John H. Engelmann, 78, a retired farmer, and father of Mrs. Al. (Selma) Naumann of this village, passed away suddenly on Friday morning, Oct. 3, at his home, 509 Fourth avenue in West Bend. He had suffered a heart attack. Mr. Engelmann was born Jan. 28, 1869, in the town of Scott, Sheboygan county. He was married to Anna Stange at New Paltz in 1895, the couple moving to their present home in West Bend in 1915.

Surviving are his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Naumann here and Nelda (Mrs. Walter Kannenberg) of Milwaukee; two sisters, Mrs. John Wernicke of Kewaskum and Mrs. Frank Stroger of Beechwood, and two brothers, Albert of West Bend and Harry of Sheboygan.

Funeral services were conducted on Monday at 2 p. m. in St. John's Lutheran church, West Bend, by the Rev. W. P. Sauer, Gordon Ohlrogge of the Sackow funeral home was in charge. Burial was in Union cemetery there.

OTTO BRANDENBURG

Otto Brandenburg, 68, former town of Scott resident, and a brother of Mrs. Frank Vetter of Kewaskum, was found dead in his bed at the home of Otto Gumpert, a distant relative, at Montfort in Sauk county, where he had spent the past three years.

Born in the town of Auburn on Nov. 9, 1879, the son of Wilhelm and Louise Siegfried Brandenburg, he was confirmed in the Lutheran church in the town of Scott by Rev. Otto and was married Nov. 11, 1908, to Anna Flebenhauser. She preceded him in death in 1926. Besides his sister, Mrs. Vetter here, he is survived by a brother, Frank, of Beechwood.

Funeral services were held at the Leifer-Yoho funeral home, Batavia, and at 2 o'clock at the Beechwood church. The Rev. Melvin Schroer officiated and burial was in the Beechwood cemetery.

100 ATTEND REUNION-PARTY OF GAS HOUSE GANG SUNDAY

More than 100 of the approximate 150 members of the so-called Kewaskum Gas House gang attended a party and reunion in honor of the returned servicemen of the gang at the Bar-N-Dude ranch on Sunday afternoon and evening.

Since before the war all members had paid annual dues and kept a "kit" going for a grand celebration when all the men and women were back home again. Some members never came back from the war, and others have moved to distant cities, but all who were able to make it were present Sunday. The persons from the farthest distance present were from Panama. There were many from Milwaukee and some from West Bend, Barton and Campbellsport.

Dancing, card playing, reunions and just plain visiting highlighted the entertainment to mention nothing of the delicious supper and abundant refreshments. It is hoped the affair will be made an annual one.

Chairmen Urge Groups to Drive Home Cancer Facts

Continuing to stress the educational phase of the drive being conducted in Washington county this month to raise funds for the American Cancer society as "all-important," L. P. Rosenheimer, local chairman, urged all gatherings of 20 or more persons to have a physician present to address them on pertinent facts leading to prevention and detection of cancer.

As an indication of the interest clubs, social groups, and other organizations are taking in the cancer educational program, D. J. Kenny, West Bend, chairman of the county committee, pointed out he was requested this week to arrange for a doctor to speak at a social group meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bauer, town of West Bend, Thursday evening, Oct. 9. *Kenny said he arranged to have Dr. Alvin T. Grundahl, West Bend, deputy county coroner, speak to the group on the control of cancer. The meeting, he said, was arranged by John Thoma, chairman of the town of West Bend and also chairman of its cancer committee. He exhorted groups in other communities to hold similar meetings.

"It is almost a question of your money or your life—or the life of one you love," the chairman said in his plea for action in the fight against cancer, indicating cancer as our No. 1 enemy because one out of every eight Americans is doomed to die of cancer sooner or later unless the disease is conquered, Kenny said.

"Certainly, there is nothing you would not do to protect a loved one—or yourself—from the threat of cancer," Kenny stated he hoped that during the American Cancer society's drive in Washington county this month everyone would give in proportion to the task ahead of us in the fight against this scourge of mankind.

"Every man or woman who contemplates giving to a cause, no matter how vital or worthy, has a right to know how the money will be spent," he said. "Sixty per cent of all funds raised here will be retained within our state and will be used for programs of cancer education, service, and facilities; 25 per cent will be allocated to research; 9 per cent for the national programs of service and education, and the remaining 6 per cent for administration of the all-out attack on cancer."

Kenny reiterated statistics showing that cancer is killing 478 Americans every day—one every 3 minutes. He also said that only 15 per cent of the persons developing cancer are being saved through early detection and proper treatment.

"But, by more thorough and effective preventive education and by more and better facilities for treatment, an additional 20 to 50 per cent could be saved every year," the chairman revealed.

"To save those who die unnecessarily and to increase the number who can be saved, we must spread knowledge that this cancer is curable in its early stages, provide more and better facilities for prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of cancer, and expand the scientific research attack which will lead to more effective treatment and possibly even the elimination of the disease."

Fruit, Corn and Late Potato Show Saturday

The fruit, corn and late potato show will be held at the fairgrounds at Slinger on Saturday of this week. This show is a part of the annual county fair. Entries may be made between 8:30 and 10:00 o'clock a. m. Exhibits may be removed after 4:00 o'clock. In the fruit show exhibitors are cautioned to show only those varieties listed in the premium book. See pages 47 and 48 of the premium book. If corn is exhibited, only corn grown in 1947 is eligible to compete. Ten years are required for an entry. In the potato division only the late maturing varieties are eligible. These include the Chippewa and the Katahdin which are sometimes classed with the early maturing varieties.

The late fair is also an excellent opportunity for I-H club members to exhibit. If they failed to do so at the August county fair, an exhibit at the late fair will count toward achievement in club projects.

Judge Frank Bucklin Addresses Kiwanians

"Responsibilities of Citizens in a Republic" was the subject of a speech given local Kiwanians by Judge Frank W. Bucklin of West Bend on Monday evening, Oct. 6. Judge Bucklin's address encouraged a display of enthusiasm about the American way of life and emphasized the need for more "thinking" among our citizens.

Next Monday, Oct. 13, the regular meeting of the Kiwanis club will be held in the Republican Hotel and will feature an open forum program at 6:15 p. m.

Kewaskum Hi-Lights

There's music in the air in more than one way at the Kewaskum high school. An operetta, scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Nov. 13 and 14, is in practice. It is, "Her Royal Highness, Miss Jones." The title role is being played by Betty Ann Rose who played the lead last year in "An Old Kentucky Garden" and two years ago in "Tulip Time." The production is under the direction of Edmer Schabo, music instructor.

The leads in the huge cast are: Miss Jones.....Betty Ann Rose
Tillie, her nurse and companion..... Rita Schmidt
Lance Pembroke, ex-society playboy and publicity man for the hotel..... Bob Fellenz
Douglas Bruce, service station attendant (romantic lead)..... Joseph Gruber
Mr. Finkle, manager of the hotel..... Dick Edwards
The hotel clerk..... Alvin Jeske
Manny Quinn, society dog and spoiled beauty..... Gladys Woddis
H. R. H. Princess Terra, Diane Schaefer
A woman patient escaped from a home for neurotics..... Betty Koerble
Mrs. Randolph Quinn, Mary Ellen Miller

Built around the familiar theme of mistaken identity, the story moves rapidly and humorously to a happy ending for all concerned. Confusion results from the substitution of Miss Jones as the Princess Terra, the mistaking of an escaped neurotic patient as the princess, and the unexpected arrival of the real "Her Royal Highness."

BAND

"Boys and girls together—blah" resounds through the corridors. A faint resemblance of "Auld Lang Syne" seeps through the ventilators. And a desperate fumble periodically punctuated shrills through the walls: "My Country 'squeak 'tis of 'squeak' 'Thee 'squeak!'" These wholly unfamiliar sounds are the musical (?) endeavors of the 50 some boys and girls who will in the near future constitute the Kewaskum high school band. The faculty that much of the music (?) is faintly recognizable holds great promise of a successful venture in the land of band.

Edmer Schabo, band director, gives individual lessons to each of the pupils beginning band and is gradually working the sections together as a basis for the final organization as a playing unit.

Alvin Jeske edged out his major competitor for the office of student council president, Dick Edwards, by only 4 votes in the general election held by the student body last week. Runners-up were Barbara Schaefer, Donald Schneider, and Pat Hanrahan.

CHEER LEADERS

A change in the selection of cheer leaders was voted this year by the student body. The former practice of holdovers from year to year was discarded. All members of the A-team as well as the B-team must be elected with any individual eligible who wishes to try out.

This year's A-team is composed of Ruth Elchstedt, Dolores Schmitz, Mary Scaries and Alvin Backhaus. Members of the B-team are Betty Siegfried, Ione Bouchard, Carol Schmidt and Pat Perkins.

Lomira Hands Indians First Loss in 3 Years

A fast-stopping Lomira six handed Kewaskum High its first conference football defeat in three years here last Friday when they scored after recovering a Kewaskum fumble on the five yard line with less than two minutes to play. The final score was 22 to 16.

The Indians made a valiant effort to tie the score in the closing minute but the rally fell short when Lomira intercepted a pass on the goal line as the game ended.

Kewaskum took a 16 to 0 lead at the half on touchdowns by Staehler and Ed. Koepke. But in the second half Sterr scored on a fumble he picked up in the third quarter in midfield and then again on the play following the recovery of Kewaskum's fumble in the last minutes. The "Kums threatened several times but were unable to make a sustained drive to score.

The game continued their conference schedule with a game at Oakfield Friday and next Friday afternoon they will meet Campbellsport in the homecoming game here.

Plea for Hiring Handicapped Highlights Annual Observance

Physical Defects Prove No Barrier, Survey Indicates

WNU Features. It's ability, not disability, that counts.

That message is being broadcast throughout the nation this week in connection with the annual observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week.

Objective of the observance is to seek national action in behalf of the handicapped, the action being spurred by official figures disclosing that at the present time there are 500,000 employable handicapped job applicants who have not been able to find jobs even though employment nationally in the last two years has thrust upwards to the all-time high of 80 million.

Launched in 1945, National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week was first observed officially in 1945. In that year congress passed a joint resolution designating the first full week in October each year as the date for the observance.

It is estimated by the federal interagency committee for employment of the physically handicapped that a total of six million handicapped persons are now in the civilian labor force either working or seeking employment.

Last year 29,000 job placements for physically handicapped workers were made by local offices of state employment services in October, the month in which NEPH Week was observed.

In issuing his proclamation for National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, President Truman directed attention to the reservoir of unused skills and strengths represented in the thousands of handicapped workers now unemployed.

The President said that new studies by the department of labor had demonstrated that physically handicapped workers have made excellent records in terms of low absenteeism, small turnover and high safety records.

This year's National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week objectives, as outlined by Edward L. Keenan, deputy director of the United States Employment Service and chairman of the federal interagency committee for employment of the physically handicapped, are:

- 1 To promote employer acceptance of men and women with impairments as workers in jobs for which they have been prepared and for which they are qualified.
2 To find jobs promptly for the 500,000 handicapped workers now unemployed.
3 To effect better job adjustments for those handicapped workers who are capable of doing better jobs.
4 To develop rehabilitation, training and job opportunities for the 1,000,000 handicapped persons who can be made employable.

The slogan for the week is "Hire the Handicapped - It's Good Business." The campaign this year stresses the proved fact that handicapped workers, when placed in jobs they are qualified to do, are as good or better workers than the able-bodied.

Color posters which will appear in store windows and other prominent places throughout the observance feature the names of Thomas A. Edison, Charles B. Steinmetz and other noted persons who succeeded despite disabling handicaps that once would have deterred employers from giving them jobs.

No Discordant Note in This Family

CARROLL, IOWA.—Although piano tuning rapidly is becoming a lost art, it certainly isn't the fault of the Holley family.

UNDAUNTED, AT WORK OR PLAY... Physical handicaps prove no barrier at recreational activities or at work. These disabled veterans, although severely handicapped, still are able to participate in a strenuous bowling game.

While employers today demonstrate much more interest in hiring handicapped workers than ever before in the nation's history, employer prejudice against hiring workers who have lost arms or legs or are otherwise physically impaired is still the greatest obstacle to full employment for this group.

War Shatters Prejudice. Employment service officials state that three things have helped to break down this employer prejudice and make it possible for the disabled to obtain gainful employment. First and foremost was World War II.

Surveys of the abilities of handicapped workers also have helped to break down employer resistance to hiring the disabled. These surveys conducted in employer establishments compared the work abilities of the handicapped with able-bodied employees working on similar jobs.

A third factor is the ability which handicapped workers have displayed when given an opportunity to make good.

Clipped by mortar fire in the bloody Ruhr valley engagement in Germany, Lt. Roland Carpenter of Maine emerged with his left leg hopelessly mangled. After becoming accustomed to use of an artificial limb, he registered for a job with a local public employment office.

Time after time, another ex-G.I. was turned down when he sought employment in an occupation in which he had wide experience—photography. Finally, through intervention of the veterans employment service, he secured a job in a photographic shop which had an opening for a man with one good arm and five fingers.

Story of Success.

Two years ago a college graduate lay on a cot in the amputee section

STILL IN ACTION... Struck by a land mine in the terrific action at Herten forest, this ex-G.I. lost a leg and incurred multiple wounds on his body. But he's still in action, despite an artificial leg, carrying on his work as a clerk in a large chemical plant and enjoying such hobbies as dancing, bowling, golf and horseback riding.

of Walter Reed hospital thinking of the future which did not appear too bright. Like thousands of other ex-G.I.s, he was wondering if he ever would get his chance to make good. His chances were not too encouraging, he decided after considering the leg which he lost in the bitter fighting on the Italian front.

But peace as well as war leaves its victims in the realm of the physically handicapped. In New England a young woman with a bad heart condition combined with partial paralysis spent long hours learning how to retouch photographs in a place called, however, met her quest for a job.

State employment service personnel charged with finding jobs for the handicapped often have found that simple changes in the arrangements of a work room or a machine have developed job opportunities for the handicapped.

These local offices—1,800 in all—are spearheading the National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week activities in local communities from Maine to California and from Texas to the Canadian border.

Airline's Weather Data Aids Farmer In Wheat Harvest

KANSAS CITY, MO.—From his desk almost a thousand air miles away, an airline meteorologist has been contributing heavily this summer to production of a bumper wheat crop in North Dakota.

The meteorologist is 22-year-old David J. Bata, assigned to Trans World airline headquarters in Kansas City. By transmitting detailed weather reports to his father and other wheat farmers at Langdon, N. D., Bata has enabled them to keep a jump ahead of the weather, with highly profitable results.

Bata began sending his father twice-weekly detailed weather forecasts covering North Dakota when he was located in TWA's Chicago offices. With the reports went advice on when the weather would best suit planting or harvesting needs.

While still on his father's farm, Bata became interested in meteorology through studying upper air mass circulation, noting in particular how a storm could approach from the northwest while strong southerly winds prevailed on the ground.

Churchless Ladies Aid Still Meets Regularly

GIBSON CITY, ILL.—Although it has had no "mother church" for 15 years, the South Union Ladies Aid society still carries on. Founded at close of the Civil war, the ladies aid was affiliated with one of the oldest churches in this area.

"ELECTRICITY IN THE MILK HOUSE PAYS OFF"
says WISCONSIN FARMER

Harry Kissinger
R. 1, Jackson, Wis.

"Electricity in the milk house means better milk," says Harry Kissinger, successful Wisconsin farmer, "and better milk means better prices." Harry says the electric dairy water heater is a real work-saver, "plenty of good clean hot water always on tap to keep milkers, pails and utensils sparkling clean." According to Harry, his electric milk cooler not only cools milk properly and keeps it at safe temperatures but forces enough heat into the milk house to make it comfortable in winter. Another thing has sold Harry on the use of electricity. He says, "Electricity and other modern farming methods have convinced my son that farming is a pleasant and profitable occupation. That means a lot to me!"

A CENTURY ago—in October, 1847—Cyrus Hall McCormick built the first reaper factory in Chicago and founded the International Harvester Company's business of today.

This month, Harvester is celebrating the 100th Anniversary of this event with a big and colorful exposition on Chicago's lake front at the south end of Soldier Field—a fascinating, informative portrayal of growth and progress in the mechanization of farming, truck transport, industrial power and refrigeration—topped off with music and entertainment.

General Assembly Gets Under Way

U. N. Delegates Convene At Town Hall of the World

By BAUKHAGE, News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—At the opening of the current session of the United Nations general assembly I made the usual rounds greeting friends from far corners of the earth whom these meetings bring together.

He started to say "... let's see how many is it, there was the first Quebec, then the second Quebec..." But the other man interrupted him and remarked gently: "Oh, no, it goes further back than that. This is my forty-fourth. Remember there was a League of Nations, too?"

The younger man stopped. Of course, his gray haired colleague was right. "And you still believe," the younger man asked earnestly, "that some day they'll work?"

"Certainly," was the reply. And it was made with such simple sincerity that the "youngsters" felt a little reproved.

The next day I walked to a railway station across the beautiful Flushing Meadows in the twilight, the scent of new-mown grass all about us, with one of those prodigious, an "instant translator."

She was one of the female of the species who are quite as efficient as the males. But it was not her feminine charm, which attracted me, if such were to be discovered.

I tried to ask her a little about her work, my first question being: "Isn't it interesting?"

"Interesting? Oh, for a while," she answered, "but one would like to get around a little more. I have been here since spring. I'd like to get back to the Orient and other places."

I mentioned that we had had simultaneous translation at Nuerenberg. "Oh, I was there," she said, "and always cold. One could never get warm, anywhere." I agreed. "And," she added, "I went there direct from India."

I tried to get some observation from her on the idea behind these conferences and their effort to bring about world understanding and world peace. "Do you think that they are worthwhile?" I asked.

"Oh, yes," she replied quickly, "they are much better than none at all, much. But I feel that the men here do not really wish to make sacrifices to have peace. The men in their own governments do not wish them to make enough concessions to rob the officials in the different governments of their own power. And so the beautiful words they use are only rationalization. They express idealistic thoughts, but when it comes to acting to implement them, they do not wish to go that far. They already have satisfied that feeling they know they should have, to do the right thing. Then they do not have to do it. Just as all of us rationalize our own misconduct."

That gave me a pause. It also gave me some hope for this session for I believe that the powers of the assembly will be strengthened so that they can enforce what the people want. The fine words and idealistic plans will have more force if the permanent committee of the assembly on peace and security, which Secretary of State Marshall proposed, is created. It will be in session all the time. Its voice, unsmothered by the over-use of the stultifying veto, will be heard continuously; not merely when the assembly itself is in session.

Words Contain Great Significance

Words still are making trouble, as they always have. It isn't what we say so much as what people think we mean. For instance, there was a long discussion of the word "impinging," on the second day of the assembly meeting. This was just the English meaning, discussed among English-speaking reporters. Secretary Marshall had said this new permanent committee of the assembly would not "impinge" on the security council. The great argument about the committee has been that it was intended to by-pass the security council itself, and thus duck the veto.

If the English-speaking reporters weren't quite sure how far you go, or don't go, when you "impinge," it's no wonder there was confusion when it was translated into half a dozen other languages.

It was the translation of one word which nearly caused a revolution in Korea and made the work of the American commission there infinitely more difficult. It also has affected the whole course of action by the assembly on Korea. It was the word "trusteeship."

Conserve Food: Truman; U.N. Adopts Agenda

FOOD PLANS: Conservation

It wasn't hard for President Truman to figure out Europe is in desperate need of food from the U. S., but the U. S. will leave itself wide open for even greater price spiraling if it boosts its exports much higher.

The answer, he told a special press conference, is food conservation by all Americans. It is not a matter of eating any less, he said, but of wasting less.

In line with that, he announced the setting up of a citizens food committee to develop a food conservation program in the nation. Charles Luckman of Cambridge, Mass., president of Lever Brothers, was named president.

Regarding Europe, Mr. Truman said the food and fuel situation there is too critical to allow time for detailed study. Thus, apparently in an emergency frame of mind, the President called together congressional leaders to discuss possible steps that could be taken immediately to aid the starving continent.

If possible, he said, he would not call a special session of congress if stop-gap aid for Europe could be pushed through without resorting to that step.

Americans could start preparing for a heavy barrage of food conservation propaganda.

TOUGH AGENDA: No Dodging

United Nations general assembly proved at least one thing in the first week of its current session—it isn't going to dodge any issues.

After riotous preliminary sessions in which they heard the U. S. and Russian spokesmen verbally and U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie called for an end to feuding, the delegates voted doggedly to take on the entire list of tough, almost insoluble problems standing as a barrier to world accord.

Among the items admitted to the agenda were the partition of Palestine, peace in the Balkans, independence of Korea and Marshall's proposal to reorganize U. N. machinery to hold a tighter rein on the turbulent peace.

Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky's resolution calling on member nations to take criminal action against wrongminded propagandists was wholeheartedly adopted to debate, probably because it will provide a chance to nullify the concept of freedom of the press.

ABSOLVED: Hirohito

Even while five high-ranking Japanese army and navy officers were being hanged by the neck in payment for their crimes of cannibalism, torture and murder of U. S. prisoners, Emperor Hirohito was being publicly absolved of any responsibility for the Pacific war by the chief U. S. war crimes prosecutor.

Joseph B. Keenan told the international war crimes tribunal that "the prosecution believes the people in the dock are really responsible for this war. If there had been anything else, they would be in the dock too."

SIX BILLION A YEAR

Of volume of trade is any indication, America's farm cooperatives are establishing themselves ever more firmly as a significant force in the realm of agriculture.

In the 1945-46 marketing year, farm cooperatives, with more than five million individual farmers participating, did a record six billion dollar business, according to an estimate by the farm credit administration of the department of agriculture.

(The FCA report came at a time when a house small business subcommittee was investigating any possible advantages the co-ops might have over other business because of the fact that they are tax-exempt and private enterprises are not.)

ELEANOR: An Old Note

"Dear Sumner — This Eisleer case seems a hard nut to crack. What do you suggest? Sincerely, E. R."

That, Sumner Welles, former undersecretary of state, told the house committee on un-American activities, was a note he received from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt in 1939 when the then first lady was interested in obtaining an open hearing on the passport application of one Hanns Eisler, Austrian refugee from Hitler.

The note, an almost forgotten memento of the prewar era, was hailed resoundingly in newspapers across the land because Hanns Eisler was accused of being a Communist. He is the brother of Gerhart Eisler, No. 1 agent of the Kremlin in the U. S.

Eisler and his wife finally were issued visas in Mexico City to cover their entrance into this country. He has taken out naturalization papers and is a song writer in Hollywood.

In 1926, Eisler told the committee, he had applied for membership in the German Communist party, but had dropped out. A department of labor report made in 1938 said of him: "The evidence establishes preponderantly that Hanns Eisler is a Communist."

Mrs. Roosevelt's attitude toward the affair was lackadaisical. The note to Welles on behalf of Eisler was strictly routine, she said, adding that she neither knew Eisler nor remembered the note.

ATOMIC CROP: Above Normal

In Japan, much to the wonderment of practically everyone, the radioactive soil around atom-bombed Nagasaki has been reported to be giving out with huge crop yields 50 to 300 per cent above normal.

A Japanese agricultural expert estimated the wheat crop to be about twice normal and the cotton crop three times average. Pumpkins, sugar beets, tomatoes and similar produce had a 50 per cent increase.

Student-Exchange Program

Veterans' administration has received requests for information from hundreds of veterans concerning provisions of the law providing for study abroad on a student-exchange basis. VA advises that it has nothing to do with this law, known as the Fulbright act, since it is operated by the state department. Queries should be addressed to the Division of International Exchange of Persons, Department of State, Washington 25, D. C.

This law authorizes the department of state to use foreign currencies and credits acquired through the sale of surplus property abroad for the program of student exchanges. Under its provisions preference for financial aid is given to veterans of World Wars I and II for study in schools of foreign countries. This assistance may include payment of transportation, tuition, maintenance and other expenses incident to scholastic activity.

Veterans' administration has nothing to do with the student-exchange program and is limited only to the program which enables a World War II veteran to study in a foreign institution under the same G. I. bill provisions which apply to study in a college or university here in the United States.

Questions and Answers

Q. Our son contracted an asthmatic condition and malaria while serving in the Solomon Islands. He was discharged for disability and was given a 10 per cent rating by Veterans' administration because of malaria. He returned to his job in a library and found that while he had no recurring attacks of malaria he did suffer from asthma to such an extent that it proved a handicap in his job in the library. Since he already has received his disability pension is there anything that can be done about this new condition?

—Mrs. J. A. L., Louisville, Ky.

A. The fact that your son was awarded a 10 per cent disability for malaria does not preclude his receiving an additional disability rating for asthma or any other malady which may have resulted from his service in the armed forces. He should apply for examination immediately at the nearest Veterans' administration office or at the office where he received his original disability rating.

Q. I am a veteran of World War II and served about four years in the army. While in the service I contracted tuberculosis and spent many months in a veterans hospital. I was discharged as an arrested case but since my discharge I find that I am hardly able to do any work and I am wondering if there is something I can do about it either to obtain an increased compensation or to receive additional treatment from Veterans' administration. Can you advise me?—A. L. B., Parsons, Kas.

A. Yes, we believe there is something that can be done since Veterans' administration recently announced a new program for arrested pulmonary tuberculosis cases. Under the previous plan, as perhaps in your case, payments were reduced by 50 per cent within six months of the veteran's discharge, whereas under the new plan these veterans are to be examined every six months. If the examination indicates they are unable to resume employment safely, doctors will certify their findings so that VA may determine whether to continue full compensation payments for an additional six months. Under this plan these six-month examinations and continued payments may continue on a totally disabled basis up to two years from the date of discharge from any VA hospital. We suggest that you return to the hospital from which you were discharged and immediately inquire into the operation of this new program.

Q. I am a disabled veteran who has just received a free automobile because I have lost the use of my right leg as a result of war injuries. Must I declare the value of my car when I file my income tax next year?—V. T. R., Greenville, S. C.

A. No. The U. S. tax court ruled recently that such autos are part of the veterans' disability allowances and are not subject to taxation.

Q. I was released from the army with a bad conduct discharge and would like to know if I am entitled to any of the benefits under the G. I. bill.—J. O. C., Lima, Ohio.

A. It will depend entirely upon the nature of your discharge. On all discharges other than honorable it remains up to Veterans' administration to determine whether your discharge merits entitlement to benefits under the G. I. bill. You should contact your nearest VA office for a decision. Your case will be thoroughly reviewed, and Veterans' administration will fix your status.

Q. My husband has permitted his national service life insurance to lapse and I notice from your column that he can reinstate it by the payment of two monthly premiums. Will you tell us why he has to pay two premiums instead of one?—Mrs. B. A. R., Waycross, Ga.

A. Veterans' administration says that one premium is for the 31-day grace period following the date of lapse during which the insurance was continued in force without payment of premium. The other premium is for the current month of the reinstatement.

HARD GUYS

By MILTON BRACKER

THE dead man's foot protruded from the blanket like a discarded boot. A pan of water rested on the sidewalk; they had tried to do something for him, without being able to. Just an ordinary sidewalk, a speeding car, a rat-tat-tat and that was all. Another not-so-big shot was through.

Five minutes after the cops came, a squeaky sedan jolted to a stop at the opposite curb. Half-a-dozen men piled out.

"Reporters," someone in the crowd decided.

The newcomers took in the scene in a matter-of-fact way, then swarmed about the lieutenant and the homicide squad man and plied them with questions. One of the newspapermen was chewing gum. The others were smoking and one rotund fellow laughed raucously at something the homicide squad man said. Soon a few broke away and headed for the drugstore across the street with the blue and white telephone emblem outside. Within twenty minutes all of them squeezed back into the car.

"S'long, Mac, see y'in church," the man at the wheel yelled to the lieutenant as the gears meshed.

"Hard guys," the man in the crowd muttered, as the machine turned the corner.

"You said it," his companion agreed, dryly.

An hour later, Joe Melsner of the City News Federation, "Old Man" of the borough's police reporters, left the smoky-walled pressroom on the ground floor of the Supreme Court Building to buy an afternoon paper. Johnny Hennessy, of the Globe, the kid of the shack, sat in a corner figuring out his expense account. Jim Reide, of the Post-Flash, Nason, of the Mail, Cohen, of the Reflector and Lenox, of the Home Press, with a few of the usual pressroom hangers-on, were at the inevitable rummy game. Opposite, Delany, of the Star, legs stretched majestically across his desk and feet high in the air, sat back reading a fat book with a scarlet cover and yellow edges. Levito, who was with an up-county paper, fidgeted in a phone booth, waiting to "clean up" the shooting story.

A voice thundered in the corridor. The others looked up; they always did when Melsner spoke. He was pointing to something huddled at the doorway.

"Now what d'ya call this?" the Old Man grunted, stooping over. He picked up the cringing something and deposited it gingerly on his desk, a massive roll-top affair with "Private: Keep Out!" on it in forbidding letters. The "something" was a very tiny dog, a bedraggled puppy that looked as if it hadn't eaten in as long as it hadn't bathed. Its eyes were red-rimmed, as if with weeping. But there was a pink spot on the end of the moist black nose. And the eyes themselves sparkled, giving a pert look to the whole tangly bundle.

Hennessy stopped pondering. Delany tossed his book aside, and both from the card table.

"The mutt probably has fleas," he remarked. "Keep it off my desk."

As if understanding, the puppy turned to its critic appealingly. Melsner laughed gruffly, ignoring the complaint.

"It's a cute-lookin' mutt at that, ain't it, kid?" the Old Man winked to Hennessy. "Send out and we'll give it a feed."

One of the ever-present boot-blacks was dispatched across the street. In a minute or two, the pooch was sipping milk and sniffing chopmeat, oblivious to further criticism, or his audience.

"We'll call him Ginger," Hennessy suggested. "Lookit the fire in his eyes, will you?" Ginger yapped appreciatively, provocatively. That finished the card game. Reide, the most die-hard of the players, threw down his gummy cards, and with the others, gathered around Melsner's desk. Fondly they watched the grimy little mutt push his snout into the worm-like chopmeat.

Two days later, Ginger was part of the life of the shack. A bootblack had been commissioned to give him a bath, to provide a lined box for a bed, to continue general caretaking. While the men were out on stories—holdups, suicides, fires, whatnot—Ginger tripped around impatiently, until they came back. Then he greeted them joyously, with quick, short barking yelps.

The pressroom was crowded one sultry afternoon, crowded with sweaty men in shirtsleeves. At the card table, next to Reide, was Al Brown, a thick-necked hardware clerk who spent his idle hours with what he called the "newshounds."

Ginger, temporarily deserted, sniffed in and out of the chair legs, feeling for Reide, who always petted him. The dog rubbed against Brown's trousers by mistake.

"Why, the ——" the startled clerk swore. He reached down, picked up the pup clumsily, and tossed him carelessly to the floor about a yard away. "Wonder you guys wouldn't keep animals outa here," he growled, drawing a card. "You'd think it was a zoo."

Nobody replied. Hennessy looked up queerly from his typewriter.

Ginger, not having sensed the rebuff, returned to the labors. Again he brushed Brown's trousers. As if having anticipated the annoyance, the clerk kicked vigorously. There was a sharp squeal, then Ginger, living up to his name, bit.

Brown roared, grabbed the pooch from his leg, and before anyone could protest, hurled him with crushing force against the wall. There was a crunch, then a whimper.

Every eye in the place turned to the battered little body on the floor. But in a split second, every eye was glued on the centre of the room, and Ginger was forgotten. Hennessy had sprung from his chair like a starting sprinter, yanked Brown from his seat, overturning the table at the same time—and smashed a hard fist to the outsider's jaw.

Brown reeled, regained his footing, swung, and missed. Nason and Delany started to intervene, but Melsner, who had taken everything in quietly, stopped them with a move of his hand. "Let 'em go a while," he said, grimly. The others backed away.

Thoroughly aroused, Brown lunged at his lighter rival, who danced aside just fast enough. As the clerk plowed by, the reporter grabbed him by the scruff of the neck, swung him around, and sent him sprawling away with another punch that cracked against his jaw.

Brown shook his head, spat, then went for Hennessy again. The result was still another crack; he could feel his eye swell as if air had been pumped around it. Clearly he was no match at boxing for the fire-eyed "newshound" who side-stepped and stung him so deftly. He dropped back, then plunged low like a football player and threw Hennessy to the floor.

Again Nason and Delany leaped forward to interfere, but the Old Man, an intense gleam in his eyes, restrained them.

It looked bad for the reporter. Brown pressed his advantage, bore down with his full weight. One of the newspaperman's shoulders was down, the other twisted convulsively as the panting fellow on top sought to wrench it into the dirt of the floor-boards. Then suddenly one of Hennessy's legs appeared, entwined about the body of his foe, the other leg applied pressure from beneath, and a perfect wrestler's "scissors" hurled the heavier man to the side, almost reversing the positions.

The knotted pair whirled crazily across the floor like a two-headed fiend. They crashed into Melsner's desk, upsetting a bottle of purple ink, which spilled over both of them. Then they tore apart, and each staggered to his feet, a livid mess.

Brown wiped his brow, smearing it grotesquely with sweat, ink, and blood. He lunged again, but for the last time. Hennessy, his whole frame taut for one blow, poised like a matador and as the clerk rushed in, brought his left fist forward and up like a lead mallet. It caught the hardware clerk on the point of the chin, and he went down for good. From the corner, a faint bark signaled Ginger's approval, and joyed the wide-eyed onlookers to their senses.

Ten minutes later, a few blocks down, Brown was telling his boss how he'd been "mugged" in a card game brawl with a "half-dozen" reporters.

"I told you to keep away from those fellows," he was told. "They're hard guys."

In the pressroom, Reide held a blue bowl and Delany held Ginger. The others were clustered around, beaming. The puppy's bruised side was bandaged clean around his fat little middle, and tied with a funny bow on top, like a Christmas parcel.

"Will ya look at the runt go for that milk, will ya?" Melsner grinned at Hennessy.

B. C. show reproductions of several varieties of domestic dogs—a wolf-dog, a hound, a greyhound and a type of terrier. The first mention of the dog in the Bible was in connection with the sojourn of the Israelites in Egypt, and the earliest mention of the dog as the companion of man is in the Book of Tobit. Among the Romans evidence has been left of the use of dogs for many purposes, and of a standard or classification having been in existence at that time.

Man's Four-Footed Friend

Lived in the Stone Age

The domestic dog of today can trace its ancestors to prehistoric days. Ancient caves and middens that the dwellers of the Stone Age left reveal histories of the savage wolf, the origin of our present day four-footed friend.

The great mastiff, known to writers as Molossus, was common in Babylon of antiquity. In the Middle Ages this dog was used for bear and bull-baiting. Graceful dogs not unlike the present greyhound are depicted in ancient Egyptian records, and the Greeks and Romans had a large variety of breeds. Early explorers in America and Australia found that the natives had domesticated and highly prized the dog.

The history of dogs always has been closely linked with that of man. In recent centuries a multitude of breeds have been developed, in all sizes and colors. Egyptian monuments about 3,000 years old show reproductions of several varieties of domestic dogs—a wolf-dog, a hound, a greyhound and a type of terrier. The first mention of the dog in the Bible was in connection with the sojourn of the Israelites in Egypt, and the earliest mention of the dog as the companion of man is in the Book of Tobit. Among the Romans evidence has been left of the use of dogs for many purposes, and of a standard or classification having been in existence at that time.
