Swimmer Drowns in Lake Bernice Sunday

Walter Peitz, 27, Route 2, Fond du Lac, became Fond du Lac county's twelfth drowning victim of the year at 2:55 p. m. Sunday when he stepped into a hole while wading at Lake Bernice

An inexperienced swimmer, Peitz had gone to the lake to escape from the intense heat, relatives said. He had been in and out of the lake several times during the afternoon. He was a member of a beach party which included the Misses Delores Jaeger and Betty Ann Dieringer of Campbellsport, Route 1.

Resting on the beach after a short dip, Peitz decided to return to the water. He waded out approximately 50 feet when he suddenly disappeared.

When he did not reappear the girls called for help. Fond du Lac county police were summoned and the body was recovered by Traffic Officer Irving Gauthier. Death was pronounced immediately by a physician and no effort was made to administer respiration.

Fond du Lac county coroner Joseph E. Murray said the death was wholly accidental and that an inquest would be unnecessary.

Born Aug. 2, 1920, in the town of Fond du Lac, Peitz spent his entire life on his parents' farm, which he assisted his father in working. Survivors include the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Peitz, a sister, Esther, and a brother, Norbert, at home.

Funeral services were held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in St. John's Lutheran church at Lomira, the Rev. Herbert Lemke officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Kiwianians Make Tour of Utensil Co. Plant

The local Kiwianians were treated to an interesting and educational conducted tour through the Kewaskum Utensil company's plant Monday evening, Aug. 25, following the dinner at the Peace church.

Following this program, a lengthy meeting of the directors and committee chairmen was held. Community needs and proposed activities of various committees were discussed.

Next week's meeting will be held in the Peace church at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday, Sept. 2, which is the date to which the regularly scheduled Monday (Labor day) meeting was postponed.

The program for this meeting will be furnished by the agricultural committee of the Kewaskum club. Sound movies will be shown, and County Agent E. E. Skalsky will speak on proposed projects the Kewaskum club might sponsor.

LOCAL BARLEY GROWER WINS MERIT AWARD AT STATE FAIR

Henry Muekerheide, Kewaskum, Route 3, and Ambrose A. Wiedmeyer, Richfield, Route 1, were each awarded merit awards for their respective samples of barley exhibited at the state fair.

The merit award represents a $50.00 cash prize. Five samples from each of thirty-two counties or a total of 160 samples were exhibited at the fair. There were only three other samples ranked higher than the merit award.

CREAMERY EMPLOYEES PICNIC

The employees of the Kewaskum Creamery company, their wives, husbands and friends were entertained at the annual picnic given in their honor by the employees of the firm at the village park Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Employees of the Wisconsin Conservation department planted 10,000 bullheads in the Milwaukee river in this village on Wednesday. The fish were fingerlings measuring from three to four inches in length. They were shipped to Kewaskum from Beaver Dam.

These fish will be a good size to fill the pan with by the time the next fishing season rolls around.

A large bow centered the back waist line. Her hand rolled fingertip veil cascaded from a net bonnet. She carried white asters fashioned in the shape of a cross.

Miss Eva Mae Buss attended the bride as maid of honor, while Miss Ione Petri, Mrs. Lyle Swarthout, Mrs. Kilian Honeck Jr. and Mrs. N. David Korth were bridesmaids. The bride is a graduate of the Kewaskum high school and Fond du Lac Commercial college. The bridegroom is employed at the Kewaskum Utensil company. He is a World War II vet.

WESENBERG-HOFFMAN

UNUSED LEAVE BONDS MAY NOW BE REDEEMED BY VETS

Bonds held by veterans covering unused leave will be redeemable after Sept. 1, 1947. This was made possible when the President signed only a few of the major veterans' bills which were presented at the last session of Congress.

George A. Kohl, veteran service officer, advises that there is no need of writing or making applications to any government agency for the purpose of securing payment on these bonds. It is only necessary for the holder to take his bond and his original discharge certificate to the bank of his choice and present for payment. It is not necessary to cash these bonds at present, and the President has pledged with all veterans who are not in need of cash at this time to hold the bonds until maturity and collect the 2 1/2% accumulated interest at that time.

Many veterans of Washington county have not as yet made application for these bonds. Service Officer Kohl urges all veterans to make application at an early date.

The 1947 lamb crop is the smallest in this country since 1925—two million head less than last year. Wisconsin's crop is down 7 per cent.

Helmuth Lubitz Badly Injured in Collision

Helmuth Lubitz Jr., Route 1, Kewaskum, suffered painful injuries at about 9:30 p. m. Wednesday when a Ford coupe he was driving and a cattle truck owned by Fred Malzahn of Ripon sideswiped on Highway 55 about a block south of the village limits in front of the Ed. Groszklaus home. Lubitz sustained severe head injuries, a badly mangled left arm and other lesser injuries. The truck driver was uninjured. It is believed that Lubitz had his arm out of the window when the vehicles collided and it was wedged between the truck and car. The Malzahn truck was traveling north and the Lubitz car south when the accident occurred. Little damage was done to the truck but the left side of the Lubitz car was badly damaged.

While driving south on Highway 55 at 6:45 a. m. Monday morning, Betty Weltes and Betty Petri, Route 3, Kewaskum, escaped serious injury when the auto in which they were riding ran into the ditch and fence on the right side of the road and tipped over after the driver lost control of the machine. Miss Petri, 20, suffered minor bruises. The accident took place one-half mile north of Barton.

Rainbow Nine Upset by Barton; Lose Loop Lead

Anything can happen in the Rainbow league and it often does. For instance, the league leading Kewaskum nine was bumped off by last place Barton at Barton Sunday, 8-2. Previously Barton had won only two games but they were at their best Sunday in knocking off the first place Kums.

Kewaskum went back into the lead the week before by blasting Waubeka, dropping the latter team to third place and moving up Sheboygan Falls to second. The team's upset Sunday put Falls back into the first spot. Falls defeated Waubeka, dropping them to fourth and Newburg moved up to third place. The locals have two contests to play off.

Kewaskum led Barton through most of the game but Barton came through strong with a late rally to put the Indians on the skids. The Rainbow teams are evenly matched and anything may happen.

Strawstack on Etta Farm Destroyed by Lightning

The hard work in the blistering heat of the week end went up in flames and an unfortunate loss of money was suffered on the John Etta farm a mile and a half north of Kewaskum at about 1:30 a. m. Thursday when a newly made strawstack was destroyed by fire when it was struck by a bolt of lightning during a thunder storm.

The Kewaskum fire department was called to the scene and the bright glow in the night attracted many spectators to the farm at the early morning hour. Luckily the stack was made in an adjoining field a short distance away from the barn and this probably saved the barn and other farm buildings from catching fire. The creek on the Etta farm was dry from the hot, dry weather and the only water available was that in the fire truck. This was saved in case other farm buildings should catch fire. The storm also put the telephone lines out of working order and the Etta's had to drive to town to turn in an alarm. When firemen arrived most of the strawstack was destroyed and it was left to burn out while the firemen stood guard.

County Barley Contest Next Wednesday, Sept. 3

The Washington county barley show will be held at the county fairgrounds at Slinger on Wednesday, Sept. 3. A total of 168 Washington county farmers have signed application blanks to compete in a county barley growing contest, sponsored by the Wisconsin Brewers' association. A one bushel (48 lbs.) sample must be exhibited at the county barley show to complete participation in the contest.

Judges for the show will be George Bridges and E. D. Holden, agronomists of the College of Agriculture, and also a member of the Milwaukee Grain Exchange.

Beginning at one o'clock a program of special interest to barley growers will be presented. Speakers will include John H. Parker, director, Midwest Barley Improvement association; Irvin J. Ott, secretary, Wisconsin Brewers' association, and others. A demonstration on weed control in grain fields through the use of 2, 4-D will also be presented.

All bushel samples submitted for entry in the contest will be purchased by the county committee for $3.00. A noon day luncheon will be provided for all who exhibit at the county show.

All bushel samples of barley must be entered between 8:30 and 10 a. m. on that day. Samples should be shown in clean, white cotton sacks. Farmers not able to bring in samples on that day may leave them at the extension office, post office building, West Bend, before Wednesday, Sept. 3. All samples left there must be labeled with the grower's name and address.

Thirty additional prizes of $1.00 each to those listed in the county fair premium book are being offered by the county barley committee.

Important Meeting For Bowlers at West Bend

An important meeting of all members of the West Bend Bowling association will be held at Herdt's Alleys on Wednesday, Sept. 3, at 8:00 p. m.

At this meeting a constitution and set of rules and regulations for the city association will be adopted. Strangely enough the West Bend Bowling association has never had a set of by-laws and the association of five fliers feel a closer knit organization can be formed with a proper constitution.

The city association board of directors will endeavor to help organize the established leagues as well as any new leagues that may be formed this year to accommodate new bowlers. Franchise applications should be in the hands of your league secretary so that they may be presented at the meeting. Anyone desiring a franchise who was not in a league last year should make application at this meeting.

Remember this meeting is open to all members of the West Bend Bowling association. Plan to attend and help get the coming season off to a good start.

D.H.I.A. FIELDMAN SCHOOL SEPT. 10-20

Because of the continued demand for dairy herd improvement association fieldmen, another training school will be given at the College of Agriculture beginning on Sept. 10 and ending on Sept. 20.

D.H.I.A. fieldmen jobs offer excellent employment to any young man interested in learning more about the dairy industry. Good salaries and travel expense are paid in most counties. Further information regarding these jobs can be obtained from the extension office, West Bend post office building.

The number of dairy plants in Wisconsin has been dropping about one hundred a year since 1941.

Public School Opens Sept. 3; New Musical Department Created

The Kewaskum public school will open on Tuesday, Sept. 2, at 9 o'clock. The following staff of teachers has been employed:

Clifford M. Rose—Principal and Mathematics. Leland M. Rose—Industrial Arts and Mathematics. Ernest Mitchell—Science and Athletic Director. Edward Christensen—History and Social Science. Margaret E. Browne—Commercial. Hulda Bartel—English and Library. Helen Lundgren—Home Economics. Barbara Bilgus—Latin, English, Science. Jeanne Backhaus—Grades 7 and 8. Beiva Becker—Grades 5 and 6. LaVerne Hron—Grades 3 and 4. Evelyn Christensen—Grades 1 and 2.

An instructor for the recently created music department has not as yet been employed.

Kewaskum high school offers an exceptional number of vocational and academic subjects from which the students may choose in arranging his or her program. The subjects to be offered by years are as follows:

Freshmen—English I, Mathematics I, Algebra, General Science, Social Studies, Industrial Arts, Home Economics, Sophomore—English II, Geometry, World History, Biology, Industrial Arts II, Home Economics II, Typewriting I, Latin II.

Juniors—English III, U. S. History, Chemistry, Geography, Advanced Algebra, Trigonometry, Typewriting II, Shorthand I, Industrial Arts III, Home Economics III, Latin II.

Seniors—English IV, Social Problems, Economics, Physics, Bookkeeping, Stenography II, Home Economics IV, Industrial Arts IV, Advanced Algebra, Trigonometry, Latin II.

In addition to the above courses instrumental and vocal instruction will be available to students in both the grades and high school.

For the past several years all of the school's commercial graduates have been placed in positions before the close of the school year.

The boys in the industrial arts classes not only learn mechanical drawing and blue print reading but make many excellent pieces of furniture. They also learn the proper use and care of power and hand tools.

The young ladies enrolled in the home-making classes have learned much about dietetics, food preparation, and clothing construction. All young women are potential homemakers so the knowledge gained in home-making courses enables them to establish and maintain a finer type of home.

The school is especially proud of the fine record our graduates are making in the college and universities they are attending.

In addition to the academic subjects listed above, Kewaskum high school offers excellent opportunities for participation in extra-curricular activities. This year for the first time in five years, the school will have a school band. True they will be making a brand new start but with co-operation of both students and parents this organization will contribute much to the general development of individuals and the community.

The school choruses have competed successfully in interscholastic competition over the years and have presented operettas which have been enthusiastically received by all who witnessed them.

The record compiled by the athletic teams during recent years is an outstanding one, the envy of neighboring schools, and a tribute to the coaching ability of the athletic director, Ernest Mitchell.

It is the aim of the entire staff to assist each individual student with his or her problems and to give counsel when desirable so that these young people may grow into adults prepared to assume their share of responsibilities and to find real satisfaction in life.

UTENSILS PLAY IMPORTANT CONTEST AT ADEL SUNDAY Although the regular schedule has been completed, the Utensils and other teams still have postponed games to make up. The first of these will be played Sunday at Adel. This game was postponed on July 13. Citizen Soldiers Resume Role As Guardian of Nation's Peace

National Guard Is Major Force In Security Team

WASHINGTON.—As the second summer of peace settles on the United States, an army of more than 75,000 men has been moving into camps for training which will qualify them as guardians of that peace in the years to come. They are men of the new postwar National Guard.

For the first time since 1940, when the initial National Guard troops were called into federal service during World War II to protect the security of the country and the integrity of the American way of life, National Guard units are undergoing regular field training this summer. Encampments opened in the latter part of July and will continue until early September.

Individual and specialist training, including small arms familiarization firing, is being emphasized during the field training this summer for the 50,000 men attending the regular 15-day encampments and the 25,000 men taking the shorter, school-type training.

This is the first phase of the training program the army ground forces has patterned to the growth of the new National Guard, which is planned as an M-Day (Mobilization Day) force of 682,000 men, trained, equipped and immediately available for service in the event of any aggression by an enemy nation.

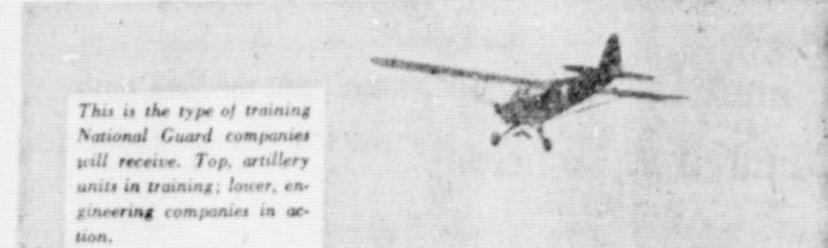

Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger of North Platte, Neb., retiring chief of the National Guard bureau, can look back to a growth that doubled the progress of reorganization following World War I. Completely demobilized upon separation from federal service at the end of World War II, the new National Guard has grown to a strength of more than 1,000,000 in the first year of its reorganization. Federal recognition has been granted more than 45 per cent of the ground and air units planned for the ultimate M-Day force, and their personnel is drawing federal pay for regular, weekly training.

Triple Strength.
To Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer of Wethersfield, Conn., falls the task of supervising the continued growth of the National Guard to a strength almost three times that authorized before World War II. Assistant Commander of the 24th infantry division in the Pacific during World War II, General Cramer has been appointed new chief of the National Guard bureau by President Truman for a term of four years.

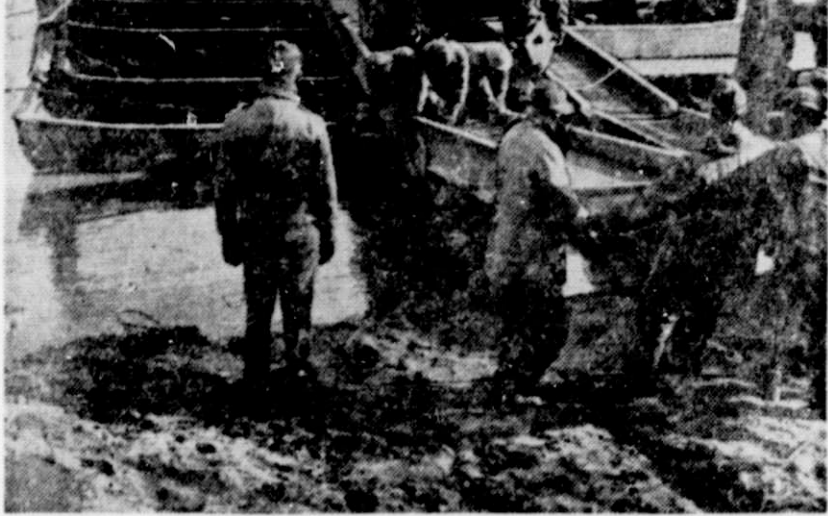

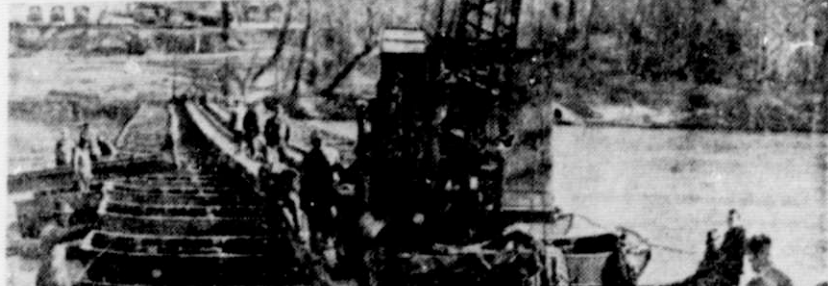

A veteran of both world wars who has won the Silver Star with three Oak Leaf Clusters and an officer in the Connecticut National Guard since 1931, General Cramer typifies the leadership in the new National Guard. The same high standards required of the enlisted men and officers in the peacetime regular army are met by the enlisted men and officers of the National Guard.

In addition, all officers above the grade of second lieutenant must have had federal service during World War II. This requirement is designed to insure the professional fitness of the men who will have increased responsibilities in commanding a tactical force, in contrast to the prewar guard, which was a reserve force requiring additional personnel and training before it was ready for service.

The prewar National Guard sent 18 infantry divisions into action in every theater of operation. At Bataan, Bougainville, Morotai and Leyte; in Tunisia, Salerno, Anzio and Normandy some 300,000 men of the National Guard served with the distinction that has characterized their service in every conflict into which the United States has been forced.

This is the type of training National Guard companies will receive. Top, artillery units in training; lower, engineering companies in action.

In line with its increased responsibilities, the postwar National Guard will have 25 infantry divisions, two armored divisions and 21 regimental combat teams. There also will be 123 anti-aircraft artillery battalions, 45 field artillery battalions, 68 coast artillery batteries, 20 tank battalions and 15 mechanized cavalry reconnaissance squadrons together with the necessary supporting troops in the ground forces.

Expand Air Arm.
The greatly expanded air arm of the National Guard will consist of 84 tactical squadrons plus a radar and communications net of 12 aircraft control and warning groups. This contrasts with the 5 observation squadrons which were active before World War II.

No field training is planned for air units before the summer of 1948, but already 50 fighter squadrons, flying P-51 Mustangs and P-47 Thunderbolts, and 10 light bombardment squadrons, flying A-26 Invaders, have been granted federal recognition and are making regular training flights.

Jet-propelled P-80 Shooting Stars also will be flying National Guard insignia in 1948.

This modern air arm will be integrated into the nation's air defense along with other regular and civilian components of Army Air Forces under the commanding general of the air defense command and will be ready to stave off any initial thrust of an enemy approaching by air.

Planning for this modern tactical force, equipped with the same weapons as the regular army, began before World War II's end when the nation's military leaders laid the groundwork for a balanced military force consisting of a comparatively small regular army of 875,000, a National Guard strength of 682,000 and an organized reserve of 200,000 men in service type units. The pattern for the military establishment of the United States was set back in colonial days when the early settlers organized themselves into companies to protect themselves and their property. The 182d infantry of the Massachusetts National Guard, oldest regiment in the continental United States, traces its history back to the "North Regiment" which was organized in 1636 from companies or "trainbands," then in existence.

Reliance upon themselves as citizen soldiers rather than upon a large professional army has been a tradition with Americans since that time.

Washington's View.
George Washington, who led an army of citizen soldiers to victory in the Revolutionary War, expressed it this way when asked by the first congress of the United States to give his views on what the military policy of the new nation should be:

"Every citizen who enjoys the protection of a free government owes not only a proportion of his property but even of his personal services to the defense of it."

At the conclusion of World War II George Marshall expressed it this way: "Obviously, we cannot all put on uniforms and stand ready to repel invasion. . . . But all Americans, in the next generations, prepare themselves to serve their country in maintaining the peace or against the tragic hour when peace is broken, if such a misfortune again overtakes us."

This is the tradition and the heritage of the new National Guard, which will take its place as an integral part of the nation's security team.

Kansas Gardener Gives Seeds Free Throughout World

TOPEKA, KAN.—Although he is living on a modest pension, Phil E. Zimmerman is known in many parts of the world. His notoriety stems from the fact that he is identified simply as "the man who gives away flower seeds."

Known as the world's champion seed giver, the tall, gangling flower gardener makes certain that his flowers get around. He gives them away free.

Some of the Zimmerman flowers are growing in every continent in the world except Australia. "I'm going to get them there pretty soon," he promises.

Almost everybody in Topeka knows Zimmerman. Others are just as likely to know him in China, Great Britain, Cuba or Africa. There are more than 1,000 gardens in Topeka bearing Zimmerman's flowers. He is credited with being instrumental in establishing several hundred new flower gardens every year.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Which Should Be the Boss?

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Mother is on a beach—the young brown forms racing to and fro, with the word "Mother" ringing like bells in the air.

YOUR INNING WILL COME
Married life generally places the heavier burden on the woman. A man has outside interests, the stimulation of his job, a chance to get away from the home every day. The wife and mother, however, is tied down. For long years she must care for the children night and day. There are so many dreary little tasks to be done, whether she is sick or well, tired or fresh, that it is no wonder many women often wish they could get away from their responsibilities. They are envious of their husbands' freedom.

Miss Norris tells Denise Franklin, a Dallas, Tex., woman with four young children, that her in-coming will come, if she will just live through these difficult years as gracefully and bravely as possible. Her husband, Parker, is a big handsome man, successful in business and social life, a fine athlete, a good if somewhat frugal provider; he is faithful and, in his way, affectionate.

What is driving Denise to distraction, however, is his breezy unconcern for her labors and difficulties, and his autocratic way of managing everything. He gives her an allowance, and that is all. Money affairs are strictly his province. He comes and goes as he pleases, plays golf and tennis, with little regard for tired, overburdened Denise.

This is the way of the world, Miss Norris counsels Denise. Many men are careless, seemingly indifferent about their wives' problems. The way out, concludes Miss Norris, is not a divorce, but patience and hope. Better days will come.

Tired, Sick, Tearful.
"I was a professional dancer when we met," the letter goes on. "I love life, too. My father, widowed, lived only for me, we travelled a lot. I was nine times a bridesmaid before I married at 23. Now I don't dare look in the mirror at the tired pale woman whose work is never done. I love my three girls and fat baby boy. I'd like more children. But to be always exhausted, to be sick and tearful so often, to be impatient and angry with the babies, to wash, cook, shop for them, to bathe, feed, dress, discipline them, is work for three women, let alone one."

"Parker isn't the helpful domestic type, but I don't mind that. But to have him hold all the authority, handle all the money, make all decisions and smile at my objections or resentment—is that fair? Parker is close with money; what he spends on clubs he gives me scrupulously, it comes to about $25 a month, my 'allowance.' Never another cent, he shakes his head at the mere idea. He pays bills, goes to market. His business is one in which personality pays, and he has personality. He works hard, doesn't drink, saves money. They say he will be a rich man some day. In other words, Parker has everything, and I drudge away humbly in the background, agreeing with everyone that I have a wonderful husband, and hating myself for saying it."

"What has especially infuriated me, and spurred me into writing you," the letter ends, "is the discovery that Parker has had a handsome raise a year ago, and has invested it all, without mentioning it to me. This is treating me like a child or a slave, and I won't stand for it. How can I get out?"

Dignity and Courage.
"I'll tell you how you can get out, Denise. Just by living through it with dignity and courage. These years are Parker's but there are golden years to come that will be yours. When that quartette of children is in school, when Parker's rather despotic rule and thrift have borne fruit, when you have a country home and a comfortable bank account, then you will begin to reap the harvest you deserve. Motherhood is the crown of any woman's life; children fill up a home, make life rich. And in the days of picnics, birthdays, early hospitalities Mother gets much more from them than Dad does. While Dad is going the same old round, selling his personality to dull men from Buffalo and Detroit and Dallas, Mother is on a beach, her back propped against a sand-sunk log, the lunch-basket beside her and the young brown forms racing to and fro, with the word "Mother" ringing like bells in the air. Mother is the one to whom the feverish young eyes turn in hours of illness. Mother is the one to hear secrets, to grant favors, to say proudly to casual acquaintances, "my sons and daughters."

Believe me, nothing in life compares to that for sheer pride and achievement. In 10 years, my tired little mother, your days may be all times of happiness and pride; in 10 years you may be glad that financial foresight that means an assured middle age. Men do have the advantage of women in some ways—granted. But women have their glorious innings, too, and it has always been my personal conviction that a smart woman can make her life a much more triumphant thing than can an equally smart man.

X-Rays for Arthritis
X-ray treatments give "satisfactory relief from pain" to sufferers from arthritis, bursitis and allied diseases of the joints, according to an article in Radiology magazine.

The authors of the article, Drs. Ernest A. Pohle and James A. Morton of University of Wisconsin medical school, Madison, Wis., said X-ray treatments "definitely have something to offer" to the nation's 7,400,000 arthritis sufferers. Their conclusions were drawn from a study of 100 patients.

Women Accepting Longer
Readers received as a result of advance sales of the new longer-length dresses indicated public acceptance of the new style trend, according to fashion experts. The report stated that retailers were continuing to maintain a conservative buying pace.

Coat and suit activity on fall merchandise pointed toward customer acceptance of the new silhouettes, with fur-trimmed models, especially tuxedos, selling well. Muskrat, mouton and persian were best in the medium-price ranges, silver, platinum and white fox were wanted in the higher brackets. Reorders for suits highlighted gabardines. Dress figures held with satin and faille continuing to prove steady reorder types, while a sustained demand for high-shade crepes was noted. Back-to-school wools and corduroys were selling fast. Bal-larina-length dresses were proving popular.

YOUR INNING WILL COME

Married life generally places the heavier burden on the woman. A man has outside interests, the stimulation of his job, a chance to get away from the home every day. The wife and mother, however, is tied down. For long years she must care for the children night and day. There are so many dreary little tasks to be done, whether she is sick or well, tired or fresh, that it is no wonder many women often wish they could get away from their responsibilities. They are envious of their husbands' freedom.

Miss Norris tells Denise Franklin, a Dallas, Tex., woman with four young children, that her in-coming will come, if she will just live through these difficult years as gracefully and bravely as possible. DECATUR, ILL.—In connection with a recruitment drive, Decatur unit of the National Guard wants 5,000 pounds of men—and is willing to pay for them. Lt. Col. False Teeth Take Bite Out of Owner

ANN ARBOR, MICH.—It was a pair of false teeth, no doubt, but they did manage to bite Walter Springer, insurance man and president of the board of education. He was carrying them in his shirt pocket when a car in which he was riding was involved in a crash. The impact jammed the teeth into his flesh. Attending physicians found no broken bones.

Veterans SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This Newspaper through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of the Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Congress Stalls Vet Benefits

Thousands of war veterans likely will be disappointed with the failure of congress to increase subsistence payments for both single and married veterans attending school under the G.I. bill.

Congress also failed to raise the ceiling for on-the-job training payments and to extend the law giving automobiles to amputees.

This column has been in receipt of many letters inquiring about the action of congress on these various measures. Although several bills varying little in objective were introduced early in the session, it was not until the last week before adjournment that any action was taken on the floor. Through the efforts of Sen. Wayne Morse (Rep. Ore.) and Sen. Spessard Holland (Dem., Fla.) and over the objection of the GOP policy committee, the senate finally passed three bills by unanimous vote. One would have increased the subsistence allowance to veterans in school, another would have raised the ceiling on on-the-job training, and the third would have extended the law providing for free automobiles for amputees.

These bills then went to the house and died there in committee although Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers (Rep., Mass.), champion of veterans' rights and for many years chairman of the house committee on veterans affairs, made a determined effort to bring the bills out of committee without success.

Speaker Joe Martin, Congressman Leo Allen (Rep., Ill.), chairman of the rules committee, and GOP floor leader Charles Halleck (Rep., Ind.) are credited with holding up the bills, first on the GOP economy pledge and second because they maintained that President Truman in his state of the union message last January had declared that "except for minor adjustments I believe that our program of benefits for veterans is now complete."

After the three bills had passed the senate without a dissenting vote it was expected that the green light had been given and that they also would pass the house. The reverse, however, was true. So despite the increased cost of living veterans must get along on their present allowances, and there will be no more free automobiles for those amputees who did not get their application in before the deadline when the old law went out of existence.

Questions and Answers

Q. I have a $10,000 national service life insurance policy but do not know the number of it. I made a two months' payment and have received no acknowledgment of it from Veterans' administration. What record or proof of payment should I have received?—W. A. V., Little Rock, Ark.

A. Veterans' administration should have sent you a receipt of payment but, inasmuch as you didn't list a policy number on your remittance, they may not have been able to find an account to which to credit the money. Suggest you write to VA, Insurance Division at Washington, D. C., giving them your story, military serial number, name, address and amounts of money mailed to them.

Q. What is the punishment generally given for a person who has been absent without leave from the army for 14 months in peacetime, and will they keep on looking for him?—K. L., New York, N. Y.

A. Peacetime absence without leave usually draws a lighter sentence than in wartime. No one could tell what the courtmartial board would impose as a sentence because the circumstances surrounding each case are different. It is better for an AWOL serviceman to turn himself in than to wait until he is caught. The government will continue its search until the soldier is apprehended.

Q. How many of the U. S. airborne divisions have divisional songs?—L. P. S., Richmond, Va.

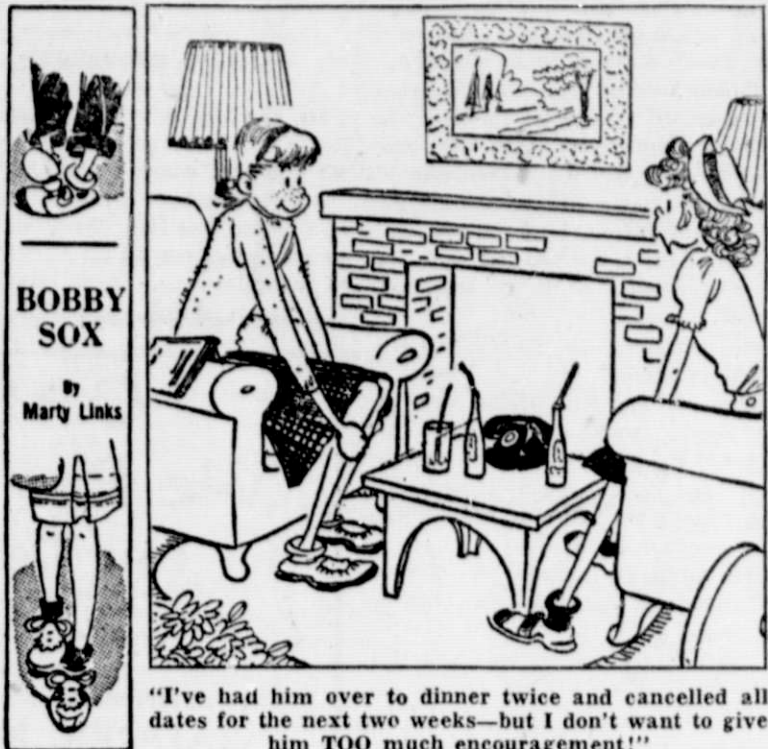

A. Only one airborne division is credited with having an official song and that is the 82nd airborne division's "The All American Soldier." Music was written by Charles Kniff and Tom Jones, and words by Sgt. Carl Sigman.

Q. I would like to get in touch with a good friend and would be grateful if you could help me get his present address. In August, 1945, he was with the occupation forces in Germany. Last address we have is Pfc. A. T., 12147204, Btry C, 411th AAA Gun Bn., APO 403, New York.—B. A. S., Mt. Horeb, Wis.

A. Since you do not give the veteran's full name we cannot help you. Suggest you write direct to the Bureau of Enlisted Personnel, Office of the Adjutant General, Washington, D. C.

Q. Is a returned veteran entitled to the allowance he had sent to his father while he was in the service?—A. N. C., Hayden, Colo.

A. Presumably allowances or family allotments sent to parents of veterans were to help support them because of dependency. The only reason family allotments were permitted by the government was because of partial or complete dependency of parents or other members of the veterans family. If the veteran sent money home on his own, then the decision is between the veteran and his family.

ABOUT OUR PRESIDENTS

GEORGE WASHINGTON, our first President, was not born on February 22, the day we celebrate as the day of his birth, but on February 11, 1732. When Washington was 20 years old the calendar was revised and the day which was his birthday on the old calendar became February 22 on the new.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, our twenty-fifth President, had as his slogan "Speak softly and carry a big stick."

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES does not receive a pension when he is through being President, but it is the custom of our congress to vote his wife a pension (should the outlive her husband) even when she does not need it.

Instrument Enables Dancer To Produce Accompaniment

The strangest electronic musical instrument, developed by Leon Thermin of New York in the early 1930s, consists of an inch-high platform backed by a stand having a loud-speaker and two six-foot vertical metal rods, says Collier's.

As the pitch and volume are controlled by the waving of the hands near these rods, a dancer performing on the platform can, by her movements, produce her own accompanying music.

THE FICTION CORNER
THE PORK BANDIT
By DEE RANDALL

NOSEY COLLINS, as you know, is the Number One Egoist of the day. Just as Napoleon once laid claim to the title. But that was back in the 17th or 18th century. And nobody bothers much about him any more. Except those who like to dig and delve into dusty old history books.

Napoleon had only an Empire to conquer. Nosey had a newspaper office and an ever-loving Tillie as his territorial grounds.

It's true, it proved rather expensive this ego-building business. Put no matter the cost, Nosey is acclaimed as a self-made man. One of the finest men on the staff of the Daily Gazette.

Besides Tillie and the newspaper office, it must be revealed, Nosey has still another love. She now lay cozily in her private retreat... the right hand drawer of Nosey's desk.

There was a quiet purr as Nosey patted the soft, dirty white fur on Dermie's neck. Dermie was the nickname for Hy-podermic. A name fitting to the oversized cat because you really had to stick a needle in her to make her stir.

There was only one other thing that would rouse this reflexing feline. That was the smell of boloney or liver, even from the farthest corner of the ink-smattered city room.

Originally from the restaurant on the corner where she was expected to rid the place of mice and make herself generally useful, she had found refuge in Nosey's comfortable desk drawer. The clatter of dishes and hustle bustle of the crowded restaurant had proved too much for her sensitive nerves.

Nosey stopped his tender patting. This annoyed Dermie no end. Raising her head, which was more energetic than she cared to use, she perked a quizzical eye at him.

"Dermie," Nosey spoke seriously. "If we could get a beat on this Pork Bandit case, we'd sure have something."

Dermie's answer was an assenting hiss. "Seven butcher shops in seven days," Nosey went on, "that's a record for any criminal. He's plenty nervy, too. Sent them all a notice beforehand. He's got the cops in a quandary. Must be a ghost."

"Here he snickered scornfully at the idea of a ghost ransacking a cash register and sticking a butcher knife in a man's back.

"What puzzles me," Nosey went on with his one-sided conversation, "is how he gets in and out with the cash right under their eyes. And why does he always pick on pork plate. She let out a growling hiss and rousing herself, waddled off indignantly. She wasn't used to such shabby treatment.

Nosey had no time to worry over this breach of friendship in Dermie's indignant stamping off. In fact, she was back in a few moments, rubbing her face against his pants leg as a reminder of her gnawing vitals. She hadn't been fed in two hours.

Nosey paid no attention to her pleading. He was waiting for the stranger who was to visit him. At precisely three o'clock, as the note stated, a tall, shabbily dressed man appeared. His dark hair was sleeked neatly back, but otherwise he was hardly a picture of sartorial elegance.

"Mr. Collins? You received my note?" Nosey noticed the stranger's

The stranger's hand quivered nervously as Nosey motioned him to a chair.

Nosey read and reread the unsigned note on his desk. "Maybe I'll be able to get a lead out of this after all," he reflected. Some butcher had quivered nervously as he beckoned him towards a chair. He took the paper the man handed him. "I'm manager of the store on East 60th street. Received this note early this morning. I left the place and hurried right down here as soon as I could. Didn't have time to change my clothes," he looked down apologetically.

"Your store will be next. This afternoon," the note read. It was signed: "The Pork Bandit."

Nosey scanned the writing carefully. Nothing there to give much of a clue. "Have you seen the police?"

"No sir, thought I'd speak to you first. They seem to be getting nowhere fast," he laughed ruefully. "There has been a note before each crime, you know," he reminded him. Nosey, absent-mindedly patted Dermie's neck. She stirred, looked languidly at the visitor and dozed off again.

Nosey asked him a lot of questions and the visitor seemed anxious to supply all the details possible. "I'm flattered you have so much confidence in us," Nosey told him. "Will you pardon me a moment while I get my notebook. I want to jot down all the information you can give me."

Now Nosey never bothered with a notebook. Any old piece of copy paper did for the hottest scoop.

Outside the city room, Nosey headed for a telephone booth. He made a call, picked up a notebook from a protesting stenographer and returned to his nervously waiting visitor.

He wrote down sentences scrupulously, making sure to dot every "i" and cross every "t." To anyone looking on, it was evident Nosey was stalling for time.

It was only a matter of a few minutes before the two husky cops arrived. A pair of handcuffs were clinked on the now sputtering visitor who demanded to know the meaning of this.

"Here, boys," Nosey addressed the cops, "is your Pork Bandit." He kind of sneered over the name as only a real egoist could do.

The man suddenly stopped bawling. "How did you know?" he asked.

"Well, you see," Nosey drawled, his five feet four swaying magnificently, "you said you just came from your pork store. When Dermie woke up and just went right back to sleep again, I knew that was a lie. If you had really come from there, she would have been over there sniffing your pants and licking your leg, maybe even chewing a piece out of it. It's past her meal time now," he smiled down fondly at Dermie who had stirred at mention of her name, looking expectantly at the empty plate.

He went on: "Then you told me some details that the police have carefully guarded from the public. Nobody but the Pork Bandit himself could have known them."

The man hung his head despairingly. "I used to own half of the chain of stores," he spoke bitterly. "Until my partner swindled me out of my share. It was the only way I knew of to get back what really belonged to me."

For a moment Nosey's gaze was sympathetically bent towards the man's back as they led him away. Then he returned to Dermie.

"Have patience, old girl," he patted her head. When he returned, there was an extra cushion in Dermie's drawer and a brand new plate. It has two sprightly mice painted on it. This has caused no end of concern to Dermie, who, minus her once sharp teeth, can't figure out just how to bite into the little rascals. She doesn't have any trouble with the extra helpings of boloney, though.

Camera fans take notice! George Folsey, MGM cameraman, photographed "If Winter Comes" (Deborah Kerr and Walter Pidgeon starred), entirely by reflected light. Says it gives added depth and life-like quality.

Cary Grant has starred in more pictures shown at the huge Radio City Music Hall than any other movie personality. But recently he saw himself there for the first time, in "The Bachelor and the Bobby-Soxer."

By INEZ GERHARD
CLAUDIA MORGAN has given more than one taxi driver the surprise of his life.

The star of "The Right to Happiness" frequently finds her time so crowded, between broadcasts and stage appearances, that she has to use a taxi for a dressing room. She jumps into the cab, draws the shades—and steps out at the theater, ready to appear behind the footlights. Daughter of Ralph Morgan, niece of Frank, she comes by her dramatic talent naturally.

CLAUDIA MORGAN

rally, but has won professional laurels by her own efforts. And between broadcasting on all the major networks and making stage appearances she raises pigs and chickens on her New Jersey farm.

Fifty boys from the orphanage next door were allowed to enter the grounds of the old Banning estate in Wilmington, Calif., each day while fifty Screen Actors Guild actors, aged five to eight, worked with Evelyn Keyes and Glenn Ford in Columbia's "The Matinee Girl." They were pretty critical—the young actors were playing orphans.

An original rhapsody by Oscar Levant has been included in the score of Warner Bros. "Romance in High C." Levant, who has a featured comedy role in the Technicolor musical, will play it in a night club sequence.

Fitting out Broderick Crawford for a policeman's uniform for "The Time of Your Life" was quite an affair. Going into the role in the William Cagney production on short notice, he borrowed Nat Pendleton's coat, Dick Foran's trousers and Ward Bond's shoes. Broderick says Pendleton is holding out for screen credit on the coat!

Many years ago one Sumner Getchell had a principal role in which Clark Gable, Charles Farrell, Janet Gaynor, Gilbert Roland and George Lewis were bit and extra players. When the picture was done he quit; said there was no future in that business. Recently he returned for a character part in "Ever the Beginning." "I think maybe I was mistaken," said he.

Tony Martin's really going to work this fall. He'll continue his CBS Sunday night show, and star in "Casbah," a musical version of "Pepe Le Moko" at Universal-International. He'll also do a night club stint.

It's radio news that NBC has let down the bar on transcriptions. All these years Ralph Edwards has been putting on two complete "Truth or Consequences" shows each week, one for the east coast, a second one later for the west. The first four programs of the fall season will follow the same procedure, beginning October 4. The first show will be transcribed and broadcast later for the west coast.

Though he's one of Hollywood's best dancers, Rory Calhoun had to take lessons in teen-age tippershore for his role in "Mary Hagen." Seems he's fine at the tango, the rhumba, etc., but had to learn to bounce.

Bob (Believe It or Not) Ripley gave the most original of recent press parties; took about 30 newspaper and magazine writers for a sail on New York's North River in his Chinese junk, the Mon Lei.

Perry Como has signed a non-cancelable, 24-month contract with the sponsor of his NBC "Supper Club" program, which returns to the air September 8. And will Hollywood producers please note that when Como made a personal appearance at the RKO Boston theater, members of his fan clubs paraded with signs saying "We Want More Como Films."

ODDS AND ENDS—There's a good deal of risk in writing to Louise Harley of "The Right to Happiness"—she does handwriting character analysis... Meredith Willson's tour with his CBS radio show has been indefinitely postponed... Stella Adler's "baby," about whom she talked and talked on sets of "Ever the Beginning," turned out to be an 18-year-old daughter who'd just finished her first year of college... Lucille Ball and Franchot Tone will make a series of personal appearances across the country, beginning in October, in connection with pictures released this fall.

Vets to Force Action
Veterans will demand—and probably get—action on various aid bills at the second session of the 80th congress, convening in January. Veterans' organizations are banding together on a program to force action on various measures, particularly the bill to raise subsistence allowances for G.I. students in colleges. Pressure also will be applied to increase subsistence allowances for veterans taking on-the-job training.

Pessimism Prevails
THE month of August marked the 10th anniversary of the soil conservation program. During this decade more than 1,900 conservation districts have been organized by farmers throughout the 48 states for the purpose of conserving practices on more than 190 million acres of farm land.

Despite these practices, the drain on soil fertility as a result of over-production of crops during the war years and of natural causes finds American farms in worse shape generally than before the war.

Soil conservation experts in the department of agriculture and in the local district committees throughout the country are pessimistic over the reduction of approximately 86 million dollars in payments to farmers from the soil conservation service for 1948 as compared to 1947. The reduced appropriations made by congress not only will cut payments to farmers but also will cause the lay-off of some 1,100 employees in the soil conservation service.

So at a time when the farmer and the soil conservationist should be thinking and practicing more soil conservation the agriculture department must necessarily retrench because of the sapping of the program by congress.

As an expression of gratitude for aid received from the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration, a commercial college in Brno, Czechoslovakia, has formally adopted the name "UNRRA Commercial College." Czechoslovakia received a total of $264,075,000 in aid under the UNRRA relief program.

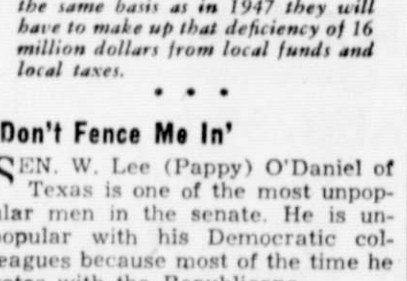

High and Dry
President Truman's appointees to the national labor relations board were left high and dry by the senate, which declined to confirm their nominations. They are Robert N. Denham, named general counsel; former Sen. Abe Murdock of Utah, and J. Copeland Gray of Buffalo, N. Y.

So although they must administer the difficult Taft-Hartley labor bill along with the three other hold-over members of the board, they don't know whether they will have a job or not come next January. It may be that action of the senate was deliberate to see how these men would work before confirming their appointments.

The 79th congress provided 75 million dollars for the school lunch program throughout the country. It also provided a million dollars more as a deficiency appropriation, making a total of 81 million dollars available for school lunch programs in 1947. The 80th congress slashed this to 65 million dollars, so that the states wish to provide school lunches on the same basis as in 1947 they will have to make up that deficiency of 16 million dollars from local funds and local taxes.

'Don't Fence Me In'
SEN. W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas is one of the most unpopular men in the senate. He is unpopular with his Democratic colleagues because most of the time he votes with the Republicans.

Senator O'Daniel bought an apartment house near the capitol and went into court to evict the tenants. To toss out the long-time tenants, the senator told the court and the rent control board that he needed all 40 rooms, 14 kitchens and 14 baths for the personal use of his own family.

He said he paid $52,500 for the apartment house. Now he is selling the apartments on a cooperative plan for from 10 to 13 thousand dollars an apartment—which figures out some $150,000 profit.

Of course, the senator never occupied all 40 rooms but, being from Texas, he probably didn't want to be fenced in.

Slash in Workers
The slash in the department of agriculture's budget will mean a lay-off of approximately 13,700 employees in the department. Although at the beginning of this year Secretary Anderson had reduced personnel of the department 10,000 below the prewar figure and his budget as originally sent to congress provided for a further reduction of 9,100, the slashes made by congress will add approximately 4,600 more lay-offs.
