

Volm-Becker, Other Nuptial Rites Read

Enroute to points in northern Wisconsin are Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Volm, who were married Friday, May 30, at 9 a. m. in St. Matthew's church, Campbellsport, by the Rev. A. C. Biber. Mrs. Volm is the former Miss Rosemary L. Becker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Becker of Campbellsport. Mr. Volm is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Volm, Kewaskum.

Music for the double ring ceremony was provided by the children's choir, James Becker and Roland Stoffel, brother and cousin of the bride, were acolytes.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a simply designed gown of white broadcloth featuring a high neckline and hipline peplum which extended to a long fan shaped train. The long tailored sleeves ended in points over the hands with numerous tiny buttons at the wrists. The imported illusion finger tip length veil, which was worn by the bride's mother for her marriage 24 years ago, was held by a fluted illusion headpiece of pearls. White roses individually encircled with illusion net comprised the cascade bridal bouquet. A crystal rosary, gift of the groom, completed the bride's attire.

Moire taffeta gowns identically designed to that of the bride, were seen in the three young women attendants. Miss Darlene Keding of Lomira, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor, wearing a gown of powder blue while the two bridesmaids, Mrs. Robert Kleiber of Campbellsport and Mrs. Robert Volesky of Allenton, sisters of the groom, wore jonquil yellow. Their hip-length peplums draped to a point in the center back. White broadcloth nylon gloves and jonquil colored flowers attached to braided headbands completed their costumes. In their arm bouquets were yellow and white carnations and white daisies.

Paul Becker, brother of the bride, served as best man and Robert Kleiber and Robert Volesky were groomsmen with Carl Volm and John Hessler ushering.

Dinner for the immediate relatives followed the ceremony at the bride's home where an afternoon and evening reception was held for many relatives and friends.

Since her graduation from St. Agnes School of Nursing, Fond du Lac, with the class of 1946, the bride served on the nursing staff there.

After June 10, the couple will reside at 5049 North 7th St., Milwaukee.

FELENZ-HINTZ

June roses and candelabra decorated the chancel of the Immanuel Ev. Lutheran church, town of Scott, for the wedding of Miss Betty Hintz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Hintz, R. 1, Adell, and Gordon P. Felenz, son of Mrs. Martha Felenz, R. 1, Kewaskum. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Gustav Kanless on Saturday, May 31.

Mrs. Ervin Krautkramer and Fred Buechel rendered two songs, "Where Thou Dost Go" and "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

The bride wore a gown of sheer marquisette appliqued with seed pearls and fashioned with a fitted bodice and long train. Her long veil of illusion was caught to an orange blossom tiara and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley centered with a gardenia.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Marion Hintz. She wore a marquisette gown of periwinkle blue with long gloves and a cluster of flowers to match as a headpiece. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The bridesmaids, the Misses Lois Brottmiller, LaVern Siegfried, Corrine and Cordell Stange and Mrs. Gerhard Schwenzen, were attired in marquisette gowns of yellow, green and pink. They wore long matching gloves and matching clusters of flowers in their hair as headpieces. All carried mixed bouquets of gladioli and roses.

Lynes W. Felenz served as best man for the groom, while Gerhard Schwenzen was groomsmen. Ushering were Reuben Harter and Berno Felenz.

The newlyweds will be at home after June 6 at 118 5th Ave., West Bend. The groom is employed in the payroll department of the West Bend Aluminum company at Hartford.

BOETTCHER-TROTT

Zion Lutheran church, town Wayne, was the scene of a wedding at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, May 24, when vows were exchanged by Irene Trott, daughter of the Harry Trotts, R. 1, West Bend, and Earl Boettcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Boettcher of R. 3, Kewaskum. The Rev. Walter Nommensen officiated.

The bride wore a gown having a white satin bodice and bouffant skirt of marquisette trimmed with Alencon lace. Lace also trimmed the long train of the gown and her finger tip veil which fell from a head piece of tulle and orange blossoms. She carried calla lilies. Her maid of honor, Miss Doris Trott wore a gown of yellow marquisette over taffeta with a matching head piece. Her flowers were pink roses. Miss Marion Jung served as brides-

Utensil, Belle Game Sunday is Postponed

The clash for first place in the Kettle Moraine league Sunday between the Kewaskum Utensils and Campbellsport Belles, scheduled on the latter's field, was postponed because of rain as were all other contests in the circuit. The Utensils made the trip to Campbellsport but an all-afternoon rain made playing impossible.

The unbeaten Belles and Utensils were joined by another team in the tie for the lead on Memorial day when Adell beat Belgium, 10-2, in a game postponed from the Sunday before. Adell also has won 2 without a setback. All of Sunday's postponed contests will be played on the 4th of July, an open date in the schedule.

This Sunday Kewaskum meets another tough cookie when they play Sheboygan Falls of the northern division there. There are seven teams in each division of the league, leaving one team in each division with an open date each Sunday. Kewaskum and Sheboygan are the odd teams this Sunday and so meet each other.

Farm Hand is Killed Instantly When Hit By Car at New Fane

William F. Raddatz, 73, of Random Lake, a farm hand employed on the George Schlosser farm at New Fane, was instantly killed when he was struck by an auto driven by Glen Ireland Jr., 19, of Wauwatosa, as the victim was walking along County Trunk, DD near New Fane, town of Auburn, at 8 p. m. Friday, Memorial day.

It is reported that Ireland, named on a warrant charging negligent homicide, pleaded not guilty before Municipal Judge Hazen W. McEsey at Fond du Lac Saturday morning and was released on a $500 bond furnished by his father. Preliminary hearing was tentatively set for 10 a. m. June 6.

Traffic Officer George Lemieux of Fond du Lac county investigated the mishap and signed the complaint leading to Ireland's arrest. According to the officer, Raddatz had just completed the chores on the Schlosser farm, Kewaskum, Route 1, and was walking toward New Fane to visit friends. Raddatz had been working on farms in the vicinity of New Fane for many years. He was walking on the right side of the road, according to Officer Lemieux, when Ireland's southbound car struck him.

Raddatz was hurled on top of the car's hood and then thrown 14 feet to the side of the road. He suffered a fractured neck, cuts and face bruises, and a fractured left arm and right leg. He was pronounced dead by a Campbellsport physician called to the scene by Lemieux. Ireland's car traveled 51 feet after the impact, Lemieux said.

Lemieux charged that four persons were riding in the front seat of Ireland's coupe at the time of the accident. Ireland was accompanied by Gwelon Dreifka, 19, and Beverly Parent, 18, of Milwaukee, and Paul Gore, 19, town of Greenfield.

The youths had been tearing the Kettle Moraine area during the afternoon, Lemieux learned. They were on their way home when the accident occurred. All were lodged in the Fond du Lac county jail overnight, but the passengers were released Saturday morning. Ireland's father represented his son during the court appearance.

The victim's body was removed to the morgue at Fond du Lac where it was held to be claimed by any surviving relatives. Funeral services were held at 10 a. m. Wednesday at the W. A. Biddings funeral home, Fond du Lac, J. E. Murray in charge. Burial was in Ruenzi cemetery there.

99 Receive Diplomas at Rural Graduation

An unusually large gathering of the friends of the rural schools greeted the young people who completed the course of study for elementary grades at the commencement Sunday, June 1, at the McLane grade school, West Bend.

Ninety-nine boys and girls of Washington county passed the examination and County Superintendent M. T. Buckley conferred common school diplomas on them which will admit them to high school without any further examination.

Mevin Riley, principal of the Jackson state grade school, acted as chairman in his usual efficient manner. He gave a very excellent interpretation of what commencement means and then introduced Attorney Thomas O'Meara who gave a very practical presentation upon the responsibilities of every member of the graduating class to go on and secure more experience to fit them for the responsibilities of life.

Rev. Julius Braun of the Evangelical church gave the prayer and invocation. Mrs. Marjorie Schall and Miss Mary Jane Ehotka pleased the audience with solos. Both young ladies rendered their selections admirably. Margaret McCargo of Girl Scout Troop 15 gave the Pledge of Allegiance.

Apply for U. W. Extension Course at West Bend June 13

Formal application for admission to the West Bend extension center of the University of Wisconsin, which will open Sept. 22, contingent upon sufficient enrollment may be made at the West Bend public library during the afternoon and evening of Friday, June 13, it has been announced by Supt. M. G. Batho.

Prerequisite for enrollment in the West Bend extension center is high school graduation and recommendation for admission to the University of Wisconsin by the high school principal or superintendent.

Veterans enrolling under the G. I. Bill of Rights will receive all benefits provided by the bill which includes tuition, text-books, supplies and full subsistence.

Credits earned in the West Bend extension center carry full value at the University of Wisconsin and will also, upon request, be transferred to any other accredited university or college which the student may later desire to attend.

Subjects to be offered in West Bend are of the freshman year only and are as follows: English, social science (history and pol. science), mathematics (college algebra and engineering math), geography, foreign language and engineering drawing.

Those interested in having the freshman year of the University of Wisconsin continued in the city of West Bend this coming year are urged to make application on the above date.

Additional information may be had at any time by calling the office of the West Bend high school.

FIREMEN CALLED TO WAYNE TAVERN PROPERTY TUESDAY

The Kewaskum firemen were called to the Al. Schneider place at Wayne about 2:30 p. m. Tuesday where sparks from a rubbish fire set fire to a barn. Mr. Schneider, with the assistance of neighbors, had the fire out when firemen arrived although a hole big enough to walk through had already burned in the building. The fire could have been a very serious one as the barn is an old frame structure and would have burned readily. It stands only a few feet from a frame dance hall and tavern owned by Schneider.

FREE MEN IN A FREE LAND . . . In a typical setting like this, "The Village Storekeeper" was filmed to epitomize the democratic way of life. (1) A peaceful sylvan setting in the Maine countryside. (2) The old Webber homestead. (3) The village storekeeper in person. (4) The village store itself, focal point of the film. (5) The town meeting, symbol of democracy. (6) School time in a country town. (7) Kapt expressions indicate widespread interest in the town meeting.

AMERICAN WAY OF LIFE

Country Store and Townsman Star in Drama of Democracy

WNU Features.

Long regarded as one of America's most cherished institutions, the country store and the life which centers around it are being utilized to demonstrate the American way of life to people in all parts of the world.

Through the medium of the movie camera, democracy in action will be graphically portrayed to a world anxious to learn more about Uncle Sam and the mode of life followed by his ever-increasing family. Uncle Sam, state department officials concerned with promoting foreign relations insist, is anxious to be a good neighbor to other folks in all parts of the world. However, in many cases, his efforts are met with suspicions and misgivings. On the theory that "misunderstandings arise from a lack of understanding," the foreign relations experts were assured that if people could see in their own lands and hear in their own tongue about life as it is lived in the United States, they would understand.

Message of Democracy.

Accordingly, they determined to utilize the movie camera as a means of showing people of all races in all lands how we live and what we do. Eager for knowledge of this country, these people would see with their own eyes democracy in action; they would hear in their own tongue the story of the American way of life.

Through its embassies and consulates, the state department will show the film throughout the world. To carry America's message of democracy around the world, the state department sought a community to epitomize the typical small town of the United States as well as democracy in action.

The search centered in Maine.

Why Maine? For answer, boosters point to the motto, "The State of Maine Helps the State of Mind." Once said, oft repeated, that quotation pays tribute both to gifts of nature and to a way of life which must live in the hearts and mind of men if the Four Freedoms are to endure.

Nestled among the pine-clad hills and fertile valleys of the Pine Tree state, the town of Waterboro was selected as locale for the film. Here the folks live close to the "grass roots of America," and the country store plays an integral role in their daily existence.

Steeped in History.

Waterboro, a small town of a thousand odd people in southwest Maine, is steeped in history. Long before the ink had dried on patriots' signatures in Independence hall sturdy pioneers had struggled inland from our northern coast. Campfires of the Abenaki warriors disappeared, and by 1770 several families had grouped their cabins in a corner of what came to be known as Massabasic plantation in the County of York, Province of Maine, Colony of Massachusetts. The influx of settlers continued and soon their homes dotted the sides of Ossipee mountain and the low hills and valleys which ring the shores of Ossipee pond.

Now Boy Meets Girl, College Relaxes Rule

LEBANON, ILL.—Breaking a tradition invoked 78 years ago when women first were admitted to the institution, coeds and boys now may sit together in chapel services at McKendree college. Hitherto the coeds were separated from the boys by a row of empty seats. The coxys, Dr. William Walton, college historian, explains "was followed by the Puritans in their services."

Animals Double Up In Housing Crisis

CHARLESTON, W. VA.—Wildlife, as well as humans, frequently must double up to meet the housing shortage. Everett V. Price, state game protector found a den with both rabbit and groundhog tracks leading into it. Passing the same spot later, he saw a groundhog sitting on one end of a nearby log and a rabbit on the other. Both darted into the den when they spotted him.

weekly pay from the mills. The storekeeper has to be a shrewd judge of human nature. He must trade to advantage, keep his customers satisfied and watch his own credit standing. Too much business "on the cuff," as the natives say, might put him out of business.

Spirit of Neighborliness.

A phone call shatters the peace and quietude of the village store with the disturbing news that a neighbor is in trouble. He fell from a load of hay and has a broken leg, and at this time a broken leg means a broken man. Who will get in the rest of his hay, cut the heavy stand of corn, harvest the garden crops. Who will cut the winter's wood and store it in the shed? Who will milk the cows and help with the chores while the broken leg is mending?

Lee Owen knows the answer because he knows the people. He and the county agent, who goes from home to home giving the farmers the latest in scientific advice to help them in their work, know that every neighbor will be a good neighbor, particularly in time of adversity. In the true spirit of neighborliness and friendliness which has been handed down from generation to generation, willing hands will "carry on" for the victim in the true American way.

There's more to the story of the "Village Storekeeper" than the store itself and its role in community life; more than neighborly helpfulness, children trekking to the village school, church bells ringing on Sunday morning.

In filming the production, the director, Frank Donovan of New York City, wanted to leave something vivid, something arresting in the hearts and minds of those who saw the picture in foreign lands.

Example of Democracy.

To realize this objective, he showed democracy in action through the form of a New England town meeting. To the old Meeting House on Bradeen's ridge, which for a century and a half has echoed the voices of men to whom the freedoms of religion and speech came as a birthright, the townspeople trudge for the session.

Here are the same people who trade with the village storekeeper, the folks who work in the mill, in the woods and on the farms. The storekeeper and the country doctor share a bench. The moderator, who has charge of the meeting, lets his gavel fall and the session comes to order. Free men go about the business of running their own affairs in a free land. The meeting is orderly, each has a chance to speak his mind, decisions are made and the majority rules.

This evidence of democratic government climaxes a film devoted to a portrayal of the American way of life. It's the way folks live in the land of "The Village Storekeeper"—the way folks should live everywhere. That is the message of the film which Waterboro and its people are presenting to the world.

War Vet Gets 'New' Home in 39 Minutes

FARGO, N. D.—It took only 39 minutes for the weathered, yellow house of E. W. Milker, disabled war veteran, to become a gleaming, white one. As part of the city's clean-up campaign, 20 union painters volunteered to paint the house. The men claim they would have finished the job sooner if the shingled top half of the house had not slowed them down.

Kathleen Norris Says:

The Escape Marriage

Red Syndicate—WNU Features.

"He raves and shouts—and in the evenings drinks, until there is no home spirit or peace at all."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

I AM 16," writes Floretta Howe from Oregon. "Six years ago my mother had an affair with a married man—I will call him Harry—which caused talk that even as a little girl I understood only too well. A little later both were divorced, and my mother married Harry.

"My father, devoted to me, was without relatives and had to travel a lot in connection with war supplies, and consequently I have lived since with mother and Harry. They have twin girls, of whom I am very fond, Patricia and Shirley. "Dad has married again and lives in Alaska; my stepmother is foreign-born, intensely nervous and jealous, and there are difficulties for all three of us when I live with them.

"Mother and Harry have quarreled continually almost from the first; he is a hot-tempered man, and can never be crossed even in the slightest particular without making a scene. There are scenes at breakfast and at dinner and all day Sunday. If a door is open or if it is shut, if the twins make any noise, or if mother sends them upstairs to prevent noise, it is all one to Harry, he raves and shouts—and in the evenings drinks, until there is no home spirit or peace at all.

"If any woman comes in for a few minutes to see mother, he is like a child, interrupting and distracting her, and is always angry afterward. He is stingy with money, but wants a good table and to have her and the children looking well all the time. I am dependent upon him, and although I do work hard as nurse, bed-maker, cook, dishwasher and all the rest of it, he reminds me of my obligation to him almost every day.

"My mother was so desperate a few months ago that she told me of her plan to divorce him. We said we would open a boarding house, a school, anything, rather than go on this way. But a severe cold last winter, combined of course with fatigue and nervous pressure, resulted in rheumatism, which has made her almost helpless. She does what she can, from her chair; I do all I can, and the rest simply doesn't get done, so that Harry is in a state of fury most of the time.

A Marriage Offer.

"Meanwhile, a college friend of my father, 43, well-fixed, and always like a kindly uncle to me, has lost his wife, has a boy of 10, and wants me to marry him. His devotion is unquestioned, and I do love little Pete. Barney has two good servants in his house, as well as a cousin his age, who is his office nurse, and Pete has lunch at school, so that my duties would not be hard. I have received my father's willing consent to my marriage, and while, on my side, it would not be a girl's ideal of young love, yet I do want security, peace, the pride of being wanted and filling a place in someone's home and heart, that I think I could promise that Barney never would be sorry.

"Barney has been 'Uncle Barn' and his cousin 'Aunt Phyllis' ever since my babyhood; they want me, and God knows I want to go to them. But there is mother, and the three-year-old twins. Will you advise an almost distracted girl as to what is right? I will be 17 in September. I don't dare even broach the plan to mother, much less pack my things and kiss her and the little girls good-by. Barney's house, a lovely old-fashioned place in a gar-

"I am almost distracted . . ."

A WAY OUT

Sometimes a loveless marriage offers the best way out of an almost intolerable situation, Miss Norris believes, when there is security and peace to be gained. She is advising a 16-year-old girl who writes that she is "almost distracted."

Floretta Howe of Oregon lives with her mother and stepfather, whom she calls "Harry." This man has a violent temper and a determination to have his own way. Besides this he is stingy, demanding and a heavy drinker. Life with him is miserable, Floretta complains.

She has a chance to marry a friend of her father's, a kind, well-off man, who lives nearby. This friend is a widower, 48 years old, while Floretta is approaching 17. She likes his little girls. The comfortable house, the servants and other advantages of wealth would all be hers, as well as release from the painful present situation, if she would accept this proposal of marriage. Miss Norris advises her to take this step and gain what security and happiness she can at once.

den, is only a block away. He sees me every day, but mother suspects nothing, and I am afraid it would break her heart. She is gentle and lovely and only wants everyone to be happy."

This letter is signed, "tearfully, Floretta." And to Floretta I say in answer, that I have given her problem some thought, and my definite advice is for her to marry Barney, stay on in her mother's house for a week or two, then break the news and move to her new home.

Happy Possibilities. I tell you this, Floretta, for several reasons. The main one is that nobody is doing particularly well as things are now. With a lovely home only a few minutes walk away, you can use your mother daily. You can come in with flowers, a bowl of berries, a new book. You can carry off the small half-sisters for long afternoons of play at Barney's house. You can do infinitely more good to these three than you can as the drudge and dependent of an undisciplined tyrant of a man.

Harry meanwhile will have to find some sort of servant for your mother. He will growl and criticize her less than he did you. He won't dare antagonize and anger her. You will be the dignified, and I believe truly and completely happy, little wife of a wiser and kinder man, in whom both your parents trust. From the outside you can do a thousands helpful things for your mother that you cannot do now.

There is another consideration. Your mother took a lover when you were small and sensitive and could be deeply hurt by it. She separated you from your father and broke up your home. That you have remained sweet and considerate under the circumstances is far more to your credit than hers. She wrecked your life without much concern for your comfort. This safe, sane marriage gives you a protector, a home, affectionate companionship, and may easily lead to a deep, true married love. My best wishes are with you.

Federal School Aid

Urging the federal government to give more aid to states for education of children, George J. Hecht, publisher of Parents magazine, told the house education committee that "if children were cattle they would be getting a much squarer deal from Uncle Sam."

"The federal government," he said, "appropriates many times as much money for the welfare of cattle, hogs and other farm animals as it does for the education of children."

Mohammedan Church Control of State Feared by Turks

Turkish newspapers are warning of the danger of an attempted revival of Mohammedanism as an influence in secular affairs, which they call no less a menace than Communism. Terming it "the green danger"—the green is Islam's sacred color—the newspapers say the religious movement is gaining sympathy and support in Moslem and Arab countries. Predicting dire perils if the movement should gain power, the newspaper Cumhuriyet said: "They will put millions more in chains." The religious movement in Turkey is headed by an arch-nationalist, Hamdullah Suphi Tanriover, an influential member of the Peoples' party. The movement was muzzled 20 years ago by the late Kemal Ataturk, who separated the mosque and the state and laicized the country. Since the recent easing of the press law, the movement's publications have mushroomed.

How It Started

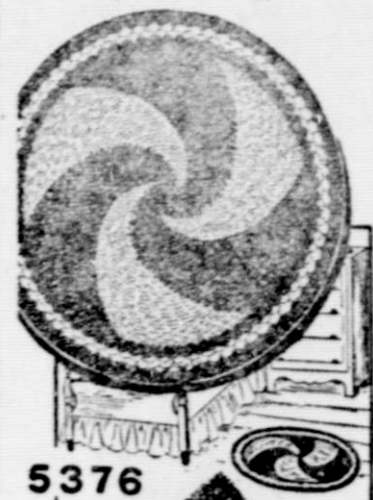

By THE GREAT HORN SPOON originated among the early American sailors. The cook's galleys in Colonial days were provided with a supply of spoons made of horn, and used for lading out food for the seamen.

POUND CAKE—Old recipes for this kind of cake listed many of the ingredients at a pound of this and a pound of that.

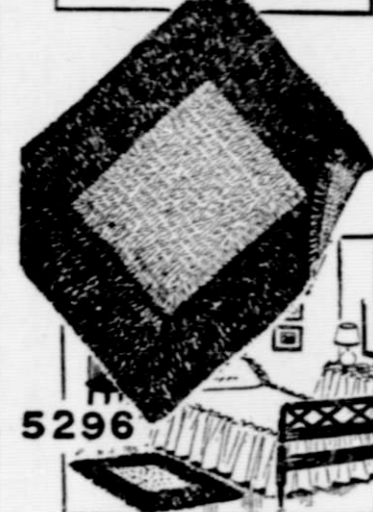

SOUBDOUGHS—Pioneers used to keep a keg of "sourdough" on hand to make bread while camping. This dough was made of flour, salt, water and a little vinegar to hasten fermentation. It was kept in the sun to ferment. When there was no sun, the pioneer took his keg to bed with him to keep it warm.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

In buying fish, select the ones with bright bulging eyes, if you want tasty ones.

Have several round pot holders on hand as well as square ones. These are very handy for removing pies and puddings from the oven as there are no corners to drop into the food and make the holder sticky.

Soak table linens to be laundered in clear cool water before placing them in hot suds. The cool water will help remove stains before hot water sets them.

It's all right to leave opened canned goods in the original tins cans in the refrigerator for a short period. But cover the can to prevent absorption of other flavors and odors.

Corned beef, tongue, and fish dishes are given an unusual zest with horseradish salad dressing. Combine one-half cup cooked salad dressing or mayonnaise with two tablespoons grated horseradish to achieve a new dressing.

Lunch-box vegetables (such as carrot strips and celery) stay fresh longer if they're sliced small enough to fit into a waxed paper cup. An ice cube in their midst will keep them ice-box fresh. This will make a hit with lunch-box diners.

Obliging Fellow

The welfare committee of the town decided to form a band, and those wishing to join were instructed to fill out a form. Among those who did was the blacksmith, and he was now being interviewed.

"I see you would like to join the band, and that you would prefer a cornet," said the welfare official. "Have you any particular qualifications?"

"No," said the blacksmith, "but I'd like to learn, and I could put in a good bit of practice."

"The funny thing is," said the official, "that I have forty names here, and you are the only one who wants to play the cornet. All the others have asked for the big drum."

"Well, don't spoil your band for me," said the blacksmith. "Give me a drum as well!"

Red School of Sabotage Exposed

Soviet Trains Foreigners To Wreck Own Countries

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—It was one of those strange, foggy nights that sometimes descend over the eastern part of America—not like a London smoky fog, nor the clean white stuff that rolls in like giant breakers so artistically against Yerba Buena in San Francisco bay, nor yet like the mists on the rice-fields, nor the clammy North Atlantic "weather" that drips over crow's-nest and quarterdeck, turning ship and sky into cold, wet drizzling steel.

The point is that I was stranded in York, Pa., (mentioned recently in these columns for his hospitality to veterans). It was simply hopeless to try to inch along through the condensed milk that enveloped us. I knew I was a general host-ess; try there, so we edged up to it, were decanted and, sure enough, met no less a person than Junius Wood, lolling in the lounge.

Of course, you are likely to meet Junius Wood anywhere, on an attic in the Pacific, tapping his pipe into the crater of Mount Vesuvius, fording a fjord in a borrowed car, lost in Grand Central or sipping vodka in the Kremlin. So it wasn't strange to find him in York, Pa.

As I write these lines, I have just left Mr. Wood (at the National Press club this time). He informed me that some of the former "students" about whom he writes in the article quoted below testified recently before a congressional committee. Rep. Karl Mundt of South Dakota read Wood's article into the Congressional Record, thus making it a "public document."

"Today a lady who signs herself 'Just Mary' writes me saying that I should pretend I'm a 'nice old Beagle hound' and 'keep that beaver' of mine 'pointed down the middle of the road.' She claims I have the 'darndest habit of 'schroochin' over to the right.' I hope the following won't hurt her feelings.

Here are the quotes from the Wood story, which originally appeared in the April issue of "Nation's Business" under the title of "Trained to Raise Hell in America." Background I know was gathered by Wood while he was reporting from Russia and I was bending over a copy desk in the old Chicago Daily News office whither Junius directed his daily dispatches:

"Attention, ambitious young men and women," says Wood. "A well-established and liberally endowed university offers you free courses in the art of sabotage, bomb making, kidnaping, train wrecking, bank robbery, fomenting armed mutiny—and other techniques of violence and treason. Scholarships cover all expenses, including recreation the annual vacations at summer resorts. This university is the West Point of world revolution—the International Lenin school in Moscow. This university teaches the youth of other lands to go back home and wreck their countries. Over the years it has trained and returned to the United States an estimated 800 disloyal Americans. They are the leaven of some 50,000 Communists and 100,000 pinks in our land; they are the high officers of a secret army now being drilled to overthrow our government and social order."

Wood describes the super-secret surroundings of the school, and what happens to Russians who get curious about it (Siberia or the firing squad) and goes on to describe the hush-hush atmosphere into which a student is inducted:

"With matriculation, each student takes a revolutionary or party name by which he will be known in Communist circles and outside activities. Mark Aldanov in 'The Fifth Seal' tells of a party worker who had so many aliases he forgot his baptismal name."

According to Wood, the school has a three-year course devoted primarily to intensive indoctrination. But there are also courses in labor activities, party organization and propaganda, as well as military tactics and weapons.

When the student returns to his own country, says Wood, "he must join trade unions or liberal societies—attend all meetings, pay dues promptly, be eager for work, unite others by party discipline until the organization is blindly following the party line in which he (the student) is so well grounded."

Wood points out that Moscow does not consider revolution imminent in this country. But he claims they are preparing for the psychological moment . . . "and these peaceful preparations go on for years through capable party members burrowed into trade unions, public offices, the police force, liberal clubs and other sources of information." When the time comes to attack a city, "the needed knowledge of where to attack to paralyze it will be at hand—even such facts as the knowledge that a watchman has a dog will have been recorded."

"According to the time schedule of the Communists," says Wood, "a city like Chicago could be captured in less than 48 hours."

Despite these frightening words, Wood says this in conclusion: "The Soviet schools for foreigners are not too alarming when they are stripped of mystery. It would be well to know their 800-odd American alumni, also their instructors and what secret plotting is behind the formal handshakes over a conference table or the clink of cocktail glasses at a banquet board. It also will help when they know that we know—an interesting long-range job, our state department and FBI."

End of quotation. These words are the author's and the views expressed not necessarily those of your columnist. But Junius Wood is a source "hitherto reliable" and I offer him for what his report is worth. He assured me today that his sources are "old grads," not necessarily Leningrad and Stalingrad, but real alumni of this somewhat-to-progressive school.

TYRO THESPIANS . . . Roanoke Island youngsters, some of whom have never seen a stage play in their young lives, try out for parts in Paul Green's "The Lost Colony," an outdoor spectacle staged annually in a waterside amphitheater on the North Carolina island. More than 52,000 persons saw the symphonic drama last year in its postwar revival.

NEWS REVIEW

Postal Boost Foreseen; Economists Decry Slump

POSTAL RATES: May Go Up

A measure embodying the first general revision of postal rates since 1929 which would add about 110 million dollars a year to post office revenues has been introduced in the house of representatives.

The bill provides for a 30 per cent increase in parcel post rates and would revise the air mail rate from five to six cents an ounce. In addition, the new plan would add about 30 per cent a year to present rates for second-class mailing of newspapers and periodicals sent outside the county in which they are published.

Another provision would maintain the current three-cent local and non-local rate for first class mail beyond the July 1 deadline when those rates were slated to revert to the former two-cent level.

The new rates would go into effect 60 days after the bill is passed and signed by the President.

READJUSTMENT: No Depression

Not a depression but a price "readjustment" is in store for the United States, the federal reserve board has predicted. Reserve board economists explained that heartening news by pointing out that a downturn in prices is "necessary, healthy and inevitable." The inconsistencies in the national economy, which have arisen out of the fact that our economy is part rigged and part free, will have to be eliminated.

For instance: About 14 million organized workers have derived benefit from the surface and then abandoned as not worth salvaging, the Oklahoma was consigned to the scrap heap and taken in tow for the last long voyage across the Pacific. Suddenly, 540 miles northeast of Pearl Harbor, the tragic battleship listed heavily, as if tired of war and its aftermath, and slipped into the sea, three miles deep at that point, for her final escape from the era of violence that had been her lifespan.

fits through forcing higher wage levels. Twice that many unorganized workers have not shared to an equal extent in the wage increases.

A number of industries, able to control prices, have driven them upward. Others, at the same time, have been held down by government controls.

The main reason that farm and food product prices soared after the war was that there was little else the consumer could purchase. Now, with production making a comeback, the previously scarce radios, refrigerators, automobiles and so on are competing for the consumer's money.

Federal reserve board economists say that farm prices are expected to stabilize about 25 per cent under the 1946 peaks. They also express confidence that they can put the brakes on any further inflation if congress provides the necessary assistance.

GIANT'S DEATH: End of an Era?

The battleship Oklahoma, first of the so-called "super-dreadnaughts," might well be recorded in history as an accurate symbol of the era during which it ploughed the seas for the U. S. navy—heroic but futile.

In her 31 years of steel-clad existence she never fired a shot at an enemy.

Based at Berehaven, Ireland, during World War I, she saw no action; and on December 7, 1941, five Japanese torpedoes sent the sturdy old ship lunging to the bottom of Pearl Harbor before her crew could man the guns.

Raised to the surface and then abandoned as not worth salvaging, the Oklahoma was consigned to the scrap heap and taken in tow for the last long voyage across the Pacific.

Suddenly, 540 miles northeast of Pearl Harbor, the tragic battleship listed heavily, as if tired of war and its aftermath, and slipped into the sea, three miles deep at that point, for her final escape from the era of violence that had been her lifespan.

END THE WAR: Students Riot
Demonstrating violently in open defiance of Chiang Kai-shek's order to quiet down, thousands of university students in several Chinese cities fortified their demand that the civil war be ended immediately by calling for a general strike.

Declaring sternly that the student riots were instigated by Communists, Chiang said they would be quelled forcibly if necessary. There is no man working on a salary who wants to pay $6,100 for a home. There is not a man returning home but who pays four times the price for a place to live and for food, and six times the price for clothes and all pledged that the price of living would not go above the 1942 price. Isn't there some way to stop this grafting?—Mrs. C. S. M., Tulsa, Okla.

A. Of course, there is no direct answer to your question, but many veterans would be glad to obtain a home for $5,100. Prices of homes, food and clothing are determined by economic factors, one of which was the ending of price controls by congress.

Q. My son has been in the merchant marines about two years now and he hasn't sent me any money. I am a widow and not able to work so I would like to know if I am entitled to an allotment every month?—Mrs. A. R., Hermansville, Mich.

A. Such an arrangement of transmitting money to families of men in the merchant marine is entirely voluntary on the part of the men. At the time a man signs on in the merchant marine, he may sign an authority to the company for which he is employed.

Q. I am the widow of F. S., whose serial number was 3357098. He was killed in New Guinea. He left five orphans before he had time to have his insurance changed so his married sisters are getting the insurance. I wonder if there is any insurance for my baby?—Mrs. R. S., Sylvania, Ala.

A. I take it your husband's sisters were named beneficiary in the insurance. If so, and if he had not changed the beneficiaries before he died, there is nothing you can do except to prevail upon their sense of fairness.

Veterans SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Burial Plans for World War I Heroes

Because of requests which have come into Veterans' administration for burial of bodies of war dead returned from overseas cemeteries, VA has ruled that it cannot permit the burial of these war dead in Veterans' administration cemeteries but must restrict these cemeteries to burials of veterans who die in the 126 VA hospitals.

The war department estimates that approximately 75 per cent of the 250,000 identified bodies of servicemen who died overseas eventually will be returned to this country for final burial.

"If only a small percentage of the veterans who died overseas were to be buried in VA cemeteries, these cemeteries would quickly be filled," Veterans' administration said. VA contends that it then would not have room for those veterans who died in VA hospitals and homes and whose relatives do not desire burial elsewhere. VA now has 16 active cemeteries, operated in conjunction with as many hospitals or homes, which contain space to accommodate approximately 25,000 more bodies. VA also has eight inactive cemeteries where it is caring for 90,500 graves.

Questions and Answers

Q. My husband entered the army on March 14, 1941. Records claim he was okay except for a deformed finger. He was discharged on January 23, 1942. His discharge read "tuberculosis, aggravated." He had his first examination on November 3, 1942, which read, "a rounded area of infiltration at the level of the right third rib in the outer zone about 4 cm in diameter. Impression: Pulmonary tuberculosis which may be active." On January 3, 1946, he executed application for compensation, basing his claim on pneumonia and fever, treated at Camp Hulen. On April 9, 1946, the agency of original jurisdiction denied service connection. He died May 26, 1946, in a veterans' hospital. On May 31, 1946, I executed application for death compensation. On July 10, 1946, the agency again denied service connection for the cause of death. I appealed and was turned down. They say the condition had to be caused or aggravated by the army. If he took it while in service, what else would you call it? He was given a "kill or cure" shot without permission before his discharge. It seems to me he was in a critical condition then. Please advise me what you think about it.—Mrs. J. R. B., Merryville, La.

A. While your husband's case on the face of it looks as though it might be service-connected, the records of the army and Veterans' administration should tell the story. And, of course, I cannot say what took place between his discharge in January, 1942, and his application for compensation in 1946. It appears, however, that your only course of action is to appeal to the Administrator of Veterans Affairs, Veterans' Administration, Washington, D. C. He is Gen. Omar Bradley. You should gather all the evidence you can tend to prove the service connection of his disease and its subsequent cause of his death.

Q. On the question of the home loan for war veterans, why are they required to pay so much for a home? I know three men with three to six years' service who tried to get a loan to buy a home for their families and they have children. They were told they had to borrow $6,100 or they couldn't make the loan. There is no man working on a salary who wants to pay $6,100 for a home. There is not a man returning home but who pays four times the price for a place to live and for food, and six times the price for clothes and all pledged that the price of living would not go above the 1942 price. Isn't there some way to stop this grafting?—Mrs. C. S. M., Tulsa, Okla.

A. Of course, there is no direct answer to your question, but many veterans would be glad to obtain a home for $5,100. Prices of homes, food and clothing are determined by economic factors, one of which was the ending of price controls by congress.

Q. My son has been in the merchant marines about two years now and he hasn't sent me any money. I am a widow and not able to work so I would like to know if I am entitled to an allotment every month?—Mrs. A. R., Hermansville, Mich.

A. Such an arrangement of transmitting money to families of men in the merchant marine is entirely voluntary on the part of the men. At the time a man signs on in the merchant marine, he may sign an authority to the company for which he is employed.

Q. I am the widow of F. S., whose serial number was 3357098. He was killed in New Guinea. He left five orphans before he had time to have his insurance changed so his married sisters are getting the insurance. I wonder if there is any insurance for my baby?—Mrs. R. S., Sylvania, Ala.

A. I take it your husband's sisters were named beneficiary in the insurance. If so, and if he had not changed the beneficiaries before he died, there is nothing you can do except to prevail upon their sense of fairness.

The Home Town Reporter

in WASHINGTON
By Walter Sheed

Beauty of Spring Contrasts With Ugliness of Politics

WASHINGTON has been described as a city within a forest. Certainly to your home town reporter, springtime is the most beautiful time of the year in this most beautiful of all cities. From the first warm days when the cherry blossoms burst into triumphant loveliness, on through the spring, summer and into late autumn, the city is a riot of color from the flowers and blooming trees, and its streets and parks are oases and wide avenues of welcome shade.

This particular day is a lazy, balmy day and out in LaFayette park the power lawnmowers whirr over the smooth lawns. Across Pennsylvania avenue, the slowly whirling sprinklers make the closely clipped White House lawns deep pools of greenness beneath the towering, age-old elms.

As I stand in the shade at the west end of the White House awaiting the call to a Presidential press conference and drink in the loveliness of the White House grounds, gardeners working amid the flower beds, traffic sounds muffled, the heated debate and bombastic oratory on Capitol Hill seem indeed far removed and somehow apart.

But it is there, the pulling and hauling, stresses and pressures . . . labor, taxes, appropriations, politics, 1948 an election year with Democratic national headquarters in the Mayflower hotel pulling the strings one way and Republican national headquarters, with its old red brick Georgian mansion at 1337 Connecticut avenue, pulling the other.

Business Lobbyists

Speaking of pressures, the fight on the house and senate labor bills brought into conflict the most powerful group of lobbyists and the greatest nationwide and local campaigns for and against the bills probably in the legislative history of the country.

Business lobbyists have been campaigning for months, some of them since 1938, for changes in labor legislation, and they likely won out from sheer weight of numbers if for no other reason, for there were 304 business and industrial lobbyists registered and 134 labor lobbyists, a total of 438 registered lobbyists to work on the 831 senators and representatives in congress.

On the business and industrial side, National Association of Manufacturers planned and conducted its campaign on a nationwide basis from Washington and New York. The United States chamber of commerce, with 2,713 member organizations and with representatives in every one of the 435 congressional districts in the country, organized at the grassroots to bring pressure to bear on congress. Chief of the C. of C. campaign was gray-haired, $15,000-a-year Clarence Miles, who has been with the organization since 1929. For NAM, Walter Chamblin Jr., $28,000-a-year vice president, directed the fight to pass the labor bills. He is an ex-newspaper man and has been with NAM since 1938. These two organizations bore the brunt of the fight to pass the labor bills.

A Ph. D. in CIO Camp

For American Federation of Labor, white-haired, 64-year-old William C. Hushing led the fight against the labor bills. He has been working on legislation in Washington for 30 years and is a $7,280-a-year man. He is a former pattern-maker from Litchfield, Ill.

For the CIO only one lobbyist is credited to the national organization, Nathan Cowan, director of the legislative department at $4,280 a year. Probably the top-flight man on the CIO side is young, good-looking Robert K. Lamb of the United Steelworkers, who draws $8,000 a year, has three degrees from Harvard, A. B., A. M. and a Ph. D. in Economics, and has served the CIO in Washington for almost four years. He is a member of American Federation of Teachers, Harvard local.

The AFL conducted its campaign on a nationwide basis while the CIO, like the Chamber of Commerce, operated on the local level by personal contact and mail from the states to congress. The CIO opened its campaign by bringing state delegations to Washington to work on their individual congressmen and senators the week of April 27.

The labor group didn't really get started nationally until along in April when the Hartley bill passed the house. The cards were somewhat stacked against them for they had no control of the 20 southern senators or southerners in the house who voted against them, and then they had the opposition of Ed O'Neal, mild-mannered but tough. As president of American Farm Bureau federation, he is one of the most influential men in Washington. Then there was John L. Lewis. His record and his threat of a new coal strike were no help to labor.

'Loyalty Check' Funds

A supplemental appropriation of $24,900,000 has been requested of congress by President Truman to finance the loyalty check on all federal employees. The President directed that such a check be made in his executive order of last March 21. Since that time, studies of the machinery for conducting the extensive operation, involving some 2,200,000 government workers, and their cost, have been made by James E. Webb, budget director.

War-ravaged Nations Need Food

A few weeks ago a physician said that the British people were starving to death on their present rations. We know what has been happening these past weeks in Germany. Other European countries are in no better position, some worse.

I have seen what being too hungry does. I have seen it in the United States army, on a shipboard and among foreign peoples. It does something to your brain that just can't be explained in terms of everyday, easy American language.

The American people will do their part, collectively, to help the rest of the world over this ugly gulch, partly because we are decent people, partly because we don't want that "something strange" to happen to their brains which will make them the prey of any evil political influence which exists.

The American people, individually, can help in another way. They can send some food to the people whose addresses they know and they can do it efficiently, cheaply, quickly, through an institution called CARE, C. A. B. E. stands for Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe.

It is a non-partisan, non-profit institution which has the blessing of the United States government. Through CARE you can send packages, well packed, containing carefully chosen food of the kind most needed and other materials of which there is a tragic lack.

A $10 food package delivers 40,963 calories. (The minimum ration in Germany is 1,500 calories a day. They aren't getting that.) A blanket package at the same price provides two all-wool army blankets, scissors, needles, thread and two sets of heels and soles for shoes.

A new package, same price, delivered, contains 17 yards of cotton goods, needles, thread, tumbler, scissors and thread. And how they want cotton goods! Clothes are still not available.

Here are the countries to which you can send the cotton package: Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Finland, France, Greece, Italy, Hungary, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Romania and Germany (all zones except Russian).

The food packages can be sent to all the above, plus England, Wales, Scotland and northern Ireland. You'll help Uncle Sam's food problem, too, if you send a package to someone whose address you know in these countries—if you CARE.

EXPORTS MUST CONTINUE

World Food Outlook Is Critical

WASHINGTON.—Because of foreign crop losses, the world food situation will remain critical for the 1947-48 crop year, according to a warning issued by the department of agriculture. Although an increased output among the principal producing nations is foreseen, this gain will be offset by declines in grain production in nations which normally import part of their food requirements.

This shift in the supply picture will mean a "somewhat greater movement of grains in international trade during the coming year if supplies in importing countries are to be maintained at the relative low levels of 1946-47," the office of foreign agricultural relations said.

The gloomy picture was presented as the administration was in the midst of an all-out effort to send additional supplies to both Germany and France to avoid a crisis that could force reduced rations throughout most of northern Europe.

Officials abroad railed at failure of the German government to push properly internal food collection, and charged German producers with hoarding their output. The department sounded one cheerful note in predicting some increase in sugar, potato, and fats and oils production, but reminded that "the supply of all these commodities will continue below pre-war."

'JOE COLLEGE' . . . This is the Japanese version of "Joe College." In the Nippon capital, the smart college lads like to look like something out of the poorhouse. This student wears a tattered suit and sloppy cap and lets his hair grow long.

Army Fears Employers

Because more army reserves than ever before will be called to active duty for two-week training programs this year, army officials are a little afraid of what the reaction of employers will be when they find substantial numbers of employees asking for annual leaves.

So the war department is preparing a memorandum to large industrial employers, explaining the purpose and operation of the reserve training program in order to win their cooperation.

A Working Whistle

Naval research scientists are working on an extremely shrill—all most supersonic—whistle as a device to disperse airfield fogs. The plan is to send out powerful vibration waves with a frequency just at the border of audible sound. Such waves cause fog vapor to gather in larger drops, and when the whistle stops they drop to the ground. Difficulty is that the whistle, which some hear and some don't, causes everyone in the vicinity to feel highly uncomfortable.

The FICTION Corner

SITTING AT THE WINDOW

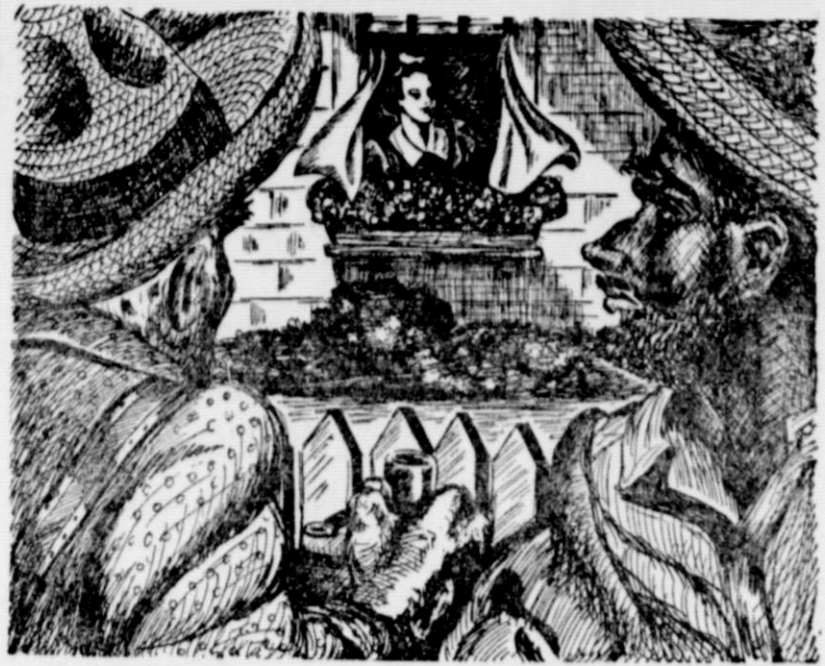

By RUBE GOLDBERG

ACE HAWKINS and Sam McQuade were discussing Grace Leland. Ace and Sam were the roving philosophers of Milldale.

This Week's Best Fiction

Ace spat on the sidewalk and screwed up his face in a knowing grimace. "Maybe she's waiting for one of them rich fellers. Keeps lookin' out the window all the time."

DAVID must have a good car in which his friends could ride and sing and forget to ask questions.

"What's Grace doing here?" asked Sam. "She keeps lookin' out of the window all the time."

must keep giving until she made up for the one thing that was lacking. She found herself more and more noticing automobiles on the street.

She looked in a large display window on Broadway and saw the car. A long, light-blue sedan with the smooth curving sides of a yacht and a tan collapsible top all fresh and youthful and clean like David.

There was only one person to whom Grace Leland could go for three thousand dollars. Thomas Slater had been her friend since the days when no massage was required to smooth out the puffy little bags under her eyes.

Grace looked at her thin wrist where once dangled a wide diamond bracelet. If only she had that bracelet now. She went around to the display window on Broadway and again looked at the long, sleek, light-blue sedan with the collapsible tan top.

She studied the signatures on the many letters Thomas Slater had written her. Then she signed his name to a check for three thousand dollars.

It wasn't forgery because she felt she could explain everything to Slater when he returned from Europe. There couldn't be anything wrong about what she was doing.

When she received David's letter telling her she was the grandest mother in the world for buying him the most beautiful car in the world she choked up with emotion. She decided to go quietly to Milldale to await the return of Thomas Slater.

GRACE opened the inner door and saw the man in the hall. She thought it strange he did not remove his hat. "Are you Grace Leland?" he asked abruptly.

"Well, here's my badge," he said, pulling aside his outer coat. "I'm from headquarters. You forged the name of Thomas Slater to a check for three thousand dollars and cashed it at the Textile Bank and Trust Company. I'm afraid you'll have to come along with me."

Grace's face went white. It could not possibly be as serious as all that. The man just didn't know what he was talking about. "This is a terrible mistake," she almost screamed. "I had to sign Mister Slater's name to the check. There was nothing else to do. He will straighten it all out when he returns from Europe. He has often loaned me money. He's a fine, sweet gentleman. Why, why, Mister Slater and I used to be—"

"Madam, save your breath. Mister Slater died in London last week and the bank has taken charge of his affairs." The man put his hand in his coat pocket and Grace heard a metallic rattle.

"And holdin' hands, too," chuckled Sam McQuade. "Same old Grace."

Why Not Have More Things Three persons called on me last week, all with the same problem. Two were women, the third a man. What all wanted to know is how they could get more out of life.

Neither of the women could play or sing. Neither could swim. The older woman couldn't dance. The man confessed he was a human "dud"—as he put it.

To each I told the same story—the story of Alexander Graham Bell, the man who developed the telephone. Mr. Bell called one day on his friend Joseph Henry, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. His purpose was to lament the fact that he was being held back in his work by a lack of knowledge of electricity.

With two words Mr. Henry disposed of that lament and put Alexander Graham Bell on the road to his great renown and riches, for he said, "Get it."

There's no such thing as an ideal personality or a successful person unless that personality or person is accomplished.

If you want to improve yourself you have to become more accomplished. Learn how to do everything; dance, swim, fish, ride, row, talk about stamps and flowers and books and music and art. Let no subject be entirely foreign to your life and knowledge.

You don't have to be a champion or an expert at any one thing. You don't want to be a champion. It's far better to be a third-rater in half a dozen fields than an expert in only one.

Concentration is the gentle art of controlling the attention. Think of yourself as a normal person, and as such prepare yourself to carry a normal part of a normal world's work. Energy often is wasted by a peculiar process as "getting up steam."

Haste is not a necessary part of modern life, so avoid it if possible. Try to start each day rested, both in body and mind. A well-planned life is made up of well-planned days.

SHORT STORY Majolica Vase

By L. T. McFARLAND

HARRY LANG had come prepared to spend fifty dollars for the vase. He sat nervously watching the auctioneer, the people, and the door and prayed that Marjory Higgins (that horrid spinster who seldom missed an auction, and always outbid him for his treasures) had broken a leg or something so she couldn't appear this time when the Majolica vase was to be put up on the block.

He strained his neck for the hundredth time toward the entrance. He wondered if her knowledge of antiques covered old pottery. Maybe not. Maybe his auction-sparring enemy didn't know a Majolica vase from a beer mug. Yet the very thought of those snapping eyes and that crisp sanguine voice sent his blood pressure soaring.

"What am I bid for this Majolica vase? A rare antique! Rarest thing in this room!" the auctioneer's well-oiled voice boomed forth while his free hand gestured out over wash tubs, kraut shovels, and the toll-worn carpet sweepers.

"There it was! Harry looked about cautiously and held his breath for the sheer beauty of it."

"Who will start the bid?" the auctioneer cooed.

"Five dollars," Harry called out. The girl was nowhere in sight.

"Thank you, sir, five dollars. Who will make it ten?" This the bidding proceeded until thirty was reached.

She pictured her proud exit with the vase safely tucked away.

THE crowd was swaying restlessly. Interest was on the wane. Harry took a plunge. "Forty," he finally said. Now the vase was practically in his lap, but the auctioneer held on. "Forty-forty—is all I am offered—who'll make it fifty—"

"Fifty," called a clear voice near the door.

Suffering cats! It was her voice. The crowd turned en masse to see Marjory Higgins make her way up the aisle to a spot almost directly in front of Harry. She stood there, confidently, already picturing her proud exit with the vase in her possession.

Harry ground his teeth and muttered, "Sixty."

"Seventy-five," the crisp voice came back at once as Miss Higgins tossed a swift challenge back in Harry's direction.

"Eighty," Harry took the challenge, and this time Marjory flushed and seemed embarrassed.

"Eighty," teased the cryer. "Eighty-five, Miss?"

The girl nodded. "Eighty-five." Harry was really seeing red.

"Eighty-five it is. Now make it ninety, Mister, make it ninety. Don't let the lady outbid you."

Harry turned to the crowd to a man was on the lady's side and were inwardly rooting for her, enjoying her sportsmanship—so he raised up and shouted, "Ninety."

Now he had it. The auctioneer scolded and pleaded and begged but Marjory was immovable. She must be putting. She heard the "Going—going—"

THEN it happened. Marjory Higgins whirled about and faced Harry Lang. She was trembling. "You cheap skate!" she shouted. "You penny pincher! It's not the money, but the principle of the thing that burns me up. All this embarrassment over a measly nickel or two. Ninety cents—well, you don't get it for ninety. I bid one dollar. So there! And now that the vase is mine, I'd like nothing better than the privilege of breaking it over your head."

She stepped up to the stand and snatching the vase from the for-ones speechless auctioneer, threw it with all her strength at Harry Lang's dome. Lucky for Harry he had made his record in football catching forward passes. A moment later it lay neatly tucked away under his arm.

"Touchdown," someone shouted and the crowd surged forward pushing Harry Lang until he was face to face with his assailant.

"Thanks, madam. Thanks very much for the vase—the clerk will be along in a minute to collect your bid," he managed as the crowd pressed up. And in the riot that followed, Harry edged his way outside.

Star Dust STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

EZRA STONE was hurrying to an "Aldrich Family" rehearsal when he noticed a vaguely familiar looking man peering at the block-long line of people waiting to buy tickets at the Music Hall.

He was Michael Curtiz, whom Ezra hadn't seen since Curtiz directed the movie version of "This Is the Army," which Ezra staged on Broadway. Curtiz commented, in fancy dialect, that only in New York would people get up at ten in the morning to stand in line to see a picture—and, looking sadly at "The Egg and I" sign, added "And it ain't even my picture!"

EZRA STONE

Incidentally, Stone can have a supervisory post with a major network if he wants it.

Larry Parks, who makes a gag person appearance in "My Awful Wife," playing a movie star, actually sings in the picture. "The Jolson Story" star joins Lucille Ball, Franchot Tone, Edward Everett Horton and several hundred other film players in rendering "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow"—so don't count on knowing how Park's voice sounds when raised in song.

Rudy Wessler, who was Al Jolson's voice as a young boy in "The Jolson Story," sings as himself in a new picture—his soloist with the St. Luke's Boy's Choir, which will be seen and heard in RKO's "Fighting Father Dunne."

"Senator Ford," producer-creator and star of "Can You Top This?" has finished a six-month survey of the jokes submitted to the program by the listening audience. It shows that most of the jokes that got the best laughs were submitted by women. Now he'd like to know why, if women have a keener sense of humor than men, there aren't more professional female gagsters.

MGM's star, "Lassie," becomes the first dog star in radio when "The Lassie Show" makes its debut on ABC in June. Using a Hollywood radio cast in the dramatizations, "Lassie" will appear on each program with her trainer, Rudd Weatherwax.

When Brian Donlevy fell wounded after winning a gun duel with Bill Goodwin in the Seymour Nebenzal "Heaven Only Knows," he hit the spot on the lot where he met his first movie death 12 years ago, in "Barbary Coast." His performance as a black-shirted killer started him on the way to stardom.

People frequently ask Gabriel Heatter where he gets the inspirational stories which are dramatized Sunday nights on his CBS program, "A Brighter Tomorrow." He makes no secret of the source—explains that small-town newspapers are rich in stories with heart appeal. Heatter often reads as many as 200 a day, both because he's looking for material and because he enjoys them.

The most expensive oat field in the world will be seen in 20th Century-Fox's "Bob, Son of Battle"; the studio planted 20 acres of oats about 30 miles from Hollywood—and paid for four hours of watering daily throughout the California summer. So Lon McCallister and Peggy Ann Garner will be seen in technical color against a background of oats that cost about as much as caviar!

Richard Webb, his wife and two children think an ideal vacation consists of roughing it on a tract of land Webb owns not far from Reno.

Katherine DeMille, who has a top supporting role in her father's "Unconquered," worked on the sets three months. During all that period she formally referred to Director Cecil B. as "Mr. DeMille."

ODDS AND ENDS—More than 200 cow ponies are being trained for cavalry maneuvers and battle scenes for Columbia's "The Man From Colorado," starring Glenn Ford, Ellen Drew and William Holden. ABC has come up with some beautiful programming—beginning in September, America's Town Meeting will be broadcast at 8:30, as usual, and the Boston Symphony will follow immediately, at 9:30—fine for those who like serious programs. . . . Parks Johnson, Warner Hull and "Vox Pop" will return to the air next fall on a major network with a new sponsor; till then they'll vacation.

Vincent Price, co-starring with Henry Fonda, Barbara Bel Geddes and Ann Dvorak in "The Long Night," made some extra money while in this Anatole Litvak production—he collected $50 a day for the use of his 1928 Ford, his only car.

Ed "Archie" Gardner is one of the few actors in radio who handles an important part of his own sound effects. When you hear the click of the receiver as Archie talks to Duffy, that's Gardner using a real phone.

Fast Colors

Fastness is an inherent property of the dye itself. There are variations between the different groups and also variations within each class. The dyeing method if properly carried out has little to do with the fastness of a particular color.

Good Gardens

Good gardens are the result of careful planning and hard work. Preparation of the soil, windbreaks, and irrigation are of prime importance.

Shiny Seat: A good sit-down arrangement for a small kitchen is a pull-out board, built under the regular working counter at a level of about 25 inches from the floor.

Hefty Hippo: The hippopotamus, four tons and over, is second only to the elephant in size. It has a hide almost two inches thick, which alone may weigh more than a quarter of a ton.

Fix Old Furniture: Many pieces of old furniture may be refinished for use in bedrooms and other parts of the house, but only pieces that have good lines and good construction are worth the expenditure of time, money and effort.

Fish Food: As to food value, for practical purposes it is common to group fish with poultry and eggs. These foods are all outstanding as a source of protein, and supply iron and some B vitamins as well.

Marine Standard: Maj. Samuel Nicholas, first continental marine officer, in 1775 accepted recruiting officers to accept no candidates for the marine corps except those of dependable and religious nature combined with proper robustness of body.

Feather Fiber: Wigs that look and feel like human hair are manufactured from hen feathers. The process for making fiber from feathers was developed in hopes of finding new uses for the millions of pounds of feathers that are wasted annually.

Nearsighted Kiddies: Improper habits of reading are believed to be a contributing factor in nearsightedness among children. Young eyes are strained by poor lighting, small print and bad posture.
