National Essay Contest

Students at West Bend and Kewas kum high schools have been invited to participate in the National VFW Auxiliary Essay contest for 1949, local eliminations of which will be sponsored by the auxiliary of Fred A. Schaefer Post 1393, West Bend.

Mrs. Dorothy Lauson, chairman of the contest, announced last week that three prizes of $15, $10 and $5 will awarded in the local eliminations and that the three top essays from this area will be entered in the national competition for which there is a long list of prizes, including a $1,000 grand award.

Subject of the essays, Mrs. Lauzon said, must be "My Part in America's Future." Full details on the rules be obtained from English teachers at both high schools. All entries in the local contest must be in by next March and local winners will be announced early in spring. The national contest winners will be announced at the na

Barber Shop Critic

ONCE when John Barrymore was touring the country in one of his classical, or long-haired, parts a dramatic critic in St. Louis described in minute detail how the actor wore his hair and the way his neck was shaved. He scarcely touched upon Mr. Barrymore's acting.

Later in the week a cub reporter on the same newspaper asked the Great Profile, "Mr. Barrymore, what did you think of our criticism of your play?"

"I'd like to see that critic," John replied. "You know I've played in every important city in the United States, but his is the first time I've had my performance reviewed by a barber!"

Little Oscar, whose family had recently moved into the community, was playing with some of his newfound friends in the backyard of a neighbor.

The neighbor, a genial, friendly sort of woman, looked out of her window and called out to the newcomer, "Hello, there! Isn't this a new face?"

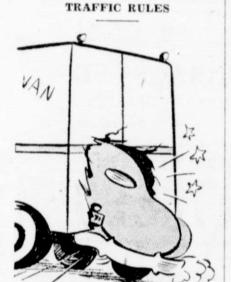

A deep red suffused Oscar's freckles.

"No, it's not new," he patiently explained. "It's just been washed!"

High Awards to Four Wisconsin 4-H'ers

SUPERIOR records of achievement in National 4-H Dairy Produc-tion, Field Crops, Frozen Foods and Soil Conservation programs have won 1948 state championship honors for four Wisconsin club The winners, who were selected by the state club office, and brief outlines of their records follow:

Gordon Whitmore David Alvin Wieckert

10:00 a. m.

An outstanding youthful farmer, Gordon Whitmore, 19, of Wausau, has won State honors in the National 4-H Field Crops awards program. In his seven years of 4-H work, Gordon planted and tended 240 acres of corn and oats and he has learned much about seed bed preparation, use of fertilizers and approved cultivating harvesting methods. This year he exhibited 7 sheaves of oats at the fair, 6 of them winning blue ribbons. He also found time to serve his club as leader, assistant leader and as president. Gordon wrote 9 4-H news stories and gave several talks. In recognition of his achievements, International Harvester Co. provided Gordon with a National 4-H Club Congress trip award. David Alvin Wleckert, 17, of Appleton, was the top State winner whose record was considered for sectional honors in the National 4-H Dairy Production awards program. During 7 years in club work, David completed 18 dairy projects and developed ing, making ditches for irrigatio a herd of Holstein dairy cattle. and planting trees for windbreaks He served his club as president, During seven years in 4-H, Millo secretary, and reporter and he has been a junior leader for three years. As a recognition of his achievements in dairy production, David was awarded a $25.09 U.S. Savings Bond, provided by Kraft Foods Company.

Laurene Anne Milo Henry Sillman Rowley

Learning to freeze foods that make for a tastier, healthier diet, has won State 4-H honors for Laurene Anne Rowley, 17, of Delavan. Laurene learned much about selecting and processing foods for storing in her home or community freezer by taking part in the 1948 National 4-H Frozen Foods program. She prepared and stored 1,550 quarts of fruits, vegetables, and meats. In addition she has planned and served 230 meals and raised 100 ducks. She has completed 25 projects in 7 years of club work. For these 4-H achievements, International Harvester has provided Laurene with a $50.00 U. S. Savings Bond.

Milo Henry Sillman, 19, of Waterloo, has been named State win-ner as a result of his outstanding achievements in the 1948 Na-tional 4-H Soil Conservation program. Milo put into practice such soil saving and building opera-tions as contour farming, terracK

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS-President Hints Controls on Way As Cost of Living Drops Slightly; Western Mutual Aid Pact Prepared

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer-(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

DILEMMA: Sharp-Horned

Perched uncomfortably astride a dilemma having the sharpest horns ever to plague a sitter, President Truman ponders ways and means of getting off. The situation is as clearly defined as it is bothersome.

IN SHORT, the president must work the seemingly impossible miracle of knocking prices down while keeping wages and farm prices up. Mr. Truman is indubitably committed to the former, and it was a great majority of opinion that he could do just that which helped account for his victory. That he will also do the latter is a campaign pledge he must exert every effort to keep.

No less a personage than Henry Ford II has sharpened one of the horns. The industrialist touched off the "fourth round" of wage increases, with consequent highprices maintenance, when he announced a wage hike for all his workers. Then, Mr. Ford delivered himself of the observation that wages generally must go up and that prices must do likewise.

THE PATTERN is clear. Industry raises wages and the cost of its products goes up. Wages must increase if these products are to be purchased. Labor comes in to ask for more money in order to buy these products. And so the circle continues.

Meanwhile, it is obvious that Americans expect the President and congress to do something about getting the cost of living within reasonable bounds-and to do it quick. On the other hand, labor, which backed Mr. Truman at the polls, and farmers, who generally supported him, are expecting action as swift on legislation favorable to them.

As administration leaders sought a course of action to satisfy all groups, congress said little for public consumption. Methods of price control, if any have been conceived, have not been discussed.

ONE THING, however, is clear The situation poses the major test of how effective in solving the problem will be the cooperation of congress and the President.

From Capitol Hill came persistent whispering that Mr. Truman's thumping victory did not necessarily arm him with the equivalent of a magic wand which he might wave over congress to bring about legislation in any form he may desire.

Solution?

IT WAS suspected that 52-year-old George VI was suffering from a disease known to doctors as thrombo-angitis obliterans, more easily referred to as Buerger's disease, an inflamation of the linings of the arteries. There was some speculation, also, to the effect that the king might have diabetes or hardening of the arteries.

It was pointed out that standing and walking for hours at a time, which has been part of the king's job as figurehead of the empire, has aggravated his condition. Part of the treatment will be to cut out this important part of his duties and assign the walking and standing performances among other members of the royal household.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON .- Harry Truman, President, is going to be able to consider one measure which probably will come up in the approaching congress with more objectivity than some of his friends thought would be possible. It offers an answer to the question: what to do with ex-Presidents.

The idea is not entirely altruistic, although the United States in the past has shown rather shabby gratitude in tossing aside, without further concern, the man who has served as the republic's head.

Many, if not most of our former chief executives might provide counsel and advice herculean efforts during and after Fortunately, former President World War I, much study has been William Howard Taft, in the years given to the problem of lessening before he was called back to Uncle the burden of the chief executive. Herbert Hoover has spoken of the 'vast and intolerable labor" of the man who sits in the White House for four years or more. Merriman Smith in his book: "A President Is Many Men," commenting on the "complicated and burdensome" quality of the task, makes this pithy observation: "And his job is one with no future." The "ex" has a value and the problem of finding it can be solved easily by congress without the knowledge of algebra.

"GO TO sleep, Dickie. Tomorrow is Christmas and you're going to have a busy day."

He wondered if he'd be well enough to appreicate his "busy day" and stifled a sob with a heavy sigh for he knew he would be unable to ride the tricycle Santa Claus had promised him. His legs were stiff and painful and they felt as though he would never be able to walk on them again.

His mother brushed soft tendrils of hair from his feverish brow and bent down to kiss him tenderly. "Goodnight, Dickie; pleasant dreams.'

He watched her leave the room, closing the door softly behind her. He lay quietly for some time, then turned to look curicusly at the huge tree across the room. In deference to his illness his bed had been moved into the living room so that he could see the decorations and await Santa Claus' arrival.

The scene of the Nativity had been beautifully reconstructed by his father and its tiny plaster models now caught the boy's attention. A strange sight met his eyes. TREATY:

The significance of Mr. Truman's proposal for anti-inflation legislation was established; it was something to look forward to. But how much real importance should be attached to the almost infinitesimal break in the price line would remain to be seen.

FOR ONE thing, the price dipunless it grew to miraculous proportions-would not cancel out any anti-inflation measures, such as "standby" price control and rationing, which might be imposed.

the President's council of economic | ed the switch. advisors, opined that a lowering of prices, washing out the need for drastic controls, would be "swell." But he didn't predict it would happen.

Another top fiscal official said he believed inflationary forces still had the upper hand. And Chester Bowles, one-time OPA boss, stated that congress "unquestionably" would act against inflation.

The precise nature of the program President Truman will lay before congress in January was not yet known-probably not yet determined. Its general outline probably will be made public when delivers his "State of the Union" message in January.

But there was little doubt that a return to more or less stringent economic controls was in the cards for 1949.

Nevertheless, the treaty itself offers grim proof of the fact that the western democratic nations have seen fit to construct the nucleus of a great regional defensive alliance against Russia and the spread of communism. PEACEABLE:

setting the stage for a world-wide "peace" maneuver as part of their cold war strategy to embarrass the United States and its western allies in the clash over the Berlin situation. How much will this spurious peace offensive mean? Literally nothing, as far as any genuine desire or effort for peace is concerned. The Russians haven't undergone a change of heart; their aims are the same as always.

KEEP DIGGING: No Tax Cut

All hope for an income tax cut in January may as well be ruled of Sen. Walter F. George (D., Ga.) who is returning to chairmanship of the senate finance committee. He rope and additional funds for national defense would bar any reductions. He estimated that ERP would get an additional one or two billion dollars. There would be "no sense" in reenacting the wartime excess profits tax, the senator said, since it would "lead only to destruction of business," If it becomes necessary to increase revenue, he added, he favors an advance in the normal corporation rate.

The senator expressed the belief that while the foreign situation is critical, it "will stop short of a shooting war." He predicted a 15billion-dollar increase in the nationgram would be stepped up.

Although these proposals cannot be formally binding until after approval by the diplomatic convention, officials view them as so extremely important that they are urging all countries to abide by them morally without waiting for formal treaty signing.

In addition to the atomic security zone proposal, other projected war rules would cover treatment of prisoners, prohibit kidnapings and the taking of hostages. Also, the Red Cross wants to outlaw the current Russian practice of living off the Coolidge might or might not have welcomed an opportunity to take on some governmental responsibility after his presidential term expired. As it was, he accepted a lucrative position with an insurance company and continued his private law practice as well until he died.

Most presidents leave the White House poorer than when they went Franklin Roosevelt wrote a $2,000 personal check every month to meet White House expenses, and other recent residents have estimated that they had to go down into the old sock to the tune of $25,000 a year over and above what the government gives them, to meet the cost of living in the executive mansion.

Why Not Provide For Ex-Presidents?

When the pollsters were writing off Harry Truman as merely an "ex," come January 20, the proponents of the idea of providing for former chiefs of the United States were pointing out that Harry Truman does not have the private means that Franklin Roosevelt or Herbert Hoover had.

There was some talk that Mr. Truman might run for representative of his home state as President John Quincy Adams did. Adams served 17 years in the house and, if anything, increased his prestige by doing so. But Mr. Truman's fellow Missourian, Rep. C. Jasper Bell, had another idea in July of 1946 during the last session of the 79th congress.

He proposed that the house and senate enact a bill to provide an annual pension of $50,000 for men who had served as President of the United States. Bell pointed out that trend.

government departments, and even the most humble of federal workers are provided with retirement pay and he couldn't see why the head of the federal government should be discriminated against in this regard. He felt that in the long run, retirement pay for a chief executive would be a step toward better government.

He turned his car into the drive that led to his small, unpretentious home. As he locked the garage he noticed a bright light upstairs in the bedroom. Walter shrugged his shoulders disgustedly. "She's painting again," he said, half out loud. "Why doesn't she have a good hobby, like reading detective stories?" He was an avid reader of such literature himself. Emma had taken up oil painting almost a year ago, much to Walter's contempt. She considered herself quite talented and dozens of hideous pictures were displayed throughout the house. More than half of the bedroom had been converted into her "studie," as Emma fondly called it. Most of the time it was cluttered with half finished paintings, easels, brushes and cans of paint

He made it a point to ask Emma if there was anything around the house that needed repairing. If there was, he fixed it quickly and efficiently. Before he retired for the night he laid out his clothing for the next day, selecting his apparel with unusual care. At the office he worked conscientiously and took pains to turn out more than was expected. His boss soon took notice of this and hinted that Walter could soon look forward to a "nice little

The chilled orange juice was served in a sparkling clean glass. Delicious sausage patties were also on his plate. And that toast! Done to a delicate brown. What sort of magic was this?

> He glanced at Emma, then back at the tastefully prepared food and back to Emma again. Her hair was gracefully arranged. Her face was immaculately clean and just the right amount of make-up brought out the natural beauty that Walter had almost forgotten was there. She was wearing a neat housedress and she appeared decidedly slimmer.

He finished breakfast in silence. He was wide eyed with amazement. Forgotten was his speech, his "heart-to-heart" talk.

After only one cup of coffee, he went hastily upstairs to the bedroom. He must have time to think. What had caused this change in Emma? It must have been gradual. He sat on the edge of the bed and stared at the walls. Something was missing. For an instant he couldn't figure it out. Then he knew. The paintings. They were gone. And there was no trace of the brushes or the easel. Not even a paint can. He couldn't stand it any longer. Down the stairs he raced. Emma was in the kitchen, washing dishes. before I start on this list, I'm going "Emma," he said. She looked up and smiled. "What is it, Walter?"

QUESTION: Our water supply has so much iron in it that the wash looks yellow, especially sheets, pillow slips, towels, etc The water doesn't seem hard, and it is easy to make good suds. Is there any help for the trouble?

ANSWER: Yes, but at a price. You need an iron removal unit in the water supply. For information on this unit, inquire of the Architects Samples exhibit, 101 Park avenue, New York 17, (a noncommercial organiaztion.)

QUESTION: How can I remove rust stains from rubber tile? ANSWER: You may be able to make them less noticeable by rubbing with very fine steel wool moistened with a little water. A cheerful Christmas note is the news that your Christmas budget can be made to perform wonders with little time and effort. in her tone as possible. "For the kind of prices they charge the food should be fit for a king." She turned back to her work with a grimace. Walter stepped over a little closer so he could see what she was painting. He studied it intently for sev-"That's a picture of a rainbow, isn't so that he would have time to shave it?'

"Rainbow!" Emma shrieked. "That just shows how much you know about art." Walter shifted his feet uneasily.

"Well, what is it, if it's not a rainbow?" he cautiously inquired. "It's an abstract painting," said Emma, "though of course you wouldn't understand that. It represents a slice of bacon frying in a pan." Walter looked at the picture again and muttered something under his breath. "What did you say?" asked Emma, suspiciously. "I just said I think I'll go downstairs and read awhile," said Wal-

His wife sniffed contemptuously. "Those silly detective stories!" Walter gave no indication that he heard her last statement. He went downstairs and picked out a magazine from the supply on his desk. With a sigh of contentment he settled down in his comfortable, if old. Morris chair. This is the kind of recreation a person should have, he told himself. It was long past midnight when he finally layed down his reading and went to bed. The great idea came to Walter at breakfast the next morning. He had come down ravenously hungry. Gloomily, Walter looked at his plate. The bacon was only half done. The eggs, however, were fried so hard that they were crisp. The toast, too, was burned and the orange juice had been poured into an unwashed glass that had contained milk the night before.

"There must be some way to get Emma to improve her cooking," he pondered. "And I wish she'd watch her looks more." Emma often lounged around the house with her hair unkempt and her face soiled from household chores. She was also getting stout." He vividly remembered the few occasions when he had dared to criticize Emma's ways of doing things.

Suddenly he knew what he would do. It would take quite a bit of
