In two 7 inning games played here Sunday, Kewaskum and Cascade split a doubleheader, the locals winning the first contest, 9 to 4, and Cascade taking the nightcap, 6 to 3. The twin bill was attended by a very large crowd of fans, the largest to see a ball game here in several years.

The second game setback was costly in more ways than one because early in the game Kewaskum lost its first baseman, Arnie Schladweller, who was seriously injured when he was hit on the head by a speedy throw ball. He suffered a concussion and is now confined at St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend. The accident occurred as Arnie and Honock, local pitcher, both went to field a popped up ball between the pitcher's mound and first base. Honock caught the ball and immediately wheeled around to throw to second base in an attempt to double a runner off of base there. At the time Honock let go of the throw Schladweller crossed behind him and ran directly in the path of the ball. The ball struck him back of the ear with a loud thud and he fell to the ground unconscious. When teammates were unable to revive him a physician was called and he was taken to the hospital. There it was found he suffered a bad concussion. Arnie is getting along as well as can be expected although he still lags into unconsciousness at times. He will be confined to the hospital for a time yet.

Led by Prost with 3 singles, Kewaskum banged out 11 hits and scored 9 runs in the first 5 innings off of O'Reilly and Vic Keamer to sweep up the first game. Marx and Bath banged out homers. At the same time Marx held Cascade well in check, allowing them 2 runs in the first inning and then shutting them out until the seventh when they pushed 2 more across. Cascade sailed away the second game with 4 big runs in the second inning and added 2 more in the fifth. The Utensils scored all 3 of their runs in the sixth. Kewaskum handed this game to the visitors by playing error-prone ball all field. Led by Uelmen with 3, the team committed 6 errors. The injury to Schladweller took all the life and steadiness out of the boys and they were in no more mood to play ball. Being upset, Honock discontinued pitching after Schladweller was hit and Marx had to finish the game. After Arnie was injured and out of the game, and with Harbeck laid up the Utensils had only 5 players in uniform. Manager "Fritz" Kral came in to catch and his brother Paul, regular receiver, went out to right field. Chet Richards, Cascade ace, held the locals to 4 hits and fanned 7. D. Laack paced Cascade to victory with 3 hits in 3 times at bat. Marx got 2 for 2 for the losers.

This Sunday Kewaskum will play another home game with Adell coming to furnish the opposition. The Utensils nosed out Adell there in the first game between the two and another battle can be expected. The game will start immediately after Kewaskum's Land o' Brooks league game with Menomonee Falls scheduled for 12:30 p. m. Because of both local teams playing at home Sunday the Kewas-

7 Families Change Residence Places

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Johnson and family and Herman Backhaus are moving from their home on Prospect avenue into the former George Kippenhan home on Fond du Lac avenue which the Johnsons purchased from the Kippenhans some time ago along with the garage building and property. Mrs. Johnson will continue to conduct her beauty shoppe business at its present location in the former home. Mr. and Mrs. Kippenhan moved into the former Mrs. Neal Schmidt home on Main street recently which they purchased from Mrs. Schmidt.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stenman and family of Milwaukee will move into the residence to be vacated by the Alfred Johnsons which they have rented from the latter. Mr. Stenman is an employee of the Kewaskum Creamery company.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin "Shorty" Schaefer and family last Saturday moved from the lower apartment of the Gottfried Walz home on Fond du Lac avenue into the K. A. Honock farm home a short distance south of the village, across from the Jacob Bruessel farm. Mr. and Mrs. Walz and family moved into the lower apartment vacated by the Schaefer family from the upstairs apartment in the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Muckerhohde and family, who recently sold their home on First street to Mr. and Mrs. Norman Held, the past week moved into the former Ernie Gessert residence at Boltonville which they purchased recently from Mr. Gessert.

Mr. and Mrs. Roman Keller and sons last Thursday moved from the Pasky home on East Water street into one of the apartments above the A. C. Johnson garage building on Fond du Lac avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson remodeled the rooms above the garage into two apartments.

Mrs. Robert Kroncke and son Robbie, who spent the past few years with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Rosenheimer, while Mr. Kroncke was serving in the "armed forces," have moved to Milwaukee to join Mr. Kroncke in their new home.

SUMMER PICNIC AT ST. KILIAN SUNDAY, AUG. 18

Arrangements are nearing completion for the big summer picnic of St. Kilian's congregation, sponsored by the Holy Name society, to be held on the parish grounds at St. Kilian on Sunday afternoon and evening, Aug. 18. The picnic will feature music and there will be plenty of entertainment and amusement to please young and old. Refreshments of all kinds will be served. A good time is guaranteed to all. Grounds will open at 1:00 p. m. A most valuable prize will be awarded at 10:30 p. m. Advance tickets for the prize are being sold by the parishioners.

All are invited to attend and enjoy a real good time.

STATE CHAMPS SING AT PICNIC

This quartet of singers is known as the "Hi-Lo" barber shop quartet of Milwaukee. They are members of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Singing in America. They are the Wisconsin state champions and were medalists in the international singing contest held in Cleveland on June 14th of this year. They will be one of the feature attractions at the veterans' home-coming picnic in Kewaskum on Sunday, Aug. 11. They will sing in the afternoon and in the evening.

Home-Coming Picnic Notes

The veterans' picnic on Aug. 11 will be held rain or shine. Arrangements have been made for two large tents in the park.

The Legion clubhouse will be headquarters for all visiting veterans and servicemen. The parade will start from the Legion grounds.

Word has been received from Horizon Post No. 157 that their Legion drum and bugle corps will play in the parade.

The commander of the Miller-Justman Post, American Legion, of Theresa reports that there will be a good delegation of veterans from Theresa in the parade.

The Sons of American Legion drum and bugle corps of Sheboygan plans to participate in the parade.

The Fred A. Schaefer Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of West Bend will be represented in the parade by a large delegation.

A number of merchants have indicated that they plan to have decorated floats in the parade.

The Boy Scouts and Cubs are planning to be in the parade. The firemen also expect to participate. Other local organizations are welcome to participate.

The prizes to be awarded are on display in the show window of Miller's new furniture store.

A beagle puppy has been donated by Joe Eberle. The puppy will be given away at the picnic in the evening.

The Pearson L. Brown Post of the American Legion of Campbellsport reports that they will be represented in the parade by a large delegation and that they will have a 40 ft. engine in the parade.

Prizes will be awarded to children having the best floats or other specialties in the parade.

Miss Elsie Bruhn of this village left the past week for Ancon, Panama, where she will enter into business and make her home for the present. Miss Bruhn, who served with the WACs during World War II, intends to open a dress shop in Panama. Her brother, Richard Bruhn, and family reside there and Miss Bruhn returned home a short time ago after visiting them in Panama.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Riordan of this village was baptized Sunday in Holy Trinity church by the Rev. F. C. LaBowl. He was given the name Timothy Howard. Sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Jack O. Mearns of West Bend.

Arnold Schladweller, Route 1, Fredonia, was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend, Sunday, July 28, for treatment of a concussion which he sustained when he was struck in the head by a baseball while playing ball with the Kewaskum team.

Annual Reunion of Seefeldt Families

Ideal picnic weather made possible a very successful family reunion for the Seefeldt families, who assembled at the Kewaskum village park on Sunday, July 28. This event has taken place for the seventh time and a careful check on registration records revealed that 150 people attended, the largest number ever recorded.

After a basket lunch a business meeting was held at which the following officers were elected: President, Alfred H. Seefeldt, Kewaskum; vice-president, Andrew Seefeldt, Campbellsport; secretary, Rosella Feisker, Fond du Lac; treasurer, Mrs. Alfred Seefeldt, Kewaskum; historian, Mrs. Ray Thornton, Fond du Lac; committee in charge of 1917 reunion, Mrs. Arnold Klug, West Bend; tables, Mrs. Reuben Schultz, Kewaskum; refreshments, Oscar Seefeldt, Kewaskum; program, Betty Jane Pink, Fond du Lac.

A letter from the wife and son of Ervin Seefeldt, who passed away on June 15 at Tucson, Arizona, was read to the gathering. They had formerly made their home at Milwaukee, and shortly after the 1914 reunion moved to Arizona for their health. Prior to this time they had not missed any of the gatherings.

Recognition prizes were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Grant of Northfield, Minnesota, who came the greatest distance, approximately 250 miles, for their first attendance; to Mrs. Louisa Buss of Kewaskum, oldest member present, who will be 88 in October; to Wade John Schimmel, age 7 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Schempel of Adell, being the youngest member present, and to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Seefeldt of Batavia for having the largest family group present, fifteen members representing three generations.

Community singing was led by Mrs. Walter Seefeldt of Campbellsport. Three girls from the Fond du Lac County Orphanage, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Finzeberg, did a little harmonizing. Photographs and movies were taken and the balance of the afternoon was spent in visiting. After a picnic supper the crowd slowly dispersed, looking forward to meeting again next year.

Kathleen Norris Says:

How Often Do Psycho-Analysts Help?

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

"Many a young wife has been led to wonder if the baring of her soul to some sympathetic adviser might not brighten her life."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE FASHION today is to be psycho-analyzed. This alarming word means that whoever is restless, unsatisfied, ill-adjusted to his or her life, goes to a specialist. The specialist digs deep into the unhappy person's consciousness, asking all sorts of intimate and embarrassing questions, trying to find out what influences in the past have created her timidity, jealousy, fear, hate, or whatever else is wrong with her.

Sometimes the psycho-analyst is a person qualified by nature, science and training to help, and does help. More often he or she knows nothing, and only vaguely repeats phrases that mean nothing. Not so much from any real intention of cheating, but rather in pleased surprise that they have stumbled upon anything so easy and so lucrative.

The anxious family of the sufferer takes this very seriously. They are cheered when the analyst says hopefully: "We are coming on. We are learning to live with ourselves honestly. I think we are bringing the real cause to the light. We want to help ourselves now, and that is the great thing."

Enjoys 'Baring Her Soul.' The theater, beginning with "Lady in the Dark," has helped the spread of psycho-analysis immensely. Many movies have followed suit. Many a young wife who might, a generation ago, have accepted her lot as housekeeper and mother with philosophy and common sense, has been led to wonder if the baring of her soul to some sympathetic adviser might not brighten her life. She enjoys going back—we all do—to the disappointments of childhood, the embarrassments and humiliations of school days, the first awakening of young love. She enjoys talking about herself; who doesn't? Fortune tellers command attention because their fascinating topic is always oneself.

Some years ago the Coue doctrine took this country by storm, and persons whose lives were running smoothly went about beaming because "every day in every way" everything was "getting better and better." When the first blast of real trouble struck them they felt silent, and as the second and third blows fell—and light or heavy no one escapes them long!—the Coue formula fell away into nothingness.

Undoubtedly Coue did some good. Undoubtedly psycho-analysis helps some cases. But nine times out of ten the patient could help herself faster and cheaper than the professional can.

So in case you live far away from the nearest psycho-analyst, here are a few hints that may help you out of your own predicament at no expense at all.

Money Troubles, Jealousy.

The first cause of marital discontent, with all its ramifying lines of quarrels, hurt feelings, failures, is money. So if your husband considers you extravagant, or you consider him stingy, settle this question yourselves. You don't need a third party to tell you that hunger for pretty things all during your girlhood had made you wasteful, now that you can have them, or to tell him that his father's debts, his mother's financial worries, his own fear of hard times, have made him somewhat penurious. Work out

"Scolding, wasteful wives..."

Young Child Should Mingle With Other Children Early berger explains. Even though a two-year-old child might not pay much attention to others joining him in play, it is no sign he is not learning to play with others. The mere fact he is able to accept the other child without being afraid of him is an accomplishment.

She recommends that children be allowed as much as possible to work out their own disagreements; but an adult must be constantly aware of the principles of fair play.

ANALYZE YOURSELF

In some cases of mental ills, the psycho-analyst can be of great assistance. It has become the fashion, however, for discontented, unhappy people to turn to psycho-analysis as the great cure-all of the age. It is nothing of the sort, says Miss Norris. It has a limited use. Patients must be co-operative. The practitioner must be skilled and sympathetic. Improvement often takes a long time.

Most people do not need the services of a psycho-analyst so much as they need common sense and a little soul-searching, continues Miss Norris. Generally the cause of the difficulty is well known. It may be extravagance, or jealousy, or a desire for dominance. In any case, the psycho-analyst can do little more than point the trouble. He cannot make the necessary changes in the individual's character or circumstances.

Often a husband and wife can solve their imaginary mental problems by a frank talk. Whether the difficulty arises over money, or relatives, or some personal fault, the solution can be found by bringing it out into the open. There is seldom any use going to a high-priced psycho-analyst. Better solve your own problems, concludes Miss Norris.

your money problem on a sensible basis, and then both of you stick to your bargain, and with the money saved on the psycho-analyst go to dinner and the theater together.

A secondary great cause of marital distress is jealousy. Don't give each other cause; that is the simple cure, and that is all the scientist can say. But if there is cause, a psycho-analyst can't cure it. If the grass-widow in your husband's office really has matrimonial designs on him, having the situation analyzed won't help. After the most skillful handling, the facts will remain the same; he is making love to another woman.

Jealousy was the basic trouble with a man I know, according to the expensive psycho-analyst he consulted. The analyst told him that he had been jealous of his father and mother, his sisters and brothers, his teachers and associates. This did not, however, help him with his wife, who shortly afterward justified his jealousy by going off with another man.

Jealousy is a sin, and so are unkindness, domestic injustices, extravagance, waste, penuriousness, nagging, drink—all the other ills to which marriage stands heir. Sin is cured by grace, not by analysis. Drinking and gambling husbands know what's wrong, without long luxurious talks about it. Scolding, wasteful wives are perfectly aware why there are always storms over the household bills. Mothers and fathers who quarrel before the children, know why Joan is nervous and shy, and Tom completely unmanageable. It would save some of them a lot of money if they looked into their own hearts before laying their blame to a complete stranger.

Braille Translator

A woman who decided at the age of 60 that she wanted to transcribe books into Braille for the blind recently has completed her 337th volume. She is working under the direction of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind.

The translator is Mrs. Ida Klingenstein of New York City. Her most ambitious undertaking was "Gone With the Wind," which stretched out into 31 volumes of Braille.

Mrs. Klingenstein, who is now 73, works on a volunteer basis.

Returned Veterans Aid Outlook For Elderly U. S. Farm Couples

Alabama Brothers Show Success in Postwar Venture

Return of veterans from the armed forces is aiding the financial outlook for many an elderly U. S. farm couple.

Take the Bowdens in Coffee county, Ala., for example. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bowden are 69 and 63 years old, respectively, and, because of their age, were not able to make the most out of the farm they were operating when their sons were in service.

Upon their return from the armed forces, Lynn and Oren Bowden shouldered the job of making a living for the family and increasing dividends from the farm. Their first objective was to buy the farm, thus raising themselves and their "old folks" out of the tenant farmer class.

Since many elderly farmers and their wives also are looking to their sons to take over the home farm, the story of the Bowdens is related to show what can be accomplished. Actually the story has its beginning in 1936 when, as the elder Bowden frankly admits, "we wiggled down and out and had to struggle to make ends meet." Unable to get credit from regular lenders for purchase of feed, seed, fertilizer, equipment and other farm needs, the Bowdens resorted to a government agency, now the Farm Security administration, to secure the necessary funds. Along with the funds came instruction in sound farming practices, which enabled the Bowden family to improve the efficiency of their operations.

A period of progress followed, but the advent of war disrupted all the family's plans. Both Lynn and Oren were called into service, resulting in an acute lack of help on the farm. Lynn, 44, veteran of both world wars, entered the army in 1940 when the Alabama National Guard was called into service. Oren, 31, also was a member of the National Guard and entered service early the following year. A temporary respite was gained when Oren was placed on inactive duty to help run the farm, but he later was called back into service.

SEEK EXPERT GUIDANCE—The Bowden brothers and their parents have proved that they are good farmers, but they frankly admit they don't know it all. Here James S. Pridgen, Coffee county, Ala., FSA supervisor, shows Lynn and Oren Bowden how to treat seed peanuts to prevent damp rot after they are in the ground.

Upon their discharge early in 1943, both brothers returned to the family farm. Intent on purchasing the 300-acre farm, previously rented by the family, the brothers arranged the necessary financing with Farm Security administration, which permits 40 years at 3 per cent interest for repayment of farm purchase loans. A major factor in the family's success was the diversified farming plan which the agency helped the family to map out.

Faced with a $4,800 debt, contracted in purchasing the farm, the Bowdens embarked on an ambitious farm program designed to wipe out the debt in shortest possible time. Within a year they had paid off more than half the debt. Today, only three years later, the final payment has been made to the government agency and the Bowdens are full owners of their land.

With 160 acres of the farm under cultivation, the Bowdens produce peanuts as the main cash crop. Carrying out their plan of diversified farming, they also have cotton, hogs and 12 head of beef cattle, principally of the Black Angus type. To develop their herd, they recently purchased a purebred Angus bull.

In 1944, the Bowdens marketed 20 tons of peanuts, $600 worth of hogs, and $60 worth of cattle. They had 15 other hogs left over for marketing by the end of that year as well as 12 stock hogs and 2 milk cows. Sale of chickens and eggs also added to farm returns.

Marketing the following year included 20 tons of peanuts, 4 bales of cotton and about $588 worth of hogs. After these sales, they had 24 Duroc sows, 4 brood sows and 30 pigs on hand as well as their beef cattle.

The "old folks" are helping the veterans progress in their farming venture. The elder Bowden raises garden produce, selling $112 worth of cabbage from a few rows in his garden last year. Intent on increasing the returns, he has planted six 60-foot rows of cabbage this year. Mrs. Bowden also is active in work around the house and garden.

Size of the family also has been increased. After the last farm payment was made, Oren was married and brought his wife to the family farm home.

Today the Bowdens are considered successful Alabama farmers. Each member of the family does his proper share of work and all reap the benefits of good living on a well-operated farm. Furthermore, the elder Mr. and Mrs. Bowden can take more time to enjoy the peace and security of farm life now that their boys, like so many others, are home again from the war.

PIGS BOOST INCOME... Oren Bowden is shown here with brood sows and some of the young porkers which will be ready for market in the fall. Returns from cattle and pigs increase earnings on the Bowden farm, which is operated on a well-rounded diversified farming plan.

Loans to Veterans for Farm Purchases And Operating Costs Reach High Peak

Setting a new high in Farm Security administration loans to veterans, 5,400 ex-servicemen were financed in purchase of farm operating equipment or family farms within a two-month period, according to figures released by department of agriculture.

The loans, made during March and April, constitute nearly a third of the total number the agency has approved for veterans during the last two years, FSA Administrator Dillar B. Lasseter announced.

Declaring that the agency expects the record lending to continue, Lasseter reports that more than 20,000 veteran applications now are being processed in county offices.

More than 16,000 veterans already have received FSA assistance. Approximately 1,000 of them obtained farm purchase loans under terms of the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act from an earmarked fund set up by congress. The rest have loans to buy machinery and livestock or for other operating needs.

Soaring real estate prices and lack of productive farms for sale have handicapped veterans in their quest for farms, Lasseter says.

Guidance Plan Aids Farmers Getting Loans

Individual guidance in good farm and home management practices is provided by Farm Security administration with all loans, the department of agriculture emphasizes.

Each loan, the department reports, is based on a sound plan for farm and home management that is worked out by the borrower and his family. The plan shows items the farmer intends to raise, his estimated operating expenses and income he may expect to make.

A FSA supervisor, schooled in efficient farm methods, helps each family make and carry out the plan. He will supply information on how to select and care for livestock, plan crop rotations and put other good farm methods into practice. In most rural counties a home specialist, trained in home economics, also is available to assist the family.

Main objects of the guidance plan, according to FSA, are to help the farmer "get the most income from his work, obtain a good living for his family and repay his loan."

New Jersey Farmer Termed Hardest Working Man in State

On the basis of the working day's length, the title of hardest working man in New Jersey can be conferred on the average farmer in the Garden state, declares the state department of agriculture.

Figures cited by the department show that as of June 1 New Jersey farm operators were working an average of 12 hours daily, which adds up to a 72-hour week, excluding time devoted to Sunday chores. During harvesting operations, particularly in July and August, longer working days are in store for farmers.

A farmer's week adds up to a 72-hour period contrasted to a factory employee's regular work week of 40 hours. Then, too, according to the department, whenever a day's work is lost on a farm the output of 12 hours is involved whereas only an eight-hour day is lost when a city plant shuts down.

No report of the number of hours per day worked by farmers can estimate the time spent on Sundays and holidays when, as on any other day, chores such as feeding livestock, milking and other jobs must be done on a farm regardless of the day of the week.

A year ago, when the war still waged, New Jersey farmers spent 12.2 hours a day at work.

Make starts and stops carefully while loading, especially on rough ground.

Don't take chances with pitchforks. The sharp, unguarded steel tines are dangerous weapons. Carry a pitchfork over the shoulder and stick it securely in the ground when it is not in use. Never throw a pitchfork. Caution children engaged in haying, to exercise extreme caution in operating mowers, rakes and other equipment used during haying operations.

Watch out for falls from hay racks, hay stacks and hay mows.

How to Outbluff a VICIOUS DOG at night!

...as recommended by Lt. Comdr. Willy Necker, Wheeling, Ill.—noted dog trainer and judge at dog shows...and wartime head of U. S. Coast Guard War Dog Training.

1 The fact that 999 dogs out of a thousand are friendly, safe and lovable doesn't alter the fact that occasionally—through mistreatment, neglect or disease—a dog may turn vicious.

2 Such animals are dangerous. Especially at night! If cornered outdoors, at night, turn on your "Eveready" flashlight. Shine it directly at the dog's eyes, to blind and perhaps bewilder him. He may leap at the light, however; so don't hold it in front of you. Hold it at arm's length to the side. Most important...

3 Keep still. It's instinctive with most animals to attack anything that runs away or moves aggressively. If the dog refrains from attacking for a few seconds, you have probably won—but, if not, protect your throat. Use flashlight as club. Shout! If bitten, see a doctor as soon as possible.

4 For bright light, white light, effective light—insist on "Eveready" batteries. Your dealer now has them. Ask for them by name. For "Eveready" batteries have no equals—that's why they're the largest-selling flashlight batteries in the world. Yet their extra light, extra life, cost you nothing extra!

Can Fruits and Berries This Easy Way (See Recipes Below)

Fruits A-Plenty!

Among the most envied women the past few years were those with large stocks of their own canned fruit. Yes, commercially canned fruit has been a mighty rare commodity during the war, and it's still scarce. If you plan now to do your canning, you'll be among the lucky homemakers when shortages really become acute during the fall and winter.

There are few pleasures greater for the cook than those jewel-like quarts and pints of luscious fruit on the pantry shelf. And besides, it's very easy to can fruit because they are acid and easy to prepare.

Selection Important.

I can't stress too highly the importance of having the freshest possible produce for canning purposes. Perhaps it is best pointed out in this way. You know the rapidity with which fruit spoils as soon as it is picked. You also know how important it is to have unspoiled fruit placed in a can because it easily spoils when preserved if there are bacteria there that begin working. Blemish-free fruit will take less time to put in cans, and the chances of spoiling are cut down. Besides that, the appearance of the fruit is better.

Freshly picked fruit and berries, young, tender and full ripe, are the best ingredients for canning recipes. Under-ripe fruit does not have mellow flavor, and over-ripe fruit will be mushy. That's why the "prime condition" of fruit is so important.

Look out for bruised spots, signs of decay and other injuries. All these things have a great bearing on the quality of your final canned fruit.

Making the Syrup.

Fruit may be canned in just plain water, but if you have any sugar at all (those extra canning stamps for sugar!) make a syrup, even if a very thin one for canning fruit. The syrup mellows them and brings out true flavor.

Here are some proportions for the lighter syrups which are popular this year:

Light: 1 cup sugar, ¾ cups water.

Moderately light: 1 cup sugar, 2 cups water.

Medium: 1 cup sugar, 1½ cups water.

To make the syrup, combine the sugar and water and allow to boil for five minutes, without stirring. Remove scum and use to fill jars. You'll need from ¾ to 1 cup syrup for each pint of fruit after it's packed in the jar.

If desired, juice may be extracted from fruits and berries by crushing, heating and straining. No sugar is needed.

Use it as you would syrup.

In making syrup, one-half cup syrup may be used with one-half sugar. Honey may also be used, but it does darken the fruit and emphasize the flavor.

Methods of Packing.

Fruits may be cold-packed for canning prior to processing. This means that raw fruit is packed cold into the jars, then processed in the boiling-water bath or pressure cooker. This is suitable for many fruits and berries, and is usually used by women who have a lot of canning to do.

The hot-pack method is sometimes used for fruits. This means pre-cooking the fruits in the syrup a short time before packing in the jars and processing. This method gives beautiful fruit, but is not often used today because there is too much danger of contaminating the fruit after it is cooked and transferred to the jars. In this method the fruit is cooked thoroughly in an open kettle in the syrup and then placed in the jars and sealed.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

LYNN SAYS:

Here are some canning pointers: To guide you in the approximate number of jars you should have, you'll want this guide. To make one quart of canned fruit you will need these amounts of fresh fruit:

2½ pounds of cherries; 2½ pounds of peaches; 2 to 2½ pounds of pears; 2 medium-sized pineapples; 1½ to 2 pounds of plums; 1½ pounds of rhubarb; and 3 to 3½ quarts of strawberries.

Always use the manufacturers' directions in fastening the caps as caps vary greatly in their use.

Do Your Own Decorating If You Want to Feel Grated

By MARION ATKINS

"There are several reasons why women oftentimes prefer to work out their own decorating, even though their incomes are in the higher brackets and they could more than afford the services of professional interior decorators," says Florence Terhune, who has been in close contact with thousands of American women who work out their own decorating plans. "They need only to know the fundamental rules—they wish their homes to reflect their own interests, color preferences, hobbies and originality. It produces the same sense of gratification as one would get from painting a picture," continued Mrs. Terhune as we sat at tea discussing her book "Decorating for You."

"I wrote the book so that would-be home decorators would have a practical handbook, a sort of blueprint they could follow in choosing furniture, fabrics, accessories and getting them properly balanced."

Interestingly written histories of various periods, sketches of the chief characteristics, suggestions of modern adaptations of furniture and accessories, the strategy of furniture arrangements, how to manipulate accessories to the best advantage—are only a few of Mrs. Terhune's aids to the perplexed homemaker contained in her book.

If your budget does not permit the services of a decorator, if your inclination is to style, arrange and decorate for yourself—one or two of the superlative books on the subject recently published will excite and become as greatly thumbed a source book as your favorite cookbook! If your local library does not contain a copy of this excellent book, "Decorating for You," published by Barrows and Company, your book shop will order it for you.

OLDER THE BETTER

A wealthy man, intent on matrimony, told his friend one day that he was 60 years old, and asked: "Would it be better if I told a young lady whom I'd like to marry that I'm only 50?"

Said the friend: "Your chances would be better if you'd tell her you were 75."

TIPPED OFF

Speeders were usually plentiful on one particular highway near Atchison, Kan. Then one day there were none, and traffic officers wondered why.

They wondered why until they discovered a crude sign, warning: "Beware! Speed cop hiding in rocks."

Just a Shell!

A stout lady entered a drug store and stepped on the scales, not knowing they were out of order. When she inserted a penny in the slot, the scales went up to 57 pounds and stopped.

A newsboy standing by noticed the situation. "My gosh," he exclaimed. "She's hollow."

Market Value

Two men were discussing motoring as they sat in the club. "I was once buying a used car from a garage owner," said one. "Of course, he praised it, and since I was a novice, I knew nothing about it, but I found a way of finding out all about its defects."

"That sounds incredible," said the other.

"Well," continued the first man, "this is how I did it. I took the car out on trial and drove it to another dealer, and asked him to buy it."

ATHLETE'S FOOT NEWS

"80.6% of sufferers showed CLINICAL IMPROVEMENT after only 10-day treatment with SORETONE"

Forster D. Snell, Inc., well-known consulting chemists, have just completed a test with a group of men and women suffering from Athlete's Foot. These people were told to use Soretone. At the end of only a ten-day test period, their feet were examined by a physician. We quote from the report:

"After the use of Soretone according to the directions on the label for a period of only ten days, 80.6% of the cases showed clinical improvement of an infection which is most stubborn to control."

Improvements were shown in the symptoms of Athlete's Foot—the itching, burning, redness, etc. The report says:

"In our opinion Soretone is of very definite benefit in the treatment of this disease, which is commonly known as 'Athlete's Foot.'"

RENEW THE OIL FILTER ELEMENT
REGULARLY... AS SPECIFIED

Keep the filtering system on your tractor in top-notch working condition by changing the filter element regularly. No dirt, sludge or abrasive material can reach vital engine parts if you do this. The new International Harvester "umbrella" type element affords full protection for 120 hours of tractor use (100 hours for Diesel engines). Constructed on the same principle as the "micronic" filter elements used by the Armed Forces it filters out every bit of abrasive material, even the tiniest particles. It requires no bothersome cleaning—you simply discard the dirty, used element and replace it with a clean, new one. Inexpensive... easily changed... keeps engine oil clean twice as long.

CONTROL IS PROBLEM

Congress Battle Rages In Face of Atom Test

'TASK BAKER'—Radio impulses sent out from the USS Cumberland Sound, indicated in top drawing (1) were to detonate the underwater "A" bomb for the "Task Baker," second of the Bikini experiments. The bomb was suspended from a spar on barge (2). As indicated by the arrow (3) a number of "drone" ships were directed into the lagoon to test the effects of radio-activated water.

By WALTER A. SHEAD
WNU Washington Correspondent.

HONOLULU, OPERATIONS CROSSROAD. — While army and navy officials in charge of Joint Task Force 1 at the Bikini atomic bomb tests are interested in the squabble now going on in the congress as between civilian and military control of atomic energy, their single interest here is to complete successfully the important experiments on the possible damage which an atom bomb can do to a fleet at sea.

In the meantime, Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, commander of Operations Crossroads, has indicated that weather conditions may force a week's delay in the underwater test in Bikini lagoon scheduled for July 25, which would make "Baker-day" Aug. 1 or thereabouts. As has been pointed out, the weather for this second test need not be as perfect as for the first test when the bomb was dropped from a B-29, but it must be clear enough for aerial observation and photography.

The press ship USS Appalachian has completed her trip to Pearl Harbor for minor repairs and now is anchored with the rest of the maintenance fleet in Bikini lagoon, ready to pull out and cruise outside to the seaward side of the island when the time is ripe for the second test.

Few Remain. — Only approximately 23 correspondents are left aboard the ship, since most of them returned to the States immediately after the first test.

The pattern for the underwater test has been completed with the battleship Arkansas, which was barely blistered by the first test, and the carrier Saratoga, also undamaged as a result of the first bomb, almost equidistant and nearest to the proposed bomb burst.

A little to the east are the battleship New York and the cruiser Salt Lake City. Both suffered negligible damage in the first blast. Then to the west of the two center ships are the cruiser Pensacola and the carrier Independence. The old Independence is merely a hulk in the water with her insides torn out and her topsides blasted away as result of the bomb and her own internal explosions. The Pensacola is undamaged below deck, but her superstructure is pretty well battered up as a result of the first tests, with both stacks blown away.

Farther out in the circle are the battleships Pennsylvania and Nevada, the Jap ship Nagato and the German pocket battleship Prinz Eugen. Just forward of the Arkansas and the Saratoga are several submarines which are submerged at various depths with the double-hulled Pilotfish almost as close to the center of the burst as the Arkansas. Lighter ships make up the balance of the target array.

Opinions Vary. — The effect of the bomb on these submarines is awaited with interest and in the meantime the discussion goes on as between those who predict this underwater blast will sink several capital ships including the submarines, and those who declare the damage will be negligible.

'Eccentric' Bomb Explains Wide Miss

Over on Kwajalein where the army air force section of the task force is holding forth, Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, deputy commander for air, still is seeking to find an answer to the questions of reporters as to why Major Swannick and his crew missed the Nevada or bulls-eye of the first test by something like 2,500 feet. This reporter does not believe the miss was that far, since my calculations indicate the bomb fell astern and a little to port of the Nevada about 600 yards away or approximately 1,800 feet.

At any rate, General Kepner now comes up with an answer, according to his latest conference, that the bomb was an "eccentric" and that the drop was in the category known as a "wobbler." In other words that the bomb veered and did not fall true.

Disposition of Task Force Is Undecided

Whether this tremendous force of men and ships and material will break camp here after the second test or will remain in Bikini and through the third test had not been revealed at this writing.

From one source it was estimated that the cost of the present set-up is running at the rate of approximately a half-million dollars a day. The third test has been tentatively set for November and may not be held until spring. It will be a deep sea underwater blast with the bomb detonated in water about 1,000 fathoms deep outside the lagoon and off the coast of Bikini.

According to an official announcement "the principal value of the second test is expected to come from a precise measurement of the damage to hulls under water and the effects of radio-activated water on the exposed parts of the targets

Echo of Bombs Induces Science Aid

Scientists Favor Unhampered Freedom in Research Work

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

The bomb which leveled Hiroshima and has since been echoing in the Pacific did something to congress that could not have been done before the explosion. It induced the senate to loosen the public purse strings to the extent of voting to subsidize a national scientific research foundation.

Scientists don't have many votes, so the persuasion couldn't have come by way of a lobby. The public imagination had been stirred. Suddenly the layman realized that science was a powerful factor in war. He realized too that perhaps men who could smash the atom and make it smash the enemy, might learn how to use the powers of the sleeping giant—atomic energy—for the good as well as the ill of mankind.

At this writing congress has not completed action of the bill but probably will have done so by the time these lines are read. The idea of a national research program seemed very good to me. Therefore, I was somewhat surprised to hear a pharmacologist authority of my acquaintance say that passage of this legislation "would be as destructive in the field of science" as the bomb was in the midst of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. He made the observation in a group, several of whom were scientists. His hearers appeared to echo his sentiments—sentiments which I later learned he had set forth in the recent Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors. He (Dr. Theodore Koppányi) said: "In an analysis of the bill, a basic wrong immediately leaps to the eye. This is the assumption that scientific research can be 'initiated' or 'prescribed' for. If this assumption could be grounded, the natural sequel to a national research foundation would be federal foundations to 'initiate' and 'prescribe' for the composition of music, the painting of pictures, the writing of poems, and the establishment of social controls and education, for science is probably the most personal and individualistic of all human endeavors. No agency, however authorized and directed, can develop a national policy for scientific research. Difficult to Pass On Projects

The theories and ways of thinking of scientists, Dr. Koppányi explained, (and his colleagues agreed) are as diverse as the world itself. "How can we set up a court with the power to pass on what is good and what is not good for science?" he asked, and then he turned to me with this question: "Would you approve of having a member of your profession—a commentator or news-writer—appointed by a President of the United States, as head of a similarly selected group of your colleagues who were made privy to private government information, which was barred from other speakers or writers?"

Naturally I said: "No." (That would be the end of the freedom of the press and radio.) Then Dr. Koppányi concluded: "You can spend a lot of money and get no return. But if you trust in human ingenuity, motivated by desire of public service, the love of science, recognition, and maybe selfish aims alike, you will have done more for basic science than you could ever do with billions of dollars of federal money."

Social Science Study Lags

Spokesmen for the so-called social sciences (the study of people, of individuals and groups) were loud in criticizing the omission from the bill of provisions for research in this field. An engineer spoke for the social scientists in these words: "We've gone miles ahead in our study of inanimate things, in physics, chemistry and the other sciences that deal with inorganic matter, compared to our advancement in the study of human beings—why they act the way they do under given conditions, their relations to other individuals and to groups, and the action of the groups in relation to each other."

He spoke of the recent pogrom in Kielce, Poland, where the Jews were attacked and killed. It all started from a false rumor, a planted rumor. The very same thing, the engineer pointed out, touched off the riots three years ago in Detroit. Those are known facts but there is very little public knowledge of what causes such action, how it can be prevented.

Possession Is Law to Russ

Russian expropriation of Austrian property and her delay tactics in the setting of the conference date seem to be predicated on the theory: Why start any discussions of who gets what if you can operate on the old theory that possession is nine points of the law?

Possession is an important factor. Take the recent experience of a Philadelphia horse. Around midnight one night a horse walked into a residential district and began devouring gardens of dahlias, morning-glories, snapdragons and other flowers. The infuriated householders tried to shoo the horse away, but he kicked at them and went right on expropriating the bourgeois blooms. However, in the good old American tradition, a policeman appeared with a rope and lassoed the beast. He was removed to the police stables where he couldn't exercise a veto on this purely procedural process.

This subversive tendency in the animal world was revealed in another part of Philadelphia at about the same time. Returning from a week-end, a householder and his family who had started a counter-revolutionary campaign against what they thought to be a harmless mouse, found a large-sized rat in the trap they had set. The rat with the trap attached as a minor incumbrance went right after the family which climbed tables and chairs. This time when the cop came he felt aggressive warfare justifiable and finished the rat with his reactionary night-stick.

Congress Work Is Never Done

Congressmen invariably come to work January 14 brisk of step, bright of eye, confident they'll have all the bills passed, all the necessary business disposed of by July 1 at the latest, so they can go home to their families.

The old timers, of course, know they are just kidding themselves. Business is never completed by July 1, though they work from sun to sun for, like woman's, congress work is never done. Consequently, fishing trips, motor jaunts, and important electioneering have to be postponed while house and senate members labor in Washington heat to complete last-minute legislation.

This year, it was the OPAGony that fevered congressional brows late into July. Debate was so furious, night sessions were so frequent that I wasn't surprised when I heard a man in the visitor's gallery of the capitol ask: "Why did they wait so long to get at the OPA bill? Seems to me they always have a lot of stuff left to do at the end of a session that they could have taken up earlier. Do they always let it go so long that these closing days sound like a rowdy jam session?"

I reported this remark to a man who knows Capitol Hill, as you and I know the short-cut home. "There are no jams in congress," he answered as he inhaled another tablespoonful of the famous senate restaurant bean soup.

"Not even on OPA?" I modestly needed. "No," he said, "but I'll admit they came to a near-jam when they tried to get the bill to the President before the OPA expired. But they did get it to him (he was talking about the first OPA bill)—and it was better than a lot of people had expected. That was no jam."

Chester Bowles has passed from the Washington scene, his head bloody but unbowed, and full of thoughts of further battle. We'll see what happens in the next senatorial elections in the Nutmeg state.

Want to know how to live with the atom? You can rent a cartoon film that will panic you (in both senses of the word) from the National Committee on Atomic Information. Write this column for details.

SET-ASIDE TERMINATED

Wheat Sale Requirement Ends

Producers wheat set-aside requirements, under which it was mandatory for wheat farmers to sell half the grain from the 1946 crop that they took to elevators or warehouses for storage, have been terminated by the government. The set-aside provision had been inoperative since June 30, final effective date of grain ceilings.

Action to eliminate the requirement preceded final vote on the senate version of the new price control bill, which as it now stands, makes it mandatory for the government to issue certificates protecting producers forced to sell their grain through a government order against PROTEST STRIKES . . . In protest against soaring prices following end of OPA controls, buyers' strikes were planned throughout the nation under instigation of unions, veterans' groups, consumers councils and other organizations. Typical is this scene showing St. Louis housewives picketing a dairy in protest against the entire dairy industry in St. Louis, where milk prices have risen 15 per cent and butter 23 per cent.

NEWS REVIEW

Wheeler, Veteran Senator, Defeated; Talmadge Wins

POLITICS: Beat Wheeler

Political observers studied the campaign in the Democratic senatorial primary in Montana for a clue to the cause of defeat of the veteran Burton K. Wheeler, with a variety of reasons appearing to contribute to his downfall.

Since the rugged veteran led the non-interventionist cause before Pearl Harbor, the Japanese attack on the U. S. and the swing of American sentiment toward effective world co-operation were seen to have acted strongly against him. But because of the closeness of his defeat, the CIO-PAC fight against him, the opposition of the powerful railroad brotherhoods and the diversion of the main strength of the Democratic organization to his opponent, Leif Erickson, could have weakened even votes away from him to spell defeat.

Hit Hoarding

Hitting at the withholding of merchandise from the market in anticipation of higher prices, Civilian Production Administration drew up stringent inventory controls on manufacturers of electrical appliances and other scarce goods.

FREE SPY SUSPECT

The jury had just returned a verdict of not guilty on five charges of spying against 30-year-old Nicolai Redin, Russian naval lieutenant. Elated by the finding, the stocky defendant rose to his feet, crossed to the jury box and shook hands with the seven men and five women.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury," he said in heavily accented tones, "I want to thank you for the fair trial I have received here in America." Then shaking hands with Judge Lloyd Black, he declared: "The friendship between our two countries has existed and will exist."

Redin's acquittal followed Judge Black's censure of the prosecution for building up the international aspects of the case, with their implications of U. S. and Russian differences. Arrested in Portland, Ore., last March as he was about to board a ship for Russia, he was charged with obtaining and attempting to transmit secret plans of the new 14,000-ton destroyer tender, USS Yellowstone.

At the same time, CPA disclosed that exports may be limited if shippers move out a flood of goods at high prices to badly depleted foreign markets. Restoration of OPA price control would make such a step unnecessary, it was said.

Under CPA regulations, inventories of finished goods would be restricted to 30 days. Included are refrigerators, furniture, washing machines, electric ranges, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, cameras, asphalt and tarred roofing, insect screen cloth and galvanized ware.

GOOD NEIGHBORS:

When Argentina issued a special stamp to honor Franklin D. Roosevelt on the anniversary of his death, she probably never realized the tremendous interest it would arouse or the demand that there would be for it. An active supporter of the philatelic division of the Pan American union, Argentina sent up a few thousand copies for distribution, in fact, she sent twice as many as is customary, but in a few days that amount was exhausted.

CONSTRUCTION:

Expenditures for new private construction during the first half of 1946 reached over 3 1/2 billion dollars—the highest half-year mark for more than a decade.
Thus in the first half of 1946 private construction was about 3 1/2 times as large as in the same period last year, and 50 per cent greater than in 1940, even after allowance is made for the higher level of construction costs in 1946 than in 1933.

TREASURE OF THE SEA

BY George E. Walsh W.N.U. Release

THE STORY THUS FAR:
After being adrift for four days on a raft, Dick Jordan is picked up by a small sailing vessel in the Caribbean. Dick realizes the captain and his crew are little better than pirates. Tucu, the captain, starts toward the area where the sunken steamer on which Dick had been a passenger is now lying. On the way they come upon a derelict schooner. On board is Captain Bedford, apparently insane, and his daughter, Rose.

Tucu, captain of the pirates, attempts to board the vessel, but is turned back by Rose's automatic. Dick swims to the schooner and helps Rose to drive off the pirates. Dick fears Tucu will return during the night.

CHAPTER IV

She made no pressing inquiry for an explanation, but her eyes were watching him inquisitively. "It sounds like a stage farce," he laughed finally, "but it was the best I could do at the time. That Captain Tucu swallowed the story was a surprise to me."

"Will you please tell me what the story is?"
Briefly as he could, Dick sketched all that had happened to him since the foundering of the City of Bahia, avoiding as much as possible reference to his own suffering. He subconsciously noticed what fine eyes she had, and how absorbingly they followed him as he told the story.

When he came to the smuggling party they lighted up, and the first glimmer of a smile played about her lips.

"Now," he concluded, "you can understand why Tucu will persist in taking the schooner. So long as I'm aboard he'll keep at it. I'm not sure but I can do you the greatest favor by leaving. Perhaps I will."

"Where will you go?" she asked, smiling with her eyes and lips.

"Back to the lugger."

"Wouldn't they kill you if they laid hands on you again?"

"No, not right away," he replied. "It's my supposed knowledge of the existence of those jewels that would protect me. After they were convinced I had been deceiving them—why, then, I don't imagine Tucu would be restrained by any scruples from wreaking vengeance."

"But you didn't intend to wait until then?" she asked.

"No, I was planning to leave at the first opportunity. I was on the lookout for ships."

"And this schooner being the first, you took it to get away from them?"

"No, that isn't quite true," he returned, his eyes twinkling. "I really didn't think of myself when I decided to change ships. I saw what they intended to do, and heard your defiance of them. It was—well, a habit of mine, we'll call it, of jumping in whenever there's a chance of an adventure. I wanted to see the fun, and Tucu had refused to let me come aboard."

She appeared a little amused by his evident attempt to avoid the real reason. She suddenly grew more friendly. "Turning to him, she said frankly: 'I'm glad you came, and I hope you'll stay. Since father lost his reason, I've had everything to do. It was the storm, and the crew—they abandoned us right in the midst of it. Father was down with a high fever, and I—the men didn't trust me to manage things. I think they were superstitious about father; he talked and acted in a way that frightened them. His mind—here he comes now,' she broke off in a whisper. 'Never mind what he says. He's not responsible for what he tells.'"

Dick Gets Acquainted With Captain Bedford
Captain Bedford, with a vacant stare in his eyes, came tumbling up the companion, mumbling and grinning to himself. He was a man past fifty, stout and thick-set, grizzled with beard and hard of muscles; but the mind had been thrown out of gear by a knock on the head, caused by a falling spar in the midst of the storm. Catching sight of Dick, he stopped and blinked hard at him. Then with an idiotic grin on his face, he approached with both hands extended.

"Is it ye, Mr. Crew?" he called cheerily.

"He takes you for the mate," whispered the girl. "Humor him."

"Well, it's most time we pulled up anchor, ain't it? There ain't goin' to be any storm after all. I told ye so—I told ye so, Mr. Crew! If it wasn't that pig-headed superstition of yours that an easterly wind means a big blow ye'd believed me afore."

He came up and poked Dick playfully in the ribs. Then glancing at his daughter, he added: "Did ye tell him about our treasure, Rose? No? Then I'll tell him—picked it up—up—What's the name of that reef now?" He placed a hand to his forehead in an attitude of thought.

"Roncador Bank?" asked Dick, smiling.

"That's it—Roncador Bank! How'd ye know it, Mr. Crew? Rose must have told ye. No, ye can't fool me—she told ye. Ye couldn't have guessed a thing right in yer life. Remember when ye guessed ye was coming down with yellow fever an' twasn't nothing but the measles? Ha! Ha! That was a joke on ye, Mr. Crew."

He stopped suddenly and gazed at the lugger. "What ship's that, daughter? I don't seem to remember her. Hail her, an' ask the captain aboard. We'll have a dram of rum together. Cap'n's have to be friendly when in harbor. No," starting for the side, "I'll hail her."

"No, father," interrupted Rose, "not now. You must go below and rest. Mr. Crew and I will follow. If you'll make some hot coffee we'll drink it with you."

"Coffee! Coffee! What drink'll that for a cap'n and mate!" he snorted. "That's for ladies and children. We'll have a sip of that old Medford, Mr. Crew." He winked broadly. "Rose can have the coffee, but we'll drink to each other's health in good old Jamaica. Eh?"

Dick nodded and smiled, which seemed to please the captain, for he descended the stairs, rubbing his hands and mumbling gleefully. When he was gone, Dick glanced at his companion. Her face was more drawn and set than when Captain Tucu had her cornered, with the Caribs in front and back of her. In that brief instant she had aged several years, a tired, weary expression in the eyes and face.

Rose Bedford was a child of the sea, born in a small seaport village, but bred and brought up on the sea under the tutelage of her father, her mother having died at an age when daughters have only the faintest conception of their need of maternal care. Captain Bedford was lonely; jealous of relatives who gave his child a home when he was away, and absolutely hungry for her companionship; and when he reached a point where he could no longer endure the separation he literally kidnapped her and carried her away to sea with him.

After that Rose had lived on the schooner, visiting more coast towns and cities than few girls of her age expect to see in a life time. She grew into a strong, robust, independent girl, skillful in handling anything that floated or had sails; learned at first hand all the mysteries of the sea and the lore of sailors, and during her brief sojourn on shore in various ports of the world picked up miscellaneous information that was more practical than theoretical. But the sea was her home and the old schooner her home.

When Dick Jordan met her she was as competent a navigator of a sailing craft as any man afloat, and her knowledge of seamanship had enabled her in the crisis to save

Dick paced the deck restlessly while she was gone. The lugger had dropped anchor at a safe distance from the schooner. Everything was quiet aboard her, with no evidence that another plan of attack was brewing.

"Tucu will wait until it's dark," he mused. "Then under cover of night he'll attack from several quarters. That's his plan."

When Rose appeared again he told her of his belief, and she agreed with him.

"You haven't such a thing as a searchlight aboard, I suppose?" he queried.

"No," she smiled, "schooners are not usually equipped with such modern improvements."

"Well," glancing up at the sky, "it's going to be moonlight until one or two o'clock. After that it will be black as ink. Until then I think we're safe."

"Then we'd better take turns resting," she replied practically. "I'll take the first watch."

But Dick was in no mood to sleep. He urged her to rest, pleading that he could stay awake all night without discomfort; but she was obstinate, refusing to rest unless he promised to do the same.

Their long vigil began the moment the sun set and the shadows of night began creeping across the ocean. Twilight was succeeded by the intense darkness which brought them to alert watchfulness. This lasted for half an hour until the moon came up and dispelled the gloom. It cast a broad path of white light that revealed every object almost as clearly as in the day time. The lugger lay directly in this broad streak of light, enabling them to see all that took place aboard it. It was better than a searchlight.

"If it would only last until morning," Dick remarked, "we wouldn't have much to fear in the way of a surprise."

At first they talked intermittently of practical matters, exchanging views of what they should do in certain contingencies, and then having exhausted all possible methods of attack and counterattack they lapsed into silence. For nearly an hour they watched and waited without talking, but the moonlight and the balmy witching air tingled through their nerves. Dick became conscious of a pleasant sensation in watching and waiting, with her close by his side. Once or twice he glanced in her direction, and their eyes met an instant. They smiled and returned to their silent vigilance.

"You're a plucky girl," he remarked once, breaking a long pause. "Not many could meet this situation without getting hysterical."

In the few hours before the moon disappeared, Dick learned much of her lonely life with her father on the schooner. His own life had not been of the pleasant; he was a fugitive from justice—unjustly so, but a fugitive just the same. He had been embittered by circumstances that had torn him from his little niche in life and cast him relentlessly upon a sea of adventure and restless wandering. Even in his moments of rest the shadow of the law had always poisoned what little enjoyment he had managed to pick up in his exile.

The night wore on without anything happening. Their talk was running into personal matters when a cloud drifted across the face of the moon, and temporarily darkened the sea. They started up with a jump, as if it were a sign of trouble. Dick laughed after the first shock.

"I thought the moon had gone," he said. "It's only midnight, and we have it with us a couple of hours yet."

"I'm afraid not," she replied. "Look at those clouds. A cloudy night is almost as dark as a moonless one."

"Storm clouds, aren't they?" she nodded and looked worried. "Another storm now," she murmured, "would about finish us."

A Night of Anxiety Wears Slowly On
The fear of another storm, however, was secondary to the danger threatening them from the lugger. With the sky completely overcast, the moment favorable for an attack was hastened by a couple of hours. They got up and began pacing the deck restlessly, watching and listening, peering through the gloom and halting every time a fish broke or a splash in the water attracted their attention. They talked in low, guarded voices.

"We mustn't keep together," Rose whispered finally. "We must divide the watch. I'll take the stern, and you the bow. We can meet on our rounds and report."

It was the only sensible thing to do, but Dick hated to be separated from her in the darkness. Besides, he was afraid something might happen to her when he wasn't present to lend her assistance. Suppose the Caribs chose the stern for the attack and overwhelmed her before he knew of her danger!

He made his circuit of the forward deck a little hastily and recklessly, and found himself at the meeting place long before she had completed her round. When he saw her finally emerge from the gloom, he drew a sigh of relief.

"All well?" he asked.

She nodded, and after a few moments of pause she turned to renew her best.

Either the wrong men are operating too many lunchrooms and restaurants in this country or else they're just too scared to speak to the help about things.

"I do my share of eating in middle class eating places," said Elmer Twitchell today, "and it is my conviction that most of the operators are glorified dog-wagon men. I am no chef myself but I could get up better dinners with an old broom and a bucket of switch-grease."

Elmer was quite sure. "What's become of the old-fashioned restaurant proprietor who wanted things right? Whatever happened to the chef who had pride in his work? Where is the old-fashioned bartender who knew how to mix a drink right?" he demanded.

"It's years since I have run across a proprietor who has a conscience, thinks it important to hold his trade and won't water the soup, cut down the portions more than necessary or feel upset if he discovers the potatoes have not been served cold."

"And I am not referring merely to the Grade B restaurant. Some of our best clubs are now employing cement mixers as chefs."

"I had a business man's lunch at a private club last week and I still can't figure if the manager and chef were former pig feeders or just a couple of boys who confuse human beings with seagulls."

Elmer wanted to be fair. "I admit it's hard to get foodstuffs," he concluded, "but it seems to me the boys should know what to do with it when they get it."

Ex-Pfc. Purkey in A Quonset Hut
Dear Ed:
Well now I know how it feels to live inside of a egg, or even inside half a egg. The wife and me has just got one of them Quonset huts. We already got roundshoulers and we stoop over even when standing up.

After you have been in one a day you have no more doubts about the world being round. Already I am working on a book which I will call "The Half Egg and I" or maybe "Life With Low Ceilings." The first thing you got to learn is not to get off a chair too sudden. You can tell how long a couple has lived in one of them huts by the bumps on their noggins.

A real love life is necessary on account of if a couple do any scrapping there is no neutral corners to go to after the knockdowns.

Need of Medical Personnel
More than 500 doctors and 300 dentists with 2,500 nurses have been added to the staffs of Veterans' hospitals during the past few months under a recruitment program which takes doctors and nurses from under civil service regulations and offers them more attractive employment opportunities.

This makes a total of 3,112 doctors, 545 dentists and 7,823 nurses now on duty under the Veterans' administration medical program in the department of medicine and surgery as set up by Dr. Paul R. Hawley, chief medical director.

The immediate need for dentists in VA hospitals has been met by the recruitment program but there is still need for physicians and nurses especially in neuropsychiatric and tuberculosis hospitals in the south, midwest and far west.

Questions and Answers
Q. I am a veteran of World War I. Would it be possible for me to get a cash surrender on my service insurance policy? —A. R. D., Pasadena, Calif.

A. The Veterans' administration says that upon proper execution and filing of cash surrender value of U. S. government life insurance and the return of the policy certificate to the Veterans' administration you will receive whatever cash surrender value may be payable.

Q. How much can one of those Veterans' administration appraisers charge a veteran for appraising a house the veteran wants to purchase with his G. I. loan? —J. H. A., Seattle.

A. There is no set amount. In some instances the appraisers do not make this charge, but appraisers appointed by the Veterans' administration may charge whatever fee is customary in your area. The average fee is something like $15.

Q. While I was in the navy I purchased bonds through deductions from my pay, but to this day I have never received the bonds. Can I do anything about it? —E. C., Yonkers, N. Y.

A. Write to War Bond office, Central Field Fiscal office, 4300 Goodfellow Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. Be sure and give your full name, serial number and the pay periods for which the bonds are due. Also give your correct home address.

Q. It seems to me veterans' disability pensions are too low. How do other countries compare in this country with other countries? —Mrs. S. R., Denver, Colo.

A. The United States pays higher pensions to disabled veterans than any other country. In England, Australia, Canada and New Zealand pension payments vary according to the number of dependents and the rank of the disabled veteran.

Q. I am drawing the readjustment allowance for self-employed veterans. If I don't draw the full $100 each month for the 10 1/2 months is the balance available to me after the period is up? —Jackson, Miss.

A. No. No matter how small an amount you draw each month, that is considered a full month's payment.

Q. My son has a bad-conduct discharge. He is a veteran of World War II. Is he entitled to any benefits under the G. I. bill? —Mrs. J. H., Hartford City, Ind.

A. He may be, but since he holds neither an honorable nor a dishonorable discharge, it would be necessary for him to contact his nearest Veterans' administration office for a decision as to whether he was discharged under conditions other than honorable. He has a right also to apply to his service for a revision of his discharge.

Q. I was retired from the service with retirement pay for a service-connected disability. I get $125 a month. Am I eligible for any payment from the Veterans' administration for on-the-job training? Will I lose my retirement pay if I sign up for on-the-job training? —A. R. S., Oakland, Calif.

A. No, I don't think so. You can take on-the-job training and draw the regular subsistence allowance, plus what the company for which you are working will pay you, plus your retirement pay. Suggest, however, you check with your regional Veterans' administration office.

Q. Can a member of the armed services retire on a medical pension after serving 20 years in the army and still get retirement pay? —Mrs. K. L., Anadarko, Okla.

A. The army says no. But the soldier might be able to draw a service-connected disability pension from the Veterans' administration.

Q. I have an honorable discharge from the WAVES. Am I entitled to my old job? —L. S., Sikeston, Mo.

A. Yes, providing you are qualified and make application for reinstatement.

Q. Is there any way I can find out if my husband has his pension sent to another address? —Mrs. J. H., Chelsea, Mass.

A. I know of no way. You might contact the adjudication section of your nearest Veterans' administration office, at 17 Court street, Boston, Mass.

Q. What is regarded as the best method of sending money to servicemen overseas? —E. R. W., Iowa City, Iowa.

A. The safest is probably by money order via registered mail, but be sure the address is correct.

Figures Say Few Widows Re-Wed

Court Admits Odds Against Her and They Climb Directly With Age.

WASHINGTON.—What'll you bet that a widow won't remarry?
You can take it from "The American Remarriage Table" that it goes like this:

Just about 12 out of 100 women will remarry within six years after their husbands' deaths if they're 16 to 20 years old. That means the odds are better than 1 to 7 that any one widow in that age group will take another spouse, says the Associated Press.

Almost 8 out of 100 who are 21 to 25 will remarry within six years after becoming widows, making the marrying odds on any one of them better than 1 to 11.

The odds, as you guessed, climb directly with age.

The novel tabulation was worked up in the prewar period by the Casualty Actuarial Society after the fashion of insurance companies' life expectancy tables.

May Bust Odds.
It may be that postwar widows will bust the odds out of shape one way or the other.

But the 16-man U. S. Tax Court—with only one member dissenting—has accepted it as the McCoy in its first test as court evidence.

The table made its debut in an estate tax case involving a question of how much would go to the dead man's divorced wife under an agreement whereby she was to be paid $450 a month until her death or remarriage.

That amount was to constitute a deduction from tax liability, if it could be figured.

The tax collectors said it couldn't be any guide as to whether or when a woman might remarry.

The court held otherwise, although it bore in mind that much depends in remarriage on the individual woman—looks, disposition, assets, opportunity and whatnot. So it stuck by the table, although it commented:

Perhaps Not Perfect.
"The figures... may leave much to be desired in the way of soundness and accuracy."

But—ah, yes—What about the case of widows past 25? Well, here's what the table says:

Of these 26 to 30, 6 in 100 will remarry within six years after widowhood (the table doesn't predict anything beyond the six-year stage). Translated into odds on any one, that's about 1 to 16.

Among those 31 to 35, almost 4 in 100 will remarry, making the odds 1 to 24.

At 36 to 40, the odds lengthen to 1 to 49 as only two in 100 remarry. From 40 to 45, the chances are slightly less, but at 45 to 50 they're down to 1 in 100.

Remarriage probabilities of women divorced after 50 are pretty small.

Treasure Hoard Found,
$6,000,000 Gold Cache
SINGAPORE.—A high official said that British special agents have recovered a six million dollar cache of gold, currency and jewels—including "diamonds as big as your thumbnail"—in a fabulous East Indian theft which he described as "far bigger than the theft of the Hesse crown jewels."

He said the treasure was privately owned property appropriated by Japs during the occupation of the East Indies, later recovered by Allied authorities and then stolen.

This official said a British, Java, ring composed of Batavia, Dutch Jap nationals had been smashed, but added that several "high-ranking officers" might be involved before the investigation of the theft is completed.

A British headquarters spokesman confirmed that an officer and a sergeant had been arrested in Batavia and said "there is considerable truth in press reports from Java."

I'm Starting in Business—My New Personalized Protector Policy Gives Me Exactly What I Want
What is Personalized Protection
 Young businessmen are in tune with progress. They appreciate modern methods developed from scientific study and research. Perhaps that's why so many are turning to the new Woodmen Accident Protector plan of accident and health insurance. Dollar for dollar, it's the best buy in insurance today.
 Personalized Protection—the tailor-made, custom-built plan of accident and health coverage has been developed from over half a century of experience and research.
 Ask your Woodmen Accident Agent.
