

Fire Destroys Albert Kreif Farm Home; Bauer Elevator Burns

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kreif, located one mile east of New Fane in the town of Auburn burned to the ground in a disastrous fire which broke out shortly after the noon hour Tuesday.

Mr. Kreif called the Kewaskum fire department and when firemen arrived the entire attic under the roof was ablaze and the flames were already burning through the roof in several places.

When it was apparent that the home could not be saved, firemen and neighbors at the scene confined their efforts to removing a large safe in one room of the building.

Several of the men battling the fire had narrow escapes from being burned and injured. Hilbert Haack, a neighbor, had a narrow escape when a burning cornice from the roof fell on him.

The Kreif family owned and lived on the farm for the past 35 years. The house, part log and part frame, had been all remodeled and modernized by the Kreifs, including hardwood floors and arches upstairs and down.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the upper portion of a grain-packed elevator owned by Bauer Brothers at Campbellsport early Tuesday morning causing a loss, including that of grain, of from $7,000 to $10,000.

Smoke issuing from the top of the elevator attracted the attention of Alvin Ulrich, mail carrier, as he met the mail train at 5:45 a. m. He called the Campbellsport fire department which rushed all available equipment and men to the scene.

The upper portion of the 70-foot elevator was heavily damaged. By confining the fire to the top of the elevator, firemen succeeded in saving an estimated 6,000 bushels of grain.

The elevator, of sheet iron construction, is comparatively new, having been built in 1945 after a fire then.

The yearly meeting of the St. Lucas Lutheran congregation was held in the parish school hall on Sunday afternoon.

Braun was named in a complaint signed by Chief Anton Rafenstein of the Fond du Lac county police. The officer accused the defendant of having parked his auto 2 1/2 feet on Highway 55 in the town of Auburn in front of the Wallace Krueger farm, about three miles north of Kewaskum.

According to the police, a truck, owned by the Johnston Cooke company, Milwaukee, driven by Milton Schultz, 24, Milwaukee, crashed into the rear of the parked vehicle.

The right front fender, bumper, axle and frame on the truck, and the left side of the body and right front fender of Braun's auto were damaged.

Later the same day Ebenreiter was struck by another car in Waldo. He was driving through Waldo when another car drove onto the highway from an intersection in the path of his car and crashed into the right front end of the Ebenreiter car.

Mr. and Mrs. August Bartelt have moved from their farm home at Forest Lake into their new home which they had erected in the new Bilco addition located just east of the high school athletic field.

Polio Drive Here Off to a Whirlwind Start

The 1948 March of Dimes to fight poliomyelitis is off to a whirlwind start in Washington county, B. D. Rice, West Bend, chairman of the county March of Dimes committee, reported this week.

The general chairman for Washington county disclosed he has already received some sizeable contributions in the form of cash and checks from individuals, particularly one from a West Bend resident who annually is the first person in the county to contribute.

Urging others in the county to do likewise, Rice emphasized that checks and cash be addressed to him at West Bend, along with the name and address of the contributor.

Special events are being planned in many communities of the county, the chairman said. Among them, according to H. I. Peterson, chairman of sports events for the city of West Bend, are arranging for a benefit basketball game between two outstanding teams.

"The 1948 March of Dimes is in full swing throughout the nation," Rice declared, "and it is up to every one of us to put this campaign for funds for polio victims over the top."

"Judging by the enthusiasm shown by the citizens of Washington county, I feel confident that the 1948 March of Dimes will go down in history as a bright page of community endeavor, written by men and women, boys and girls leagued against a treacherous foe in a great drama of human kindness."

Flow Under Cornstalks
Flow under the cornstalks is the advice of soil experts. Like other crop residues, cornstalks are important in helping rebuild organic matter. A ton of cornstalks is estimated to be as effective as three-quarters of a ton of fresh manure for organic matter. Cornstalks also are a source of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. Returning crop residues should be a part of every good soil management plan. Liming and use of fertilizer are other vital practices.

Lost But Won Election
A man who made no election campaign and who did not have the highest number of electoral votes was elected President of the United States in 1824. World Book encyclopedia says that John Quincy Adams made little effort to get votes, but received 15 less electoral votes than the leading candidate, Andrew Jackson. Adams was selected by the house of representatives because none of the candidates had a majority.

Everglade Wild Game
Wild game in the Everglades were forced to forsake their homes for high grounds as virtually incessant downpours inundated the whole vast area, reports Florida Wildlife. Coons, opossums, deer, wildcats and other animals fled before the rising floodwaters. In some sections young quail and turkeys were trapped by the water. Snakes also moved out of the flood areas.

Bass Are Heavy Eaters
After young bass leave the spawning beds their foods consists of minute crustaceans and insect larvae, and as they grow older they devour worms, tadpoles and small fish. In later life they take crawfish, frogs and minnows. When they attain a weight of two or three pounds they will bolt anything from a worm to a young muskrat.

New Oyster Stuffing
Oysters long have been trading their shells for the protection of a tin can so they might move into the markets of the world. Now they're teaming up with bread and seasoning to make their bow as a stuffing meal planner merely has to empty the contents into a bowl, fluff with a fork and the stuffing is ready. Besides oyster slices, this dressing contains bread crumbs, salt, butter, nut meats, ham and bacon fat, suet, sage, onions, curry and pepper.

Wild Indian Bees
The Russian beekeepers are experimenting with wild Indian bees. The Indian wild bee is said to possess a number of qualities which make it superior to the domesticated species, especially for colder climates. It emerges from the hive to lower temperature than ordinary bees and has a much greater speed of flight. It is able to fly through fog when visibility is poor. Indian bees even have been known to go out for nectar on moonlit nights.

Then Came the Tub
The indoor bath was brought about when water systems were introduced into cities in the early 1900s. By 1830 the revolutionary idea of a warm bath three times a week was the aim of a crusade. By the 1920s the U. S. owned 95 per cent of all tubs in the world and had begun to go in for such variations of the standard porcelain tub as solid onyx tubs, marble tubs and tubs with solid gold fixtures.

Build Own Highways
Every citizen of Guatemala is required to contribute the equivalent of two weeks' work, either in money or in labor, toward upkeep of the country's road system. Guatemala, which grows a large part of the world's supply of bananas and therefore needs good roads, was among the first of the Central American republics to have a highway from border to border.

Weighting the Mayor
The ceremony of installing a mayor at Chepping Wycombe, England, a little Buckinghamshire town known also as High Wycombe, is unique. There, following the annual meeting of the council, the members descend to the entrance of the old Guildhall where first the new mayor, followed by the aldermen, councillors and all the officials, are solemnly weighed on an ancient set of scales. Origin of this ceremony is unknown.

Large Overhead Crane
The world's largest overhead crane installation, capable of lifting 1,000,000 pounds of dead weight at the San Francisco naval shipyard, features a new system of hoist control, operated by enough horsepower to run 10,000 washing machines. The crane structure runway looks like a massive trestle or bridge and is designed to withstand earthquakes and weather extremes.

Sparrows Change Size
When the English sparrow was introduced into America one hundred years ago it was smaller than it is today. Climate has played a part in this change, as it was found that sparrows in colder climates were larger and had larger wings than sparrows in warmer climates.

No Sunday Ferry
Thomas Marshall operated the Wampanoag ferry from Boston to Charlestown to Chelsea, in 1635. The Puritans prohibited the ferry service from operating on Sunday, for it was considered a crime for a colonist to leave the village on the Sabbath.

Independent Stores
According to a 20th Century fund report, independently-owned single stores accounted for nearly two-thirds of the total volume of retail business in the United States, just prior to World War II.

Fish Carries Light
Living in total darkness 5,000 feet below the ocean's surface, the torch fish sports a luminous headgear which attracts his prey. He can swallow a fish four times his own size.

Royal Bird Oath
In the time of Edward I of England (1273-1307) oaths were sworn on the swan, the peacock and the pheasant, all of which were considered royal birds.

American Reading Bill
The American people spent 467 million dollars for educational reading matter in 1949 and an additional 338 million dollars for recreational reading.

Average Car Mileage
The average passenger car in the United States travels 9,300 miles a year, while a truck averages nearly 11,000 miles.

Farmers Declare All-Out War To End Predations of Coyotes

Nebraska Discovers Organized Hunts Are Effective Weapon Against Pests

WNU Features.

LINCOLN, NEB.—Farmers and ranchers are a patient and long-suffering people. It takes a lot of punishment to get their dander up but, once aroused, these people do not waste time getting to the source of their trouble.

This attribute has been demonstrated once again in Nebraska's total war on coyotes, a beast which has preyed on livestock, poultry and game ever since the Midwest was settled. His appetite for lambs, calves, chickens and pheasants, however, has gotten him into a peck of trouble in Nebraska.

Alarmed at seeing their livestock and game dwindle away as a result of coyote predations, farmers and sportsmen, with the assistance and cooperation of the state game commission, have staged a series of organized coyote hunts. A record number of hunts was conducted last winter, but no accurate record is available of the number of coyotes killed or the square miles that have been rid of these predaceous pests.

Midwest coyote populations reached an all-time peak during wartime shortages of manpower and shotgun shells. At the same time jackrabbits and cottontails, favorite food of coyotes, hit a low ebb of the population cycle. Deprived of a major item of natural diet, the coyotes increased their barnyard and game bird raids. With the return of G.I.s and a slight increase in shotgun shells, unrestricted war was declared on the coyote.

Lures Many Hunters.
One of the biggest hunts on record took place last winter near Bladen, Neb., when nearly 2,000 farmers, ranchers and sportsmen scoured the coyotes from a 144 square mile area.

After weeks of planning for the hunt, the male populations of several small towns and hundreds of farmsteads were transported in stock trucks to strategic positions around the hunt area. At zero hour lines of men moved in toward a predetermined central location, driving the coyotes ahead.

Exact discipline on 2,000 hunters scattered over a 48-mile circle was maintained by the use of six airplanes. Small, privately owned planes circled the hunt area, following the advance of the lines. Where a group lagged behind schedule the planes flew in front of the men as a signal to speed up the cadence. Another plane signal was devised for lines getting too far ahead.

Shotguns could be heard popping off along the lines whenever a coyote flushed from cover or a jackrabbit skipped out of a weed patch. But when the lines reached the coyote kill area.

THE HUNTERS MASS... This army of hunters, many of them armed, gathers for final instructions before an organized coyote hunt in Nebraska. The coyote doesn't have a chance against a crowd of hunters like this one.

Atomic Mail Order House Booms

Well, prices keep going up and hemlines keep coming down but you still can get $1,000,000 worth of carbon radioisotopes for only $50.

As Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago put it in commenting on the unpredictable benefits of scientific research, "there's no inflation in isotopes."

The chancellor was reminding materialists everywhere that by products of scientific endeavor often turn out to be more important than the original goal.

Radiocarbon is a case in point. Scientists who developed the first atomic energy pile at the University of Chicago were searching for a bomb. They found the bomb all right, but they also found a revolutionary method of producing radioactive substances.

The result today, less than five years later, is an atomic mail order house at Oak Ridge, Tenn. Instead of the incredibly expensive cyclotron method, scientists at Oak Ridge merely bake elements in an "atomic oven" and they come out radioactive.

Of course at $1,000,000 a millicurie (an incredibly tiny scientific meas-

ON PATROL... Small planes like this one are used to keep lines in order. Aviators also hunt down the coyotes and frequently fire a load of buckshot at the beasts.

Although it is certain that coyotes prey on livestock and game, very little is known as far as factual food-habits data are concerned. There is one way of finding out for sure what a wild animal eats, and that is a posthumous examination of its stomach. A few years ago Charles C. Sperry of the fish and wildlife service did considerable research on coyote food habits. Sperry collected the stomachs of 8,399 coyotes killed in 17 western states, and made an analysis of the contents. Since these coyotes were killed during various seasons of the year, the analysis gives a fairly clear picture of the year-around diet.

The breakdown of the stomach contents by percentages included: Rabbits 33.25 per cent; carrion 25.17 per cent; rodents 17.52 per cent; domestic livestock (calves, lambs, poultry) 13.59 per cent; big game (fawns, et cetera) 3.63 per cent; birds (game and songbirds) 2.92 per cent; fish, frogs et cetera, 0.08 per cent, and vegetable matter 1.75 per cent.

Among the oddities found by Sperry were such diverse articles as sticks, gravel, paper, string and leather.

As these stomachs were from coyotes killed in western states, the figures obtained would not necessarily apply to Midwestern coyotes. Work now is under way by Nebraska game authorities to get the story on Midwest coyotes' diet. They anticipate finding plenty of game and young livestock.

Father and Son Team Together To Crack Safes

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH—Operating with the full knowledge and consent of police, an unusual father-son combination is engaged in the business of cracking safes—but it's all legal.

The father, Charles A. Fowler, has been breaking into Utah safes, legally and by request, for more than 30 years. He estimates that over those 30 years he has cracked more than 6,000 strongboxes.

When the son, Blair B. Fowler, went to college, he studied to become a mechanical engineer. But when he got out of school he decided to follow in his father's fingerprints and become a safecracker.

Most of the safecracking jobs come to the father and son locksmith team from merchants who have lost or forgotten their combinations.

But illegal burglars bring a lot of business to the legal breaker-in-ers. Some burglars who try to break into a safe but can't do it succeed only in wrecking the box so badly that the regular locks won't work. Then a call goes out for the Fowlers.

Few safes are made that won't respond to the Fowlers' drills and cutting torches. The few that won't work are the new jobs made of manganese steels, which Blair Fowler says are "fireproof, drillproof and burnproof."

The incident best remembered by the Fowlers is one which occurred when they were returning to Salt Lake City from a safe opening job in the southern part of Utah.

Their tools were piled on the back seat of their car—drills, sledge hammers and blow torches.

They stopped and stuck up a hitchhiker. The transient climbed into the rear seat and then paused when he saw the tools. He asked: "What do you guys do?" Blair Fowler nonchalantly told him, "We are safecrackers."

The hitchhiker quickly backed out and ran away.

He Knows His Crooks Both Inside and Out

WAUPUN, WIS.—A crook always can catch another crook, insists no less an authority than Warden John Burke of the state prison here.

Burke admits that he found it necessary during harvest time to station a convict guard at the prison to stop the public from stealing farm produce.

soup, she can take a swing at shuffleboard or badminton. For those more interested in mind than muscle, the bank offers a lounge and reading room. The sundeck, surrounded by a white picket fence, is landscaped as a patio garden. Busy bankers and just common employees can get a sun bath there.

Below is the business part of the bank, but down there it's all dimes and dollars. No doughnuts.

Bank Mixes Dollars and Doughnuts

KANSAS CITY, MO.—They're mixing dimes, dollars and doughnuts at the City Bank and Trust company now. The bank's 250 employees can dally over a doughnut in a penthouse, air conditioned. With the doughnuts goes free coffee.

The penthouse, part of the new building housing the bank, is reached by a private elevator. Lunch is offered at cost. When a telegrapher is through sipping her

Little Red Hen Goes On Nocturnal Jaunt

KANKAKEE, ILL.—Apparently tired of the prosaic everyday task of laying eggs, a little red hen took a nocturnal jaunt. It happened one night when the chicken's master, Zephire Richard, a farmer, drove three miles into Kankakee. When he arrived in town, he discovered the little red hen precariously perched on the back bumper. She rode home the same way.

Panacea of Fruits
Rhubarb once made quite a name for itself as a "cure" for almost every spring ailment. Later, people discovered that it could be made into good pies—hence, the popular name "pieplant." Aside from its generous quantities of vitamins A and C, it contains a fruit acid which nutritionists say is good for the digestion. Rhubarb leaves never should be eaten as greens.

Little Known Tree
The black gum, also known as sour gum, black tupelo or pepperidge, and technically as Nyssa sylvatica, is a moderate-sized tree with eventually very rough, deeply checked bark and entire-margined, leathery, shining leaves. The fruit, rather infrequently produced, resembles a small, blue-black plum, but is bitter and peppery to the taste.

Aluminum Linings
Aluminum linings for household skillets and baking pans are on the market. They are discarded after a single use and save the drudgery of scouring out the used utensil. The shaped linings, made in sizes to fit standard skillets, are of non-absorbent, non-inflammable, highly burnished aluminum foil.

This War Debt Paid
Following the Boxer rebellion against foreigners in China, that country agreed to pay for damages suffered. The United States felt that her share was excessive and returned half of it, or about 12 million dollars. China used the funds to send Chinese to schools in this country.

Consumption of Rice
Heaviest per capita consumption of rice is localized in southeastern China, where it is said to be from 400 to 548 pounds per year. In Puerto Rico rice consumption amounts to 140 pounds a year per person. Consumption in the United States is about 6 pounds per person a year.

Still Too Few Nurses
There are 155,000 registered professional nurses, members of the American Nurses' association, but despite this fact only 28 states now have laws providing licensure for practical nurses. Only two states have laws requiring licensure of all who nurse for hire. There are now 1,250 state accredited schools of nursing.

Food Eaten by Fire
Thousands of tons of badly-needed food are laid waste by fire. Fires occur annually in 2,000 flour mills and elevators, 200 packing plants, 900 bakeries, 10,500 restaurants, 20,000 barns, 500 creameries and dairies and in thousands of groceries, warehouses and farms.

Biochemists at Loyola school of dentistry, Chicago, have developed a new dental anesthetic. The drug, called topocaine, is rubbed on the gums before an extraction. It completely deadens the nerve in two or three minutes.

Using an Old Leader
A leader is no longer useful when it gets down to a foot or two in length, but that is no reason for throwing it away. The leader fragment, if still in good condition, can be cut into eight-inch lengths and used for hook snells.

Two new personalities will make their appearance before Milwaukee theatregoers when John Wildberg, by popular demand, brings back the hit Broadway musical "Anna Lucasta," by Philip Yordan, to the Davidson Theatre on Sunday evening, January 18, for a one week engagement only. A matinee performance will be given on Saturday, January 24.

The two new personalities, who have previously regaled audiences in Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, and New York, with their roles in "Anna Lucasta" are Isabella Cooley, who portrays the title role of "Anna," and Duke Williams, the boy from Alabama.

Miss Cooley is the former Cleveland College student who quit the cluttered confines to seek her fortune among the grease-paint environs of Broadway's theatrical arena. Within her first year in New York, she stepped from co-secularity into the title role in "Anna Lucasta"—that of a wayward girl who attempts to retain her good-natured family after several years of unconventional living.

For Duke Williams, the role of "Rudolph" the nice boy from Alabama who eventually guides the fallen Anna to a "soft, clean and fresh life" is a significant one. As Rudolph, in this third stage appearance in his career, he is enacting his first major dramatic part.

846,000 REDSKINS IN 1492

Indian Population of U. S. Listed at 400,000

Our Indian population in the United States today is scarcely less than half the number that roamed the region when Columbus discovered America in 1492.

The Office of Indian Affairs, back in Washington after a wartime sojourn in Chicago, counts 400,000 Indians in the United States, plus 33,000 Eskimos, Eskimos, and Aleuts in Alaska.

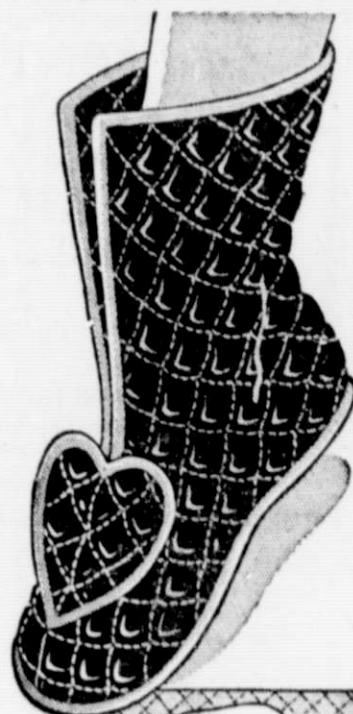

The reservations and tribal lands managed by the office would cover two Pennsylvanias, according to the National Geographic Society. Besides the Indians on reservations, there are many leading their own lives. Scattered groups like the Powhatans always have lived independently of federal stewardship.

Ethologists say there were 846,000 Indians here in 1492. After a decrease in population, this century has seen a steady increase among the 150 tribes on reservations.

Measures of health education and medical care have brought Indian birth and death rates in recent years considerably closer to the rates for the nation as a whole.

"Time and Chance," Tale of a Credo

Artist-Writer Builds Self Philosophy 'for to Admire'

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—Every once in a while, I devote this column to a book. Not a review, but just my feelings about the book and its author.

I couldn't help writing about "Time and Chance" by artist Cyrus LeRoy Baldridge. Not merely because the book interested me, or because it is a most attractive piece of autobiography, or because the drawings are a book in themselves, or because other reviewers liked it—but because I happened to share some of the experiences it describes and because I lived, as he did (and you did), through the times and chances which Baldridge interprets in terms of his own.

Also I want to write a review because of what these experiences, the fruits of the varied environments which the artist-author describes, did to form a career, a character, a philosophy, which is "for to see and to admire."

In Roy's own words, it is the story, partly done in pictures, of "how a well-meaning, but provincial farm boy got an international point of view."

He summarizes his own thoughts on this attractive 400-page volume in a note to me, this way:

"Grandfather (was a) share-cropper and vet. 'At seven (Roy) was driving a horse on mother's wagon through Arkansas, selling cooking pots."

"Worked way through college with Baukhage."

(Roy did the working, I, subsidized, loafed considerably.)

"Peace conference (Paris, 1919) with Baukhage, and sold on Wilson's idealism. Still sold on idealism, the term now altered with the times."

"Worked enough to save money enough to see Far East, Near East, Africa, Indian." (And how he worked!)

Then he concludes: "All men the same, discounting the apparent differences caused by varying backgrounds caused by 'time and chance.'"

To reach that conclusion, Roy made an Odyssey beginning with the "cooking pots" into domains of which Homer never dreamed. He had an artist's eye trained from the age of 12 when he was tolerated in a Chicago art school with young artists who were later to achieve national reputations.

Such men as John T. McCutcheon, cartoonist; Webster, creator of the "Timid Soul," and many others. Goudy, the great type designer, who died last year, was Roy's teacher, along with the school's director, Frank Holme, who became a second father to the wide-eyed child. At that school, Roy learned his most important lesson—self criticism.

His mother re-married, and Roy became bellhop and baggage-smasher in his stepfather's small-town commercial hotel; finally he went to college on a scholarship which, when he arrived, he found wasn't there. Utterly alone, without the social prestige of a college fraternity, he achieved campus success; became what was considered a "prominent student."

He grew to realize the emptiness of "college honors" but, unlike Vincent Sheean who was to follow him, Roy learned to admire the university which he had "collegiate" exploited. At our 20th reunion, he interpreted the word "university" in its obsolete but new meaning: "the whole . . . all things . . . the universe . . . a body of persons . . . the body of the people."

I shared those campus years with Roy, but I missed most of their significance and experience, for I was carefully sheltered (after a few freshman heartbreaks) behind the protective coloring of Greek letters. But I managed to know Roy and learn a little from his experiences. He is a man who inspires high loyalties.

There was a post-college period when we lost each other. He was commercial-artist and living in the University of Chicago settlement, where he taught art to little toughs from the stockyard district, developed a social conscience, became a national guard cavalryman (because he dreamed of "going west") and being another Frederick Remington, got his first peep into the world of culture and fell in love with a charming and "modern" mentor out of a world until then strange to him.

One day shortly after World War I broke out, I received a long distance telephone call. It was Roy, he was going overseas. Wouldn't I join him? I had just completed a tour of European wandering much more conventional than Roy's was to be. I also had a job. So I, the congenial bourgeois, rejected the idea.

Later I learned that he then had two incentives I lacked: A broken heart and a sketchbook, as spurs. Unbelievably, without credentials, he wormed his way through beleaguered Belgium to the German front, where he learned to hate war. He came back to fight out a career in New York.

I'm not going to write any more of Roy's story for it is his story told far better than I could hope to recount it. I can only say that when World War I came to America he had his part in it, a fraction of which I again was lucky enough to share with him. He was a cartoonist on the Stars and Stripes, after experiences on every front with the French. I joined him in Paris after the armistice. Walking down Rue de la Paix one day with Roy I was musing reminiscences of riding beside my battery of 155s. Suddenly he grabbed me by the arm. "Buck," he said, "that's poetry. Let's write a book. I'll illustrate it."

Of course, it wasn't poetry but it was verse the G.I.s of our day understood and the illustrations were art, if art is life — and death — as Roy had seen it.

We came back and went our separate ways. He now had a partner, Caroline Singer, a perfect complement. She was a California newspaper woman. They built a home, leaving it periodically to travel the Seven Seas — China, Japan, Europe again, India, Africa, criss-crossing out their books in perfect collaboration.

But Roy's book is his own story, a perfect American saga. As American as the wind that blows the Midwest corn fields; as foreign as the sounds and smells of Peking, Yokohama, the click of sabots in a tiny French village, varied as its ribbon-breasted diplomats, kings, Senegambian belles and Teheran beauties. But it's more than that. It's the story of the making of a human philosophy old as the Mongolian mountains which are a part of its background, new as today.

"Left and right," writes Baldridge, "are not two evils, they are the same evil; and safety without the solidarity of class-conscious groups, screaming slogans, or party orders to lean upon, liberals must be staunch enough to walk a lonely road."

I know that Roy would like to have me conclude this review — if you want to call it that — with the following quotation which gave him his title, the biblical quotation: "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favor to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all."

I would not dare to doubt the words of the Preacher (Ecclesiastes IX:11) — but I know that here was a man who grasped time by the forelock, and was able to hog-tie and saddle it, and one who took his chances if not without fear, at least without flinching.

When Tovarich gets the idea his rubles are going to be worthless, he acts just like a wage-slave in a benighted capitalistic country.

NEWS REVIEW

Wallace Enters Race; Romanian King Leaves

Henry Wallace was deluding no one, not even himself, about his chances of being elected President of the United States in 1948 on a third party ticket when, with zeal and idealism, he announced that he would be an independent candidate.

His entry into the contest, as he announced on a nation-wide broadcast from Chicago, was based upon his revision against "the bi-partisan reactionary war policy which is dividing the world into two armed camps."

Both Republicans and Democrats, he indicated, can be filed in the same political pigeon-hole because both stand for the bi-partisan policies which are leading the nation to war and depression.

"That menace can be met and overcome only by a new political alignment in America which requires a new political party," averred the former vice president.

Whether or not it could be met by a third party — a "peace party" — founded on the assumption that the U. S. must adopt a softer, more co-operative attitude toward Russia and at the same time reject universal military training and preparedness in general was a question that probably even Wallace history would not answer. Domestic political significance of Wallace's emergence as a third party candidate may be summed up briefly: Republicans like it, Democrats don't.

If Wallace can get on the ballots in one or more of the pivotal states — New York, Ohio, California, Pennsylvania or Illinois — he may be able to split off enough of the Democratic vote to swing the election to the Republican nominee.

Always the eminent liberal, Wallace is angling for all or a portion of the left-wing Democratic vote; and if he makes his inherent devotion to Rooseveltian ideals stick, he may be able to corral a considerable section of those on the left side.

One thing was certain. Wallace would have the hearty, although somewhat overzealous, support of the Communists, no matter how much he might avow his own anti-Communist principles. He would have to go through the campaign with the Reds and fellow-travelers hanging to his coat-tails.

It was reported by the department of agriculture that the general level of farm prices rose 5 per cent between mid-November and mid-December to a record high of 301 per cent of the 1909-14 average.

Previous all-time high was 289 per cent, set last October.

At the same time, prices paid by farmers for items for living and farm production also reached a new record. On December 15 the index of prices paid was 245 per cent above the 1909-14 average.

The farm price level in mid-December, the department said, was 14 per cent higher than January, 1947, and the index of prices paid 16 per cent higher.

Between mid-November and mid-December, average prices for virtually every group of farm commodities except fruit showed measurable increases.

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This Newspaper through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1515 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Boost Housing Fund

Backed by all veterans groups the special session of the 80th congress heeded the various organizations, which had help from the contractors and builders, and appropriated an additional 750 million dollars to the federal housing administration for insurance of new home construction.

Bulk of this money will go into veterans housing under title six of the FHA, under the priority system set up by FHA. Original legislation introduced by Rep. George Smathers (Dem., Fla.), himself a veteran, called for a billion dollars but the amount was later reduced to 750 million dollars with an additional amount of five million dollars which may be appropriated by executive order of the President.

Another issue in which all veterans are interested to such an extent that it was made a matter of congressional investigation is that of veterans' insurance. Veterans' administration has been far behind in its work due to lack of personnel and the tremendous amount of business, but the house veterans' affairs committee was told by Harold W. Breining, assistant VA insurance administrator, that veterans' insurance will be in good shape for payment of premiums in the next month or two. The impression is given, Breining said, "that no matter what you do in Veterans' administration you are wrong."

Questions and Answers

Q. Our son is in a veterans hospital being treated for a service incurred disability. Shortly after his discharge from the army he was awarded a disability of 40 per cent and was drawing $115 a month. He drew this for several months, actually until he went into the hospital for treatment several months ago. Since he has been in the hospital his monthly pension has been cut to $20. We are wondering if that is right since we are his aged parents and dependent upon his pension for our support. Is there anything we can do to get this disability pension restored? — Mr. and Mrs. A. J. H., Caruthersville, Mo.

A. It is customary to cut pension payments of veterans who enter VA hospitals for disability treatments, and the total amount of their pensions, less the difference they draw, is added to their account. Dependency does not enter into the amount a veteran draws for disability, the amount being determined by the disability and not the dependency. However, it is possible your son can explain the situation and the chances are Veterans' administration will permit him to draw more than the $20 monthly payments while he is in the hospital. Suggest you have your son take the matter up with the VA hospital officials.

Q. I read in our local paper a statement in your column which may or may not apply to my case and I would like your opinion. In the case I read about, the veteran and his wife were separated but not divorced and arrangements apparently were made to share his disability pension. In my case, I have obtained a divorce from my husband who is a veteran of World War II. He is drawing a total disability pension amounting to more than $100 per month. I am wondering if I could get part of his check as support money for myself? Mrs. W. W. S., Phoenix, Ariz.

A. It is possible that the case you read about was a mutual agreement between the veteran and his estranged wife. In your case, if your husband will not agree to share his pension with you voluntarily, it would take a court order. If your divorce requires your husband to pay alimony you might be able to get some of it. Otherwise, probably not.

Q. If I can get a business loan under the G.I. bill will I have to operate the business myself or can I have a partner who will do the work? — O. L. B., Charlottesville, Va.

A. There is nothing to prevent you from having a partner, provided you make provisions to protect yourself in case of loss; but under terms of the law, the veteran must devote his personal labor or supervision to the enterprise on a full or part time basis.

Q. Our son has made several attempts to get into a veterans hospital for treatment of an ailment which he contracted during his service and which recurs periodically. He has been unsuccessful and they tell him there is already a long waiting list. It seems that if a veteran needs treatment he should have it and not wait until it is too late. — Mrs. L. L. W., Sumpter, Ga.

A. Without knowing all the facts it would appear that your son's ailment is not a service-connected disability, or has been so regarded by Veterans' administration.

Q. I have either lost or mislaid a government allotment check for the month of August, 1947. Will I lose that amount or is there any way I can get a duplicate check from the government? — Mrs. O. L. T., Lincoln, Neb.

A. If your allotment check was from the army, suggest that you write to the office of dependency benefits, department of the army, 4300 Goodfellow Blvd., St. Louis 20, Mo., and explain the situation to them. The chances are they will arrange to mail you a duplicate check.
