

List Red Cross Drive Chairmen and Quotas; Village Quota $532

General Chairman R. S. Gagan this week announced the appointment of his committee chairmen for the 1916 Red Cross fund. The drive, spearheaded by the slogan, "Your Red Cross Must Carry On," will open March 1.

Its principal purposes are to assure continuing services to the men in uniform here and abroad, to bring comfort and cheer to the ex-servicemen, and to provide for the many other duties that the Red Cross is constantly called upon to render in our own community.

The amount to be raised this year is $5,150, compared with $16,400 a year ago. Of this total, $6,035 or 65.7 per cent will be available for the requirements of the chapter area, and $3,115 or 34.3 per cent is for national and international needs.

Chairmen Are Named Each township, village and city in this area will be headed by a chairman who will select his own workers for the drive. He will also arrange for meetings and will organize the work in his section. E. B. Ekko was appointed assistant general chairman, with the following being named community chairmen:

Townships—Barton, Mrs. William Jansen; Farmington, Harvey Dettmann; Jackson, Paul W. Bartlett; Kewaskum, Alfred Seefeldt; Trenton, Harvey Laughlin; Wayne, George Peter; West Bend, Orrin J. Peters.

Co-operation Urged All of the chairmen urge that those who are called upon to assist in their wholehearted co-operation to assure once again that this community will have done its full share in enabling the Red Cross to carry on its many services to the many who are in need of them.

Quotas Are Listed Townships—Barton, $750; Farmington, $504; Jackson, $504; Kewaskum, $281; Trenton, $501; Wayne, $378; West Bend, $500. Villages—Barton, $176; Jackson, $196; Kewaskum, $532. City of West Bend—$5,096.

Boh Hope, radio star, recently said, "This war was won by teamwork, and one of the star members of the team was the Red Cross. I saw it on every war front I visited. . . . doing the same great job it has done in every disaster, flood, and hurricane that has hit us in past years." There were 260 major disasters in this country last year.

General Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the army, recently said, "In the wake of every war, thousands of men are left injured. When hospitalized, hours can drag on endlessly. The friendly smile helping hand of the Red Cross worker can help shorten them immensely. When our wounded were in hospitals overseas, the Red Cross was there. Now that they are home, the Red Cross is still with them. Though the war is over, our men need the Red Cross as much as ever."

Kewaskum, Rosendale Share Championship

TRI-COUNTY CONFERENCE (FINAL STANDINGS) Won Lost Pct. Kewaskum 9 1 .900 Rosendale 9 1 .900 Lomira 5 5 .500 Campbellport 4 6 .400 Brandon 3 7 .300 Oakfield 0 10 .000

Co-champions of the Fox River Tri-County conference, Kewaskum and Rosendale, each came through with final game victories last Friday night. Coach Ernie Mitchell's Kewaskum cagers rallied up a big 79 to 25 win at home against last-place Oakfield, and Rosendale barely squeaked out a 21 to 25 victory over Brandon. As a result the Indians share the title with Rosendale which gained the lead by nosing out Kewaskum by one point on an off night for Kewaskum earlier in the season. This one point cost Kewaskum the undisputed title. Two weeks ago Kewaskum swapped Rosendale on their own court.

In Kewaskum's run-away over Oakfield, 19 players took part in the scoring spree with the second team playing about half of the game. They scored at will almost as easily as the first stringers. Merrill Krueger was high scorer with 13 points, followed by Allan Stahl with 12.

Further Plans for Scout Exposition Made at Meet

Further plans for the Moraine District (Barton, Kewaskum, West Bend) Boy Scout exposition were discussed at the February district meeting held last Thursday night in West Bend.

H. I. Peterson, chairman of the participation committee for the exposition, reported that 30 to 35 would be arranged by the various scouting units of the district, depicting various phases of the scouting program for the exposition which will be held March 29 in the McLane auditorium, West Bend. Paul Landmann, Kewaskum, is a member of the participation committee.

It was decided by the scouters to furnish each unit with exposition complimentary tickets and each cub and scout will sign his name on all tickets he gives away. Admission will be by ticket only and during the course of the evening a drawing will be made with a prize being awarded the cub or scout whose name is on the ticket drawn. Dates Reported.

Warren H. Vetter, scout field executive, Fond du Lac, announced the change in several dates for council scouting activities and made an appeal to the scouters for their aid in extending the scouting program in centers of the district which do not have organized troops or packs.

The second Wednesday of each month was set as the regular meeting date for the district and the March meeting will be held March 13 in the West Bend Sea Scout rooms in the city library. Stanley Hetland and Hans Vogel will be the committee in charge of the 6:30 supper.

Indians Beat Hartford to Break Losing Streak

The Kewaskum Indians got back into the victory column by defeating Hartford here Sunday night, 43 to 28, to end a five game losing streak. The win gives the team a tie with Hartford in the standings. In the Land of Rivers preliminary the Kewaskum Papooses continued their losing streak to the tune of 17 to 20.

Led by Honeck, third highest scorer in the northern Lakes circuit, who dropped 24 points through the oops, the Indians maintained a lead over Hartford throughout the contest, although the score was always close enough to keep the game interesting. Kewaskum was ahead, 16-11, at the end of the quarter and increased this lead to 25-18 at the half. The home five was still seven points ahead, 38-31, when the third period ended. Hartford outscored the Indians by one basket in the last quarter and threatened to overtake the locals near the end of the game but the Indians put on a stalling exhibition in the last few minutes which led the visitors helpless.

Pushing Honeck for scoring honors was "Boundy" Wenzel of the visitors, who ended up with 16 points. Manager Hauser was next with 13, followed by Ketter of the Indians with 11.

In the preliminary the Papooses failed to score a point in the first quarter and trailed 13-0 when this period ended. Although they outscored Hartford in the second quarter they were left far behind and never threatened. The lineups and points: Papooses—Schlagenschmidt 6, Boettcher 6, Bartelt 6, L. The big game of the season will be played Sunday afternoon when Mayville and West Bend, tied for first place, will battle it out at West Bend.

Reach Goal in Polio Drive; Report Later

While a final report will not be available until later, B. D. Rice, West Bend, general chairman of the "march of dimes" campaign in the North Washington County chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, indicated this week the 1916 drive would be up to the expectations held for it. Rice will make a final report as soon as it is possible to complete tabulation of returns from throughout the chapter area. Meanwhile, he said, he will continue to accept and will welcome contributions from persons who were either not contacted or did not have an opportunity to contribute during the drive Jan. 14 to Feb. 15.

He urged that these contributions be made to help swell the chapter fund, once again pointing out that the chapter area suffered a severe epidemic of poliomyelitis during 1915 and that, as a result, the need for funds is great, particularly for the continued care and treatment of victims of the disease.

With the drive giving every indication of being the success hoped for, Rice expressed his sincere gratitude to the public for their liberal contributions, to the members of his executive and local committees for the time and effort they put forth on the campaign, to the newspapers, and to all others who in any way helped the 1916 "march of dimes" reach the goal set for it in the North Washington County chapter.

33,756 Garments Are Collected in Clothing Drive

In a whirl wind finish, the victory clothing collection in the north half of Washington county went far beyond the expectations for the entire county, by gathering 33,756 garments, or a total of 28,330 pounds. It is more than one and one-half times the quota for Washington county, in comparison to 5,690 pounds which were shipped out last spring from the northern area.

Garments Town of Farmington 1,145 Town of Trenton 1,127 Town of Wayne 876 Town of West Bend 876 Harton village and town 2,652 Jackson village and town 4,280 Kewaskum village and town 5,235 City of West Bend 17,917 Total 33,756 or total of 28,280 pounds.

The schools and Girl Scouts accounted for the greater part of the garments and shoes collected in West Bend. McLane school gathered 3,400 garments and 300 shoes; Holy Angels collected 5,300 garments and 300 shoes; St. John's Lutheran school collected a total of 1,000 garments, and the high school of 1,800. A large part of the latter was promoted by the Latin club dance. The home economics club at the high school took over the sorting and packing.

All in all, chairman of the northern area of the county, M. G. Batho, and town, village and city workers are very happy with the results. They are particularly grateful to all those who contributed discarded clothing and shoes and to those who loaned their trucks and other facilities for gathering, sorting and boxing. A fine spirit of co-operation between schools, churches, banks, the post office, and the Girl Scout organization definitely contributed to the success of the drive.

The garments collected in the victory clothing drive are being shipped to India, Japan, China and all the countries in the war-torn area of Europe. This includes the American occupied parts of Germany. The prompt shipments of these needed garments is a step toward proving our sincerity in a desire for world peace.

At the time of going to the press, no report on the results was available from Robert Heintz, chairman of the drive in the south half of Washington county.

Kathleen Norris Says: To Work or Not to Work

Bill Phillips—WHD Features

"Cozy meals, over which you pass, plan with him and Patsy for picnics and amusements, intimate talks about him, will do much to mitigate his dissatisfaction."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

WHEN Billy Sears went to war, Patricia, his wife, went to work. Their daughter, Patsy, was 8 years old, there wasn't too much money, and the pay for women in canning plants was good.

Patricia didn't like work, and her letters to Billy were inclined to be a little grim. She got tired and dirty and she hated the long hours and the fatigue of it. She rented three of her rooms to a navy wife who paid part of her rent in care for Patsy; it wasn't an ideal arrangement, but it worked well enough.

But the pay was good, and Patricia was a good worker. She was promoted; she was raised. She was presently made a department superintendent on a salary of $60 a week. Then Bill came home. This is part of her letter:

"Through the hardest and the dullest days," writes Patricia, "I tried to send Bill cheerful letters. I didn't always like what he said in reply. He said more than once that he was glad I was working, it would keep me out of mischief and not give me any chance to waste money. Well, I wasn't ever in any danger of getting into mischief, and as for money—I make more now than Bill does. I like my work. I like my business associates. He never especially liked his job as salesman in a wholesale mattress company, and I don't think he likes my success—for in a modest way it is success.

"I want him to hold his job, and for me to hold mine with someone coming in in the afternoons to keep an eye on Patsy until we get home. It means we can save money, which we never have done. It means that I don't sink into the drudgery of dishes and dusting, but have something to say at the dinner table.

"It does, of course mean more careful managing and ordering. I have to spend every moment I have at home meeting the various demands of kitchen, bedrooms, laundry, Patsy's clothes, her school work. I like to do it, I'm strong and well; I've got everything organized. Beds aired at seven and breakfast started, beds and dishes finished, my bath and dressing for the day, Patsy and her lunch, off for school—it works like a charm. Or it would, if Bill would co-operate.

"But he simply and flatly won't," the letter finishes, "and the result is a very strained atmosphere in the house and an ugly feeling growing between us. He says he likes to come home and find his wife dainty and rested, waiting for him with his child and his tempting dinner, and I say that's sentimental nonsense. I say that we have to get ahead, and that I'm as capable of succeeding in business as any man; I have a real commercial value and mean to cash in on it. Sometimes I am a little later than he in getting home, sometimes I need the car for a short business trip—never overnight. So what? Has he any real right to make scenes about it, and threaten to divorce me? I very much want your opinion."

Patricia, my opinion is that you are right and Bill is wrong. I'm almost sorry to say so. I know so well the value of those domestic

Easy and Appetizing Ways to Use Leftovers

Potatoes are one of the most adaptable leftovers. They keep well, too, especially if you cook them in the jackets. Leftover potatoes fit nicely into soup, stew, or salad, they are good hash browned, creamed, or browned whole with a touch of onion. Mashed potatoes don't keep quite so well as boiled ones, so use them within two or three days. They make a fine lining or topping for a vegetable or meat pie, or add an

THAT EXTRA INCOME

During the war Patricia, like so many other wives of servicemen, got a job. It was in a canning plant. Patricia didn't like it at first, but she buckled down and eventually became a superintendent on $60 a week.

Now her husband, Billy, has returned. He has gone back to his work as a salesman, an occupation he does not particularly like. He doesn't earn as much as his wife at present. Patricia has continued working. She has come to enjoy the freedom from domestic drudgery, for she can hire some help. The luxuries her added income brings, and the bank account that is piling up, all seem to Patricia valid reasons for her to keep her job. They have one little girl, who is now in school. It is possible for Patricia to hire someone to look after the child from the time school is out until one parent comes home.

Billy doesn't like this arrangement at all. He wants his wife to stay home, to do the household chores, to care for their little daughter. Especially he wants his wife to look and act feminine when he comes home. The situation is getting tense, and a threat of divorce is in the offing.

ideals that Bill has brought home from lonely years in the service.

But times have changed, and we can't go back. You will never be satisfied with the lessened income, and the daily routine of pans and puddings and beds and school lunches again. You will never again be content to ask him for money and to do without personal luxuries. Nor is there any reason why you should. Marriage, by long custom, does mean dependence and household drudgery for women, but many an old custom has been split as many ways as the atom itself, and there is nothing essentially unwelcome in mutual jobs and separate incomes.

I do advise you to strive, as good naturedly and affectionately as you can, to preserve what Bill loves in a home. I presume you have Saturday afternoons and Sundays, and you can do much in that free time to keep him happy. Cozy meals, over which you fuss enthusiastically, plan with him and Patsy for picnics and amusements, intimate talks about what you hope to do with your money, about your job, about him and everything that concerns him will do much to mitigate his dissatisfaction.

If the worst comes to the worst, suggest that he try living elsewhere for a while, try a club or boarding house, and see if he gets anything like the domestic comfort there that he has with you. Keep even-tempered, sympathetic, understanding. A part of this attitude of Bill's is, of course, innate jealousy—jealousy that he doesn't recognize himself. When his own disrupted business life builds up a little more, much of it will disappear. Wait for that time, and meanwhile keep as sweet and companionable as you can.

HOMEMADE POLISH

The simple mixture of two parts boiled linseed oil and one part turpentine makes an excellent polish for furniture. The oil "feeds" the wood, and the turpentine loosens dirt and helps the oil penetrate the wood. This polish removes the dull, foggy appearance that furniture often acquires, and helps conceal fine cracks or checks in the finish. Apply the mixture with a soft cloth. Then with a dry cloth rub off excess polish until the surface is entirely dry.

Homes This Way, Please

This is a dirty age. You can now buy a home in a department store!

And get the landscaping one flight up and the poultry house in the basement.

Alladin was a small time magician by comparison. He couldn't get any more staggering results using his wonderful lamp than a shopper can get using the elevators.

Even a man who thinks he has been everywhere and seen everything yells for an aspirin when he hears the elevator girl chirp "Sixth floor for bungalows, villas, duplexes, country estates and small farms!"

We joined the shopping rush at one of the big stores selling homes the other day. It was terrific. We lost a rib in a disheveled shoulder between the bath and the kitchenette of a country home and had our shins barked in the patio of a demi-tasse residence marked down to $4,998 from $5,000 (only one to a customer).

You may think the women folks are tough when in search of nylon, but you haven't seen unnecessary roughness until you see them with their boy-friends determined to find out which department store is offering the hottest sale of bargain domiciles.

An embelted shopper in the Christmas rush trying to grab the last bottle of perfume is a mildly aggressive foe compared to a wife, mother or sister out to find the best buys in kitchenettes, guest rooms, sun porches and picket fences.

Some of the hardest looks we ever saw exchanged between human beings were exchanged between two recent brides claiming an inspection priority on the threshold of a 10 by 12 living room.

Artificial trees, rocks, rills and grass gave such an effect of reality to the homes that we sat on one to the porch and complained to the floor-walker that there was no sea breeze.

In the patio of the house in the next alley, we heard a woman ask a salesman, "Haven't you something with a better view?"

Be it ever so humble there is no place like home, wrapped to be taken out or sent parcels post.

Next elevator, please, for garages, cabanas, extra circular stairways, spare cellars and hanging gardens!

Those Old Buggies

Do you recall the one-cylinder Pierce-Arrow Motorcar which had a surrey top and was steered by a lever which came out at right angles from the side? Prior to that one, I rode as a kid in a one-cylinder Seiden. This had wheels like a bicycle and the seats were back to back and it was steered with a tiller in the center. The old model K-Winton (four-cylinder) was driven with planetary drive, which had a low and high speed, of course, and this was controlled on a side lever. There was a second side lever, which, when pushed forward, was supposed to be an emergency brake, but had no ratchet to hold it and if you relied on the braking power you were completely lost. The Thomas Flyer, which was built in my home-town in Buffalo, was a very good car and most expensive. Veterans SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1615 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Guard Against Rackets

Veterans' administration officials are urging discharged veterans to "stop, look and listen" before they engage in business. There are scores of rackets being worked against veterans who get out of the army or navy with cash in their pockets and with the privilege of borrowing money under the G. I. bill for purchase of a farm, a home or a business.

"We won't tell the veteran what to do," says N. D. Hathaway, director of contract service for the VA, "but we will advise him to the best of our ability."

"The best advice we can give him is 'Use your head. Don't rush into an investment. Seek good advice. Investigate until you are satisfied yourself. It is better to be sure than sorry.'"

In the meantime the veterans' contact service refers veterans to banks, or to the Better Business Bureau in the city or town where he plans to invest his money. They give him the address of the legal aid bureau where legal assistance is free to veterans, if they cannot afford to hire a lawyer. Contact advice always urges veterans to convert their national service life insurance. The VA does not tell the veteran where to invest or in what to invest his money. There are too many variable factors, so their only counsel is extreme caution.

Questions and Answers

Q. My brother is 21 and has been in the merchant marine since December 4, 1944. When can he quit the merchant marines and not be drafted in the army?—Reader, Elkhart, Ala.

A. Your brother has been deferred from the draft by reason of his service in the merchant marine and he will be eligible to be drafted until he is 26 unless he (1) has been in the merchant marines for not less than 32 months on or after May 1, 1940; (2) at least 75 per cent of his time has been in active service; and (3) he has applied for and received from the War Shipping Administration a certificate certifying he has completed his wartime service and is eligible to be relieved from further consideration as a draftee under the selective service system.

Q. I am the widow of a World War I veteran and haven't been receiving a dime of pension since his death, seven years ago. I've tried getting a pension at that time, but was told that we, in Wisconsin, did not get any. Is this true? If I am entitled to a pension what must I do to get it?—S. W., Ellsworth, Wis.

A. If you are the legal widow of a veteran of World War I, you are entitled to a pension wherever you live. Take your husband's record, his discharge papers and all available information you have and file a claim with the nearest office of the Veterans' administration. Your local Red Cross chapter could help you file this claim.

Q. I would like to know if a boy is eligible for draft deferment who is the main tractor and truck man on a hundred-acre farm?—J. N., Fairhope, Pa.

A. That would be a question to be determined by the local selective service board. If the board determined that the boy was essential in raising food for the community or for the armed services, he could be given an agricultural deferment, as being of greater use on the farm than in the armed services.

Q. My husband enlisted in the Seabees and our son was born two months after he went overseas. I did not receive any allotment on our son until he was six months old. My husband is home and has his discharge now. Is there any way I could get the allotment now?—Wife, Glenwood Springs, Colo.

A. The navy says the most common reason for failure to receive allotments is that the serviceman failed to apply for an allotment when he became eligible for one. Yes, allotments are retroactive and may be obtained after discharge. Suggest you write to the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, Allotment Division, Navy Department, Cleveland, Ohio.

Q. Is it true that a serviceman can take a trip around the world or across the ocean free and only pay half-fare for his family?—M. B., Superior, Wis.

A. The war department has no knowledge of any such plan.

Q. My brother was discharged from the army November 9, 1943. Will he be eligible for pensions or anything under the G. I. Bill of Rights?—Worried sister, Guntersville, Ala.

A. Yes, if he received an honorable discharge he is eligible for all benefits under the G. I. bill.

Q. My husband is a veteran of World War I and is now a patient in a Veterans hospital at Hines, Ill., totally disabled. Will you tell me what steps to take in order to get him the non-service connected disability pension?—Wife, Cuba, Ill.

A. There is a Veterans' administration regional office at Hines at the hospital. Since your husband is a patient there they know his disability rating. Have the officials there check this rating and make your application for disability pension. If he is eligible and deserving he will be awarded.

Fish Food Favorites

There are quantities of fish on the markets right now. This food arrives often, you'll find on investigation, more than just once a week, and you may buy it fresh, canned, and often frozen.

Fish is a delicate food and needs only short cooking time to bring it to perfect doneness. Broiling is a good method of preparation because it gives fish a crusty, golden brown appearance, and so baking because it makes preparation so easy.

You'll want to use all varieties of fish to round out the diet. For, fish is not only good when properly prepared, but it's also a fine protein food with many fine minerals.

Seasonings are important because they enhance the delicate flavors of fish itself. A touch of onion is always in order, and occasionally you'll want to add parsley, chives and herbs.

Here are two unusually tasty baked fish recipes. They use cereal to extend the fish, and make a fine blend when the food is baked:

Crunchy Fish Scallop.
(Serves 6)
3 tablespoons butter or substitute
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons onion juice
4 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
2 cups (1 pound) flaked fish, cooked
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 hard-cooked eggs
1 cup coarsely crushed corn flakes
1/2 cup grated American cheese

Make a white sauce by melting the butter, adding the flour and blending. Add milk, salt and pepper. Cook and stir until thickened. Then add onion juice and green pepper.

Remove bones and skin from cooked fish. Flake. Arrange in greased baking dish and sprinkle with lemon juice. Place sliced eggs, half of the crushed corn flakes and half of the cheese on top. Cover with white sauce and top with remaining

LYNN SAYS

Use Common Sense: Problems that every cook comes up against every once in a while can be solved with some good, practical common sense. Here are some examples:

Rolls and muffins which have become too stale to eat can be freshened by sprinkling with water and placed in a brown paper sack to be heated for about 5 minutes in a moderate oven.

Tea mixed with a little grated orange rind will go twice as far, and will be delicately flavored.

To use leftover egg yolks, poach them until they are hard-cooked, then grate them and use as a garnish for salads and vegetable dishes.

Use celery tops as a flavoring for soups and stews.

Add leftover sausage or bacon to waffle and pancake batters or combine with leftover potatoes (mashed), then fry.

Blonde Aviatrix Arranged Suicide Plane Project for German Victory

Hanna Reitsch's Plan Still Incomplete When Nazi Defeat Ended World War II

By PAULINE FREDERICK
WNU Foreign Correspondent.

NUERNBERG, GERMANY. — Never before in history has so much of how a war began and how it was fought come to light so quickly after that war's end as is happening today in Germany. There is not alone the incredible tale that is unfolding in the green-curtained courtroom here in Nuernberg. But a thousand other chapters are being revealed all over this torn country that will eventually complete the piece.

One of these is the story of how the Germans toyed with the idea of developing suicide planes to repel an invasion fleet in 1943 when their dreams of world conquest had come to an end in Russia. This tale impact with the water would kill the pilot instantly and allow the bomb to tear loose from the plane and continue under the keel of the vessel where it would explode with a time fuse that would be set in motion upon impact with the water.

Hitler Lukewarm to Plan.

Then on February 28, 1944, Reitsch had a three-hour conference with Hitler at Berchtesgaden to convince him that he should accept the plan and name the proper leadership.

The aviatrix had long been convinced, undoubtedly for personal as well as professional reasons, that Goering was not the man for his job, to say nothing of this one. Hitler didn't like the self-sacrificing idea

Written Exclusively For WNU Features

Tests on a Messerschmitt 323, to be launched from the back of a Dornier 217 in flight were completed in April, 1944. When it became apparent, however, that production in any quantity could not begin for months, it was decided that the V-1 "buzz bomb" should be altered sufficiently to take care of the project.

Perilous Test Flights.

A pilot's compartment was installed in the V-1, and other small modifications made, and then it was tested. There was a high fatality rate among the test pilots, but Reitsch came through and was convinced that this was the weapon that could be used. The particular danger in testing these planes was in landing them, whether as gliders or with a power unit, because of the speed and angle at which they came in. Ship targets were simulated by colored smoke bombs on the ground and dives and approaches were made to test angles and necessary speeds. An intricate aiming device was developed. The done carefully and accurately was to determine the distance from the ship that the V-1 was supposed to enter the water. The size and weight of the ship had to be judged exactly. By a sliding scale on the apparatus before him, the pilot was able to select his proper angle and maintain it correctly until his plane entered the water. The dive toward the water at a speed probably greater than 323 miles an hour was to disintegrate the V-1 and give the necessary impetus to the torpedo to continue on through the water until it reached a certain position, when the time fuse would automatically set off.

But the Nazi suicide squad never got into action. Even the technical development was not fully complete when the war ended, to say nothing of production that would have put the weapon into action.

Reitsch lays the failure to get the project into operation, as well as all other failures of German air power, to Goering. She says "that the spirit with which Goering had infused the Luftwaffe was detrimental to our project was well known to all of us. We needed strong leadership, tempered with an idealism that matched our own. Most of all we needed a leader who saw the present military situation (March, 1944) in the same degree of precariousness as we ourselves saw it."

IT WAS HIS FAULT... Hanna Reitsch lays the failure of the suicide plane project to Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering. The ex-chief of the ex-luftwaffe is shown here as he talked to Allied war correspondents in a detention camp. His facial expressions were dubbed his "injured innocence" act.

has just come to light in intelligence reports released at Frankfurt, and the star of the piece is a blonde aviatrix named Hanna Reitsch.

Here is the Story:

By 1943 a lot of people in Germany, including Reitsch, had become convinced that only extraordinary measures could bring the war to a successful end for Germany. They decided that if any plan for invasion of the continent could be destroyed at the beginning, Germany could then be safe enough in its continental fortress so that the Allies would be ready to make peace. Therefore, a small group of men banded together — a "suicide squadron" who were willing to give their lives in some kind of a man-propelled flying bomb that would destroy and sink at a ratio of one vessel per flying bomb, all the larger naval craft that were so important in protecting and covering an invasion force. Reitsch, from the beginning, was to be the chief test pilot for such a craft.

In the death of a thousand of their number the squadron hoped to save the lives of many thousands.

But plans had not progressed very far when insuperable obstacles were encountered. First, Reitsch went to Luftwaffe authorities and there was met with the impression that the idea was fantastic and the result of hallucinations of people tired of life who were looking for a martyr's end in the pages of German history. She had no better success at the air ministry. Then she took the matter to the aeronautical research council. After the experts examined the idea, they decided it was feasible. The plan was to install a 2,000 pound bomb-torpedo in the nose of a plane, which would be steered into the water at a certain angle. The of the project because he thought it was "un-German." Also, he refused to believe that Germany's situation was so precarious and demanded such unusual measures. Hitler finally did say that plans would be developed so that when he gave the order they could be put into operation — but until such time as he chose to speak he didn't want to be bothered with the idea any more.

Meanwhile, 70 or 80 men, carefully selected, had signed the pledge: "I hereby volunteer as a pilot of the manned glider-bomb. I am convinced that this action will end with my death."

Hanna Reitsch

Hanna Reitsch describes herself as follows: Five feet, 4 1/2 inches tall, weighs about 109 pounds, has blonde hair with a "permanent," blue eyes, white teeth and a small round face with a scar down the center of her nose, a well-proportioned figure, is 33 years old, and not considered beautiful.

She was a test pilot of German military aircraft and flew the V-1 "buzz bomb" plane. She holds records for flying gliders and other types of planes. But more than that, she was in the bunker under the Reichschancellery with Hitler and his entourage during the last days of Berlin and was slated to be a participant in the mass suicide plan worked out by Hitler to be put into effect when the Russians reached the bunker.

However, in the early morning hours of April 30, 1945, the Fuehrer ordered her and Lt. Gen. Ritter von Greim, who had succeeded Goering as head of the Luftwaffe, to leave to accomplish two missions. One was to get Luftwaffe help to Berlin. The other was to prevent Heinrich Himmler, whom Hitler had just heard had contacted the Allies to make peace terms, from succeeding him as Fuehrer. Reitsch was Von Greim's personal pilot.

As far as is known at this time, Hanna Reitsch flew the last plane out of Berlin before it capitulated. Because of the conditions of the besieged city at the time, she says it is fantastic for anyone to believe that another plane could have safely spirited Hitler out so that he might be living today.

DIDN'T LIKE IT... Adolf Hitler didn't like Hanna Reitsch's idea for "suicide planes." He thought it was "un-German" but finally consented to have the plans developed.

Himmler Plotted to Kill Hitler and Trade his Body To Allies for Personal Safety, Colonel Testifies

During the last days of the Nazi regime, when allied armies were closing in on Berlin from all sides, the terror-stricken members of the high command tried to save themselves by sacrificing their associates. Heinrich Himmler, grim chief of the dread gestapo, sought to murder Adolf Hitler and sell his body to the Allies as the price of peace and personal safety, according to new information disclosed by British intelligence experts.

The British stress that Colonel von Buelow's story remains unconfirmed from other sources.

According to Colonel von Buelow, Himmler and his SS officers in the Reichschancellery bunker during the last days before Berlin's fall plotted Hitler's murder, but it is not known whether any attempt was made to carry it out.

Munich Bomb 'Inside Job'?

Heydrich was accused by Gen. George Thomas in a statement to United States authorities of having stage managed the deadly drama

PARIS QUIT TOO QUICKLY

The German high command decided on May 28, 1940, not to fight for Paris if the French attempted to defend their capital, Col. Gen. Alfred Jodi's diary disclosed recently. This decision was jotted down by Jodi, commander of Hitler's personal staff, during the battle of France.

It's Easy to Repair Overstuffed Furniture At Home if You Follow These Rules

By MARION ATKINS

The sag in your chair which gives the appearance of a bucket seat in a transport plane and which puts it in the same uncomfortable seating category, comes from springs which have torn loose from their moorings. How to fix it? Repair work involves a little strong-arm work, a few simple rules and easily attainable equipment.

Turn the chair upside down, strip off the old covering and then tack the webbing to one side of the frame, carrying it across and cutting after allowing one inch for turnover. Pull tight against the frame with the webbing stretcher, tack, fold over and tack again. Push the springs back under each row of webbing as you apply it until they are held in place. Weave cross strips of webbing from side to side of chair until entire bottom is a checkerboard of webbing. With curved needle and heavy twine catch spring underneath and fasten to webbing in four separate places. Catch webbing at each intersection and sew for added strength. Tack a piece of black cambric or muslin to the under edges of frame to protect springs and webbing from dust.

In attacking a more complicated upholstery job, such as re-doing a sofa or a large chair, the procedure is a bit more complicated and extensive, but it is based on a one-two-three work system. First, strip off all the old upholstery and use pieces as patterns for the new material. Take off all padding. Re-tie the springs to the frame and to each other. Stretch webbing over seat, back, arms, working always for a "tight" effect. Stretch and tack burlap or a burlap substitute over springs and then put back all the layers of padding. Tack muslin on smoothly and then the new fabric, whether it be a gay, bright new corduroy, a flower-spattered chintz, rayon faille or a cotton twill.

Misname Balsam
Just as Panama hats come from Ecuador and not from Panama, balsam of Peru is an exclusive product of El Salvador.

Eating Styles
Styles in food change like styles in clothes. Americans formerly preferred heavily salted, highly colored butter to the lightly salted, uncolored butter which is now popular.

Fire Victims
Victims of fire included more of the active working men and women—persons between the ages of 23 and 44 years old—than any other group.

Alien Residence
Almost one-third of all the aliens in the United States live in New York state according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Turn-About
Before discarding a wool skirt that has begun to look worn and shabby, consider the possibility of giving it a new lease on life by turning it inside out.

Ready for Use
Blended with water, dried eggs become ready for use in muffins, cookies, cakes, salad dressings, scrambled eggs or omelets.

Keep Out of Reach
Keep all dusts and sprays in tightly closed containers such as jars or tins, and keep them away from food and out of reach of children and animals.

Lantern Hook
The safest place to put a lantern in farm buildings is on a hook put up especially for that purpose.

Jerusalem Cherry
Jerusalem cherry, popular for Christmas ornamentation, thrives best in a cool room free from drafts.

Primrose Requires Light
Primroses require ample light, even moisture and fairly high humidity.

Checks Erosion
Land that is in close-growing crops more than half the time and planted in row crops only about one year out of every three loses much less topsoil by erosion than continuously cultivated land.

Fire Fatalities
One out of every three persons who lost their lives in one year as the result of fires in the United States was a farm man, woman or child.

Curb Egg-Eating Hens
Providing ample calcium and vitamin D usually solves the egg-eating problem in poultry flocks.

Rare Drug
Curare from balsam sap is sometimes made into a rare drug used to check excessive bleeding.

Punishable By Death
Two hundred different crimes were punishable by death under English law at the time that America was colonized.

W. N. U. RELEASE

CHAPTER I

"Steady, Tex!" Jane Keller patted her horse as she drew rein at the crest of the hill trail.

She was young and slim and straight, and her old corduroys made her look like a boy.

"A mighty handsome boy," old MacDowell always said; "ain't any girl in these parts can touch her!"

She turned in her saddle now to watch the lights spring up in the distant ranch house, candles in a fog-dusk was down there in the valley, but up on the hill trail there was a yellow light behind the sycamores, and great flares of yellow and orange and red in the sunset sky.

Text put down his head and began to crop grass; it was supper time but his mistress did not stir.

"He's all right; don't you get scared, Jane," the old man reassured her, trying to get out of the car.

"You've hurt your arm what's wrong, Mac?" The headlights of the car illumined her as she leaned from the saddle to question him, but it left the man at the wheel in the shadow.

"It's this way, Jane," the old foreman explained soberly, "Jim's stayed behind; he's got the sheriff on a party out. You see, we figured we'd get Jordan's money, right as a chicken for roasting, but somehow he broke loose—when we were getting water for the car—you know that place near Simmons' well? We gave chase—both of us, an' I fell an' sprained my blamed old arm; if it hadn't been for this young man here—"

—he came along an' helped me out—motored me back. Jim was kinder afraid Jordan might hit it back here an' he sent me to warn the men. Jim's all right, he's got the whole bunch with him."

"Jordan couldn't get back here to-night on foot," Jane objected.

"He's got pals, might get a horse—or a lift in a car. Anyways, I'm here—an' say, you oughtn't to be up here alone," old Mac said, in his fatherly way.

"You ride along beside the car, if you won't get in, an' let this young man ride Tex home."

Jane laughed. "I'll make it; I'll beat you to it!"

"This young man wants work on a ranch," Mac added, putting his well hand on the stranger's shoulder; "this is Miss Jane Keller, the sister of the boss," he said to his companion, impressively.

him jailed sure, but he got away; you came along, as you know. Well, he'll try to get even—sure as shooting. Old Mac stopped, with an expressive shrug.

"He's likely to kill Keller?" MacDowell nodded. "Sure! Jane, too, if she stands in his way; he's just as vindictive as a rattler. Get me, young man?"

The younger man kept his eyes steadily on the unfamiliar road, but he uttered an exclamation of surprise. "You don't mean that the rascal would try to hurt that young girl?"

"If he thought he could get her an' hold her over Jim's head for ransom, he'd do it. Jane's in just as much danger as Jim, that's why I had to come back."

"By Jove, I wish I'd known that today—when he bolted past me—before you an' Keller came up!" Old Mac chuckled. "Seen Jane Keller, eh? That's how all the cow-punchers feel! Well, you know now, son, an' you've got an all-fired good chance to make good," he drawled. "To make good!"

The words struck the other man like a blow; his face burned in the darkness, his steel-gray eyes shone strangely, but he said nothing.

"There's the house, we're going to the men's quarters. That there row of windows toward us—all lit up—belongs to the sickroom. One of Jim's friends was took down with pneumonia here an' they got a trained nurse an' kep' him; he's a heap better. Old Teresa says he's lodge was on a level with his eyes. There was no curtain, and he had a clear view of the low-ceilinged room. A trained nurse stood at a table beside the bed, dropping some medicine slowly into a glass, and the lamplight was focused on her white uniform; but beyond her, in the shadowed four-poster, lay the invalid. He had raised himself on his elbow and was talking to her, a slight flush deepening the color of his handsome face.

The man at the window caught the sharp clean outline of his profile, the fervent brilliance of his dark eyes, the hollows in his cheeks. There was a look of mental conflict, of unrest.

"It's bitten in," the outsider thought, with a kind of bitter satisfaction; "after all, it's bitten in!"

Then something, the daredevil in him, made him lean forward and speak slowly, distinctly, loudly, one word: "Sherwin!"

Stenhart heard it. He sprang up in bed with a cry, his hands shaking at his throat, his eyes staring at the darkness of the window. His tormentor, seeing it, laughed grimly, but he saw the nurse turn and come toward him. She must not find him there! Softly, swiftly, he dropped back into the night and made his way to the front door.

"MacDowell has just phoned from the garage how kind you were when he sprained his arm, and I want to thank you. We, my brother and I, both think a lot of old Mac!"

The girl had risen from her seat at Jim's old desk as she spoke, and she faced him. He saw the fine curve of her chin and throat, and the black-lashed blue eyes. She was an upstanding girl; she could not be a ranch hand in Jim's absence. The men all looked up to her, held her in high esteem.

The newcomer did not speak and she went on quickly. "Mac says you'd like something to do about the ranch and we need men, anyway."

"What?" she smiled frankly. "Please tell me what you can do best?"

The man reddened. Of course he had to expect something like this, but he was not one to whom falsehood came easily, and to lie to a fine, frank girl like this! But, after all, it wasn't altogether a lie!

"My last job was bookkeeping," he said, and then, as he saw the swift change in her expression, he added: "Not just the thing for a ranch, I'm afraid, but if I can turn my hand to something out-of-doors, I'd like it."

"You're from the East?" her blue eyes considered him gravely, impersonally, and then she smiled. "I'm not sure but that you're a godsend! I've been trying to straighten up Jim's accounts and it's perfectly hopeless, he's so splashy with ink and so bad at figures! I'd be glad if you'd try your hand at these tomorrow."

As she spoke she swept a bunch of dog-eared old books with her fingers.

He came nearer and began to turn them over, snatching at this strange opportunity to get into the house, the house where Stenhart was! He ran his index finger along under the name-written in Jim Keller's big sprawling handwriting.

"El Rancho de las Palomas"—you cling to the Spanish down here, eh?"

She laughed. "Las Palomas' sounds so much better than just plain English. Besides, there used to be many doves here—there are still. Can you untangle those figures, do you think?"

"Surely I can—they're quite simple."

"Simple? I was all snarled up!" she laughed softly again. "Then you'll do this until Jim comes? I—she hesitated, blushing unaccountably. "I can't make any terms—of course you understand that? My brother's the boss, but if you can wait—"

"Oh, that's all right, you'll be feeding and lodging me, you see!" For the first time, he laughed and

ODDS AND ENDS—The first day ads for "Adventure" appeared in New York subways, 2,000 additional ones had to be printed, to replace those snatched by fans who wanted Clark Gable's picture. . . . During his three years in the marines Macdonald Carey sent allotment checks to his wife, who saved them for a down payment on a Hollywood home. . . . Friday night is going to be CBS night in a lot of homes—Durante and Moore at 9:30, Danny Kaye at 10:00, Bob Crosby at 10:30, EST. . . . Just recently he did two television shows for CBS. And in April he returns to Hollywood to make "One Secret," with Joan Crawford. That's covering the field!

Hedy Lamarr and Gene Lockhart are right back where they started, on Stage 3 on the Goldwyn lot. They both got their first big screen break in "Algebras," which was filmed here. Now they're back for the first time, for "The Strange Women."

James Stewart's back in Hollywood, after visiting in Washington and New York—where even nightclub audiences look at him with interest. His first postwar picture will be "It's a Wonderful Life," made for Liberty Films and released by RKO, is a Frank Capra production. That's under way now. His next film will be "The Magic City," a Robert Riskin production, for RKO.

Got a baseball team you want to sell? Anne Baxter's interested. She's been a baseball fan since she was in high school, now, like Bing Crosby, she wants to own a team, or part of one, at least. Incidentally, the Charles R. Rogers picture in which she has a leading role is now known as "Angel on My Shoulder" again; exhibitors who were polled liked that title better than "Me and Mrs. Satan."

Michael Bottoms has retired from the screen, after appearing in "A Scandal in Paris" for 30 seconds as the infant Vidocq. Mike's father in Guam, has never seen him, so Mrs. Bottoms let Mike, aged three months, play the part.

Jean Tennyson, star of "Great Moments in Music," will take a chance on any young singer she believes in. She's presented many of them on her radio program; discovered Mario Lanza, who substituted for Jan Peerce when Peerce was on the Coast.

Constance Moore was called for makeup and wardrobe at 5 a. m. one morning, because of the elaborate costume she was to wear that day in "In Old Sacramento." Four hours later she was ready, stepped on the sound stage, and saw machine-made rain falling like mad. "And now, Miss Moore," said Producer-Director Joseph Kane, "if you'll lie down on your face in the stagecoach!"

Jack Dempsey's children knew he was "Mr. Hush" on that gorgeous stunt on "Truth or Consequences"; he phoned them after the third week and when they said they'd heard him on the radio he swore they hadn't; couldn't admit the truth, because no outsider could know it was his voice that was puzzling contestants.

CHICK STARTER IN NEW FORM ANNOUNCED!

CARGILL Introduces Improved Starter that's CRUMBLIZED* for Easy Eating

An important advance in the science of chick feeding has just been announced by Cargill. A new form of chick starter has been developed that provides chicks with easy-to-eat food bits sized just as nature intended. Not a mash... not a pellet... Cargill says "It's Crumblized!"

The new type Cargill starter incorporates the same famous formula that has made Cargill such a favorite with poultry raisers. The "crumblized" process makes it better than ever. Not too fine, not too large, chicks can eat more in less time. There is no danger of clogged beak trouble, often caused by fine floury feeds. There is less waste. Since each mouthful is a virtual blend of all food values, it helps assure a more nearly balanced diet for all chicks. Greedy chicks can't pick out the choice ingredients... so all the chicks benefit. Cargill Crumblized* Chick Starter is packed in colorful, cotton print sacks. Get a supply before your new chicks arrive.

NOTE: Exceptional demand expected—but nationwide protein shortage will limit supplies. Book your season's needs early. We'll do our best to take care of as many customers as possible.
