when convinced of the real extent of damage. Shortly after the Indianapolis capsized, taking a heavy toll of life.

In being convicted on the negligence charge, McVay was accused of failing to order a zig-zag course during the trip from Guam to Leyte and thus divert the aiming of a U-boat. In defense, McVay contended that poor visibility and lack of moon that night governed his decision not to take on a diversionsary course.

Questions and Answers

Q.—Are requirements for discharge in the seabees the same as in the navy? And can a seabee be eligible for state-side duty before he has achieved enough discharge points? Mrs. W. C. G., Diggs, Va.

A.—Yes, point ratings in the seabees are the same as in other branches of the navy and they can be assigned for duty anywhere in continental U. S. at any time.

Q.—How many points are required for a discharge from the coast guard? Also does a man in the coast guard get points when he gets married? A reader, Coleridge, Neb.

A.—As of December 11, 1945, enlisted men in the coast guard are required to have 40 points to become eligible for discharge. To obtain the dependency points, he must have been married on or before August 15, 1945, and must have made a financial allotment to his wife.

Q.—My grandson was drowned in Germany after serving over two years in the army. His insurance was made out to me, as his parents are dead and I raised him from the day he was born. However, after sending in his insurance papers, the government wrote they didn't give it to grandmothers. Is there anything I can do or anyone I could write to so I can get it? Mrs. C. E. H., Hinsdale, Ill.

A.—The veterans administration informs us that legally, grandmothers are not included in the range of kinship to whom insurance is payable, but in your case suggest that you legally establish your local parental or that you have acted as parent to this boy and contact your nearest regional veterans administration office. Your local selective service board, Red Cross, or other service organization can aid you with your case.

Q.—My boy has been in the South Pacific 18 months. He is on Titan Island, U. S. Naval base hospital No. 19, Navy No. 3247. When will he be home on a furlough?—Mrs. T. H. G., Vernonia, Oregon.

A.—You do not give sufficient information concerning your son's time in service to venture an answer. You should give his age and complete service record.

Q.—Does the period a serviceman enlists for mean anything or not? Our son became 18 years of age January 29. He enlisted in the navy for the duration of the war and six months after, now he has been sent to Japan and that surely does not look as if he is to be released soon. I am particularly concerned because he has another year in high school. Some boys in his class who entered service last year are back in school now. How can that be for one and not for all? Isn't the war over since August? Mother, Sunbury, Pa.

A.—You are right; it does not look as though your son will be home soon. The war is not over, and will not be over until so declared by the President or congress. No peace treaty has been signed. Only the surrender of Japan and Germany has been concluded. Unless he is released on points before, your son is eligible for service for six months after formal declaration of end of the war is made.

LUFTWAFFE RECORDS:

A 250-ton documentary record of the German air force which will tell the American people more about the Luftwaffe than the Germans themselves know, has been housed at Wright Field, Ohio.

In disclosing possession of the records, the army presumed possession of a detailed report on German research would save the government a great deal of time and money by eliminating duplication of experimentation in those fields in which the Germans had surpassed us.

There are approximately 5,600 drawings, for instance, of the V-2 rocket bomb alone. So many new weapons are represented that it was necessary to compile a German-English dictionary to cover words concerning gas turbines, rocket and jet propulsion, controlled missiles, electronics, aero-medicine, armament, etc.

President Maintains New Deal Policies

Year-End Check Shows Some Change of Faces But Not of Any Principles; FDR Intimates Remain in High Posts.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Sufficient time has elapsed since President Truman went into the White House to warrant a year-end inventory of his reconstituted federal setup, and the result adds up to many changes in personalities, but little switch of fundamental policies.

In its numerical aspect, the changes wrought by the President suggest more of a shakeup than actually has taken place, for there still are many intimates of FDR in high positions, some of them promoted by Mr. Truman.

James F. Byrnes, secretary of state and top man in the Truman cabinet, was lifted out of the relative obscurity of a "career senator" from the south by Mr. Truman. He came within reach of his present eminence under the guidance of the late President, who appointed him to the United States Supreme court, made him war mobilizer and economic stabilizer, and took him to international conferences which built him to the point where he was a "natural" for the state portfolio when Edward R. Stettinius Jr. was moved out by political party considerations. Byrnes was schooled in the Roosevelt way and he continues along those paths.

Henry Morgenthau probably would have remained as secretary of treasury had the President who appointed him lived on. But while he was more a personal friend, he was less a political associate of Mr. Roosevelt than was Fred Vinson, the present secretary. And again, it was FDR who brought Vinson to the forefront—made him a federal judge, then took him into the White House to share Byrnes' multiple functions and burdens. He had little more than a passing acquaintance with Truman and his present post was a promotion for a "Roosevelt man."

Robert E. Hannegan, postmaster general, was slated for that office before Mr. Roosevelt passed away. It is political custom to award that plum to the winning party's national committee chairman, whether the Democrats or the Republicans win.

Robert Patterson, secretary of war, came in during the Roosevelt administration as assistant to Henry Stimson, who was a team Vice Republican in the top spots of the department. He was advanced by President Truman when Mr. Stimson retired, although there were strong representations made to the White House on behalf of other candidates, practically all of them Democrats.

Original Roosevelt cabinet members retained by Mr. Truman are James V. Forrestal in navy, Henry A. Wallace in commerce, and Harold L. Ickes in interior.

Anderson Took Off 'Heat' on Food

Clinton P. Anderson, the secretary of agriculture, won White House eulogy during Roosevelt days by taking the heat off the administration with a food investigation. Labor Secretary Lewis B. Schwellenbach has been described as "more New Deal than Roosevelt."

Continuing, it was President Roosevelt who brought Tom C. Clark, the present attorney general, into government service, placing him in line for the advancement which Mr. Truman gave him. Paul V. McNutt, who left recently to become high commissioner in the Philippine islands, was originally a Roosevelt appointee.

Even in the intimate surroundings of the White House will be found several "hold-overs," notably scholarly William D. Hassett, a presidential secretary whose typewriter has turned out many of the lyrical speeches delivered by the late President, and whose skills can be detected by Washington newsmen in Mr. Truman's more formal addresses.

J. A. Krug remained at the head of the War Production board until it went out of existence, although the new President was often critical of WPB when he was presiding over the senate committee which bore his name.

Almost every move made by Mr. Truman in organizing his official family had underlying it a record of Roosevelt association. There has been only one notable discernible departure from the administrative status quo so far as fundamentals go, and that was the appointment of John W. Snyder as chief of the office of war mobilization and reconversion. Snyder was a friend and military buddy of the President for a quarter of a century. But Washington hears that the OWMR director is being sidetracked, that the President is taking counsel with Secretary Vinson on subjects that rightly fall into Snyder's bailiwick and that a resignation has been offered.

There is nothing in the Truman appointments to indicate whether the President is turning to the right or the left of center—using FDR as "center." Mr. Truman is franker than most public figures and commentators—he says he frankly doesn't know what "center" is, imagines he's about the same as his late chief.

Opinion is growing in the capital that the government is "reconverting" too rapidly and that the force of speed without direction will have harmful results.

Except for a few generalized thrusts, the White House has shown no disposition to come to grips with the wage-price dilemma, hasn't attempted to develop a comprehensive program to eliminate the element of chance, and, in the opinion of critical congressmen, is simply trusting that things somehow will work out all right in the end if left to their own devices.

Mr.—Feel there is a cat there, too, my love, and go to sleep.

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—the risk of exposure to infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up at night, leg pain, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Stresses Need for Additional Knowledge of Nutrition

A drastic change in the diet may be harmful even when it adds beneficial food, Dr. C. A. Elvehjem, professor of biochemistry at the University of Wisconsin, asserted in calling for increased research into nutrition to permit wider knowledge of balanced consumption.

For example, Dr. Elvehjem says, most workers in this field regard a high level of protein in the diet as desirable, but it has recently been discovered that a deficiency in vitamin B6, or pyridoxine, develops faster on high protein diets. A high level of fat may tend to reduce tooth decay, he continues, but it may also tend to reduce the necessary synthesis of vitamins in the intestinal tract.

The war helped to change the trend of investigation by putting nutrition on a "quantitative basis," Dr. Elvehjem asserts. Previously, for many years biochemists had been primarily interested in the identification and isolation of new essential nutrients, he points out, but the war made it necessary to consider possible serious food shortages, the necessity of feeding millions of military personnel in every part of the world under every conceivable condition, and the possibility of making drastic substitutions in the civilian diet.

To cope with these problems, it was necessary to establish the daily human requirement of each of the known essential nutrients and to determine and tabulate the distribution of these nutrients in all foods, he notes, and the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council has assembled much information of this type.

Future of Farm Loan Agencies in Doubt

FARM leaders here, governmental and private, are split wide open over the question of whether or not farm credit agencies should be combined under one head within the department of agriculture, or separated from the department and operated as an independent agency.

On the one hand, there is the Farm Bureau federation, the National Council of Farm Co-operatives and the National Grange who are backing the bill introduced by Con. John W. Flannagan Jr., (D., Va.) which would separate the farm credit agencies from the department of agriculture and place them under the jurisdiction of a bi-partisan board to be named by the President, of which the secretary of agriculture would be an ex-officio member.

On the other hand, the progressive National Farmers union, the secretary of agriculture and a group of farm-minded congressmen are seeking to retain the farm credit agencies within the department of agriculture under direct control of the secretary, but with the appointment of an advisory board and an assistant secretary of agriculture, who would be the executive administrator of the agencies.

And aside from these two schools of thought, there is another group headed by Rep. Harold Cooley, (D., N. C.) and Reid F. Murray, (R., Wis.) who are seeking to set up an entirely new corporation to be known as the Farmers' Home corporation, which would operate upon a plan similar to the Federal Housing administration insofar as farm loans are concerned and which would assume many of the functions of the existing farm loan agencies, within the D. of A.

Struggle for Control

Thus, there is a three-way fight for control of the multi-billion-dollar farm lending agencies, which since their inception in May, 1933, have made various types of farm loans through June 30, 1945, totaling $16,868,539,301 under the head of the Farm Credit administration, and an additional billion dollars under the Farm Security administration.

The various lending agencies, which have been established under the Farm Credit administration government, include the Federal Land banks, the Production Credit corporation, the Federal Intermediate Credit banks, the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation, the 13 Banks for Co-operatives, Emergency Crop and Feed loans and the Regional Agricultural Credit corporation, all of which, as of June 30, 1945 had loans outstanding amounting to $2,246,628,252.

The National Council of Farm Co-operatives and the Farm Bureau federation believe the Farm Credit agencies should be set up on an independent basis much the same as the Federal Reserve system, and should co-ordinate the different fields of farm credit loans to eliminate gaps and duplications, operating within the framework of the national governmental policy, under the jurisdiction of a bi-partisan board of six to seven members.

Combine FSA With FCA

Sec. of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson believes the Farm Security administration should be combined with the FCA, but by retaining all agencies within the department of agriculture. He believes that farm loans are inter-related with all the other functions of the department, and that persons who have a voice in making credit available to farmers should have a voice in the formulation of other farm programs to make a maximum contribution to the welfare of the farmer.

"Because of the prevailing view that agencies of the federal government should be grouped under cabinet officers responsible directly to the president," Mr. Anderson said, "I believe that for the long run, the question is not whether the farm credit and the farm security programs should be set up within an independent agency of the federal government. To me, the question rather seems to be whether it is more appropriate for these agencies to be in the department of agriculture, or in some other executive department of government. Since these are farmers' programs, it seems obvious to me that they belong in that department which is engaged primarily with the problems of the farmers."

This writer believes that since Mr. Flannagan is chairman of the house agricultural committee and his measure has been reported out for passage, it is likely it will stand a good chance to pass the house in spite of the opposition of the agricultural secretary. Whether it will get by the senate, however, is another question.

The Farmers union believes the Flannagan bill will definitely kill the FSA and they are standing alongside the secretary in the fight to keep the credit agriculture.

The FSA, by the way, has made approximately a million loans for rural rehabilitation, totaling some billion dollars.

Breakdown of loans outstanding as of June 30, 1945 in the various Farm Credit administration agencies are as follows: Federal Land bank, $1,370,132,838; Intermediate Credit banks, $314,985,521; Production Credit corp., $266,720,122; Banks for Co-op, $194,859,835; Federal Farm Mortgage Corp., $1,370,132,838; Emergency Crop and Feed loans, $111,866,532; Regional Agricultural Credit loans, $9,521,715.

Tomorrow is Forever by GWEN BRISTOW

THE STORY THUS FAR: Spratt Herlong, motion picture producer, met and married Elizabeth, whose first husband, Arthur Kitzredge, was reported killed in World War I, but who later appeared in Hollywood and secured a job from

Spratt. Under the name of Kessler, and with his disfigurements, he was not recognized. He was a frequent visitor at the Herlong home and they all became good friends. One day while they were waiting for Spratt, Arthur told Elizabeth that he realized the fight she was going through, knowing that Dick would soon be going away to war. She said that so far she could only see the war in terms of her son, not as a noble struggle for a better world.

CHAPTER XVII

"I wish there was something I could say to you," he told her in a low voice.

Elizabeth had clasped her hands and was moving them against each other restlessly. "I don't know why I feel so much like talking to you. Maybe it's just that if I don't talk it out pretty soon I don't know what will become of me. Do you mind listening?"

"I want to," he answered, with such simple sincerity that she could have no doubt of his sympathy. He hesitated an instant, then asked, "Can we sit down, Mrs. Herlong?"

"How stupid of me!" she exclaimed. She hurried to lead the way to two deck chairs placed on the lawn, at the side of the house. Cherry had left a sweater on one of them, and Elizabeth put it on, for the evening chill was blowing in from the sea. "We aren't just courteous about not noticing your limitations, Mr. Kessler," she remarked as they sat down, "we're usually not even aware of them."

When he answered it was in a matter-of-fact voice. "This is one of the things I found hardest to get used to," he said. "I mean, asking for a chair. I had always been so healthy that I was the one who had to be reminded not to expect too much of other people. Please don't be embarrassed—I'm not."

"Are you cold?" asked Elizabeth. "No. What was it you wanted to tell me?"

"Spratt is my second husband—you didn't know that, did you? It's not important in any personal sense between us, it never has been important and it wouldn't be now except that my first husband was killed in the last war. I loved him very much. Of course, now, looking back on it, it's easy to say it shouldn't have mattered so much. I was a young girl with all my life before me, and as it happened I met Spratt and everything turned out as you've seen it. But at the time there was no way for me to look forward. When I remember it—"

After a moment Kessler asked, "Did you suffer so horribly?" "I can't tell you what it was. It wasn't anything anybody could understand except somebody who had been through it. I had loved him so, and then all of a sudden he was dead. It was—anyway, I never went through anything like it before, and I never have again. Of course, it's all over—I don't even think of it very often, but now—"

She stopped again. There was a silence that seemed to last a long time. At last Kessler said, in a voice so low she barely heard him, "Yes? But now?" "Don't you understand? I can't take it again. I can't. I thought there never would be anything else like that. It was over and done with. My world had been shot to pieces, and I picked up the pieces and made myself go on living, and was rewarded more than I ever dreamed of expecting. But I can't do that another time. Even if I had the strength, it's too late. I was twenty when I lost Arthur. It wasn't easy to go on then. But now I'm forty-four. If my world is shot to pieces again, it stays that way. I can't go back and start over. And who should I be expected to? Life can't be all beginnings and no fulfillment!"

As she broke off Kessler asked, "What is that exquisite scent that's suddenly here all around us?" "Night-blooming jasmine. Sometimes it blooms till late in the year. Are you listening to me?"

"If I hadn't been listening I shouldn't have asked about the flowers," she said, just thinking in a world full of possibilities for pleasure, why should anyone have to say what you are saying to me?"

"Yes, why should we?" exclaimed Elizabeth. "Why should it be like this? I don't know and I'm tired of asking. It's too much to demand of us. It's as though destiny were saying, 'The world is all broken up, start over and build a new one. Hurry and get it done so it will be all ready to be demolished again. We'll give you just enough rest between strokes to make sure you're quite conscious and sensitive to feel the next one. We won't start the next war until your firstborn son is just old enough to be carried off. You thought you'd felt the last limit of pain, but you may find that you haven't.' If this happens, it will be worse."

"It would be worse?" Kessler asked. His voice seemed to have a thickness, a slight unsteadiness, that was unlike him.

"Yes. Because before, there was only myself. If I had cracked, if I'd ended my own life or had lived on like a useless shadow, it really wouldn't have mattered to anybody. But now it's different. There are people who count on me. There's Spratt—oh, I know Spratt goes striding around the studio lot like the most self-sufficient creature alive."

"I have sometimes wondered," said Kessler, "if you knew how much he depends on you." "You're not answering me, are you?" she said. "There isn't any answer. But thank you for listening." After a moment she went on, "I can't tell you what a relief it has been to say all this. I believe saying it to you has got it out of me so I won't pour it all out to Spratt. That's why I'm grateful."

She reached her hand out and laid it over his, as it rested on the head of her chair. To her astonishment, she found that instead of lying there lightly as she had thought, his hand was gripping the cane with such violence that the muscles were hard and the knuckles were like rocks. Elizabeth drew away quickly and sat up. "Mr. Kessler! What have I done to you?"

"Nothing," he answered sharply, and sat up too, as though startled. "What is the trouble?" "Why couldn't I keep quiet?" she demanded of herself contritely. "Here I've been babbling like a child who thinks nobody has anything to do but listen—"

"But I wanted to listen!" Kessler exclaimed. "You're not sorry you talked to me!"

"Not for myself, oh no. But I was so absorbed in myself I didn't realize how I might be affecting you. Have I brought back something that's better forgotten? Forgive me, please forgive me, if I've tried you too far."

Kessler stood up abruptly. He turned and moved a step so as to face her. She looked up at him standing between her and the stars, a black figure that gave an impression of strength in spite of the crippled body.

"I told you not to try to answer me. Please don't try. There's no answer, for me or for you."

"Yes, there is," he exclaimed decisively. "For a moment, sitting there, you had me almost believing that there wasn't. You said it was too late for you to start over. You are not required to start over. But you are required to keep going. Remember, your responsibilities are of your own creation. You aren't responsible for what's happening in the world, but you are responsible for how you take it."

"I told you I couldn't take it. I can feel myself breaking at the prospect. I can't take it."

"Yes, you can," he said sternly, "and you're going to."

His force was like a stimulus. Elizabeth exclaimed, "Do you believe I can, Mr. Kessler? You keep telling yourself you're not a coward, you'll go out and do what you have to do, but all the time you keep wishing somebody would tell you why you've got to do it. That's what it's like, Mrs. Herlong."

Elizabeth was sitting forward, her hands tight on the arms of her chair. "That's what's going on in my mind! But why hasn't he told us? Mr. Kessler, why doesn't he ever say so?"

"I suspect it's because he knows what's going on in your mind, a lot better than you think."

"You mean," she said bitterly, "he knows his father and I aren't fit to be told. Because we have failed him terribly."

"Would you believe me if I told you I loved your son, Mrs. Herlong? I do love him. He's so much like the son I used to think I might have."

"You never had any children, did you? Margaret told me this afternoon you adopted her after her parer died."

"No, I never had any children," he returned steadily. "That was another of the things the war made impossible."

"Oh," she said faintly. After a moment she exclaimed, "Yet you have conquered, Mr. Kessler. You have gone on living, living well and nobly, in a world that left you absolutely nothing to live for. How did you do it? It seems strange that I who have everything should turn to you who have nothing, and say 'Please help me.' But I do. Because right now it seems that it is you who have everything and I who have nothing. Will you help me?"

He asked, "Do you want me to try to tell Dick what he's being asked to fight for?"

"Yes! Can you? Will you?" "I'll try. I'll do my best."

"Thank you. You can do it better than I can. You've seen it. And you are so wise, so gentle, so—how can I say it? I mean you're the only man I know I'd trust to do it well."

There was a brief silence, then he said, "And you?" "I'll take it, Mr. Kessler. Forgive me for being such a coward."

Margaret was going to have a Christmas party for some of her schoolmates, and Elizabeth suggested that she and the two older children come to Kessler's apartment one afternoon to decorate the Christmas tree. As it was hard to buy ornaments in the stores they brought their own, part of an abundance left over from earlier holidays. Margaret was there, jumping with excitement while Kessler looked on. He liked Christmas, and enjoyed her pleasure in it. While he was showing Elizabeth the silver fountain pen Spratt had given him as a Christmas present, Dick was dragging in a ladder, and calling to Elizabeth to move out of his way. "We'll start at the top," he said, setting up the ladder by the tree and beginning to climb. "You hand me the junk, Cherry."

With Elizabeth's assistance, Cherry handed up the junk. Margaret helped, her arms full of tinsel and her eyes wide and joyous. "It's just beautiful," she kept saying over and over. "It's just beautiful!"

She got close against the resplendent tree and looked up through the branches. "I can see you up there, Dick! Look at me."

He bent down, scratching his face on the branches. "Sure, I see you. Hello." As he leaned over, a collection of glass balls slipped out of his hand and smashed on the floor at her feet.

"Oh!" Margaret cried in dismay. "It doesn't matter," Cherry reassured her, "there are plenty more."

"You've hung up about all it will hold, anyway," Kessler observed as the door opened and the housekeeper came in to tell Margaret her supper was ready. Margaret shrank back against the tree, looking down at the broken glass before her.

"I—I'm scared," she confessed. "I might fall down and get cut."

"Yes, so you might," Elizabeth agreed. "Come give her a lift, Dick."

"Okay. Wait a minute, Margaret." Dick scrambled down from the ladder. Remarking that he had jolted some lights out of place, Cherry climbed up to adjust them. Dick reached across the broken glass.

"Put your arms around my neck and hold tight so I can lift you, Margaret. There you are. She'll be along in a minute," he said to the housekeeper, and as she went out he swung Margaret across the pile of glass and set her down. "Right?" he asked her.

She nodded. "Right, thank you. I'm always scared of falling down on broken things. I fell down once, and got a bad cut on my neck. See?" She drew the collar of her dress aside.

Dick bent to look at the scar she showed him. "Why, you did get a bad cut. How did that happen?"

"A man kicked me," said Margaret, "and I fell down."

"What?" said Dick.

"The eyes of them all turned to her—Elizabeth, her hands full of tinsel, Cherry on the ladder adjusting the lights, Dick standing beside Kessler, sitting in his chair near by, said nothing. But Margaret appeared not to realize the start she had given them."

"What man kicked you?" Dick demanded, and stopped, absorbing the idea of men who kicked little girls. Margaret answered without any excitement. "The man who killed my mother."

ADAMANT ATTITUDE WILL GIVE US MORE POWER

WASHINGTON. — Sec. of State Byrnes goes to Moscow! He says the Iranian government will make the trek also. So both Mohammed and the mountain go to Moscow. The senate, as all knowing individuals here, is worried. Realizing this, before his departure, the state secretary took both the senators and the press into his confidence in off-the-record meetings.

The attitude of the worried senators and individuals is this: The Truman Byrnes foreign policy has been working well, by comparison with the appeasement policy of the Roosevelt administration, designed to goad the Russians to ever greater war against the Nazis.

We have not established much except our position in China. We have lost in Iran. The Russians are in the process of conquering that country.

But at least we have not lost abjectly. We have won and lost, by defending our position, the Roosevelt Atlantic charter, against make-believe freedom.

We ceased our losing because we had an adamant attitude, for what we believed was right. Does Mr. Byrnes' trip to Moscow mean we have abandoned that attitude?

ATOMIC BOMB MAY BE USED AS APPEASEMENT

Frankly, the senators think it may. They think that general enthusiasm of Britain (with money) is to be followed by appeasement of Russia (with atom bombs, concessions, eye-blinking regarding Iran, China and similar pretensions that conquest of Europe and Asia by Russia is unthinkable).

The mere fact that Mr. Byrnes goes to Moscow with atom bomb in hand reminds them of Chamberlain at Munich. That also meant "peace in our time." Remember?

Their understanding is reinforced by two facts which I think have not been mentioned prominently:

(1) Mr. Byrnes dropped his adviser Jimmy Dunn for the Moscow trip (Dunn had been charged by Moscow enthusiasts as being Fascist, Catholic and otherwise unsympathetic with Moscow causes), and (2) Mr. Byrnes is taking in Dunn's place Freeman Mathews, a butterfly diplomat, who has skipped around the world in his assignments, yet never got the reputation of being against Russian interests.

Mr. Byrnes is also taking John Carter Vincent, head of the far eastern division, which Pat Hurley said was sabotaging American foreign policy (the Democrats sure stopped Hurley, didn't they, Senator Connally?)

In answer and apology to this line of thought, Mr. Byrnes' people explain a crisis of the United Nations organization is now at hand, due to Russian lack of co-operation. If UNO is to be saved, Mr. Byrnes must save it at Moscow, they say.

Unless Molotov shows up at the January 7 meeting of the assembly in London, it will mean Russia has turned thumbs down on the Roosevelt formula for world peace.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF FOREIGN MINISTERS

The meeting has been advertised as a routine assemblage of the foreign ministers, as promised by Stalin to Roosevelt and Churchill at Yalta. My inside information is that Mr. Byrnes went to his office on a recent Sunday and began reading the Yalta agreements. They say he found the agreements calling for meetings of the foreign ministers every three months. (They also called for independence of Iran.) These meetings had not been held.

The publicity men may claim that the San Francisco conference came in April (against Yalta's January) and Potsdam came in July, and London in September—but these were not meetings of the foreign ministers as prescribed. The only one which was what was prescribed was the London gathering in September, and it broke up in complete failure, due to Russian opposition.

Mr. Byrnes thought, my departmental informants tell me: How about another foreign ministers' meeting? He got Russian consent first (he needed it after the straight Moscow rebuff of his Iranian note requesting early Russian withdrawal of troops from Iran).

In the face of the President, Mr. Byrnes asserted the White House had confused the distinction between colonial Big Three (Truman, Attlee and Stalin) and ordinary Big Three (Molotov, Bevin and Byrnes).

What the senators think is that the Roosevelt people in this country (Mrs. Roosevelt's promotionists, CIO, the Auto Workers, etc.) raised such a publicity opposition to Byrnes, even causing Communist pickets to demand his ousting.

For the present only, they will keep quiet in hopes that the agreements at Moscow will be fair and valid.

The situation is so serious I will begin an analysis of world conditions, and will pursue it to its ultimate factual truth if it takes four or five columns.

Sec. Byrnes

AROUND THE HOUSE

Windows will gleam if washed with water containing a little witch hazel.

Squeaky floors can be made noiseless by sifting talcum powder between the boards.

Never starch linens that are to be stored, since starch tends to make the fabric crack. Wrap in blue paper to prevent yellowing.

Mattresses should be turned from top to bottom one week and side to side the next to prevent sagging.

Keep a pair of clean gloves near your supply of hosiery during the winter, and don them before putting on hose. It will save many snags caused from hands that are roughened by cold weather.

On most patterns, seam lines are indicated by small round perforations. Mark these, then when sewing, take up their full amount for best fit. Match corresponding notches too. Press each seam as it is finished and clip at corners and curves so it will lie perfectly flat.
