

Old Settlers to Meet Friday; Incorporate With State Society

Articles are being drawn for the purpose of incorporating the Washington County Old Settlers and Historical Society as a unit of the Wisconsin State Historical Society.

The annual meeting of the local society is being resumed this year after a lapse during the war when restrictions imposed as a result of the great conflict made it impracticable to continue with the affair, held annually on George Washington's birthday anniversary.

This year's meeting will be held at the Fifth Avenue Methodist church in West Bend, across the street from the county courthouse.

Tickets are going on sale this week. Those who make reservations for the dinner and do not have an opportunity to purchase their tickets in advance may purchase them at the door on the day of the meeting.

In addition to an interesting business session, the program will include group singing and a talk by one of Washington county's outstanding citizens, Charles D. Stewart, eminent Pike lake author, historian, and lecturer.

While there are very few of the real old settlers left, there are a good many people throughout the county who are desirous of continuing this historic county society.

Congregation Honors Rev. Beck at Farewell

The Rev. R. G. Beck, who resigned as pastor of the Peace Evangelical and Reformed church some time ago to accept a call to Burlington, Iowa, and his family were honored as a farewell program and potluck supper in the church parlors Sunday evening.

A delicious potluck supper was served and during the program the senior and junior choirs of the parish sang and two vocal solos were rendered by Miss Hulda Kohlbeck, one by Clifford Rose, and two by Mrs. Robert Kroeck.

Highs in District Tourny Next Week

Six members of the Tri-County league, the host North Fond du Lac quintet and Slinger, Four-C conference member, will battle it out over four days of tourney play in the sixth annual district basketball tournament.

In the opening games Wednesday evening the pairings are Oakfield vs. Slinger in the first game and North Fond du Lac vs. Rosendale in game two.

The tourney is one of 32 district meets in the state. The winner will enter an inter-district playoff and then go on to one of eight sectional tourneys held March 7-9.

County 4-H Leaders Meet to Plan Year's Activities

When the Washington County 4-H Leaders Federation held its first meeting of 1946, Friday night, Feb. 15, at West Bend, a plan for 4-H activities during the coming year was discussed and voted on.

SON BORN TO "PAT" MILLERS

Mr. and Mrs. Edw. E. Miller of this village are the parents of a son born at St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend, on Monday, Feb. 11.

First Place Mayville Trims Indians Twice

It was a case of Mayville being too strong and having too much class for a game Kewaskum team as the Indians were trimmed twice over the week end in Land o' Lakes contests by the league leaders, currently tied with West Bend for the top spot.

In the game Friday, Mayville played one of its hottest contests of the season. They were hitting long and short shots alike consistently from all angles.

In the game here Sunday, competing on a small floor and playing a much better brand of ball, the Indians forced the loop leaders all the way.

The tourney is one of 32 district meets in the state. The winner will enter an inter-district playoff and then go on to one of eight sectional tourneys held March 7-9.

Mrs. August Ramthun, Icy Roads Cause Two Accidents in Marsh

A Buick auto driven by Johnny Maloney of Milwaukee left the road and tipped over on its top in the Kewaskum marsh on Highway 55 Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. August B. Ramthun, 76, nee Bauman, a resident of the town of Kewaskum many years, died at 6 p. m. Friday, Feb. 8, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joan D. Coulter in the town of Wayne.

The deceased's husband preceded her in death on Nov. 4, 1928 and her son, Edwin, died 12 years ago. Surviving are two daughters and one son, Mrs. Ida Spoerl of the town of Wayne.

Mrs. Ramthun was a member of the Ladies' Aid society of the St. Lucas Ev. Lutheran church, Kewaskum. The remains were in state at the Techtman Funeral home, from where funeral services were held at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday at the St. Lucas church at 2 o'clock.

IN MEMORY

You cannot say—you must not say. That she is dead; she is just away. With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to our relatives, neighbors and friends for the kindness and sympathy extended to us in our bereavement, the sad loss of our dear mother, Mrs. August Ramthun.

MRS. EMMA SCHUPPEL

Mrs. Emma Schuppel, 83, nee Janssen, of 640 2nd Ave., West Bend, formerly of the town of Wayne, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edwin Landvatter, in West Bend on Monday, Feb. 11. She had not been ill and died suddenly of a stroke.

Red Cross Plans for Fund Drive are Drawn

"The slogan this year is 'Your Red Cross Must Carry On,'" said R. S. Grogan, chairman of the 1946 fund campaign which is scheduled for March 1 to 10.

"March is Red Cross month," Grogan added. "Throughout this country that slogan will remind everyone, not only of the glorious missions of mercy performed by Red Cross during the war years, but of the unfinished tasks that Red Cross must continue to perform."

The number of soldiers' claims handed up to last November, it was pointed out, was twice the total for all of World War I. There are at present 10 times as many men in service as before the start of the war.

"Then there are disaster relief, first aid, water safety, accident prevention, Junior Red Cross, and a host of other necessary services which this organization constantly carries on."

1946 Quota Reduced

The quota for the local chapter this year is $9,189 compared with $16,400 in 1945. This amount will provide for the needs of the local chapter and includes the portion for the national headquarters for its world-wide service.

Highs Swamp Rosendale, Lomira; Tie for Lead

Kewaskum High, by virtue of a smashing 49 to 17 defeat, they handed the league leading Rosendale team on their home court last Friday and their 26 to 24 victory at Lomira Tuesday, stand tied for first place with Rosendale.

Backhaus broke loose for 19 points at Rosendale as he and his teammates played near perfect ball and could not be stopped. The contest at Lomira Tuesday was a make-up game and the win moved them up to a tie for the lead.

Polio Fund Short of Goal as Drive Ends; Final Appeal Made

With the 1946 "march of dimes" in the North Washington County chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis ending Friday, Feb. 15, H. D. Rice, West Bend, general chairman of the drive in the chapter area, declared this week that the fund contributed to date was considerably less than the goal of $3,000 in total subscriptions set for the chapter this year.

He then issued an appeal for more individual contributions in the form of checks, money orders, or cash donations and asserted that these contributions ought to be more liberal than in any previous "march of dimes" campaign. He declared he would be happy to receive contributions made after the closing date because of the great need for funds.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Farm Equipment Output to Hit Peak Late in Year; Push Fight Against Postwar Price Control

Released by Western Newspaper Union. EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

FARM MACHINERY: Output Off

Hampered by material shortages, inexperienced help, inability of suppliers to deliver parts and strikes, farm machinery manufacturers do not look for attainment of peak production until later this year or early 1947.

When full-scale operations are resumed, it was said, companies will first concentrate on the output of parts for worn equipment since many farmers will be compelled to make their machinery do until new units begin to appear in satisfactory volume.

As it is, manufacturers' efforts to meet a part of the tremendous demand for plows, planters and cultivators for spring use have been cramped by production difficulties, with no substantial deliveries of these items forthcoming.

With 30,000 workers of the International Harvester company out on strike over demands for a 30 per cent wage increase, the total of idle employees in the industry approximated 36,000 of 90,000.

UNO: Avoid Strife

Invoking article 33 of the United Nations charter calling upon quarreling governments to attempt conciliation of their difficulties first before appealing to UNO, Russia moved to settle her differences with little Iran privately and take the matter out of the hands of the security council.

By so acting, the Reds succeeded in avoiding a ticklish situation within UNO itself, with possibilities that the U. S., Britain, France and China might have placed Moscow in a compromising position in investigating the row. In permitting the Reds and Iranians to thrash out their own problems, however, the security council called upon the disputants to report on the progress of their negotiations.

In originally appealing to UNO to look into the controversy, Iran had charged the Russians with interfering with government efforts to subdue a leftist rebellion in the north-west province of Azerbaijan. Sent into the oil-rich country in 1942 to guard supply lines leading into southern Russia, Red and British troops were scheduled to pull out early this spring.

Give and Take

Continuing to give and take in their relations, the Big Three agreed to the election of stocky, 50-year-old Trygve Lee (pronounced 'Tryg-va Lee) of Norway as secretary-general of UNO. Russ-backed, the selection of the bulky Norwegian foreign minister offset the earlier elevation of British-backed Paul Henry Spaak of Belgium as president.

The U. S. played a key role in balancing the powers through the election. After the Russians had charged Secretary of State Byrnes and company of having double-crossed them in not pushing Lee's candidacy for president as against Spaak's, Chief Delegate Edward R. Stettinius later arranged for the Norwegian's selection as secretary-general in a five-power pow-wow in his Clonard hotel suite.

The son of a carpenter who became active in the Norwegian labor movement immediately after his graduation from Oslo university in 1919, reddish-faced, bustling Lee will occupy a key position in UNO as secretary-general, having within his power the authority to submit any problem he chooses to the security council.

CONGRESS: Labor Curb

Despite the brightening industrial picture, a strong coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats in congress moved for adoption of restrictive labor legislation against the vehement protests of liberal members.

Amid charges by Representative Sabath (Dem., Ill.) that the conservative bloc was being used by Wall Street, 153 Republicans and 105 Democrats joined forces to pile up a 258 to 114 vote for immediate consideration of a bill which would set up a labor-management mediation board; provide for a 30-day cooling off period before a strike or lock-out; make both parties liable for violations of a labor contract; prohibit unionization of supervisory employees, and ban sympathy walk-outs.

While liberal members vigorously denounced the restrictive measure as one of the "most vicious anti-labor bills ever brought before the house," conservative proponents declared that representative action could be taken in amending or revising the bill during floor discussion.

PRICE CONTROL: Under Fire

First to break the wage deadlock in industry with a 15.1 per cent, or 18 cents an hour, increase to his employees, Henry Ford II came out for abolition of government price control except on food and rent as a means of breaking the bottleneck in civilian production and permitting a rapid flow of goods to consumers.

Declaring that existing price ceilings had the effect of squeezing smaller parts makers between rising operating costs and fixed returns, Ford said that the productivity of the big manufacturers depended upon suppliers' activities. If price control were abolished, he declared, the heat of competition for markets would bring down the cost level.

In keeping with his announced position for firm control, President Truman rejected Ford's suggestion in a news conference, asserting that the removal of OPA regulation would result in wild inflation with its disastrous effect upon purchasing power.

Henry II's attack against price control came even as clothing and shirt manufacturers blamed OPA for the insufficiency of stocks on dealers' shelves in the face of tremendous demand from consumers.

Charged with withholding at least 400,000 suits from the markets, clothing makers were particularly resentful of OPA regulations, claiming that with their recent grant of a 22 1/2 per cent increase in wages to workers price readjustments were necessary to permit them an adequate profit.

Shirt manufacturers gapped the OPA's so-called "maximum average" price regulation for failure to produce adequate stocks, claiming that they were unable to turn out more of the better grade items in the face of a shortage of cheaper fabrics because OPA required balanced output of all types.

FARM STRIKE: Cool Reception

While farmers in southeastern Nebraska, incensed by the machinery shortage, talked up an agricultural strike in protest of industrial walkouts, farm organization leaders discouraged the idea because stoppage of shipments of fresh products would result in costly waste.

In calling for the withholding of agricultural products to force resumption of industrial output, Strike Leader Hubert Johnson, 48, of Edgar, Neb., listed farmer grievances: "Four years now we've been getting along without new machinery," he said, "and we've been told we would probably get nothing this spring. . . We need farm tools and bathtubs and refrigerators. . . We need automobiles. . . We can't even buy a pair of overalls. . ."

Taking issue with the farmers' "no machinery for us, no food for you" battle-cry, President Edward A. O'Neal of the Farm Bureau, reflecting leading agricultural organization opinion, pointed out that it would be impossible to halt production of milk, eggs, etc. Withholding of these items from market would only result in loss to farmers as well as consumers, he said.

On the farm . . .

Poultrymen generally can expect an income in 1946 somewhat lower than 1945 earnings, in the opinion of Economist John W. Carners of Rutgers.

Pointing to last year's all-time high egg consumption record of 390 per person, he said it is not likely to be duplicated this year.

Some reduction in consumer income during 1946, a greater quantity of red meat available to civilians, and reduced military requirements, add up to less egg demand.

INDUSTRY: Profit Margins

First part of a study by the Securities and Exchange commission on profits and operations of American industries in 1945-44, a SEC survey showed that while 13 meat packers grossed $4,732,038,000 in 1944 they netted $45,348,000 or 1 per cent of sales.

Next to the meat packing, the cigarette industry ranked highest in gross income for 1944, with $1,601,732,000. With a net income of 3.9 per cent of sales, however, the cigarette manufacturers outstripped meat packers in profit margins.

With total sales of $1,452,351,000, the dairy products industry ranked third, but like meat packing, enjoyed a relatively smaller profit position, earning 2.1 per cent on its gross. With $1,226,298,000 of sales, distilleries showed net returns of 3.8 per cent.

Of all industries surveyed, grocery specialties had the highest profit margins, with 4.1 per cent on sales of $954,984,000.

VET FAMILIES: May Go Overseas

In what were interpreted as moves to forestall further complaints of G.I.s overseas against occupation dollars, the war department authorized the families of commissioned and non-commissioned officers above buck sergeants to join them abroad, and lowered the training period for replacements from 13 to 8 weeks.

With the number of reunions depending upon the theater commanders' decisions as to the amount of housing, subsistence and medical care available, travel to Europe will commence after April 1, with movements to the Philippines, Japan, Korea and the Ryukyus scheduled after May 1.

In setting up priorities under the system, preference will be given to families of officers with the longest service overseas if they indicate a willingness to remain abroad for two years or from one to two years.

In cutting down the training period from 13 to 8 weeks for replacements, the army announced that recruits' conditioning would be finished abroad after inculcation of fundamentals here. Prior to embarkation, recruits will be given a seven-day leave.

Chinese End Strife

Reflecting efforts of the U. S. to unify strife-ridden China, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek brought his 18 years of authoritarian rule in the country to an end with the announcement that henceforth political parties can openly organize and conduct their campaigns in accordance with legal rights and procedures.

Chiang made his historic pronouncement at the closing of political consultative conference in Chungking, where nationalists, communists and other parties had gathered for the adjustment of differences and creation of a unified state to open the way for broad economic development in hitherto backward China.

Before adjourning, the consultative conference had arranged for a meeting of a national assembly in May to draw up a new constitution. Over 2,500 delegates are to attend, with Chiang's Kuomintang party possessing over 50 per cent of the representation and the communists the second largest. Reflecting the views of the delegation as a whole, a 35-man all-party committee will draw up the document.

UNRRA: New Exodus

Even while British Gen. Frederick Morgan was in New York conferring with Director Herbert Lehman over his reinstatement as United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation chief in Germany, a U. S. 3rd army report confirmed his charge that Zionist-aided Jews were leaving Poland for Germany in the hope of eventually reaching Palestine.

Veterans SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to make direct weekly columns on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and will be answered in a subsequent column. It is requested that all correspondence be by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

When Will Vets Return?

The Washington office of Western Newspaper Union has received scores of letters from parents, wives, sweethearts and friends of men in service, all asking when their loved ones will get out of the service. We cannot answer these letters with any degree of accuracy because there is no way of ascertaining when men with a given number of points in a given theatre will be released. There are too many circumstances which must be considered in any particular area.

Here, however, is the promise of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, made in his recent address before a joint session of congress January 15, as regards enlisted men: "By April 30, 1946, all enlisted men, except volunteers, with 45 points as of September 2, 1945, or with 30 months' service as of April 29, 1946, will be separated from the army or aboard ship returning home."

"By June 30, 1946, all enlisted men, except volunteers, with 40 points as of September 2, 1945, or with 24 months' service as of June 30, 1946, will be separated from the army or aboard ship returning home."

General "Ike" further said that whether this rate of discharge can be maintained depends directly upon the rate of replacements or inflow into the army. So this commitment is limited to July 1, 1946.

Questions and Answers

Q. I am a widow of World War II with one child. I drew an allotment for myself and baby until he was killed in action in the navy. His insurance was made to his parents and neither the baby or I was named in the papers. Now his parents are drawing it. Is there any way for me to get this or any part of the insurance?—Mrs. O. M. C. Crossville, Ala.

A. There is no way for you to obtain this insurance if you were not named as beneficiary, unless parents of the serviceman are willing to share with you. You, however, are entitled to a pension for yourself and baby.

Q. Would it be possible for a veteran's widow who is receiving a Spanish American War pension of $30 per month, to exchange it for a World War pension to which she is also entitled? How would she go about making the exchange?—B. M. D., Elk Mills, Md.

A. Yes, the veterans' administration says it is possible. Consult your nearest regional veterans' administration office, probably at Richmond or Baltimore.

Q. We had a nephew who was in the army in the Philippines when war broke out. He was taken prisoner and died in a Japanese camp in July, 1942. He did not carry insurance. His mother is a widow and is she entitled to receive any compensation? The boy's father was a World War I veteran and died in 1930.—His Aunt, Watsontown, Pa.

A. I would say that the widowed mother, if she was dependent upon the veteran, is entitled to a pension. However, she should file a claim with the nearest office of the veterans' administration, probably at Philadelphia or Pittsburgh, and they will determine her eligibility.

Q. My son has been discharged from the army. He entered service February, 1941. Is he entitled to the pre-Pearl Harbor ribbon? He was entitled to three bronze stars, but only one was shown in his discharge. Is there some way this can be put on his discharge where he can I obtain the information?—Mrs. W. M. J., Purvis, Miss.

A. For answers to both questions write to the office of the adjutant general, enlisted personnel, war department, Washington, D. C.

Washington Digest Truman Labors Under New Deal 'Inheritance'

Congress Seen Taking Advantage of President's Rightist Leanings; Lacks Influence of FDR to Put Policies Over.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

It was a cool, crisp winter day. A week before the erratic Washington weather had seduced a whole circle of credulous pansters which pushed their startled faces up from the garden on the White House lawn. Poor bemused flora! They were soon frozen as solid in their beds as the President's labor legislation in congress.

We hurried along Pennsylvania avenue, our coat collars turned up, arguing heatedly as newsmen do when they are released from the inhibitions which seize them the moment they sit down and meet the solemn stare of their typewriter keyboards, that threatening snow, the deadline, tightening about the medulla oblongata.

"The most astounding thing," said one of us, "is the way Truman, with all his experience in congress, can't get along with it. If he would only buttonhole some of the thinkers in the opposition, say Vandenberg in the senate and men like Wolcott in the house, and appeal to their sense of patriotism, he wouldn't have all this trouble."

"It isn't as simple as that," interrupted another, as we paused to show our photographic passes to the guard at the gate (who has known us all by our first names for a decade but who always solemnly studied our cards as if they were alibis). "It isn't as simple as that. After all, congress has to be realistic in an election year. They are facing real issues. And the President's program isn't realistic."

"Whether or not it is realistic," the third member of the group put in, "after all it isn't his program. He inherited it. It's New Deal and the New Deal is Old Hat now. It doesn't represent Harry Truman's ideas at all but he has to go through with it."

All I felt I could add to those sage observations, without agreeing that the New Deal was Old Hat or the latest Downing Street model, whether it was realistic or modernistic or neo-marxian, was that it certainly was probable to shatter his inheritance to bits and then remould it to something nearer his heart's desire, he could probably put a lot more pep into his selling talk to congress.

By this time we were adding our coats to the huge pile of garments on the great Aginaldo mahogany table in the lobby of the executive offices and taking our place in the line outside the conference room.

Resentment Shades Chief's Feelings

On this particular day the President started off with the note on which the whole conference was carried. I don't quite know how to describe it. He kept smiling. He didn't lose his temper. But there was just a shade of resentment in his voice and his words. It all sounded more like the later, somewhat disillusioned days of his predecessor, than the merry moments when a Roosevelt interview was always a good show as well as a newsworthy event—I mean the early days before the weight of war descended upon FDR's wearying brow. There is a weight on Truman today quite as heavy, for peace has its miseries as well as war. Just as it was freely predicted that "the United States will never stand for an occupying army for any length of time" (which proved to be so painfully correct), so everyone took for granted that any President in office when the war ended would have an impossible job.

But let's get back to the crowded office of the President on the winter day I am describing. He sat there smiling, exchanging wisecracks with the men in the first row. On the table behind him were the photographs of his family, crowned with a great bunch of jonquils from the White House greenhouse. He looked cheerful enough. The usual signal "all in" was sounded. He stood up and began to talk about what he called a "tempting in a teacup"—the controversy over building an addition to the White House. Personally I think it is the height of folly to continue the effort (begun by Theodore Roosevelt) to try to house the office work of the President under the roof of "the President's House," but I mention this controversy simply because it reflects the seamy side of White House-congress relations. Many of the President's friends feel that trying to make a modern office out of a beautiful old American colonial residence is folly, but they also felt that much of the furor raised in congress was due to a desire to embarrass Mr. Truman.

Why can't Truman get on with congress? Perhaps because he is a little too much like them. This is merely a hunch but I am not the only one who has toyed with the idea: both congress and the President (I realize that "congress" is a loose term because the legislators are a collection of many men of many minds) inclines farther to the right than the inherited Roosevelt program is targeted. Congress, the part of it that knows Harry Truman well, undoubtedly feels that his heart leans just about as far in the same direction. Therefore, he just can't get these more leftist ideas across. Harry Truman has a tremendous respect for the office of the presidency, a deep feeling of duty to carry out the program which death placed in his hands—a duty and a function he never sought. He cannot toss this heritage into the discard. And he probably reasons that if he feels that responsibility, the members of the party should do likewise. But it must be remembered that it was the powerful influence of a personality which could win an election four times, a task no American had dared to attempt even for the third, which kept congress obedient and even then, toward the end, only faltering.

Truman Reveals His True Self

On this particular day of which I am speaking, I think we heard Truman revealing his true self. He believes that the White House should be enlarged. He resented the opposition which he suspected was at least in part personal and political rather than the product of sincere conviction. I thought I heard that in his voice.

The Home Town Reporter in WASHINGTON By Walter Sheed WNU Correspondent

Which Way Will Prices Of Farm Products Go?

ON JANUARY 11, Agriculture Secretary Clinton P. Anderson spoke before the American National Livestock association convention in Denver on "New Frontiers for the Livestock Industry." He outlined a production program of 23 billion pounds of meat this year...

But in that same speech Mr. Anderson revealed his plans for removal of meat subsidies on cattle, calves, sheep and lambs by June 30 of this year. Ten days later President Truman in his message to congress on the state of the Union gave his reasons why "food subsidies must be continued beyond June 30, 1946," and if the reaction of farm leaders here in Washington to the President's recommendation reflects the feelings of the rank and file of farmers throughout the country...

Subsidies Unpopular

Dairy farm leaders are especially hostile to the President's recommendation. Charles W. Holman, secretary of the National Co-operative Milk Producers Federation, pointed to what he called "the incongruity in the administration's recommendations for a wage increase to industrial groups on the one hand, and on the other hand for federal grants to subsidize their grocery bills. The one is an inflationary move for the benefit of urban groups. The other is a 'hold-the-line' edict to the detriment of agriculture, and is in itself just as inflationary."

While those close to the secretary declared that Mr. Anderson's whole position for elimination of subsidies depended on favorable factors which are not now in the economic picture, it is said Mr. Anderson is going along with his chief as a good soldier.

Whether congress will accede to the President's policy on continuation of the subsidies, which farm leaders contend will mean that "farmers will continue as wards of the government for years to come," remains to be seen. So far congress has paid little or no attention to the President's recommendations, with the exception of his foreign policy. Furthermore, there is little reason to believe that congress will listen to Mr. Truman now, any more than they have in the past, unless an aroused public opinion forces their hand.

Price Support to Stay

And now, unless congress goes back on its word, all farm prices under the Steagall bill must be supported at 90 per cent of parity for 1946, 1947 and 1948, for the law fixed these prices in force "until two years after January 1 following the date" of such declaration by the President or by congress. So such commodities as hogs, eggs, chickens, milk, butterfat, dry peas and beans, soybeans, etc., will get the benefit.

Regarding these prices, the President in his message said: "The first obligation of the government to agriculture for the reconversion period is to make good on its price-support commitments. This is intended to do with realistic consideration for the sound patterns of production that will contribute most to the long-time welfare of agriculture and the whole nation."

So it appears that OPA's Mr. Bowles stands to win out in the bout with Anderson over subsidies, if congress supports the President. Bowles' contention was that subsidy removal will increase food prices, and that's what happened. Butter is an example. Anderson felt natural laws of supply and demand should gradually govern prices. So far congress has evaded taking a stand on any controversial question affecting reconversion, but it appears the solons on the Hill will be forced to vote one way or another on this question before June 30, when the price control act is scheduled to pass out of existence.

The belief here generally is that it will be extended for at least six months. The President asks a year. Mr. Anderson says that repeal of subsidies on commodities which already have been announced will stand, however. As an example, subsidies on some types of cheese were lifted on February 1. With market prices well above the subsidy levels, there is obviously no need of bolstering prices of dairy products. It is expected that prices on butter, cheese, etc., will remain high for a long time, considering the present national income level.

Decision to take over the nation's strike-bound meat packing plants, and not steel, or auto plants, was due mainly to government commitments made for meat for the armed forces, and to the fact that soaring meat prices would boost prices of other foods to dangerous inflationary proportions. Likely they would eventually affect all prices and start an inflationary spiral. At least that's the reasoning in the minds of the government officials. There is enough danger of inflationary explosions already.

Tomorrow is Forever by GWEN

THE STORY THUS FAR: Spratt Herlong, motion picture producer, met and married Elizabeth, whose first husband, Arthur Herlong, was reported killed in World War I, but who later, unrecognized, went to work for Spratt under the name of Kessler. Dick Herlong enlisted in the Marines. Finally recognizing Kessler, Elizabeth had a long talk with him. He denied he was her husband and advised her to forget her youthful days and live only for her family. Kessler died suddenly, and Elizabeth went over to care their girl. At first Margaret's only reply was "everything that belonged to me died."

proval from Brian and Cherry. She was much easier to have around than they had expected, they said. Brian let Margaret her collections and Cherry let Margaret come in and look at all her clothes, for it was fun to display their treasures for a spectator who was so delighted at receiving attention and who never touched anything out of turn. But their parents found Margaret's attitude ominous.

made socks they get in the Marines and he wants a lot more. But with taking care of the house and watching for planes at the observation post, I really haven't time to make so many. Would you make some socks for Dick if I taught you how?"

CHAPTER XXIII

"With you?" Margaret did not understand. "You want me to stay with you?"

"Yes, we want you to come to us today. Right now. Wouldn't you like to have me be your mother?"

"You're not my mother," Margaret answered hopelessly. "My mother is dead."

"I'm not your mother, but I'd like to be. I love you, don't you know that? And I've wanted another little girl. My daughter is so big now, she's fourteen, and I've wished often I had a little girl to play with. Don't you want to come with me, and let me be your mother?"

Margaret considered. She scrubbed her eyes with the back of her hand. "You mean," she asked incredulously, "you want me to come live with you?"

"Yes, that's what I mean."

"For how long?"

"For always."

"And be just like yours? Like other girls and their mothers?"

"Just like that."

"What will Mr. Herlong do?"

"He'll be your father."

Margaret began to smile a little bit. "Does he like little girls?"

"Oh yes. And he likes you especially."

"And I'll live with you—in that big house with the swimming pool?"

Elizabeth nodded.

"Will Brian let me go swimming?"

"Why of course. Whenever you please."

"Would he show me his bugs and things, do you think?"

"I'm sure he would."

Margaret smiled again, shyly but more happily this time. "That would be nice, living at your house, Mrs. Herlong."

"You needn't call me Mrs. Herlong any more, if I'm going to be your mother."

"What do I call you, then?"

"If I'm your mother, don't you want to call me that?"

But Margaret shook her head, with a frightened look. "Oh no, do I have to? My mother died, and my father died, and I called Mr. Kessler father, and he died. If I called you mother, you—"

She stopped, appalled by the enormity of it.

Elizabeth did not insist. "All right, you don't have to. My name is Elizabeth, would you like to call me that?"

"Elizabeth," Margaret repeated. "It seems funny." She paused a moment to think, and asked "When do I go over to your house?"

"Right now. I'll drive you there, and I can come back to get your things. Unless you'd rather show me now where they are."

"I'll show you," Margaret scrambled down from the chair. She stood in the middle of the floor, still confused by this second re-orientation of her world. "It's funny," she said slowly. "It's all funny. Yesterday he was here, and now he's dead. And now I'm going to live with you. Can I bring the microscope?"

"You can bring anything you want," Elizabeth took her hand and they started for Margaret's room. "I'm going to like having you with me," Elizabeth assured her.

"I'll like it too," said Margaret. She stopped and looked up seriously. "Mrs. Herlong—Elizabeth," she said. "I'll be good."

"Come here with me, Margaret." Elizabeth led her back to the big chair. She sat down, and took Margaret to sit on her lap. "Darling, I told you I wanted you for my little girl. No matter what you want to do, I'm going to be your mother and my husband is going to be your father. We're Americans, and we're going to take you into an American court and get some papers that will make you just as American as we are, and just as much our daughter as Cherry is. Then nobody can ever send you back to Germany."

"You can do that?" Margaret exclaimed.

"You bet we can. Refugees can be as American as anybody else. Why Margaret, my people were refugees."

Margaret was afraid. Fear went through her whole personality and gave her foster-parents a problem for which their experience had not prepared them. Elizabeth and Spratt knew how to cope with childish faults, but their children had not known the meaning of insecurity. Margaret knew that better than she knew anything else.

Living in their home, she made very little trouble for anybody, for she was a good-tempered child and a very bright one. She picked up her playthings, studied her lessons and asked permission to do what she wanted—she was a good little girl, but she had not lived with them two weeks before Spratt and Elizabeth were saying to each other that her goodness, rather than any lack of it, gave them concern. A child who tried so hard to please everybody was not natural. But Margaret had spoken a simple truth when she said to Elizabeth that everybody who had belonged to her had died. In spite of all the reassurance Elizabeth was trying to give her, both in words and in a general attitude of affection, Margaret was still not at ease. She was happy with them, but happiness threatened her with its own loss. It was as though she felt herself in paradise on probation, and thought that by being very good she could make a pact with destiny.

Before long such excellence of behavior had won unqualified approval from Brian and Cherry. She was much easier to have around than they had expected, they said. Brian let Margaret her collections and Cherry let Margaret come in and look at all her clothes, for it was fun to display their treasures for a spectator who was so delighted at receiving attention and who never touched anything out of turn. But their parents found Margaret's attitude ominous.

"I don't know how to deal with it!" Elizabeth said to Spratt. "Impertinence or bad manners I could handle. But this is new to me. Our children were perfectly unacquainted with fear."

Spratt spoke through his teeth in a low angry voice. "This is what 'mental cruelty' means, not a convenient phrase to get divorced with. Margaret got out of there with a whole body, but what they did to her mind!"

"And there are millions like her," Elizabeth said savagely. "I go cold and sick thinking of them."

"Thinking of millions won't help Margaret," said Spratt, who customarily moved from the general to the particular with all possible speed. "Let her see you love her and like having her around. Don't pet her, just make her feel wanted. Don't ask her about Germany, or Kessler either. If he ever talks just let her do it, as you said Kessler did when you were prepping up her Christmas tree. She'll get it out of her eventually—it may take years, but she'll talk if she knows you want to listen."

"Make her feel wanted," Elizabeth repeated. "Yes, I believe I can do that."

The next day she said, "I have a problem, Margaret, and I need you to help me."

"Me? Help you?" Margaret came and sat down by her. "Have you got some trouble, Elizabeth?"

She was still afraid to use a title that would have suggested to fate that Elizabeth was her mother. By this time she called Spratt "boss" as the other children did, for that title had no threatening connotation for her, as "father" had, but she continued to address Elizabeth by her first name. Knowing how Margaret felt about it, Elizabeth did not suggest a change.

"Oh no, not trouble," she answered, "it's just this. I knitted Dick a pair of socks and he's crazy about them, he says they are ten times as comfortable as the ready-made socks they get in the Marines and he wants a lot more. But with taking care of the house and watching for planes at the observation post, I really haven't time to make so many. Would you make some socks for Dick if I taught you how?"

"Oh yes!" cried Margaret. Then, uncertainly, "Do you think I could learn? Could I make socks good enough for a Marine to wear?"

"Of course you can. The first one seems complicated, but after that they're easy, so easy you can learn to knit without even looking at it."

"Ah," Margaret sighed eagerly. "Would he wear them, do you think?"

"Why Margaret, if you know how much he wanted them! Will you really make them? I'd be so grateful, and so would Dick."

"Oh yes, yes! When can I learn?"

"Right now. I have some needles and yarn in my room."

The idea of doing something important was a stimulant for Margaret's wounded soul. Elizabeth could have knitted a dozen socks with the effort it took to teach Margaret to turn a heel, but Margaret needed a place in the universe more than Dick needed socks. In her next letter to Dick, Elizabeth asked him to send a word of encouragement. Dick had no literary gifts, but he had an understanding spirit, so he scribbled back:

"Dear Margaret, I hear you are making me some socks. That's swell of you. I sure do need them. Yours as ever, Dick."

Margaret was not used to receiving letters addressed to herself. She was thrilled, and thought it enormously polite of him to have scrawled in tiny letters on the corner where civilians would have had to put a stamp, "Free. Thank you, Congress."

She spent some time studying her name as he had written it on the envelope. That night when Elizabeth came to tuck her in bed, Margaret detained her. "I've got something to ask you," she said bashfully.

"Go ahead," Elizabeth sat on the edge of the bed.

"You won't be mad with me?"

"Not a bit."

"Well, I was thinking—it would be nice—you said I was going to be American—"

"Indeed you are," Elizabeth encouraged her.

"—and your little girl just like I was born to you—"

Margaret paused again for confirmation. "You are my little girl."

"Well—my father—Mr. Kessler, he is dead and I belong to you now, and I thought it would seem more like I really belonged to you if—"

She stopped again.

Elizabeth spoke gently. "If you had the same name as the rest of us?"

Margaret nodded vehemently. "How did you know? Do you mind? Can I?"

"I know because I was going to ask you what you wanted your name to be. You remember I told you we would get you some papers making you our little girl and an American. We are getting them, so you can be Margaret Herlong from this minute if you want to be."

"Can I? Oh, thank you, Elizabeth!" Margaret put her arms around Elizabeth's neck and hugged her. "Will you tell them at school I've changed my name?"

"Suppose I go to school with you in the morning, and see your teacher."

"All right. All right. Then—Elizabeth."

"Yes?"

"Then nobody can ever make me go back to Germany, can they?"

"Never, never, never. Why Margaret, we couldn't let you go back now! We'd miss you so."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS By PAUL MALLOTT

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

BRITISH LOAN OPPOSITION

WASHINGTON.—At approach of the British so-called "loan" dispute in congress, the most popular British figures are suddenly arriving in this country—Mr. Churchill, Lady Astor, Labor Party Leader Herbert Morrison (who addressed the press club here sotto voce), Food Minister Sir Ben Smith, and a rumor was started that the weight of Princess Elizabeth might be added to this homely, friendly appeal.

The administration is bestirring itself, in a fearing way also. Messrs. Vinson and Acheson have elaborated the air waves with demands for congressional approval, implying that civilization depends again on this question, as it has so many times on agreements negotiated by the administration in the recent past. They are all scared.

The reason is a vast popular antagonism to the deal which is being made apparent to senators and representatives in letters, telegrams and otherwise.

The careful Twohey December press barometer reported Dec. 15 that 57 per cent of the press supported the loan and 29 per cent disapproved, but by January 12 this press barometer had turned around to the point where 62 per cent condemned it.

ARGUMENT FOR LOAN The defenders are having a hard time to justify the program in the preliminary debate. The defense theory is that the loan is necessary to establish credits for Britain to buy in this country, but the agreement allows the British to do whatever they wish with the money. They can buy major part of the defense is that the deal represents a legitimate loan with interest. But the agreement provides no interest will start for five years by which time anything may nullify the obligation, and after that no interest will be paid unless British trade reaches prewar levels (specifically 1936-38 average). It plainly indicates Britain must get back her trade if she is to pay any interest.

The only point the defense has thus far proved for sure is that Britain wants the money to re-establish herself financially. Against this contention, critics see the British Socialist government has already bought the Bank of England, and is coming forward now with a plan to buy the coal mines.

To buy the bank, the government gave the stockholders new special government bonds which seemed to guarantee the high value of the stock. But the trick in that was the bonds were given a special category, which will enable the government to treat them in any special way, apart from the general debt, in any future financial pinch.

The plan for government purchase of the coal mines has not yet definitely how much they will cost, but special bonds are to be issued, and kept in a special category, their value depending on Britain's future financial condition.

BRITISH PURCHASE The people, through their government, already control the Bank of England, direct interest rates and all financial matters of the nation. They also control the price of coal, the wages of the miners, collect taxes from that business. Thus the people are buying what they already mastered in their own interest.

This is the basic absurdity of the new British type of labor socialism, as many of our reasonable people see it. It forces the peoples' government to assume added obligations to buy something they can already direct for their own best purposes.

Coal is about the only natural resource Britain has. Its production has never been especially profitable and its wage scale has been woefully deficient as compared with ours (some recent figures suggested our general wage scale may be two and one-half times that of the British).

If the British could not give us back a tank for one of ours which they had used, they could give us something else—some of those raw materials of their far-flung empire in which we are so deficient (the list of strategic materials of which we have no stockpiles).

The most important part of the loan agreement, then, is that there is to be no repayment "in kind" for lend-lease, or any other payment except 50 million dollars of additional assumed debt by the British which may or may not be paid years hence.

We are not even getting back the material we have given which the British do not need and may not use. Our war department has taken the attitude that we already have too much surplus material. We do not want the old planes and tanks for scrap, or for any purpose.

Thus it has come about that the whole of lend-lease has been thrown out of the category into which Mr. Roosevelt placed it for reasonable returns and has been cancelled arbitrarily as was the last war debt, although it involves 10 times more money.

County Agent Notes

MUCH SEED CORN OF

E. L. Lutz, state seed and seed supervisor, reports that tests of seed corn from the 1945 harvest give cause for concern. He has found that the germination of the corn is not uniformly good because of the damage done to the crop by the early frost.

And he wouldn't be surprised if some seed that tests well now showed poorer germination in the spring. Results of samples of last fall's seed have shown that the percentage of germination has dropped since the first tests were made. Farmers are urged to carefully test any supplies or home grown seed corn.

Lutz reports that alfalfa seed is extremely scarce in Wisconsin, as it is throughout the nation. Seed of strains adaptable to northern conditions is especially scarce. The supply of red clover seed is fair, but farmers may be pinched for seed because red clover is being substituted for alfalfa. Stocks of timothy and other grass seeds are ample.

DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION HOLDS STATE CONVENTION

The 1946 annual convention of the Wisconsin Dairymen's association is being held at the College of Agriculture in Madison on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 15 and 16. Meetings of the state level associations are being held in connection with the annual meeting.

The convention theme for this year's meeting is "Cooperating Dairymen of Dairy Cattle." Among the speakers to address the dairymen are Dr. H. H. Birch of Cornell University, John Laet, manager of Milford Road Farm; J. L. Dawson, dean, College of Agriculture; H. H. Dombos, secretary of the dairymen's association; and John D. Jones Jr. of Racine.

A special women's program is also scheduled.

1946 DAIRY FIELDSMEN'S CONFERENCE ON FEB. 22

The conference of the dairy fieldmen is to be held on Feb. 22 and 23 in the agricultural hall auditorium, College of Agriculture, Madison. A varied program of subjects relating to quality dairy production has been planned.

WISCONSIN'S LITTLE INTERNATIONAL

The University of Wisconsin Saddle and Saddle Club will present the traditional Little International Livestock show on Saturday, Feb. 23, at the University stock pavilion. Morning showmanly contests will be followed by afternoon and evening horse shows. An interesting program has been arranged.

E. E. SKALSKIKEY,
County Agent

Fully 35,000 head of feeder cattle were shipped into Wisconsin in 1945, according to officials of the department of agriculture.

AAA Committeemen Given 1946 Program at Meeting

A meeting of the AAA community committeemen was held in the Moose hall at West Bend on Friday, Feb. 8. A discussion of the changes of the 1946 program over previous programs was given by Arthur J. Hamann, district fieldman.

In previous years a definite allowance was set up for each farm. Instead each county has been given a certain amount of funds. Our county has received its allowance and it will be up to the farmers themselves and the triple-A committeemen to determine how and where it should be spent in order to get the most conservation for each dollar.

It was decided that the most adapted practices for Washington county were: liming materials, fertilizers, terraces, contouring, inter-tillage crops, contouring close-sover crops, contour strip-cropping with intertilled crops, contour strip-cropping with small grain crops, field strip-cropping not on the contour—water erosion, field strip-cropping not on the contour—wind erosion, establishing sod waterways, construction or enlargement of open farm drainage ditches, excavation of ditches for the drainage, green manure crops, pasture establishment, eradication of perennial noxious weeds on crop land.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON FINAL SETTLEMENT AND DETERMINATION OF INHERITANCE TAX

State of Wisconsin, County Court, Washington County.

In the Matter of the Estate of Elizabeth Foerster, Deceased.

Notice is hereby given that at a term of said Court to be held on Tuesday, the 26th day of February, 1946, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Courtroom in the City of West Bend, in said County, there will be heard and considered:

The application of Beulah Foerster, administratrix of the estate of Elizabeth Foerster, deceased, late of the Town of Wayne, in said County, for the examination and allowance of her final account, which account is now on file in said Court, and for the allowance of debts or claims paid in good faith without filing or allowance as required by law, for the determination of who are the heirs of said deceased, and for the assignment of the residue of the estate of said deceased to such persons as are by law entitled thereto; and for the determination and allocation of the inheritance tax, if any, payable in said estate.

Dated January 29th, 1946.

By Order of the Court,
F. W. Bucklin, Judge.
Arthur G. Brandt, Attorney
Campbellsport, Wis.

During the month of February, community committeemen will offer their assistance in planning the farmers' participation in the 1946 farm program. Each farmer will be sent a notice of the practices approved for his farm soon after he has signed his farm plan, or at least before planting time, so that he will know what practices will qualify him for payment.

Farmers can help speed up the farm plan sign-up by co-operating with their community committeemen in getting this job done. April 15, 1946 is the final date for signing the 1946 farm plan. The signing of the farm plan is the farmers' intention to participate in the 1946 farm program.

Why do it the hard way?

"Gee Whiz, that's no way to enjoy a good book! Get yourself a lamp with a 150 watt bulb, or better yet, the 100-200-300 watt size. Then you'll really enjoy reading."

"When buying lamps—look for the lamps that have reflectors and light colored shades. Then be sure to keep the right size bulbs in them."

Pennsylvania THE KEYSTONE STATE

By EDWARD EMERINE WNU Features

PENNSYLVANIA has something for everybody.

It is more than a boast, more than a slogan. The Keystone state is so varied in climate, scenery, industries and occupations that it defies articulate and coherent description.

Are you interested in American history? Start at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, the Cradle of Liberty. Wander through the streets where Benjamin Franklin lived and worked and helped create a united nation.

Mountains, Lakes, Forests. Vacation? Sports? First of all, you'll like the famous Pennsylvania Turnpike and the other smooth highways of Pennsylvania.

Are you an industrialist? Then you'll want to investigate the great coal fields, like those at Scranton, or look into Pennsylvania's billion-dollar textile business. The steel mills at Pittsburgh with their blast furnaces roaring should tingle your blood.

Many Colleges, Universities. Schools? The institutions of higher education include the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, founded in 1740; Washington and Jefferson in Washington, founded in 1780; Pennsylvania State college; University of Pittsburgh; Carnegie Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh; Lafayette college, Easton; Lehigh university, Bethlehem; Temple university, Philadelphia; Bucknell university, Lewisburg; Dickinson college, Carlisle; Franklin and Marshall college, Lancaster; Allegheny college, Meadville; Duquesne college, Pittsburgh; Grove City college, Grove City; Haverford college, Haverford; Swarthmore college, Swarthmore.

the state constitution to this day. The United States was born on Pennsylvania soil. The articles of confederation were adopted in Philadelphia; the Declaration of Independence was written and signed there; the treaty of peace which ended the Revolutionary war was ratified in that place, and later the constitution of the United States was formulated there.

The first settlers on the site of the present city of Philadelphia were Swedes who came over in 1638, but it was not until 1681, when William Penn was proprietor of the land by royal decree, that the permanent features of the city were established.

William Marker and a small party of Quaker colonists came to take possession, and they proceeded at once to build homes. The next year Penn himself arrived to have the capital laid out.

The first continental Congress met in Carpenters' hall in 1774. The second Congress assembled in the state house in 1775. There, on June 15, 1775, Washington was appointed commander-in-chief of the army. On July 4, 1776, Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence in the state house to the pealing of the Old Liberty bell.

Kathleen Norris Says: Dull Days Ahead for Many

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

"Even in peace times many a pretty wife discovers that early married life is a very serious business, and that most young husbands don't like to see their wives dancing."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS IT'S ONE thing to be a war widow, and be bored and lonely for three years," writes Phoebe Cutter from Minneapolis, "but it's another thing to have your man come home, dissatisfied with everything, discouraged about everything, unwilling to make the slightest effort to rebuild the happiness we once had.

"Sam and I were married five years ago," the letter goes on. "I am not prettier than the average run of girls, but I am pretty, 27 now, and still loving to meet my friends, to plan good times, and to dance. It seems to me hard to think that all that is out of my life forever. I'm a good manager and housekeeper, and despite the fact that we have a daughter almost four, did part-time work during the war, and kept our financial head above water.

"Sam has his old job back, but he is dissatisfied with it. His old boss is dead, and a man Sam trained as boss, and making the most of it. When I ask him to break away he says he feels too old and tired to try for a change. He is 34, but seems much older than that. He talks of approaching inflation and depression, unemployment and hard times; he thinks I have spoiled Mopsy, and that she doesn't like him. Of course, if he will make no effort to win her affection, so small a girl is not likely to give it.

"Nothing Matters." "During the war my mother lived with me. She is a trained nurse, and is now taking cases again. When he first returned she suggested that she leave us, but Sam protested, saying wearily to me later that it didn't matter how many persons lived with us.

"That is his general position; nothing matters. He drags quietly through days of uncongenial work, comes home to sit silently in the sitting-room until I say dinner is ready, doesn't read the papers much or listen to the radio. We have been once together to movies since he got home; then it was a war film, through which he trembled and muttered all the time. My heart is sick with pity for him, but I don't know what to do. I consulted a psychiatrist, telling him I thought Sam was a borderline case. He only laughed and said it would be years before they got through the genuine cases and came to the possible ones.

"And meanwhile men admire me, and want to take me places for dinner and dancing," the letter concludes, "and the best years of my life are going by, and I don't see anything ahead except housework, baby care, and the endless efforts to cheer Sam. What to do?"

Phoebe, my dear, I say in answer, this won't last. This is the slow convalescence from war fever that thousands—hundreds of thousands of men are suffering, and must endure for a while. Sam's civilian life, with its vagueness, its frivolities, its serene unconsciousness of what he has been going through, is stypifying. He can't get used to it. He has been starved himself, in prison camp, for weary weeks and months, he has seen strong, courageous young men starve to death.

Trivialities Madden Him. To see you concerned about new bedcovers, the cost of lamb chops, Diphtheria Unnecessary. The deaths of approximately 1,000 American children annually from diphtheria are unnecessary and could be prevented by early administration of antitoxin in adequate doses, says the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The available methods for control of diphtheria are sufficient to allow the complete elimination of this disease in the United States. In 1943 the death rate from diphtheria at all ages fell below one per hundred thousand for the first time.

Cleaning Burned Material From Pans Is Tedious Job Soaking and gentle but persistent scouring are the safest ways of cleaning off burned material, but these take time. For scouring use fine steel wool, which is again appearing in stores, or scouring powder.

When the pan has cooled, fill it half full of cold water, and heat the water gradually to boiling. Baking soda added to the water may help soften the burned material. After heating, scrape out loosened material, add more water to the pan, and repeat the heating process.

The worst sufferers from scorching are enamelware and thin metal utensils. The enamel is almost sure to crack and chip when enamelware is scorched. Once chipped, an enamelware pan is unsafe to use.

Favorite Costume With Teen-Agers

DELIGHT of every teenage miss is the dirndl skirt and gay peasant blouse. Juniors who sew their own can make this outfit in no time at all. Beading with narrow ribbon runs through highlights the blouse—the side-button skirt has two rows of ric rac for accent. Wearable and tubbable.

Pattern No. 8887 is designed for sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 16 and 18. Size 12, skirt, 1 1/2 yards of 35 or 39-inch; blouse, 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch; 4 yards ribbon; 4 yards ric rac.

Due to an unusually large demand and current conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Present-Day Espionage

The extent of the espionage carried on preparatory to World War II may be judged by the fact that only about 2,000 spies were convicted throughout the world between 1870 and 1920, while some 35,000 were convicted between 1920 and 1935.

To Save Money, Mix Your Cough Relief at Home

So Easy! No Cooking, Quick Relief. Even if you're not interested in saving good money, you surely want a really effective relief for coughs due to colds. So try mixing it yourself. In your kitchen, and be ready for a surprise.

It's so easy to mix a child could do it. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed. Or use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Then fill up with your syrup. This makes a pint—about four times as much for your money. It tastes good—children really like it. It lasts a family a long time, and never spoils. But what you'll like most is the way it takes right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes irritation, and helps clear the air passages. Eases soreness, and lets you sleep. You'll say you've never seen its superior. Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat and bronchial irritations. Try it, and if you're not really delighted, your money will be refunded. —Adv.

Entertaining Easily

Wartime brought back a simplicity of entertaining which will last for some time. We learned that an elaborate meal need not be served for a gathering to be successful. In fact, the simplest of food well prepared and nicely served will bring cheers from any crowd.

A salad with tiny sandwiches served with tea is ample refreshment for an afternoon meeting of the club. A mouth-watering coffee cake with coffee is ideal for an evening get-together. Chocolate milk and sandwiches or a casserole is perfect fare for the children's party.

With sugar still among the scarce items, it's a good idea to conserve on this precious foodstuff whenever possible. Judicious use of sugar substitutes will pull you through many a scarce period, and salads and sandwiches served with beverages will take care of the other times.

When selecting a recipe, check over the amount of sugar required before starting to mix so that you will not be caught short-handed. Consider also whether it is wise to use, say two cups of sugar for a cake, or whether a cake with half or less of that amount couldn't do just as well. It often will.

Many cookies and dessert sauces can be made just as sweet without sugar. These little economies will save sugar for the times when you really need it.

Here are two versatile salads which can easily meet entertaining needs. Both can be served with thin strips of sandwiches to act as a main dish.

Molded Main Dish Salad.

- 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 cup tomato juice
- 1 small can salmon, flaked
- 2 diced, hard-cooked eggs
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat tomato juice to boiling. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Chill until partially congealed. Flake salmon; add. Add remaining ingredients. Place in individual ring molds or one 8 1/2-inch mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on bed of lettuce greens and serve with french dressing or mayonnaise.

Lynn Says:

Keep well-groomed: Art gum or wall paper cleaner may be used on light-colored felt hats and kid gloves for cleaning.
Light-colored furs may be cleaned and much improved in appearance by rubbing well with corn meal or flour. Shake out thoroughly and then brush well.
To prevent blisters from new shoes, cover irritated surface or place where shoe is most likely to rub with a small piece of adhesive tape.
To mend woolen garments, ravel a thread from the cloth itself and use for darning.

Lynn Chambers' Menus.

- Roast Loaf of Pork
- Candied Apples
- Sweet Potatoes, Baked
- Buttered Brussels Sprouts
- Biscuits with Jam Beverage
- Pineapple Cole Slaw
- Citrus Chiffon Pie

Frozen Fruit Salad.

- (Serves 8)
- 1 cup cottage cheese
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup pineapple, finely diced
- 1 cup cherries, pitted
- 1 cup peaches, sliced or diced
- 2 oranges, diced
- 8 marshmallows, quartered
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise

Combine cheese, salt, fruits and marshmallows, tossing together lightly with a fork. Chill. Whip cream until stiff and combine lightly with mayonnaise. Fold in cheese mixture. Place in freezing tray for three to four hours; or, pack in equal parts of ice and salt for four hours. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with additional whipped cream blended with mayonnaise.

Sandwich Fillings

1. Combine 2 cups ground ham, 5 tablespoons mayonnaise, 5 tablespoons prepared mustard and use on whole wheat or rye bread.
2. Mash 3 ounces of cream cheese with 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce and 2 tablespoons finely cut chives. Use with rounds of whole wheat or white bread.
3. Combine chopped hard-cooked eggs with minced celery, onion juice, chopped sweet pickle and mayonnaise to moisten. This is good on any type of bread.
4. Combine cottage cheese with chopped dates and preserved ginger and spread on white bread.
5. Mix cottage cheese with chipped, crisp bacon and add salad dressing to moisten.

A fruited coffee cake is always delightful because it has flavor and is appealing to look at. Here is the quick type which uses an easy method with a choice of fruit.

Fruited Coffee Cake.

- 2 cups flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup fat
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 cup milk
- 8 apricot halves or
- 4 peach halves or pineapple slices

Sift flour once, measure. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Cut fat into dry ingredients until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Combine egg with milk. Add to dry ingredients. Stir only until mixed. Pour into a greased 8-inch square pan. Leave apricots whole and cut peaches or pineapple in half. Arrange fruit over top of dough. Mix 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, and 1 tablespoon fat together. Sprinkle this mixture over the top. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven for 30 minutes.

Panels, Coils, Ducts Will Replace Radiators In Postwar Home, Says the Decorator

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN

It looks as if we will sooner or later be saying good-bye to all that bother about radiators. For the new type of heating is going to be built into the floors, ceilings or walls. It is easier to build this new radiator type of heating into a new structure, but it can be incorporated in an already-built structure. Because the basic furnace boiler is the same as we use today. The difference is in the fixture through which the heat is released into the room.

In place of radiator or register, this type of heat will be released through panels, coils or ducts concealed in floor, ceiling or walls. This makes more of a difference in room heating than you'd think. It does much more than simply eliminating an unsightly radiator from the room. By heating the room this way, it actually is possible to keep comfortable at a temperature at least 5 degrees lower than with the familiar types of heat. That means quite an economy on the amount of fuel. But there is a question as to whether it is best to heat the floor or the ceiling. The advantage of heating the floor is that it is cheaper and easier to install the coils in the floor, and they make even a linoleum, cement or stone floor comfortable enough for children to play on. The advantage of having the heating coils placed in the ceiling is that overhead heat is more natural to man (take the sun for instance) and also that ceiling coils can be heated to a higher degree than floor coils in frigid weather.

A simpler, less expensive type of panel heating that heats rooms by radiation is the new baseboard radiator. This type can be put into old houses with a minimum of construction change. These actually look like baseboards but act like radiators, and they have the extra advantage of heating the room at floor level which is the part that's apt to be the coldest.

Creating Modern Air About the House By Placing Emphasis Upon Windows

HOUSES of glass are realities today and, if you want to give any house a modern air, try to make the windows seem important. One way is to frame them in a group by covering the wall and leaving the glass exposed.

An inexpensive chintz with grey-green ground and a flower pattern is used for draperies and to trim the couch cover of heavier grey-green cotton material which is also used for the cushions. The glass curtains are hung on rods suspended from the picture moulding with picture wire and hooks. The side drapes are unlined but the valance is made over buckram. Both are tacked to pine strips and are hung with picture hooks. One end of the book shelves is closed in to make a head for the couch. The outside is painted grey-green and the inside dark green. The parchment lamp shade has green bindings.

Uncle Phil Says:

The ability to speak several languages is an asset, but to be able to hold your tongue in one language is priceless!

When there is room in the heart, there is room in the house.

Ego is the only thing that can keep on growing without nourishment.

A "career" doesn't look so big after 30 years of making a living.

The fellow who claims that the world owes him a living is up against it if you ask him for an itemized statement.

Between 1900 and 1945, more than 1,600 persons were publicly whipped in Delaware, where an individual may still be flogged for any one of 24 different offenses at the discretion of the court. The study from which these figures were taken also discloses that this form of medieval punishment has no special deterrent effect.

Look! Muffins made with Peanut Butter! (No shortening and only 1/4 cup sugar)

If you'd like to try something brand new in muffins that's truly delicious and saves on shortening, too — try Kellogg's new Peanut Butter Muffins. You'll love their flavor. You'll love, too, the tender, melt-in-your-mouth texture of bran muffins made with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. For ALL-BRAN is milled extra-fine for golden softness.

- 1/2 cup peanut butter
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup Kellogg's ALL-BRAN
- 1 cup sifted flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Blend peanut butter and sugar thoroughly; stir in egg, milk and Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with baking powder and salt; add to first mixture

Good Nutrition, too!

ALL-BRAN is made from the VITAL OUTER LAYER of finest wheat—contains a concentration of the protective food elements found in the whole grain. One-half cup provides over 1/2 your daily minimum need for iron. Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily!

MODERN HEALTH TALKS
By ROBERT G. ROBERTS, D. C.
Questions about your health will be answered in this department. Address your inquiry to this newspaper.
BRONCHIAL COUGHS
Chronic Bronchitis and Persistent Bronchial Coughs are definitely benefited by Chiropractic and Physiotherapy.
By easy gentle massage and manipulation the cervical lymphatic glands and surrounding tissues are drained of their congestion.
A better blood and nerve supply is established in the mucous linings of the nose, throat, and bronchial tubes.
These mucous linings are made up of tiny hair-like cells called cilia—and under the microscope they look like a field of grain waving in the breeze. In time they move back ward toward the throat—and from the bronchial they move upward toward the mouth. Too much mucus and congestion impairs the function of this membrane—and hence there is a failure to get a normal clearance of the nose and bronchial tubes.

Nose drops containing epinephrine and ephedrine have been found to be injurious to these ciliated membranes and should be avoided.—pneumonia in small children has been produced by their indiscriminate use.
Treatment reduces congestion, normalizes the mucous membranes,—and overcomes bronchitis.

CHICK STARTER IN NEW FORM ANNOUNCED!
CARGILL introduces Improved Starter that's CRUMBLIZED* for Easy Eating
An important advance in the science of chick feeding has just been announced by Cargill. A new form of chick starter has been developed that provides chicks with easy-to-eat food bits sized just as nature intended. Not a mash... not a peller... Cargill says "It's Crumblized!"
The new type Cargill starter incorporates the same famous formula that has made Cargill such a favorite with poultry raisers. The "crumblized" process makes it better than ever. Not too fine, not too large, chicks can eat more in less time. There is no danger of clogged beak trouble, often caused by fine floury feeds. There is less waste. Since each mouthful is a virtual blend of all food values, it helps assure a more nearly balanced diet for all chicks. Greedy chicks can't pick out the choice ingredients... so all the chicks benefit. Cargill Crumblized* Chick Starter is packed in colorful, cotton print sacks. Get a supply before your new chicks arrive.
