Before an altar decorated with white gladioli and white peonies in Holy Trinity church at 11 a. m. Saturday, June 26, Miss Rosemary Haug, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Haug of this village, became the bride of George W. Goelz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Goelz, Chicago. The Rev. P. C. La Buvi, pastor, officiated at the rite, assisted by the Rev. Philip Clifford, C. S. V. of Springfield, Ill. and the Revs. Jos. Sipek and W. Knoerschid of Milwaukee.

During the impressive ceremony, vocal selections were rendered by Andrew Konold of Evanston, Ill.

The bride was a lovely picture in her mother's wedding dress of ivory satin and chantilly lace. Her French tulle, hand scalloped veil was full length. She carried a white prayer book with a cluster of gladiolas and Stephanotis.

Attending the bride as matron of honor and maid of honor respectively were Mrs. Jos. H. Wagner, Chicago, and Miss Colette Legris, Evanston. Both attended the College of Saint Teresa, Winona, Minn. with the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. James Durkin and Miss Rosemary Comfort, Chicago, and serving as junior bridesmaids were the Misses Joan and Joyce Bullwanz of Fond du Lac. The little flower girl was Mary Wagner, Chicago.

All of the attendants were dressed alike, the matron of honor in green, the maid of honor in orchid, the bridesmaids and junior bridesmaids in yellow. They were gowned in silk marquisette with full skirts, ruffles and bow in the back giving a bustle effect. Their hats were of matching material with wide brims. The girls wore matching elbow length mits and carried arm bouquets of daisies, baby's breath and ivy. The flower girl was dressed similar to the bridesmaids and carried a basket of daisies.

Carroll W. Haug, brother of the bride, served as best man for the bridegroom. Groomsman were James Durkin, Paul Ahern and Robert Tate, all of Chicago. James Durkin, Chicago, and Edward J. Ahern, Chicago, ushered the guests to their places.

A dinner at the Republican Hotel preceded a reception from 2 to 4 p. m. at the home of the bride's parents.

For her going away outfit the bride wore a suit of lime colored crepe with forest green accessories.

The bride, who has been engaged in teaching in Chicago, graduated from the College of St. Teresa, Winona, Minn., the Wisconsin Conservatory of Music, Milwaukee, and Northwestern university, Evanston. She is a member of Delta Pi Epsilon and Chi Theta.

The bridegroom received his degree from Northwestern university, Graduate School of Engineering, and his fraternities are Tau Beta Pi, Eta Kappa Nu and Sigma Xi. He is doing research in electrical engineering at Northwestern university.

Imported French silk chantilly lace fashioned the bridal gown. The fitted bodice was made with drop shoulder effect of lace, and topped a bouffant hooped skirt ending in a long court train. Lilies of the valley caught up the hem of the skirt at intervals. A silk illusion veil attached to a tithra of lace, and long lace gauntlets completed her ensemble. Fireworks and Band Concert Here July 5

No one should miss the giant fireworks display to be sponsored by the Kewaskum businessmen and fire department in the village park Monday evening, July 5. The fireworks will be preceded by a concert by the Kewaskum school band starting at 8 o'clock. This concert will replace the regular Wednesday night one by the band and the fireworks will be shot off right after the band finishes when it is dark. The band is under the direction of Elmer Schabo.

The fireworks this year will be bigger and better than ever and will include a mixture of both aerial and ground displays. The concert will be held on the bandstand in the park and the fireworks will be touched off directly across the river from the park so that all can get a perfect view from the big hill along the east shore of the river.

And there'll be a variety of refreshments available. A popcorn stand will be in operation and the beer, soda water, ice cream and hamburger stands will also be open to satisfy your appetite and wet your whistle.

No fireworks will be sold in Kewaskum this year but everyone can celebrate a safe, sane Fourth by attending the fireworks festival here.

Ruth Eichstedt Cops 1st Prize at Music Festival

Miss Ruth Eichstedt, Kewaskum baton twirler, was awarded first prize of $15.00 in competition with 25 twirlers at the festival of music sponsored by the Cedarburg fire department on Sunday morning. She scored 96 out of 100 possible points to cop honors.

Second prize of $10 went to a Menomonee Falls twirler, third of $7 to one from Cedarburg, and fourth and fifth of $5 and $3 to Pewaukee twirlers.

Competition for drum and bugle corps was also held in the morning and that for bands in the afternoon. The Kewaskum drum and bugle corps was invited to compete but declined to give the members a day off from a busy schedule. After the festival it was learned that because of a lack of competitors Kewaskum would have been assured of winning a prize. The best of the corps could have won $75. The Racine Boy Scout corps topped first prize of $150.

Miss Eichstedt, head majorette for the Kewaskum corps, has been admitted to membership in the National Baton Twirlers association and will be awarded a membership certificate, card and official uniform insignia. The association keeps records and pictures of all members on file. Ruth will compete in the annual Wisconsin Spectacle of Music in the South Milwaukee high school stadium July 29.

Annual Picnic, Celebration of Firemen July 11

The Kewaskum firemen are getting set for their annual picnic and celebration to be held in the village park on Sunday afternoon and evening, July 11, and the committee in charge is working to make this year's event one of the best ever held. Excellent acts, music, exhibitions and other features will provide almost continuous entertainment for those attending.

Advance reports are that large delegations of firemen and Legionnaires from neighboring towns will attend in return for the Kewaskum firemen's patronage at their picnics in the past few weeks, at which they were represented by the Kewaskum Legion drum and bugle corps and majorettes.

A big street parade at 12:30 p. m. will start the festivities for the day. The parade will feature the Kewaskum school band, Legion drum and bugle corps, Ruth Eichstedt's majorette corps, floats, civic organizations, children's parade and many other units. Cash prizes will be awarded to the best commercial floats and best entries in the children's parade. Free tickets good in trade in the park will be given to all kiddies in the parade.

The parade will form at the high school, proceed west to Fond du Lac avenue, south to Main street, east to East Water street and then south again to the park.

Music will be provided during the afternoon and evening by Reuben Kay's five orchestra, which will also entertain. While the orchestra is not playing popular music will be broadcast through a loud speaking system.

The firemen have again booked very excellent feature acts for the afternoon and evening by Mel "Sambo" Hummetsch's Dixieland Minstrels, a superb cork-face attraction. This troupe will also entertain with aerial acrobatic contortion and comedy acts.

Two great dog exhibitions will be staged by "Cherry" Haushalter and his famous Golden Retrievers in the afternoon at 1:30 p. m. (immediately after the parade) and in the evening at 7 p. m. Haushalter and his Golden Retrievers were featured at the Milwaukee Sentinel Sports show and have been putting on exhibitions all over the country during the past year. This is a very fine attraction.

At 4:30 p. m. a baton twirling exhibition will be put on by Ruth Eichstedt and her large corps of majorettes of Kewaskum.

Rides, concessions and amusements of a variety will be provided for everyone's entertainment and enjoyment. Admission to the park, parking, the acts and exhibitions, and music are all free so come to Kewaskum for a good time on the 11th. The firemen have a reputation for always showing everyone a grand time.

Kewaskum-Saints Game Called in Third, Rain

With the score 4-2 in favor of St. Michael's, the Rainbow league contest between the Saints and Kewaskum was called off because of rain in the last of the third Sunday. It rained before the game and the tilt was stopped in the second inning by rain. Play was resumed again but a deluge in the third ended it for good.

St. Michael's, unbeaten league leaders, coined four runs in the second, mainly as a result of Kewaskum errors during the rain. Kewaskum also got a rally started in the rain in the third but the downpour broke it up. Backhaus was on the hill for the locals and Kugler was dishing them up for St. Michael's. The game will be replayed as it failed to go the required 4 1/2 innings.

In other games Boltonville trimmed Falls, 18-12; Newburg downed Waubesa, 7-3; and Batavia edged Belghum 2-1. This Sunday Kewaskum plays at Sheboygan Falls.

GAME NEXT THURSDAY—Kewaskum at West Bend (night).

Lannon, the team that held first place and was undefeated in its first six games, was handed another surprise Sunday there when the Kewaskum Utensils came from behind to upset them, 7 to 6, in 10 innings. This was Lannon's third defeat in the last three games and dropped them to fourth place. Kewaskum is tied for fourth. In an earlier meeting here Lannon won a decisive victory over the Utensils. In another upset Sunday Germantown beat first place Mequon.

Lannon practically had the game in the bag when Kewaskum pulled it out of the fire in the last innings. Lannon was ahead, 6-2, going into the ninth when the Utensils surprised them with a big 4-run spree to tie the score. Lannon was held scoreless in their half of the ninth and the game moved into the tenth. Hits by Kral and Held and an error by the Lannon center fielder gave the Utensils another run in the tenth and Marx again held the opponents without a score in this frame to give the locals a hard-earned 7-6 win with a Frank Merrill finish.

Kewaskum outthit Lannon, 12 to 8, both and Honck leading the attack with three bingles apiece. Held collected two and Paul Kral got his first two hits since joining the team two weeks ago. Zalmow and R. Dubnicka drove out two hits each for the losers. Marx's triple with two on in the ninth knotted the count and opened the way for Kewaskum's win in the tenth.

Kewaskum has no game this Sunday. The contest originally scheduled against West Bend will be played instead next Thursday night at West Bend in a night affair. However, the team will play a home game on Monday, the 5th, with Germantown coming here.

Drum, Bugle Corps Appears at Random Lake, Hartford

The Kewaskum Legion drum and bugle corps has two engagements over the Fourth of July week end—at Random Lake and Hartford.

The Random Lake doings are sponsored by the Hamm-Miller Post 145 of the American Legion Saturday evening and Sunday to dedicate the Legion's new clubhouse there. A big parade Sunday at 1 p. m. will feature the doings. The Kewaskum corps will compete against the Horizon and possibly the Hartford drum and bugle corps. Hartford last week end won the state championship in the V.F.W. sponsored contest at Wausau. The Cedarburg drill team and Ruth Eichstedt's majorette corps of Kewaskum will also participate in the parade. The Random Lake high school band will appear in the parade and play concert music in the park, where the drum and bugle corps will also hold demonstrations. An all day picnic and evening dance will be held. Many Kewaskum Legionnaires and wives, parents and friends of the local drum corps and majorettes will attend.

On Monday the corps goes to Hartford where a three-day V.F.W. celebration is being held Saturday, Sunday and Monday, July 3-5, sponsored by the Legion and V.F.W. posts in the Schwartz park. Band concerts, parades, dances, water fights and picnics will be held all three days. The grand parade on Monday at 1 p. m. will feature outstanding bands, drum and bugle corps. Cedarburg Girl, 17, Killed in Accident, Companion Injured

Helen Jaeger, 17, Cedarburg high school junior, was killed instantly and her companion, Robert Peterson, 18, Thiensville, was seriously injured when the car driven by the latter veered off the road on Highway 55, at Knepek's curve, about three miles south of Kewaskum, skidded over the Knepek driveway, snapped off a utility pole, and bounced nearly 100 feet over a field, rolling over five times. The time was 5:30 p. m. Saturday.

Miss Jaeger was crushed to death and officers had great difficulty removing her body from the wrecked car. Two ambulances were called to the scene. Miss Jaeger's body was taken to the Ohlrogge Funeral home in West Bend. Peterson, who suffered severe cuts and bruises, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in that city.

Miss Jaeger and Peterson had spent the afternoon at Fond du Lac attending a picnic sponsored by the Kiekhoefer Corp. of that city. Following the closing of Cedarburg high school for the summer, Miss Jaeger took employment with Kiekhoefer at their Cedarburg plant.

Reports that the deceased's sister was hurt in the crash are unfounded, according to the sheriff's office. Miss Jaeger's death was the sixth in the county this year due to traffic accidents.

In another accident Saturday night Mrs. Arno Apperle, Kewaskum route, parked her car on the side of the road on Hwy. 144, a mile north of Barton to look for a lost radiator cap. A car containing four men driven by Andrew Breit, Kewaskum, struck the parked car, pushing it off the road, across a ditch and into a cornfield. Albert Dehler, West Bend, one of the passengers in Breit's car, suffered a cut. Breit claimed when questioned by officers, that the tail light on Mrs. Apperle's car was not lighted.

Swimming Lessons to Begin Next Wednesday

Swimming lessons will begin next Wednesday at Mauthe lake as part of the Kewaskum summer recreation program, under the supervision of Elnie Mitchell, program director. The lessons are free and everyone should not only learn how to swim but improve their skill in the water by advanced lessons so they will be able to enjoy the water more and be able to help others if it ever becomes necessary.

Regular daily attendance during the swimming lesson period is almost a necessity. Rest assured that Mr. Mitchell will not keep small children in cold water too long but daily practice is absolutely necessary. Anyone of school age can enroll.

Kathleen Norris Says: Young America Needs Enlightenment

We are a great people. I think we ought to keep saying it, thinking it and expressing it upon our children.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

PATRIOTISM

ON THE FOURTH OF JULY, above the flames of fireworks and political speeches and baking chocolate cakes and hunting and ice cream, there rises one solid inescapable consideration: We are a great people.

Some Americans think we shouldn't say that aloud. Perhaps it isn't the best taste when we are with less fortunate nationals. But here at home I think we ought to keep saying it, thinking it and expressing it upon our children.

Thousands of young Americans today will praise almost any other system of national government rather than our own. The less they know of it the surer they are that this foreign country or that is doing infinitely better than we are.

Statistics upon the low rate of pay in other lands, the crowding, restrictions and limitations, apparently have no weight. The argument that we Americans have reached the highest level of social comfort ever attained in this world, that we enjoy more luxuries, conveniences and amusements in one week than certain whole villages know in a year apparently has no weight.

Our children continue to praise foreign ideologies, to compare their ways to ours, to our disadvantages, to give any casual disaffected lecturer or magazine article their deep belief and admiration. Youngsters who never have seen Europe or the Orient tell us, who have visited them more than once, of the ideal conditions that exist in the older countries. Instructors, whose entire knowledge of foreign systems of government comes from books written by other theorists, teach our children to feel an affectionate and pitying contempt for America.

America is the most educated, comfortable, free country in the world today. No, I am not speaking of skyscrapers, automobiles, telephones, hospitals, libraries, colleges, magnificent music that comes to all of us through the medium of the radio, books and lectures, the kidney cars and express wagons that litter the placid little townships in our smallest towns.

No, and I'm not speaking of our freedom—mine to write that, yours to read it. Mine to go to church on Sunday, yours to go on Saturday, our neighbors'—if he feels like it, not to go at all. Our common newspapers right to say what they think. I'm speaking of our goodness, our goodness, inextinguishable goodness, its pervasiveness, its voice that ever spoke in a troubled world—the voice of Jesus Christ. I'm speaking of our eagerness to help friend and more fortunate...

Married Women Reach Top of Payroll List CHICAGO—A man with a top-of-class full of matrimony put the stamp on our girlish hopes that marriage is the logical way to keep out of the wage earner class. "For the first time in history," said Paul C. Gluck of the U. S. bureau of census, "married women now outnumber single women with paying jobs."

Prompted by the Fourth of July spirit, Miss Norris urges all Americans to proclaim to the world that we are a great people. Not in a boastful, arrogant manner should we flaunt our virtues before others but we should not be reluctant to display self-confidence.

Miss Norris suggests that perhaps the most important by-product of such conduct on our part would be the instilling of confidence into our children. Many American youths praise foreign ways of living because they never have been sufficiently impressed with the tremendous advantages of Americanism.

Europe comments upon our weaknesses. Like all young nations we display them; we aren't versed in the wisdom that hides the specks on the sun. We hear too much of our crime statistics, the military of certain mountain settlements, the immaturity of certain films, our extravagance, our extremes. As if this fluff of seam here any real proportion to the rich mass of the wholesome jam bubbling beneath!

Just one indication of our national character lies on my desk as I write—or rather 20 indications do. They are the appeals that we Americans take for granted and that exist in no other country in such numbers and such diversity. When the people of our nation support crusades for infantile paralysis and tuberculosis stamps, for Boy and Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Indian missions, cancer study, heart disease prevention, rummage sales, church interests of all sorts, the Salvation Army, scholarships for Negro medical students, children's homes, vacation camps, settlement houses and a thousand other humane and charitable movements to the tune of hundreds of millions of dollars every year, they stand in a class by themselves.

If the greatest of all laws is charity, and we know that it is, then here again—with so many other things—is a truth about ourselves to make us proud of being Americans on this Fourth of July.

Pity Prolongs Life CHICAGO—Pity your enemies rather than become angry with them and you will live longer, says an eminent heart specialist. Dr. N. G. Gilbert, professor of medicine at Northwestern University, told volunteer workers in the Chicago Heart Association's 1948 campaign to pity persons refusing to contribute but not to get angry with them.

Five status of the married woman working have either no dependent children in the home or have children of school age only. More married women with children of school age would be working if more part-time employment were available. Gluck explained that the trend was a promising development for advancing the standards of family living.

Confident Republicans Choose Dewey-Warren Team for 1948

By WALTER A. BEHRAD

PHILADELPHIA—Dewey took an opportunity in an unbroken glow from the covered goal of 1948 votes. Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, swept to victory in the third ballot at the Republican National Convention.

After a night of speculation on the presidential candidates which accorded the names of Charles Hallstedt, of Indiana, Senator John Bricker, of Ohio, Governor Warren was put forth as the Dewey choice for the post.

Governor Earl Warren, governor of California, was nominated to the presidency by acclamation after three names had withdrawn the name of Harold E. Stassen.

Actually the colorful New Yorker's nomination came by unanimous vote after he had demonstrated exceptional strength on the first ballot over six other contenders for the nomination. Governor Dewey polled 434 votes on the first ballot to 204 for Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, his nearest competitor with former Governor Harold E. Stassen trailing in third place with 137 votes. Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, polled 69; Senator Raymond Baldwin, of Connecticut, 17; Speaker Joe Martin, of Massachusetts, 15; Carroll Reece, of Tennessee, chairman of the GOP national committee, 11; General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, 11; Governor Dwight Green, of Illinois, 10; Governor Alfred E. Driscoll, of New Jersey, 10; Governor Earl Warren, of California, 9; and Congressman Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois, 1.

Although it was evident that Governor Dewey's managers were shooting the works for a handwagon drive, his coalition opponents failed to take action and the second ballot saw him gain 437 scattering votes while Senator Taft gained 16 from Illinois and Stassen lost eight with the others still trailing. With Dewey's total standing at 515 only 23 short of a majority, Governor James Duff of Pennsylvania, made the first move to stop the parade when he offered a motion to recess the convention. His motion was seconded by Congressman Clarence Brown, of Ohio. Senator Taft's campaign manager, and after the New York delegation offered no objection Speaker Martin, the convention chairman, declared the motion through over a chorus of "noes."

Governor Dewey won the nomination because he had the best organization, because his opposition underestimated his strength and despite the fact it broke a Republican party precedent of never having nominated a losing candidate.

The two-time nominee, he was the party's standard bearer in 1944, was given a tremendous ovation when he came into the convention accompanied by his personable wife. His nomination came swiftly after Senator Arthur Vandenberg from out of his cocoon as a dark-horse and into the picture as an active candidate to be nominated on the first roll call of the states.

Pure show-down was a split in the Pennsylvania delegation of 73 votes resulting in the withdrawal of Pennsylvania's Senator Edward Martin as a favorite son candidate in favor of Governor Dewey, throwing roughly half of the delegation to the New Yorker. This did not change the picture in the total vote, however, since it meant only that the other half of the Keystone state delegation controlled by Governor James J. Duff would go to Senator Vandenberg on the first ballot instead of waiting until a later ballot.

Then the Missouri delegation split with Senator James P. Koenig, of that state going to Governor Dewey with his following of the delegation and Senator Forrest Donnell holding out for Senator Taft with his Missouri delegates. Governor Alfred E. Driscoll, of New Jersey, who had been firing for several weeks then pulled into the Dewey camp with his 10-vote delegation. Up to this point before the balloting started, Governor Dewey had reached the peak of his claimed strength.

Gov. Earl Warren

For the first time network television carried the live scenes of this convention to the eastern seaboard from Richmond north to Boston.

All television networks "pooled" their shows and fed through a central broadcast station so that all networks received the same coverage.

THOMAS E. DEWEY

Dewey In Center Of Early Activity

Governor Dewey came into the convention as the leading candidate with approximately 350 votes pledged to him on the first ballot and possibly some 50 to 75 votes as a reserve upon which he could count after favorite son candidates had been moved out of the picture. The New York governor's managers decided, however, after they failed to improve the governor's position in the first two days of the convention, to shoot the works on the first ballot in an effort to start a handwagon stampede of delegates for the New Yorker. The maneuver, clever, psychologically in many instances, became known as the Dewey "blitz."

It had one effect, however, it united the other leading candidates in a move to "stop Dewey." Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, second man, with some 250 or more delegates on the first ballot and former Governor Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, with some 175 delegates, along with the Connecticut state chairman, Governor Ken Soper, of Michigan, and some other delegate leaders held a meeting at which they canvassed the situation and decided that Mr. Dewey did not have the votes he claimed.

Further, the Dewey "blitz" brought Senator Arthur Vandenberg from out of his cocoon as a dark-horse and into the picture as an active candidate to be nominated on the first roll call of the states.

Then the Missouri delegation split with Senator James P. Koenig, of that state going to Governor Dewey with his following of the delegation and Senator Forrest Donnell holding out for Senator Taft with his Missouri delegates. Governor Alfred E. Driscoll, of New Jersey, who had been firing for several weeks then pulled into the Dewey camp with his 10-vote delegation. Up to this point before the balloting started, Governor Dewey had reached the peak of his claimed strength.

Confident Spirit Highlights Sessions Until the demonstrations for candidates started the wild and tumultuous session which lasted long into Wednesday night, there had been little excitement and actually small crowds attending the convention. There was an air of solemnity and responsibility about the delegates which did not lend itself to hilarity or horse-play to any large degree.

These delegates gathered here were all convinced that they were naming the next President of the United States.

Harold E. Stassen was easily the most popular figure at the convention. His demonstration was the most colorful and the nominating speech delivered by Congressman Walter H. Judd, of Minnesota, an orator of note, was easily the best speech given at the convention. The galleries and the balconies were with Stassen. He had the same following and the same appeal that Willie had in 1940 in the same hall, but he couldn't get the vote.

United States... that 1948 is a sure winner for the Republican party.

The best demonstration up to the roll call of states came when Herbert Hoover, former president and GOP elder statesman was escorted to the platform by Alf Landon, of Kansas, the 1936 nominee. Mr. Hoover was given a 16-minute demonstration, and he made a study, if any picture there with the klieg lights beaming upon him.

Foreign Aid Plank Features Platform

Highlight of the 1948 GOP platform and chief bone of contention in sessions of the resolutions committee was the foreign relations plank. The all-out approval, however, of the European recovery program and support of the United Nations was a clear-cut victory for Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts, the chairman of the resolutions committee. While ERP was not mentioned by name the platform plank was clear and strong.

The platform was all-inclusive covering the field of domestic issues including conservation of natural resources, farm price supports, economy in government, against high prices, abolition of useless government bureaus, maintenance of an adequate armed service for sea, land and air; reduction of the federal debt; and tax elimination of monopoly in oil and small business, a sound soil conservation program, development of sound farm credit, encouragement of family-sized farms, progressive development of the nation's water resources for navigation, flood control and power; a comprehensive reclamation program; recognition of the nation's obligation to all veterans and a realistic and adequate adjustment of benefits; housing by private enterprise at lower costs, but federal aid for local slum clearance and low-rental housing; extension of the federal old age and survivors' insurance program and increase of the benefits to a more real level; strengthening of state-aid programs to provide more adequate hospital facilities, to improve methods of treatment of the mentally ill, to advance maternal and child health.

The civil rights platform plank included an anti-bracketing law, abolition of the poll tax as a requisite for voting, opposition to racial segregation in the armed services and "equality of all individuals in their right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness... right to equal opportunity to work and to advance in life not limited because of race, religion, color, or country of origin."

The platform also pledged new legislation against communism, revision of the procedure for election of president and vice-president to "more exactly reflect the popular vote." This plank referred to the Lodge constitutional revision resolution to change the vote procedure of the electoral college. Equal rights for women, equal pay for equal work regardless of sex, educational opportunities for all and giving title of island oil lands to the states completed the document.

"Clashed" television took the story inland. Around Philadelphia every television set was tuned into convention hall and even in the lounges at the meeting outside the convention floor, the television was for many a much more popular and comfortable method of "covering" the proceedings than the actual convention itself.

Harold E. Stassen was easily the most popular figure at the convention. His demonstration was the most colorful and the nominating speech delivered by Congressman Walter H. Judd, of Minnesota, an orator of note, was easily the best speech given at the convention. The galleries and the balconies were with Stassen. He had the same following and the same appeal that Willie had in 1940 in the same hall, but he couldn't get the vote.

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

LAST summer it was reported that Bob Hope wanted to change the format of his radio show. Now the same story bobs up again. Rumor has it that he has been having trouble making the first 10 in the all-powerful Hooper ratings. He was eighth in the June 1 listing of evening shows, with Jack Benny leading the list, and Fred Allen trailing Hope in ninth place, followed by "Truth or Consequences." Of course, whenever Ralph Edwards launches a new contest "T and C" leaps to the top.

Terry Moore, starring in Columbia's "The Return of October," is one of the few stars to receive a present from the crew when a picture was completed. Usually it's the star who gives everybody presents. The cast and crew joined in giving Terry a television set. A tribute like that is the sort of thing that happens once in a lifetime in Hollywood!

New York is bidding for re-released film production, so Henry Morgan's picture, "So This is New York," was made in Hollywood. It extols the beauty of life in South Bend, Ind., so Philadelphia was chosen for the premiere performance. That's Hollywood for you.

One of the best radio tie-ups in a long time was done by Jack Berch when he arranged to have local announcers out in during his program giving the name of a central welfare council where listeners could volunteer to give a few hours of their time. His daily program on NBC has been a source of comfort to so many people throughout the country that he tries constantly to enlarge its scope.

William Bendix, star of NBC's "The Life of Riley," has had a fine time with his role as Babe Ruth in the Ruth film. Once a hot boy for the New York Giants and for years a Brooklyn Dodger fan, he says he has completed the circuit of New York's three major league teams with his performance in this picture.

Goodman Ace, actor-writer-producer-director of "Mr. Ace and Jane," was thrilled when James Thurber, the humorist, asked him to lunch. Thurber was interested when he learned that it was Ace's idea which gave birth to the stirring CBS "You Are There" series. It seems that his enthusiasm for the comedy program is equalled only by his appreciation of the historical one.

Odds and Ends... Larry Parks finished 138th in a field of 500 starters in the grueling "Bare and Bound" motorcycle race through deserts and over mountains. Harriet Parsons ("I Remember Mama") is working on her next RKO production, "The Prodigious Women." "Indian Agent" marks Claudia Drake's return to pictures. With her will appear her one-year-old daughter, Sally Ellen, whose imminent arrival caused Claudia's temporary retirement. Producer Thomas Harve read 50 Oriental screeners for the role of the Japanese narrator in "Design for Death," finally chose Hans Conrard, American actor of German descent.

Millard Mitchell's performance in "A Foreign Affair" is so outstanding that there is likely to be a great demand for his services as soon as moviegoers everywhere have seen the picture. Mitchell, who never had worked with Marlene Dietrich before, says she is everything he had heard she was—terrific—and that Jean Arthur is one of the hardest, most sincere workers he knows.

Out of a male speaking cast of "The Man From Colorado" Glen Ford and William Holden, the stars, are the only ones to go through the film without beards. Ellen Drew was thankful; she had to kiss them both!

Will Rogers Jr., appearing as his famous father in "Silver Lining," will get plenty of help from the director, David Butler. Butler directed five films in which the late Will Rogers appeared, years ago.

Almost Everyone in Oklahoma Employed; Jobs Going Begging

OKLAHOMA CITY—Job seekers in Oklahoma are scarcer now than at any time in the state's history, including the years of World War I and II. H. E. Pendergast, executive director of the Oklahoma employment security commission, said employers have found it almost useless to advertise or try to find suitable workers by themselves. Skilled tradesmen are needed.

Farmer With Horse Team Wins Decision Over Taxi Driver

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—Taxi driver James E. Robertson had a hard time breaking even with a farmer on a 20-mile taxi trip. Loaded down with the farmer, his wife, two children, 150 pounds of cow feed and a heavy load of groceries, Robertson started out for the farm. A tire blew out near the farm, the taxi became stuck in the mud, and then ran out of gas.

"Lettuce Box" Furnishes Needy Students With Spending Money COLUMBUS—"The Lettuce Box" sprouts the long green for hard-spressed Ohio State University students.

In the entrance of Honick's restaurant across from the campus gates, hangs a glass paneled frame marked "The Lettuce Box." In it are perhaps a dozen five-dollar bills, each suspended by a metal clip. When a student finds himself temporarily "embarrassed," he borrows the restaurant cashier. After identifying himself as an OSU student in good standing, he fills out a card—name on one side, date he'll return the five-spot on the other. And with that he becomes solvent again.

Doctor Reports New Drug Which Arrests Leukemia BOSTON—Development of a new drug credited with arresting acute leukemia in children was reported by Dr. Sidney Farber, pathologist-in-chief of the Boston children's hospital.

Dr. Farber said the drug, amphotericin, had been tested at the hospital for several months. In that time it had caused "repeated remissions" of the white blood count in 11 children stricken with leukemia, he said.

He warned against "false hope," asserting further study and research was required.

The tests, however, marked the first time doctors had been able to reduce the white blood count more than once, Dr. Farber declared.

JEST JESTIN'

Teaching Philosophy

JOHN HOWARD VAN AMRINGE, who occupies an important niche in the history of Columbia university, was a sworn enemy of coeducation. "You cannot," he asserted on one occasion, "teach a boy mathematics if there's a girl in the room."

"But, professor," someone objected, "you might."

"Then," observed the worldly-wise Van Am, "he isn't worth teaching."

MARRIAGE FEES

Son: "Papa, how much does it cost to get married?"

Papa: "There's a two-dollar down payment and then you pay your entire salary every week for the rest of your life."

If all the students who sleep in class were laid end to end—they would be more comfortable.

DOUBLE CHECK

A cautious man wrote the following to a mail-order house: "Please forward to me one of those gasoline engines you describe on page 135 of your catalog. If the engine's any good, I'll send you a check for it."

A few days later he received this answer from the mail-order house: "Please send check, and if it's any good, we'll send you the engine."

Time's Up!

A passenger on his first airplane flight was being comforted by a fellow traveler.

"You have nothing to worry about," said his pal. "If your time has come, you can't do anything about it."

"That's O.K.," he answered, "but what bothers me is suppose the pilot's time has come and mine hasn't! What happens then?"

Time Is Valuable

A farmer boy was sitting on the bank of a creek fishing when a city visitor came up to him and remarked, "Your time must not be very valuable to you, young fellow. I've been watching you for three hours and you haven't had a single bite."

"Well, stranger," the boy rejoined, "my time may not be worth much to me but it's too valuable for me to waste three hours watching another guy fishing when he ain't catching."

A Promise

Husband: "Aren't you ready yet?"

Wife: "I wish you'd quit that yapping. I told you two hours ago I would be ready in just a few minutes."

Identification

"My girl," said Smith, "is one of a pair of twins."

"How do you tell them apart?" a friend asked.

"Easy," said Smith. "Her brother is taller."

Good Medicine

"Well, I do say," said the sweet old lady upon tasting her first glass of beer, "it tastes exactly like the medicine my husband has been taking for the last 30 years."

Marriage Is An Out

Mrs. Boggs: "It's not till you marry a man that you find him out."

Mrs. Noggs: "That's right. It was not till I'd married Noggs that I found he was out every night."

Accommodating Pilot

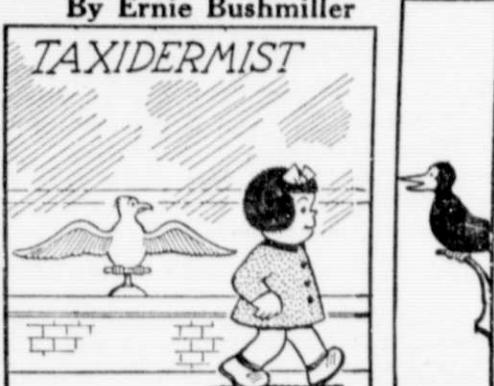

The huge army B-29 soared up and high into the vast, blue yonder, but only after clipping a boundary fence in its take-off from a municipal airport.

"Calling army B-29," radioed the control tower. "Army B-29—you have about 15 yards of our barbed-wire fence wrapped around your landing gear. Over."

The pilot immediately radioed back: "So I have. So what do you expect me to do—bring it back?"

Man Reads Book Upside Down To Improve Failing Eyesight

MILWAUKEE.—A man observed reading a book upside down in a restaurant explained everything. Several years ago when his eyesight was failing, his doctor suggested exercising his eyes by holding reading matter upside down. It helped. His sight has returned to normal.

But the habit remained. The man says he reads faster that way.

'Get Rich Quick' Man of 1920 Is On Relief Now

RIO DE JANEIRO.—Charles "Get Rich Quick" Ponzil, the wizard of scrambled finance who hoaxed Americans out of millions of dollars in 1920, is now a charity patient in a Brazilian hospital.

Ponzil is 70 or thereabouts (accounts of his birthdate differ, but most agree he was born in Italy in 1878) and semi-paralyzed. He cannot move his left leg or left arm and has a cataract on his right eye. But he recalls with a chuckle the days when he had millions.

"I was number one in those days before Al Capone. I guess the only news about me that most people want to hear is my death. Once I had 15 million dollars. I used to carry a couple million in my pockets, in certified checks and cash. Look at me now. I guess a lot of people would say I got what I deserved."

"Well, that was 28 years ago. A lot of water has gone under the bridge since. But I hit the American people where it hurts—in the pocketbook. Those were confused, money-mad days. Everybody wanted to make a killing. I was in it plenty deep, rolling in other people's money."

U.S. Women Give Twin Beds the 'Cold Shoulder'

NEW YORK.—Twin beds are disappearing from the American scene because women dread a cold bed when they retire at night.

Norman E. Dine, who has helped thousands of sheep-counters with the soporific gadgets he sells at the Lewis and Conger Sleep Shop, says women always have had the good sense to prefer double beds.

"During my 15 years of selling sleeping accessories and advice," he said, "they confided in me. They said they liked a double bed because sleeping beside a man was reassuring and restful."

Many dreaded a cold bed and others, Dine said, claimed it was their only chance to talk to their husbands.

"Practically all agreed it improved the chance for domestic harmony."

But, Dine said, the males couldn't see it that way. They insisted upon their privacy.

Men Are Individualists
They argued that in a double bed they couldn't retain their individualism. And all of them, according to Dine, wanted to be able to sprawl over the entire bed.

"So even though a sampling survey showed that men could sleep sounder in a double bed," Dine recounted, "we had to resort to subterfuge to lure them into one."

The subterfuge took the form of three devices, all of which will go down in history alongside Dine's 600 other sleep-time inventions. They were dreamed up to give the woman back her partner while letting the man retain his rights.

The first device, Dine said, is a bundle bed. This has a gadget that can be thrown down the middle of the mattress, fencing off the partners. That, he pointed out, keeps the partners from poaching on each other's territory.

People Jam Building
"I had so many people coming to my office that the other tenants in the building couldn't get in the elevator. They tried to throw me out, but I wouldn't leave my well known address, 27 School street, Boston, next door to city hall. I told them I would buy the building. They let me stay. People were sending me money from all over."

My business was simple. It was the old game of robbing Peter to pay Paul. You would give me $100 and I would give you a note to pay you $150 in three months. Usually I would redeem my note in 45 days.

250 County Homemakers Attend Achievement Day

Dresses ranging in age from 1850 up until the present time were worn by 250 Washington county homemakers at their annual achievement day on Wednesday, June 16, at the Slinger high school. One speaker stated that when he saw the long gowns with their feminine frills on his arrival, he thought the "new look" had truly come to Slinger.

The wearing of dresses of another era was just one part of the program which was planned particularly in honor of our state's 100th birthday. Exhibits of family heirlooms were another part of the program. Over 75 articles were displayed, many of them well over 100 years old. A group of homemakers from the County River Homemakers club sang two old songs and eight homemakers from the North Trenton Homemakers club demonstrated square dancing as part of the recreational program. A group of seven women also put on a short play, "If We Lived Now as They Lived Then."

Chief speakers for the morning meeting were Miss Edith B. Heider of West Bend high school, who spoke on Washington county history and showed two pieces of old equipment from the Washington County Museum and Miss Gladys Mabeche from the University of Wisconsin, Madison, who showed colored movies which she has taken throughout Wisconsin.

Dinner was served to the group at St. Peter's church of Slinger. The wonderful theme was carried out there by Mrs. Marie J. Jorgensen having several objects which are grand old pieces of furniture, such as small iron, brass and silver, and small log cabin. The speaker's table was decorated with an early Wisconsin scene depicting Indians, loggers and trees.

Speaker for the afternoon was Rev. T. Perry Jones, Methodist minister from Slinger. The Rev. Jones stressed our responsibilities in making our democracy a true democracy. He reminded us of our responsibilities toward minority groups and in seeing that the atomic bomb is used in the right way.

Beverly Mayer, Slinger, gave a declamation, and as an climax to the afternoon activities, the county officers for the new year were introduced with Mrs. Lee Kinsinger, West Bend, as president, Mrs. Roland Kienast, vice-president and Mrs. Wallace Kinsinger as secretary-treasurer.

This program was the culmination of the year's activities of the homemakers clubs who will meet again this fall. Committees in charge of the year were: Arrangements: Mrs. Wallace Kinsinger, chairman; Mrs. Donald Roemer, Mrs. Erwin Hales, and Mrs. Harold Lepion; Program: Mrs. Lee Kinsinger, chairman; Mrs. Wilbur Grubbe, Mrs. Eimer Waechter, Mrs. Leonard Hottelmann, and Mrs. Lester Knaul.

IN MEMORY

In loving tribute to Frank Slinge, who passed away five years ago, July 2, 1943:

We have lost our soul's companion, A life linked with our own. And day by day we miss him more, As we walk through life alone. What would we give to clasp his hand, His dear, kind face to see. To hear his voice, to see his smile, As in the days that used to be. Sadly missed by his wife and family.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS
Uneasy Truce Prevails in Palestine; No Talks With Russia, Truman Says; Draft Machinery Set to Begin Work

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

HOLD FIRE
Still No Peace

For a little while the dove of peace drifted over Palestine on frayed and weary wing as Arab and Israeli armies were observing, more or less loosely, a four-week truce in the war for possession of the Holy Land.

At best the United Nations-supervised truce agreement was a fragile and uneasy affair. Before the four-week mediation period was two days old both Arabs and Jews had begun charging each other with violations of the pact.

Count Folke Bernadotte, U.N. truce negotiator, was investigating the accusations, but it looked very much as though another security council cease-fire order might go unheeded, unobserved and unobeyed.

Actually, it is difficult to see how any synthetically imposed truce could succeed in Palestine. There are no basic grounds upon which a genuine interruption of hostilities could rest.

Pressure of world opinion—which is all the U.N. security council can bring to bear, lacking both military teeth and the power to bring economic sanctions against offending nations—apparently is not going to be enough, at least in the case of Palestine.

President: About Russia

Forsaking for the moment the political whiplash he has been using on congress during his western tour, President Truman issued a major enunciation of U.S. foreign policy, bounded on all sides by an indictment of Russian tactics, in a speech at Berkeley, Calif.

His address was the clearest cut answer thus far made to the recent spurious but widely publicized Soviet offer to talk over Russian-American differences and the issues of the cold war.

Bingo!

In addition to taking rapid-fire pot shots at congress during his western tour, President Truman sharpened up his target eye by blazing away at some eye pigeons on his stopover at Sun Valley, Ida. In contrast to congressmen, the clay pigeons couldn't snipe back.

INFLATION AND TAXES

Vacations Cost More This Year
If you haven't been on a vacation since 1940 and you are planning one for this summer, you're probably in for a shock—the kind that makes the bankroll tingle.

the U.S. military preparedness program, it undoubtedly carried a great propaganda impact abroad and, to a smaller extent, inside the U.S.

President Truman's Berkeley speech was a creditable reply. His theme was that the Soviet Union is acting as an aggressor and obstructor of world peace, and he postulated the theory that there is no likelihood of settling disputes between the two nations by negotiation so long as Russia continues to wield international communism as a weapon to influence the course of world events.

The American intent, he said, is to deal with the East-West cleavage by deeds, not propaganda.

"We shall judge the policy of every nation by whether it advances or obstructs world progress toward peace and we wish our own policy to be judged by the same standard."

As a measuring stick for that principle Mr. Truman suggested that Russia begin the demonstration of her good intentions, if any, by halting the perilous strife in Greece and Korea.

DRAFT: Machinery

Peace-time selective service actually had been all but a reality for months before President Truman put his signature to the draft bill. The gears, wheels and levers of the draft machine needed but a flick of the finger to start turning out citizen-soldiers for the benefit of the nation.

So much spadework has been done that the office of selective service records estimated that it could have inductees on the way in 60 to 90 days after the law became effective.

MIDDLE INCOME: That's $2,920

Any American family which could add up the wages it received in 1947 and get $2,920 for the total had earned a "middle income," according to the way the federal reserve board has it figured out.

That "middle income," up $320 from 1946, incidentally, means that half of all the 42 million U.S. families made more than that while the other half made less.

U. N. SITE: Changeable

Not that it's an original idea, but another move is reported to be getting under way quietly to switch the United Nations headquarters from the U.S.

Geneva, Switzerland, is being mentioned as the substitute site, although nations supporting the idea are taking no open steps and are confining their efforts currently to laying groundwork for the real drive which may be expected to emerge this fall at the Paris assembly.

The whole plan might go down the drain, however, if congress were to approve the $5-million-dollar loan to the U.N. for building the projected skyscraper headquarters in Manhattan.

As usual, there is a play of forces behind the scenes on this question. The Arab states favor moving the U.N. to Europe, primarily because they are bitter over the success Zionist Jews have had in influencing the U.S.

Britain originally wanted a European site and might, under certain conditions, revert to that stand. Russia, another question mark, is expected to grasp the opportunity to attack the U.S. for failure to keep promises should congress fail to approve the loan.

City Parents

Mr. and Mrs. Girard Van Barkaloo Hale of Santa Barbara, Calif., "adopted" the war-ravaged French village of Maille in 1946, subsequently sent 12,000 gifts of food and clothing to its inhabitants. Now they've gone to Maille to receive the personal thanks of the 366 persons whom they shepherded through the hard years.

AID CASH: And Politics

Although its funds were still in a state of confusion as a result of a combination of congressional economy and GOP political machinations, the economic cooperation administration nevertheless managed to toss off the biggest bundle of foreign relief cash so far.

Paul G. Hoffman, ECA administrator, approved the assignment of $95,610,605 for 10 European countries, including Trieste, and China. The action brought total Marshall plan authorizations from available funds to $393,737,025.

Countries sharing in the new approvals were Great Britain, The Netherlands, France, French zone of Germany, Austria, Denmark, Italy, Norway, Greece, Trieste and China.

The assignment of almost 96 million dollars in foreign aid funds served to point up the squabble set off in congress when the house voted to spread the recovery funds over 13 months instead of 12, thereby producing the effect of slashing aid appropriations by one to two billion dollars.

While the senate restored the appropriations cut, many U.S. leaders were gravely worried about another possible significance of the house action.

Theory was that the house, by cutting ECA appropriations, demonstrated that Republican organization bosses are determined to fight, and reverse if possible, the line of foreign policy represented by the Marshall plan.

It was thought to be part of a larger plan to gain control of the Republican party and defeat the new postwar GOP leaders—Vandenberg, Dewey, Stassen and Warren—by chipping away the cornerstone of the foreign policy they all profess.

The situation had the outward appearance of chaos, but behind it lurked the business of playing election year politics while permitting the rest of the world to go hang.

Nowadays, we stretch the affair out for a whole year or more. The Russians have simplified elections by removing one candidate beforehand which eliminates much of the element of chance. With us the contest is highly absorbing and just as the sabre tooth tiger often sneaked in and carried off some of the tribe while the others were watching the "election," so all sorts of things happen to us when we have our minds on the political race.

This time there is some danger that a large fat bear may grab off a large chunk of oil-lard while we are watching the events leading to the November finals.

Union of Nations To Secure Peace

Recently Gen. Omar Bradley, chief of staff of the army, made a masterful argument for an unselfish and positive effort for peace, along with an idealistic appeal that they steer "by the stars, not by the light of each passing ship."

"In our hatred and renunciation of war," said General Bradley, "we must not forget that the roots of conflict flourish in the faults and failures of those who seek peace, just as surely as they take shape from the diseases and designs of aggressors. While the American people have within themselves the moral strength, the power and wisdom to marshal their forces against aggression in whatever form it affects — we cannot feign wars. We have suffered enough in innocence through indifference or neglect of struggles that bring on a puff of air from a single wave of the hand.

The scales are being used to weigh potential new drugs and also to weigh the energy spent by animals placed under the influence of medicinal drugs.

When used in the ordinary way the scales take 10 seconds to come to rest, but even that weighing time is cut to a fraction of a second by a new device.

A beam of light catches the first downward motion of the loaded tray. The light is changed by a photocell into electricity, and a calculator registers the weight.

In testing medicines on animals in the past it has been the rule to record the activity that can be picked up from movement of a cage hung on springs.

GOP Wanted Mac's Return; Oh, Yes, They Surely Did

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator

PHILADELPHIA.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in regretfully regretting his inability to accept the senate appropriation committee's invitation to come to Washington to testify on the Far Eastern situation, said he'd rather wait until after the national political conventions; that he didn't want to get any political implications mixed up with his visit.

Regular Republicans solemnly accepted the general's response just as if they hadn't move heaven and earth to keep him from accepting. Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire remarked gravely at the time that if anything should happen while MacArthur was away (from Japan), he (Senator Bridges) certainly wouldn't want the responsibility of having the general back here (Oh, dear no!).

The enthusiastic political amateurs who urged that the general be invited finally were quieted down to the dismay of the Democrats who wept loudly into their beards when they heard the general would not come. But there was enough danger of ructions, rows and revolt among contenders for the Republican nomination without taking chances on a military upstart.

MacArthur in the United States, marching under arches of triumph, enjoying the laying on of leis, not to mention being cheered and perhaps even voted for by a few starry-eyed elephant cubs, was no pleasant thought for the Republican regulars to contemplate. On the other hand this contingency would fill the simple Democratic soul with joy beyond compare.

We observed the same sweet innocence as to the objectives of President Truman's recent little informal tour of the country. As Chairman Reece of the Republican national committee remarked before he left: "It (the trip) will be as non-political as the Pendergast machine," which indicates the nature of the inter-party amenities which may be expected from now on.

It is indeed a tragedy that this quadrennial election—in which we go through all the motions of tearing our adversaries to pieces, accusing them of all the crimes in the calendar just as if we meant it, should have to take place while wars cold, if not hot, seem to be breaking out all over.

It is probably a fine thing howsoever that, as civilization progressed, we changed our methods of choosing a leader.

In the old days it was a very simple process. When the eldest son had reached that point of strength and wisdom where he felt it was relatively safe to argue with papa the two of them took up their clubs, the ladies and younger children made a circle, and father and son held an election. It didn't take long, and the best man won.

The ladies buried the defeated candidate, and tribal life continued tranquilly until the first Tuesday after the first Monday of the month and year that junior thought suspicious.

Nowadays, we stretch the affair out for a whole year or more. The Russians have simplified elections by removing one candidate beforehand which eliminates much of the element of chance. With us the contest is highly absorbing and just as the sabre tooth tiger often sneaked in and carried off some of the tribe while the others were watching the "election," so all sorts of things happen to us when we have our minds on the political race.

This time there is some danger that a large fat bear may grab off a large chunk of oil-lard while we are watching the events leading to the November finals.

Convention Coverage Took Much Planning
Convention hall in Philadelphia, as the Republican convention got under way, was no sight for the sore eyes of Harold McGrath and Bob Menough, superintendents respectively of the senate and house radio galleries and Bill Henry, president of the Radio Correspondents' association.

Since October, 1947, they've practically been commuting from Washington to Philadelphia to inspect the hall, plan where broadcasts should originate, decide where network and independent radio news broadcasters of varying degrees of importance should be seated, confer with Republican and Democratic politicians, supervise host accommodations and, most vital of all, hurt nobody's feelings in the process.

Four hundred and 36 radio news-men were assigned to cover the Republican convention as compared to the 40 radiomen accredited eight years ago and 160 in 1944.

Forty-four organizations in addition to the four major networks originated broadcasts from the convention; 31 of these shows came from the hall itself. Others originated in the 14 other facilities scattered around the building, some on the stage of the hall, some in the basement and so on.

THE FICTION CORNER

THE TRAGIC WEDDING

By RAY FULBRIGHT

LIBBY'S death was a shock, coming on her wedding day as it did. Neighbor folks would be shaking their heads sadly. People liked Libby. Sort of old-maidish she was, near 40, but there was kindness and generosity in her heart.

Not that her death would be a surprise. She was very frail and a chronic heart sufferer. Doc Huntley had begged her to slip off with him and have a quiet justice-of-the-peace wedding and avoid excitement. But no. She'd wanted to be with her family—what family she had, and such as it was.

With tightening throat, Doc gazed down on the thin dark figure in the blue tulle wedding dress lying on the quilted bedding. She'd fallen on the rag carpet, they had told him when he arrived, and one of the women guests had picked her up and placed her on the bed and had removed her stockings to massage her legs. Doc noticed the heavy finger marks on the thin ankles. Then his gaze swept to the digitalis bottle on the dressing table.

Libby's heart never had been in such a bad condition that a shot of heart stimulant hadn't brought her out of it. But it was obviously a severe attack. Her face was bluish, her dark eyes bulging, as if from an exploding heart. A look of abject horror had torn open her mouth, twisting her pretty face.

"My husband was settin' in the front room waitin' fer the preacher and you to come, Doc," Cousin Laura said—Doc always called her Cousin Laura, because she was Libby's cousin, the only relative Libby had.

"The first guests were jest comin' up the road. I was in the kitchen trimmin' up the weddin' cake. I thought I heard Libby scream. About an hour ago it was. I came in here as quick as I could wash off my hands, and there she was a-lyin' there on the floor, but blue in the face."

Cousin Laura was a big-boned woman with suspicious, disapproving eyes. Her hair was coal black. Cynics had whispered that Laura had married Grandpappy Bogle, 40 years her senior, for his farm. He was stone deaf and couldn't (it was believed at the time) live more than six months. Grandpappy had a son, Harv Bogle, living with him. That was the family—Grandpappy Bogle, Cousin Laura Bogle, Harv Bogle and Libby.

Doc had always had an uncomfortable feeling that Laura hated him, or at least resented his taking Libby from the family.

Doc could hear Grandpappy in the front room yapping away with the guests. No matter what anyone said to him, he assumed that they were agreeing with him and went on yapping.

"Where's Harv?" Doc said.

"Harv's out to the barn sulking, I reckon—on account of the wedding," Cousin Laura said with evident suggestion. "He ain't been in all day—didn't even come in fer his dinner." Then she became thoughtful, her black eyes slitting. "Now, wait a minute—I believe I seen him out on the back porch about an hour ago. Yeah, I did, come to think of it."

Doc understood about Harv not wanting to attend the wedding. He'd known that Harv Bogle had loved Libby like a man possessed. He'd threatened a half dozen times to kill himself if she didn't marry him. And when that didn't work, he practically threatened to kill her. Only yesterday he'd told Libby that he'd rather see her dead than marrying the doctor.

Doc had brushed Libby's fears aside.

Harv was harmless. Give him a month of fishing and squirrel hunting down in the Obion river bottoms and he'd forget it. Doc had assured her. Harv was the bachelor type. He lived from day to day, felt no responsibility about anything. The only thing he planned ahead was his tobacco patch out behind the barn.

Doc found Harv sitting on the wagon tongue in the barnlot. He was distractedly scraping blue mud from his rough brogans with a shiny woods knife. He was a heavy-set man in tattered overalls, grizzled, his teeth showing the effects of constant tobacco chewing. He didn't talk much and spent most of his time alone in the river bottoms.

His attitude towards the doctor was surly since Doc had started courting Libby. Harv looked up darkly.

"Been out here all afternoon, Harv?"

"Here and the bottom—if it's anything to you." He kept on scraping mud.

"You were seen in the back yard about the time Libby died."

"Died! Is she—?" He studied Doc suspiciously. Slowly, conviction crept over his face. "Somebody lied," he said dully, and returned his attention to his shoe.

"Harv, I never talked with Libby about it. But who gets Libby's property? She had a will, didn't she?"

Doc knew that Libby owned 200 acres of valuable bottom timber land where Harv did his hunting and fishing.

"Naw," Harv replied. "She didn't leave no will. You sort of got left out, didn't you, Doc? If'n she'd lived through the day, you'd have got yo'r hands on that land, wouldn't you?"

Doc struggled to keep from getting mad. His gaze shifted to the dry branch at the foot of the red-gullied hill. Snarled, hungry-looking sassafras grew on the bank and along the fence rows, as if it had been forced out of competition for space in the rich bottom lands and relegated to the hills where competition for food was tired and hopeless.

Doc returned to the house, looked around the barren red clay backyard. Then he entered by the back way. The back porch, screened in, was as neat as a perfume counter.

Libby's room was just as neat. The rag carpets looked as if they'd just been washed a day or so before.

Doc went to the wall telephone, rang central and asked for the sheriff.

"This is Doc Huntley, Sheriff. I want to report a murder. . . . Yeah, out at Grandpappy Bogle's place. . . ."

Doc hung up. Cousin Laura stood in the kitchen door, her black eyes staring balefully. Slowly, doubt and indecision tore her mouth open.

"Did you say 'murder'?"

"Yes. Libby was murdered. By the person who would inherit the 200 acres of rich bottom land. Libby's land is certainly more tempting than Grandpappy Bogle's red clay hills."

"How—how—"

"Libby was picked up by her ankles and held upside down until she died from a heart attack. That's how those bruises came to be on her ankles; they certainly weren't caused by massaging. Her heart

Here's Your Vegetable Canning Guide (See directions below)

Canning Time

IT'S TIME to roll up those sleeves again and start taking out canning equipment. The corn is sweet and tender, the pea pods are full and green, and carrots are still in that nice young, crisp stage—all of which makes them can-worthy.

It's not a good idea to wait too long before putting up vegetables because the produce gets too old and, as you know, canning merely preserves, it works no wrinkle smooth or restores no color to old vegetables.

When you want a good product from the can, start with superior material. That means fresh from the garden produce, two hours from the garden to can, if you can manage it. Here are some tips to select good produce.

Asparagus should be tender, green and freshly cut. If possible cut when it is no more than five inches tall so the ends of the stalks will have a minimum of woody fiber.

Only freshly picked green beans should be used as they dry easily upon standing. If you pick your own, then get them after the dew is off. Shapely, beautifully green ones can be canned whole.

Lima beans should be almost mature but still green in color as well as being very sweet and tender. If immature, they lack flavor; if too old, they are like dried lima beans.

Young beets, the size of a golf ball, are ideal for canning. Be careful not to break the skin or tap the roots of the beets in order to preserve the color.

ONLY SWEET CORN can be used for canning. To select the best corn for canning, push a finger-nail sharply into the corn kernel. If the milk is thin and sweet, the corn is perfect for canning. When the milk is thick, the corn is past the canning stage.

Carrots, when right for canning, are sweet and tender. The young carrots which are about three-fourths of an inch in diameter make the best canned product.

In canning greens, select only tender young produce with undamaged leaves, and have them freshly picked or at least as fresh as possible. Don't use old produce with large tough stems and midribs.

To test for tenderness in okra, pierce a pod with the thumbnail and if it cuts through easily the vegetable is ripe.

Peas will not wait for canning because it takes only a few hours for peas to develop from the right stage, which is tender, sweet and slightly immature, to the point where they are starchy and not as good tasting. Gather pods early in the morning, selecting those which are very green and crisp and well filled with peas.

PLAN TO HAVE all canning equipment ready by the time you go after your produce so that you can bring it into the house and start it on its way. If you just have to go out into the garden to pick the vegetables you can even start your water boiling for the precooking.

LYNN SAYS: Here's Tips on Canning Vegetables at Home

All vegetables contain enzymes which cause various changes in color, flavor and texture. To the home canner the most obvious sign of enzymatic activity is that of food turning dark on top of the jar.

If you can beets, choose those that have deep, red color throughout. Neither skin tap root nor the stems should be broken before the beets are precooked.

Black spots found on top of canned corn are due to the formation of hydrogen sulfide and are harmless. Similar dark spots on cabbage and other greens of the same type are also due to sulphur compounds and are harmless.

Flat-sour is the most common form of spoilage among vegetables. Flat-soured food may look good, but it tastes and usually smells, bad. There is no danger of botulism spoilage when clean, sound, unblemished fresh produce is used and canned according to instructions.

Have the jars and covers washed and sterilized. The jars may be inverted on a clean towel after sterilizing, so they'll be in readiness to fill.

Have water in the pressure cooker. You can start this heating as soon as you come in because there's not very much water needed. Naturally, you have checked the pressure cooker previously to make certain it closes properly and that the pressure gauge works too.

Cleaning equipment such as kettles and colanders, paring knives and other things also should be ready.

WASH FOODS before cutting, stemming or hulling. You'll probably need several changes of water for absolute cleanliness. Handle the vegetables gently and lift them out of the water rather than pouring it off them. Discard any spoiled vegetables during washing.

Try to use the same sized pieces for each jar. Those vegetables which are outsized may be cut up rather than canned whole.

Then prepare as necessary for each vegetable, cutting green beans, shelling peas, scraping carrots, etcetera.

Precook or blanch (immerse in hot water) long enough to shrink or wilt the vegetables to get a better pack. Vegetables may be placed in a cheesecloth sack and immersed in boiling water.

Fill sterile jars to within one inch of the top. Then add boiling water to within one-half inch of the top. One teaspoon of salt to each quart also may be added before the water is poured in.

Adjust lids according to manufacturers' directions.

Place the rack in the bottom of the pressure cooker and set the jars on it. Leave a little space between the jars so that the steam can circulate freely. Only enough jars to fit in the pressure cooker should be prepared at one time.

Adjust the pressure cooker cover and screw down the safety valve. Steam should be allowed to escape only through the petcock.

Allow the petcock to remain open from seven to 10 minutes, counting from the time the steam begins to escape steadily. Close the petcock.

Allow the pressure to come within two or three pounds of the desired amount, then lower heat. This prevents overshooting the desired pressure mark.

Count processing time from the moment the gauge registers the desired pounds of pressure. Have pressure remain as constant as possible so you neither overcook or underprocess your food.

Jars may be removed with a lifter onto layers of newspapers or cloth. Keep them away from drafts.

Beets which do not have an even distribution of coloring usually will have better color if pared, cut and precooked for five minutes before canning. They reabsorb color when handled this way.

If your canned corn has a brownish cast, this usually is due to caramelization. Prevent this by using juicy corn, plenty of water and correct processing.

Choosing the vegetables carefully and careful handling will give desired results in home-canning.

Olive green is the correct color for canned green vegetables. If they are a brilliant green, this indicates improper canning or the addition of a harmful chemical.

Murky liquid in canned vegetables may be caused by the produce being too old for canning, over-processing, spoilage, using salt that has a starchy filler or hard water. Canning powders never should be used. They may even be harmful and cannot give you any results that following correct instructions do.

HOW IT STARTED

VAUDEVILLE. In the 15th century, near the French town of Voire, M. Olivier Baselin had a mill on a gorge which was called Vaux-de-Vire. He wrote many ribald and satirical drinking songs there, which became famous throughout France as "vaux-de-vire." In time this name was corrupted to "vaudeville," and the word meant "popular songs." Later the term vaudeville was used to designate a light musical comedy. Today it is generally applied to a two or three act farce comedy.

KNOCKING ON WOOD. This custom originated from the days when persons were accustomed to placing their hands on a statue or effigy of a deity to ward off misfortune, in the event of boastfulness.

Electric Fence May Kill; Safety Precautions Listed

Electric fences take their toll of human lives every year. Most victims are children. Also, many animals are killed. Listed below are some of the safety rules recommended by the National Safety Council.

Do not use home-made electric fence controllers; they are not safe. No fence should be energized from any electric source except through an approved controller, one that meets the safety standards of a recognized agency. It is important that the controller is properly installed with good ground and lightning protection.

Do not tamper with the controller. If it needs servicing return it to the manufacturer or have repairs made by a factory-authorized representative.

Teach children not to tamper or play with an electric fence.

Avoid locating an electric fence where the charged wire and a good ground such as a pipe line, pump, stock tank, pond, irrigation ditch, or other normally wet ground can be contacted at the same time.

Identify electric fences, especially those near buildings, property lines, or roads with prominent signs.

Provide insulated gate grips for opening and closing gates.

'Big Brain' Aids Navy In Ballistics Problems

DAHLGREN, VA.—Costing $600,000 and weighing 25 tons, a mechanical "brain" is the latest equipment installed by the navy's bureau of ordnance here. The "big brains" of the navy is an automatic machine designed to produce range tables for missiles of new design and to make computations in connection with guided missiles.

Naval ordnance officials said the machine will be used chiefly for predicting the various characteristics of guided missiles such as the V-2 rocket.

The calculator can solve in one second a multiplication problem into the millions. Numbers running into the billions can be added in less than one-fifth of a second.

The massive robot occupies a room 50 by 80 feet. Its machinery consists of steel, bakelite and more than a million feet of electric wiring.

Wars Spur Increase In Cost of Education

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—If there are many more wars, education will get too costly for anyone to afford it, in the opinion of Dr. Bruce M. Bigelow of Brown University.

The educator points out that tuition jumped from $12 to $16 a year during the Revolutionary war, $36 to $100 during the Civil war, $175 to $250 during World War I and $350 to $500 during World War II.

The Season for Health Is Always

OPEN

Many hunt for it the year around only to find that they have been trying to relieve the effect instead of correcting the cause.

Chiropractic and Naturopathy has established an enviable reputation as a health science by correcting the cause of disease.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mrs. Paul Rosenthal, who passed away on July 7, 1941:

A precious one from us has gone,

A voice we loved is stilled;

A place is vacant in our home,

Which never can be filled.

God in His wisdom has recalled,

The boon His love had given,

And though the body slumbers here,

The soul is safe in Heaven.

Sadly missed by her husband, Paul Rosenthal, and family.

SCHOOL'S OUT!

• Heralded by the happy shouts and laughter of young people all over the land, vacation time is traditionally a happy time . . . a time to romp and play—to laugh and relax.

The happy faculty for being able to laugh and relax at the proper time has been one of the chief reasons American workmen have been able to out-produce all others. We're sure that like those before them, this year's crop of June grads will use their vacation time well—and be ready to take those first confident steps on the path to the career that lies ahead. We hope that through the use of low-cost dependable electric service, Reddy Kilowatt will have a part in making the path an easier one. In the home, in the factory, in the store—electric lights the way to progress.

Our Congratulations to All You New "JUNE GRADS"
