

St. Kilian's Parish at St. Kilian Will Observe Centennial

Archbishop Moses E. Kiley Will be Present at Mass at 100th Observance Sunday, Sept. 19

Archbishop Moses E. Kiley of Milwaukee will be present in cappa magna at the solemn high mass which will mark the centennial of St. Kilian's parish, St. Kilian, on Sunday, Sept. 19. The mass will be celebrated by a former pastor of the parish, Fr. Peter J. Burelbach, at 11:00 a. m. Assisting Fr. Burelbach will be Fr. Charles Myers as deacon, Fr. Michael Jacobs as sub-deacon, Fr. Francis Eschweiler as master of ceremonies. The sermon will be preached by Fr. Peter K. Flaseh, a son of the parish, pastor of St. Catherine's church, Milwaukee.

The history of St. Kilian's parish, St. Kilian, dates back to 1848, so the parish observes its centennial in the year of Wisconsin's 100th anniversary of statehood.

As Early as 1847 Fr. Charles Schraudtenbach, who visited the point where the village of St. Kilian now stands, and in that vicinity, celebrated the first mass as early as 1847, in the home of Andrew Masch. Early in 1848, sentiment for the organization of a parish began to crystallize. Twenty acres of land were donated to the parish by Andrew Flaseh and Balthasar Flaseh, two brothers, each 10 acres. A small log church was built near the spot where the cemetery cross now stands and by the autumn of 1848 was ready for services. The earliest settlers who had come from the neighborhood of Wuerzburg, Bavaria, where Saint Kilian spread the message of salvation among their forebears, were instrumental in having the humble church dedicated in honor of Saint Kilian, with the approval of Bishop Martin Hppni, later on, the village was also named St. Kilian.

New Churches, Parsonages Erected The parish continuing to grow, a new church became necessary. This second and more commodious frame building was erected in 1859, during the administration of Fr. Caspar Rehl. The first parsonage was built in 1870, while Fr. George Strickner attended St. Kilian. The erection of the present stone church began and was completed during the pastorate of Fr. Peter J. Burelbach, in 1896. A new parsonage was added to the work of Fr. Burelbach in 1904.

School Beginnings It was during the administration of Fr. H. J. Mueckelheide that the first school and sisters' residence, a combination stone building, was erected in 1866. At the beginning of 1867, two laymen taught school, Frank Richter from January until the end of March, and John Schwebach from April until the end of June. In September, 1867, the school sisters of the Convent of Notre Dame, Milwaukee, were placed in charge of the parochial school at St. Kilian, and have been teaching ever since. The present new up-to-date brick school and sisters' (CONTINUED ON PAGE FIVE)

5 Vehicles Involved in Crash; Other Accidents

Five vehicles were involved in one traffic accident on Highway 55 in the Kewaskum marsh south of the village last Wednesday evening. The mixup started when a West Bend Cannery Inc. truck collided with a film service truck. While both vehicles were parked along the highway an Olson Transportation Co. semi-trailer approached the scene. The cannery truck had no lights on and the Olson driver was unable to see it until almost upon the truck. He swung his truck off sharply to avoid running into the cannery company truck. As he did so he sideswiped two autos driven by Harry Koch and Roman Kral, both of Kewaskum. No one was injured and none of the machines were damaged much, although the accident could have been a serious one.

Miss Ellen Backus and Louis Heisler Jr., village, escaped with bumps and bruises at about 10:30 a. m. Wednesday morning when an auto driven by Heisler skidded during a rain on slippery blacktop on County Trunk Highway G, a short distance north of the Fond du Lac-Washington county line, near the Math. Pesch farm home. The car skidded across the road into a ditch on the opposite side and turned over on its top in a corn field. Heisler was traveling north at the time. The auto was badly damaged.

The right side of a car driven by Gilbert "Bud" Korth, village, was damaged in a collision on a highway near Addison Monday when it was struck by another vehicle whose driver drove onto the highway from a side road, according to reports. Korth was enroute to Hartford to register for the draft. He is a World War II veteran. Korth escaped injury. Full details were not available.

Rainbow Team Upsets Utensils of Lakes, 2-1

In the surprise of the season here on Labor day, Kewaskum's Rainbow team, the India's, upset the Kewaskum Utensils of the northern Land of Lakes league, 2 to 1, in a tight, well played contest. With the hustling Indians' victory also goes the village championship for this year. The Utensils finished fourth in the Lakes while the Indians stand fifth in the Rainbow although they have one protested game still in the fire in which a win could give them a tie for third.

The star of the game was lefty Johnny Tassar, young up-and-coming pitcher of the Indians, also Kewaskum High school pitcher. Johnny did a masterful job, in fact his best of the season, in setting down the senior Utensils with only four hits. Tassar's mound opponent, "Killy" Honeck, who locked with him in the pitchers' duel, gave up eight bingles. Honeck struck out nine Indians, while Tassar fanned five. Both twirlers gave up one walk.

Heroes in the Indians' win were Johnny McElhatton, who slammed out a game winning home run in the seventh with the score tied at one all, and Bobby Staehler, who saved the game with a sensational catch of Paul Krahl's long drive in the ninth. Krahl pounded out a far, high one almost up to the tree in front of the school in left field. Staehler was playing Kral very deep and at the crack of the bat he raced back and back, circled around and finally got under the drive, appearing the ball with one hand to prevent an almost sure homer that would have knotted the count.

The Indians scored first in the second inning when Krueger led off with a single, McElhatton sacrificed, and Tassar knocked in Krueger with another single. The Utensils' only marker was scored in the seventh when J. Stautz led off with a double and tool third when Staehler let the ball get through him in left. Kral then promptly singled him home. McElhatton's four bagger in the seventh which stopped rolling near the back of the school ended the scoring and clinched the ball game.

Along with his stellar pitching performance, Johnny Tassar also annexed hitting honors for his team. He connected for two safeties in three trips. Jerome Stautz was the lone Utensils batter to get two hits. The Indians played inspired ball, their best of the year. The Utensils also played a fine game but couldn't get rolling in hitting the ball away from the Indian fields. They flied out and popped out very much.

KIWANIANS SHOWN MOVIE ON ALUMINUM; HEAR FISH STORY

Featuring the Kiwanis club's weekly meeting Monday evening was a motion picture from the Aluminum Company of America on aluminum. It was an educational and interesting film which depicted a magnificent story of aluminum and manufacturing. The club also was treated to a true fish story by Hank Rosenheimer. It seemed Hank was fishing for perch and landed a 12-pound tiger muskie instead (with the help of inadequate equipment and some mighty surprised fishermen). The tale was verified by his assistants in this capture, Paul Landmann and Don Harbeck.

County Legion Elects Officers at Hartford Meeting; Koch Chosen

Robert B. Furman, Jackson, was elected county commander of the American Legion at the county meeting held at the Schwartz park and ballroom, Hartford, last Thursday evening. Furman was the adjutant to retiring commander Joseph Prechtel last year.

Other officers named were Harry Koch, Kewaskum, past commander of the local Legion post, 1st vice-commander; George Moersfelder, Germantown, adjutant; Clifford Kissinger, Jackson, finance officer; Edward Gutjahr, Allenton, sergeant at arms; George Schaefer, Hartford, assistant sergeant at arms, and George Kolt, Hartford, service officer.

A feature of the meet was the installation of county post and Auxiliary officers. Post and county officers were installed by second district commander Fred Duxbury, while Auxiliary officers were installed by Mrs. Odeal Walterlin.

Main speaker was William F. Trinke, past department commander of Wisconsin, who spoke on the national and international situation, stressing the part Legionnaires should play in world affairs.

Other speakers included Mrs. Lillian Buddenhagen, Kewaskum, senior vice-president of the Gold Star Mothers; Kolt, who is also Washington county service officer, and Duxbury, who discussed Legion activities. The Gold Star Mothers' organization members were honored guests at the meet.

A parade down Hartford's Main street to the Schwartz park preceded the meeting. Units participating included the Hartford post band, Kewaskum Drum and Bugle corps, Jackson drill team, and the post colors of Hartford, Allenton and Kewaskum. Hundreds of people saw the parade.

Main features of the business meeting included the awarding of "Certificates of Most Distinguished Service" from the national headquarters of the American Legion, for re-enrolling before Nov. 1, 1947, all their members of that year for 1948.

Gold stars were awarded to membership honorees and a cigarette lighter was presented to Carl E. Schaefer, adjutant of the Kewaskum post, for enrolling 72 members, more than any other Legionnaire in the county.

More than 400 people attended the meeting. Lunch was served by Hartford Post No. 19, the host post.

Rainbow Team Finishes, Wins Disputed Contest

Kewaskum's Rainbow league team played only three innings Sunday at Beloit but won a ball game. Earlier in the season the Kewaskum team walked off the field and refused to finish the game at Beloit after a hum decision by the umpire. This happened in the 6th inning. The league director ruled that the contest had to be completed and so the two played the remaining three innings Sunday. When the team walked off the field the score was 4-3, Kewaskum. In the three frames Sunday the Indians scored two runs and Belgium one to make the final outcome 6-4 in the Indians' favor.

Last Sunday's play marked the close of the season although some teams have make-up games to play. Kewaskum still has a protested game to play against Waubeka there and we understand this will be played Sunday. A win will give the Indians a tie with Waubeka for third place. A defeat will put them out of the running for the first three places. St. Michaels has finished its season and capped the league championship with 12 wins and 3 losses. Batavia has also completed its season and placed second with 12 and 4.

Other cores last Sunday were: Belgium 14, Boltonville 5; Batavia 6, Waubeka 5; St. Michaels 8, Barton 4; Sheboygan Falls 9, Newburg 3.

Utensils Lose Final Game; End Up Fourth

LAND O' LAKES STANDINGS (Northern Division) FINAL

Table with 2 columns: Team, Won, Lost. Rows include Lannon, Mequon, West Bend, Kewaskum, Germantown, Menomonee Falls, Granville, Grafton.

SCORE LAST THURSDAY—Mequon 3, West Bend 2 (night).

SCORES LAST SUNDAY—Germantown 5, Kewaskum 3; Grafton 9, Granville 6; Mequon 10, Menomonee Falls 6; Lannon 6, West Bend 2.

SCORE LAST MONDAY—Lannon 11, Granville 3.

Extra base hits defeated the Kewaskum Utensils in their final game at Germantown Sunday, 5 to 3. With the defeat the Utensils ended their season in a tie for fourth place with Germantown. Both have a record of 19 wins and 11 losses. According to one of the Milwaukee papers of Tuesday, Lannon won the undisputed championship in the northern Lakes, but our records for the season show that Lannon is tied with Mequon for first place, both with 16 and 5 West Bend snared undisputed third.

Two home runs and two triples were responsible for Kewaskum's setback in the finale. After Germantown notched two runs in the fourth, the Utensils got their initial marker in the fifth when Tassar walked, J. Stautz singled and C. Stautz sacrificed. H. Gumm's homer in the sixth gave Germantown its third run and W. Hoels round tripper in the seventh made it 4-1. Triples by Geiger and Jim Smith scored the winners' final button in the eighth. Kewaskum rallied in the ninth for two runs but the rally fell short. The markers came in on Tassar's triple and singles by J. Stautz and Honeck, pinch hitter for C. Stautz. Marx was on the hill for the losers and pitched seven hit ball, striking out five. Gumm and Schoeni shared pitching chores for the winners and limited the Utensils to five safeties. The only players to get two hits were J. Stautz for Kewaskum and Jim Smith for the victors.

Attendant Rescues Boy, 9, From Clutches of Elephant

McKEESPORT, Pa.—A circus elephant picked up a 9-year-old schoolboy, tossed him to the ground and was about to crush him with his forefoot when an attendant came to the rescue.

He fed the elephant some hay when the animal suddenly grabbed him with his trunk, lifted him into the air and slammed him to the ground.

Just as the elephant raised its foot to crush the youth, a quick-thinking attendant shouted a command for the animal to "freeze."

Robert then rolled from where Shirley was chained.

He suffered a dislocated shoulder.

Grandmother's Will Offers Brothers a Gambling Chance

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Henry and John Merritt are undecided about the gamble offered to them in their grandmother's will, but it appears they can't lose either way.

Their grandmother, Mrs. Tekla H. Knoefel, left them each $5,000, but allows them the alternative of declining the $5,000 and receiving instead some securities in a sealed envelope in a bank lock box.

They have no idea what the envelope contains.

Chief Steals Coat, $20 From Church After Sermon on Theft

WAUKESHA, Wis.—A Waukesha minister now studies very carefully the selection of his Sunday sermons.

The Rev. Ralph Ley has a good reason for lengthy deliberation.

One Sunday he spoke on the eighth commandment "Thou Shalt Not Steal."

Shortly after the service, he discovered that a thief had stolen a $250 muskrat coat and $20 from a choir room.

'Forever Ample' Sundae Are Too Much for Fountain Girl

ST. LOUIS.—A drugstore here whipped up a super ice cream special and christened it the "Forever Ample."

A group of youngsters ordered eight of the one dollar confections.

As the tired fountain girl dug out the last scoop of ice cream and looked it on a dish, she announced: "This is forever ample for me, too; I quit."

She hung up her apron and walked out.

Contractor Agitates Paint With Wife's Washing Machine

TRENTON, N. J.—Thanks to his wife's washing machine, a Trenton contractor is putting a new coat of paint on the 720-foot Delaware river bridge between Milford, N. J., and upper Black Eddy, Pa.

The Delaware river joint toll bridge commission hired Dewey D'Agostino to paint the super-structure, specifying that the paint must be mixed daily by an agitator.

What of Mrs. D'Agostino? "It cost me $400 for a new machine for her," D'Agostino said.

Picture Shows Woodrow Wilson Liked Nicknames

MIDDLETOWN, CONN.—Woodrow Wilson, like President Roosevelt, apparently liked to tag his associates with nicknames.

Such sobriquets as "Redhead," "Witch," "Van Benny," "Our Bob," and "Little Billee," were conferred by the scholarly Wilson on men with high sounding titles and degrees who served with him on the Wesleyan university faculty.

That was back in the '80s.

Careful Planning Urged To Make Light Meals Nutritious and Balanced

ARE THE LIGHT MEALS you serve always nutritious? Or are they just something you throw together for the sake of giving calories to your family, even though the foods are not particularly abundant in health-giving elements such as protein, vitamins and minerals?

Serve a salad for lunch and get your nutrients the easy way. Muffins or sandwiches with milk or a nourishing beverage help give a well balanced meal.

eyes and smiles and a general glow of health about you. Your scratches and cuts, for example, will heal more readily if you're getting vitamin C in ample quantities.

That dragged out feeling may come from lack of the B complex vitamins which guard general well being, or it may come from lack of iron in the blood which helps carry oxygen we breathe to all parts of the body.

If you're troubled with night blindness, poor appetite, and get colds and infections readily, you're apt to be getting less than your share of vitamin A.

When teeth are in poor condition it would be wise to check on your calcium, phosphorus and vitamins C and D. Any one or all of these may be responsible.

Dinners are apt to be rather well balanced to give the essential food elements, but frequently the cause of many ills is the lack of good lighter meals such as lunches or suppers. Some people skip lunch, others nibble at little or nothing, while some eat something that satisfies hunger without regard to satisfying bodily needs.

Keep your refrigerator well stocked with fruits and vegetables, so that you always can toss a salad together. Serve this with sandwiches if you're hungry or gingerbread if you want a kind of bread and dessert together.

Soaps and juices are good to have on hand because they satisfy vitamin and mineral requirements. Plan, however, to serve a salad with them or a nourishing milk drink or dessert.

SOUPS AND JUICES are good to have on hand because they satisfy vitamin and mineral requirements. Plan, however, to serve a salad with them or a nourishing milk drink or dessert.

CHOOSE FROM AMONG these recipes for those light lunches or suppers. Foods contained in them are vitamin and mineral conscious, but still will be found to be very appetizing and refreshing.

Molasses Milk Shake (Serves 1) 1 tablespoon pure dark molasses 1 cup cold milk Dash of cinnamon

Molasses Banana Milk Shake (Serves 1) 1 medium ripe banana 1 cup cold milk Few grains of salt 1 tablespoon pure dark molasses Few drops vanilla extract

LYNN SAYS: Give Old Foods New Flavor Tricks Meat loaf will take on an inviting flavor if you fold in one-half cup of grated parmesan cheese into the mixture before baking it.

Chopped ham is delicious to add to your favorite plain or cheese soups, fondue, omelet or scrambled eggs.

Fork sausage will have a special appeal when you prepare with macaroni and a chili-flavored tomato sauce.

If you're tired of serving plain buttered peas, fold the peas in a cream of mushroom soup thinned slightly with cream. This goes nicely over a chicken and noodle loaf as a sauce and vegetable.

Macaroni and salmon are natural teammates for a salad. Add chopped celery for crispness and chopped pickles for flavor. Hold together with mayonnaise.

Leftover crumbled bacon is excellent when mixed with waffle batter. This may be the basis for a luncheon dish served with a creamed green vegetable.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

Chicken-Noodle Casserole *Combination Salad Jelly and Relishes *Very Best Gingerbread With Marshmallow Topping Beverage *Recipe Given.

Mash banana with fork until smooth; add milk, salt, molasses and vanilla extract. Shake well.

*Combination Salad (Serves 3) 1 cup cooked string beans 1/2 cup shredded raw carrots 1/2 cup celery strips 2 cups shredded lettuce 1 hard-cooked egg, sliced French dressing

Combine vegetables and mix lightly. Arrange sliced eggs over vegetables and serve with french dressing.

THESE FRUIT SALAD combinations will enable you to add nutritive value as well as appetite appeal to light meals.

1. Orange wedges, sliced banana, pear or peach half, diced apple and white grapes or cherries. Serve with sweet french dressing.

2. Pear halves with pimiento cheese balls on lettuce, served with french dressing or mayonnaise.

3. Pineapple chunks, apple strips, diced celery with rice American cheese over top, served with sour cream dressing.

4. Calavo filled with orange and grapefruit segments, served with french dressing.

5. Orange and grapefruit sections with thick slices of banana, served with the following dressing: One cup mayonnaise, one-half cup molasses and three tablespoons of lemon juice to serve four.

TRY THESE sandwich combinations as a means of varying the lunch menu.

1. Old English cheese or smoked American cheese with bits of cooked, crumbled bacon.

2. Egg salad with finely chopped pickle and celery with enough salad dressing to moisten.

A simple but easy dessert for one of those light lunches includes tall glasses of milk with a very dark and delicious gingerbread. Serving gingerbread is an easy way to work iron into the diet by means of the molasses.

3. Mashed liver sausage mixed with finely chopped, hard-cooked eggs, moistened with cream and seasoned with salt and pepper.

4. Peanut butter mixed with crumbled, cooked bacon or shredded carrots, or honey or chow chow.

5. Ground leftover meat mixed with ground raw carrot, moistened with mayonnaise and seasoned with salt, pepper and onion juice.

*Very Best Gingerbread (Serves 16) 1/2 cup butter or shortening 1/2 cup granulated sugar 1 egg, beaten 2 1/2 cups sifted flour 1 1/2 teaspoon soda 1 teaspoon cinnamon 1 teaspoon ginger 1/2 teaspoon cloves 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 cup pure, dark molasses 1 cup hot water

Cream shortening and sugar. Add beaten egg. Measure and sift dry ingredients into molasses and hot water. Add dry ingredients to first mixture alternately with liquid, a small amount at a time, and beat after each addition until smooth.

Bake in a paper-lined pan (9 x 9 x 2 inches) in a moderate (350 degree) oven for 50 minutes.

When brining pickles in a crock, the skum should be removed as it gathers. Scum causes spoilage.

Corned beef patties are delicious when made with chopped green pepper, served with a tomato sauce when they are browned golden and crisp.

Try this new trick the next time you serve the old favorite, spare-ribs with sauerkraut: Place the sauerkraut on one rack of ribs, sprinkle with caraway seed and top with another rack of ribs. Braise until done.

Have you ever tried cornbread when you serve a ham slice? Plan broil the ham in a heavy skillet and pour the cornbread batter over the drippings for that extra delicious flavor.

Have you ever flavored a rice stuffing for fowl with a bit of orange juice? The family will like this different flavor touch.

When next you bake muffins, top the batter, after it is poured into the tins with a mixture of sugar, nutmeg and chopped nuts. They make handsome muffins as well as tasty ones.

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

THE new "Family Hour," to be launched October 3, will bring us drama instead of the musical programs so many people have looked forward to on Sunday afternoon.

John Dall hit the Hollywood jackpot with "The Corn Is Green." He had six years of stock and three Broadway appearances behind him, but even with such training some actors have failed to follow one movie success with another. Dall has done it consistently. Now, in Hitchcock's "Rope," he gives one of the best performances of this or any year.

There is a little group called "Hitchcock's Younger Generation," consisting of Dall, Joan Chandler, Farley Granger, Dick Hogan and Douglas Dick. Their average age is below that with which the famous director usually works, but he feels that they will go far, and deserve special attention. "Rope" may be the springboard to the fame he predicts for them.

William Grant Sherry, Bette Davis' husband, had always refused to sell his paintings till Rosalind Russell, in the east to welcome her husband home from Europe and promote their picture, "The Velvet Touch," talked Sherry into selling her two landscapes. They show the countryside around her family home in Connecticut, so she had to have them.

The first picture to start at RKO since the upheaval will be "Follow Me Quietly," all about a young police lieutenant who tracks down a mystery killer. Seems to fit Howard Hughes' theories of what the public wants.

Helen Hayes cannot get back from London for the first three "Electric Theater" broadcasts, but her substitutes rank high with her theatrically. October 3—Henry Fonda, October 10—Basil Rathbone, October 17—Margaret Sullavan.

Lex Barker enlisted in the army as a private, emerged as a major. His movie break came in "The Farmer's Daughter." The role of Loretta Young's big brother in that picture brought him his "Tarzan" assignment, one picture a year.

Robert Mitchum was right at home when required to play a guitar for RKO's "Rachel and the Stranger"; he once appeared in a Reno night club as a singer, where he accompanied himself on the guitar.

"The Masked Spoooner" was well set to keep his identity secret during his first New York appearance on "We, the People." With a mob of fans waiting outside the theater to see him, he wore two masks.

Dorothy Lamour is delighted with her new radio program, replacing "The Village Store" on NBC. And it's a fine thing, having those top stars who are guests receive a token payment, so that the bulk of their pay goes to set up a fund to take care of indigent radio performers. In all these years there has been no such provision for them.

ODDS AND ENDS—Reliable rumors have it that Lanny Ross will be signed for a 15-minute program, five times a week on Mutual—informal stuff, with talk and songs by Lanny, of course.

Disc Jockey Jim Hantborne went from $85 a week at a Pasadena station to $40,000 a year, for five years, at ABC.

When the Edgar Bergers were flying into Berlin recently, a Russian fighter plane flew right along beside them. Frances Bergen reports that it was anything but pleasant.

Bette Davis says to her grammar schoolmate, "I was that crazy," says Bette.

Johnny Weissmuller may no longer leap through jungles as "Tarzan," but he's still in that locale in "Jungle Jim," first of a series for Columbia. Virginia Gray, George Reeves and Lita Baron will appear with him.

Starting late in September, winners on the "Talent Jackpot" program on Mutual will not only get a chance to appear before American audiences, but will also get bookings at London's Palladium and the Folies Bergere in Paris.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When you get paint on the windowpanes, or when somebody else does and you have to get it off, soak the glass with hot vinegar.

Give the vinegar a few minutes to work, and then rub or scrape the paint off. A penny makes a safe, effective scraper. If you use a razor blade or something else that is sharp, be careful around the edges. A careless thrust may jab under the putty and eventually cause it to fall out.

Beer stains are usually as easy to get rid of as they are to acquire because beer is soluble in water. So, ordinary laundering will work for washable fabrics. Sponging with a cloth dipped in soapy water will clean unwashables. If the stain is old, add a little ammonia to the wash water.

To clean a paramehnt shade, rub it with a fresh piece of white bread or an artgum eraser, or with a cloth dipped in milk. In any case, be sure to brace the inside of the shade with one hand while you rub with the other, or you may poke the rubbing hand right through.

If you'd like to avoid having to strain cranberry sauce, rub berries through a meat grinder before you cook them.

You can "richen" margarine by warming two pounds of it until it's soft and then stirring in one large can of condensed milk.

If a hole in the wall becomes too large to hold the screw, take the screw out, pack the hole with steel wool, and put the screw back in. Or, poke a wooden match into the hole, break it off at the wall surface, and then replace the screw.

IF THEY LEAVE FOR A GOOD TIME

It's our fault. It's because our town does not have recreational incentives to keep our young people here. Let's improve our recreational facilities.

Practice Makes Perfect

WHEN the westbound train stopped for a few minutes in a Nevada town, a traveler from the east got off to exercise by walking on the station platform. He had stopped to talk to an elderly citizen of the town when, presenting a rather striking picture, a shapely young brunette galloped by on a palomino horse.

"Some class to your local gals," said the admiring traveler.

"She ain't a native," was the reply. "She's an easterner heiress that's out here for a second time gettin' a divorce."

"But she rides a horse so well..." "She learned to ride on her first trip out here," the westerner explained. "Now she's learin' to rope. Yes, sir, if she don't lose her finger or her fortune like she keeps imagin' she's losin' her heart, looks like she'll be one of the best dang rodeo performers in the country."

RECKLESS DRIVER

Judge: You're a menace to pedestrians. No more driving for two years.

Defendant: "But, Your Honor, my living depends on it."

Judge: "Quite true, but so does theirs."

A BOOMERANG

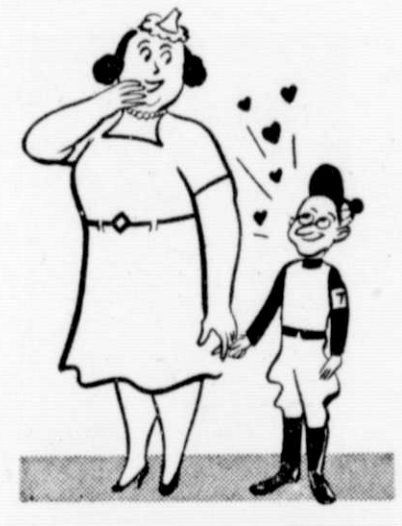

An efficiency expert went in to see the boss about his vacation. He came out with a hang-dog expression on his face.

Asked what was wrong, he replied: "I only got one week. The boss says I'm so efficient I can have as much fun in one week as other people have in two."

Poor Service

After several hours' fishing, Patty suddenly threw her fishing pole into the bottom of the boat and exclaimed, "I quit!" "Why, Patty, what's the matter?" asked her mother. "Well, Mother," she answered, "I just can't seem to get waited on."

A HELPING HAND

The 98-pound jockey married a woman at least twice his weight. After the ceremony, he asked some of the guests to drop over to his flat. The best man looked doubtful. "Thanks, Sammy," he said, "but after all, it's kind of late. Maybe your wife wouldn't approve of company at this hour." The jockey shrugged. "Oh, I don't expect you chaps to stay long," he explained. "All I want is for you to help me carry the bride over the threshold."

Self-Made Man

A politician said to Horace Greeley one day: "I am a self-made man." "That, sir," replied Greeley, "relieves the Almighty of a terrible responsibility."

Boost in Salary

"Why, Mary, you are breaking more crockery than your wages amount to! What can we do about it?" "I don't know, ma'am. Maybe you'd better raise my wages."

Marital Venture

Young Man: "Sir, I wish to marry your daughter and have a large family." Oldster: "If you marry my daughter you'll have a large family—there are eight of us."

Gall Trouble

At three a. m. the doctor's phone rang. A man spoke nervously. "Doctor, this is Bob Jones. I know it's a long drive but please come quickly. My wife has appendicitis." The doctor spoke soothingly. "Think again, man. I took out your wife's appendix less than three years ago. Have you ever heard of anyone having a second appendix?" "Think again, yourself, Doc," Jones barked. "Have you ever heard of anyone having a second wife?"

"PRETEND THE BRAVES HAVE WON 97 GAMES AND THE CUBS 89. HOW MANY GAMES OUT OF 1st PLACE ARE THE CUBS?"

HOW IT STARTED

HAMBURGER — There is no harm in a hamburger for a very good reason. However, to the average American the word hamburger appears to be derived from ham plus burger. A plate of finely ground and cooked meat or other food placed between the halves of a bun.

However, Hamburger (note the capital "H") literally means "of, from, or pertaining to Hamburg, Germany; a native of the city of Hamburg." And Hamburg was not named for ham, the meat. It came from the old German Hamm, "forest," plus Burg, "city."

St. Kilian Centennial

 convent were built in 1899, during the pastorate of the present pastor, Fr. John B. Reichel. The new school has two school rooms, a large chapel with a privileged altar, and a spacious hall in the basement.

Attending Priests
 Pioneer traveling priests who ministered to the spiritual needs of the early settlers included Frs. Charles Schraudenbach, Michael Belter, Caspar Behrl, Francis Spaeth, H. J. Muckerheide, Hubert Jansen and George Strickner.

Fr. P. A. Schumacher became the first resident pastor in 1871. For a few months after the latter Fr. Henry Jacobs maintained the pastorate. He was succeeded in the same year, however, by Fr. John Gratz, who remained until August, 1878. Then followed successively Frs. Pius and Boniface, O. M.C., Philip Vogt, Leonard Blum, John N. Schmidt, Peter J. Burelbach, Ferdinand Falbsoner. The present pastor is Fr. John B. Reichel, who took charge of the parish on Dec. 12, 1920, and has been pastor ever since.

Bishop, Priests Sons of Parish
 The parish has offered three sons to the service of the church, one bishop, the Most Rev. Killian C. Flaseh, who became 2nd bishop of the diocese of La Crosse. His death occurred on Aug. 3, 1891; and two priests, Fr. Conrad Flaseh, who acted as pastor of St. John's, Rubicon, and Fr. Peter K. Flaseh, pastor of St. Catharine's church, Milwaukee.

Ambrose Simon, Frater Romauld, O. F. M. Cap., will be ordained priest a few years hence. Two young men, Carol Straub and James Schmitt, are studying at St. Francis minor seminary, Milwaukee, and at St. Lawrence college, Mount Calvary, respectively.

Religious Vocations

The following are those whom God has called from this parish to the religious life. Ten young women of the parish joined the School Sisters of Notre Dame; Sisters M. Laurentia, M. Petra, M. Kiliana and Brononia Flaseh; M. Theodora Simon; M. John Borchmann Gitter; M. Benno, M. Leandra and M. Judith Flaseh; M. Paul Vincent Straub. Six entered the Convent of St. Agnes; Sisters M. Scholastica and M. Charitas Klug; M. Barbara Laschka; M. Alphonsus, M. Ambrose and M. Angelica Simon. Three became Franciscan sisters, daughters of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and Mary; Sisters M. Angela, M. Conrade and M. Sylvia Flaseh. One, Sister M. Luciana Simon, became a sister of the Most Precious Blood.

Improvements Made
 In anticipation of the 1948 centennial, there have been many improvements. The interior of the church has been redecorated, a gold-plated eucharistic tabernacle safe provided, the sanctuary enlarged, new lighting fixtures, communion rail, standing sanctuary lamp, arched table, lectern, all of solid bronze, installed; a new aedilia furnished, sanctuary floor and aisles covered with asphalt tile, cushion kneelers provided for the pews. The entire outside stone work of the church was painted up. Galvanized cornices of the church tower and the covering of the dome were replaced by copper. The church tower was surmounted by a stainless steel cross 12 feet high. The outside woodwork of church, school and sisters' convent have been newly painted. Many of these improvements were made possible by generous donations of the societies and parishioners. On account of the shortage on labor and material, other improvements planned had to be omitted, at least for the time being.

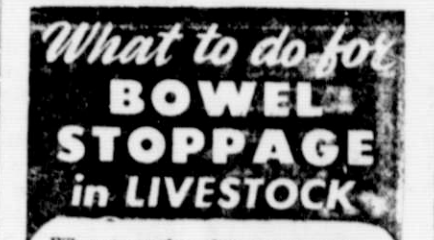

The 100th anniversary mass will be followed by a dinner for the clergy and invited guests. At 8 p. m. there will be a social for the parishioners in the hall, to which former parishioners, with their families, are also welcome.

In grateful remembrance, a solemn requiem high mass will be offered on a following day for the priests, sisters and parishioners who served the parish in the past.

The societies include those of the Holy Name, Married Ladies, St. Rose, Catholic Knights.

The parish trustees are Leo C. Felix and Kilian H. Reindl.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S.-Russia Events Reach Climax; Moscow Parley Continues Uneasily; Soviets Sever Consular Relations

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

Discussion

THE AX WAS THERE

RUSSIANS: Climactic

Virtually every avenue of public thought in the U. S. was teeming with Russians, shadows of Russians and a few Red convertibles.

There was a feeling, however, that the international commotion had reached its climax and was ready to start subsiding.

Nevertheless, events having to do with Russia remained for the time being, at least, reasonably climactic.

Moscow In the Kremlin, where the three western ambassadors were trying to pound out some kind of tentative basis for negotiations with the Soviet Union, the Russians were playing their familiar game of hit-and-run.

U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, British Representative Frank Roberts and French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau had been drugging through a series of meetings with the implacable V. M. Molotov, Soviet foreign minister.

Molotov, as usual, was hard, tough, adamant in his adherence to current Soviet policy on the Berlin and German problems.

But there were some who still could see the ax on the peace table. Somehow, however, the familiar pattern behind these negotiations that went something like this:

After Molotov had subjected his fellow conferees to hour after hour of his case-hardened refusals to come to terms, attempting by those tactics to wear his diplomatic opponents down, the scene was set for Stalin's return.

Stalin came on with his air of geniality and good will, apparently not only willing but eager to reach common ground.

There was the danger, lulled into optimism, the western envoys might be trapped into making concessions that should not be made.

Hit the Road Jacob H. Lomakin, Soviet consul general in New York, had conducted himself improperly and discreditably in the affair of the Russian schoolteacher, Mrs. Oksana

Watch That Credit Prospective home buyers who might plunge beyond their means simply because down payments are lower under the new housing law have been warned by government housing experts to avoid that trap.

Our only worry," one expert said, "is that the lower down payments will encourage people to buy homes they can't afford. When you reduce the down payment, the monthly payments are more."

It was pointed out that before buying a new house the prospective purchaser should pause and seriously consider whether his income will continue at present relatively high levels or if there is a possibility that it might drop sharply with the first economic slump.

"If people will only do that," an official commented, "they may avoid a lot of financial grief later on."

The new GOP housing program overhauled the permanent housing law, commonly known as Title 2, by reducing down-payments.

Kasenkina, the U. S. state department pointed out as it ordered him out of the country.

It was a sensational turn of events. In a note to the Soviet embassy the state department asserted that Lomakin had, in effect, misled his own government with regard to the Kasenkina case so that the protests which the Soviets made to the U. S. were "based on misinformation."

In addition, the note charged that the consul general had "hindered the investigation of the competent police officials by refusing to allow them to interview Mrs. Kasenkina" while she was under control of the Soviet consul.

Then, even as Lomakin was packing his bags and preparing to leave the country, Russia countered sharply by formally severing consular relations with the U. S. and repeating its accusations of bad faith.

That seemed to prove that Lomakin's actions in the Kasenkina affair were not so much the expression of his individual initiative as they were a direct reflection of Kremlin policy.

However, no one was worrying too much about the breaking off of consular relations. The move did not mean that diplomatic relations were severed.

Soviet consular activities in the U. S. were limited to arranging for mutual trade and travel between the two nations. Since there is practically no trade or travel exchange taking place, the presence or absence of a consul wouldn't make too much difference.

To Escape Lying weak and athen-faced in her hospital bed in New York, Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina finally got around to telling the story of why she leaped from the third-story window of the Soviet consulate.

"I jumped to escape, not to kill myself," she said.

She said that her "rescue" from the Tolstoy foundation's Reed farm was not a "rescue but an arrest," engineered by the Russian consul-general.

She did not want to go back to Russia. Although she loves her people, she stated that "I don't agree with the policies of Josef Stalin. I cannot agree with the regime in the Soviet."

VIEWPOINTS: Religious It couldn't be called schismatic: It was thoroughly democratic.

In such a way delegates to the first assembly of the World Council of Churches might have assessed the first two addresses which officially opened the historic sessions in Amsterdam.

John Foster Dulles, U. S. lay leader in many religious activities and internationalist-minded statesman, and Czechoslovakia's Joseph L. Hromadka of the Evangelical Church of Czech Brethren, speaking in a section discussion on "The Church and International Disorder," between them managed to strip much of the camouflage from the growing philosophical and spiritual rift separating the East and West.

Total result of Dulles' and Hromadka's addresses, taken together, was not to presage a religious split between the two blocs of nations but rather to define the problems at the root of current international disorders for those who are courageous enough to attack them with spiritual weapons instead of guns.

DULLES "Peace can never be stabilized except by institutions that seek to reflect moral law and that respect the dignity of the individual. And the present methods of communism are incompatible with peaceful change."

Collective action may at times be required, pursuant to the United Nations charter, to protect member states or individual human beings in their charter rights.

"Those who believe in moral law and human dignity must be concerned to make social institutions reflect those ideals."

HROMADKA "The world is seeing the end of western supremacy within the realm of international order."

"Now, three years after World War II, the western man hasn't yet recovered and is losing more and more the last remnants of his world leadership."

He "hasn't much to offer along the lines of moral, philosophical or spiritual leadership."

OUTPUT: Upshoot Total national output of goods and services, stimulated by inflationary forces which have been growing stronger since early summer, hit a record-breaking rate of 248.2 billion dollars in the second quarter of the fiscal year, the commerce department has reported.

That figure is 4.4 billion dollars above the peak reached in the first three months of this year, according to the department.

Among the inflationary forces listed as responsible for the rise in output were the income tax cut, wage boosts and the announced increase in government spending for European aid and rearmament.

The agency's appraisal of the immediate business situation is in sharp contrast with the caution expressed recently by business and industrial spokesmen. These observations, according to reports from commercial centers throughout the nation, have looked for prices to stabilize and perhaps turn down in the fairly near future.

FUEL OIL: Plentiful

Last winter's serious fuel shortage in homes and industries probably will not be repeated this year, according to present predictions.

The supply of fuel oil is becoming so plentiful that there apparently is no need for an elaborate distribution system to be set up for the purpose of doing it out.

Stored supplies are 60 per cent ahead of last year at this time and crude runs from distilleries are half a million barrels ahead of a year ago. New refining facilities are largely responsible for eradicating the shortage.

Moreover, oil industry officials say, there now is an ample supply of gasoline. Only thing that could put a crimp in that would be a national emergency or a transportation stoppage.

Most of the major cities are well supplied with oil, and while there might be spot shortages in rural communities during the winter they probably would be only of a day or two duration.

"Last winter," said one industry member, "part of the trouble was caused by snow tying up the railroads." That happens and attention is focused on it when there is an oil shortage. It could happen again.

RADAR NET: Inadequate

What with one thing and another, Americans can't help now and then wondering what would happen if this country suddenly were to be attacked from the air.

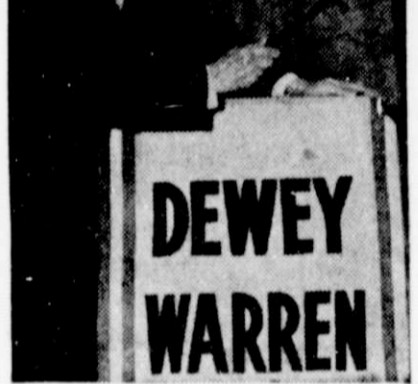

Biggest question in this connection is whether a warning of such an attack would be given in time for the population to evacuate probable centers of attack.

Air force officials say they are doing the best they can with what they have to provide the nation with a radar warning network.

What they have, however, is at best inadequate, they say. The present radar system is not capable of detecting all approaches of foreign planes.

Currently, a committee of leading scientists, headed by Dr. Vannevar Bush, is carrying out a careful study of improvements in radar that could lead to an adequate air warning system.

Political Pounding

Bubbling toothfully with confidence, Herbert Brownell Jr., campaign manager for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, nails up the sign which proclaims that the Washington, D. C., headquarters for the Republican campaign ticket of Dewey and Warren is open for business.

Brownell also has the idea that business will be good.

INSTALLMENTS: Regulated

Just exactly what effect the newly imposed restrictions on credit buying would have on the hog-wild inflation that has been devastating the nation's moral fiber was not quite clear.

Acting under authorization of the 80th congress, the government put the brakes on installment buying and extended the ceiling on its new regulations to $5,000 to control wildcat buying of expensive new automobiles. This new order goes into effect September 20.

From that day forward the law will require that the buyer of a new car pay one-third down in cash and take not more than 18 months to pay off the balance in installments of not less than $70 a month.

Other hard goods—stoves, refrigerators, washing machines and related household articles—call for a 20 per cent down payment with the balance to be liquidated in not more than 18 months.

The order exempts anything costing less than $50 or more than $5,000—a rule which set many Americans to asking caustically what they could find to buy for less than $50 and where they could get the money to purchase anything over $5,000.

Actually, however, the credit curb seemed to amount to little more than putting the government's stamp of legal approval on a practice which has been followed voluntarily by a considerable number of retail merchants.

Many astute businessmen have been following the one-third down payment rule all along, as a protection both to themselves and the prospective buyers.

Upshot of it all was that few people believed the federal regulation would do much to clear the inflationary atmosphere.

Snail Trouble

Three and a half years after the end of the Japanese occupation, the giant snails the enemy brought with them as a food delicacy continue to make dangerous inroads on the Philippine landscape.

With no effective method yet devised to combat them, these denumerable snails devour food crops, vegetable plants and fruit trees and are making a considerable dent in the nation's economy.

Washington Digest Man Is Riding Life Cycle Toward His Destruction

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—Today we have two visitors whom I met recently at the Smithsonian institution, Mrs. Neanderthaler (her husband wasn't available) and Mr. Cro-Magnon.

They have come a long way. The Neanderthalers lived about 25,000 years ago—but what's a few thousand years among friends—or relatives? I doubt that the Neanderthalers are relatives of ours—and I'm not sorry.

They lived early in the Old Stone age, and died without leaving any known heirs, assigns or descendants—which may be just as well for the rest of us who might have inherited some of their characteristics. They were sub-humans—stocky folks—but they couldn't take it. They died out.

Now Mr. Cro-Magnon was a different proposition. He was a superior human and I wish he were a relative because he was really superior to us—better body, better brain. If he'd only lasted, what a career he would have had in Hollywood—and what he might have done for us! He might have saved us.

I've been reading two new books—"Our Plundered Planet," by Fairfield Osborne and "Road to Survival," by William Vogt.

Our friend Neanderthaler probably managed to stick around 200,000 years or so before his environment or his neighbors finished him off.

Today we are rapidly changing our environment, and unless we cease destroying our sources of food and shelter, we shall soon destroy ourselves, as our sub-human friend was destroyed.

We know that there are two things which chiefly distinguish man from the animal: The way he has developed the use of his hands and the way his brain works. But our hands, at the levers of machines, conceived by our brains, have so disturbed the cycle of nature, have done such terrible things to all forms of life, that they may prove our undoing—if they don't blow us into atomic eternity, first!

Forgetting atomic destruction, let's look at some others.

We are very good at reproducing. In three centuries the population of the earth has increased almost five times. In the seventeenth century there were 400 million people. There are 2,000 million today. Five times as many mouths to feed.

Osborne says: "If one takes four billion acres, representing an area of land estimated as now available for cultivation, it means that there are less than two acres per capita. Contrasted with this is a generally accepted computation that two and one-half acres of land of average productivity are required to provide even a minimum adequate diet for each person."

Think of that: It takes two and one-half acres to feed you properly. There are now only two acres available to you.

MR. CRO-MAGNON ... spark of something else ...

He is left disappears in disposal plants or goes back to the ocean.

We are killing the soil. Gradually removing it and the tiny animal and plant cells it contains, and thus destroying the potential for reproducing the tiny living organisms in the top soil which are a part of the relationship of all living things.

I haven't space to go on, but I don't want to leave on a too-depressing note. It's true that our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Neanderthaler, the sub-human folk with the little brain, couldn't take it. But we can hope that his successor, Mr. Cro-Magnon, who had a better brain than we have, passed some of it on to us, with the spark of something else that made him lift his chin a little from the cloud.

"We have been taught to lift ours higher, to the heavens. There's hope up there—and inspiration—and within ourselves the power, too, if we know how to use it."

More Trees On the Way American farmers will have more trees to plant next year than ever before in our history.

State nurseries plan to grow 368,976,551 in 1947-48, according to a national survey just completed by the American Forest Products Industries, Inc., of Washington, D. C.

Most of these trees will be sold to farmers and other landowners at cost, while many will be given to farmers free of charge by forest industries who purchase them from state nurseries.

This forest seedling production, however, will be increased substantially by federal and private industry nurseries over the United States, pushing the total to approximately 400 million seedlings.

Yet these figures, representing the planting of three trees for every man, woman and child in the country, indicate statistically that seedling production still is not enough to fill the demand by woodland owners and other citizens interested in growing trees.

And while they still do not meet the tremendous demand, if all these seedlings were planted 1,000 to an acre they would form a verdant, mile-wide belt stretching from New York to Chicago.

The record in tree planting is matched only by the volume of new wood now growing on America's forest lands. Total growth now exceeds 13.3 billion cubic feet of wood every year—greatest volume ever recorded in surveys made by the federal government.

BARBS ... by Baukhage

Children of superior intelligence are usually superior physically, says Prof. Paul Witte. Nobody could call that a witness observation.

There is now a directory of hotels which offer accommodations to canine tourists. On the theory, we suppose, that every dog should have his day-bed.

World's Largest Library

WHEN you enter the relatively quiet and peaceful atmosphere of the public library in almost any Home Town in the country and glance about at the book-laden shelves, picture, if you can, a library which occupies 36 acres of floor space, has 415 miles of bookshelves loaded down with approximately eight million books and pamphlets, with some 1,700 employees serving the public and the government, and you will have some idea of the Library of Congress in Washington.

Housed in two massive architecturally beautiful buildings just across the street from the national capitol, the Library of Congress, in addition, has approximately 1,700,000 volumes and pieces of music, tens of thousands of microfilm reels and strips, more than 1,500,000 maps, more than 100,000 photographic recordings, about 12,000 motion picture reels and more than 7,900,000 manuscripts, making it the largest library in the world.

This great national institution was started in 1800 when 740 volumes of books were purchased in England at a cost of 475 British pounds. In 1815 the government purchased the private library of Thomas Jefferson, more than doubling the size, making it even then the largest library in the world.

The library serves the supreme court as well as congress, and reaches out all over the country, operating a gigantic inter-library loan system. For instance, if you want a book owned by the Library of Congress and cannot procure it elsewhere, you simply tell your local librarian about it and you can borrow the book. The library publishes a catalog, known as the Union catalog, which contains some 12 million entries covering almost every conceivable subject and identifies the libraries where source material can be found.

Subsidy Battle Looms It appears certain even at this early date that one of the first controversies in the 81st congress, convening in January, will be over the farm subsidy or price support program.

Farmers are caught between possible huge surpluses because of new record crops, and the anger of city folks aware that their tax money in the form of subsidies is keeping food prices up.

In addition, government officials are frankly anxious lest the government may not be able to support prices as provided under present laws if surpluses become so great as to make the billions available for lending and buying for support inadequate to keep the prices from sliding below the parity floor.

Already experts are at work on lower support levels and farm organization leaders are preparing for a showdown fight against any revision downward before 1950.

Newsman covering the spy hearings on Capitol Hill have a name for Elizabeth Bentley, the confessed red spy and star witness for the committee. They call her "Red Amber."

Debatable Budget Cut There is another battle of words on as to how much the 80th congress slashes from the President's budget requests of 42 billion dollars. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce, in a resume of the 80th congress just published, says the cut in appropriations was 2.6 billion dollars.

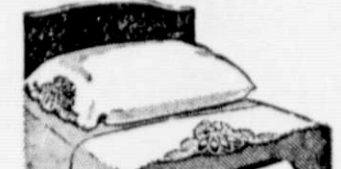

"On the other hand," the chamber says, "congress allowed various departments and agencies more than three billion dollars in CONTRACT AUTHORITY and this sum, which will have to be appropriated later, is almost one billion dollars more than the President requested."

In addition to this, congress took three billion dollars out of the 1948 surplus to pay that much on 1949 expenditures for the European recovery program.

Slap at Cooperatives Just before the special session closed, another attempt at sabotage of farm cooperatives was made when Sen. John J. Williams (Rep., Del.) offered an amendment to a tax revision bill contemplating taxing patronage dividends unless paid in cash within 60 days after close of the taxable year by any cooperative that does a non-member business. Senator Williams said he would reintroduce the amendment at the 81st congress.

Federal Payroll Zooms Speaking of slashing the number of government employees, under laws passed by the 80th congress government agencies can add a net of 54,351 workers within the next several months to bring total number of employees back over the two million mark. Twenty-four agencies are allowed an increase of 78,551 for second quarter of the fiscal year. However, the rest of the agencies must cut staffs by 24,200, making a net gain of 54,351.

By JOHN H. HOSE

THE deafening applause thundered about her, and the cries of "Bravo" rent the air of the staid old Music hall. Even through the din, Marya could remember the first time she had heard Louis play. It was the day she had left her music on the train—a brief case filled with sheet music. Even then she had known that this day would come—the day for which she had waited. But she would wait no longer. She remembered how she had gone to their house after church. It was the first summer she stayed in the city to work at Hull house.

At the social center she had met Eleanor, Louis' sister. They were such a charming family, the Alvanios. Mother and father, first generation immigrants from Italy, and the children were American as only the children of immigrants can rejoice in the land of the free.

As she slipped into her coat to leave Carnegie hall, Marya remembered that other day. She had taken the train to Kedzie avenue, and then followed the long streetcar ride to the south side. They had invited her for dinner, but they had asked her to bring her music so that she might sing for them.

When she arrived, dinner was ready. They had been to church early so that they would have all in readiness for her visit. Albert—Mr. Alvanio—was not home. Albert traveled for a drug company, and frequently had to be on the road. In fact, the only time she could remember having seen Albert was at the concert later. But Carmen and Eleanor and Louis were there. And, of course, Mrs. Albert was there. Talking, talking and chattering all the time, and yet accomplishing all the things necessary on the part of a perfect hostess.

What a jolly, wonderful dinner it had been. They ate spaghetti and artichokes. She especially remembered the artichokes, because it was the first time she had eaten them. They had to show her how to pull out the little spines and slide the soft, pulpy, white meat off between your teeth. And they had served chestnuts for dessert.

Then Adele—that was Mrs. Alvanio—was saying,

"And now, Miss Ames . . . now, you sing for us!"

Marya had sung for them, huge dinner notwithstanding. She sang the songs she was studying—beautiful melodies from the operas of their beloved Italy, songs of religion, love songs . . . all the songs in that brief case. Mrs. Albert had accompanied her and sang with her. They all sang.

Then a group of noisy young people from the settlement house clubs joined them. Carmen played the cello, Eleanor sang, Marya sang again, and they finally coaxed Louis to play the violin. Louis was twenty, just Marya's age, but he was so shy. Louis played for them, resting his round, somewhat boyish face on the chin rest of the instrument. His black, sparkling eyes danced with the music as the inarticulate strings became the medium of magic. His eyes danced like the tarantelle that he played. And all the music of the ages poured from those strings.

Marya sensed that this was the real Louis. Louis with the laughing black eyes and the tight ringlets of raven hair. When Louis stopped playing, the others were noisy again, but Marya sat quietly in the chair, contemplating the magic artistry of Louis. They wanted her to sing some more, but she refused. How could anyone sing when such genius was present.

Louis had come over to her, and sat casually on the arm of the chair.

"Did you like my playing, Miss Ames?" he asked politely.

"You have a great talent, Louis," she replied evenly and quietly, but her heart was racing as rapidly as the tempo of the tune he had just played. The group soon surrounded her, and they joined in the folk dances of far-off lands which they performed with such unlearned fury and excitement.

When she left, Louis volunteered to walk with her to the street car. At the door she paused to thank Adele for the lovely day. Smiling wistfully at Louis, she told his mother, "this young man is a great artist; he must be encouraged."

But Mrs. Alvanio only laughed, and made some remark about Eleanor being the one with the talent. As they walked to the car line, they exchanged but a few brief sentences, but a tacit understanding seemed to have grown between them.

On the way to the subway where she lived, Marya thought about her day—and Louis. She became so engrossed in her thoughts that she left the brief case with the music on the train.

Early that spring, there was a concert at the social center with the women's symphony accompanying the young artists. Naturally, Marya attended the concert. All the Alvanios were there—even Albert, who wasn't selling drugs for once. Eleanor was to sing, and Louis was to play. There were three others on the program, too. Eleanor was the second performer, and she sang beautifully, her lyric soprano floating magically above the muted violins of the orchestra.

During the intermission the people talked and buzzed, and the Alvanios looked toward her and smiled, as though to say,

"See, we told you. Eleanor's the one!"

The orchestra returned and the program continued. Then Louis played, and the angels listened. Louis, with his soft, round chin resting on the violin. From the bay of Naples, where the feeling for song was born, from the hills of Abruzzi where the shepherds sang, the music swelled up to pour from this handsome youth coaxing the tone from the instrument. Marya listened, spellbound. She had thought to herself, "This is only young Louis, but, oh, he is an artist!" She scarcely dared give utterance to the other thought, "And I love him."

The fiddle strings danced as the magic was forced from them by the hands of Louis. The hands of a youth, but they were the hands of a whole people, singing their song down through the years. The audience seemed to like Louis, and the critics said he was a lad "of some promise." But they had missed the magic.

After the concert, Marya began to see Louis more frequently. They would take long walks through the parks on the south side, their hands clasped together. Would Louis never speak to her of love, she wondered. And Louis, never seeming to emerge from his shyness, talked of music, and life, but never those words she longed to hear. Then the war came, and Louis was gone!

Marya joined the Red Cross program and worked in several of the large social centers in New York.

IT TAKES SO LITTLE

IT takes so little to put back the heart
In any one: a loving word of praise,
Uttered sincerely, oftentimes may start
A light like sunshine running through the days.

It takes so little when the heart is sad
To lift it up—some bright encouragement
May reach the sorrowing one and make him glad,
Even when seemingly all hope is spent.

It takes so little, why should we withhold
That precious thing within our power to give?
Love, like a warm garment in the cold,
And sympathy for others while we live?

It takes so little, ah, dear God, I pray,
Help us to give it wisely day by day.

Nutritionist Declares Eggs Are Essential for Children

Young children need at least four or five eggs a week, according to an Extension nutritionist. Older members of the family may eat from three to five eggs a week. If possible, it is well for each family member to have an egg a day.

Here are a few tips for successful egg cookery:

- For tender eggs, use moderate heat. Eggs cooked at too high temperature become tough and leathery.
- For cooking eggs in the shell, the water should simmer—never come to a boil.
- When frying eggs, keep the cooking temperature moderate by using a thick skillet and low heat under the pan.
- Egg-thickened mixtures made on top of the stove, should be set in another pan of water while cooking.
- For baked custards, set the baking dish in a pan of water in a moderate oven.
- Egg whites whip up quicker when they are at room temperature. A pinch of salt added to egg whites just before beating gives foam with greater volume.

Rural Schooling

Although the proportion of all young people attending school has increased considerably during the last five years, farm boys still leave school earlier to help with farm work and so receive less formal education than farm girls or than young people living in the cities.

It was no easy task for the five judges to select the winning samples as all entries were of excellent quality. Farmers eagerly observed the various comments made by the judges. It was only after several hours of careful comparisons that the winning entries were selected.

As an added feature of the day's activities an educational program on small grain growing and soil conservation was presented. Speakers were: George Briggs, extension agronomist, College of Agriculture, and Melvin H. Cohee of the regional soil conservation office, Milwaukee. Local speakers who took part in the program were Phil Baun, Washington county soil conservationist, and E. E. Skalko, county agricultural agent.

THE ALLIS-CHALMERS MODEL G TRACTOR

Rear-Engine Design Introduces Straight-Ahead Vision

Now you can see it . . . a tractor that leaves your forward vision clear. Here is the first major development in tractor design since rubber tires replaced steel wheels.

It's not just another size tractor, but a new idea in farm power — a new system of motorized farm tools. Plants up to 25 acres of corn, sorghums or soybeans per day with 2-row drill plow; handles one 12-inch, front-mounted moldboard plow and 5-foot mower.
Operates on 2 to 3 quarts of fuel per hour. Starter, lights and full size rubber tires are standard equipment.

Come in and look it over.

HERE'S HOW IT IS DIFFERENT

- ★ REAR-MOUNTED ENGINE
- ★ FRONT-MOUNTED IMPLEMENTS
- ★ CLEAR, STRAIGHT-AHEAD VISION
- ★ ATTACH OR DETACH ANY
