$100,000 Drive for Community Hospital at West Bend Mar. 2-8

Campaign Biggest Ever Launched in Area; Funds Needed to Protect Health and Life

"Protect health and life—support your community hospital." The people of West Bend and surrounding communities will have the opportunity of fulfilling that slogan March 2 to 8, inclusive, when the biggest, most humanitarian drive ever undertaken in this area of the county will be undertaken—a drive to raise $100,000 to help pay a share in a hospital that has grown into a million dollar institution.

The fact is that it is absolutely necessary to raise $100,000 in this community to help pay for a hospital that is ideally located in West Bend as a central or focal point to conveniently serve ALL people in this area who may require its services whether they reside in the city of West Bend or in the communities and farming territory surrounding West Bend.

That the hospital is eager and willing to serve all who find it necessary to come to it for care was emphasized by Sister Superior Lea at a meeting of the campaign fund advisory committee at the hospital Monday evening.

During the course of the drive, its progress will be indicated daily on a huge thermometer. This will be erected on the big West Bend theatre sign through the co-operation of August C. Berkholz, owner and operator of the theatre.

In addition, the names of all contributors will be contained on a plaque which will be given a place of prominence in the hospital. This plaque will have the names of ALL contributors on it—whether the donations be large or small.

At the meeting Monday, Sister Lea was questioned about costs and income at the hospital. She revealed that the most expensive room costs $9 a day, as compared with $15 for a similar room elsewhere in the city.

The sister told that the average of patients using the hospital runs about 50 per cent from outside the city of West Bend. In fact, she related, one neighboring community, Kewaskum sends as high as 55 per cent of its patients here, now, when formerly it sent them to another institution.

Baltus Roifs, co-ordinating chairman for the drive, reported that the campaign is already under way, with many making contributions through the work of the initial gifts committee and others making their gift donations directly at the hospital.

Immunization Program to be Held in County Schools

Immunization against diphtheria and whooping cough will be given to school children at a series of clinics starting March 4, days 8:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., county nurse announced this week.

Sponsored by the county health committee with the co-operation of local physicians, protection against whooping cough and diphtheria is being offered to kindergarten, first grade and second grade children. Diphtheria toxoid alone will be offered to children between the ages of six and eleven who have not been protected by their family physician.

No doubt many children have received the protection against whooping cough and diphtheria by their family doctor during their first year, the time when it is needed most. At school age a booster dose may be given to insure added immunity to these diseases.

Please bring the child to the center nearest you. A doctor will be there to give the injection. You will be asked to return in four weeks for the second injection and in another four weeks for the final protection. A charge of 50 cents will be made at the time of the injection.

Residents of the city of West Bend will be offered this protection in the doctors' offices beginning March 3 through March 8.

The schedule for county residents is as follows: Monday, March 3—9:00 to 9:30 a. m., Kewaskum high school, Dr. Edwards; 10:15 to 10:45 a. m., Fillmore state graded school, Dr. Edwards; 11:15 to 11:45 a. m., Newburg public school, Dr. Weber; 1:30 to 2:00 p. m., Barton state graded school, Dr. Driessel.

Tuesday, March 4—9:30 a. m., Jackson state graded school, Dr. Foley; 10:00 to 10:30 a. m., German-town state graded school, Dr. Dehmel; 11:30 to 12:00 noon, Richfield state graded school, Dr. Kern.

Wednesday, March 5—9:00 to 10:00 a. m., Hartford city hall, Drs. Monroe and Saehne; 11:00 to 11:30 a. m., Slinger high school, Dr. Prefontaine; 1:00 to 1:30 p. m., Sacred Heart school, Alenton, Dr. Fisher.

PARISH CARD PARTY A card party, sponsored by the Ladies' Altar society of Holy Trinity church, Kewaskum, will be held in the parish parlors Sunday, March 9, starting at 8 p. m. All games played. Everyone invited.

March 2, Roifs announced that the campaign fund headquarters will be located in the common council chamber on the second floor of the West Bend Public Library building, as previously announced. The telephone number at the city hall for campaign purposes is 77-78, and there will be a worker on full time duty there.

The headquarters of Roifs will remain where they now are, in Room 214, Central building, West Bend. His telephone number there is 42.

It was revealed at the advisors' board meeting Monday that all committees are working and that a total of about 450 persons will be actively engaged in the campaign. All these were to have met at the McLane school Wednesday evening to receive final instructions on the drive.

The workers will distribute beautiful brochures containing vital information and beautiful pictures of the hospital, and every individual contacted by a worker will receive one of these informative booklets. Any person who does not get one may procure one at campaign headquarters or at the hospital, where they will be dispensed as souvenirs.

The publicity committee has blanketed the area served by the hospital with posters concerned with the drive, and additional publicity is being devoted to it through the showing of trailers at the West Bend and Merna theatres, with the gracious co-operation of the management.

N. Fondy Noses Out Highs, 33-32, in Dist. Tourney Semi-finals

A long, desperate point shot by North Fondy, 33-32, in the final seconds of play allowed the big North Fondy du Lac Orioles to nose out the Kewaskum Indians by one point, 33 to 32, in the semi-finals of the WIAA district basketball tournament at North Fondy Friday night before 1,000 frantic, partisan, pleading spectators.

Joe Kewaskum led by three points with less than two minutes to play only to be edged out by North Fondy's spectacular, lucky finish. That one point margin cost Kewaskum the tourney championship as the Orioles went on to easily defeat Winneconne in the finals Saturday, 41-28. The North Fondy-Kewaskum contest was the main game of the tourney as it was expected that either of the two could easily beat the other finalist, Winneconne.

After the first quarter Kewaskum's defending champions led all the way until Booth's desperate fling with less than 20 seconds to play actually stole victory from their grasp. The howling, North Fondy spectators crowded all around the floor went wild in the closing minute and did everything but rush out onto the floor. This had the Kewaskum players bewildered and they seemed lost in the closing seconds.

The victory should have been Kewaskum's but luck just wouldn't have it that way. The Indians missed an unusually large number of shots, many of them set-ups although they were forced to shoot fast by the much bigger Orioles. During the regular season Edwards and Bilgo, accurate shooting guards, did the shooting from out on the floor but in this game Coach Mitchell changed his offense to spring McElhatton loose for shots. Mac had many set shots but couldn't hit, missing repeatedly. The team as a whole, with the exception of Bilgo, did not play a brand of ball as good as usual. Faulty officiating, especially by one official, Emerson, took a number of points away from Kewaskum. Twice he would not allow baskets made by the Indians and his calling on fouls, travelling, etc. was very questionable. North Fondy seemingly was given the breaks.

Tessar, with 10 points, Wiernman with 9 and Bilgo with 7 paced Kewaskum, while Leftoy Smith with 9 and Jones and Mehn with 7 each were best for the winners. Kewaskum led at the half, 16 to 13.

North Fondy, which had the advantage of their home floor, advanced to a playoff with Kohler, winner of the Plymouth district meet. This game was played at Plymouth Wednesday night and North Fondy sneaked by again, upsetting favored Kohler, 29-27. The Orioles now advance to the sectional meet at Waupun next week.

Agriculture Faces Test in England

British Laborites Propose Drastic Farm Regulation

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON—One by one British is nationalizing her basic industries.

What about farming? Agriculture was Britain's largest industry right up to 1939 but before the war Britain produced less than a third of the food and feed the islands consumed.

By 1943 they were producing 70 per cent of the wartime ration for their own people, plus the Allied armies and refugees, within their borders.

Government control was strict but it worked. And the British with their socialist government do not intend to let it slip back to regulation can stop it. To that end a bill is now before parliament which would bring the American farmer down to Washington with a pitchfork in each hand.

The "two pillars" of the new government policy are "stability and efficiency." The agriculture bill would create stability by guaranteeing prices. It provides:

(1) That the prices and other market factors of wheat, barley, oats, rye, potatoes and sugar beets be fixed in the year before these crops are to be harvested.

(2) Prices and other factors affecting fat stock, milk and eggs, to be announced for a period of one year and also minimum prices and other conditions, including quantities, for a further period of two years.

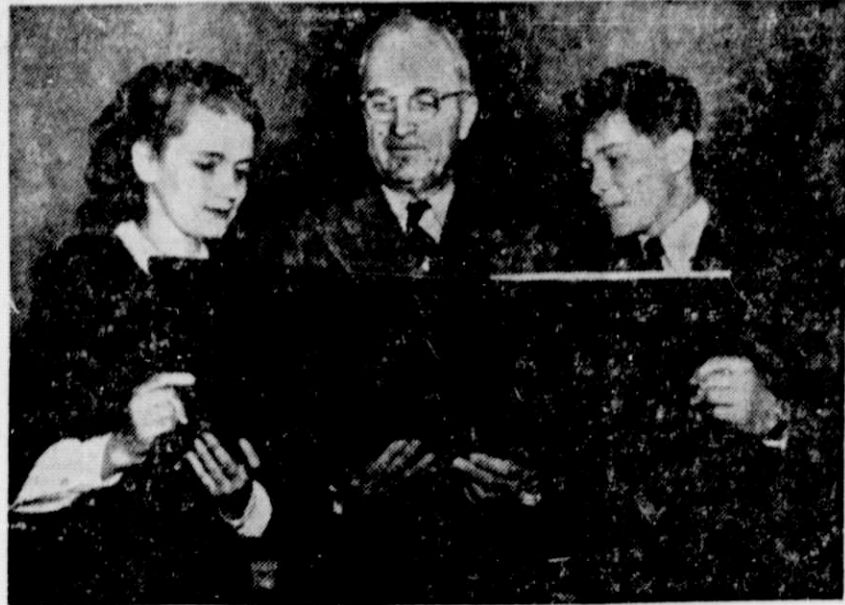

There is planning and regulation for you! "Stability, however," says Britain's minister of agriculture, "is not enough." And then he goes after efficiency with foot, horse and gun.

good husbandry require the farmer to maintain his holding at a reasonable standard of efficient production, bearing in mind cleanliness of the land, maintenance of fertility and freedom from disease and pests. The rules of good estate management require the landowner to maintain his estate with adequate buildings, drainage, ditches and hedges, so that the occupier can be an efficient producer."

And that is not merely suggested in the bill, it is required. The farmer or the landowner will live up to these conditions or he will lose his land. The first step against an offender is to place them under formal supervision — after they have had a chance to state their case.

The next step will be to issue specific instructions as to what is to be done—again giving the offender the opportunity to state his case. If the offender is a landowner and the expense of carrying out the orders exceeds the annual rent of the land, he can appeal to the agricultural land tribunal.

The third step would be dispossession in 12 months or sooner. A landowner would have to submit a

Mystery of Whooping Crane

As a whooping crane detective I am not worth a whoop. This perphers is natural since I have no credentials as a naturalist. But in the course of leading the Fish and Wild Life service on a wild crane chase I encountered some interesting facts.

While I was in Florida I heard some convincing descriptions of whooping cranes, said to be found on a nearby plantation. I knew the whooping crane rapidly was becoming extinct and I had never heard of any of them having been seen in Florida so, when I returned to Washington, I immediately communicated my "discovery" to Mr. Lincoln, ornithologist of the Fish and Wild Life service of the department of the interior.

It wasn't long before I heard from my wife that as a result of further consultation with the Audubon Bird Book and a very short conversation with Kelsey, there was unanimous agreement that the cranes were not whoopers but must be sandhills. It's an old story to the service but they take no chances and run down all clues. Even if the only proof of "discovery" has is the earnest insistence that: "I know it was a whoopin' crane because I heard him a'whoopin'."

Part of the reason for these meticulous inquiries is that the service is at present conducting a survey in hope of locating the nesting place of the whooping cranes. This spot never has been found, but it almost certainly is somewhere in Canada.

the wings, has black legs and yellow bill and a bare red crown.

A little less than two years ago National Audubon society approached the government and offered to furnish funds for the working out of a joint survey, the purpose of which was to locate the breeding grounds and other points where the cranes gathered in order to arrange for their further protection. The one place in the United States where cranes are known to pass their summers is the national wild life refuge near Corpus Christi, Tex.

No nest of a whooping crane is known to have been seen within 20 years or perhaps longer. The birds have been observed passing over the Dakotas, Manitoba and Saskatchewan and it is taken for granted that somewhere north of these points the nesting grounds are located. None has been discovered although one government plane and a plane belonging to a collaborator (a collaborator is a person paid by some private institution but who is permitted to use department of the interior facilities) have flown over many thousands of square miles in this area.

Converting Life Insurance
Veterans' Service Bureau has received numerous questions concerning national service life insurance, how to convert when the first five-year level plan expires, and the cost of reconversion.

So for the information of all, here are some facts relative to this insurance for veterans of World War II.

The term plan provides only for insurance protection at a fixed rate and has no cash, loan or paid-up value. It provides the maximum amount of temporary protection at the lowest cost. These policies were originally issued on the five-year level, but the term has been extended for three more years, or eight years in all. Hence all term policies issued prior to January 1, 1946, may be continued in their original form for eight years from the date of issue.

Term policies issued after December 31, 1945, must be converted into permanent insurance within five years. Veterans' administration urges veterans to continue their term insurance during their readjustment to civilian life and to convert only after they have become reestablished and know what their financial capabilities and insurance needs will be.

National service life insurance bears the lowest possible premium rates on all forms because the government bears the entire cost of administration and pays all losses traceable to the extra hazard of military or naval service. Every dollar in premiums is held in trust and invested at interest for eventual return in benefits to policy holders or their beneficiaries.

Approximately three million veterans have kept their insurance in force after discharge. More than ten million have let their insurance lapse, but they can be reinstated by paying only two monthly premiums and meeting health requirements. Terminal leave bonds may be used to pay premiums.

LAST LOVER

By Helen Topping Miller

Jill McFarlane, whose father, Richard, disappeared in World War I, falls in love with Lieut. Spang Gordon. She is upset to find that her brother, Ric, has fallen in love with a divorcee older than himself. Jill is thrown from her horse and hospitalized. Richard visits her mother, Julia, and tells her he has assumed the name of Captain Mackey. Julia determines to keep the truth from her children who have been raised to regard their father as a hero fallen in battle. She realizes too late that she loves Dave Patterson, an old family friend. Richard tells Ric he knew his father, and threatens Sandra with exposure of an illegal divorce if she doesn't leave the boy alone.

CHAPTER XIV

"Let her work this out herself," argued John I. "You can't protect her forever. You've got your own problems."

"And they," Julia sighed, "have no answers in the back of the book." John I. blew his breath out harshly, like a walrus. "How do you know? You won't even look in the back of the book."

"Because I know that what I'm looking for isn't there, John I. It's locked up in my heart, and I think my heart died long ago."

"It was your common sense that died!"

"You're right. I've never argued that you weren't right where Richard was concerned. But I do owe Ric and Jill something, if only to repay them for giving them Richard for their father."

The old man's eyes flashed under his stormy eyebrows. "You talk to Jill about it. You see what she says. She'll tell you to get a divorce in a minute."

"I can't talk to Jill. You know I can't. I can't tear down what little she has of Richard. It would be a wicked thing to do."

"You're taking a big risk, Dooley," John I. said solemnly. "I've warned you, but you're a stubborn woman. I know that fellow better than you do."

She knew too well the risk she took, knew that undoubtedly she was being a fatuous optimist in assuming that Richard would stay away now that he had made the break, now that she knew that he had not been a casualty of the war; every time a car drove in at the gate her heart stopped beating, every time the telephone rang when she was in the house she hurried to answer it, fearing Mamie's sly curiosity, fearing revelation for Jill.

What she would do if Richard came again was a nightmare question that kept dread at her throat like icy fingers. She lay awake at night, tormented by imaginary scenes.

"(Jill, this is your father. He loved you and all of us so little that he stayed away from us and hid behind an assumed name for twenty-five years.")

What would Jill's reaction be? Richard had that devilish, engaging, deadly charm. He had it still, though time had hardened him, turned his fair skin to weather-worn leather, made his eyes cold and searching. Even despising him as she had, when he walked back into her life so casually, Julia had felt again the working of that charm. It was the lack in him, the hidden thing that was afraid, that evaded and fled from responsibility, the little boy in him searching for his lost mother, the homesick lad in him that pulled at the mother-instinct in every woman.

Would Jill hate her father, or answering that curious attraction, the impelling force that psychologists had a name for, would she turn to him and despise her mother for thrusting him out of her life?

It must not happen—but suppose it did happen? Was she being fair to Jill, keeping her in ignorance, unprepared, defenseless? Her hope was that Richard would be transferred overseas before the great harm she feared could be done. But eventually she would see him. Ultimately she must make some decision. She could not go on, avoiding the issue, deferring action forever.

"When Jill is married it won't matter so much," she told herself. "When Ric has found himself, and they are both settled."

For her own sake she asked nothing, only peace. She was giving up Dave, but she was used to renunciation. The pain was not so poignant when your hair began to gray, when you stopped asking eager questions of life, expecting favors, found content in dullness, in the calm that fell when the lash of unrest stopped its goading swing. She told herself this, over and over, drugging down the ache with patience, with a dogged routine of tasks that must be done.

Dave had not come again to Buzard's Hill, since that day she had sobbed out her torment on his shoulder. Jill remarked about it.

"What's wrong between you and Dave? I hope you didn't blame Dave because I was so awkward I couldn't stick in a saddle?"

"Don't be silly. Of course I didn't blame Dave. He's probably very busy. He's on the ration board, and they've had a great deal to do lately."

Waiting for a Letter From Spang

"They don't work nights, do they?"

"I suspect that they do, being volunteers and having their own businesses to attend to in the daytime. Shall I call Dave and ask him to come over?"

"If only that could be the way out of her unhappy dilemma! If only Dave would fall in love with Jill, make the girl love him in return! A flinching protest in her heart told her that she did not wish for that, not really. But it would be for the solution of so much that troubled her."

"No, don't call him. Don't you recall all those lectures you used to deliver to me, about how much men resented being called up and conscripted? Don't abandon your principles now."

"Dave's different. He's merely an old friend."

"Jill crooked her mouth dryly. 'You're very naive, Julia, my love! Do you usually weep on the bosoms of merely old friends? When your child takes a nose-dive into a briar patch?"

"I'd have wept on any bosom that was handy, then," Julia said with determined airiness, hoping that her face wasn't burning. "I was afraid you'd broken your back. John I. has been doggedly carting away the rocks in the lane ever since. Be sweet to your grandfather, Jill, he's been badly worried about you."

"Did I put that curious, hunted look in his eyes? I've been wondering just what went on here anyway while I was at the hospital. You and Grandfather both look as though you'd seen ghosts. If Ric were overseas I'd suspect that you were hiding something grim from me, sparing your tender, weakened daughter from a shock. Don't ever do that, Dooley. Dooley—"

She jerked erect suddenly, her eyes black wells of terror. "Dooley, it isn't Spang? You haven't heard—you aren't hiding something from me?"

She laughed and patted her cheek. "No, foolish woman, we aren't hiding anything about Spang. I've heard nothing from Spang—only what you've told me."

"I thought he might have crashed—and you were trying to keep me from finding out. But if a letter came for me—Ric might hear something—"

"If a letter came for you, I should give it to you. Even if I thought it was from Ric." She handed him the crumpled page. "You'd better read it, John I. Read it and tell me what you do."

The old man pulled a worn spectacle case from his back pocket, set a second pair of spectacles astride his nose. He dropped down beside her, and his lips moved slowly as he read the letter.

Dear Dooley (Ric had written): Sorry for this abrupt letter, but this is it. I'm taking off, don't know where. Transferred to some lousy school or other. Very sudden. No explanation, of course. Not in this army. I meant to try for a pass and see you myself. I'd rather have you this than had to write it. Dooley, I'm married. She's the sweetest, loveliest girl I've ever met. Her name is Sandra, and life has been hard on her, but she has been brave and sweet through it all. That's what makes it so hard now. I can't take care of her or protect her. I can't even have her with me, not till I rate something better than a private. I can't even feed her. And Sandra's my wife. I was going to bring her home, but what's out now, so all I can do is send her to you with a prayer. Be good to her, Mother. She's swell, and you're so swell you'll get along fine, I know. She'll wire you when to meet her. Tell the others hello. And don't worry about me. I'll be all right.

Love, RIC.

Jill's eyes were blazing, Jill's face was white as a sheet. John I. was doggedly pretending to eat his supper, but Julia—after putting butter on a biscuit three times and slopping coffee on her napkin because her hands shook so—had given up. Mamie was in and out of the front door, hearing everything.

Jill said, "Oh, the fool! The poor deluded fool!"

Julia said, "If you knew about this girl, Jill, you should have told us. Something might have been done to stop this mad marriage."

"Girl—she's no girl! I know it's the same one. And I suppose it's my fault. I should have told you, but I didn't want to worry you. I thought Ric would be shipped out, and it would all blow over. She must have worked fast. Dooley, she's a grass widow, she's years older than Ric. Spang was worrying about it when I was down there."

"But you don't actually know that this is the woman, Jill. Her name is Sandra, Ric says."

"There's another thing that makes my nights hideous," Jill burrowed her head into the curve of her mother's arm. "What if he does come through safe, and then when he gets back he doesn't want me? It could happen. They change. War changes them."

Julia turned to the window, knowing well that an involuntary spasm had drained and tightened her face. But her voice came, level and quietly controlled. "Other women have lived through that, too, Jill."

"I couldn't. I'd die of humiliation. I'd drown myself in the cow-pound, where it's deep and muddy."

"Oh, no, you wouldn't. You'd hold your head high and never show how badly you were hurt, and after a while you'd love some one else, some one worthy to be loved."

"You say that as though you meant it. Dorothy Dix would be proud of you. But you don't mean it, of course. No woman could get over a thing like that. She might put on a good act, but she'd never stop hurting deep inside because she'd given her heart away and got only a ragged wound instead. If Spang discards me, I'm not going to be nobly brave. I'm going to be tough and break men's hearts and laugh. I'm going to throw away every moral scruple. You watch and see!"

"If I believed any of that, I'd be alarmed. But I don't believe it. You're my child."

"I had two parents, didn't I? You always assume that I'm a miniature of you, Dooley. I'm not. There's a desperate kind of thing in me that you don't know about. Something you wouldn't even understand. Jill's eyes were big and filled with wildness. "I could hurt people. I could hurt myself. That's the kind of McFarlane I am. Not your kind at all."

Julia moved away. This was no time for tenderness. Mild words would only irritate Jill

"I respect your individuality," she said. "You're not a child now, you're a person. What you do is your own responsibility."

But Jill's eyes had flashed away to the window. Beyond it she could see old John I. trudging up the drive with the mail.

"Quick, Dooley!" Her mood changed swiftly to one of breathless eagerness. "Maybe there's a letter."

There was no letter from Spang. But there was a letter from Ric.

Julia read it slowly, keeping her face from showing the consternation that she was feeling. Jill said, "If that's from Ric you needn't tell me what's in it. I know. Please send me a little cash!"

"Yes—it's the same old thing," Julia evaded, trying to smile, trying to be natural. Jill mustn't know yet. She wanted to talk to John I. She wanted advice. She went out of the house and walked up to the lane gate, and when John I. came tramping back from the barn he saw her there, sitting on the old mounting block, her face a taut, gray mask of misery.

"What's wrong?" he asked. "Heard from that fellow again? I thought that letter I got for you was from Ric?"

"It was from Ric." She handed him the crumpled page. "You'd better read it, John I. Read it and tell me what you do."

The old man pulled a worn spectacle case from his back pocket, set a second pair of spectacles astride his nose. He dropped down beside her, and his lips moved slowly as he read the letter.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Serve Fruit-in-Season for Health! (See recipes below)

Fruit in the Diet

Perhaps yours is one of those families which don't seem to require much in the way of dessert. This does appear to solve your menu planning, but it really doesn't solve a dietary problem.

One of the rules set down by nutrition authorities is that two fruits in the daily diet. One of these fruits, preferably the citrus variety, may be worked in at breakfast, but that leaves one other fruit for one of the other meals.

If your family tends to gain weight easily, serve this fruit in its natural state — as a fresh apple, pear, cluster of grapes, etc. In this way you will not be adding any additional calories by serving the fruit with sugar, cream, syrup, or any other highly caloric foods.

Should the family readily reach and attain its normal weight, you can easily serve fruit baked with sweetening, in puddings or in cakes. Or, if you have members in your family who must have richer, satisfying foods because they work hard, serve desserts like this frequently because they will not only gain starches and sugars from it, but also take in their fruit requirement.

Baked apples are a simple dessert to serve at this time of year, especially when they're pepped up with lemon. If you want to add something more substantial to the dessert of this lovely fruit, use gingerbread which has been flavored with 2 teaspoons of grated orange rind added to the batter just after mixing.

Lemon Baked Apples. (Serves 6) 6 medium sized apples 1/2 cup granulated, brown or maple sugar or honey 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel 3 tablespoons lemon juice 2 tablespoons butter or substitute

Nuts and raisins (optional) Wash and core apples. Place in a baking dish. Fill each cavity with a portion of the sugar or honey, grated lemon peel and butter. Add the nuts or raisins or a mixture of the two, if desired. Pour some of the lemon juice over each apple. Cover the bottom of the pan with boiling water. Cover dish and bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven 30 to 40 minutes or until apples are tender. If baked uncovered, baste frequently with syrup.

Apple Crunch. (Serves 4 to 6) 6 cups cored, pared, sliced apples 2 tablespoons brown sugar 1/2 cup orange juice 1/2 cup brown sugar 3 tablespoons butter or substitute 1/2 cup corn or wheat flakes 1/2 cup sifted flour 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon 1 tablespoon orange rind, grated Arrange apples in a greased baking dish. Sprinkle sugar over the top and pour orange juice over them. Work together brown sugar (1/2 cup) and butter until creamy, add remaining ingredients and mix until crumbly. Spread on top of apple mixture. Pour an additional 1/2 cup orange juice over top and bake in a moderately hot (375 degree) oven for 45 minutes. Serve warm or cold with cream, vanilla or custard sauce.

Peach Cake. 1/2 cup shortening 1/2 cup sugar 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind 2 eggs, unbeaten 1 cup sifted cake flour 1 teaspoon baking powder 1/4 teaspoon salt 2 cups canned, drained peaches 1/2 cup sugar 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon 1/2 teaspoon chopped walnut meats

Cream together shortening and 1/2 cup sugar until light. Add eggs, one at a time, beating each thoroughly. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add to batter slowly, beating well after each addition. Pour 1/2 of batter into a greased baking pan, oblong, and lay sliced peaches on batter. Cover with remaining batter, then top with sugar, cinnamon and nuts which have been mixed together. Bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for 50 minutes. Serve warm or cold with cream.

Peach Souffle. (Serves 6) Soak for several hours or overnight 1/2 pound of dried peaches. Cook in same water in which they were soaked until all the moisture is absorbed. Rub cooked peaches through a colander. Beat the whites of 5 eggs stiff, then fold in 1/4 cup sugar, peach pulp and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1/2 cup chopped nuts, if desired. Pour into a buttered baking dish and place this in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for 50 minutes. Turn out on platter and serve with sweetened, whipped cream.

Pear Fritters. (Serves 6 to 8) 1/2 cup flour 1/2 teaspoon baking powder Pinch of salt 1 beaten egg 2 tablespoons milk 2 tablespoons melted butter 8 pear halves

Sift dry ingredients. Add beaten egg which has been mixed with milk. Stir until smooth and add melted butter. Dip drained pears (fresh or canned) into batter long enough to coat. Drop into deep hot fat and brown on all sides. Drain on absorbent paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Large spinach leaves may be combined with chunks of crisp greens and sliced tomatoes. Diced cooked beets are delicious with minced onion, green pepper rings and chopped hard-cooked eggs. Make beet salad by using leftover sliced beets with overlapping slices of raw cucumber and raw onion slices.

A conglomeration of leftover vegetables may be brought together if molded in tomato-cottage cheese aspic for a pretty luncheon salad. Aspic for asparagus spears are good in a salad with thousand island dressing.

Green or string beans may be tossed together with a suggestion of grated American cheese and seasoned with onion juice. Serve cooked, leftover broccoli with a chef's dressing on a bed of well-chilled greens. Add lemon for extra tartness, if desired.

Cooked parsnips or celery may be served with a wedge of lettuce and an oil dressing. Garnish with radish and hard-cooked egg slices or pinny cheese.

Cooked lima beans combine readily with minced onion and slices of radishes. Serve on a bed of greens. Diced cooked potatoes combine well with diced cucumber and grated raw carrot and grated raw cabbage. Moisten just enough to hold together with well seasoned mayonnaise.

Balanced Room Rooms are dwarfed by large or out-of-proportion openings. Height of a window can be cut by adding a valance at the top. A too-wide window may be remedied by using floor-length draperies and curtains to emphasize vertical lines and by letting the draperies cover part of the window. The greater the amount of light streaming in those windows, the larger the room will seem; so it may require some experimentation to discover which method will do the most for the room.

Source of Amber Most of the amber of commerce came from the shores of the Baltic sea, especially between Memel and Danzig. There it is found both on the sea bottom and cast up along the shores, and it is also mined from the underlying strata in which it was originally deposited. Smaller quantities differing in some respects from the Baltic amber are found in Sicily, Romania, Burma and other localities.

Price See-Saw In 1945, total income of farmers of this nation was almost two and one-half times as great as the annual average in the period 1910-14, but agricultural production in 1945 was up only about 70 per cent above the average per year for 1910-14. There has been an almost constant slow upward trend in farm production since 1915 but farm income has swung in wide see-saws up and down.

IS YOUR STOMACH ON A STRIKE?

If you cannot eat the food you like because of the unpleasant after-effects, the cause is something wrong. This is almost always due to the stomach not receiving proper strength over the nerves supplying it, because of pressure on the nerves at the point where they leave the spine. You may be ever so careful about what you eat and yet suffer from stomach trouble. Let us tell you how.

Did You Know
That Millers have a good stock of Inner Spring Mattresses, in a variety of prices. Built by Englander, Simmons and Spring Air.

"I CHOOSE FARMING"

That's the wise decision made by more and more clear-thinking American boys every day... especially since Reddy Kilowatt came into the picture and electricity made farming more pleasant and profitable than ever before.

"Golly,—the little time I spent in making a simple home-made electric pig brooder was the best investment I ever made. Many times I had found out to my sorrow that pigs farrowed in winter or early spring need extra protection from the cold... but with Reddy Kilowatt on the job to dry off and warm new born pigs, I figured I've been able to raise at least one extra pig per litter. They're real economical to operate, too."

THIS LITTLE PIG GOES TO MARKET!

Many farmers who do not have the time or material necessary to build a regular pig brooder have obtained very good results merely by hanging an 843 heat lamp about 24" to 30" from the floor in one corner of the farrowing pen. Guard boards are placed across the corner to protect the pigs and the lamp from the sow. Pigs will move about under this heat to where they are warm and comfortable.

4-H Club Week Will Emphasize Youth's Role in World Affairs

Working together for a better home and world community is the theme around which 1,700,000 rural boys and girls are making programs for their National 4-H Club Week, March 1-9. A part of the cooperative extension work of state agricultural colleges, national department of agriculture and local counties, the 4-H club members have earned a reputation for "learning by doing," in practically every county in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Boy and girl experts in corn growing and tomato canning were heralded in many states even before the cooperative extension work was put on a nationwide basis with passage of the Smith-Lever act in 1914. More than 11 million young people have been members since that time, demonstrating up-to-date methods in practically every phase of farming and homemaking as their program was broadened and more leaders became available.

Each club selects officers from its own members, the young people making their own programs and carrying them out. Such practice in democratic procedure has provided young community leaders and deepened the interest of all former members in the educational, health and social facilities available to them and their neighbors.

During the two world wars, 4-H club members rolled up impressive records of production in food and feed crops, in conservation, in farm labor and in contributions of supplies and money for wartime causes.

It is estimated that 4-H members, during the recent war, produced 1,000,000 acres of home gardens, 43,000,000 head of poultry, 2,700,000 head of livestock and 1,300,000 acres of food crops. They also collected more than 400,000,000 pounds of scrap, and sold or bought more than $200,000,000 in war bonds.

Many 4-H clubs already are well started on the programs to help their communities. Activities that reach beyond into the "world community" are not uncommon, so this year's theme is based on actualities. Here are some examples.

In Boone county, W. Va., each of the 34 clubs finished a project aimed at community betterment. Among these were sponsorship of a hot lunch at school, upkeep of the church and grounds, tree planting, a salvage program and planned recreation. One club operated a book exchange in the community. Another had members' teeth checked and repaired, while another provided for the distribution of milk at school. There are 802 members of the 4-H clubs in the county, which holds the enviable record for two years in succession of having every mem-

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

STATE DEPARTMENT BEING CLEARED OF COMMUNISTS

WASHINGTON.—Not much attention has been paid the invisible honing of the state department by some mysterious force which writers seem to find it difficult to describe.

The figures have been published, but not widely. I am an intense reader, yet I failed to see them. Maybe you missed them. At least you missed the only important part about them in the restricted way in which writers had to touch them. They wrote the story leaning backward as if the heat from the figures was too hot for them. At any rate, here are the figures—see if they are hot:

The state department, our official diplomatic headquarters of policy, the citadel of the world movement to establish freedom of the individual from dictatorships, especially this state department has cleaned out 202 employees from its midst in connection with its investigation of Communist tactics within. You cannot call the 202 Communists, sympathizers or even describe them. Oh no! Some resigned at the mere threat of investigation. Sensitive souls, no doubt! Some quit when asked by investigators about themselves. They were insulted, unquestionably! Others just ran at that particular time. A desire to be free no doubt seized them like a spasm. Well, anyhow, 202 seem to have had a spasm to be free of government probers and left.

BYRNES KEPT IT QUIET

Now, the Byrnes regime clearly did not consider it advisable for anyone to talk about this fault any more than necessary or to consider there might be a spasm in other state bureaus. In fact, Byrnes denied frequently there were any Communists in his department when Congress pressed him. Actually he started weeding them out while denying they were there. Repeatedly in this column he was told they were there long before Congress pressed him, and repeatedly he denied it, finally chasing them privately. That seems to be the truth of the matter.

In any event, the important thing now is that only one of these chased 202 can be called a Communist by a legal and respectable writer who desires to avoid the trouble of proving it. That single one was indicted. Of course he denied ardently he was a Communist, as they all do. However, the government investigators found he had been an organizer for the Communist party prior to his employment by our government, and so they decided to prosecute what they knew him to be. Certainly the other 201 must be called "spasmists," no, not even that, but "some possibly sensitive to a certain type of spasm investigation."

That is what must be done under the sound rules of newspaper and radio libel and related established practice by a reasonably cautious person. Personally I think this kind of foolishness has gone about far enough. It represents really only our own sensitivity to accusations of unfaithfulness and on a proposition which involves actually spies and foreign sympathizers in our own official departments.

THEY WOULDN'T TOLERATE US

The Communist government would have no hesitancy similar to ours. They must consider us rather stupid. Stalin found our Democrats or Republicans in his foreign office, they would be shot. The very existence of such a condition is unequivocally ridiculous and embarrassing to our diplomatic negotiations. While the Russians would not tolerate an outsider for a second, we welcomed them in during the Roosevelt administration and we now cover up, deny and avoid calling a Communist what he is after finding him in our own government—and labor organizations like CIO cannot get rid of them.

Communists should be granted no more equal rights. An act of Congress should be passed, as I have advocated before. Whatever rights are granted to our political parties in Moscow should be granted to Muscovites here—and not a single right more. The negotiation of rights should be aimed toward reciprocity. The whole dictatorship was well the right of negotiating on an equal plane. The Communist party would be put on the same plane a Democrat enjoys in Moscow. And above all there is no need to call a spasm "spasm."

SOCIALISM FADING OUT

How long can England's union socialism remain democratic if the miners fail to produce enough coal to run the country?

Great Britain is not producing enough to sustain itself because the workers won't work under socialism, but naturally take it easier. What, then, is the next step? The answer most people give is: Coercion. The workers will have to be required by the government to do enough work to produce products needed by the country itself and its export market. Coercion is dictatorship.

SUN DUST

STAGE SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

WHEN George Burns and Gracie Allen shared a nine-week bill at New York's Palace theater with Eddie Cantor and George Jessel they had reached the very top in vaudeville; doing a couple of guest spots on Coney Island radio program was a mere sideline. But two months later a new career got under way; they were starred with Guy Lombardo on an air show—just fifteen years ago come February 22. That same year they began their movie career in

Gracie and George

"The Big Broadcast of 1932." Surveying 15 years of success, they don't hesitate in picking out the highlights of their lives, the August day in 1934 when they adopted a baby girl, and the day a year later when they adopted a boy.

Kenny Baker will realize a life-long ambition very soon. The star of "The Kenby Baker Show" (American Broadcasting Co., Mondays through Fridays), will record an eight-side album of religious songs, which will include his favorite, "The Lord's Prayer."

Remember those six Goldwyn Girls who've been traveling hither and yon, wearing beautiful clothes and looking lovely? They're making a two-month tour of 38 Latin American cities at present, began by dining with Cary Grant and Howard Hughes in Mexico City, watching a bull-fight, and being officially greeted by Mayor Casas Aleman.

Ever since "The Spoilers" was made some 16 years ago, the fight between William Farnum and Tom Santschi has been considered as the greatest two-man battle of all time, when veteran movie critics get together. But at RKO they claim that the scrap between Lawrence Tierney and Barton MacLane in "San Quentin" tops it. It was rehearsed for five days, runs for a reel and a half as the picture's climax.

Paramount's new release, "Suddenly It's Spring," features two "Great Gildersleeves" air actresses in support of Paulette Goddard and Fred MacMurray. They're Frances (Eva Goodwin) Robinson and Georgia Backus, who plays a maid on the air show.

Radio comedy shows usually grow from either situations or gags. But not the highly successful "Fibber McGee and Molly"; Don Quinn, the writer, gets humor out of homey, run-of-the-mill situations in a way that no one else can master, apparently. After more than a decade of being funny once a week, he continues to produce the highest quality scripts—topping the Hoover polls!

When Director Vincent Sherman told Kent Smith how to hoodwink his inquisitive wife regarding "the other woman" in a scene for "Nora Prentiss," Smith said "I know what you mean. When I was in the army I played in a picture called 'Resisting Enemy Interrogation.'"

To reproduce the popular dances of 1880 Paris for "The Private Affairs of Bel Ami" Director Albert Lewin studied old books and old paintings—and finally said he might as well just have consulted a jitterbug expert, because that's what the dances looked like when filmed.

The pretty skating instructor who taught Alan Young to ice-skate for "Margie" visited the comic's air show the other night. A couple of other chaps in the cast tried to move right in—but it was Alan who took her out for a soda when the show was over.

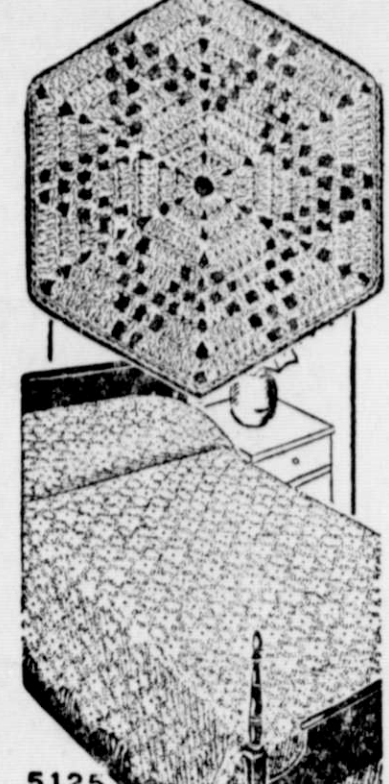

ODDS AND ENDS—That recent "disappearance" of Virginia Mayo's could have been tamer—she just registered with her mother at a Palm Springs hotel, under her own name, Virginia Jones, only she forgot to notify the studio. If southerners see a nice-looking couple touring their towns in a 1938 coupe, it may be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell, vacationing from Hollywood. . . . Maybe Diana Lynn has started a job, she's wearing six rings on her engagement finger. . . . Malibu Beach is the setting for many of the most dramatic scenes in "Humoresque" . . . Grace Matthews succeeds Mercedes McCambridge as "Big Sister."

More than a dozen cities were screened tested for the role of Boon City in "The Best Years of Our Lives" before Cincinnati was chosen as the most typical one of its size and photographed for background shots for the picture.

Gregory Peck has two romantic interests in "The Paradine Case," Ann Todd, the lovely English actress who's so talented, and Valli, who's acclaimed by Vanguard Films as Europe's most beautiful woman. True or not, she is very lovely.

Alaskan Moose Attack Trains; Governor Defends 'Antics'

WASHINGTON.—Although moose are one of the major handicaps to railroading in Alaska, the militant animals have a staunch defender in Gov. Ernest Gruening.

In requesting that moose who make pests of themselves be reduced to mooseburgers, Col. John P. Johnson, manager of the Alaskan railroad, pointed out that the animals attack trains, cause derailments and lunge along ahead of the engines to make a farce of railroad schedules.

Governor Gruening, rejecting the request in a reproving telegram to the interior department, said: "The delay is not sufficiently serious to warrant killing these noble animals whose presence on the railroad, while an occasional handicap to speedy transportation, is more than a compensating feature as an attraction to tourists in the summer time. They should be considered one of the hazards as well as one of the delights of railroading in Alaska."

Johnson, obviously not at all delighted by antics of the wayward beasts, complained that on a single day last winter they caused 14 schedule delays and one derailment.

Principal complaint is that the moose find their way into deep cuts made by snowplows through heavy drifts and then cannot get out.

Pipe-smoking Infant Victim of Accident

WASHINGTON.—Five infants, including a 2-year-old boy playing at pipe smoking, were among the 36 persons injured in home accidents here one week, according to a Red Cross home accident survey. Accidents were fatal to three of the infants, a 3-year-old boy dying of a gunshot wound, another drowning in a bathtub and a third being suffocated by bedclothing.

Danes Given New Insight on Slang

COPENHAGEN, DENMARK.—Because Danish people "take such an immense interest in movies and modern books that they are not content with translations they get by knowing standard English," a new Danish U. S. A. slang dictionary has been published. Danes no longer are astonished when they read about a "palkooka" who "oozed out of town" when "the pinks" arrived.

Ostriches Supplant Farming in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA.—To cash in on the feather boom, local farmers are deserting agricultural pursuits in favor of ostriches. Dairy farmers are giving up their herds while other farmers have turned wheat lands into ostrich camps. Pumpkins are being bought in large quantities on the local market as feed. Day-old ostrich chicks bring $16.14 each.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Standing Behind the Breadwinner

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features

"He grew more irritable with each passing week and finally snapped at Von because she and her mother and the boys spent all the money that he slaved to earn."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

IT ALWAYS gives me the creeps when a married woman says fearfully to her husband: "Pete, what would the children and I do if you died?"

It seems ghoulish and unfeeling somehow, to put this problem to a normal cheerful man who is just starting off for the office after a good breakfast, or settling down for his evening paper under the lamp.

And yet it has to be asked sometimes, because the thought behind it is one that haunts even the most loving wife and mother. When every cent of the family's income comes through the efforts of one man, and that man is only human, and subject to all the ills and accidents of today's living, then despite her healthy optimism and faith in the future, a woman has her anxious and puzzled moments on this particular subject.

There was a San Francisco woman who met and conquered this dragon a few years ago, with really exciting results. Her husband was a newspaper man, nervous, unreasonable, his rest and his system upset by the irregular hours and snatched downtown meals that are a part of his calling. There were three small boys in the family and a good strong helpful grandmother, and the house ran smoothly and happily—and economically, too.

Whether Philip was jealous of his home and nursery world, or whether an increasing tendency on his part toward drinking and card-playing upset his common sense is uncertain. But certain it is that he grew more irritable, exacting and ill-tempered with every passing week, and finally began to snap at Von because she and her mother and the boys spent all the money that he slaved to earn. If they had to earn it, he said, they'd feel differently about it.

She Bought Big Old Home.
Veronica Graham knew perfectly well that this was a phase; that Phil was overworked, tired, head-achy and fretted because two younger men had been given office promotions ahead of him. She knew this would pass. But she also realized that to be the one breadwinner in a family of six really is too much of a strain for any man to bear, and she quietly completed a nursing course. During the war she made her steady $8 for an eight-hour day. Not sensational money, compared to Phil's $150 a week, but she banked it, and added it to other money she had saved, and two years ago she bought for $13,000 a roomy, handsome old place on the edge of town. Real estate was low-priced then, and for her 11 sunshiny rooms and big garden, Von had been offered just three times that sum since.

However, she did not sell. She and her mother have with them now six delicate children, and could have many more, but they stop at six. The gross income from this venture is $750 a month. Von's mother, who was a teacher, is carrying forward the education of the four older ones, one of whom is a bone case and another a lovely girl of seven, almost blind. The three-year-old twins, orphans, run free. This means an income for the older woman as well; a Chinese couple do the heavier work, and Philip is steady.

"What would become of them?"

Extract of California Moss Retards Tuberculosis
Discovery of a new antibiotic substance that like penicillin or the newer streptomycin was found to retard tuberculosis in experimental animals has been disclosed by Dr. Alfred Marshak of the U. S. Public Health service.
It is a crystalline Spanish moss, technically known as Romalina Reticulata, which grows as a plant along the west of North America from California to Alaska. California moss is called an epiphyte, a plant which grows on other plants but is not a parasite.
In preliminary experiments on guinea pigs Dr. Marshak, who is associated with the tuberculosis control section of the health service, reported the substance was shown to have had some effects in protecting the guinea pigs against tubercle bacilli. It has not been established that it would be effective in the treatment of human beings, he said.

EXTRA INCOME

Most families have to spend most of the father's earnings to maintain even a fair standard of living. There is little left over to save.

Mrs. Graham was one of those women who worried about her husband. He was earning a comfortable salary as a newspaper man, but his health was suffering from the strain of his work. He became more and more irritable and suffered frequent sick spells.

With her own small savings she bought a big old mansion. Being a former nurse, she knew that there were many sickly children who would benefit by a stay in a well run convalescent home. With her mother's help she now operates a home that takes in $750 a month. This extra income has changed the whole outlook for this family. Philip realizes that he does not have to struggle so furiously to earn every cent he can. Veronica knows that she now can face the future unafraid.

down into a much more normal and agreeable husband, in the relief of lessened strain.

Faced Problems Early.

Veronica had to do this against the prejudices of both husband and mother, but from the beginning she seemed to see her way clear and went straight ahead. There were many hard and puzzling moments of course, but in any worth-while effort there are those, and Von only faced them in time, rather than waiting until need and grief and panic were making any fresh start doubly hard.

When a man invents a new dog food or ice-cream sandwich or radio program and sells it for four million, we hear of it with wonder and envy. Such a simple discovery and such a rich reward! But there are thousands of obscurer successes all about us, successes that don't bring in millions, but do bring in the comfortable thousands that mean a good home and pleasant work and sufficient recognition and best of all, security.

There is no human being over the age of eight who doesn't want security. A humble home perhaps, simple meals, 10-cent movies and catalogue dresses at $6.99. But security. Kings have lived long lives without ever being sure of it; millions of men and women are seething about in the oriental countries, in Europe itself today longing only to be sure of the next meal, of shelter for the night—never daring to dream of a permanent sense of having always enough. Enough food, enough shelter, sufficient clothing, freedom from persecution—what heaven that would be today to six out of 10 of the world's peoples!

"Just a chance to work, Madam," said a starving European to me 20 years ago, "just to be able to show what I could do!"
This chance is yours, as an American woman. It might pay you to consider first, and what you would do should the head of the house be stricken down, and secondly, whether the time to do it perhaps is now.

Higher Fur Prices

Indications point to higher prices for desirable fur skins and fur garments later in the year, according to a statement by the Retail Manufacturing Furriers of America, Inc. The organization said that labor costs will not be lower this year than in 1946 and cited the trend of prices at fur auctions and skin markets during the last 10 weeks, which it said has been upward. The organization held that merchants will "very likely" pay higher prices when they replace stocks later.

Smooth Ceilings
The busy housewife entered a stationery store and asked for a pound of floor wax.
"I'm sorry," replied the clerk, "but we only sell sealing wax here."
"Why, I never heard of such a thing!" she said bewilderedly. "Why should anyone wax a ceiling?"

Wrong Checks
Uncle—I'm sorry that you are not enthusiastic about your gift, but remember I asked you if you liked a small check or a large one.
Nephew—Yes, but I didn't think you were talking about neckties!

Big Ideas
Clerk—Now see here, little girl, I can't spend the whole day showing you penny toys. Do you want the earth with a little red fence around it for one cent?
Little Girl—Let me see it.

Bigger Game
"Something's wrong with me, Grandmother," sighed the young lady. "I've been a bridesmaid twice, I caught the bride's bouquet, too, but I'm still single."
"Well, dear," advised Grandmother, "next time don't reach for the flowers, reach for the best man."

Line is Busy?
Hal—What did that telephone girl say to you when she broke the engagement?
Cal—Ring off.

One Saving
Hubby—I can't figure out what you do with all the money I give you.
Wife—I think you're lucky that I don't worry myself sick about it. Hubby—Why do you say that?
Wife—Then you'd have a doctor's bill to pay.

Cover Up!
A saleslady in a swank hat shop is now thinking twice before she speaks. A customer who knows her own mind started out with "Nothing with a veil, please."
"Why not, miss?" asked the helpful salesgirl. "You have just the face for a veil."

Just a Brave Man
She—The man I marry must be a hero.
He—Oh really now, you're not as bad as all of that.

Tighter and Tighter
Three blood transfusions were necessary to save a woman's life. A brawny young Scot offered his blood.
The patient gave him $50 for the first pint; $25 for the second pint; but the third time she had so much Scotch blood in her she only thanked him.

Couldn't Resist
He—What would I have to give you for one little kiss?
She—Chloroform.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Cover a brick with gay material and make a removable slip-cover. You'll have a door-stop heavy enough for holding doors open and attractive enough to fit in your decorating schemes. Cover can be easily washed.

When ironing over zippers use a thick towel under the pressing cloth. This avoids a shiny ridge.

To keep casters which are used under furniture from coming loose, dip them in melted paraffin before placing them under the legs of chairs or tables.

A broom sprinkled occasionally with kerosene gathers more dust.

The broiler pan cleans easier if removed from the range as soon as the food is cooked, so grease won't continue cooking.

Bottles containing liquids will not spill when moving or traveling if the tops are sealed by dipping them in melted paraffin.

Fats saved from cooking spoil more quickly than does new fat, so keep it cold and use promptly.

FACTS You Should Know About Your Hospital

QUES: Why is it necessary to raise $100,000?

ANS: Originally the Sisters did not think that it would be necessary to ask for any help at all. When the building was started in 1945, the Sisters refused the offer of an informal committee to put on a drive. As building progressed, they realized that they would be faced with greater costs than anticipated. Unknown and unpredictable building costs were running very much higher than any one expected. As the building neared completion it became certain that the cost would be $160,000 over and above the original high estimate. Our industries and a few individuals readily gave $60,000 to meet pressing bills, but $100,000 is now needed to finish the job.

QUES: Couldn't they have increased the mortgage?

ANS: They are bound by rules and regulations governing their order, and had reached their limit in borrowing.

QUES: What will happen if the money is not raised?

ANS: What happens to others when they owe money. Their credit would be jeopardized and no one knows what action creditors will take. Naturally they will want the money promptly.

QUES: Why did the Sisters go ahead if they didn't have the money?

ANS: The hospital was an absolute necessity. Contractors would not take a chance on unknown costs so the Sisters took it. By so doing they lived up to their obligation to protect life and health in this community. Thanks that they did go ahead otherwise many of the eighty patients now in the hospital would be—??

QUES: How much is invested in our hospital and how much do the Sisters owe?

ANS: The investment is approximately one million dollars. The new addition and equipment cost over $600,000. When the new wing is completely equipped, the Sisters will owe approximately $530,000, on which the interest is about $12,000.

QUES: Isn't the hospital a money making proposition? Doesn't the county pay for the charity cases?

ANS: Yes, the hospital does and must make money to pay the interest, principal, and further additions and improvements. There is no private profit. It all goes back into the hospital. In the 17 years that the hospital has been in West Bend, not one cent has been taken out. The Sisters came here in 1930 and started with a debt of $100,000. This has grown to more than $500,000. Charity cases are at special rates and do not pay the actual cost. Like all hospitals, some accounts are never paid, and others only in part. Yes, OUR hospital is a charitable institution. It is recognized as such by Uncle Sam and the State of Wisconsin, because deductions of donations are allowed for tax purposes.

QUES: I pay as much at our hospital as any other, so why is it a charitable institution?

ANS: This is true in hospitals operated along similar lines, but a municipally operated hospital has to, and does charge the patient much more besides the fact that the city must also make an annual contribution, which is charged to the taxpayer. If all of the Sisters in our hospital were paid for their work as in the municipally operated hospitals, their combined salaries would amount to $100 per day. This item alone would require $1.00 more per day for every patient. Thus your contribution would soon come back to you should you become a patient, and you know that may be any time. There are many other savings that cut down your daily cost. The long hours of labor on the part of the Sisters, home canning of food, a big vegetable garden, cooperation from the Ladies' Auxiliary, donations from friends, produce from farmers, etc. Then over and above all this, the hospital is right here in our own community close to families and friends.
