Lehman C. Windorf, 45, popular and well known farm resident of the town of Kewaskum, where he resided all his life on the Windorf homestead located about 1 1/2 miles south of the village, was called in death at 1:30 p. m. Lehman had always been in good health and his sudden illness and demise came as a shock to his numerous friends.

He was born Nov. 12, 1902, on the Windorf homestead, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Windorf. He never married.

Kewaskum Shades Cedarburg, 42-39

Scoring well over half of his team's points, "Killy" Honeck led the Kewaskum Legion to its second victory in three starts in Land O' Lakes play at Cedarburg Sunday night as the locals outlasted the Burgers, 42 to 39.

Cedarburg succeeded in holding Kewaskum's hook shot artist, Wayland Tassar, to 8 points but this left Honeck open for many shots and he poured them through the hoops for 24 points. Big Moldenhauer was the scoring noise for the losers with 12 markers.

The game was very close in its entirety with neither team leading at any time by more than a margin of a few points. Cedarburg was on top, 11-7, at the quarter, and still was ahead by one bucket, 19-17 at the intermission. The Legion hit the basket for a 30-30 tie as the third period ended and a burst of steam in the final quarter brought them a 3-point win. Cedarburg's weakness on charity tossed cost them a possible victory. They made only 3 in 15 attempts. Kewaskum didn't get many but hit for 4 out of 6.

The Rivers five didn't do very good the past week, being walloped twice. Last Thursday night Port Washington whipped them here, 63-37. Port has a very strong team and should be in the stronger Lakes circuit. Urban and John, with 17 and 16 points respectively, were hot for Port. Schaub and Bilgo tallied 11 and 10 points for the losers.

In the first game at Cedarburg Sunday night preceding the Lakes contest, the local Rivers cagers were smothered again, 62-15. Frank scored 17 points for the Cedees and Schaub's 6 were best for the Kums.

Return From Two Week Trip Through Southern States

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Wahlen and daughter Corrine, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Byron Beshler, all of St. Kilian, returned home Saturday after a two week motor trip through the southern states.

Most interesting places visited en route were Mammoth Cave, Ky., Smoky Mountains National Park, 5,000 feet elevation, in Tennessee and North Carolina; St. Augustine, oldest U. S. city; Marineland's Oceanarium, Miami, and many other beauty spots of Florida; Bellingrath, a 60-acre flower garden in Alabama; a three hour tour with a guide through New Orleans, and many other interesting places in Texas, Hot Springs, Ark. and Illinois.

Very gruesome were the scenes of the September hurricane which are still a mass of ruins in Palm Beach, Fla. and Biloxi, Miss., where tidal waves 25 feet high whipped by the terrific winds completely destroyed hundreds of homes in which ruined furniture can still be seen untouched since the storm. Some buildings, however, have since and are being repaired. Thousands of palm trees are scattered, torn up by their roots.

The Wahlns and Beshlers report that it was good to get back to Wisconsin, even to greet the ice and snow near its state line.

Timber Harvest Field Day Attended by 200

The third annual timber harvest field day held Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 2, at the Kettle Moraine state forest was attended by more than 200 farmers from Fond du Lac, Sheboygan and Washington counties. The purpose of the field day was to point out to those in attendance how much wood could be harvested each year without decreasing the amount of timber in the woodlot. This when reduced to dollars and cents shows the true value of a farm woodlot, says E. E. Skalski, Washington county agricultural agent.

The Kettle Moraine state forest, according to data released by Clyde Smith, is returning the state approximately $1.35 per hour of man labor expended upon it. Fred Treck, state extension forester who directs the harvesting of timber on conservation owned forests and who was in charge of the field day, hastened to point out that greater man hour returns are often obtained from well managed woodlots than are received from many cultivated fields.

The Richardson Lumber company of Sheboygan Falls was high bidder on approximately 7500 board feet of wood run saw logs. Their bid was $53.00 per thousand.

As an added feature to the afternoon program a popple log sawing contest between two man teams of the three counties was staged. Willard Tackes and Carl Oehler, both of the town of Farmington, easily won the contest. They were awarded a new six foot Disston crosscut saw.

School Loses First Game in 16 Conference Starts

The Kewaskum high school cagers dropped their first game in 16 conference starts over the past two seasons when Rosendale nipped the Indians in a close 29-27 contest last Friday at Rosendale.

Kewaskum led at the half 11-7 by virtue of a 19-point first quarter but the Dalers went on a scoring spree in the third period and then staved off a last quarter Indian rally to eke out the close decision. This was the first conference start for both schools.

This Friday Oakfield played at Kewaskum and next week's schedule finds Kewaskum playing at Brandon on Tuesday night and Lomira here on Friday.

Inaccurate shooting and a few bad defensive lapses were responsible for the defeat at Rosendale.

In a non-conference game Slinger handed the locals a severe setback on the Slinger floor Tuesday, 53-32.

Tariffs Have Their Ups and Downs

Geneva Trade Agreements To Affect World Commerce

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—Recently there have been rumblings from congress reminiscent of the old Smoot-Hawley days. It was the warning from Senator Milliken (Rep., Colo.) and Representative Knutsen (Rep., Minn.) that the reciprocal trade agreements act would have a lot of strings attached to it when it comes up for renewal next year.

If that means that tariffs are raised again, history will be repeating itself.

As the amusing illustration in this column reveals, the gentlemen have been busy building up and tearing down the tariff wall ever since 1913. What will the next section of the wall—built after 1940—look like?

The reciprocal trade agreements drawn up at the recent Geneva conference have resulted in a number of slashes in important duties, and inspired the Knutsen and Milliken statements brought forth an even louder blast from the American Tariff League.

Baukhage

At the present writing, however, there does not appear to be any strength of sentiment in favor of building up the tariff wall that there was when the Smoot-Hawley act raised it to an all-time high (47 per cent) in 1930.

From the time of the Civil war the tariff wall had grown almost every time congress acted.

Then came Woodrow Wilson who demanded that the country be set free from conditions he thought "made monopoly not only possible, but easy and natural." The Underwood law which brought the import duties down from 37 per cent to 27 per cent, was his answer. Under Harding they went up about 35 per cent, reaching an all-time high under Hoover.

It has been an exciting contest. Although Cordell Hull as secretary of state managed, with Roosevelt prestige, to pull them down again, they were still 1 per cent higher than the Fordney-McCumber act raised them under Harding. Under the agreements negotiated by Secretary Hull, our exports increased, but foreign competition for various reasons did not take advantage of the situation to any great extent. There was no avalanche of "cheap foreign goods" to contend with.

The Democrats in the pre-Wilson era always were banging away on this issue and there were many colorful debates. The low tariff advocates had to resort to all sorts of means to get a hearing because they were backed by no special interests. Their "client" was the vague and anonymous American consumer.

The high-tariff pleaders were able to present their cases armed with the best legal talent available, whole libraries of statistics and a thorough knowledge of the particular industries which they represented. And they had another great advantage in the number and geographically diverse industries fighting for protection for their particular product.

Enough special interests needed enough help from other special interests so that log rolling was easy—there was usually a majority for everybody's gismo. That is why the only practical way to agree on the number and geographically diverse industries fighting for protection for their particular product.

Enough special interests needed enough help from other special interests so that log rolling was easy—there was usually a majority for everybody's gismo. That is why the only practical way to agree on the number and geographically diverse industries fighting for protection for their particular product.

That is evidenced by the speed with which congress tackled the anti-inflation suggestions presented both by the President in his message of November 17 calling for a 10-point program and those offered by Senator Flanders of Vermont and other Republicans.

Despite considerable influential opposition, the Democrats took for granted that at least four out of the President's ten points had a good chance to be adopted. In fact, authority to ration certain foods, already had been suggested—by a Republican—Senator Flanders.

None of these points involves tariff cuts, however, and those cuts already made under the Geneva agreement are still largely academic because most foreign countries aren't in a position now to produce for export to any great extent.

Next session we can expect them to be debated.

So far there have been almost as many complaints from supporters of the reciprocal trade agreements act as from its opponents. Its most enthusiastic backers charged that it had not been pushed hard enough, that the state department had not used all of the power which it had for fear of arousing the animosity which would cause its repeal.

At present, those favoring a freer flow of trade are in a better position to urge their cause because it is evident that we cannot continue to give

NEWS REVIEW

Laborites Keep Power; Ask Oil, Coal Ration

LABOR TEST: Clean Slate

In Great Britain the Labor party had been worried over the outcome of the by-election in the southern town of Gravesend.

Richard Acland, a rich baronet, was carrying the Labor party's banner against Frank Taylor, an ex-furnace stoker, the Conservative candidate. A seat in parliament was not the only thing at stake. The election was of major importance as a test of strength between the two parties.

It was a hard fought battle, and Acland, the Laborite, was elected to Parliament by a majority of 1,675 votes—a clear cut defeat for the Conservatives. The British people, the Labor party announced, retained their confidence in their government.

Nevertheless, the 1,675-vote margin of victory was considerably smaller than the 7,056-vote Labor party margin that had been piled up in the same district in 1945.

Labor was still in the driver's seat, but clearly had lost something of its original strength. However, the party had kept its slate clean; it had not lost a single by-election since it first was swept into power.

Perhaps one reason for the Labor party's continued popularity was that, despite all else, it was doing a good job of distributing equally what food and other goods were available in Britain. The food rations of the poorer people were approximately the same as those of the rich, and that fact continued to carry a lot of weight with the mass of voters.

OIL RATION: Anti-Inflation

"When President Truman, in his celebrated '10 points against inflation' address to congress, asked for limited authority to impose ration and price controls on basic commodities, it was taken for granted that they were food commodities alone.

First indication that this might not be a correct interpretation of Mr. Truman's proposal came when the department of interior asked congress for power to fix price controls and rationing on coal and oil as part of the anti-inflation program.

Oscar L. Chapman, undersecretary of the interior, told the house banking and currency committee that grave shortages and price advances were threatened in the two basic fuels.

There was no way of telling, he said, whether such controls actually would have to be imposed, but he insisted that the government should have authority to do so, just in case.

It is not probable that congress will give the government power to control oil and coal, but the incident serves to reflect the current point of view of the administration that a return to wartime rationing and price controls is the quickest and most effective way to buck inflation.

President Truman disclosed the policy first in his speech at the opening of the special session of congress. The interior department's request for control of coal and oil probably was a planned follow-up.

WORKIN' ON THE RAILROAD

Car Shortage Passes Peak

About the only good thing that can be said concerning the railroad freight car shortage is that the worst is probably over, but the present inadequacy will hang on for a long time.

Despite investigations, programs and promises for several years, there are actually about 41,000 fewer freight cars now than there were at the end of the war.

Attempts to place the blame for the situation seem to be futile. American railroads have had 100,000 cars on order for some time. Car builders have declared that steel was not available. A program formulated in February of this year called for an output of 7,000 new cars monthly by June and 10,000 by September.

The quota was not met; and, although the steel industry says that it has supplied the necessary steel, car builders contend that the shortage still has not been completely cured.

There was one sign, however, that might indicate a turning of the tide. In September the railroads reported 7,182 new installations, which was 668 more cars than were retired during that month. Small as it was, it was the first net gain in 25 months.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the office of defense transportation, said he is proceeding under a

POSTMASTER: Hannegan Out

Robert E. Hannegan has eased himself out of the public political eye.

Little more than a month after he had quit his job as Democratic national chairman because of ill health—he turned in his resignation as postmaster general.

To replace Hannegan as head of the nation's post office, President Truman named 62-year-old Jesse M. Donaldson, first assistant postmaster general, who has had 42 years in the postal service.

It was the first time Donaldson had dipped into the ranks of postal "career men" to fill the top job in the department.

Donaldson is one of the men who came up the hard way. His career with the service began with his appointment as a city letter carrier in Shelbyville, Ill., in 1908.

Hannegan, meanwhile, had no intentions of going into retirement. He has purchased a substantial interest in the St. Louis Cardinals.

TAXES AGAIN:

The makings of another rousing tax battle were introduced into the house of representatives with two separate proposals for removal of six million low-income persons from tax lists, and for tax exemption of the first $25,000 of net income of all corporations.

Rep. Walter C. Ploeser (Rep., Mo.) offered the corporate exemption suggestion to the house ways and means committee to settle "the nationwide controversy over the tax exempt privilege of co-ops."

Moscow newspapers have been upgrading barber shops featuring advertisements bearing photos of Clark Gable, Bob Hope and Tyrone Power, all with neat, un-Russian haircuts.

The newspaper Evening Moscow voiced an indignant declaration that Soviet men were repelled by this display of "American film vulgarity every time they went to the barber's."

By INEZ GERHARD

SUSAN PETERS has plenty of what it takes. During the filming of "The Sign of the Cross" at Columbia she went along with the crowd one evening to a shooting gallery in Santa Monica. Won three kewpie dolls and five boxes of candy right off the bat, though it was the first time she'd had a gun in her hand since that hunting accident two and a half years ago, that left her permanently crippled. "Lady," exclaimed the proprietor, "If you shoot like that sitting down, how do you shoot standing up?" "Not so well," replied the gallant Susan, with a smile. "That's why I'm sitting down." Hats off to the girl who can take a bad handicap that way!

If your town doesn't have one of those young people's clubs that Paul Whiteman is sponsoring, better write to him about it. Paul contributes his records and recordings, board under congressional mandate to eliminate all controls, the President was forced to take it or else. But in signing the bill the President said:

"If it appears that all efforts of the government and the people will not be enough under present legislation, I shall have no alternative but to call congress back in special session to strengthen the price control laws and to enact such fiscal and monetary legislation as we need to save us from the threat of economic disaster."

If congress has forgotten that statement, how about the President's first economic report of January, 1947, and again in his mid-year economic report only last June. In both reports he asked congress to do something about inflation.

In the meantime, he has issued numerous warnings urging business and industry to bring prices down to ward off the constant spiral of inflationary prices. If the President put congress on the political spot in his message to the special session, he most certainly did so in June, 1946, in January, 1947, and again in June, 1947. The President hit a raw spot because, as with most of us, congress does not like to be reminded of its sins of omission.

With Communist riots currently raging in France and Italy, carrying out the Russian concept that communism must be inaugurated by revolution and terror to impress itself upon the people, contrast this phrase from President Truman's message to congress:

"Our people know that our influence in the world gives us an opportunity, unmatched in history, to conduct ourselves in such a manner that men and women of all the world can move out of the shadows of fear and war into the light of freedom and peace."

Insurgent Republicans

Despite Sen. Robert Taft's powerful position as chairman of the GOP steering committee and of the congressional joint economic committee, he may find determined opposition to his stand against some of the President's recommendations.

For instance, stocky, bald and bespectacled Sen. Ralph Flanders of Vermont, who has been called "America's most enlightened industrialist," may oppose Taft's policies.

Senator Flanders, as chairman of a subcommittee of the joint economic committee, has investigated prices and already has declared "we have not found any alternative to some measure of controls at least on the basic item of food."

Another insurgent against the Taft leadership in the senate, this time on the question of universal military training, undoubtedly will develop in the regular session. Taft is staunchly opposed to UMT.

But Sen. John Chandler Gurney of South Dakota, otherwise a party regular, is supporting the administration on this issue as he has on all military matters.

The South Dakotan belies his militarism, for he is short, chunky and cherub-faced and his friends call him "Chan."

The report here is that when the American Farm Bureau federation holds its annual election of officers at Chicago on December 16, Allen Kline of Iowa will be named president to succeed Ed O'Neal of Georgia, who is retiring. Harry Wingate of Georgia is slated to move into the vice presidency.

"Superman" is the latest victim of the grain situation—but as soon as it was known that the sponsor was relinquishing it, four others put in bids for it. Small wonder; it has won more awards than any other show of its kind.

ODDS AND ENDS—Alexis Smith and Robert Douglas played their most romantic scene as husband and wife in "Christopher Blake," at Paramount, before a critical audience of her husband and his wife. . . Douglas, a British actor, makes his debut in this film, and will be Joan Crawford's leading man in "Until Proven Guilty."

"The Story of Will Rogers" will be filmed at Warner's this spring; his son, Will Jr., will have the starring role. . . And at the moment the rumor that Bob Hope will have a different sponsor next season is still nothing more definite than a rumor.

They served fried rattlesnake for lunch on the set of Columbia's "The Big Sombbrero," but only Gene Autry and Homer Van Pelt, a photographer, ate it. Autry says he's sorry, but he still prefers fried chicken.

A dark-horse entry for the affections of the bobby soxers in Hollywood is Dick Crenna, who plays "Oogie" on NBC's "A Date with Judy." His good looks draw murmurs of admiration, and tickets for the show are in great demand.

IF AS THE GOP leadership is charging, President Truman has deliberately put congress "on the spot" politically by his message asking the authority, if necessary, to reimpose rationing and price ceilings on a few basic commodities to halt inflation and depression, he is at least consistent.

GLORIA IN EXCELSIS DEO

WHEN Mary and Joseph undertook their memorable journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem nearly two thousand years ago, Palestine was a peaceful and reasonably prosperous country. But the heart of Israel was filled with longing and uneasiness; longing for the Messiah who, according to the prophets, the Lord had promised His chosen people; the Messiah who would deliver them from their trials and tribulations—even as Moses had led their forefathers out of the bondage of Egypt.

And now it came to pass that Caesar Augustus had decided all the world should be taxed and every man should be enrolled, each in his native city. And it happened that Joseph, who lived in Nazareth, was a native of Bethlehem. In those days, there was no macadam highway leading from the Galilean hillside into Bethlehem, the city of David which nestled in the blue-green mountains south of Jerusalem, and under ideal conditions Bethlehem was several days' journey from Nazareth.

So, Mary and Joseph started for Bethlehem about the middle of December. They carried a little food with them for emergencies, a little extra clothing and some bedding. They traveled very slowly because of Mary—and when she was too tired to walk another step, Joseph took the packs upon his shoulders so Mary might ride the little donkey which trudged faithfully at his side.

THE little village of Bethlehem was about six miles from Jerusalem. Those last six miles were the longest and hardest for Mary; the mountain trail was steep and treacherous, the atmosphere was lighter than the travelers from Galilee were accustomed to, and they were very tired and travel-weary when they reached Bethlehem the city of David where Joseph's ancestor King David had ruled fourteen generations before Augustus and his census. It was early evening, but the inn was already crowded beyond its normal capacity with census-bound travelers; not even a corner was available where Joseph could have spread a bed for Mary.

In desperation Joseph pleaded from door to door and with those whom he passed as he raced through the narrow streets of Bethlehem in search of shelter. Finally, someone directed him to a stable which was really a cave hewn into the rocky ledge of the mountainside. The stable to which Joseph led Mary was well supplied with clean straw; and Mary was grateful for shelter and privacy; it was Holy Night.

There was no room at the inn that night, but over in Shepherds' field, about two miles south of Bethlehem, several Shepherds were keeping the "night watch" over their flocks when suddenly a great blaze of light appeared in the sky and seemed to descend upon the countryside. The Shepherds were very frightened and, devout men that they were, they called upon God to help them. When they raised their eyes from supplication, the glory of the Lord shone all around them and an angel stood in their midst assuring them there was nothing to fear:

"For, Behold, I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you, Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger." And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

THE Shepherds hurried to Bethlehem, there to find the infant asleep in the manger—even as it had been foretold unto them. His "Stable" was filled with a heavenly radiance, and, having worshipped the Child, the Shepherds were filled with a wondrous feeling of peace. And the Shepherds wondered and told others concerning those things which they had seen and heard.

Several days later, a richly appointed caravan wove its way through the crooked streets of Bethlehem bearing Wise Men from the east who, following the Star of Bethlehem which they had seen from afar, had come to adore the new-born King. And the Star led them, until it came and stood over the manger where the Child was.

The Wise Men rejoiced when they saw the Holy Infant lying in the manger and they adored Him. They ordered gifts to be brought from their caravan: gifts symbolic of what Jesus was to become—gold for a king, myrrh for a great physician, frankincense for a high priest. All Bethlehem crowded around—awe-struck and curious; but Mary pondered all these things in her heart and watched over the Child with great diligence.

And that is the way it came to pass that Jesus was born in Bethlehem; it could not have come to pass in any other way. Before the sacred manger all men are equal and only from a lowly stable could the Saviour draw unto Himself all who are weary and heavy-laden. And truly only the heavenly host could praise God that first Christmas night:

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

—Dorothea Waitzmann.

Dolls Back in Style

Santa Claus will have his pack loaded this Christmas with many new and breath-taking dolls. During the war much of his time was spent in making military toys, but the selection this year will offer many dolls of all ages, complete wardrobes for each age group, costumes for every type of social occasion. For hundreds of years beautiful dolls have been made of wax, bisque and China, now plastics are being largely utilized.

Doll makes Christmas complete.

Scenes of Nativity In Pennsylvania

Preserved for generations, valuable figures depicting the Nativity scene are used to decorate living rooms in homes of the Pennsylvania Dutch during the holiday season. Families hand the figures down from one generation to another.

The Pennsylvania Dutch make the rounds Christmas week punching their neighbor's doorbells to admire the "Putzes."

Along with the manger there is a great snow banked landscape. Miniature horses, all in scale, go clipping along the road and all sorts of animals scurry into the fields.

Every year new figures are added to the scene. When the display is dismantled after the holiday season, the figures are carefully packed away in cotton until another Yuletide approaches.

In some villages prizes are awarded to the best scenes of Nativity, and some cities, like Kansas City, have made special effort for the homes to be decorated.

SAVAGELY, old Adam Courtney twisted his cigar-yellowed moustache. From the parlor sofa, the muffled sobs of Diana, his shapely and lovely young daughter, expressed an unshakable defiance. He glared at her with all the anger a deep love would permit.

"I—I AM going to marry Jim Bailey," she chanted monotonously. "I don't care if he HASN'T got the money he ought to have to start in business. I don't care if he HAS only—three thousand instead of six." The slender legs kicked hysterically. A slipper flew across the room. "I LOVE him, doggone him! I LOVE him!"

Grimly, Adam Courtney went for his hat and his heavy cane. Grimly he left the house. He knew where to find Jim Bailey. Barred from calling on Diana, he would be waiting at the club—the big social and athletic club—for her to join him for the dance tonight.

In the old days on the West Coast, he thought angrily, a matter such as this might have been settled with a 45. Now business and money and convention had overtaken him—after his marriage, late in life. Diana was all he had, since the young wife he adored had died in childbirth. Ever since that day, his only child had been his only interest, taking the place of her mother before her. Never before this had she defied him, turned from his love to the love of someone else. As things stood tonight, however, he had lost her—unless somehow he could hold her back.

Surely this called for desperate measures. As he stalked into the club, he spied the ruddy, muscular young object of his quest. In the black and white of dinner clothes, Jim Bailey sat watching a game in the busy card room. Jim rose, and the table fell silent, as the grim old man came up.

"Jim Bailey," Adam Courtney thundered, "are you man enough to take a gamble?"

Jim Bailey simply stared. "I understand you have three thousand in the savings bank," old Courtney said. "I'll put up two dollars to every one of yours. Give you two to one on every bet. Six thousand to three thousand, table stakes. If you lose—you will agree to leave my daughter alone."

"And what if I win?" asked Jim Bailey.

"Win?" Adam Courtney's bony face paled. "Win—you marry her, sir, of course."

Jim Bailey hesitated, and the whole room stopped breathing. Everybody understood the struggle that had been going on between him and Diana, on the one hand, and Diana's father on the other. Under ordinary circumstances, no one would expect him to agree to risk losing his money and his hope of future happiness on the turn of a card. But suddenly it had dawned on everybody that this situation was not ordinary.

Only two weeks before, the old man had caned a newspaper editor who had intimated that Adam Courtney, in the old days on the Coast, had been a professional gambler. No one believed a word of the accusation. But now, to refuse publicly to play would tell the world you believed what the editor had written, and were afraid of being raked.

Jim Bailey wet his lips. "Do you want to play with chips, sir, or cash?—but even money!"

The money in Jim's hand told her the rest. She ran to her father. The grim old man ignored her.

"Cash!" said Adam Courtney grimly. Next evening, each bearing his stake of three thousand dollars, they took their seats in the card room.

"Draw poker," announced Adam Courtney, tearing open the pack. "Table stakes. And," he leaned across the table and looked Jim Bailey in the eye, "a gentleman's agreement!"

"Okay," Jim Bailey said. "Will you cut, sir?" Open gambling was not permitted in the club. But what employee would dare stop this? Like wildfire the news spread. Members hurried in just in time to see the old man lose five hundred dollars on a full house, against Jim Bailey's four tens.

At first, luck seemed to favor Jim Bailey. But presently the calm, grim old man began to win.

Then the old man lost three large bets. The stacks of money stood about even again—each three thousand dollars.

Jim Bailey dealt. Adam Courtney looked at his cards. He counted out five hundred dollars. Jim Bailey pile and call the old man's bet? If he did, the game was over. He would lose his money, and Diana, too.

Jim Bailey's hand shook as he rifled his remaining pile. Since the old man hardly had held four-of-a-kind to start with, and had drawn but one card, the odds were forty to one against his now having four-of-a-kind or better. Suddenly, his face no longer ruddy, Jim Bailey pushed his whole pile forward—perhaps of his and his wife's glowing early happiness—passed through his mind. He drew a deep, slow breath. His cane dropped and clattered. His white head disappeared beneath the table as he retrieved the cane from the floor.

This distraction lasted but a moment. Then Adam Courtney sat up and faced Jim Bailey. Leaning awkwardly forward, his left hand heavy on the table, the old man turned his own cards up, one by one.

"THE KING OF DIAMONDS. 'One!' the crowd breathed. THE KING OF HEARTS. 'Two!' the crowd whispered. THE KING OF CLUBS. 'Three!' the crowd murmured. Then he turned—THE QUEEN OF DIAMONDS. It was his last card.

Not only had he failed to catch the king of spades on the draw, apparently he had drawn but one card, when he should have drawn two. He held only four cards, a worthless hand. The grim old man had lost! Jim Bailey had won, not only the old man's three thousand, but his daughter.

Jim Bailey gathered in all the money. He stood up, holding it in his hand. Everyone watched Adam Courtney's daughter as Jim Bailey crossed to where she stood framed in the doorway.

She touched Jim's arm—and hesitated. Of course she had been told what was up. The money in Jim's hand told her the rest. She ran to her father. The grim old man ignored her. She put her arm around him and kissed him full on the yellow stain in his white moustache. He still ignored her. She turned and ran back to Jim.

Hand in hand, the two young people left the club. Their motor roared away, seemingly with a triumphant note that spoke of money enough for a business, and for marriage, and independence.

Old Adam Courtney sat staring at his bony left hand flat on the table. For a moment his shoulders seemed to sag. Then he straightened, and tilted a quizzical, twinkling look up at the circle of staring faces.

"I know what she was wishing," he said. "I'm an old fool, I expect." He lifted his left hand. There beneath it, face up on the table, lay the missing king of spades.

Scientists Reveal Affect Of Plutonium on Plants

What happens when plutonium, the super-explosive used to make atomic bombs, is fed to plants?

Two University of California college of agriculture scientists who worked on the Manhattan project have come up with the answers. The report of their wartime experiments, believed to be the first of their kind, has been cleared with security officials for release.

Barley roots were unharmed when exposed to the radiation of man-made plutonium for only 24 hours, Dr. Louis Jacobson, plant bio-chemist, and Dr. Roy Overstreet, soils chemist, discovered. Longer exposure probably would produce serious damage, Overstreet said.

There were marked signs of injury to dwarf pea plants grown for three months in a sandy soil containing very small amounts of five fission byproducts. The roots fell apart when lifted from the soil, and the

JOHN DEERE DEALER TO PLAY HOST TO Farmers and Their Families

"DOCTOR JIM" is Feature Picture in John Deere Program

L. Rosenheimer, Kewaskum's John Deere Dealer, is inviting all farmers and their families in this and neighboring communities, to attend their big John Deere Day Program to be held at the Kewaskum Opera House on Monday, Dec. 15th, at 1 p. m. According to L. Rosenheimer this year's John Deere Day Program will be of special interest to anyone who has anything to do with farming. The main attraction is a new specially-produced Hollywood feature "Doctor Jim," which stars Stuart Erwin, a leading entertainer on the screen for many years. "Doctor Jim" is a friendly, warm-hearted picture that pays a fine tribute to a small community's leading citizen—the country doctor. You'll like Doc and his wife, Sally—they're human folks who'll tug at your hearts and provide plenty of chuckles, too. In the supporting cast are such other well-known artists as Barbara Woodell, Hobart Cavanaugh, William Wright, and Netta Packer. In addition to "Doctor Jim," several other new, all-talking pictures will be shown. They include "Keep Your Eye on the Soil"—an educational picture that sounds a warning no one in agriculture can afford to ignore—soil maintenance... "Doubting Thomas"—an interesting story that will give you some new slants on new John Deere Model "A" and "B" Tractors... "Short Cuts in Forage Harvest"—which demonstrates the way to shorter, easier and more profitable harvesting of hay and forage crops... "Save More Corn at Lower Cost," and "What's New for '48." According to L. Rosenheimer, admission to the John Deere Day Program is by ticket only. Any farmer who has not received his tickets or needs more can get them FREE at L. Rosenheimer store before the day of the show.

Hunting Wild Animals With Helicopter, Siren

An expedition now preparing to visit Africa to record the habits and sounds of wild animals in motion pictures and on recording machines has equipped its helicopter with a novel weapon of defense, a high-pitched siren called a Shriek-Gun, says Collier's.

Its sound has no effect on the men if they plug up their ears, but will terrify and drive away any beast that attempts to attack the craft when it is poised near the ground.

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This Newspaper through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers the best news on problems of the veteran and servicemen and his family.

Push Better Quality Homes Veterans' administration is attempting to do something to improve the quality of veterans' newly-built homes and has instituted a "preconstruction appraisal" which is intended to fix a reasonable value for G.I. loan purposes based upon complete plans and specifications.

According to VA, the advantage of the procedure is not only to veterans but also to builders and financing agencies in that they receive a definite commitment as to "reasonable value" in advance of construction, provided only that the homes are completed according to plans and specifications.

Another difference is that the appraisal fee will be paid by the builder, lender or sponsor of the development and not charged subsequently to veteran-purchasers.

Questions and Answers Q. I have read somewhere that a larger proportion of self-employed G.I. loans than in any other section has gone to southern states. Is this true, and if so can you give any reason why it is true?—A. L. B., Norwich, Conn.

A. It is true that a large proportion of farmers' claims under the self-employed provisions of the G.I. bill have come from southern states. Some estimates are as high as 45 per cent. This column cannot give you any official reason why this condition exists other than that southern states are largely one-crop states, either cotton or tobacco and the crops usually are not during a single month. It may be that veterans who are farmers in the southern states and who sell their crop during one month, can prove that their income is less than $100 for the previous calendar month.

Q. Our son was injured during the war and spent some time in a veterans hospital but was discharged and his leg is crippled. As a result he can do little work. We have been reading about vocational rehabilitation program and wonder if you can tell us under what conditions a veteran is eligible for such a program and how do we apply for it?—Mrs. O. L. E., Mobile, Ala.

A. It would seem that if your son was a cripple in a VA hospital he would have been informed of the vocational rehabilitation program by the counselors there. Generally speaking, however, eligibility requirements for a disabled veteran are: That he must have had active service on or after September 16, 1940, and before official end of the war; that he must have a compensable service-connected disability and that he must show a need for vocational rehabilitation to overcome his handicap.

Q. My son, who is a veteran of World War II, and his wife are soon to have a baby. They live in a very large city and have no one to help them. He is going to school half days but as yet has found no work for half-days. Can he receive any help from the government? Also, can veterans have dental work done free?—Mrs. H. B. W., San Antonio, Tex.

A. This column knows of no provision under the law where a veteran can obtain help from the government in maternity cases. He might apply to the local social service agencies. If your son has been out of service for a year or less he is entitled to dental service and if he can prove his dental needs might have been service-connected he might still obtain free dental service from Veterans' administration. He should consult his nearest VA office.

Q. I received a discharge from the service and it is not honorable. I heard that I could have it changed. How can I have this done?—K. R. V., Chicago, Ill.

A. World War II men and women who served in the armed forces are entitled to ask for a review of their discharges if they were issued other than honorable discharges. This privilege is guaranteed under the provisions of the G.I. bill of rights to all except those who have dishonorable discharges. Service officers of VA will help you in filing your request for a review.

Q. I enlisted in the army from New York, having lived there 15 years. Since being discharged, I worked in Chicago. Will I be entitled to the New York bonus?—B. P. S., Binghamton, N. Y.

A. To be eligible for the New York bonus, the veteran must have served on active duty during the period from December 7, 1941, to September 2, 1945; must have been a resident of the state of New York for six months immediately prior to his entrance into the service, and must be a resident of the state at the time of making application.

Neck Has Its Motion The neck of a bird has greater freedom of motion than that of a snake. In the tiny neck of a sparrow there are 14 vertebrae; in the swan's 23; while the neck of a giraffe has only 7.

• Not only in one place, but several. Actually, we mean your name along with your farm machines that need checking over and repair work before they go into the fields next season.

You see, this calendar is our Early Bird Service Schedule. And by getting a date on it now, we can both be sure that anything from a checkup to a complete overhaul will be done during the months your machines are idle.

That's the best way for both parties concerned. We'll have plenty of time to do a satisfactory, Blue Ribbon Service job. You'll be insured against breakdowns or lost time during busy weeks ahead. See how it pays to be an "Early Bird"? Line up necessary service work with us now!
