

Miss Dorothy Harter Bride of Alban Nigh

In a charming spring wedding ceremony performed at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, April 8, in Holy Trinity church, Miss Dorothy Catherine Harter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Harter of the town of Auburn, Route 2, Campbellsport, became the bride of Alban L. Nigh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Nigh, also of the town of Auburn, R. 2, Campbellsport. The Rev. F. C. La Bui officiated at the marriage rite and read the solemn nuptial high mass.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Marilyn Nigh, Plymouth, as maid of honor, while the Misses Marian, Agnes and Margaret Nigh, all sisters of the groom, served as bridesmaids. Leo Nigh served as best man for his brother, while Willard Blanke, Jerry Darmody and Alan Krueger acted as groomsmen. Nathan Nigh and Gregor Nigh ushered the guests to their places.

Susann Harter, niece of the bride, served as the little flower girl and David Nigh, brother of the groom, as ringbearer, carried the rings in a lily.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a white satin gown in princess style with sweetheart neckline and a train on the skirt with lace insertions edged in lace. Her fingertip veil which was trimmed with lace to match her dress was held by a beaded headpiece. She carried Easter lilies and white carnations.

The maid of honor wore a frock of orchid marquisette with ruffled trim and ruffled headpiece. She carried an arm bouquet of mixed flowers. The bridesmaids wore gowns of pink, yellow and aqua respectively identical to that of the maid of honor. They also carried bouquets similar to the maid of honor's. The tiny flower girl wore a frock of white styled like that of the other attendants.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner and buffet supper were served and a reception held in the Holy Trinity church basement. In the evening a wedding dance was held at the Light-house ballroom and this was largely attended by relatives, neighbors and friends of the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Nigh left on a honeymoon trip to an unknown destination and will be at home after April 15 at the home of the bride's parents. The groom, a discharged veteran, is engaged in farming. The bride was formerly employed at the Kewaskum lunch room.

Cyclonic Windstorm Causes Much Damage

A severe windstorm of gale proportions which started about 7 p. m. Saturday night and continued until Easter Sunday morning did thousands of dollars damage to property in this village and the surrounding community. The wind averaged 15 to 25 miles an hour and attained velocities of from 65 to 80 miles an hour in gusts.

Roofs were reported blown off in some communities and outbuildings blown over. Many barn and shed doors were torn off here. Large numbers of trees were uprooted in outlying areas and countless branches broken off and hurled about throughout this territory. Outdoor signs were torn loose and boxes, cans and other smaller objects tossed through the air by the wind. Many windows were broken, some of them by flying objects and other widespread damage was reported. We were among the unfortunate who had a window shattered in our shop.

Wisconsin Gas & Electric Co. officials reported that public utility was hard hit by the storm. Over 100 of their power poles were snapped off and about 35 lines blown down. Other lines were torn down by flying branches, uprooted trees and hurtling signs. In this village, many homes and business places were without power and light until Sunday morning, while in other electric service was not disrupted. Most of the street lights were out for a couple of nights before line crews were able to get around to repair them due to the widespread damage in other sections. Numerous telephone lines were also disrupted and many subscribers were without service. Service was restored before the telephone strike went into effect Monday.

2020 County Farmers Sign Up for 1947 ACP

Two thousand and twenty farmers in Washington county have signed up to participate in the 1947 agricultural conservation program according to Raymond D. Lepien, chairman of the agricultural conservation (AAA) committee.

This is 71 percent of the total number of farms in the county and approximately the same as participated in last year's program.

Lepien pointed out that through the program the federal government assists the farmer to conserve and build up the soil so that it will not become a liability but will continue to produce more and better food both now and in the future.

Federal funds available for use to increase soil conservation in Washington county under the 1947 program are $84,700.

Practices which will be performed by these participating farmers are:

Lime, fertilizer, construction of terraces, terrace outlets and diversion terraces, establishing sod waterways, construction or enlargement of open farm drainage ditches, ditching for tile drainage, contouring intertilled or drilled crops, contour stripcropping, field stripcropping not on the contour, water erosion, green manure crops, pasture establishment, weed eradication by chemicals or continuous cover tillage, application of nitrogenous fertilizer to pastures.

Notices of the practices approved for payment for the individual farms will be mailed to participating farmers soon.

Cars Are Damaged in Two Accidents Over Week End

The right side and top of a Buick coach driven by Ralph Strassburg of West Bend were damaged when the driver lost control of the machine and it left the road and rolled over in a deep ditch on Highway 45-55 just north of the Kewaskum overhead bridge north of the village Saturday night.

According to a report in one of the West Bend papers, Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Becker, Milwaukee, formerly of Kewaskum, escaped injury at 12:45 a. m. Monday when the auto driven by Mrs. Becker, and another vehicle owned by Albert Asmus, Route 5, West Bend, were involved in an accident on Highway 45-55 and 60 at the Jackson intersection. Raymond Asmus was at the wheel of the car. Both machines were damaged. The Beckers had spent the week end with their folks here.

New Appeals Made to Workers in Hospital Drive

With only $1,000 being added last week, new appeals were issued this week by leaders of the hospital fund committee to campaign workers to redouble their efforts to speed attainment of the $100,000 goal. The drive has now reached the $61,000 mark, as compared with $63,999 last week.

Campaign leaders re-emphasized this week that there are many people in the community who have not been contacted by workers. That this is true is substantiated in a statement, made by a West Bend retail merchant, at a meeting Monday, that no worker had as yet approached him for a contribution.

For this reason, the fund leaders insist that the drive will be continued until each and every person in this area served by the hospital has been contacted. The leaders are confident that the $100,000 goal can be reached shortly if workers will only complete their contacts.

People who have not yet been contacted can also help speed attainment of the goal if they will send or bring their contributions to the campaign headquarters at St. Joseph's Community hospital in West Bend. Since Monday, April 7, the drive headquarters have been located at the hospital.

Red Cross Brightens Easter of Disabled

An organ recital of Easter selections was provided for the servicemen at the Veterans hospital at Wood, Wis. at five o'clock Saturday afternoon by Miss Irene Jaehning, sister of the executive secretary of the West Bend Red Cross chapter. Miss Jaehning's renditions are always a source of much pleasure to the hospitalized veterans.

Fifty books for the hospital library, 200 Easter greeting cards and $60 to help defray transportation expenses of patients able to travel, have also been made available. These services were arranged for by L. A. Westphal, coordinator of service to camps and hospitals.

Junior Red Cross Active

Junior Red Cross members under the direction of St. Mary Lawrence of St. Mary's school, Barton, made 200 decorated Easter napkins. Junior members at the West Bend high school assisted by Mrs. Albert Gensman and Mrs. Harold Petri prepared 240 table decorations. These items were shipped to the Veterans Administration hospital at North Little Rock, Arkansas.

A letter from Mrs. Beatrice Allen, field director of the Veterans hospital at Danville, Ill., told of the pleasure which the St. Patrick's table decorations had given to patients.

APRIL 15 FINAL DATE TO FILE POTATO GOAL REQUEST

April 15 is the final date for filing a request for a 1947 potato goal according to Raymond D. Lepien, chairman of the Washington County Agricultural Conservation (AAA) committee.

Lepien pointed out that one of the requirements for eligibility for the federal price support on 1947 crop potatoes is planting less than three acres or within the acreage set for the farm.

If you intend to plant more than 2.9 acres of potatoes during 1947 and are not sure that a potato goal has been established on the farm, visit the county AAA office in West Bend.

All requests must be in writing and on file with the county committee by April 15, 1947.

Spectacular Outdoor Pageant Revives Early California Lore

600 Residents of Two Towns Unite In Staging Drama

WNSU Features

All the romance and adventure of early California, along with the pathos and tragedy of the Indian people, are revived in the historic Ramona pageant, long heralded as one of the nation's most spectacular outdoor presentations, which will open in Ramona Bowl near Hemet, Calif., April 13.

Immortalized by Helen Hunt Jackson in her best-selling novel, "Ramona," the tragic experiences of an Indian couple living in San Jacinto valley form the general theme of the pageant-drama. The spectacle, now in its 20th season, is staged in its own amphitheater situated at the foot of towering snow-capped Mt. San Jacinto.

Revives Early Days

The authentic atmosphere of early California history pervades the pageant. It is replete with colorful fiestas, Indian ceremonials and dancing typical of that period. In one of the most spectacular scenes, a mounted posse of frontiersmen crosses the 50-acre mountain-side stage.

Ramona is the result of the work and talents of more than 600 residents of the towns of Hemet and San Jacinto, neighboring communities nestled in the foothills of the majestic San Jacinto mountain range in southern California. Combining their efforts, the townspeople stage the pageant as a "labor of love" to record an outstanding example of cooperative community spirit.

Aside from one or two professionalists in the title roles, every member of the cast is a citizen of either Hemet or San Jacinto. All production details, including costumes, set-dressing, maintenance, box office and even parking of cars, are paid for by townspeople.

Studied in School

"Ramona," as written by Mrs. Jackson, is on the curriculum in the schools of both Hemet and San Jacinto. Youngsters who study the dramatic pages of the novel appear in the play as children. Many, as they grow up, graduate to more important roles.

During the three weekends in which the pageant is staged, business in the two sponsoring communities is virtually at a standstill. Men and women in all walks of life come en masse to Ramona Bowl, some as performers, some as stage hands, some as service attendants and still others just to view again the stirring story of early days in their valley.

The general theme of Ramona is the tragedy of the Indian people. In 1842 Mrs. Jackson came to Los Angeles on a government mission to gather material pertaining to the Indian. From her pen emerged the pages of the novel which continues to thrill adventure-seeking children.

Based on History

Most of the important incidents in the book actually occurred in San Jacinto valley, the home of the characters in the story. Mrs. Jackson conceived the idea for "Ramona" after learning of the tragic experiences of an Indian couple, Juan Diego and Ramona, who lived in the valley.

Tattered records of San Jacinto justice court, as written by Justice Samuel V. Tripp, contain the story of the shooting of an Indian, Juan Diego, by a white man, Juan Temple. The records reveal, however, a plot of land containing water, a site which was cherished by certain white men. A trip into San Jacinto one day brought disaster to Diego. He made the trip on horseback, tying his mount in front of the general store. In town, Diego had a "couple of drinks" and became confused, with the result that he rode away on another horse.

Although he rode directly home, Diego was branded as a horse thief in the eyes of Juan Temple. It is recounted that Temple borrowed a shotgun, forged a posse and rode away in the direction of Diego's land. He returned with the story of having recovered a stolen horse and having killed an Indian in the process.

True to Life Climax

This incident gave Mrs. Jackson the climax for her story, and she AUTHENTIC ATMOSPHERE . . . California's colorful and romantic past is recreated in the Ramona historical pageant. Here a posse thunders across the 50-acre mountain-side stage, where Helen Hunt Jackson's best-selling novel, "Ramona," is presented by residents of Hemet and San Jacinto, Calif.

Red Banners, Ringing Bells Would End Traffic Menace

CHEYENNE, WYO. — Climaxing the revolt of Wyoming residents against the reckless tactics adopted by visiting California motorists, a bill was introduced in the state legislature to require vehicles from the Golden State to be equipped with red banners and loud bells.

Introduced by Rep. C. W. Jeffrey, the bill would require California cars entering Wyoming to carry two red flags three feet square, four and aft, and have two bells, six inches in diameter and capable of being heard 500 yards, which would ring constantly while the car is in motion. Provision would be made for the visitor to take said flags, bells and other accoutrements at the point of entry for $2 a trip.

The bill emphasizes that while Wyoming citizens "in their zeal for exemplifying western hospitality are most desirous of extending a cordial welcome to residents of California," still the traffic toll attributed to residents of that state is described as "most appalling."

Irrked by the proposal, Edgar E. Lampton, California's motor vehicles director, commented: "If Wyoming passes the law, we'll encourage California motorists to choose another route east. Besides those dangerous cowboy drivers, that state is full of mountains."

One Barber Refuses To 'Trim' Customers

LOWELL, OHIO. — There's at least one barber who refuses to "trim" his customers. William Ray, 75, barber here for 56 years, still charges 25 cents for a shave and haircut. Despite advancing living costs and the price precedent set elsewhere, Ray will not boost his prices of 15 cents for a haircut and 10 cents for a shave. The barber is Lowell's wealthiest resident.

Belligerent Moose Fails To Halt Mail

BELTON, MONT.—Even a belligerent cow moose failed to keep the mail from getting through. When Earl Ryan, mail carrier, was churning along in his snowmobile, hauling mail through Glacier park, the moose suddenly appeared to block the trail. Ryan tried gentle persuasion, then pushing with his vehicle, but the moose was obstinate. Five hours later Ryan shot the animal.

Advice Is Effective — To Authors, at Least

PULLMAN, WASH.—When Stanley A. Smith, head of the agricultural engineering department at Washington State college, and Miss Esther Pond, former extension economist in home management, collaborated on a book, they apparently wrote with conviction. The two college officials were co-authors of a booklet, "Planning Your Home." Now they are married.

The Cow's Lounge

If your milk doesn't seem as rich these days, don't blame it all on the dairyman. It may be her living quarters. Maybe Old Ben doesn't like her lap-out. A cow has more about her apartment. And believe it or not, a cocktail lounge, so to speak, helps.

Sixteen farms have been conducting experiments with this lounge idea. They call it a "loving barn." It is an extra "room" where the atmosphere is one of freedom and un-restraint.

Up to now cows, when not out at pasture, have been kept in a main barn, their needs in stanchions. This kept them from moving around. (We never looked at a cow in one of these stanchions without feeling that she wasn't being done right by. But farmers always assumed she loved it and that without her neck in a stanchion, Bess would get the idea she was being neglected.)

But 16 dairy farms have installed "cow lounges" or "loving barns." In and out of which the cows may wander at will, staying if they feel in the mood or playing around outside if the spirit moves them. In every case the cows have been happier and more cooperative.

We assume that it just did something to their characters that increased their interest in life, broadened their outlook and made them feel better disposed toward the consumer. It seemed reasonable to think that if you took a cow out of her stanchion and gave her a little ladies' lounge life, she would be appreciative.

But the dairymen say we are wrong. With Bessie it is just a matter of roughage. Not the sort of roughage humans get in cocktail lounges. Food roughage, you clump!

The more roughage the better milk. It's that simple.

So take a closer look at that quart tomorrow morning and see if it is up to snuff. If not leave a note in the bottle reading: "What the heck is wrong with your old dairy? Open a lounge for them that cows or I'll get my milk some other place. P. S. Try one with pink wall paper and cupid."

The Quicky-Bankery

An eastern bank has inaugurated a drive-in-depository. You wheel right into a "banking lot" and deposit money without getting out of your car. It is a grand idea, but we fear confusion.

Any day we expect to hear about a depositor driving into a pig and whistling and handing over $5,000, while another one drives into a banking lot and demands a hamburger with onions.

We think the boys could go further and give the whole business an even more appealing drive-in flavor. How about some frankfurters and beans, some chili or a hamburger with each deposit? Wouldn't a juke box help?

"HARVEST of Stars" is undoubtedly the best program of its type on the air. Other programs may come and go, but Harvest's hopes go on forever. James Melton, its star, threw away two careers to become a first-rate singer; he was top as a popular singer more than a decade ago, then went into pictures. But he wanted to sing in opera and to have just the sort of radio assignment he has now. He says that both times he abandoned one career to take a chance on another with his wife, Marjorie, encouraged him to go right ahead. When he landed at New York he had just $360—and a lot of ambition, plus the want that a landed man where he is now.

Bob Hope ("My Favorite Brunette" is his new picture) thought he was used to everything in the way of audiences; apparently everybody who wants Hollywood wants to see his radio show. But even Bob was startled when four selectees from the New York District Attorney's office appeared. They'd come out to pick up a prisoner; couldn't leave him, so they brought him along!

Loretta Young had to acquire a Swedish accent for her co-starring role in the RKO "The Farmer's Daughter." So she took lessons from Ruth Roberts, the diction expert who has been "de-accentuating" Ingrid Bergman these last few years. Loretta plays a Swedish farm girl who's thrown into the political arena and eventually into congress. She shares stellar honors with Joseph Cotten and Ethel Barrymore.

Composer-musician Sigmund Romberg will replace Red Melton on the air on NBC June 16, with "Evenings with Romberg." Late next summer he'll be in Hollywood again, writing additional music for "Up in Central Park" and "Sunny River."

Twentieth Century-Fox's "Captain From Castile" company, on location in Mexico, found itself in competition with Parcutin, the baby volcano which sprung up here four years ago. The troupe had to have a de-accentuating unit on hand, working like mad to remove the volcanic ash which settled on the fancy—and authentic—costumes of Aztec and Conquistadors alike.

You'll see Maureen O'Sullivan again in "The Big Clock" with Ray Milland and Charles Laughton; her husband, John Hays, directs. She's been in retirement from the screen for some years—long enough to have four children.

William Cagney, testing actors for "The Time of Your Life," has set up a film library of tests of available screen talent for the future. First tests are of his sister Jeanne, whose last film was "Yankee Doodle Dandy," with brother Jim; since then she's been making a name on the stage and in radio and of her husband, Kim Spalding, who's been playing leads on Broadway and in stock companies.

The sneak preview of "Copacabana" held in Pasadena brought Steve Cochran his greatest thrill since he joined the ranks of Hollywood's actors. Following the picture three policemen had to hold back the fans mobbing Steve, as a new star.

Fanny Brice, Hanley Stafford and the "Baby Snooks Show" have been signed by their sponsor for three more years; the contracts were renewed as Miss Brice celebrated "Baby Snooks" 26th birthday, and "Daddy Higgins" began his 11th year.

ODDS AND ENDS—The Mutual network's planning a special broadcast to air "Babe Ruth Day" proceedings from the ball park on April 27. . . Ralph Dumke's auditioning a new series for NBC which will present ex-patriot fathers on the air—called "For Fathers Only." . . Robert Merrill knows a singer who accidentally left his favorite good luck piece home, and gave the worst performance of his career; so Merrill won't carry any kind of talisman. . . In a close race for "The Imperfect Lady" Teresa Wright actually ran two miles, before the director got just the takes he wanted; she was being pursued by a London hobby.

Susan Palmer, Wellesley student, won the Yale Record Screen contest for a girl to play opposite Fred MacMurray in "The Miracle of the Bells." So now she'll have a screen test, and get the role if Jesse Lasky approves.

A lot of Donald O'Connor's fan mail falls from Ireland and England; he comes from an acting family that dates way back over there. He's going abroad for a personal appearance tour when the Ginny Simms show gives him a chance.

18th Century Women Wear Masks to Bar Wind, Sun

Until the 18th century, fashionable women of America protected their complexions from cold wind and hot sun by wearing masks, winter ones being made of velvet and summer ones of silk or linen, says Collier's.

Unlike other masks, they were held in place either by the hand or, when both hands were needed as in riding, by a silver mouth-piece inserted between the teeth.

Kathleen Norris Says:

It's the Children Who Suffer in Divorces
Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

Denise had hysterics, left the table, and refused to return even at Betty's coaxing.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THERE was always a deep devotion between my first husband and our daughter," writes Marian Lent, from Chicago. "When Armand and I were divorced, Denise felt it bitterly, although she was only 8. I immediately married again, and she disliked her stepfather, although he was always kind to her. Bruce had two daughters at that time, 13 and 17. The elder has since married, but the younger, Betsy, and my own daughter, are continually quarreling. The family has increased since by the arrival of another girl and now a baby boy, and we could be ideally happy but for Denise, whose wretched disposition, jealousy and resentment spoil everything. Betsy, now 18, is a charming girl, pretty, musical and full of fun. Denise is too tall, too heavy and at the clumsy, shy, difficult stage of adolescence. Betsy is like another mother to the younger children; Denise resents being asked to do the slightest thing for them.

"Armand, my first husband, has married again and has two boys. Denise wants very much to live with her father, but for several reasons that would not be practicable. His second wife is a flighty and hysterical woman who had had two previous unsuccessful marriage experiences before she married Armand, and if Denise cannot be happy here with me, the chances of her being happy there are certainly slim. If we could afford it we would send her to a boarding school, but beside the expense there is the consideration that we need her here to help out with the housework and baby care.

Denise Moody, Difficult.
"My husband has been all patience and kindness up to now, but now he is beginning to suffer from Denise's moods, as we all do. Last night he spoke to her sharply at the dinner table; it had been a cold, long dragging winter day for everyone, the house for some reason was chilly, dinner wasn't quite a success and all these things contributed to shorten tempers and cloud the atmosphere. Anyway, Denise had hysterics, left the table and refused to return even at Betty's coaxing.

"I myself am a writer," the letter concludes, "and I realize you know some of my books. But my imagination refuses to cope with a situation in which a mother and daughter are completely out of sympathy. This child is only 13; she cannot leave home, and apparently she cannot be happy in her home. I reason with her, I ask her to make it a matter of prayer, and she looks at me with a long, bored yawn and says patiently, 'Oh, please, Mother.' Will you pretend that this is one of your stories, and bring it to your usual happy ending?"

My dear Marian, I don't think this is a matter for imagination to solve; it is a question of supreme diplomacy on your part and character on that of Denise. Denise is suffering from jealousy; first of the man who took her loved father's place, second of the charming step-sisters and third of the babies who replaced her in your affections. All these feelings, infinitely ramified, are making life intolerable to her, and being 13, she can't see any way out for what seem to her ages and ages. Quite naturally you admire the pretty musical Betsy, quite naturally you and their

Crime Continues to Increase, J. Edgar Hoover Reports

A major crime was committed in the United States on the average of once every 18.7 seconds in 1946, reports J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Principal crimes reached a total of 1,685,203 last year. Every 5.7 minutes during 1946, there was a murder, manslaughter, rape, or assault to kill. The 1,685,203 major crimes were not only the greatest number in 10 years, but were also 119,652 more than in 1945, according to the survey just released.

During the average day, 36 persons were slain, 33 raped and 185 others feloniously assaulted, every day also brought 172 robberies, 981 burglaries, 630 automobile thefts and 2,580 miscellaneous larcenies.

The only decline in major offenses between 1945 and 1946 was a 4.8 per cent decrease in automobile thefts; nevertheless, 26 cars were stolen every hour last year, the majority by youths of 20 and under.

UNHAPPY DAUGHTER

When parents are divorced, the children are divided in loyalty, bewildered, embarrassed. A sensitive girl, like Denise in today's story, suffers a great deal, particularly during the trying years of adolescence.

Denise is 13 and lives with her mother, who has remarried. The girl quarrels with her step-sister, Betty, who is 18. Two younger children, a brother and sister, complicate things further. Denise does not want to help with the work or the baby-tending and is moody, resentful, jealous and unhappy.

Because her father is married again, this time to a "flighty, hysterical woman," there is little likelihood that Denise would be any better off with him and her stepmother.

Denise is getting to be a serious problem. Her stepfather is beginning to lose patience with her. Miss Norris suggests a way out, however, that should be satisfactory to everybody.

Miss Norris advises that Denise be allowed to board at the home of some schoolmate. Here she would have companionship and would be free from the constant frictions that are now besetting her. She would have a chance to develop her own personality unfettered.

father rave over the baby daughter and son; meanwhile poor Denise forgets things, breaks things, falls over things, blots things, burns things and of course feeds hate and resentment all the time.

Let Her Visit Father.
Possibly a visit to her father's home might help her see this situation in a saner light, but that is unlikely. She and her stepmother would not be friends, and domestic slavery for the two half-brothers there would repeat the miserable situation of your own nursery. If she became desperately unhappy under her father's roof, and felt that she could not return to yours, it is not improbable that she would take her own life, causing you a lifelong remorse, no matter how justified you feel now in the course you have followed.

So I suggest that you look over the list of her school associates and find one whose mother could take her in as a boarder for a while. This means that you would pick a humble home, with housework to do. But Denise would be on her own, and if I know anything of these shy and awkward, ill-adjusted youngsters she would blossom forth in colors that would amaze you. With a constant companion of her own age, with no painful contrasts between her and an older girl, with no burning jealousies to poison everything she says and does, Denise will develop far more normally and happily than she can in your care.

The charge for this sort of young boarder is light; perhaps as low as $7 or $8 a week. It will be worth it to you to make this experiment; she and her housemate will do their homework together, chatter of school affairs, bake cookies, go to Saturday movies and live their own satisfied lives. I have known several cases where this plan worked a real miracle, and I heartily recommend it to you.

Teen-Age Marriage
More American girls are married between the ages of 15 and 19 than is the case in Canada, western Europe or Australia.

Twelve per cent of the young women in the United States are under some time between their 15th and 19th birthdays, it was noted, while the figure is only 6 per cent for France and Canada; 4 per cent for Italy, Belgium, Portugal and Australia; and 2 per cent for England, Wales, Scotland, Sweden and the Netherlands.

Millions Find Healthful Fresh Fruit Drink Gives Them All the Laxative Aid They Need

Don't form the habit of depending on harsh, gripping laxatives until you've tried this easy, healthful way millions now use to keep regular.

It's fresh lemon juice and water taken first thing in the morning—just as soon as you get up, the juice of one Sunkist Lemon in a glass of water. Taken thus, on an empty stomach, it stimulates normal bowel action, day after day, for most people.

And lemons are actively good for you. They're among the richest sources of vitamin C, which combats fatigue, helps resist colds and infections. They supply vitamins B₁ and B₂, aid digestion and help alkalize the system.

Try this grand wake-up drink 10 mornings. See if it doesn't help you Use California Sunkist Lemons.

Future Planning

An elderly couple had been sitting in front of the evening fire a long time without speaking. At last the husband inquired, "What are you thinking about?"

To which the wife replied: "I was just thinking how long we have lived together and that it couldn't go on forever like this and that the time will soon come when one of us will have to go."

"Yes," assented the old man, "but it is no use to worry about that now, Mother."

"No," was the calm reply, "but I was just thinking that when it does happen, I would like to go to California to live."

New Foreign Policy Foreshadowed

Marked Historical Import Attached to Aid Program

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—One of the hardest things to recognize is history in the making. We often live through moments of catastrophic and cataclysmic significance, yet while the vital seconds are ticking off, our only immediate impression is the limited effect on ourselves or on our close surroundings.

We have all lived through a period which has been filled with some highly significant events, beginning with the outbreak of World War I. We celebrated the armistice on November 11, 1918; we watched the progress of the peace conference, and then followed the train of international events which culminated in V-E and V-J Days and the founding of the United Nations.

All this was background for another event which took place as the idea of March 1947 approached. I refer to the enunciation of a new American foreign policy—which may prove to have far greater historical significance than any of the other happenings I mentioned.

As one observer put it: "If the President's message (urging aid for Greece and Turkey) is implemented to the full of its implications, it may be another Monroe Doctrine—a foreshadowing of a pax Americana with a hundred years peace—such as the pax Britannica provided—or, it may be a declaration of World War III."

Either eventuality would make it the most important event in modern history. If it should establish a hundred years of peace, it could easily form a permanent peace. If, on the other hand, it signalled another World War, it would mean the twilight, if not the sunset, of civilization.

President Truman and his advisors felt the policy must be enunciated. And far-seeing people realized that America must shoulder the major responsibilities that Britain had carried so long as the most powerful of the English-speaking family of nations, and which she no longer is able to carry.

True, we have started to create an organization—the United Nations—which is supposed to make it impossible for any single nation or group of nations to disturb the peace. But to carry out its job, the United Nations must have an international police force. Until the United Nations has the force to back up the will of the majority, that single nation which can muster such power will decide the course of the world.

We have that power. Potentially, so has Russia.

The proposed American foreign policy has behind it only one idea. That is to keep the power for peace in the hands of what we call democracy.

There has been doubt expressed by some as to whether the program outlined by the administration would serve this objective. The majority of leaders in both parties eventually may avoid it.

I heartily believe in the United Nations, and I feel positive that if a major conflict can be put off long enough, the United Nations eventually can be made strong enough to outlaw aggressive warfare effectively.

Pledging our wealth and sinew to protect Communist-threatened countries seems our only hope.

AGED STUDENT . . . The old saying that one is "never too old to learn" is an actuality for James George Nicklen, 79, former plumber and seaman, who is now a student at San Francisco Junior College. Respected and gray-bearded, Nicklen attends classes in anatomy and chemistry, although he is from 55 to 60 years the senior of the majority of his classmates, three of whom are shown here with him.

NEWS REVIEW

New Atom Board Urged; Red Menace Spotlights

REDS:

Threat to America

More so perhaps than before, eternal vigilance is the price of freedom, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover warned the nation in describing the Communist threat to the American form of government.

Addressing the house un-American activities committee, Hoover declared that the Reds in this country constitute a small but closely knit group seeking to overthrow our democracy and substitute an iron-clad dictatorship denying the principles of religious worship, political freedom and economic opportunity. He pointed out that only 25,000 Reds worked in the United States in 1937 and there is a larger proportion of Communists at present in the U. S.

Hoover called for relentless prosecution of the Reds found violating the laws of this country. Putting Americans on their guard, he said the Reds were unceasing in their efforts to subvert labor unions; spread Communist doctrines in the schools, and prey upon foreign language groups.

Besides infiltrating established radio channels, they also are trying to set up outlets of their own. Under direction of party leaders, they are prolific letter writers and expert at organizing pressure campaigns for some cause favorable to leftism. Since 1935, they have been especially active in the movie industry, Hoover said. In addition to trying to take over Hollywood unions, they have sought to get a foothold in the writing and productive ends of the business.

HOW ABOUT WAR?
Q.—Will there be another war?
A.—Wars arise from the desires of men. Within each man normally there is a desire to get ahead, to excel and conquer. Now man has not been able to civilize these desires within himself to an extent where he can live in peace at home. How can he do on an international scale what he cannot do on a national, state or local scale? We agreed wars always have arisen, the last few from weak nations but many from strong nations, and it would be impossible to prevent wars by simply making strong nations weak or weak nations strong. We agreed that, yes, there always will be wars.

Q.—Is education essential to happiness for man?
A.—The questioner was nearly shouted down. Of course not. The happiest people most frequently are the least educated people. One fellow said he never had seen a discontented cow. But we also agreed that education enables man to attain higher appreciations of life, to enjoy more things.

Q.—What is the best religion?
A.—This stumped us for a while. We finally agreed that it was what religion you believed in. If you were born in it, you would very likely seek in its realm for your inspirations and spiritual solace. But one of our group held out against a unanimous decision without reservations (in a way like the Supreme court, which writes three concurring opinions). He said he believed in the religion of nature.

GOD AND THE UNIVERSE
Q.—What in the world is the religion of nature?
A.—The theory of God as manifested through Christ and the scriptures, but not necessarily by any particular church. It is the theory that God created the universe in which there exists the spirits of both good and evil. Nature itself is a struggle for survival, a struggle for existence in a well balanced conflict. It is a test, you might say, its elements are both good and evil. In man himself there are both good and evil inclinations. Thus nowhere in this world is there perfection, only a conflict of these simplest forces in which every man must be tested.

Q.—But is this a religion or simply an observable philosophy?
A.—It is the foundation of all religion, except anti-religions like atheism which teaches that man is god. Therefore, all religions are philosophically good and teach a sound philosophy of life urging man to improve himself. We all agreed man must believe in something or he will lack inspiration totally. If he believes man himself is god, or in a religion of self alone, he will lack any greater inspiration than himself that would only answer the yearning of ego, which is a dangerous thing, whereas religion answers the yearning of man for a greater inspiration.

RUSSIA HAS COLLECTED
The American news dispatches from the Moscow conference said our delegation was "embarrassed" and "the Americans shifted uneasily in their seats" when Molotov pulled from the secret files of the past, the Yalta agreement, promising Russia half of 20 billion dollars reparations from Germany. There was no valid reason for any reasonable person to be embarrassed. The truth is Russia probably has taken more than her allotted half already.

She took the paper off walls, machinery which we had to recapture to run the Berlin subway, everything she could lay her hands on. Of course, no one outside Russia knows the itemized list of it, items taken secretly as they were, behind the iron curtain of censorship. But certainly any baby knows enough was taken to keep anyone from being embarrassed about reparations.

In the peace talks the Russians put reparations first. They want a united Germany with assurances of a steady flow of payments.

MINERALS:
The enormous drain on United States ore sources during the war period has left the country short of 22 of the 33 essential materials for waging war, experts warn. Seven of the 22 scarce minerals can be supplied in part by Canada and Mexico.

Among seven minerals that must be imported, if we are to have adequate stock-piles, are copper, mercury, cadmium, bauxite, quartz crystals, fluor spar and graphite.

Asia and Africa must supply the remaining eight essentials. These are vanadium, antimony, tungsten, manganese, chromium, tin, gold and industrial diamonds. In case of war these sources might be cut off.

Representative Shafer of Michigan, member of the armed services committee, commented, "Our short supply of strategic raw materials makes it vital for our foreign trade negotiators to explore all possibilities of our getting the needed items in return for any credits or reciprocal trade advantages."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

PEOPLE'S INTEREST TURNS TO RELIGION, PHILOSOPHY

WASHINGTON.—Three or four of us were sitting around chewing the fat, and an ex-marine said right to my face he wondered if people were really interested in reading columns any more. He said the old Washington chit-chat about who was fighting whom, or prophesying dire things which never happen—well that sort of stuff did not seem to be wanted by so many people in these perilous times. I failed to blush, but put on my best puzzled expression. He went on to say he had dropped past a bookshop, and had found the window filled with literature about mental health and happiness, and how to get along in the kind of world we live in—get along pleasantly as we can by our inspirations and thoughts, religions, ideals. Philosophy was what the people wanted, he said, good, simple every day reasoning on the plain philosophy of life. They all looked at me.

My philosophy is to keep quiet about such matters and profit in my own thoughts by what others say, but they were in earnest and troubled about questions such as whether there will be another war, whether the unions have captured the Republicans, or vice versa, and where is it all going anyway, so I suggested to them a recipe for the troubled ex-serviceman. We started with questions and answers.

HOW ABOUT WAR?

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Hospital Service

More than 115 nationally known organizations, together with many local groups, now are cooperating with Veterans' administration to bring community life to patients in veterans' hospitals in an effort to restore self-confidence to sick veterans through normal association with citizens of the community.

In 87 VA hospitals the program has developed to the point where a voluntary service committee is coordinating the work of all groups involved.

All of VA's 13 branch offices have committees at work, while a national advisory committee, working with the VA central office in Washington, is outlining general policies and setting up standards for volunteer workers with the hospitalized patients.

Represented on the national advisory committee are the American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary, American National Red Cross, American Women's Voluntary Services, Inc., B'nai B'rith, Disabled American Veterans, Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, Jewish War Veterans and its auxiliary, Masonic Service association, National Society of Service Star Legion, United Service Organization, Inc., Veterans of Foreign Wars, Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, Women's Overseas Service Legion and Military Order of the Purple Heart.

Questions and Answers

Q. Can you tell me how many automobiles have been given to veterans who lost a leg or legs during World War II under the law recently passed for that purpose?—J. L. W., Winamac, Ind.

A. Veterans' administration says it has paid invoices for 8,713 automobiles, indicating that many have been delivered. More than that number probably have been ordered since the 13,790 veterans who lost the use of one or both legs have been certified as eligible to receive automobiles or other conveyances, and over 10,000 sales agreements have been approved by VA. The $30,000,000 appropriation made under Public Law 663 for this purpose expires June 30, 1947.

Q. Does the government pay for medical services for a veteran while he is attending school under the G.I. bill? My son has been in bad health since his discharge from the army and as a result he has been sick a great deal of the time since he entered school. How can I find out about this?—Mrs. K. M. W., Brockton, Mass.

A. While the servicemen's readjustment act of 1944 makes no special provision for medical treatment, your son would be entitled to any free governmental medical service which he would ordinarily receive as a result of his military service. Or if a fee is charged in his school, then he is entitled to such medical service as is given for this fee. For instance, if his illness is a result of or aggravated by his service in the armed forces, he would be entitled to an examination and possibly a disability rating by Veterans' administration. Suggest that he contact his nearest office of VA and ask for a medical examination. They will determine whether he is entitled to free services or a disability pension.

Q. My son had not completed his elementary schooling when he was drafted into the army. Is it possible for him to complete this schooling upon his discharge?—Mrs. A. G. M., Sikeston, Mo.

A. Yes, he can complete elementary school, although it is possible that as a result of his army training he may not be required to finish and may be passed by his school to his next grade of high school. Your school officials can advise you.

Q. If a war veteran of World War I has remarried and has a former wife with alimony still payable, who will be eligible for a pension, the lawful wife or the former wife?—Reader, Chattanooga, Tenn.

A. The lawful wife will be eligible, ordinarily, for pension, although the former wife still is entitled to alimony while the husband is living, if alimony is being paid under a court order.

Q. We would like to know, if possible, just how many employees Veterans' administration has on its payrolls and whether or not VA is adding new employees or firing them.—A. J. and D. M. C., Fayetteville, Ark.

A. The civil service commission says that as of January, 1947, Veterans' administration had 224,852 paid employees, of which 223,039 were in continental U. S. This number is an increase of 2,430 over the December total. The total number employed in Washington, D. C., was 14,515.

Q. I believe that you answered a question some months ago with reference to whether a widower of a World War II veteran is eligible to receive compensation or pension under the G.I. benefit laws.—Reader, Hamilton, Ohio.

A. Yes, we did answer that question and the answer is no. A widower is not eligible to compensation or pension based upon the death of his wife who was a World War II veteran. A widower, however, is eligible to receive unpaid disability compensation or pension which accrued prior to the death of his wife.

Saving of Primitive Area Urged

New facing Uncle Sam's Chief Forester Lyle F. Watts is a question almost as hotly disputed as German reparations at the Moscow conference. As guardian of the nation's great national forest wilderness areas, he has to give a yes or no answer fairly soon.

Watts' headache concerns the San Geronimo primitive area in Southern California's San Bernardino National forest—one of America's few remaining remnants of the honest-to-goodness wilderness which conservationists hope to preserve for future generations.

For several years, the skiers who like to ride up-hill so they can get the most out of their down-hill sport have fixed their sun goggles on the fine snow slopes deep within this primitive area. Not all skiers, mind you—some like San Geronimo to be a deep, cool woods, a large green meadow, Dollar and Dry lakes, icy streams, a challenging vista of Mt. San Geronimo and the lofty summit of the peak itself—and they like to ski there. But others prefer a touch of civilization—ski-tows, a highway into the place, a hotel-resort near by. So the California Ski association, with help from the National Ski association and the California State Chamber of Commerce, sponsored a proposal to build the highway and accommodations for a big ski resort. It looked as if San Geronimo would be about as primitive as television and cooking with electronics.

But the Forest Service was keeping an open mind. After all, it might be better to devote San Geronimo to more primitive skiing. So last December the service announced a 90-day intention of changing the area's classification as "primitive." This cleared the way for going ahead with the skiing developments. The Forest Service principle is "the greatest good for the greatest number in the long run," and most of those who know about the issue concluded that, based on such a thesis, this bit of the primitive was gone with the mustache cup and the Model T.

The service called a public hearing in San Bernardino which turned, somewhat to their surprise, into what Variety calls a "boff" performance. So many people showed up that the civic auditorium had to be engaged for two days instead of one—and, as in congress, the sessions lapped over until evening. Supporting the skiers' proposal were the California State Chamber of Commerce, the California Ski association and 18 ski clubs. That was about as expected.

It was the determined opposition that raised eyebrows. The opposition included the skiers who like their sport in the raw, along with church group representatives, with summer camps at the edge of the primitive area; spokesmen for water companies who wanted the area kept in wilderness so as to conserve its watershed values for orange growers down the valley. In between were the hikers, the sportsmen, women's clubs, nature lovers, natural science groups (the area has six forms of plant life that grow nowhere else) and civic clubs.

Then there were the letters pouring in from all parts of the country both in its California office and in Washington had to resort to the mimeograph machines to answer them. The letters voted overwhelmingly against civilizing the area via ski-tows and hotels. Now it's up to Watts.

"We think now that the primitive area will surely be preserved," says Howard Zahmsier, editor of the magazine, "The Living Wilderness." "and with a victory in this issue we shall certainly be all the better able to muster support for the Forest Service in guarding other threatened areas in our national wilderness system. But we have no doubt about the future of San Geronimo. We hope that San Geronimo will become even more attractive for wilderness skiing than it is."

Leaping in front of railroad trains was the favorite form of suicide in Japan last year. What, no hari-kiri?

Considering poor Italy's troubles, she isn't lucky having to take back "Lucky" Luciano.

There was never a good war nor a bad peace, said Franklin, but unfortunately it's not a case of the worse the war, the better the peace.

OPTIMISM PREVAILS

Large Crop Acreage Predicted

WASHINGTON.—Optimistic over soil conditions and improvements in farm labor and machinery situation, farmers are planning the largest acreage of crops this year since the wartime peak in 1944, the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture reports.

If favorable weather prevails during the growing season, recent record production of many important crops is expected to be broken this year.

Although slight decreases are expected in acreages of wheat, corn and potatoes, larger acreages are indicated for soybeans, sugar beets, beans, peas and other crops, the crop reporting board says.

The aggregate acreage of crops now planned would exceed the acreage of last year by 2,300,000 acres and that of 1945 by nearly 1,000,000 acres. It would, however, be 7,400,- 000 acres below the wartime peak in 1944.

The country's corn crop will be grown on 2,400,000 fewer acres than last year, according to growers' March 1 plans. The total of 87,599,000 acres farmers intend to plant to corn this year is down 5,300,000 acres from the 1935-45 average. Except for 1941, it is indicated to be the smallest since 1894 when the nation's corn acreage still was expanding.

A record-breaking wheat crop may be in the making, it was indicated. Although the acreage planted to spring wheat is expected to be slightly less than last year, this will be offset by a near record acreage of winter wheat sown last fall.

Shifts in wheat acreage in important states almost balance to indicate prospective plantings of a slightly smaller acreage of all spring wheat.

The greatest decreases in oats are shown in the Northern Plains states, Minnesota and Texas, with smaller decreases in Michigan, Ohio and New York.

In the North Central states, the main barley producing area, the acreage is expected to increase 3 per cent. Wheat has tended to replace barley, the U. S. plans embodied in the southern part of the Corn belt.

Sharp flaxseed acreage increases are indicated for all the important producing states. In the North Central area, where 85 per cent of the 1946 crop was produced, farmers intend to plant 71 per cent more flax than last year.

Acreage increases in soybeans are expected in all important producing areas. Largest increases are reported in states and local areas where soybeans are grown mainly to be harvested for beans.

LAST LOVER

By Helen Taylor Phillips

Julia McFarlane, whose husband, Richard, disappeared in World War I, leaving her to raise two children, Ric and Jill, is startled when 25 years later, during the second war, he returns and tells her he is using the name of Captain Mackey. She marries Sandra Calvert, a divorcee whom Richard knew to be of bad reputation. She arrives at the farm to live and recognizes a picture of Richard as that of Mackey. She and Jill quarrel and she demands $10,000 that night Captain Mackey arrives, telling Jill, who does not know who he is, that he is taking Sandra to Ric. He tells Jill about the daughter he lost and she tells him about her father. Sandra refuses to leave with him.

CHAPTER XX

"All right," she snapped, harshly. "What's the payoff? There is one, I suppose? You didn't come here out of the goodness of your heart, Rod Mackey?"

He looked at Jill and smiled one-sidedly. "She doesn't trust me!" he drawled. "She thinks there's a catch in it."

"Maybe she has had some disillusioning experiences," Jill said. "It could be that she hasn't always known the right sort of people."

"Never mind the kind of people I've known!" Sandra cried, hoarsely. "At least no trickier hell has ever fooled me yet. Just tell me the gag, that's all. I hate blundering into things. I suppose the Gestapo has been abroad, and right now is the dramatic moment to produce the fatal papers? If you'd only given me one more day, Rod Mackey! One more day, and a very elaborate military reputation might have gone crashing down in some very dirty ruins! But you knew I wouldn't have had time to prove anything, didn't you? You worked fast!"

"What on earth is she talking about?" Jill demanded of the captain, her eyes bewildered.

"She's displeased with me, Jill," he said, blandly. "I happen to know a few facts about a divorce our Sandra once got in a little smelly town called Piedras Negras, in Mexico. Back in 1927, I think, wasn't it, Sandra? Or was it '29? She bought the divorce cheap, the way you buy things in Mexico, cheap stuff you wouldn't look at in this country, and she didn't look too carefully at the divorce. And of course after she married Lieutenant Colonel Calvert, and then collected considerable alimony from him, and now that she's married into the McFarlane family, she'd like to forget the divorce and never hear anything about it again. That's why she'd like to cut my throat right now, if she had something handy to do it with."

"You mean—the divorce wasn't any good?" Jill asked. "But if it wasn't—"

"He doesn't know a thing about it!" snapped Sandra. "He's bluffing. Trying to force me to do what he wants me to do."

"Unfortunately for you, my dear girl, I'm not bluffing. I have, to quote you, the fatal papers. Now, if you don't mind, I'd like to get started. I'm still in the army, I'm still under command. And it's getting late."

"All right, I'll go," she said, "but not with you. You can take me as far as a bus station. Well, you can relax now, Jill. I'm taking my obnoxious person out of your house. You won't be degraded any more. You—you poor, blind little fool!"

She whirled away and went pounding up the stairs. Jill sat down abruptly. She was feeling weak and queer as though she had just watched something die.

"I—wish you'd stay until Mother gets here," she said, faintly. "She'll be disappointed at not seeing you. And—is it true about Sandra's divorce? That it wasn't legal or something?"

"Her name happens not to be Sandra," the captain said. "Her name was Hattie Schoeffle when she was married to a boy named Bordine, in Kearney, Nebraska. Then she tired of him and got into burlesque, and after that into vaudeville, and a few years ago she showed up in San Antonio and attracted a young Major Calvert, who wanted to marry her. So she got this quick divorce in Mexico and didn't bother to discover that the official who signed it hadn't taken his oath of office yet, or remember that she'd been married as Hattie Schoeffle, and divorced as Sandra Laverne—mere legal details but quite important. Of that she still wants Sandra, after she gets her marital status straightened out. We can't do anything about that. We can only hope that the war will make him somewhat wiser than he is now."

"I'm glad," Jill said. "It's a nasty thing to say, but I'm glad. She couldn't have made Ric happy, possibly. She's self-centered and so is Ric—they'd have ruined each other's life."

"Will you give your mother a message from me, Jill?"

"Of course. But they should be here any minute."

"A soldier's time is not his own, you know. But you can tell your mother not to worry about Richard. I think he's coming through this business all right. I think he has good stuff in him, in fact I'm sure of it. He's his mother's son."

An Old Beau
"I'll tell her. But what shall I tell Mother about you?"

He smiled, slowly, and that same look of far places, of things long remembered, of bewildered loss came again into his eyes. He reached for Jill's hand and held it.

"Just tell her that an old beau came to call," he said, striving for lightness. "One of her dandling adorers—she used to collect them the way a honeysuckle gathers bees. Just remember that, Jill, if she gets tough on you. You tell her that one of her last lovers came—in fact I believe I was the last."

Before my father, of course. I'll tell her, Captain Mackey. I'll tell her that her last lover came to call, and I do thank you for concerning yourself with our family problems. I know that my mother would like to thank you, too."

"Just give me a kind thought now and then, will you, Jill? I'll need it, where I'm going." He heard Sandra's feet on the stairs and bent down quickly and kissed Jill on the cheek. "That's for my own daughter," he said, huskily.

Jill stretched herself quickly on tiptoe and drew his head down and kissed him on the mouth.

"And that," she whispered, "is for my father! Good-by, Captain Mackey."

Sandra came, dragging her bag down, looking small and somehow frightened. She said, "Well, good-by, Jill. I suppose this makes you very happy indeed."

"No," Jill shook her head. "No. It doesn't. It makes me a little sick, Sandra, if you want the truth. I don't like you very much, but I hate having it end this way. Good luck, anyway. And good-by again, Captain Mackey."

"I may write to you soon—I may have something to tell you," Sandra said grimly.

Captain Mackey picked up her bag and took her arm brusquely and hurried her out. At the door he turned and looked back at Jill, a long look. Then he flicked a little salute—the same gesture that Spang made—and went out.

Jill sat limp and shaken when the car had roared off down the drive. So actually, Ric and Sandra were not legally married at all! And a miraculous coincidence that Captain Mackey had known that, had known Sandra, and most amazing of all, that he had been enough interested in a mere private like Ric, to come all the way from Ridley Field to take Sandra away.

She wondered what would happen to Sandra now. But women like Sandra always got along. They knew their way about. She stopped bothering about Sandra then, for Dave's car had turned in at the gate, and she heard voices—two men's voices—it couldn't be—

She flew to the door and across the porch. They were getting out of the car, and Dave grinned at her and said, "Here's a dirty looking tramp we found downtown, Jill. He was asking the police how to get out to Buzzer's Hill, so we just brought him along. Ever seen him before?"

Reunion With Spang Gordon
Jill gave a choking little cry and flung herself at the tall figure in the flung flying jacket.

"Spang!"

He caught her and held her tight. He kissed her gravely on the mouth. "Pure dumb luck!" he said. "Just a routine flight—my navigator had to get some more hours in the air, and right over this town the doggone oil line busted! Glad to see me, Jill?"

"Oh, Spang!" She shivered happily. "You did come back!"

"How about turning the man loose so he can wash his face?" Dave teased. "You've got grease on your chin and your nose, too, Jill."

"I know Spang must be tired and hungry," Julia said. "I'll see what can be found in the kitchen. Get some clean towels, Jill. I'm going to make some coffee. Would anybody like a cup? It will be reclaimed, mostly, but not too bad."

"Put my name in the pot." Dave dropped into a chair and rapped out his pipe.

Jill led Spang upstairs to the bathroom.

"Sorry I'm such a mess," he said, pulling off the oil-soaked flight jacket, "but I worked an hour on that line before I gave up and decided we had to wire for some spare parts—lucky they had that little landing field out there, wasn't it?"

"Awfully lucky you didn't have some spare parts along, too, wasn't it, Spang? Or you'd have had to fix whatever it was and go on."

"Be noon tomorrow or maybe later before we can finish repairs. Depends on how fast they get the stuff to us. So I divided the gang up as watches for the plane, and the rest of us struck out for town, and just as I was asking that sleepy cop down there on the main corner where a place called Buzzer's Hill was, there were your mother and Mr. Patterson pulling out of a parking spot, and the cop took me over to the car. Talk about my lucky star! Here I am!"

"And we have twelve hours, anyway," Jill said happily. "Come down when you're ready, Spang. Mother's getting something for you to eat."

They sat around the kitchen table while the Spang devoured scrambled eggs and warmed-over biscuit smeared with dewberry jam, and drank coffee with thick cream in it and smoked Dave's cigarettes—his own having taken on an oily flavor—and talked.

"If the C.O. could see me now," he said, "he'd swear I smashed that oil line on purpose! He'd give me a long lecture and remind me of those fellows on the other side who bring the big babies in on two engines and one of those on fire, and all that stuff."

"You didn't have the English Channel under you," Dave said.

"Oh, I'd put up the routine argument. I was trying to save an expensive plane and an expensively trained crew for the air corps. They concede that you're right, usually, but they have to get you on the defensive first, just to get you to defend your decisions, probably. Is there one more drop of coffee in that pot, Mrs. McFarlane?"

"I'll squeeze the handle hard," she said, smiling at him. Then she looked unhappily at Jill. "We're frightfully rude," she said. "Jill, we should have asked Sandra to come down."

"Sandra Calvert? She's here?"

"She was married to Richard," Julia said. "She came today. I guess it's yesterday now. Ric was shipped off somewhere and he sent her home to us."

Spang was looking at Jill with a troubled face, but Jill had jumped up and stood frozen with consternation.

"Dooley!" she cried. "I was so excited over seeing Spang that I forgot to tell you Sandra's gone!"

"Gone?" Julia repeated incredulously. "Jill, you weren't you didn't—"

"I didn't do anything," Jill insisted. "She got rather nasty after you left, and we exchanged a few acid remarks, but nothing was serious. Then suddenly this officer came for her. He is a captain at Ridley Field, Dooley, and it seems he knew Sandra in Hawaii and other places. I met him when I went down there. He said he used to know you, Dooley. His name was Captain Roger Mackey."

Julia gripped the edge of the table. She would not let her legs crumple under her, she would not let herself cry out. She put out a hand to Dave, as though she felt herself sinking, and the quick pressure of his hand on her arm steadied her.

Spang said, "Old Cyantide! So he came here, did he?"

"You know him, do you?" Dave asked, moving around the table to draw the younger crew away from Julia while she got hold of herself.

"Yes, sir, he was a personnel officer at the field. Not very popular with the men, when I was there. He'd been a major at Hickam Field, and after the mess last year over there they demoted him to captain."

"He said at first he was going to take Sandra to Ric," Jill explained, "and then when she refused to go, he sprang some Mexican divorce she'd had on her, it seems Ric was her third husband, Dooley—and this Captain Mackey said he was quite sure the Mexican divorce wasn't legal and that she wasn't married to Ric at all. She was pretty badly frightened, I could see. She tried to keep Captain Mackey quiet with some vague threats or other, but he made her go. I'm so sorry you weren't here, Dooley. He said he was an old beau of yours."

Julia had dropped into a chair. She looked funny, Jill was thinking, surely she wasn't sorry that Sandra was gone.

"Yes, I'm pleased," she said, faintly, "but I'm sorry Sandra went away when I was not here at least to say good-by."

"Odd that Mackey concerned himself about Ric," Spang said. "Maybe, of course, that he was somehow involved with the Calvert woman."

Dooley Receives A Message
"Oh, no!" Jill protested quickly. "He isn't that sort of person, Spang. Not that sort at all. And Sandra hated him. She told me so. She didn't really want to go with him. I got the feeling that she was somewhat scared. I think he knew more about her than he told me. He left a message for you, Dooley. He said to tell you that you weren't to worry about Ric, that Ric was going to be all right. He talked about his daughter that he lost, and I told him about my father, and then he said I was to tell you, that your 'last lover' came, Dooley. He said he was quite sure he was the last—before my father, of course. Dooley, you look funny. Don't you feel well?"

"Too many things have happened to Dooley all at once," Dave said, patting her shoulder.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Let Vegetable Chowder Be Your Spring Tonic! (See recipe below.)

Vegetable Tonics

Instead of dousing yourselves with sulphur and molasses or whatever preparation is your favorite spring tonic, why not make a complete change in the menu and concentrate on vegetable dinners for spring?

The vitamin and mineral riches of these dinners will do much for your morale and their gay and lovely colors will perk up wilted appetites. Vegetable dinners can be substantial if planned around a hearty main dish. You also can substitute them with a good protein food like eggs or add delicately broiled bacon to complete them if you want a taste of meat.

Fried Tomatoes in Cream Gravy. (Serves 6)

- 6 large, ripe tomatoes
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 4 tablespoons butter or substitute
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 1/2 teaspoons granulated sugar
- 3/4 teaspoon meat sauce
- 1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard

Cut tomatoes in half, crosswise. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon of the flour, 3/4 teaspoon of the salt and pepper combined. Sauté in butter until golden brown and tender on both sides. Arrange all but two slices on a hot platter. Stir remaining 3 tablespoons of flour into the butter and tomatoes left in skillet. Add remaining salt and other ingredients. Cook until creamy. Pour over tomatoes and serve at once.

Stuffed Onions. (Serves 12 to 18)

- 8 onions
- 1 cup bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons tomato pulp
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 teaspoons parsley, chopped
- 2 tablespoons pimiento, chopped
- 2 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup cooked celery
- 1 teaspoon salt

Wash and peel onions. Cook until slightly soft in boiling water. Rinse in cold water to make firm, then push out centers. Place onions in a well-greased baking dish. Mix remaining ingredients together and fill each onion cavity with the mixture. Bake in a hot (400-degree) oven for 20 minutes.

Baked Carrot Loaf. (Serves 6)

- 1 1/2 cups diced, cooked carrots
- 1 1/2 cups cooked or canned peas
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 1/2 tablespoons melted shortening
- 3 eggs, well beaten
- 1 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients in order given. Pour into a well-greased loaf pan or square dish and set in a pan of water. Bake 50 to 60 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven or until knife in center comes out clean. To serve, cut in squares. This may be served with cheese, white or egg sauce.

LYNN SAYS:
Use Hints to Make Household Easier

To brighten gilt frames, take enough flower of sulphur to give a golden tinge and add 1 1/2 pints of water. In this boil 4 or 5 onions for a short time, then let cool. Strain off liquid and, using a soft brush, scrub gilding which needs restoring.

Do not push together shower curtains immediately after bathing. Let them spread until dry or they will mildew.

Restore drooping flowers by cutting off a piece of the stem diagonally. Then plunge into hot water for three minutes without letting the blooms come into contact with the steam. Plunge into fresh, cold water into which have been placed a few ice cubes.

Place thumb tacks on the corners of pictures when hanging them to prevent dark streaks that usually form around the wall area covered by pictures.

If muffin batter is overmixed, the muffins will rise in peaks and burst open.

*Recipe given.

Creamed Asparagus on Toast. (Serves 2)

- 1 tablespoon butter or substitute
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 cup milk
- 2 hard-cooked eggs
- 8 cooked asparagus tips

Melt butter, add flour and milk, cooking and stirring until thickened. Add sliced eggs. Place asparagus on toast and pour sauce over all.

A chowder made with a milk base and plenty of vegetables can also take the place of a meaty main dish. Serve this with a salad and your main course will be complete.

*Corn and Vegetable Chowder.

- (Serves 6 to 8)
- 4 slices bacon
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups potatoes, cut in 1/2-inch cubes
- 1 cup string beans, cut
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 2 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 3 cups milk
- 1 cup carrots, cut in strips
- 1 cup celery, cut in thin slices
- 2 tablespoons dried green onions
- 1 No. 2 can cream style corn
- 1/2 cup smoked cheese, rolled in balls

Sauté bacon in large saucenpan until crisp. Drain on absorbent paper, crumble when cool. Drain off all but 2 tablespoons of the fat. Stir flour into the fat. Combine potatoes and string beans with fat and flour. Add water and simmer for 10 minutes. Add salt, milk, carrots, celery, green onions and corn. Simmer for 10 to 15 minutes more, or until the vegetables are tender but not mushy. Stir occasionally. Serve with cheese balls which have been rolled in bacon bits and dropped into hot soup. Any remaining bacon bits may be added to the hot soup. Serve with wafers or crisp crackers.

*Tropical Salad.

- (Serves 10)
- 1 package mint gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 cup cold water
- 1 apple, sliced
- 1 banana, sliced and diced
- 3 slices pineapple, diced

Add boiling water to gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add cold water and fruits. Pour into mold and chill. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise thinned with fruit juice.

Brussels Sprouts with Mushrooms

- (Serves 6)
- 1 qt. cooked brussels sprouts
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup water drained from sprouts
- 1/2 teaspoon beef extract
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Sauté sprouts and mushrooms lightly in butter. Cook butter and sugar until well browned, stirring constantly. Add stock and stir in sprouts and mushrooms.

Relieved by Western Newspaper Union.

Rub cut glass with a piece of lemon to restore its luster.

Use a suds of mild soap and water rather than oil or polish for cleaning leather-covered furniture.

To clean white paint, rub with a damp cloth which has been dipped in oatmeal.

To ice cake easily, keep dipping the knife in hot water while applying the icing.

A lump of sugar placed on cheese stored in the refrigerator will prevent its becoming mildewed.

Boiled eggs will be easier to shell if you add a heaping teaspoonful of salt to the water in which they are cooked.

When making fudge, let the pan stand aside after cooking until the bottom feels comfortable to the hand. Then beat it until creamy. This will prevent the candy from being grainy.

Have a pair of kitchen shears handy to cut and trim lettuce and other vegetables.

Place leftover bread crumbs in a bag and save for use in breading fish, chicken, chops or cutlets.
