GAME NEXT TUESDAY
Kewaskum vs. Barton
(Night exhibition game under the lights at West Bend city park.)

After riding to three straight victories, a hard-hitting, crack fielding Plymouth nine handed the Kewaskum Utensils their first setback of the season here Sunday, 8 to 1, before another fine crowd. The defeat dropped the locals from a tie for first to third place in the race.

The score by no means indicates the difference between the two teams. Plymouth was "hot" while the Utensils were having an off Sunday. Hal Koopman, ace Cheesemaker hurler, struck out only two Kewaskum batters and was hit freely but the boys were smacking them right into the opposing

PLAY BARTON IN NIGHT GAME AT WEST BEND TUESDAY

Next Tuesday night, June 11, Kewaskum will play an exhibition game against Barton of the Land of Rivers league under the lights at the West Bend city park. Barton defeated Plymouth of the Kettle Moraine league in a recent game although Koopman, Plymouth ace, did not pitch. Bob Bechwar, Barton's crack left hander, will be on the mound against the Utensils with Harold Claus, former Kewaskum player, catching. Game at 8 p. m.

Believers groves all afternoon. Except for some outstanding fielding by Plymouth, especially by the infielders, many of the drives would and should have been hits. Plymouth, on the other hand, kept hitting them between the local fielders. Five costly errors and those play by the Utensils ran up the score for the winners. Manager "Fritz" Kral, veteran catcher, did the receiving for Kewaskum for the first time in years, while his brother Paul, regular catcher, played in right field.

A fight between the players broke out in the third inning when Lindsay, Plymouth fielder, was called out by the umpire on a close play at third base. Lindsay got up off the ground fighting mad and made a dash for the base umpire. In doing so he intentionally, roughly shoved Honeck, local pitcher, second the hits were flying. Quite a few punches were thrown with Honeck easily getting the best of the deal. When another teammate went to Lindsay's aid during the skirmish, Barney Frost, Kewaskum shortstop, got into the melee and let him have it with a couple of blows before other players of both clubs could break up the scuffle. The arguing went on for some time and was finally settled with the umpire allowing the players involved in the fight to remain in the game.

The failure to "hit them where they weren't" held Kewaskum scoreless until the ninth inning when the local run was scored. Honeck walked, Harbeck singled, sending Honeck to third and he scored on Umlen's fly to center. Plymouth scored one in the first, two in the third, one in the sixth, three in the seventh and topped it off with a home run by Verhulst in the ninth. The hitting was fairly even on both sides, considering the score, with Kewaskum garnering 5 hits to 10 for the visitors. Honeck gave up 7 hits before retiring because of a sore arm with none out in the seventh. Marx allowed 3 hits in 3 innings. Andrews, Bob Mullen (who was just released after a tryout in pro baseball) and Verhulst led the Cheesemakers with 2 hits a piece. Harbeck was the only Kewaskum batter with 2 hits.

This Sunday Kewaskum hits the road for the second time when the boys go to Adell. Adell has a team of sluggers and has a better team than the standings show and the Utensils can expect a tough, close game. "No-hit" Schultz or DeGroff will be the rubber for Adell with either Marx or Honeck getting the nod for the locals.

600 People at Rural School Graduation

Some 600 people attended the annual rural school commencement held at West Bend on Sunday, June 2. The program included the pledge of allegiance led by Kenneth Ogenorth of the Stoffel school, Kewaskum, invocation by Rev. Roy Steen, and singing by Caroline, Winnifred and Beulah Gerner. The commencement address was given by Attorney Robert Stoltz of West Bend. The following is a summary of his talk:

"All through life everyone should remember his age and should live his age and not try to be younger than he is. 'Why is today called commencement day? You will find that this term is used in the United States for days such as this when people graduate from grade school, high school and universities. In other countries this term is used only for people graduating only from the higher schools of learning. The answer can be found in ourselves. It is typical of Americans that we are always moving ahead. No sooner do we complete one goal, but we immediately commence on a new job. As citizens of the United States of America we have before us the greatest goal than ever before in the history of the United States.

"None of us are old. One hundred 50 years isn't old. Because people had no efficient methods of transportation many, many years ago people had to be self-sustaining. During the past 150 years there has been invented, and has come into your life the automobile, diesel engine, rubber materials, airplane, telegraph, typewriter, radio, telephone and the machine. As a result ideas can be transported within a second. Articles can be manufactured so many times faster than in the preceding centuries. There isn't any day that goes by that we don't at some time or another catch something that isn't produced in the United States. We have become, more or less, dependent upon other nations of the world. This has all come to pass within the last 150 years. This great globe of ours has become a tiny, whispering gallery. We can sit at home every night and listen to broadcasters speaking from every different country.

"Admiral Byrd proved how really small this world of ours is. Economically and socially our world has completely reformed itself. It is now a physical impossibility to retreat. Politically, by this world of ours hasn't changed an iota. We still have the world made up of numerous peoples and numerous countries. Each country itself is the law of that country. Each one of them responsible to themselves and so many of them not even responsible to God. Today we are seeing the movement toward a political change in the organization of the United Nations. Probably most people don't think it has a chance. Every invention I have spoken of was at one time just a vision in a man's mind. Sure, it is imperfect. People thought, at one time it would be impossible that all states could be united under one federal government."

U. S. DEMANDS PEACE BE MADE IN EUROPE

Byrnes Signals U. S. Offensive To Win the Peace; Congressional Chiefs Oppose Service Merger

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

FOREIGN POLICY: Byrnes Reports

Back from the foreign ministers' parley in Paris, Secretary of State Byrnes took to the radio to air his country's position on the important question left at issue and reaffirm its determination to press firmly but patiently ahead for world understanding despite all obstacles.

While the U. S. may be tempted to pull out of Europe because of the difficulties encountered in drawing a peace without sacrifice of our principles, to do so would be to risk the possibility of another world war in which we would again have to participate, Byrnes said. Therefore, we must take the offensive to assure adoption of U. S. principles, he said.

Bluntly attributing existing differences to Russian jockeying for advantage, Byrnes declared that the crying need was for a European peace paving the way for orderly production and distribution. If the Soviets continued to block the making of peace and the convening of a peace parley, the U. S. will feel obligated to ask the United Nations under article 14 of the charter to recommend terms of a settlement.

In reporting on the Paris parley, Byrnes outlined these differences between the U. S. and Russia: Reparations—While Russia demanded the payment of 100 million dollars in reparations from Italy out of production, the U. S. balked because the financial help we are furnishing Italy to get back on her feet would thus be diverted for the benefit of another country.

Venezia Giulia—U. S. resistance to Russian demands that this strategic province embracing Trieste be handed over to Yugoslavia was based on the fact that 500,000 Italians presently living there would be placed under foreign rule. Instead, the U. S. recommended drawing a boundary along racial lines.

Balkans—Settlement of Balkan treaties was obstructed by Russia's unwillingness to free the Danube river for international commerce.

NEW AUTOS: Another Price Rise

In compensating automobile manufacturers for increased steel costs resulting from wage hikes in the industry the OPA scheduled new price increases averaging 4 to 5 per cent for new cars to be added to the $1 to $60 boosts previously allowed.

Shortages Curb Output

Continuing parts shortages blocked all-out automobile production, with a scarcity of seat-back and cushion springs slowing up completion of assemblies in Ford, General Motors and Willys-Overland factories.

CONGRESS: Hit Merger

While calling for closer co-operation between the army and navy departments, the chairmen of congressional naval committees warned Secretary of the Navy Forrestal not to enter into a compromise with Secretary of War Patterson for merging the services since congress would not approve of such a consolidation.

"We believe the bill (for merger) accentuates the differences between the services," Senator Walsh and Representative Vinson of the senate and house naval committees declared. "Its enactment . . . would widen the breach since naval officers are convinced . . . that naval aviation and amphibious operations played a great part in winning the war. They are also convinced . . . naval aviation and amphibious forces will play a major role in preventing any potential enemy from bringing war to our shores."

COLLEGES: Crowded Future

Because of the shortages of housing, facilities, books and teachers, the nation's colleges will be unable to take care of a postwar rush partly prompted by the G. I. bill of rights educational benefits for vets.

In reviewing the college picture for next fall, Reconversion Director Snyder declared that only half of the 2 million people desiring to enroll in higher schools of learning will be able to do so, including 600,000 vets. In 1946-47 alone, the government will spend at least 1 billion dollars on G. I.s, he said, with expenditures over the years totaling 6 billion.

U. N.:

FAO Meets

Formation of a United Nations food administration to direct world food policies during the period of scarcity and reconstruction was urged by Herbert Hoover at the opening session of the U. N.'s food and agriculture organization in Washington, D. C.

While such an administration would coordinate governmental efforts at relieving the critical food situation, Hoover recommended that it set its sights at restoring private distribution and production of farm machinery, fertilizer and other material as quickly as possible.

Declaring charity programs were wasteful and inefficient, Hoover said private commerce could provide more economical and reliable service to farmers, merchants and consumers.

SPEEDSTERS:

Having passed qualifying tests, 33 speedsters were entered in the first renewal 500 mile automobile race at Indianapolis since 1941 with $100,000 in prize money at stake.

With drivers required to average 115 miles an hour or better in four runs on the 2 1/2 mile track in order to qualify for the Memorial Day event, the veteran Cliff Bergere chalked up the fastest speed in the early trials at 126.47 miles per hour.

World Farmers Unite

The International Federation of Agriculture, the first such international organization comprised of individual memberships by farmers' organizations from most of the nations represented in U. N., comes into being as a result of a meeting of farm leaders from throughout the world in London.

James Turner, president of the British National Farmers union, was the moving spirit in calling the London conference and in formation of the new organization. As head of a delegation of British farmers which traveled half-way around the world to study conditions in Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the United States, he found a widespread belief that the primary producers of the world must organize if they were to be protected against uncertainties of the postwar period.

U. S. representatives at the conference included Allan B. Klein, vice president of the American Farm Bureau federation; James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union; Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, and Quentin Reynolds, president of the National Conference of Co-operatives.

Put Sales Goal At 200 Billion If Strikes End

CHICAGO—A total of 200 billion dollars in merchandise still could be produced and sold in 1946 if strikes and threats of strikes could be eliminated, Gene Flack, vice president of the National Federation of Sales Executives, declared here recently.

As an annual sales goal for coming years, Mr. Flack put 140 billion dollars as a satisfactory figure. Such a total would provide 53 1/2 million jobs, he said, "enough to make certain that this nation will avoid any possibility of depression."

Flack asserted that if the engineering and sales abilities of American manufacturers could lift sales to a total of 150 billions during the war years, certainly America could make another 33 per cent increase.

Hires Vets and War Widows Only; Finds Them Best

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y.—Last January the Commonwealth Aircraft, Inc., inaugurated the experiment of hiring only veterans or war widows in its plants, to the exclusion of others. The plan worked so well that it has been made a permanent policy.

Raymond Voyes, president, said the company, which manufactures private planes, currently has 500 veterans employed at the Valley Stream plant and expects to hire 1,000 more. In addition, 1,500 more veterans will be added to its Port Washington, N. Y., plant.

Mr. Voyes said that not only have production figures increased, but personnel turnover among veterans is only 0.5 per cent, compared with about 3 1/2 per cent among the company's civilian employees.

JAPS FAR BEHIND U. S.

Production of steel in the Japanese empire during the war years reached a peak of 9,656,000 tons in 1943. Thereafter, as a result of the naval blockade and of bombings, it declined steadily. Less than 11 per cent of the maximum annual production in the United States during the war, this tonnage could have been turned out by the steel mills of the United States in 38 days at the record rate of 1944.

BANKS:

During the five war years of 1940 to 1945, banking resources in the United States more than doubled, according to the American Bankers association.

On December 31, 1945, total resources of the 14,553 banks in the U. S. reached a new high of $177,364,700,000, compared with December 31, 1940, when assets of the 14,392 active banks were $84,980,576,000. At the end of 1944 there were 14,535 active banks which reported $152,046,421,000 in resources.

SENATE COMMITTEE ACTS

Farm Prices Taken Out of OPA

WASHINGTON.—Power to say when price ceilings should be lifted from food and other farm products was taken away from OPA and given to Secretary of Agriculture Anderson by the senate banking committee which is considering the price control bill.

Chairman Wagner (D., N. Y.) announced after a closed meeting that the vote was 12 to 2.

Tentatively, the committee agreed on a general plan for ending the wartime controls over prices as production of goods begins catching up with demand. It embraces three main points:

1. A policy formula, proposed by Senator Berkeley (D., Ky.), calling for removal of price ceilings by the end of the year on all commodities not important to business costs or to living costs, and removal of other ceilings when supply and demand reach a ratio where a price increase would not result.

Independent Appeal Board.

2. Creation of an independent board of three members to which industries could appeal for removal of ceilings if the Office of Price Administration declined to lift them. This was proposed by Senator Millikin (R., Colo.).

3. Lodging of control over food and farm prices in the department of agriculture.

A subcommittee of three was appointed to put this three-point program into legislative language. The members are Senators McFarland (D., Ariz.), Fulbright (D., Ark.) and Millikin (R., Colo.). When they have completed their draft, the full committee will consider and take a formal vote on it.

Senator Bankhead (D., Ala.) sponsored the proposal to let the secretary of agriculture decide when ceilings should be lifted from farm products. Under his amendment, the secretary would advise every 30 days whether supplies of a farm commodity had reached sufficient volume so that ceilings should come off. If he decided they had, OPA would be required to lift them. The secretary also could direct a price increase for a commodity.

WASHINGTON DIGEST

Atomic War Could Force Return to Primitive Life

By BAUKHAGE, Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Mid-June welcomes a gathering to Washington which will deal with a subject more important to you and me than anything I can think of.

The meeting is described as an "institute on the control of atomic energy." At about the same time, the United Nations commission on Atomic Energy will be meeting too.

At the "institute" in Washington, authorities will explain just what effect atomic energy can have on your life if you are one of those who aren't going to be destroyed by it. I was going to say "one of the lucky ones," but you won't be lucky, if atomic warfare starts, even if you are among those whose lives are spared.

We have all heard a lot of dire prophecies about what the atom bomb can do, if it once gets on the loose. Also, what wonders atomic energy can perform in building a better world, if it is confined to peaceful and productive activity.

But by far the most impressive footnote on the subject came to me in the repeated words of a scientist speaking not scientifically, or for quotation, but very intimately of his own private thoughts, and his own personal plans.

He has lectured a great deal on the subject of atomic energy, and is one of those intimately concerned with its development. Suddenly, one day he realized that he had better make some personal plans to prepare for the future in this atomic age of which he had spoken so much. His work is near one of the several prime targets of any enemy bombs that would be dropped.

No Refuge From A-Bomb

So he began to consider. Should he try to get transferred to some smaller institution, located in a little town? That, he considered, would not be much. He has a farm, but he is not a farmer. Should he move onto the farm immediately, learn as much as he could about farming, and plan to live there where he would be comparatively safe? The farm is far from any large city, tucked in the hills.

Then he started planning. He would have to learn a lot more than farming. He would have to learn to card wool, for instance; his wife would have to learn to spin, to weave, to make soap, to fabricate all the things you buy in stores.

He would have to lay in tools, and enough other supplies to last him the rest of his lifetime.

Well, perhaps all that could be done. Then he realized that even at that, he wouldn't be safe. He would have to build barbed wire entanglements, and obtain machine guns and other weapons with which to defend himself . . . for with the refugees who escaped, starving, from the cities, the few who had food would be at the mercy of the hungry mobs.

If I had heard those statements from a lecture platform, or read them in a magazine, I might have passed them by as sensationalism. But the statements weren't in a magazine, or spoken from a platform. They were said over the luncheon table in the quiet corner of a club. The speaker wasn't trying to "sell" his ideas to anybody. He wasn't trying to persuade anybody to do anything, or to get publicity. He was thinking out loud about what he considered an acute personal problem.

In the end it left him baffled. There is no defense. The only hope is to make the United Nations work.

As long as America has the heart to attend spelling bees and county "sings," we can't be quite as badly off as some of our neighbors seem to think.

I never attended enough spelling bees myself. But a radio commentator has an advantage—his audience can't tell whether he can spell the words he uses or not.

Vets Attending Colleges

As of March 10 there were 394,557 veterans of World War II enrolled in 1686 colleges and universities of junior college level and higher, and the estimate for the fall term, according to VA officials, is 695,321.

The largest number of these veterans or approximately 15 per cent of the total are taking such courses as business administration, accounting, banking and clerical. For instance, out of the 82,543 veterans who started their education in February under the G. I. bill, 12,513 enrolled in these courses; 9,459 chose engineering fields including electrical, mechanical and other types with 8,305 went into mechanics, including auto repair. Other school courses rating high with the veterans included agriculture with 3,960, metal working with 3,504 and teaching, law and construction each claimed more than 1,500.

Out of this February enrollment, the liberal arts courses attracted 16,182. More than 80 per cent of the new students entered colleges and universities while the balance began on-the-job training.

Questions and Answers

Q. My husband was drafted in World War I and has been dead three years. I don't have his serial number. All I have is a form, as his discharge burned in our home. He was drafted from Madison, Tenn., on October 4, 1917 and was kept in service until October 25, 1918 and discharged for disability. Would I be eligible for a pension as I am a widow and unable to work?—Wife, Brownsville, Tenn.

A. I believe you would be eligible for a pension, but you should apply to your veterans' administration office either at 408 E. Main, Jackson or 8 N. 3rd street, Memphis.

Q. I have a son who was called to the army in October. He is needed at home badly to care for the farm and stock. He has six dependents on him. Could I get him out? How long do the boys called in October, 1945, have to stay? How many points and what do they get points on?—M. H., Nashville, Ark.

A. Your son evidently is still in training in this country and must serve, under regulations in effect, up to June 30, 1946, 24 months or 40 points as of September 2, 1945. Your son did not get into the army until after September 2, 1945, so we do not know what point score he will be earned by the time new regulations are announced. At the present, one point is awarded for each month of service, one point for each minor child and 5 points for decorations or battle stars. Your son, however, likely will be eligible for discharge only on length of service unless a new point score is fixed. He likely will have many more months to serve. If he can prove a hardship case, he would be entitled to ask his commanding officer for release for that reason, but it would be up to the officer.

Q. My husband was in World War I and his insurance lapsed. Upon a physical exam he was refused. They said he had asthma and defective eyes. He tried to enlist in this war but was refused on the same grounds. Later we left that state and he was drafted and found OK at the induction center. Doctors in the army couldn't understand how he could get in since he had asthma and hearing in one ear gone. He was sent to a medical department enlisted technician school, but after a few lessons his asthma got so bad he couldn't attend, so he was flunked and shipped out. They would not hospitalize for asthma and their medicine didn't help. Upon his discharge he went to the Red Cross who told him he had a claim. He filed for the claim, but was refused for they said he had asthma and poor hearing when he was drafted. Still he was found physically fit for induction. Is there anything he can do about this?—Mrs. R. A., Parsons, Kans.

A. You have the right of appeal for the disability rating. There is a contact office of veterans' administration at the municipal building, Pittsburg, Kans. Suggest you apply there and if it is necessary to go to a regional rating board, they will tell you where to apply.

Q. My brother, an M. P. stationed in Brazil for three years, plans to marry a Brazilian girl. If he is discharged within the next six months, will he have to pay for her transportation home? Or will transportation be provided for her as in the case of the European wives of American soldiers?—Mrs. C. S., Palmdale, Calif.

A. I am not sure about after his discharge, but if he is married while he is in the army, he is entitled to apply to his commanding officer for transportation of his wife to this country.

Q. We've sent four sons to war. Now that it's over, we wish to know how soon our youngest son will return from Europe. He has been there since January, 1945. He had only five months training. Sent as a replacement in General Patton's army.—Mrs. H. R., Sumrall, Miss.

A. I cannot tell how many points he has since you do not give date of his induction. If he has 41 points as of September 2, 1945, or has been in service for 24 months as of June 30, he should be home on or about June 30.

Axis Spy Outfit Broken in China

Rings Suspected of Causing U. S. Army and Navy Losses in Pacific.

SHANGHAI.—Twenty German, Italian and Japanese agents, all members of a Nazi-sponsored werewolf organization that carried on war against the United States in China long after the Reich had surrendered, have been seized, American authorities here have revealed.

The agents included Lt. Col. Ludwig Ehrhardt, head of all German military and naval intelligence in Asia and a close personal friend of Adolf Hitler. The German and Italian agents will be charged with violation of surrender terms.

Additional arrests and wholesale deportations are expected shortly, since the United States state department has urged demasced action against Nazis and Fascists known to be in China. One official said at least 1,500 persons were on the state department's "dangerous and undesirable" list in China.

The 20 men who were seized helped Japan as well as Germany. The Japanese, it was explained, were in part breaking codes and interpreting messages monitored from foreign radio stations, and the ring helped them perform this work.

The ring operated as the Ehrhardt bureau, with offices in Shanghai, Canton and Peiping. Officials believed they were responsible for the sinking of a number of American ships, including at least one aircraft carrier, and heavy losses in the early phases of the Okinawa and other Pacific campaigns.

The four Nazi principals arrested in Shanghai had all been interned at one time by the Chinese government and released later on a variety of pretexts. At least one was employed by the Chinese government after the end of the war.

Expert Code Breaker. Arrested with Colonel Ehrhardt in Shanghai were Bobo Habebrecht, an expert Nazi code-breaker, Johannes Rathje, former personal pilot for Marshal Hermann Goering, and Wolfgang Schenke, a former newspaper correspondent who was trained as an agent by the German high command.

Habebrecht early in the war broke a code of the United States coast guard and directed German submarines in the Atlantic to Allied ships. He was responsible for the sinking of many ships.

Rathje's specialty was supplying information on American aircraft installations to Japan. Schenke helped uncover Chungking agents who were smuggling Americans and other Allied nationals from occupied China to unoccupied China.

Adolfo Rosi and W. Mantovani, two of the Italians arrested, were radio operators for the Ehrhardt bureau in Shanghai. They had been operators aboard the Italian liner Conte Verdi, which was scuttled at Shanghai. They and Dr. Takashima Taiji, son of a Japanese paper mill owner, who served as a liaison officer between the ring and the Japanese government, probably will be held as material witnesses.

Seven Millionth Army Veteran Is Discharged

WASHINGTON.—The 7 millionth American soldier to be discharged since May 12, 1945, was released recently. From a V-E Day strength of 8 million, 300 thousand the army had decreased, despite draft inductions and recruitments to 2 million, 300 thousand on April 1. Further reduction will bring it down to 1 million, 550 thousand by July 1.

Production Sets Peacetime High

Despite Gaps in Supplies And Labor Troubles, Record Is Broken.

WASHINGTON.—In support of its recent claim to an all-peacetime record in the production of consumer goods, the office of war mobilization and reconversion has boasted its figure on national production.

Despite great gaps in the supplies of consumer goods, officials said first quarter production actually was estimated at a 4,154 billion annual rate, and this figure may be increased as final reports come in. Reconversion Director John W. Snyder's quarterly report gave civilian production as "more than 150 billion dollars," which President Truman said was greater "than ever before in the nation's history, in war or peace."

The report brought a backwash of skeptical criticism, mainly based on the question, "If production is so good, where are the cars, radios, shirts and stockings?"

When taken up with OWMR, the question produced a flurry of statistics put together by Snyder's staff from figures and estimates of the commerce, agriculture and labor departments and the civilian production administration.

Lists Highlights. Summarized, some of the highlights are:

1. Autos, refrigerators, sewing machines, electric ranges, alarm clocks, and some other goods are far below the peak 1941 level. But they loom much larger on the want-list of the impatient consumer than they do in the tally of total production.

2. Tires are soaring far above 1941's big output. Washing machines still behind but coming up rapidly. Yet the consumer demand is so fast that scarcities will persist.

3. Vacuum cleaners, electric irons, and bicycles are all at two-thirds or better of the 1941 average.

4. Farm production this year will be 13 to 15 per cent above 1941, given average weather. Per capita food consumption will be about 4 per cent above the all-time 1944 record—even when trimmed down to feed Europe.

5. All transportation of goods, except waterborne, is well ahead of 1941, far ahead of "prosperous" 1919. This covers air, highway, rail and pipeline. Rail carloadings are lower than in 1941 but the cars are fuller and their mileage greater.

6. Other signpost industries—power, gas, oil and coal (before the bituminous strike)

DESERT ROSE

By ROLLIN BROWN

Deputy sheriff Jim Doane sets out to track down a gang of train robbers in the desert of San Loreto county. When his horse dies he walks until he collapses from thirst. Four horsemen led by a girl rescue him. He awakens in a bed three days later. He meets and talks with the girl leader, Dolores Alvaro, for whom he has a warrant, charging her with cattle rustling. Jim is charmed by her beauty. He talks with Monte Garcia, and learns how Star La Rue, a crooked gambler, tricked Dolores' father out of his ranch and later shot him. Jim comes back to the sheriff's office and resigns. Sheriff Flick is astounded and dismayed. "I never thought I'd see you old Doane."

CHAPTER V

It was seventy-five miles over to Maxmilla City. Doane caught the eleven o'clock local train. At half past two he walked down the hot main street of the little town. The deputy badge of San Loreto county was no longer pinned under the flap of his shirt pocket, but the single-action revolver he had always used swung low in the familiar holster at his hip.

He turned in at the Cowman's Mortgage and Loan bank, on the main street corner.

"Star La Rue," he told the cashier, "is some kind of a bug in this bank. I want to see him."

"Mr. La Rue is vice president of the Cowman's Mortgage and Loan," the cashier informed him, haughtily. "He is a busy man. Mr. La Rue is not here at present."

"When'll he be back?"

"Perhaps at closing time. It would be better to have an appointment, if you wish to see him."

"I'll wait," said Doane.

He waited, lounging in the corridor, amid suspicious glances. He had verified his own information, that La Rue's one-time Silver Palace had been closed out of business for some twelve or eighteen months. La Rue now confined himself to the bank and his ranching interests.

Jim Forces La Rue To Sign Over Ranch

Twenty minutes later a half-faced, angular man came in through the swinging doors from the street. The man wore a business suit, his tall, knobby frame tipped off at each end by cowman's garb; respectively, a flat-crowned Stetson and high-heeled boots that showed below the trouser cuffs. A conspicuous, large-link gold watch chain hung across the front of his vest and jingled faintly as he walked. The man had a certain heavy dignity about him. He favored Doane with a sharp glance, without recognition.

"La Rue!"

The man halted, looked again at Doane.

"What is it?" he wanted to know, irritably.

"A certain matter of business," explained Doane. "In fact, I intend to purchase Rancho de los Hermanos from you this afternoon. But perhaps we'd better talk in private."

Without comment Star La Rue led the way through one of the office doors. He entered, closed the door, and turned to face Doane.

"You talk big," he said. "My price on Tres Hermanos is $50,000... cash! Did you bring that much money with you?"

"No," drawled Doane. "But I brought all it'll take. I drew some of my savings this afternoon. I drew two thousand dollars. That will buy Tres Hermanos."

"I have no time for nonsense," said La Rue. He smiled thinly over dirty, yellow teeth. "Come back when you get the other forty-eight thousand."

Doane studied La Rue's eyes.

"I don't believe you recognize me," he suggested.

"I do not!" snapped La Rue. "And what of it?"

"Just this. I was deputy sent down from San Loreto with the coroner, to see the body of one senior don Pio Miguel Alvaro, shot to death on Rancho Hermanos land some two years ago. At that time you confessed to killing the supposed horse thief with your own gun, as the coroner will be able to testify. You boasted of it. Now, a few days ago, I unearthed the motive for you to have murdered Alvaro, as well as his identity. I believe that within twenty-four hours I could bring circumstantial witnesses into the affair. The charge would be murder, first degree. Among the witnesses is a man you once employed, a man known as Monte Garcia. Mr. Garcia could explain events transpiring some twenty years ago, at the start of your career, also bearing on the subject. If I can't succeed in putting the murder of Alvaro on your head, La Rue, I can at least bring the thing... and your methods... close enough home to ruin any confidence the people have in you, and destroy your connection with this bank. I'm offering you two thousand, La Rue, and I don't have to offer that! Take it or leave it. Take it, or the murder charge."

La Rue did not move. The only evidence Doane had that the man even heard him was the mounting color in the other's face and a stiffening of corded muscles under his collar. There followed a moment of absolute silence.

"This is blackmail," La Rue muttered, finally.

"And the other," said Doane, "is murder. Don't forget that."

Another moment of silence. La Rue covertly studied his man. He nodded.

"Very well. Due to this—er—special circumstance, my price to you is... two thousand dollars. What is your name, sir? I've forgotten it, if I ever knew it."

"God help you if I ever get you under my hand, James L. Doane!"

"There'll be this to remember," said Doane, ignoring the threat. "The deed you're going to give me this afternoon will be recorded in San Loreto as soon as registered mail can carry it. There will also be a will, in case of my death; and need I mention that you will not be its benefactor? Further, there will be a sealed letter of exactly the accusations I have made this afternoon against you, to be opened by state officials at my death. Do you think you can beat that, Star La Rue? I'm not senior Alvaro, who read English poorly and understood nothing of the technicalities of the law."

La Rue had no answer.

"There's just one other point," said Doane. "That is a written statement from you, dropping all charges against Miss Alvaro, the senior's living daughter. This will be by way of a little spice, to sweeten our deal! After all, I'm giving you two thousand dollars; you don't deserve a penny of it. Well, I guess that's all. I bid you a very good afternoon, Mr. Star La Rue."

That night the new owner of Rancho de los Hermanos sent a special telegram to Sand Wells. It was addressed to Monte Garcia, operator who would take it from the wire, giving him the owner's authority to discharge every man then working at Tres Hermanos, if Monte would be so kind as to ride out there and do so. Monte obliged at dawn, with a strange underglow in those odd gray-green eyes.

But the new owner, arriving in person two days later, did not find Tres Hermanos deserted. Not that he had particularly hoped he would. He didn't care. Four hard-eyed riders awaited his coming. The four had taken his order seriously enough so that none had stirred to the saddle and customary work, but not to the point of departure. For two days they had loafed, talked excitedly, and brooded over the matter. The foreman, a black-eyed "breed of thirty-five or so, named Tony Suarez, began to argue with Doane immediately.

"The distance to Sand Wells was six or seven miles, angling southwest. Doane had already traversed this road once, since dawn this morning. His return mission now, however, was not at the little town with its few stores and shacks adjoining the railroad yards. He cut past the town, and half a mile beyond drew rein in the yard of a shaded little clapboard house. The old Mexican woman came to the door, smiling.

"Aqui tiene Ud. su casa—the house is yours, senior. Pase."

"Monte honor."

"Si, senior."

In a moment the tall, slim Monte, plainly just awakened from his day-time slumbers, came to the door. His poise was none the less languid and cool for his awakening; he moved easily, smoothly, and he made a Garcia gesture with his supple white hands.

"A haciendado," he said gaily, smiling at Doane. "A ranchero, my friend, a land-owner—I greet you, senior."

"A ranchero—without a single cowhand working for him," said Doane heavily. "They left promptly this morning. Thanks. I want you to do me another favor, Monte. Deliver another message."

"If possible," agreed Monte. "My last had little success. But we shall see."

"The cold facts of the case are these," said Doane. "In the past twelve months Miss Alvaro has managed to run away with about a third of the stock La Rue had on the ranch. La Rue's riders had orders to shoot on sight. Dangerous. Two months ago La Rue secretly dynamited a certain waterhole, in the hope of trapping the girl. He moved men out and started a drive. That failed. At the same time La Rue took his troubles to Sam Flick. This was again dangerous. The Sand Wells train robbery was more dangerous still... Monte, I won't fail. This is my message I want you to give to Miss Alvaro!"

New Owner Takes Over At Tres Hermanos

Monte pondered the glowing end of his cigarette.

"You are riding soon yourself, senior?"

"I am."

"As if I should—well, happen to see Miss Alvaro somewhere, meantime, I am going to tell her you do not think you will fail? That is it, eh?"

"That I do not fail," corrected Doane.

"Just so," said Monte, with a bow.

"And Monte, I have here a sealed envelope. If anything should happen to me at any time, I want you to deliver it to its addressee. Understand?"

"Si, senior!"

"Bien!" said Doane. "Can you find me three good men, three cowhands I can trust, to look after the ranch?"

"That I can, senior. Three good, loyal ones. They will be in my office, tonight."

"Good boy, Monte. See you tonight, then. Nine-thirty."

Sharp at nine-thirty that evening, three leathery cowpunchers loitered on the station platform outside Monte Garcia's office, each with his duffle-bag and saddle-gear. Doane crossed the platform, saw through the window that Monte was busy at his key, approached the men, and said: "You are the men for Tres Hermanos?"

"Reckon we are."

"Good," replied Doane. "I'm the owner. They shook hands. "Spoke we go over to the bar, where we can talk things over, and where I can buy a drink for those dry throats of yours. That is, if you feel the throats need a little irrigation."

"O. K.," shouted the three, as one.

An hour later found them riding for Tres Hermanos, properly irrigated and in high spirits. Doane had explained their job; they were to act as watchmen, look after the stock.

JINX FALKENBERG and her husband, Tex McCrary, are doing such an outstanding job on their husband-and-wife radio program that it's too bad they're not on a coast-to-coast hookup. Maybe NBC will do something about it; now they're just on the New York station, WEAF. Recently they did their broadcast from a plane that hovered over New Jersey and Connecticut while they talked. Jinx, while forgoing the movies at least until the stork arries, looked lovely in a coral-colored coat, with a twist of colored stuff in her hair. McCrary's newspaper experience, plus his work during the war, add tremendously to the value of their program, of course.

If NBC doesn't have Fred Allen repeat the broadcast he and Talulah Bankhead did on May 5, there'll be a lot of disconsolate people waiting for months because they missed it. It was hilarious. Those who did hear it are still talking about it, and repeating bits of dialogue for those who didn't. It was one of Fred Allen's best, which is saying plenty.

Bob Hawk, CBS quipmaster, not only pinch-hit for ailing Arthur Godfrey on the latter's morning broadcasts, he's also substituted for Godfrey in the Broadway revue, "Three to Make Ready" — marking his debut on the New York stage.

For his starring role in RKO's "Nocturne" George Raft will have the benefit of advice from one of Broadway's most famous detectives, Barney Ruditsky. Producer Joan Harrison, a stickler for realism, wants Raft to be an authentic replica of a real detective, not one of those unbelievable creatures we often see on the screen. Ruditsky worked on cases involving famous gangsters for 20 years.

The National Barn Dance originates from McLeansboro, Ill., Saturday, June 8, when the gang joins the American Legion in a national homecoming celebration for National Comdr. John Stelle, which will end with an old-fashioned barbecue at midnight.

Bob Burns had to turn down an invitation to head the Hoboes' Association of America, but he does hold a life membership card in the association, having fulfilled the two big requirements — hoboeing in every state of the union and totaling 100,000 miles.

Barbara Jo Allen, who created the man-chasing "Vera Vague" and then turned "Vera" into a dramatic star on a recent CBS "This Is My Best" broadcast, creates still another character in the picture, "Earl Carroll's Sketchbook," now in production. In the movie she portrays a wise-cracking designer, but one who has no designs on any man!

Parks Johnson and Warren Hull will return from vacation with a new sponsor, broadcasting "Vox Pop" at a new time — they'll replace the CBS "Inner Sanctum." Meanwhile Parks is resting on his Texas ranch, and Hull's doing some experimental television shows.

That Hollywood smallpox scare sort of wrecked Alan Hale. His vaccination not only took hold of his left arm, it took a bit of the arm with it, leaving quite a wound. Hale was temporarily out of the "Cheyenne" cast.

ODDS AND ENDS—Producer Seymour Nebelzon discovered, in searching for a fat Chinaman to play a hooty in "The Chase," that there's a shortage of them, so—he changed the script and is testing obese Chinese women. . . . Reese Taylor, of "Young Dr. Malone," has been in radio 14 years, but he still suffers badly from mike fright. . . . Tex Beneke and the Glenn Miller band have ten network weeks now; they're featured on "Matinee at Mendocino" Sundays, in addition to "Midnight program." . . . Dick Nelson ("Life Can Be Beautiful") has his epitaph ready—"Here Lies an Actor. Is that unusual?"

Signe Hasso had a dress made of a new liquid-impermeable fabric to wear in a rain sequence of "A Scandal in Paris," in which she's costarred with George Sanders and Carole Landis. Being wise, she took it east with her when she was to christen the airliner Scandinavia, figuring that if the rain wouldn't hurt it, neither would champagne, no matter how much it splashed her when the bottle broke. She was aboard when the plane took off across the Atlantic, headed for Signe's native Stockholm.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

FEEDING STARVING WORLD TOO BIG A JOB FOR US

WASHINGTON. — The food campaign is running into ever-deepening difficulties. The sweeping publicity campaign to induce Americans to save for the hungry in the rest of the world ceased the moment the coal strike became serious, but only temporarily. There was no use considering food saving when a fuel tie-up and transportation curtailment threatened spoilage of indefinite proportions. But the tenor of the campaign had made everyone believe that the problem of alleviating world hunger was simply dependent upon a resolution by the American people to eat less. Any objective investigation will prove these following greater facts to the contrary:

(A) No matter what our savings, we will not be able to give the world the bulk of foods we have promised.

(B) We have moved so late that we are not simply taking food from our tables, but have become involved in promises which will cause a fast and sharp decline in our own food production.

(C) For this year, and possibly two or three, we will get less meat, butter and cheese than in the war years of rationing. Our diets will be changed to cereals, vegetables and fruits which should be available in sufficient quantities to stave off hunger here.

The need of many sections of the world for food has now been established beyond question, although the earlier whooping-up campaign contained much hubris about non-existent needs. An army news resume currently quotes Brigadier General Fisher of our occupation forces as saying the German farms are the most prosperous in the world today. Another similar report of equal authority says there are no starving Bavarians. The British ministry has announced that stored food in that nation to meet rationing quotas in all lines, even butter and cheese which are practically non-existent in "white" markets here.

WHERE SHORTAGES ARE
The European shortages are largely in the Russian occupied areas, plus Italy, Greece and some parts of France. The two ships converted from the end by headman La Guardia of UNRRA, went to Russian occupied zones. Yet the need is actual hunger areas is real. So is it also on the other side of the world, in India, China and the Philippines.

To meet these needs we have entered upon a complete upsetting of our economy to the point of promoting further reduced production, particularly of livestock, all forms of animal foods, poultry, hogs, sheep, dairy and beef cattle. Our beef cattle population, which last year numbered 83 million, has run below 80 million and is going down fast. On a prewar ratio to population, we should have over 100 million beef cattle. The pig crop has been limited to 31 million, which is about three-fourths of what could be considered normal.

These curtailments were forced because wheat and corn feed stocks have been cut in order to send them to the rest of the world. In short, by sending feed abroad we can do no more than produce three-fourths our usual number of pigs. A government order denies chicken feed to any poultry raising having more than 80 per cent of the number of chickens he had last year. This will force a 20 per cent reduction in poultry population. While there are no particular restrictions on beef cattle feed, it cannot be purchased, and unless the farmer has corn, oats and hay, he must sell his cattle. Similarly, the government is promoting the sale of hogs, at lighter weights than usual—which will decrease production further.

FUTURE FULL OF 'IFS'
Where we go from here is a problem of many "ifs." If we do not undertake a world food export program another year, we may restore normal livestock supplies in two or three years. Only poultry and pigs can be restored in less time, and pigs require about nine months. If we have a good crop, our own food situation will be no worse than related above, but the optimistic government expectations on the wheat crop are already running into doubt.

Officially they talk of more than a billion bushels, but the local moisture situation has indicated the winter wheat crop will not justify any such guess on the year as a whole.

WHY RUSSIA STALLS
The failures at Paris are due to several unmentioned facts: Russia dare not accept peace for the nations she has seized—any kind of peace. She is not strong enough to be able to withdraw her troops and open east-central Europe to our trade, news or normal peaceful dealings with other nations. While she is able to control or influence those governments through friendly politicians backed by troops, in the past year of isolated peace, she has been unable to win the people.

Household Hints
Hanging a suit on a hanger while it still retains body heat causes the wrinkles to fall out much more easily.

Have a Care. If your pressure cooker cools too suddenly it may warp or crack.

If you paint the inside of your linen closet a medium blue, it will keep linens from turning yellow.

To straighten out curled rug corners, wring a bath towel out of cold water and place it on the curled spot overnight.

Attach a small pin cushion to baby's crib. Then when you're diapering baby, place the pins in the pin cushion. This way they can't find their way to the bed where baby can reach them.

Many homemakers in the state are gathering tender wild asparagus from roadsides and fence rows and freezing it for later use. This is a profitable and patriotic way to save every possible bit of food—but first be sure that the owner of the land doesn't object to your picking the wild asparagus on his property.

When gathering the wild asparagus, if you break it off above ground, where it is tender, rather than cutting down below with a knife, you will save yourself the effort of cutting off the hard end of the stalk later. Use only the tender portions of the stalk for freezing.

Do not gather the very small asparagus stalks—they are not recommended for freezing and should be left to grow larger before picking.

O. B. Combs, University of Wisconsin specialist on freezing vegetables, suggests some pointers:

Most homemakers prefer freezing asparagus to canning it, especially since asparagus, a non-acid vegetable, must be pressure-canned for safe results and often the texture of canned asparagus is unpalatable.

It is best to use stalks of uniform size in the same container. Sort them into two diameter groups for freezing—the large, and the smaller stalks, and pack the same sized ones in the containers. Combs recommends rinsing the asparagus thoroughly in cold water, and then cutting the stalks into 1 to 2 inch pieces as desired.

Steam blanching will usually give better results than boiling water. Steamblanch the small stalks 4 minutes, the large stalks 5 minutes. If using boiling water, Combs recommends 2 minutes for the small stalks, 4 minutes for the large stalks. After blanching, cool the asparagus rapidly in cold running water or ice water, drain, and package immediately. Freeze the asparagus as soon as possible after packing. DO NOT OVERCOOK THE ASPARAGUS IN BLANCHING, AND PARTICULARLY NOT WHEN COOK-

ING IT LATER FOR THE TABLE.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

You Eat Well When You Roast With Care (See Recipes Below)

Flavorful Meats

There's not much choice of meat in the markets today, but if you are fortunate enough to get any at all, consider yourself supremely lucky.

For years, we've been telling you about cooking meats at low temperatures. Rationing and the meat scarcity have probably shown you more dramatically than anything else how important low temperature cooking is to getting the most of the meat.

Another point to bear in mind is that no browning is necessary before roasting cuts of meat. Don't worry about their not browning—they will get well browned even at moderate temperature.

If you are pot roasting, that is cooking meat with moisture and seasonings, you'll want to brown the meat after it's dredged with flour, but this is because the meat is cooked covered with liquid.

Here are some recipes for all types of meats which you may be able to find at least once a week these days. Cook and season carefully so that you will really be able to enjoy the meat to the fullest.

Barbecued Lamb Breast. (Serves 4) 2 pounds breast of lamb 1 medium onion 1/2 cup chili sauce 1 teaspoon salt Pepper 1/4 teaspoon red pepper 1 tablespoon vinegar 1 cup water

Cut lamb into pieces. Season with salt and pepper. Place in a hot skillet and let fat sizzle brown. Mix chili sauce, red pepper, vinegar and water and pour over lamb. Slice onion and add to the mixture. Cover.

Simmer 1 1/2 hours, then remove lid and let cook slowly for 20 minutes or until barbecue sauce is almost absorbed.

Summer Meat Loaf. (Serves 8) 1 envelope unflavored gelatin 1/4 cup cold water 1 1/2 cups tomato juice 1 tablespoon sugar 1 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon pepper 2 tablespoons lemon juice 1 pound liverwurst 1/2 cup mayonnaise 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard 1/4 cup chopped celery 1/4 cup chopped green pepper 1 tablespoon minced onion 1/4 cup sliced stuffed olives

Soften gelatin in cold water. Add hot tomato juice and stir in sugar and salt. Peel and chop onion and lemon juice. Allow the mixture to cool and thicken. Remove casing from liverwurst and mash. Add mayonnaise and mustard, green pepper, celery, onion and olives. Then fold the meat-vegetable mixture into the tomato juice and pour into a mold that has been rinsed with cold water. Allow to chill until set. Unmold on platter, garnish and serve.

Lynn Says: Learn Meat Magic: If you want a super delicious leg of lamb, baste it with buttermilk while roasting. For lamb loaf, made with fresh meat, add 3/4 teaspoon caraway seed for flavor.

If you're shy on meat for meat loaf, make up part of the meat with diced American cheese. Delicious!

Pork chops baked with chili sauce or catsup mixed with prepared mustard make grand and tender eating.

If you want a bread saver stuffing for breast of veal, cook your noodles until tender and use them for stuffing.

Lightweight Furniture Invites Family To Go In for Outdoor Living

By MARION ATKINS Outdoor living is more important than ever—moving the table out onto the lawn, the side porch or the terrace has become as much of an American sport as baseball.

Summer dining tables are to be had to suit every budget. Newest of the lightweight furniture is that of aluminum. Capable of withstanding any sort of weather and hard usage, the models with squared tube legs and edge bevelings have a smart appearance. Matching chairs with a suggestion of Chinese Chippendale take handsomely to bright cushions in one of the plastic covered fabrics which defy sun, moisture and which refuse to crack or peel. Rattan and reed dining tables with glass tops and the popular wrought iron tables in Pompeian green or white are excellent buys as they are an accepted fashion for indoor breakfast rooms, too.

Add at least one lightweight side table whose legs extend to form handles for easy moving. A tray top of glass is an aid to the host or hostess upon whom depends the transporting and serving of cold drinks on sultry afternoons. Table mats of every hue and material can be had to complement tables of all kinds. For the picnic sawback table of unpainted wood, use hand-dyed peasant squares in strong colors. Cork mats are suitable too for this style of table. If you've indulged in a handsome painted iron table with glass top, look to the highly decorative effects of clear plastic mats imprinted with intricate lace designs. Gorgeous flower prints on washable plastic mats are available in numerous new designs and are surprisingly inexpensive. Aqua, yellow or pink loosely woven cottons, by the yard, will yield a harvest of fringed mats if you have to "pull the threads" for oblong and matching square napkins.

Knock! Knock! The automobile pounded and suddenly wheezed to a stop on a lonely road. "I wonder," mused the sailor, "what that knock is?" "Maybe," suggested his blonde companion, "it's opportunity."

A Moving Speech "This is my car," protested the irate motorist to the garage man, "and what I say goes, see?" "Say, 'engine then, mister,'" suggested the disgruntled repair man.

The Once Over by H.I. Phillips

ALL DONE BY MIRRORS

Mother—Goodness, haven't you heard a thing on that new auto yet, dear? Dad—No; they tell me there ain't a chance of getting one for another six months. They just ain't getting 'em through.

RADIO—And remember, folks, to get one of those 20 new sedans being given away by Faizig's Doodrant. You just send in a four-line jingle on body odors... just a four-line jingle and four cents in stamps... Every week 20 lucky persons see a brand new 1946 sedan roll up to their door.

Mother—Now how do you explain that? If they can give twenty cars a week away as prizes in a radio contest I should think that you... Dad—Now, please, don't make me go into that again!

Mother (a little later)—I don't know whether to call a doctor or not. Dad—What's wrong? Mother—All those bruises and contusions. Dad—What bruises and contusions? Mother—Oh, I got 'em yesterday in one of those nylon lines. It was awful.

Dad—Did you get any nylons? Mother—No; thousands were turned away. The supply is still terribly limited, you know... Dad—What's wrong? Mother—All those bruises and contusions. Dad—What bruises and contusions? Mother—Oh, I got 'em yesterday in one of those nylon lines. It was awful.

RADIO—And now, folks, for further details in our wonderful contest in which 5,000 pairs of nylons will be distributed absolutely free to the women of America!... All you do is send in a 25-word essay on why you use Zaflex for bleeding gums... Merely send in a 25-word essay and the six box tops and win a dozen pairs of nylons...

Dad (with sarcasm)—Supply scarce, did you say, honey? Mother—Now I know I'll have to call the doctor! Those bruises hurt more than ever...

Dad (as the radio announces another contest in which 10,000 pairs of suits will be raffled)—Make it two doctors! Mother (at the phone)—I can't get a doctor. They all say they won't be free for weeks.

RADIO—Do you want a doctor? Are you feeling indisposed? Clip the tops of four boxes of Byzby's new face simonizer and... Mom and Pop—Awahh-h-h-h!

Merrily We Roll Along A National Highway Safety conference is being held in Washington, with its main object safer auto driving. Well, we think its emblem would be four slices of baloney floating in a dish of applause. Everybody knows that the incredibly reckless driving and the hundreds of tragedies every day are due chiefly to three facts:

1. Few states make more than a pretense of an adequate test for auto drivers, seven out of ten of whom don't even know the elemental rules of the road.

2. Not a community in America has police enough to make a real war on reckless drivers, and the cops now on the job are almost helpless, due to the fact the courts let the reckless drivers off with piddling fines.

3. Big cities, especially New York, permit flagrantly dangerous speeds on crowded streets day in and day out, with the traffic cops apparently loving it.

"Orson Welles has written a musical with forty scenes, calling for 'much activity among the audiences.'" —News Item.

If a good title is wanted how about "Welles-A-Poppin'?"

VANISHING AMERICANS "The government won't stand for it." "Let's see, you had two beers and gave me a quarter, you got 15 cents coming back."

"We'll get married first and find a place to live afterwards."

"Ask for our 25-cent steak sandwich."

Models, style parades and the distribution of nylons are now features at Yankee stadium ball games. We expect to hear of a pitcher taken out for a bathing beauty any day now.

CAN YOU REMEMBER—Away back when you could take the car to a service station and have the carbon cleaned for less than the cost of a new auto?

"Anybody got a one-man power saw they are sick of what works? Mention your needs and I'll take a look out back, NHM 1909." —Yankee magazine.

"I would like to add my praise to KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. I suffered years of misery until I saw your ad about 5 years ago. Have been using ALL-BRAN regularly and have never had to use a laxative since." —Thomas Harsh, 224 Sanson Street, Philadelphia 4, Pa.

You, too, may never need another harsh laxative for constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet, if you will eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day, and drink plenty of water. Just try this for ten days.
