

CED Scans Reasons for Failures

Impartial Groups Attempt Study of Business Flaws

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—The favorite game in Washington today is a new version of "button, button, who's got the button."
Only for "button" read: Depression, recession, shakedown, readjustment or what have you—if you have anything.
Sen. Robert Taft, as chairman of congress' joint committee on the economic report, had a questionnaire sent out to a long list of business men. The gist of the report seemed to be that there was going to be a business recession, but it was going to be in the other fellow's business.

Baukhage

Frequently it is too much faith in the other fellow's failings and too little regard for one's own that causes business failures. This is especially true of small businesses. Locating some of these "failures" and preventing them was the job recently undertaken and reported on by the Committee for Economic Development.

financing, taxes and competitive opportunity. There are very definite ways in which the business man might be helped in solving these problems, particularly the problem of management. The CED report mentions these: Through advice and counsel from his suppliers; through guidance available from the large trade associations; by means of programs instituted by his own community; through special services which could be provided by established counseling and market research agencies within the means of the small enterprise; more extended research supported by business men and foundations; special courses in universities, colleges and secondary schools, and expansion of the present services offered free by the department of commerce. These are graphically illustrated in the diagram.

Meeting Needs Of Business

Of the greatest problem is how to place before the highly-individualistic, hard-to-get-at small business man the facts, both as to his needs and how to satisfy them. That is up to the individuals in each community who will take enough interest to read the report (available without charge from the Committee for Economic Development, 285 Madison Avenue, New York City) and bring it to the attention of the local business men's clubs, chambers of commerce and similar groups.

The other proposition which is in the making, and which likewise has a purely objective aim, is being carried on by the National Planning Association, which is also a non-political, non-profit organization. The NPA states as its purpose: "Planning by Americans in agriculture, business, labor and government."
Its study, which will probably take a year, is entitled "The Causes of Industrial Peace under Collective Bargaining."
The project is under direction of two special committees composed

CED Furnishes Fair Reports

The Committee for Economic Development has for its chairman Paul Hoffman who, in private life, is president of Studebaker corporation. Directing its research and policy division is Raymond Rubicam, the well-known advertising man.
This organization is highly respected. It has a staff of top-notchers doing the research, and its members lean over backwards to be non-partisan. In fact, at a news conference called here to discuss the report's findings, one reporter became pretty red because he couldn't get Hoffman to comment on the tax situation, one of the hot-spot political issues of the moment.
There are two reasons why CED's latest report (on small business) is significant. One: Like all CED reports, it represents the cooperative efforts of top men in the highly practical field of business and top men in the field of science-political economy; a cooperative effort whose sole purpose is to make America a better place in which to live. There are no axes to grind.

The second reason the report is important to all of us is that today more than ever, in a world of competing ideologies, the perpetuation of our democracy, our system, depends upon the fostering of small business.

Although small business needs assistance, that assistance is difficult to proffer, because small business isn't an "it"—it is three and a half million small business men, all highly individualistic; all as independent and hard to influence as a monkey at the top of a coconut palm. And these disinclined, sink-or-swim, cock-of-the-walkers make up 98 per cent of the firms operating in this country today.

As the CED report puts it: "Small business is more viable and more durable than might be deduced from the hue and cry heard for many years as to the disadvantages under which it labors. Nonetheless, small businesses are confronted with special problems and difficulties that are very real. It is vital to all business and it is vital to all citizens that conditions unfavorable to small business be remedied wherever possible."
The report finds that the problems of the small business man fall into four categories: management, of both NPA members and non-members. One is a sponsorship committee composed of 40 business and labor leaders. The other is the research committee made up of 26 experts in the field.

The idea was explained to a group of us by Clinton Golden, who will direct the research.
Golden explained that what his committee was after was a different approach to the question of labor-management relations.

RAPID GROWTH

Industry Expands in Far West

NEW YORK.—The Far West section of the United States has grown greatly in recent years in population, income, industrial stature and international importance, according to a study in the Index, a quarterly publication of the New York Trust company, just published.

"World War II," the study says, "telegraphed into a few years an industrial expansion in the Far West which might have taken several decades to accomplish even at the relatively fast rate of development some parts of the area had been enjoying."
The war, it is pointed out, brought new factories and facilities to the region, accelerated development of its raw materials, expanded its power supply and increased its population, thereby adding both to its market potential and its labor supply. With its vast store of natural resources and its rapidly increasing population, the Far West looks forward to a continuing post-war industrial growth through development of new products and new markets."

The seven states included in the study are Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

"The Far West," according to the article, "has the largest relative gains in population and income of all the areas of the United States during World War II, and has grown faster than the nation as a whole since 1939, increasing its population by 31 per cent as compared with a 7 per cent increase for the entire United States. Factory jobs in the Far West in the same period rose 68 per cent as com-

NEWS REVIEW

Labor Act Is Effective; Weather Hits Corn Crop

Verging on mental and political exhaustion after a bitter, two-day fight, weary senators voted 68 to 25 to override President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley labor bill.

The action, sustaining a wall-to-wall 331 to 83 house vote to pass the bill over the veto, came on the heels of a final presidential plea to Sen. Alben Barkley (Dem., Ky.) to muster all possible forces in the senate "to prevent this bill from becoming law."
Opponents of the measure needed 32 votes to uphold the veto, and they waged a desperate, last-ditch battle to attain their objective. Final result, however, was a smashing defeat for Mr. Truman at the hands of the Republican-controlled congress.

Highlights of a tooth-and-tongue opposition fight to delay the senate vote as long as possible in order to gain support was an all-night session during which Sen. Glen H. Taylor (Dem., Idaho) held the floor for eight hours and 20 minutes and Sen. Wayne Morse (Rep., Ore.) talked for 10 hours and two minutes. It was the longest filibuster in modern congressional history.

The Taft-Hartley act, which constitutes a wholesale revision of the Wagner act of 1934, was termed by President Truman in his veto message a "shocking piece of legislation" and would put the country a long step on the dangerous road toward "a totally managed economy."

"This legislation would encourage distrust, suspicion and arbitrary attitudes," the President told congress.
FLOODED OUT:
No Bumper Crop
Experts who recently predicted a three billion bushel corn crop this year were hastily revising their estimates in the light of continuing torrential rains and widespread floods which have transformed much of the Midwest into a soggy mass of mud.
Damage has been particularly heavy in Iowa, extending from one end of the state to the other. Flooding of river bottom lands is only part of the loss.
Thousands of acres of crops have been washed out, and the loss is considered irreparable. It is too late to replant with anything except forage crops and possibly buckwheat if seed is available.

On upland farms, ponds and lakes overflowing their boundaries also will cut seriously into corn yields. All in all, a bumper corn crop is considered extremely unlikely, even with a favorable growing season up to October.

Some authorities have begun to believe that the government's grain export program should be re-examined in view of conditions existing on the nation's farms at present.
IKE RESIGNS:
Goes Academic
General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower has resigned as army chief of staff to accept the presidency of Columbia university in New York, effective early next year.
His decision to step out as top man in the nation's military hierarchy to take the academic post was announced in a statement by Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, chief of the war department's public relations division. The statement said that Eisenhower accepted the Columbia presidency with the approval of the President and the secretary of war. His resignation will become effective "at such time as his superiors may release him from active duty in the army."

The man who mapped the strategy which brought victory to Allied forces in Europe in World War II will retain his rank as a five-star general for life and continue to receive a compensation of about $15,000 a year.
Initial speculation on a successor to General Eisenhower as chief of staff centered on Gen. Omar N. Bradley, now Veterans' administration chief, who commanded the army ground forces in Europe during the war. Other high-ranking generals under consideration for the position were Gen. Jacob L. Devers, army ground forces chief, and Lt. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, chief of army public information.
As president of Columbia, Eisenhower will be the successor to Nicholas Murray Butler who retired in 1945 and is now Columbia's president emeritus. The general has also been elected a member of the university's board of trustees.

pared with 46 per cent for the nation. In food production, the increase in the Far West amounted to 25 per cent as compared with 23 per cent for the United States as a whole.
"Continued expansion of industry appears to be of primary importance to the progress of the Far West," the article concludes. "Its abundant natural resources, its climate, its forest riches, its excellent harbors and its scenic beauties have been the chief contributing factors to its rapid growth in the past. To accommodate and support a population increase in the future comparable to that enjoyed so far in this century and particularly in the World War II period, would seem to require the broader economy which its sustained industrial growth is furnishing."

For Japanese
Despite protests from both Great Britain and Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur is going ahead with plans for a second Japanese Antarctic whaling expedition.
Feeling that they are backed by American public opinion, supreme command officials in Tokyo took the attitude that it is better to let the Japanese get some food for themselves than to make Americans give up food to them and pay for it too.

Atomic Blow-Out
Father Bernard Hubbard, explorer and head of the geological department of Santa Clara university, disclosed in a recent interview that Russia had an atomic energy plant a year ago but that it blew up because the Russians didn't know how to handle it.
Recently returned from a seven-month world tour, Father Hubbard would not reveal the source of his information.

Church Suppers

Although church and club activity dwindles to a minimum during these warmer months, there are still events on both calendars which require participation — and with food.

For events such as these the requirements are simple but quite important. We want a dish that is easy to make and to carry; then, too, we want something that will appeal to a number of people. We also like to bring a dish that goes pretty well with anything else that may be served.

First, there are a number of main dishes from which to choose. Any of these will put you up with the top ranking cooks of the community.

Chicken Chow Mein.
(Serves 6)
2 cups cooked chicken
2 tablespoons fat or oil
2 cups thinly sliced celery
1 1/2 cups sliced peeled onions
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 cups chicken broth
2 cups canned mixed Chinese vegetables
1/2 cup canned mushrooms
2 tablespoons cornstarch
3 tablespoons soy sauce
Scallions
1 can fried noodles
Brown chicken slightly in fat; add celery, onions and pepper. Add chicken broth and cook, covered, for 10 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and heat thoroughly.

You'll want to make good use of garden vegetables; and nothing would be more welcome at church or pot-luck supper than some of your freshest vegetables, seasoned beautifully and cooked to perfection.

Spinach Bacon Dressing.
(Serves 4)
2 1/2 cups hot, cooked spinach
4 strips bacon
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
Dice bacon and saute in skillet until golden brown. Add remaining ingredients, except spinach and heat thoroughly. Then add to spinach, toss and serve at once.
Make your desserts easy but delicious by selecting one of these two:

Frozen Fruit Salad.
(Serves 6)
1 orange
2 slices pineapple
1/2 cup Royal Anne cherries
1 banana
2 canned pear halves
1/4 cup blanched, chopped almonds
1/4 cup maraschino cherries
1/2 cup boiled salad dressing
1/2 cup whipping cream
Remove rind and skin from orange and cut fine. Chop other fruits and combine with nuts. Add dressing and fold in whipped cream. Freeze in tray of automatic refrigerator until firm.

Lemon-Egg Pie.
(Serves 6)
4 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
4 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon salt
Meringue:
4 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar
9-inch baked pie shell
Blend first five ingredients. Cook over simmering water, stirring constantly until thickened, about 15 minutes. Remove from heat. Prepare meringue by beating egg whites until stiff, then adding salt and sugar gradually. Beat until glossy and firm. Fold yolk mixture into meringue. Pour into baked pie shell. Bake in a moderate (325-degree) oven until delicately browned, about 20 minutes.

Dutch Hot Slaw.
(Serves 4)
6 cups shredded green cabbage
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs, beaten
1/4 cup vinegar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/4 cup water
1/4 cup light cream
Cook cabbage until just barely tender. Drain, place in serving dish or casserole and keep hot. Meantime, melt butter in double boiler, then add eggs, vinegar, salt, sugar, paprika and water. Cook until thickened, stirring frequently. Remove from heat, add cream and beat until fluffy. Pour over hot cabbage.

REWRITE MAN

By HILDA PHELPS HAMMOND

MARTY HENDRICKS tapped his pencil on the desk and glanced nervously at the wall clock. Only twenty minutes more before the dead line for the afternoon Star and not a story worth a rap had come over the telephone! Not that Marty Hendricks usually worried about what kind of story came in over the wire. He had always had magic in his fingers—magic that let him take the driest bit of news from police stations or fire houses and re-write it into a regular Arabian Nights tale. But today things had been different. Today Marty Hendricks had overheard a conversation between the city editor and the Chief and his whole world had crumbled.

He remembered there was a bicycle and a boy at his house, too.

"Say," the Chief had said as Marty paused a moment outside his half-open door to sharpen a pencil. "What's wrong with Marty? He used to be the best re-write man in the whole South. Could take a story over the wire and turn it into a piece that made a sob sister out of every woman. But he's gone to pieces—hasn't written a good story for months."

"I've noticed that myself," the city editor answered as Marty's heart thumped. "Guess he's gone stale. Twenty-five years at a re-write desk will do that to a man. Well, he'll have to spruce up or give up the job," the Chief growled. "There's a young man asking for that job and they say he's a dandy. If Marty doesn't perk up we'd better put him back on some light work and get that young fellow."

The conversation had trailed on, but Marty had not listened to any more of it. His hands were trembling as he found his way back to his desk and there was a lump in his throat that he couldn't swallow no matter how hard he tried. He, Marty Hendricks, the best re-write man that the Star had ever had, about to be ditched!

He sat down at his desk and tried to think what it would mean to Sarah Ann if he lost this job. Sarah Ann was a good wife—a mighty good one. She could make a dollar go further than any other wife he knew, but even Sarah Ann had a hard time getting all the things the kids needed out of his salary. And if that was cut, no telling how they'd be able to manage. Six kids—they ate up a lot, six kids did!

And now that Marty Junior was heading for college they had to put a little aside every month. Yes, six kids were an awful lot—TOO MANY," he thought as he glanced down at the snapshot pressed under the glass top of his desk. There they were—Sarah Ann and the six of them.

He turned his eyes away from the snapshot and glanced at the wall clock. If a story would only come—to send a child of ten into that line of traffic. "The bicycle was painted red and the handlebars were still silver when they found the pieces. But the wheels of the bicycle were as crumpled and twisted as the body of the small boy. The police haven't reported yet who was to blame for the accident but WE know. It was the fault of all of us—the fault of modern civilization which allows cars and trucks and little lads on bicycles to ride together on the same streets. He might have been your kid—and he might have been mine. What are we going to do about it?"

Marty stopped a moment and re-read the last line. It was a funny line to end a story with, he thought—a wrong line, perhaps. The Chief might not like it. He started to change it, but he couldn't think of anything else to say and then, too, because he was in a great hurry all at once. He snatched the paper from the typewriter and fairly ran to the city editor's desk.

The city editor's eyes traveled over the page. "Pretty good," he announced when he had finished reading it. "A little too much editorial flavor to it, but you've perked up Marty . . . why, where's he gone?"

For Marty Hendricks HAD gone. He had made the elevator in nothing flat and he was already shooting down in the lift. He wasn't wondering how the city editor liked the story—and he wasn't caring whether the Chief liked it or not. He was remembering that there was a second-hand bicycle at his house—a bicycle that was painted red and had silver handle bars. Jobs weren't important, Marty Hendricks thought as he ran along the street and hailed a passing street car. Not a bit important compared to a boy with blue eyes and rosy cheeks and a turned up nose. He could get another kid—but he couldn't get another kid like Andy. Not anywhere in the whole world! And six kids weren't too many! "No, Sir," said Marty Hendricks to himself as he swung on to the car step. "Six kids are JUST EXACTLY RIGHT!"

His eyes strayed again to the snapshot beneath the glass. Ten years old . . . why, that was just the age of little Andy! Perhaps the boy looked like Andy . . . perhaps he had blue eyes and red cheeks and a nose that turned up. His fingers began to play upon the keys of the typewriter—lightly as though someone else were writing. Funny, he thought, that the words should slip off the keys so fast now . . . he didn't even have to think. The story was writing itself . . . writing itself this way:

"He might have been mine. That's what every man and woman in New Orleans should think when they read about the ten-year-old boy who will never ride a bicycle again. It happened at St. Charles Avenue and Adams Street in the City of New Orleans, but it happens every day in every city of America. It was only a second-hand bike—but the boy must have thought it as handsome as any bicycle that ever came out of a department store. His father probably didn't want him to have it and his mother probably didn't want him to have it either. But mothers and fathers have soft hearts and so this mother and father couldn't bear to say 'no' to him, although their heads must have told them that they were fools

She was just a little country woman. She had always lived there. She hadn't ever been more than fifty miles from home, had never seen a railroad train or an airplane, had been only once to the movies. But I never met one of more cosmopolitan personality, of broader vision or of more supreme happiness. You couldn't be with her for more than an hour without catching the spirit of her infectious laugh, of her rare and rollicking good humor or some of the spirit of her amazing charm.

Yet she was a woman who had lived all her life without "advantages." One evening as we sat on the porch I questioned her closely about her philosophy of life and the genesis of her personality. And I believe that what she told me will go with me as a source of inspiration and help as long as I live. I also believe it may likewise help you.

All her life she has merely made it a point to make a new friend of every new person who moves into the community. It was the reflection of her friendship toward others that made her eyes shine, her conversation sparkle with good fellowship and the humor that endeared her to everyone within a radius of a hundred miles. She drew you like a magnet. Her charm was irresistible.

And all she had done was to make a new friend! I suppose in her life that some persons had taken advantage of her friendship. I suppose she had been cheated and robbed as I have, as you have. Maybe you and I have because a little bit embittered because of it. Not she. She found the new friends she won outweighed the loss of those who were faithless to her trust.

If you will assume that everyone is your friend, and try to make new social contacts every day, it will do some mysterious and very good things to your personality. It will make your personality warm and friendly, and will draw persons to you from every walk of life. Far better than any academic rules of psychology is the simple rule of the mountain woman which I learned as dusk fell and the rabbits came out to play: "If you want friends, you have to show folks you are a friend. I guess that is all there is to it."

Veterans SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspapers, Inc., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Million Vets Get Jobs

Latest tabulations at Veterans' administration indicate that more than a million of the veterans claiming adjusted compensation for unemployment have obtained jobs during the past several months. The number on unemployment compensation rolls has dropped from the peak of 1,800,000 in January to approximately 728,000 in June this year. Increased work opportunities, improved methods of job counseling and the fact that about 30,000 have exhausted their compensation rights account for the decrease.

Since the program was inaugurated in September, 1944, more than two billion dollars has been paid to veterans for unemployment compensation. The rate now runs approximately a little less than 20 million dollars a week.

Questions and Answers

Q. I am a veteran who has been discharged more than a year and I would like to know a little about state bonuses. I am a resident of Pennsylvania, but when I went into the service I enlisted in Baltimore and my father signed my papers in Harrisburg. I lived in Baltimore about three months before enlisting. Would I receive a state bonus from Maryland or Pennsylvania? If it's Maryland, what should I do? I believe they already have theirs. —C. A. T., Lewistown, Pa.

A. Due to the variability of the state bonus laws, it would be necessary to know the resident requirements of both the Pennsylvania and Maryland laws. It is suggested that you write to the state treasurer or other state official in charge of the state bonus in Harrisburg and they will advise whether you are eligible for the Pennsylvania bonus.

Q. Can you tell me if I can get a pension? My husband died and I remarried before the pension came out. Now I have a divorce and have taken my first husband's name. He was a veteran of World War I.—Mrs. I. P., Oldale, Calif.

A. I do not believe you are entitled to a pension since you forfeited pension rights by your remarriage.

Q. Will it be necessary for the government to cut pensions and other benefits to veterans as a result of the cuts in budgets made by congress? Can you tell me how much the government has spent for education and training of World War II veterans?—Mrs. J. F. K., Oklahoma City, Okla.

A. Most of the benefits are fixed by law, hence there can be no reduction of benefits. If benefits run higher than appropriations, congress must provide for a deficiency appropriation. The latest tabulation of education and training costs by VA shows that cumulative expenditures amounted to $2,283,000,000 as of May 1, 1947. However, a congressional sub-committee is now considering a measure which would reduce or eliminate veterans' benefits for all those enlisting in the services after August 1.

Q. Our son was killed in action in the Pacific. We received our official notification from the navy department after he had been reported missing for several months. We believe that he had some back pay coming to him for the months he was missing in action. Can you tell us how we can find out about this and how we can collect this money if it is coming to our son?—Mrs. A. J. H., North Platte, Neb.

A. Write to the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Navy Department, Washington 25, D. C. If the claim is a valid one, forms will be sent you and you will receive a payment from the bureau of supplies and accounts, field branch, navy department, at Cleveland, Ohio.

Q. Can you tell us if we can cash our terminal leave bonds this year?—Pvt. G. Q., Paris, Tex.

A. You might be able to receive cash for your terminal leave bonds this year although, as of June 25, the law had not been passed by congress. Such a law has passed the senate and is expected to pass the house although a similar law in the house has been held up by the rules committee.

Q. Is a veteran of World War II entitled to emergency hospital care in case of an appendicitis operation and are the costs paid by the government?—F. H. G., Bonita Springs, Fla.

A. Yes, ordinarily emergency hospitalization is granted by the veteran, or someone acting for him, should communicate with the nearest veterans' hospital or office by telephone or telegraph and request authority for admission and transportation if necessary. Prior authority is necessary before a person can be reimbursed.

Q. I was discharged from the service last January and am wondering if I can borrow some money on my service life insurance policy. Can you advise me how this can be done?—H. S., Cedar Grove, La.

A. If your policy is a permanent policy, that is if it has been converted from the five-year level premium term policy, it has a cash loan value at any time after the first policy year and before default in payment of any subsequent premium, in any amount not exceeding 50 per cent of the cash value with interest at 5 per cent.

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO Released by Western Newspaper Union. By INEZ GERHARD

HUGH STUDEBAKER, "Dr. Charles Matthews" of the CBS "The Guiding Light," lost nine pounds in the first five days of his first dramatic assignment on the air. Mike might! Yet he'd been appearing in vaudeville, drama and concert work, and been singer, organist and ad-libber on a radio show. That was in Kansas City. In 1934 he married his boss, Bertina Congdon. His most famous role is probably that of "Blackface Silly Watson" on the Fibber McGee and Molly show.

HUGH STUDEBAKER

though he claims to have portrayed Abraham Lincoln more often than any other radio actor. He once worked in 46 programs in one week on the same station!

George Henderson, Pullman porter, has been hired for the briefest technical direction job in Hollywood's history by producer Don Hartman at Columbia. He will show studio set dressers how to make up upper and lower berths for a single sequence in a train's drawing room in "It Had to Be You," a comedy which stars Ginger Rogers and Cornel Wilde.

Anna May Wong may have a successor in Nancy Hsueh, who's seven. About 30 Chinese children were interviewed for a role in "Intrigue," supporting George Raft, June Havoc and Helena Carter. The daughter of the picture's technical director, Director Edwin Martin gave her a test—and she did beautifully, even stealing scenes from George Raft.

When they worked together in "The Corn Is Green," Bette Davis gave Joan Loring this excellent advice: "Don't worry about beauty; people get tired of the same old face, beautiful or not. What's important to an actress is change. Often I am hideous on purpose, and I play all ages. No one can say to me, 'Just look, dear, dear, she's falling apart, she's getting so old!' because I've always kept changing. When they're tired of me as an elderly woman, I'm suddenly young again."

MGM's Sam Marx has been studying a print of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse"; wants to bring it up to date and refilm it with Ricardo Montalban in the role that shot Rudolph Valentino to stardom. Montalban makes his first appearance on the American screen in "Fiesta," with Esther Williams, and is now working in "On an Island With You," on location in Florida.

Dennis Morgan realized three boyhood ambitions while starring in Warner Bros. "Cheyenne"—he wore a 10-gallon hat, beat a bad man to the draw (took lessons from Raoul Walsh) and learned how to roll a cigarette with one hand.

Mel Torme, 21-year-old singing star, is to have a radio program of his own soon. Currently featured at a New York night club, he's made 12 pictures—is the male singing star of the new MGM release, "Good News." Somebody thought up "velvet fog" to describe his voice! Popular with the younger set, he'll aim his program at the preferences of the teen agers.

RKO executives were so pleased over the performance given by Gloria Grahame in their "Crossfire" that they promptly took steps to buy her contract from Metro. Then they cast her in the top feminine role in "Roughshod."

The horse to be ridden by Jack Carson in "Two Guys From Texas" was picked because it matched Carson's vest in technicolor.

ODDS AND ENDS—English cinemas have inaugurated "Alan Ladd repertory sessions," showing a series of his pictures . . . Peter Lorre, now in the Abbott and Costello spot on NBC, plans to present a series of classical psychological thrillers by such experts as Tolstoy, Poe and Bierce . . . H. V. Kaltenborn is set to leave for a round-the-world jaunt at the end of July, with three commentators filling in during his seven week absence . . . There's a budget of $6,000,000 for Ingrid Bergman's "Juno and Paycock," in which she will wear a coat of mail specially made by the New York Museum of Modern Art.

One of the main acting problems of Rex Harrison's role in "The Ghost and Mrs. Guide" was to play the ghostly sea captain without touching other members of the cast—it complicated the love scenes with Gene Tierney no end.

Young Johnny Sands, of Paramount's "Blaze of Noon," liked ocean swimming, so he got his Texas family to let him stay on in Hollywood after a visit; he wanted to go to dramatic school—and that landed him in the movies.

Paint Stairways Stairways to attics and basements all too frequently are dimly lighted, and offer the possibility of missteps and accidents. Danger can be reduced by painting such stairs and stairways in light colors, or by painting the railings and edges of the stair railings white or bright yellow as a safety measure.

Saint's Birthplace Actual place of birth of St. Patrick is unknown. The birthplace has been named variously as Scotland, England, Wales and even France. It is probable that he was born at Kilpatrick near Dumbarton, Scotland, in 387 or 389 A. D., the son of Calpornius, a Briton.

Mapping in Fog Short-range radar, called "Shoran," is being used by teams of the army air forces, signal corps and engineers to map rocky shores and underwater formations of the storm-and-fog belt of Alaska, heretofore only charted sketchily.

Platinum Metals Metallurgists list six platinum metals as platinum, palladium, iridium, rhodium, ruthenium and osmium. Although all are rare and precious, only two, platinum and palladium, are commonly used in jewelry.

Common Cause of Death Among diseases, rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease combined are the commonest cause of death between the ages of 5 and 19, and the second highest among young adults aged 19 to 24.

Stuffing Apples When baking pears or apples, stuff the centers with dates or raisins. This adds sweetness, and only about one teaspoon sugar will be needed for each piece of fruit.

Efficient Hens It has been shown that a hen laying 200 eggs consumes only 14 pounds more feed than a hen laying 100 eggs. The additional eggs obtained mean extra profits.

Average Man The average man in the United States is 5 feet 3 1/2 inches tall and weighs 152 pounds, while the average woman is 5 feet 3 1/2 inches tall and weighs 133 pounds.

Matches Waterproof A match that will light after approximately six hours in water has been perfected by the army quartermaster corps.

Preserve Sheets Another suggestion for your bed-sheet's double life is occasionally to place the narrow hem at the head of the bed.

Chinese Used Rockets Rocket weapons are not new in warfare. The Chinese used rocket-propelled arrows more than 1,000 years ago.

Chemical Research It has been estimated that about 800 research workers are employed for each 10,000 persons on the chemical industry's payroll.

Safety Tip A good safety tip is to paint the bottom basement step white to make it easier to find.

Income From Milk Milk as a source of cash farm income was 14 per cent of all farm income in 1945—larger than hogs, over twice wheat or eggs, and three times cotton or tobacco. One out of every 15 families is dependent on milk for livelihood. More than 28 million cows on three-fourths of the nation's 5,877,000 farms produce milk.

Diet for Old People Older persons should reduce the calorie intake, go light on fats, sweets and starches. The need for vitamins and minerals remains about the same in old age, so meals should contain liberal amounts of milk, fruit and vegetables.

Vegetables Furnish Vitamins Many vegetables furnish vitamin C. For instance, one medium-sized raw bell pepper if eaten raw will supply an individual's vitamin C for a day. The pepper may be cut up in salad, or cut in strips and served with salt and pepper, as you would green onions or radishes.

Hospital Garb Cotton is mandatory clothing for hospital operating room wear because, unlike some other fibers it does not generate static electricity, which can easily cause ether and other anesthetics to burst into flame, endangering lives of patients.

Big Killer Rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease cause almost five times as many deaths as infantile paralysis, whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and cerebrospinal meningitis combined.

Albuquerque Named for Duke Albuquerque, largest city in New Mexico, was originally spelled Albuquerque by the Spanish. It was named after the Duke of Albuquerque, Viceroy of Mexico, in the early 1700s.

Airports Use Flame Throwers Flame throwers, most spectacular weapon of warfare, can be adapted to melt snow and ice off airport runways, experiments of the chemical corps have disclosed.

Ice Cream State Pennsylvania makes more ice cream than any other state. Ten of every 100 gallons come from the Keystone state.

Flower Clock The famed Swedish botanist Linnaeus built a flower clock that told time by the opening and closing of the flowers.

Fatal to Children Rheumatic fever causes 40 per cent of all heart disease at all ages, and 90 per cent of all heart disease in children.

Deodorize Refrigerator A teaspoonful of dry mustard, added to soapy water, will deodorize porcelain enameled refrigerator interiors.

Sweet Condensed Milk The sweetened condensed milks are least likely to be injured by severe freezing.

Contented Cows Cows will consume more food and make more milk if they are comfortable and contented.

Common Sense Methods To Withstand Heat Given Ability to withstand hot weather varies greatly from person to person, but nearly everyone can increase his own tolerance of heat. Here are a few practical methods of beating the heat: 1. Eat well balanced meals, including meats and other proteins, fresh fruits and vegetables, but avoid greasy and fatty foods. 2. Drink liberal quantities of water, 8 to 10 glasses are sufficient, more will do no harm, but avoid excessive use of alcohol because it increases susceptibility to the ill effects of heat during exceptionally hot periods. 3. Increase the use of salt. You can add a pinch of salt to each glass of water. (Administration of salt is a specific preventive of heat cramps, an acute illness caused by excessive loss of salt in perspiration.) 4. Wear light colored, light weight, loose clothing, which does not check evaporation of perspiration. 5. Don't expose yourself unnecessarily to direct sunlight. 6. Get sufficient and regular sleep. 7. Use leisure time for rest. Don't play too hard. 8. Remember heat and fatigue can make a vicious circle—heat makes you tired and being tired breaks your defense against heat.

LET'S TALK ABOUT YOU

How to Make New Friends We had just moved into a new house in a new neighborhood in a new town; a little Western city without any of the advantages of a more established community. The second day we were there came bearing gifts, a glass of jelly she had made from wild chokecherries the autumn before.

She was just a little country woman. She had always lived there. She hadn't ever been more than fifty miles from home, had never seen a railroad train or an airplane, had been only once to the movies. But I never met one of more cosmopolitan personality, of broader vision or of more supreme happiness. You couldn't be with her for more than an hour without catching the spirit of her infectious laugh, of her rare and rollicking good humor or some of the spirit of her amazing charm.

Yet she was a woman who had lived all her life without "advantages." One evening as we sat on the porch I questioned her closely about her philosophy of life and the genesis of her personality. And I believe that what she told me will go with me as a source of inspiration and help as long as I live. I also believe it may likewise help you.

All her life she has merely made it a point to make a new friend of every new person who moves into the community. It was the reflection of her friendship toward others that made her eyes shine, her conversation sparkle with good fellowship and the humor that endeared her to everyone within a radius of a hundred miles. She drew you like a magnet. Her charm was irresistible.

CONCRETE ROADS

Serve for many years

AT LOW

ANNUAL COST

Concrete pavements generally carry the heaviest traffic. Yet their annual maintenance cost is far lower than any other pavement intended for similar service. And the rugged strength and stamina of concrete assure long life—many years of all-weather service without interruptions for frequent repairs or rebuilding.

You'll find that concrete pavement usually costs less to build than any other pavement of equal load-carrying capacity.

So with long life, low maintenance expense and economical first cost, concrete is easily the thriftiest investment for your main traveled highways, assuring, as it does, low annual cost—the true measure of pavement economy.

The Blind Teach the Blind—Delicate Art of Radio Repair

Disabled Master Technical Trade At Omaha School

WNU Features.

OMAHA, NEB.—The blind literally "see again" as they learn the highly technical and delicate craft of radio repair at Radio Engineering Institute here.

Men who have been blind all their lives and ex-service men who lost their sight or were otherwise severely disabled in the recent conflict represent the bulk of enrollees at Radio Engineering Institute. Their objective is to learn a trade which will permit them to return to their home communities as self-sustaining members of society. Armed with the technical training acquired at the institute, graduates establish their own business as radio and electronic technicians or as dealers in appliances.

Described as the only school in the world catering to the sightless and the disabled, Radio Engineering Institute was opened October 1, 1945. From its meager beginning with only three blind students, the school has expanded rapidly as its facilities became known. Today the school has 25 blind men in training and its first graduates already have established their mark in the business world.

The Blind Teach.

Founder and head of this unique school is LaVon Peterson, who was born blind. Peterson acquired his knowledge the hard way—by readprise and the school became a reality.

HANDICAPPED LEARN A TRADE . . . The blind and men afflicted with other disabilities are given a chance to learn a trade which will make them self-sustaining members of society at the Radio Engineering Institute in Omaha. Picture shows laboratory for men with sight but who have other disabilities.

"How can the blind man solder?" "How can he handle the tiny and delicate radio components?" "How can he follow the color code used in radio receivers?" "How can he make the necessary tests essential in this type of work?"

These and a multitude of similar queries are continually being hurled at Peterson and his associates by people interested in the school and its work.

Solder Without Burns.

Even the totally blind person, Peterson insists, can do this type of work on a par with sighted people. To the sighted, soldering generally is considered an "impossible job" for the blind person. The school, however, has developed a simple technique in the use of the standard soldering iron for a blind person, permitting him to solder with never a burn.

The color code problem also is easily solved, since the color code in wiring is merely a convenient way for the sighted person to trace wires. The blind person can trace wires equally well with his super-sensitive fingers. Although values of parts shown by color code cannot be read by the blind person, specially adapted instruments employing sound and a Braille dial permit him to measure the values quickly and efficiently.

Development of the testing equipment is the result of long experimenting on the part of Peterson.

Determined to do radio work and unable to buy equipment that would enable him to take necessary tests and readings in radio work, Peterson sought to devise apparatus which would permit him to do the measuring. Through a long process of building, experimenting and tearing down, he finally perfected the "Braille multi-tester," a device which measures resistance, current, voltage and allied factors.

Tester Is Keystone.

Experimentation with other testing equipment was continued, and an adapter developed at the institute now permits a blind person to read any standard meter. Each blind person in school now builds his own adaptor and learns to use it in radio repair work. This tester, which the student takes with him upon graduation, is intended to serve as the cornerstone for his future business.

As the school's role in aiding the blind became assured, the suggestion was broached that the radio field offered possibilities for persons afflicted with disabilities other than blindness if tools were adapted to their particular disability.

Aware of the need for this type of training, institute officials established a department for training this group. Now it is possible for any person, regardless of his disability, to learn this type of work.

Only requirements for a disabled student are that he has the ability to move about, even though it be in a wheel chair, and that he has enough gripping strength in one hand to hold tools firmly. Grasping devices operated by the teeth, specially designed methods of moving heavy objects and other similar apparatus have been designed for use of those with severe disability.

Fame of the institution has spread throughout the world. Information about the training has been sought from such far-flung countries as Cuba, Canada, England, Germany, Sweden, India and the Philippine islands.

SKILLED FINGERS . . . Even a soldering iron is mastered by Gerald Yearles of Ogden, Utah, as he repairs a radio. Special testing equipment also is used by the blind student.

Many States Represented.

Also indicative of the wide popularity of the school is the fact that students are enrolled from 18 different states. Although the majority of students come from Midwestern states, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon, Utah and Montana also are represented.

The blind, including some who have been sightless all their lives, comprise the majority of students. Many, however, lost their sight or were otherwise disabled in the recent war. All are seeking training which will enable them to be self-supporting and to carve out their own careers in the realm of business.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Getting at the Secret

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"She didn't say much about it, but everything she touched from that time on was touched with magic."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE HAPPY LIFE
True happiness doesn't depend on a high income, social position or beauty. These things may help, but we all know people who have everything, and yet are miserable.

Miss Norris reveals the "secret" of the happy life in today's article. It's something everybody knows, but few have courage and sense enough to apply the rules to their own lives.

Miss Norris tells a story of a poor girl, left an orphan at 16, who had to care for her younger brothers and sisters and an old aunt. With an income of only $85 a month, she managed to keep this family of seven well fed and clothed. More than her achievement in keeping the home together, however, was her cheerful determination to maintain a spiritual haven for her relatives. It was a matter of attitude and of little acts, like reading poems, keeping flowers on the table, fixing the meals attractively.

Almost any woman, says Miss Norris, could begin this new joyous way of living any time, if she would just determine to begin. It is merely a matter of facing things squarely, of doing the best that can be done under the circumstances. After the family affairs have been put on a sound basis, the atmosphere of the home must be made cheerful, happy and sweet by little attentions that mean so much more than any costly goods.

She began in the little group of orphaned brothers and sisters who were waiting for the sausages. She didn't say much about it, but everything she touched from that time on was touched with magic. Butter was rolled into balls again, as in her mother's gracious day. A picnic meal was served among the pines that surrounded the reservoir across the street.

A pair of new stockings awaited a pair of tired feet; the new cake of soap in the bathroom was scented and rare. She would read a poem at dinner; bring home an even less fortunate friend for supper. Often the flowers that kept the house sweet were only field flowers from vacant city lots.

The Ideal Life.

Often in winter, in the shabby living room that was dining room, too, when the fire burned, and the brothers grumbled over the carving of model boats or plans for the machinery, that was presently to make their fortunes, with an older sister idly playing old songs at the piano, the two youngsters busy with homework and the cat placidly asleep in an old aunt's arms, she would look wistfully about. "This is ideal, isn't it?"

The family income for more than two years averaged $85 a month for seven persons. It was a long time ago; it couldn't be done now, financially. But it was done without debt and without undue anxiety then, because economy and thrift and simplicity were ideal, and the way to begin living the ideal life was—to begin.

This is not a fairy-tale, this is simple truth. And it is true of the lives of thousands of women who have found out, whether they ever put it into words or not, that the material conditions that surround them are not the important ones—that love, service, order, peace of mind are all conditions of heaven on earth, and that, as the wisest voice of all told us two thousand years ago, the kingdom of heaven is within each, and every one of us.

"What can you do?" demands Nadine Powers of Buffalo, N. Y. "Sidney's pay is $37 a week, no more and no less. We have two kids—perhaps we shouldn't have had two kids, but we love them, and when we're not worried to death we love each other."

"Horribly Discouraged." "But what with Sidney coming home dead tired every night, and

"She kept the family together . . ."

THE HAPPY LIFE

True happiness doesn't depend on a high income, social position or beauty. These things may help, but we all know people who have everything, and yet are miserable. Miss Norris reveals the "secret" of the happy life in today's article. It's something everybody knows, but few have courage and sense enough to apply the rules to their own lives.

Miss Norris tells a story of a poor girl, left an orphan at 16, who had to care for her younger brothers and sisters and an old aunt. With an income of only $85 a month, she managed to keep this family of seven well fed and clothed. More than her achievement in keeping the home together, however, was her cheerful determination to maintain a spiritual haven for her relatives. After the family affairs have been put on a sound basis, the atmosphere of the home must be made cheerful, happy and sweet by little attentions that mean so much more than any costly goods.

Sheila and Peter getting up to 14 and 12, more expensive all the time, and food what it is, why—we just are never caught up, and bills pile up day after day. I can't seem to keep the house attractive and in order, we need paint and paper, new draperies, new dining room furniture. What with incessant dishes, dust, shabbiness, money shortage, I get horribly discouraged.

"We have four rooms and what Peter calls his cell, a little slice of space off the kitchen, just big enough for his bed. His chest of drawers stands in the tiny entrance hall. The dining room is Sheila's bedroom; we eat in the kitchen; two of our seven windows look out on a dull street, two on a line of bare buildings, three onto air wells. Sheila will soon want to be entertaining friends—where? She and Peter want to join skating, swimming, tennis clubs; some of their friends ride go away for the summers. Sid and I want to do our best for our children. We have sacrificed everything for them. But we know now that we simply can't make the grade."

This is a typical letter, but the ideal life is in reach of Sidney and Nadine, if they'll look for it. It would lie in their case in a more realistic attitude toward the things they may properly give their children, and the things those children must earn for themselves. It might mean a move to the country, or the taking on of larger responsibilities in larger quarters, or forming some plan—any plan, that will inspire them all to want the real rather than the show. Not easily, perhaps, and not swiftly, but their lives, and all others, can be freed of fear and anxiety. And the way to begin—is to begin.

Girl Now Engineer
A little girl who used to distress her mother by preferring play with a set of carpenter's tools to caring for dolls has grown up to be a civil engineer. She is Miss Winifred Hutton of Chicago, who was the first woman to receive a degree in civil engineering from Northwestern university's technological institute. Miss Hutton is interested in the designing side of engineering and already has had several months' experience under a cooperative program with industrial organizations.

HOW IT STARTED

DAVY JONES—The word "Davy" was originally "duppy" which is a West Indian term for ghost. The word "Jones," it is said, is derived from "Jonah." And Jonah was the man who was swallowed by the whale. Since ghosts were supposed to live at the bottom of the sea, and since Jonah was a seafaring man, the name "Davy Jones" came into being.

THAT TAKES THE CAKE—In ancient Greece a cake made of wheat and honey was given as a prize, hence "That takes the cake" or "the prize."

COTTON GIN—The word "gin" is a contraction of "engine."

Tax Controversy
REPUBLICAN leaders are jubilant in declaring that President Truman signed his political death warrant by his veto of the Knutson-Taft tax reduction bill. On the Democratic side, leaders point to the President's courage and sound government finance policy and to the "inequalities" in the tax bill, asserting that any saving to taxpayers in the low income brackets would have been more than offset by the rent increase bill.

Non-partisan appraisers point to four mistakes the GOP leadership made as at least partially responsible for the tax reduction impasse:

First, failure to set a ceiling on government spending as required by law; second, using "political face-saving devices" to force through the tax bill to keep campaign promises; third, seeking to make the tax cut retroactive to January 1, 1947, and finally, after five months' delay, compromising on July 1, 1947, when they were assured Democrats would go along and the President would sign a tax cut bill effective January 1, 1948.

Only the 1948 elections will determine whether tax reduction is an effective campaign issue.

Farmers Home administration has applications from some 30,000 World War II veterans for purchase of farms. Action of the house nullified that section of the G. I. bill of rights by withdrawing funds; thus suspending the government's declared policy.

Another Fight Looms

Indications now are that the fight between TVA and the fertilizer industry will measure up almost in intensity to the fight private utilities made against this government enterprise. TVA won out against the powerful utilities. The fertilizer industry is not nearly as powerful, so indications are that TVA will win again and provide low-priced fertilizer, which may or may not be a yardstick for measuring private industry prices on fertilizer.

About half of the small cities and towns which hoped to get federal aid for airports and airparks under the federal aid airport program will be disappointed. The reason: Congress cut 50 per cent of the appropriation which had been set up by the last congress.

Municipal government officials in hundreds of small towns and other units of government are interested in the Hinshaw bill, which seeks to clarify authority of the securities exchange commission by placing public bond issues outside jurisdiction of the SEC.

At least some good news—no more tax on general admission to county or farm fairs, but still admission tax to amusement enterprises.

Sympathetic Chord

YOU may disagree with everything Henry Wallace says. You may call him a crack-pot, an idealist, a Communist or whatever comes to your tongue. But 10,000 people don't pay up to $3.50 each, as they did here in Washington, and then make a donation of $8,000 just to hear a political speech. Neither do 200,000 people in other sections of the nation. What is it then?

Can it be that people today are worried and confused and that the one idea in their minds and hearts is peace and security?

Is that the sympathetic chord which draws people to pay to hear this man make his plea for world peace?

Soil Bankrupt

Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama says farmers of the nation today are facing soil bankruptcy. Battling the fertilizer lobby, Ed O'Neal, American Farm Bureau federation president, declares senate bill 1251 will increase production of high analysis fertilizer. O'Neal says farmers now buy five pounds of filler to get a pound of plant food and that plant food must be stepped up to at least double present content, to save on labor and transportation costs.

Seek Tax Revision

President Truman, in his tax reduction veto message, paralleled the line of thought advocated only recently by the committee for economic development, which is in all likelihood the most responsible group representing small business in the nation. CED advocated "a complete recasting of the tax system, not just a tinkering with tax rates" and "congressional consideration of the tax problem on an economic and not a political basis."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Curtains to be stored for a season should not be starched, for the starch may attract insects and weaken the curtain fabric.

An electric motor mounted on a stand or bench often is quite noisy, so much so that the vibrations can be felt in nearby rooms. The cure is a sound-deadening cushion of rubber or felt. Four or five rubber washers placed under the base will do the job.

In remodeling your kitchen it is a good idea to redesign it as a precautionary measure against fire. To do this be sure curtains, doors and wooden cabinets are not too close to the range.

Sprinkle cornmeal on your rugs, let it remain for a short time and then sweep. This picks up dirt and particles imbedded in the nap.

Make your own belts. Make them in various colors to match your frocks. Put a layer of stiffening between two layers of ribbon. Sew through ribbon selvages with tiny machine stitching.

If you carry stamps in your purse, fold them and slip waxed paper dividers between the gummed surface folds. Divided this way, stamps will never stick together.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES CAN NOW APPLY FOR SPECIALIZED TRAINING IN ARMY AIR FORCES

High school graduates can now apply directly for specialized training in the air training command of the army air forces. M/Sgt. William C. Haight, commanding the West Bend army recruiting station, said this week. They can apply for training in any one of the 41 specialized jobs. If selected, applicants will receive a letter from the war department guaranteeing their entrance into a specific course of training, provided they sign up for three years with the AAF and are physically qualified for enlistment. If rejected, they are under no obligation to enlist.

Specialized training courses for which high school graduates may apply include control tower operator, bombsight mechanic, weather observer, photolithographer, photographer, draft-man, electrician, plumber, water supply technicians, diesel mechanic, cryptographic technician, aircraft welder and parachute rigger.

Application blanks and full information about the new plan can be obtained from the U. S. Army Recruiting office at West Bend. Those interested can apply directly to the commanding general, air training command, Barksdale Field, Shreveport, La., giving full name, address, age, race, civilian occupation, summary of previous military training (if any), a transcript of high school grades and three letters of recommendation.

Taxpayers may appear at this meeting and examine the assessment roll, sworn statements, and valuations, and be heard in relation thereto.

Dated this 7th day of July, 1947.
Alfred H. Seefeldt,
Town Clerk
