Highs Tip Cedar Grove in Non-League Contest

Before resuming conference play after the holiday vacation, Kewaskum high school's basketball team took on the strong Cedar Grove quint at the latter place Tuesday night in a non-league affair. Cedar Grove, with a fine record to date, was defeated, 47 to 25, by the Indians. Kewaskum returned to conference play Friday night with Rosendale in town to oppose them.

Edwards and Tessar led a 25 point first half attack to put the Indians ahead of Cedar Grove, 25 to 18. However, a determined Grove squad cut-fought Kewaskum to creep up to within 3 points as the third period ended. McElhatton netted 7 of the 13 points Kewaskum made in the last quarter to put the game on ice. Wierman, Bilgo and Tessar played stellar defensive ball to practically control the rebounds which was an important factor in such a small hall.

Navis was high point man for Cedar Grove with 15 points.

In the preliminary game Kewaskum's seconds trounced the Cedar Grove B's, 15 to 3. Grove made all 3 of its points on free throws, failing to make a single basket.

County 16th in Salaries Paid to Rural Teachers

A survey of salaries of the one room rural teachers made by the state superintendent of schools indicates that Washington county is 16th in the list of counties. The medium salary of rural teachers in Washington county is $191.67. In wages paid rural teachers, counties such as Columbia, Dane, Dodge, Fond du Lac, Green, Ozaukee, Kenosha, LaFayette, Milwaukee, Polk, Rock, Vernon, Walworth, Waukesha and Winnebago exceed Washington county in salaries paid rural teachers.

The summary of permit teachers indicates that Washington county has 23 permit teachers. Thirty-four counties in this state have more permit teachers than Washington county. Two counties in the state have 100% of their teachers permit teachers. Another county has 65% of its teachers permit teachers and several counties of the state have over half of their teachers permit teachers. Washington county is among the leaders in salaries paid state graded school teachers. Only two counties in the state exceed Washington county in such salaries.

This, in a measure, will account for a statement made by Roy Thienfeldt, state graded school supervisor, after visiting the state graded schools of the county last year. He indicated, at that time, that Washington county's state graded schools measured up to the best in southeastern Wisconsin.

With the two forwards and center sinking them from all sides the Legion ran their score to 50 by the end of the third quarter while the losers brought theirs to 33. Activities Booked for March of Dimes Benefit

An appeal to the community to continue making liberal contributions to the 1917 March of Dimes—annual fund raising of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—so that a $2,000,000 national goal will be met was made this week by B. D. Rice, chairman of the campaign committee of the foundation's North Washington County chapter.

Feature activity to date in behalf of the drive in the local chapter area, Rice reported, will be a basketball doubleheader next Tuesday, Jan. 11, at the McLane school gymnasium, West Bend, the entire proceeds of which will be turned over to the chapter March of Dimes fund. The school is co-operating by donating the use of the gym free of charge.

Headlining the doubleheader will be a game between Schacht's West Bend city team of the Land of Lakes Major league and the fast Manitowoc Rockets, one of the better independent basketball teams in the state. The opening game will bring to the floor the West Bend Lithians of the Land of Rivers league and an opponent as yet to be announced.

The Schachts currently stand alone at the top of the Lakes Major league standings with a record of seven consecutive victories without a loss. They have stamped themselves as a classy ball club. The Rockets are led by a brilliant center, Fessler, and have other flashy players to make them an outstanding cage organization.

The Manitowoc aggregation Saturday lost a close game to the Peoria Caterpillar Tractors, 28-24, who beat the Benders, West Bend's pro team, Sunday by a score of 51-45. The Rockets hold an earlier decision over the Schachts, and as a result the latter will be out to gain revenge.

Admission to this doubleheader will be 30 cents for adults and 25 cents for children, and basketball fans in the North Washington County chapter area are being urged to turn out in large numbers to pack the smoldering McLane gym. Not only will they see two thrilling contests by so doing, but they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they have contributed a share in the relentless war against poliomyelitis.

In addition to disclosing the arrangements for this benefit doubleheader, Rice also announced that most of the community chairmen in the chapter area have reported to him their plans for the 1917 fund raising campaign and that these include card parties, dances, and other sporting events.

The chairman revealed some public spirited persons in the area have already sent sizable checks to him as contributions to the drive, and he urged proprietors of business places having coin collectors on hand during the drive to place them in the most conspicuous spot possible and to urge customers and patrons to make contributions by calling attention to the boxes.

Rice urged all campaign chairmen in the chapter area to contact him immediately if in need of coin collectors or for any other help they may require, and asked that those chairmen who have not already done so should advise him at once concerning their plans during the drive period, Jan. 15-30, in order that he can inform state headquarters of what is being done locally.

The general chairman declared he pledged the chapter campaign committee to redoubled efforts following receipt of a letter from Basil O'Connor, president of the national foundation, stressing the crucial importance of the 1917 drive. One of the principal aims, he said, is to refill the empty treasuries of local chapters.

"During the 1916 epidemic," Rice said, "the $4,000,000 epidemic reserve fund of the national foundation, previously considered adequate, was wiped out completely by November in aiding chapters, including ours. By the end of the year approximately an additional $1,500,000 earmarked for research had to be diverted for emergency aid to fulfill the pledge that 'no one stricken by polio need go without care for lack of funds.'"

He pointed out that one-half of all money contributed remains in the chapters where given. Thus, if the minimum goal of $24,000,000 is attained, the local chapters will have $12,000,000 to use for local aid to those who have been stricken. Asserting that this community, as every other in the nation, must be adequately prepared for any emergency the future may bring, Rice concluded:

"Let us keep up the fine record we have made in past campaigns in North Washington county and, if possible, let us double our contributions now so we can be prepared. We cannot gamble with the safety of our loved ones. By giving generously now we will avoid future self-reproach that we gave too little and too late when next summer's epidemics strike."

New French Law Hits at Sale of Forged Paintings

 Furthermore, the seller usually gives the purchaser a written guarantee that he may return the painting within six months if he doubts its authenticity.

Portland Vase Smashed, Yet Increases in Value

The British Museum in London recently purchased, through a private bequest, the Portland Vase which it had on loan from the Portland family for 135 years, Collier's reports. Ten inches in height and made of blue glass engraved with white figures, this vase was found in a tomb near Rome in the 18th century.
 Moreover, in 1845, a lunatic smashed it into some 250 pieces and, although put together by experts, it has since been imperfect. Yet the vase has increased steadily in value.
 The price paid for the vase by the museum was not disclosed. However, in 1923, the owner refused an offer of $148,000 for it.

Meat for Menus
 Low-priced lamb shoulder may be used for these lamb pieces prepared on skewers. They broil quickly and make a palatable dinner when you want to cook in a jiffy.
 Recent visits to the market have convinced me that most education about meat cookery was forgotten during rationing and shortages. Most of us worked ourselves into a sort of rut about meats and now find that we need a brush-up course on meat cookery.
 Meat should satisfy and do so it must be properly prepared. If broiling is what the cut needs, make sure your temperature is high enough to do the job decently. But if it's braising, make sure the heat is slow and steady and the cooking moist.
 Here are a few of the things you ought to remember when buying meat. First of all, become acquainted with a variety of cuts so that you can better manage your budget and give the family much-needed menu variety. Ask the market man for advice. He can give you tips on specials and help you get more for your money.
 If you have meats boned at the market, always ask for the bones to take home. They're wonderful for flavoring soups, sauces and vegetables. When you purchase large cuts, have some steaks or chops removed for another meal. There won't be so many leftovers, and you will be able to get more variety from the large cuts.

 Baked Custard Caramel Sauce
 *Recipe given.

onion, pepper and celery lightly in drippings, then add garlic, curry powder, sauce, broth and meat. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Mix flour and salt with 1/4 cup cold water and stir mixture to thicken. Serve curry in boiled rice ring, which has been prepared meanwhile in double boiler.
 A well prepared beef or veal tongue is delightful. Those who have learned to eat it reserve it for special occasions. Long slow cooking such as is received in braising is designated for preparing this delectable dish.

Braised Tongue, Vegetable Gravy. (Serves 12)
 1 4-pound tongue, fresh
 Water
 2 teaspoons salt
 1/2 cup diced onions
 1 cup diced carrots
 3/4 cup diced celery
 3 tablespoons flour
 1 1/2 cups liquid in which tongue was cooked
 1 teaspoon salt
 3/4 teaspoon pepper

Wash tongue and cover with water. Add salt, cover and simmer until tender, allowing 4 hours. Trim and remove skin. Slice tongue and place in pan with vegetables. Make a smooth paste of flour and water, adding liquid and seasonings. Pour sauce over tongue and vegetables. Simmer for 1 hour. Serve with potatoes boiled in their jackets.
 An interesting variation to the meat course comes in the way of lamb en brochette, pieces of inexpensive meat placed on skewers. These are broiled and go beautifully with a dinner of baked, whipped potatoes, buttered lima beans, a vegetable salad and fruit whip for dessert.

Spicy Pot Roast. (Serves 8 to 10)
 3-pound pot roast (neck, chuck, brisket, heel of round or rump)
 2 cups canned tomatoes
 3 onions, sliced
 Salt and pepper
 1/2 teaspoon whole cloves
 1 stick cinnamon
 1/2 teaspoon marjoram
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 1/2 cup vinegar
 Brown pot roast on all sides. Add tomatoes, onions and seasonings. Pour vinegar over all. Cover closely and simmer 3 to 4 hours, or until tender.
 When meat is tender, place on hot platter. Strain liquid which was around the meat and thicken for gravy.

Lamb en Brochette. (Serves 6)
 2 pounds lamb shoulder, cut in 1-inch cubes
 1 cup vinegar
 1 teaspoon celery salt
 1 tablespoon mustard
 1 tablespoon brown sugar
 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
 Salt and pepper
 Cover lamb with vinegar, seasoned with celery salt, mustard, brown sugar and poultry seasoning. Let stand 1 hour. Thread onto skewers and place on a rack in a preheated broiler oven. Brown well on all sides and broil. Season with salt and pepper.
 For something a little different, try this stuffed shoulder of lamb.
Fruit-Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb.
 1 lamb shoulder, boned
 2 cups bread crumbs
 6 cooked apricots, diced
 6 cooked prunes, diced
 1 small orange, chopped
 1 beaten egg
 Salt and pepper
 Have butcher remove bone from lamb shoulder and sew it on three sides, leaving the fourth open for dressing. Make a dressing of the bread crumbs, fruits and beaten egg. Pile this into cavity. Skewer or sew the edges together. Place the lamb shoulder on a rack in an open broiling pan and roast in a 300-degree oven, allowing 30 to 35 minutes to the pound.

Never throw away shank ends of ham or bones from the roast. Use these for making soup, a cupful of which is very good for dinner beginners on cool nights. Broth made from these may also be used for gravies and sauces.
 Never throw out meat leftovers. They may be combined with gravy, bread crumbs, noodles or rice and used for stuffing green peppers.
 Bacon leftover from breakfast is too good to discard. Break it into bits and pieces and use for flavoring the dinner vegetable, soup or salad.
 Serve cubed steaks when you want to save time preparing the meat course. These are pieces of round steak cut on a machine which cuts the tendons and makes for tender meat. These may be broiled or pan-fried.
 Always refrigerate meat as soon as you receive it. Otherwise it picks up warm, moist air which seriously impairs its keeping quality.
 Slice leftover pork thin and serve it in hot sandwiches the next day. Heat the remaining gravy and pour it over the sliced meat on toasted white or whole wheat bread.

Roomier
 "But it's so small," protested the prospective tenant who was inspecting an apartment.
 "Never mind," said the landlord. "We'll make it larger for you; we'll scrape off the wallpaper."
Sounds Reasonable
 Wife—How helpless you men are! What would you do if there were no women to sew on your buttons for you?
 Husband—Has it occurred to you, my dear, that if there were no women we men would need no buttons?
All Kinds of Trials
 "In times of trial," asked the preacher, "what brings us the greatest comfort?"
 And from the back row an answering voice, "An acquittal."
Just Testing
 The small town barber was more willing than expert. After being shaved, the customer asked for a drink of water. "Are you thirsty, sir?" asked the barber.
 "No," answered the customer, weakly, "I just want to see if my face holds water!"
No Sales Yet
 Tramp—Have you got any old cast-off husband's clothes?
 Lady at the door—No; we're still living together.
The Bitter Truth
 Mrs. Black—So you think Millie insulted you?
 Mrs. Green—Yes, all I did was ask her where her string of pearls came from, and she said oysters!
That Explains It
 A visitor to the senate gallery in Washington was accompanied by his small son. The little boy watched when the session was called to order.
 "Why did the minister pray for all those men, Pop?" he asked later.
 "He didn't. He looked them over and prayed for the country."
Social Fission
 Film—Did that girl call you a bum?
 Flam—No, she called me "bomb"; said she didn't know me from Atom.
Stranded in Air
 Old Lady (asking about airplanes)—But what if your engine stops in the air? What happens?
 Pilot—That's exactly the trouble. There are four men over France with their engines stopped right now. They can't get down and they're starving to death.

The Once Over by H.I. Phillips
 U. N. Is Offered a Home

New York will fight to hold U. N. if it takes Rockefeller's last nickel. John D. offered an $8,500,000 six-block water-front site to keep the United Nations in the big city. Aladdin has stepped into the picture in U. N.'s housing crisis. The only question is whether there is anybody in the United Nations who can veto a lamp.
 From Flushing Meadow to a Rockefeller center in one blueprint is quite a travelogue. One minute U. N. seemed like a forlorn G. I. searching for an unoccupied Quonset. The next minute he was having six blocks of New York's choice real estate handed him on a gold platter. NO cover charge.

If there were long months when Miss United Nations thought New York was cold to her, she now must realize she is being suddenly pursued with $8,500,000 worth of love and six blocks of unmortgaged passion.

Pa Knickerbocker might have let her go to California, but to pass up Gotham for Philadelphia . . . never!

Pa knew that a city that could hold as many five-star attractions as it had always been able to hold would look cheap getting a rejection slip from an organization with a global audience.

The proposed site has many advantages. It is located where the diplomats may see a poorhouse from one window, East Side life from another, the very heart of New York from another and some society residential sectors from another. If the view doesn't give them a democratic intermingling of scenic effects, characters and types of living, nothing will.

The rich, the poor, the middle classes, the "haves and the have nots"; the limousine and the subway sets, the people who have the veto and the people who merely have the corner delicatessen and Grogan's bar . . . they're all visible there on a clear day.

The six-block area now is mostly the habitat of meat packers and slaughterers and is known as the beef zone. There are those who insist U. N. possession won't change that name.

Personally we are not too sure about a super-panacea center in the heart of Manhattan as a brotherly love influence. It seems to us that the world organization needs an atmosphere of calm, leisure and dignity rather than one of speed, traffic jams, general jostling and high-pressure chaos. We would say it would do better with a background less like big business and card-index efficiency and more like Bethlehem and stary night.

Men engaged in the greatest job of history, the bringing of peace and the brotherhood of man to a blitzed and baffled globe need something more than express elevators, 38 floors of de luxe offices, special lighting, adjacency to the subway and an opportunity to lunch at the Busy Bee cafe between debates.

Still a home is a home and it's nothing to sneeze at. And as Grant said, "Let us love peace"—every eight million dollars will help.

GOING UP!
 The U. N. on a winter's day
 Fled the meadow, sweet with hay;
 So swiftly was the lady's pace
 She found a home near Beekman place.

The U. N. subcommittee's enthusiasm for the Rockefeller offer of a home is so hilarious that it may be called "Hooray-dio City."
 On the other hand if those scraps between United Nations' diplomats keep up, the headquarters may have to be tagged "Sock-A-Peller Center."

MESSAGE FROM
PETTIGREW THE PENGUIN
 dear sir colon all I hope is that with the united nations functioning in a great skyscraper center the dove of peace doesn't get caught in a revolving door period yours comma pettigrew the penguin.

We assume names for the new U. N. center will be desired, and the first that come to mind include Amity Arms and Concord Towers.
AND THEY SAY LAWYERS
ARE AGENTS OF THE COURT!
 Defense counsel in one of the most brutal crimes in Long Island history is making a great point in court of an issue over whether or not the police spoke roughly to a man who killed a mother and then assaulted and shot her daughter. We presume that in such a case the officers should have served cocktails and then invited the prisoner to discuss the crime on a round of golf.

Juicing Citrus Fruits
 For easier juicing of citrus fruits, particularly lemons, roll the fruit under the pressure of the palm of the hand before cutting it, food specialists suggest. The rolling pressure breaks down and loosens the connective tissues inside the fruit, making the juice run more freely when it is squeezed or reamed. Fruit at room temperature is somewhat easier to juice than that which has been chilled in the refrigerator because it is not quite so firm.

Spoils Decrease
 Counterfeits cheated the American public out of only $48,000 in 1942, compared with spoils of $771,000 per year between 1933 and 1936, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. A counterfeit bill often can be detected by comparing it with a genuine bill of the same denomination, paying special attention to the quality of the portrait, which is usually fine in a genuine bill. Counterfeit coins usually feel greasy or slippery.

 Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not set as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
 Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, stinging of diaphragm, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, feeling of nervousness and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are scanty urine, scanty or too frequent urination.

Colorful Old West Lives Again In Omaha Historical Museum

Railroad Exhibit Is Visual Record Of Pioneer Days

WNU Features.
OMAHA, NEB.—The roaring, hectic days of the Old West are not dead—they still live in all their flamboyant glory in the Union Pacific's historical museum located in the company's headquarters building here.

Fascinating documents, maps, relics, weapons, furniture, books, household articles, farm implements, personal possessions and other mementos of the men and events which carved an empire out of a wilderness comprise a dramatic and graphic visual record of the struggles, tragedies and triumphs of the pioneer West.

HISTORY WAS MADE . . . With the rifles, saddle and other equipment included in this general view of a section of the historical museum.

Portray Progress.
 Interwoven with the faded relics and ghosts of long-dead pioneers and heroes of the West are exhibits portraying the epic record in the building of the Union Pacific, which played an instrumental role in the westward expansion of the empire.

Shunning away from the dusty and moldering atmosphere of the typical "museum idea," all the exhibits are designed to preserve all the color and adventure which prevailed in the pioneer days.

Since this valuable historical collection was opened to the public in 1939, approximately 200,000 visitors representing every state in the union and 41 foreign countries have registered at the museum.

Reminisce on Careers.
 Bearded oldsters wander through the exhibits musing over items which recall their own picturesque careers when they—and the West—were young. In contrast are school children and street urchins, intrigued by the drama in the winging of the West. Side by side come scholars and business men, housewives and railroad executives, while during war years many a serviceman discovered that browsing around the exhibits provided an ideal means of whiling away the seemingly endless wait for trains.

Curator of the museum is Mrs. Ruth C. Hamilton, former school teacher who has been associated with the railroad for many years.

Lauds Woman's Role.
 True to her clan, Mrs. Hamilton admits that her one regret is that the museum collections are almost wholly a memorial to the great men of the past.

"No one remembers those anonymous women who ranked with their men as courageous pioneers," she complains.

To museum visitors, however, she can point out a few household articles which serve as mute reminders that even while heroes conquered the West, someone had to cook and sew, rear children and help with the farming.

Modern-day housewives stare uncomprehendingly at such primitive devices as candle molds, a sauerkraut stomper, a broom of hickory splints, a spinning wheel and reel dating back to 1859. Typical of the hardships which the pioneer woman endured are exhibits of crude farm implements—an awkward flail, clumsy hoe and handmade barley fork.

The old iron Dutch oven and grill in the museum once were the only cooking utensils owned by one Mormon family, which carried them across the plains on the historic migration from Nauvoo, Ill., to Utah.

Recall Indian Raids.
 Many souvenirs of the constant guerrilla warfare between the hostile Indians and workmen who pushed the rails ever westward also are on display. Supplementing the tomahawks and arrows is the handiwork of Indian women who engaged in more peaceful pursuits than their warriors. Included in the display are fine baskets and beadwork, tobacco pouches, medicine bags, amulets and other articles fashioned by Sioux women and decorated with embroidery of flattened porcupine quills dyed with roots and berries.

Wild-eyed youngsters gaze in awe at the pistols which spat flame and lead in the hectic early days but which now rest peacefully in the museum's display cases.

Many Guns Shown.
 A huge 60 horse pistol is on display, along with flintlocks dating back to the American revolution and pepper-box types, derringers, ball and cap and muzzle-loading types. In one case are guns taken from train robbers while another case contains bullet molds, cartridge loaders, powder flasks and horns, shot pouches and other pieces of equipment used in pistol shooting.

A rare old book showing the trails from Texas to Ellsworth, Kas., one of the roaring "cow towns" of the '70s, and a collection of branding irons highlight the mementos of the day of the cattleman and cowboy.

But symbols of a still earlier day when the buffalo and bison roamed the western plains by the millions are the watch and scissors used by "Old Jim" Bridger and a money belt and autographed picture of "Buffalo Bill" Cody.

THE WILD AND WOOLLY WEST . . . is re-created for goggle-eyed youngsters in this display of guns and knives.

The epic migration of pioneers over the Mormon trail, Oregon trail and other pathways to the West is represented by many relics. Attracting major interest is an original map issued to westbound pioneers, showing every place across the prairies where food could be obtained and the location of blacksmiths.

Rare and original photographs of the Great Emancipator hold the spotlight in an extensive Lincoln collection. A replica of the Lincoln funeral car also is displayed.

Tribute to Rails.
 With the building of the West irrevocably linked with the development of rail transportation, the museum features mementos in the history of railroading.

Principal item is a yellowed telegram bearing a single sentence, "You can make affidavit of completion of road to Promontory Summit." This message, sent by Grenville M. Dodge, chief engineer, to Oliver Ames, then president of the U. P., signified completion of construction work, and on the following day the Golden Spike was driven to join the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific as the first transcontinental railroad linking the East and West.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

CASTING Janet Blair in a co-starring role in "The Fabulous Dorseys" was a smart move on the part of Producer Charles R. Rogers. The role is that of a beautiful girl with singing and dancing talent who's a neighbor of the Dorseys in Pennsylvania. Well—Janet hails from Altoona, Pa., and emerged into the limelight as a band singer before coming to Hollywood. Incidentally, the Dorseys say it's lucky they were such fighters, because otherwise they might not have been so successful. They worked together as long as they could, trying to direct one band jointly. The break came, Tommy went his way alone, Jimmy went his—result, two top-notch bands.

Tom Conway is fast becoming the top whodunit actor in show business. He plays "Sherlock Holmes" on ABC Saturday nights, and has just completed his tenth mystery picture, "The Falcon's Adventure." If Basil Rathbone carries out his plan to forsake the screen, Conway may be chosen to succeed him as the cinema "Sherlock." And all without trading on his relationship to his brother, George Sanders.

Kay Georcey, wife of Groucho Marx, has been signed to appear with her husband in a comedy dance routine for the Sam Coslow production, "Cocacabana," a forthcoming United Artists release, with Carmen Miranda, Andy Russell, Steve Cochran and Gloria Jean.

Ken Niles, announcer for "Suspense," has been signed to play the role of the attorney in Robert Mitchum's RKO picture, "Out of the Past." You may be familiar with the story under the really good original title, which was "Build My Galloos High."

Lowell Thomas was all set to make teaching his life work, till he took a trip to Alaska and made some unusual films of primitive mining communities. Later, teaching at Princeton, he lectured a few times, using his films as illustrations. It proved to be so profitable that he abandoned teaching, and he's been traveling the world and getting paid for it ever since.

Andrew Toombs, character actor who crashed films because of his bald head, has played more than 200 bald-head roles in pictures. But he gets the break of a lifetime in Warner's Technicolor musical, "My Wild Irish Rose"—wears a flowing head of hair, appropriately parted in the middle, for his role of a bartender of the Gay Nineties. Incidentally, Dennis Morgan's doing road work to keep in trim for the picture; he hasn't done a strenuous vocal chore since "The Desert Song," and finds singing more taxing than merely making love.

Chet Lauck and Tuffy Goff ("Lum" and "Abner") have a new protegee. She's Ruth Parrot, who played a lady barber on their program. Her performance interested 20th Century-Fox talent scouts, and she landed a role in "Mother Wore Tights." Now Chet and Tuffy say they can hardly wait for the picture to be released, so that they can begin talking bows for discovering her in the first place.

Andy Devine's been signed to a long-term contract by Republic, after being with Universal for a number of years. His latest Universal picture is Walter Wanger's "Canyon Passage," his first at Republic will be "Beils of San Angelo," a Western.

Hiram Brown, producer-director of the CBS "Inner Sanctum," got the idea for the program six years ago when he heard a squeaking door in a radio sound effects department. He acquired the door, and has presented the weekly shriek and shudder show ever since!

ODDS AND ENDS—Betty Hutton's baby, Lindsay Diana, has a hairnet lined with pink satin that was originally used to decorate an elaborate set in Betty's most recent film, "Perils of Pauline." . . . Marjorie Vickers made her screen debut as a corpse in a horror picture—and now she's considered one of the most beautiful young women in Hollywood. . . . William Vrande, formerly the 200-pound fat boy in educational comedies, is portraying a thin love-lorn sailor in "Time Out of Mind." . . . Raymond Massey's signed for five years with Warner's. . . . Joan Fontaine's motor duster in "The Emperor's Waltz" is an exact copy of one worn by Archduchess Marie Josepha.

For her role of the gypsy fortune teller in Paramount's "Golden Earrings" Marlene Dietrich went without shoes—even walked around the studio barefoot to harden her feet for "chase" scenes she and Ray Milland did, escaping Nazi pursuers.

Whenever you hear a harmonica being played on "Crime Doctor" it's little Nat Canton who's playing it. He's heard in a variety of parts, but he's so good on the harmonica that author Max Marcin writes him a musical role occasionally.

AROUND THE HOUSE

To restore and preserve cane seats treat lightly with linseed oil. Be sure all excess oil has been wiped away.

Cloth-covered suitcases can be restored to newness by covering the fabric with a coat of high grade lacquer.

To prevent windows from sticking, rub a little floor wax in the window sash groove.

To remove the metal base of an electric light bulb that has broken in the socket, push a cork into the base and turn it.

Winter window washing is made a lot easier by adding denatured alcohol to the water to prevent freezing. Wipe quickly with crushed tissue paper.

Here's a handy idea that makes it easy for you to fit snaps smoothly and perfectly to a garment. Sew all the snaps on one side first, then rub a little chalk over them and press them lightly on the opposite side. The white chalk marks left on the garment indicate where other halves of the snaps should be sewed.

Use top-stitching to emphasize lines that are important to the design of a dress, suit, or coat. This can be effectively combined with lapped seams and should always be done by machine to make sure stitches are uniform.

To remove stubborn particles of dirt which settle in moldings, cracks and other hard to get at corners use a paint brush that has been dipped into thick suds.

Still Second Rating

The touring company had never been of the best, and when they reached the stage of playing to the little country theater, and found that even they left at the end of the first act, it was decided to break up. Two of the actors set out to work their way back to New York.

They were lucky enough to get a passage on a barge, and when passing through a lock they overheard this conversation:

"What you got on board, Jim?"

"Load of fertilizer and a couple of actors, Bert."

The two actors looked at each other in silence, then sighed deeply.

"Cyril," said one, "shall we never top the bill?"

Blindness No Handicap, Industrious Ohio Man Proves

PAINESVILLE, OHIO.—Although blind since he was seven, Robert Bixel is one of the most industrious men in this community. After working throughout the week at a rubber plant, he continues the pace on Sunday by rushing off to church, where he is an evangelist and singer.

Not content with these regular activities, Bixel utilizes a guide dog to help him around the community to give chiropractic treatments, repair chairs and sell greeting cards. At home he mows the lawn, fires the furnace and helps with household tasks.

An ardent sportsman, Bixel rides horseback, goes fishing and coon hunting. On coon hunts he asks only for a stout club about four feet in length and "I'll get along all right by myself."

Blind since seven years of age as a result of being struck by a stone thrown by a playmate, Bixel refuses to acknowledge the handicap. He now plans to learn typing to permit him to keep up with his immense amount of correspondence.

Formerly the regular preacher at Riverview church in nearby Novelty, Ohio, Bixel turned the pastor over to a brother-in-law and now acts as a traveling evangelist.

Varied Surplus Items Test WAA Ingenuity

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Apparently there's no limit to the surplus material which War Assets Administration is called on to handle.

First there was an island, then a model dairy farm complete with herd on the west coast. Later WAA found itself saddled with surplus horses in the Midwest and left-over panties and brassieres in the South.

Now the New Orleans office reports it has in safekeeping 99 black diamonds and a quantity of pure silver. The diamonds—they're not the kind you'd give your best girl—are't for sale, however. Used in precision machinery, they're still classed as strategic material.

But WAA is selling the silver—36,000 bars of it—which was recovered from a recently demolished magnesium plant operated at Lake Charles, La., as a defense industry during the war.

College Coeds Are Free Baby Sitters

CORVALLIS, ORE.—This college town has become a parents' paradise since Oregon State college coeds have started serving as free baby sitters. The baby sitters are provided by the college Red Cross chapters, the only regulation limiting the service to 10 p. m. on Saturdays and 12:30 a. m. on Saturdays. No charge is made for the coed's services.

'Sweet Tooth' Costs $3.70 Per Individual

WASHINGTON.—To satisfy its "sweet tooth," the nation spent $20 million dollars for candy—on a wholesale price basis—during the first 10 months of the year. The figure was announced by the commerce department as the total of candy manufacturers' sales. No estimate of the final cost at the candy counters was available. The outlay averaged more than $3.70 per person.

Mobile Accountants Aid Small Business

PITTSBURGH, PA.—Motorized bookkeepers are ready to ride to the rescue of harassed business men of Pittsburgh. The itinerant bookkeepers, Robert Rebel and Gerard Wichman, have equipped a small trailer with the necessary office machines to help out the small candy store proprietor or grocer who finds tax records and bookkeeping too much of a financial snarl.

Monthly Burglaries Incense Householder

FALL RIVER, MASS.—"It's three times and out," Urban Leblac hopes after his home has been broken into three times within three months. The first time thieves pried open a lock and took family valuables and a pound of butter. Exactly a month later prowlers broke in again but left empty-handed. A month later, but two days early, the house was entered again.

SAVE USED KITCHEN FATS

One of the reasons given for the present soap shortage is because of the much smaller amounts used in kitchen fats that are being turned in by housewives. Another reason advanced is the big reduction of the lower grades of tallow ordinarily received from packing houses and rendering plants. Most of us can do very little about the latter reason, but all of us can help save used fats. Such used fats should be sold at local meat markets.

HEALTH HINTS for LIVESTOCK

PROS AND CONS ON "BANGS" VACCINATION

In animal medicine, just as in human medicine, there are always some people who foolishly believe that if

Brucellosis vaccination is not a "cure all."

A small application of some remedy is a good thing, a large application would be even better.

Unfortunately, that seems to have happened with respect to vaccination against brucellosis of cattle. When veterinarians began to obtain good results with vaccinating calves against this disease, some cattle owners heard about it and decided to go in and vaccinate everything on the place—regardless of whether vaccination was indicated or not. Naturally, some results were just the opposite of what was hoped for.

But, even worse, some owners also jumped to the conclusion that if brucellosis vaccination would work in the case of calves, it would work, too, for adult cattle. The results in some of these cases have been even more serious. It is time that the facts were stated clearly—that vaccination against brucellosis (either of calves or adult animals) should never be done without first having a thorough herd check-up, a study of the individual problem, and a weighing of the pros and cons as applied to the individual, local condition.

The place where vaccination has been of greatest value, thus far, is in the so-called "problem" herds, where it has been impossible to eliminate brucellosis by the test-and-slaughter method. In such cases, adult vaccination may sometimes be used along with calving vaccination to "soften" the losses caused by the disease. Vaccination has also been helpful, sometimes, when an abortion "storm" occurs. On the negative side is the fact that adult vaccination makes cattle positive to the blood test for brucellosis. If one is selling raw milk, such milk may be barred from city sale. The best answer to brucellosis seems to depend on individual circumstances and the findings of the local veterinarian.

How Your Television "Commercial" Will Look

To enhance an impressive list of manufacturing "firsts," Chevrolet now engages in another pioneering venture as the first motor car manufacturer to sponsor a regular commercial television show. Admittedly an exploratory venture to evaluate the possibilities of television as an advertising medium, these broadcasts were the first employing live talent to be sponsored by any automobile producer. Four weekly shows were staged by Chevrolet and broadcast through the facilities of the American Broadcasting Company's television network. The shows were televised at the Dumont Studios in New York for the three stations currently teamed in the ABC television network. Shown above is a scene from the second of the series, a half-hour program titled "Roads to Romance."

serve all this natural goodness rigid standards of cleanliness must be observed.

Clipping the udders, flanks, belly and tail of all dairy cows is recognized throughout the dairy world as a big aid in the production of the highest quality milk.

Most cows have a heavy coat of hair when they are brought into the barn in the fall. This makes it difficult to prepare them for milking. Clipping makes the job of producing clean, high quality milk much easier and also adds greatly to the appearance of the herd.

The saving in time required to get the herd ready for milking will more than take care of the cost involved. Clean, attractive cows also give the dairyman more pride in his herd and encourages him to do a better job of dairy production.

seed potatoes passed Wisconsin field inspection this year, plant pathologists at the College of Agriculture report. This acreage will supply "pedigreed" seed of 15 outstanding varieties for next spring's planting.

Potatoes for seed are grown mostly in about 10 northern counties. Each field is inspected by men from the university at least twice during the growing season, and the crop is checked once more after it is harvested and in the bin.

A final inspection is made by the state department of agriculture at shipping time.

Most common seed varieties produced this year were Chippewa and Cobble. There were also good-sized acreages of Triumph, Sebago, and Katahdin and Russet Rural.

Other varieties grown for certified seed include Red Warba, Sequoia, Menomonee, Pontiac, Russet Burbank, Russet Sebago, White Rose, Erie and White Rural.

Anyone wishing the names of certified seed potato growers can obtain them from the agricultural extension office, post office building, West Bend.

LAST LOVER

By Helen Topping Miller

When Richard McFarlane disappeared during World War I, he left his wife, Julia, to raise their two children with the aid of her father-in-law, John L. McFarlane. After a lapse of 25 years, with no word as to whether Richard is dead or alive, Julia is beset with new worries when Ric, now 27, and serving in World War II, shows obvious signs of inheriting his father's recklessness, and Jill, 26, falls in love with Lieut. Spang Gordon. Jill learns from Spang that Ric is paying attention to a divorce of questionable character and goes to camp to investigate. Ric tells her he is on duty and unable to see her. However, she meets Spang again at the officers' club.

CHAPTER VII

"On Saturday night you can see every officer in this place, except the poor guys who get stuck with duty. Every single one, anyway," Lieutenant Stark said, "and about half the married men."

"Even old Cyanide," Lieutenant Crawford put in. "He's over there by the window, polluting the atmosphere."

Jill followed the movement of Spang's eyes and saw a tall captain sitting alone. He had reddish hair, turning gray, a leathery skin, cold blue eyes and a grim mouth under a stiff, clipped mustache.

"Go easy, Joe, the enemy is listening," Stark warned.

"You mean that captain? Who is he?" Jill asked.

"His name is Mackey," Stark said in a low voice.

"The boys call him Old Cyanide," Spang explained, "because he has a corrosive tongue and you need a gas-mask when he turns loose a barrage of language on you."

"Old army man," supplied Crawford. "Efficient as hell and just as popular. He was a major before Pearl Harbor, over in the Islands, and they busted him after December seventh. Naturally he's sore, and he takes it out on anybody who gets within ten feet of him."

"He looks lonely," Jill said. "He seems to have collected a few decorations."

"Battle stuff," Spang said. "Last war."

"He'd be handsome if he didn't have such a bitter face," Jill mused. "He does have a very smart military air."

The three young men simultaneously snapped their shoulders back and straightened their ties, then laughed together.

"Get hold of yourself, Joe, she wasn't even looking at you."

"Suppose I have to break my neck now to get to be a captain."

"Make it a major while you're at it. They all go for majors."

"But it takes a B.G. to really mow 'em down! Boy, I can see that star riding my shoulder now."

"One lonesome little star? Couldn't possibly accept less than three."

They were nice lads, with their sunburned good-natured faces and the stark, white breadth of forehead that marked the line of their garrison caps. Jill laughed with them, waited while they wrangled amiably over the check.

Spang said, "Take off, you fellows. I've got a date with Jill. You really didn't want to catch that bus, did you, Jill?"

"It isn't terribly important," she admitted, smiling at him. "You love me, Spang—you know you love me. It shows in your eyes. It's in your voice."

Stark and Crawford said, "Good night, Miss McFarlane," as they all went out into the warm, star-spangled night. The three of them snapped to salute, and Jill looked up and saw Captain Mackey returning the salute, and studying them all with his cool, sardonic eyes.

Jill Meets Mrs. Calvert

Those eyes seemed to follow her as she walked away with Spang, and she felt vaguely sorry for that tall, lonely, grim man. There had been something wistful in his face, something a little sad. Men could be cruel to each other, she decided, and the grimness of military cruelty was probably the most deadly of all. And yet sex-malice was always attributed to women.

"That captain reminds me of some one," she said to Spang, "but I can't seem to remember who it is."

"Heydrich or Himmler, maybe."

"Oh, no, no one like that. He hasn't a vicious face. He looked a bit—pathetic, to me."

"You're a soft-hearted girl. Old Cyanide's as tough as they make 'em, and the army makes 'em plenty tough. He thinks all the young officers are upstarts and ninety-day wonders, and he resented being sent here, I've been told. So he makes every man under him live hard, and also he's a man that other officers distrust, and that's a nasty spot to be in, in this man's war."

"I still think there are chinks in his steel armor. Didn't you have another engagement, Spang? Don't let me upset your plans."

"I hadn't any plans, except to kill another Saturday night. And even if I had had, they'd be unimportant now that you're here."

So she glowed again, and the world was a lovely place, even with the sodden cloud of war hanging over it and dimming all the future. She would not let it dim the present.

"There's the officer's club. But it's mostly a big poker game on Saturday nights. I know a little spot out this way where the floor is pretty good. Like dancing?"

"Oh, I'd love dancing."

The place, neon-lighted, hid its daytime dinginess under a glitter of gaiety. Swing music beat and shrilled as they walked through a dimly lighted room where uniformed men with girls opposite them sat in all the shadowy booths. The dance floor was crowded with more uniforms, gay summer frocks, and bright curls with flowers and bows perched on them.

"Let's pry the corners," Spang said, slipping his arm around her. "More breathing space there."

The dancing did not matter. Nothing mattered except that Spang's arm was around her, the silver wings on his breast close to her cheek, her hand curled in his big palm. She could hear her own heart beating, lifting happily, because she was so terribly in love.

Spang pushed her big hat back. "Can't see your eyes."

His own were deep and warm and smiling at her. His head bent close. Was he keeping his feelings sternly controlled because, as Julia had said, he had nothing to offer a woman but uncertainty or dread or grief? Couldn't he see that nothing mattered, not the future, for what was a future if you had a lovely present to remember when it came? This code of nobility that men adhered to where women were concerned was pure selfishness, Jill decided. Chivalry and gallantry had been invented by men for their own personal satisfaction, and not because they made life happier for women.

Now she had to keep her eyes cool because Spang was looking into them, but what if all the aching hunger in her heart welled up into them, naive and naked and defenseless, for him to see? So she said, quickly, "It's so warm in here I'm practically swooning. Let's get something cool to drink, shall we?"

"I doubt if we can find a table. But we can try," Spang led her back into the dim room where heads leaned close in every space.

She clutched his arm suddenly. There, in a booth, his dark handsome head leaned close to a curled and silvered blonde, was Ric!

Spang had seen him, too. His face darkened, and he took her arm to lead her past, but Jill tingled and stiffened with sudden anger. She marched directly up to the startled pair, and instantly Ric leaped up and stood stiffly, until Spang made a little gesture and muttered something.

The blonde woman—she wasn't a girl, Jill saw—lifted carefully arched eyebrows.

"How do you do, Lieutenant?" she said, smoothly.

Ric made the introductions awkwardly. "My sister, Julia McFarlane, Mrs. Calvert. And may I present Lieutenant Gordon?"

Jill looked briefly, her throat tight and aching, as she fought back the young rage with which she had blasted her brother so many times.

"Nice you could get a pass, Ric," she said coldly, "even if you didn't take the trouble to let me know."

"You were out," Ric fumbled, "I thought perhaps you'd gone home."

"I haven't gone home. I'll be here in the morning, and I'll expect to see you then."

"I don't know about tomorrow. I might be on duty," Ric was angry now, too.

"At least you'll telephone me," Jill said severely. "Nice to have seen you, Mrs. Calvert."

A Fulfillment Of a Dream

Spang made a curt little bow, and they walked away. Jill was trembling a little, troubled by this silly fury that had shaken her.

"He lied to me," she said, when they were out in the night again.

"But why do I care? Why should it matter to me if he preferred being with that woman instead of me? I suppose it's because I hate seeing some one who belongs to me doing a cheap, dishonest trick. Spang, you didn't tell me she was pretty. It's the same one, isn't it—the woman you told me about?"

"Yes, that's the one. And I don't think she's pretty."

Jill warmed a bit at that, and her tautness lessened. They were walking aimlessly now, the blare and glitter of the dance spot behind them.

"She isn't young, though," she said spitefully.

"She's been around," Spang said.

"She knows what the score is."

"But what on earth does she want with Ric? I didn't tell Mother, Spang. I'd hoped it might be just a piece of foolishness that would pass. I hoped, maybe Ric would be shipped out, and it would all end, and Mother needn't know. She dotes on Ric, so I couldn't bear to hurt and worry her, when perhaps it was just a temporary folly."

"Ric won't be shipped out for a month, at least. No more quotas coming up. But when he gets into officer's training, he won't have any time for foolishness."

"Let's walk all the way, shall we? Or are you awfully tired?"

"No, I like walking. I'm glad you came down, Jill." Spang gathered her arm closer. "Because I may be leaving soon. I've asked for my transfer to active duty. I don't like this desk stuff."

"Soon?" Jill repeated in a small, thin voice.

"We never know in this army. But an older man can do what I'm doing here, and things are shaping up fast. I want to be in them."

"You mean you want to fly?"

"I'm a flier, Jill. And our air force is getting to be a magnificent thing, and I want to be a part of it. I'll have to get back into training—I want to learn to handle heavy stuff."

"I suppose it has to be that way. I'll miss you, Spang. I hope you'll miss me a little."

Spang cleared his throat. "I'll miss you like the devil. But this mess will be over sometime, a year or two, I hope. Jill—wait a minute. . . . They were on a dimly lighted street, a shabby street, where a tall billboard made a dark rectangle of shadow. Spang drew her back further into the shadow, bent her head back, and kissed her swiftly on the lips. "Keep that for me till I come back," he said huskily.

"I will!" Jill whispered, quivering with breathless happiness from head to foot. "Oh, Spang, I will!"

They were silent all the way back to the hotel, but Jill's blood was a tumult, a singing. This was it! This was real. He did care. It was in the pressure of his fingers on her arm, in his eyes as they came into the lighted lobby, in his uncertain smile as he prodded the elevator button. She ached to cry out, "I love you, Spang!" But not yet. Not till he spoke the magic word himself.

He said, "Good night, Jill."

"You'll call me tomorrow morning? I'll see you again?"

Not too eagerly! Slow, Jill McFarlane.

"Do my best," he said, and flicked a little salute at her as the elevator door opened and he turned away.

Jill groped into the elevator. Through the rose-colored fog that enveloped her she was aware of some one else standing there. It was cold-eyed captain Spang had called "Old Cyanide." He was looking at her keenly, and when she stopped at her floor he got out, too, and as she turned to go down the corridor he said, "Miss McFarlane?"

Jill stopped, puzzled.

"You are Miss McFarlane, aren't you?"

"Yes, I am Julia McFarlane."

"I am Roger Mackey. Pardon me for speaking to you, but I once had some friends named McFarlane—in Tennessee."

Captain Mackey Asks a Question

"I live in Tennessee," she had been right about him. He did look lonely and bewildered; the hardness, the bitterness the young officers had spoken of softened as she smiled at her.

"There was a girl with hair like yours, and her name was Julia, too," he said.

"My mother, perhaps. She was Julia McFarlane, she married Richard McFarlane, a sort of fourth cousin, I think."

"It was a long time ago," he said, "but you reminded me of that Julia McFarlane I knew, and then I heard your name spoken, so I took the liberty of speaking to you. Your mother is quite well?"

"Oh, yes, she's very well. And still very young and lovely looking, we think. I'll be glad to remember you to her, Captain Mackey."

"I doubt if she will remember me. It was all a very long time ago. Before the other war, in fact. But she was one of those women you do not easily forget. Good night, Miss McFarlane."

"Good night, Captain Mackey."

He reminded her of some one, why couldn't she think who it was? She liked him. He wasn't grim at all.

But she forgot him quickly, and it was weeks before she thought of him again, because she was in love and Spang had kissed her. Life was wonderful. Thin, lemon-tinted dawn was creeping into the east before she fell asleep.

Jill waited all morning, wandering around the room, frowning at the telephone, but neither Ric nor Spang called. She grew more impatient by the moment, though she knew that military duty for officers or enlisted men gave little thought to personal desires, and little freedom during the day. But this was Sunday. Ric was avoiding her, of course. And now she would have to go home and make up some vague, comforting lies for her mother, and old John. I would look at her with eyes like jet augers and probably corner her somewhere later and ask her what was going wrong with Ric.

Expect Little Immediate Change in Financial Policy

WITH the holiday season over and official Washington winding up the most brilliant social season since before the war, replete with diplomatic receptions, White House functions, state dinners and various other social gatherings, the new 80th congress buckled down to the actual business of setting up a policy and adopting the legislation to make that policy function for the nation during the next two years.

Most of the bickering as to committee assignments and other problems attendant to the reorganization of congress under the new congressional reorganization act have been settled, at least bottled-up for the time being, with the new GOP leadership firmly in the saddle. And it would be nice to report that the spirit of the Christmas season has left congress with a feeling of peace on earth to men of good will. However, that would not be objective reporting.

Whatever the reaction to the President's state of the union message, Democrats and Republicans alike, can be sure that this message, unlike some previous ones, represents the President's own thinking. His proposals reflect his own viewpoints and they are not the ideas and ideals of the New Deal which President Truman inherited and with which he had to go along up until the time the people cast overboard this theory of government at the recent election.

The new congressional reorganization act, if the GOP leadership follows the spirit and letter of the law, is providing some obstacles, apparently not foreseen by some of the newly elected or reelected congressmen, to the carrying out of their pet ideas. For instance, Rep. John Taber, New York, is bent upon arbitrarily slashing some nine billion dollars from the federal budget. At the same time, Rep. Harold Knutson of Minnesota is determined to bring about a 20 per cent reduction in individual income taxes as well as corresponding cuts in corporation taxes and abolishment of the various excise taxes.

Outgo Tied to Income

This would be fairly easy under the old procedure which has been in effect since about 1865. The house ways and means and the house appropriations committee simply would meet and, with the overwhelming GOP majority, would just vote the cut through. Not so, however, under the new act. It is based on a scientific study of government and not on the basis of levying taxes without regard to appropriations, or vice versa. The new law provides that the house appropriations and the house ways and means committee, together with the senate finance and appropriations committees, shall meet jointly at the beginning of the session, that they shall consider the President's budget recommendations and report a fiscal year budget for the ensuing fiscal year, including the estimated overall federal receipts and expenditures for such year. . . . that such a report shall contain a recommendation for a maximum amount to be appropriated and an amount to be reserved for deficiencies. . . . that if the report estimates the proposed expenditures will be less than the estimated government tax receipts, then there shall be a recommendation for a reduction in the public debt. . . . that this report shall be made by February 15. . . . that the report from the joint committee shall be accompanied by a concurrent resolution adopting such budget and fixing the maximum amount to be appropriated for expenditure. . . . that if the report shows that estimated expenditures shall be greater than receipts, the concurrent resolution "shall include" a section substantially as follows: "That it is the sense of congress that the public debt shall be increased in an amount equal to the amount by which the estimated expenditures for the ensuing fiscal year exceed the estimated receipts, such amount being $"

Balanced Budget Dubious

So under this law all appropriations and expenditures must be considered in the light of the government's needs, as outlined in the President's budget, and not by the desire of any congressman, however worth while.

The size of the public debt is fixed as congress goes along.

So whether congress can balance the budget at this session is a matter for conjecture. Despite many demands by the new Republican majority for an immediate balance, Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio, considered the deepest financial thinker in the senate, said, as quoted in the Congressional Record of May 14, 1945:

"It seems to me that the most conservative government cannot hope to balance the budget until approximately three years after the end of the war with Japan."

'In Strait-Jacket'

The senate Republican committee on committees is having trouble settling many of the controversies over choice committee assignments.

The committee found, it was reported by Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, that it had been "practically put into a straitjacket" by the congressional reorganization act. This statute calls for the reduction of the present 33 standing committees to 15. In general, it appeared, the Republicans rule committees by a majority of only one member.

FARM MANAGEMENT ASS'N CLOSES SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The seventeen Washington county farmers who during the past year were members of the farm management association met the forepart of this week with the association fieldman, Willis Freitag. Farm account records were completed, income tax statements prepared, and the farm records started for the new year.

The association will begin its second year with a somewhat larger membership. Eight new members have requested this service to date. This brings the membership up to twenty-five. The fieldman can serve a possible two or three more members. The maximum membership in any one county is twenty-eight. Hence, any farmer interested in becoming a member should immediately contact the agricultural extension office, post office building, West Bend, for further information.

EAST CENTRAL BREEDERS ASS'N MEMBERS, ATTENTION

Many Washington county dairymen who are members of the East Central Breeders' association are not aware of the fact that telephone calls for artificial insemination service may be made on Sunday as well as on other days of the week.

On Sunday all telephone calls for breeding service should be made with the Slinger telephone central operator. On week days all calls are to be made to telephone number 213, Hartford exchange.

The only exception to the above statements is that no breeding service is available on the following five holidays, namely: Easter Sunday, Memorial day (May 30), July 4th, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Anyone wishing to have pedigrees of the herd sires now owned by the East Central Breeders' association may obtain them from the agricultural extension office, post office building, West Bend.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our beloved mother, Mrs. Catherine Schurr, who passed away Jan. 6, 1946:

We lost our soul's companion,
A life linked with our own,
And day by day we miss her more
As we walk through life alone.

You shared our joy and sorrow,
And smoothed our troubled brow,
You always chased the cloud away,
We could not forget you now.

Gone from this earth of sorrow and care,
Gone into the light that shines so fair,
Resting those hands that did their best,
Gone dear mother, gone to rest.

What is home without our mother?
When your loving smile no longer greets the coming of our feet.

Dearest mother, how we miss you
Since from earth you passed away.

And our hearts are aching sorely
As we think of you each day.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they blot out never,
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

With loving remembrance,
Louella E. Schurr,
Mr. and Mrs. Herman
Belger and Russell

IN MEMORY

In loving tribute to a beautiful memory of my husband, Lester J. Uelmen, who was killed in action in France two years ago, January 13, 1945:

The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never
The memories of those happy days
That once we spent together.

Memories are treasures no one can steal.

Death is a heartache nothing can heal;
Some may forget you, now that you are gone
But I will remember, no matter how long.

Those who knew him all will know,
How much I lost two years ago.
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
I never thought his death so near.

And only those who have lost can tell,
The pains of parting without a farewell.

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
What beautiful memories he left behind.

My loved one lost in war,
Deeply missed by his wife Betty.

IN LOVING MEMORY

In memory of Mrs. Gustave Zumach, who died ten years ago, January 13, 1937:

We have only your memory, dear mother,

To remember our whole life through;
But the sweetness will linger forever,
As we treasure the image of you,
Treasured thoughts of one so dear,
Often living a silent tear.

As time and memory both shall last,
From our hearts you'll never pass,
Until memory fades and life departs,
You'll live forever in our hearts.

Sadly missed by Gustave Zumach and children.

SWINE ERYSIPELAS IS NOW IN ALL STATES

One of America's newest swine diseases—erysipelas—is rapidly becoming one of its worst. In 1939 it was reported in 28 states. Today, erysipelas is causing several million dollars in hog losses and exists in every state in the Union. In some areas it has become so implanted in the soil that authorities fear it will be a permanent menace to swine production.

Note the enlarged joints, typical of chronic type of erysipelas.

Perhaps the most difficult problem about coping with swine erysipelas is the fact that it often resembles hog cholera, and in some of its aspects it may resemble other swine diseases.

Symptoms include sudden deaths, arched backs, lameness, high fever, and unwillingness of the hogs to move around. Due to the complexity of the symptoms, a veterinary diagnosis is generally necessary to determine whether erysipelas or some other condition is causing the losses. The disease occurs in two forms. The quick type causes immediate deaths and moves rapidly through the drove. The lingering type causes enlarged joints and sometimes sloughing of the skin.

Fortunately, a very effective vaccine has been developed—and this is proving extremely valuable in coping with erysipelas in areas where it has become a problem. The important feature about use of the vaccine is that it should be given as soon as possible after the pigs are farrowed, because erysipelas very commonly strikes pigs when they are only a few days old. Cement floors, from farrowing until weaning time, have also aided in the control of the disease. If hogs do start dying of erysipelas, the carcasses should be disposed of promptly, because rats and other vermin can act as spreaders and can menace hog production in the entire community.
