The Kewaskum Indians broke even in two Lakes games during the past week. On Saturday night at home they lost a close decision to the league leading Fond du Lac, 57-51, and Wednesday night at Random Lake the boys defeated the Lakers for the second time by a decisive 44-32 margin in the auditorium.

Kewaskum was up against a very good team in Fond du Lac. The Engles looked best of any of the Lakes teams seen this season. They are fast, very shifty and tricky, and sure shots. But the Indians matched them all the way except for a time in the third quarter when Fondy went 13 points ahead with Kewaskum substitutes in the game. The regulars were put back in and all but caught up to a visitor again in the final period. A basket just as the final horn sounded gave Fondy victory by a 6-point margin.

The teams were tied at the quarter, 9-9, and the Engles went into a small halftime lead, 10-17. The third quarter score was 40-34. Augie Bilgo, the Indians' ace this season, notched scoring honors with 13 points. Rashid, Fond du Lac high school star of last year, and a crack shot, paced his team with 16 points, while another guard, Clarke, had 12.

In the team's second win over Random Lake there Wednesday, the 44-32 score was surprising in view of the fact that the Lakers are tough to beat on the auditorium floor. The Indians, playing one of their better games, led throughout the struggle by a pretty safe margin. It was 12-6 at the quarter, 27-17 at halftime, and 39-24 when the third period was completed.

Bilgo again hit the nets to lead all scorers. He collected 15 points on 7 buckets and a charity toss. Guard Orestenhus was best for the losers with 12 points. The Indians sank 11 of 16 free throws. The win kept the "Kums" right on the heels of the leaders.

RIVERS TEAM PLAYS THREE GAMES; WINS 1, LOSES 2

The Kewaskum Boys were busy over the past week in League of Rivers play. They played three games in five days but didn't fare too well, winning one and losing two.

Course in Mother, Baby Care Begins Next Week

Miss Mary Alice Harris, Red Cross home nursing instructor, who had been scheduled to begin a course at West Bend last week, has been released from disaster duty at Warren, Arkansas, and will be here next Monday to open the six lesson course in mother and baby care and family health.

Clara B. Jaehrig, executive secretary of the West Bend chapter, American Red Cross, announced this week that Miss Harris had advised the local headquarters she would arrive soon and will start the course next Monday, offering three separate classes, morning, afternoon and evening. The course covers six lessons and will be taught in a specially prepared room in St. Joseph's hospital at West Bend.

A morning class will meet from 9 to 11; an afternoon class from 1:30 to 3:30; and an evening class from 7:30 to 9:30. About 16 to 20 registrants can be accommodated in each of the three groups.

Mrs. Raymond Haebig, home nursing chairman of the West Bend chapter, said this week that enough registrations have been received to fill two classes and that additional registrations will be accepted up to the opening day of the course. Persons interested in taking the course should call the Red Cross office, 592; Mrs. Haebig, 1455J, or Mrs. George Sampson, 1343. Mrs. Sampson will assist Miss Harris in conducting the course.

Registration for the course is open to all persons 16 years of age or over and is free of charge. There will be a small fee for necessary texts.

Expectant mothers and fathers, grandparents, grandmothers and all others interested in learning the proper way to care for mother and baby and for family health are urged to register for the course. All who complete it will be awarded a certificate by the Red Cross.

Subjects covered in the six two hour classes include "Before the Baby Comes," "Baby's Birth," "New Mother and Baby," "Baby's First Year," "The Growing Child," and "The Family and the Community."

The course is being offered here for the first time, although Miss Harris has taught it in many other midwestern cities. She reports the course has proved to be a very popular one and has been widely praised by persons who have completed it.

Locomotive of Train Derailed at Village Crossing Thursday

Early Morning Accident Here Causes Delay of Three Hours for 30 Passengers

An eight-coach Chicago and North Western railroad passenger train was stranded at a siding when the engine left the tracks at the Main street crossing in this village at 3:30 a. m. Thursday. None of the crew members were injured.

The train, No. 162, enroute to Milwaukee after leaving Fond du Lac at 3 a. m., was pulling out from a siding after waiting for a freight when the engine jumped the tracks. No other cars were derailed, according to road officials. They had not determined what caused the derailment.

It was estimated that at least 30 passengers were on the train at the time of the accident. They had a three hour wait in the unheated coaches while another engine was sent from Milwaukee.

A wrecker was also sent from Milwaukee and had the engine back on the tracks by noon Thursday. During the six hour period following the accident it was necessary for several trains to pass on another siding. The rails were torn up and twisted and new rails had to be laid by railroad section crews following the removal of the locomotive.

The derailment took place at about the time the temperature registered about 15 degrees below zero. When the engine left the tracks the heating supply to the coaches failed. Repair operations were carried out by section crews in sub-zero weather.

Members of the crew were shaken up but unharmed. In the cab when the engine left the track were Walter S. Hopley, Fond du Lac fireman, and Joseph Kiehl, Milwaukee, engineer. Gerald Frisch, Milwaukee, was the train's conductor.

Pies Are Perfect for Dessert!
(See Recipes Below.)

Favorite Pies

PIES ARE ONE of the favorite choices for dessert all over the country. This is really remarkable because all pies, whether served at home or elsewhere, are not always good. They're soggy and pale and their fillings are tasteless.

However, whether you're making your first, twenty-first or your hundred and first pie, there's no reason for it to be anything but the best. Measure ingredients with standard tools, follow directions for mixing carefully, and bake properly, and you will have a pie that meets the test.

It isn't difficult to make a good crust; neither does it require extensive experience. You'll have to have good ingredients, carefully measured and not over-handled, however.

Regular Pastry

(Makes 2 9-inch crusts)
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup lard or shortening
3-4 tablespoons ice water
Cut fat into flour and salt until the mixture resembles coarse meal. It's best to use a blender or two knives so that the heat of the hands does not melt the fat. Add only the amount of water recommended in the recipe. Crust may be chilled before rolling, if desired. Do not use too much flour in rolling crust or the pastry will be tough.

Hot Water Pie Crust

(Makes 1 9-inch pie)
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
Bring water to a boil, add the shortening and stir until smooth. Sift measure and sift the flour. Add salt and baking powder. Combine the mixtures. Stir until smooth. Set away to chill for 12 hours.

Lemon Chiffon Pie

(Makes 1 9-inch pie)
1 tablespoon gelatin
1 cup cold water
4 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Dissolve gelatin in cold water. Mix egg yolks and sugar in top of double boiler; add water. Beat well and cook over hot water until mixture thickens. Add gelatin, salt and rind. Stir until gelatin is dissolved. Fold into this the well-beaten egg whites. Pile into a baked pie shell. Place in a cool place until the filling sets.

Banana Prune Pie

(Makes 1 9-inch pie)
1/2 cup butter or substitute
1/2 cup honey
Juice of 1/2 lemon
Grated rind of 1/2 lemon
2 cups cooked, chopped prunes
4 bananas, sliced
Whipped cream
Blend butter and honey. Add lemon juice and rind, then prunes. Arrange bananas in baked pastry shell, then cover with prune mix-

Civil Service Spotlight

WITH salary increases for government employees, additional safeguards in loyalty tests and with changes contemplated in classifications all on the agenda of the 81st congress, the civil service commission itself and the congressional committees handling legislation affecting the commission become of more than passing importance.
The U. S. civil service commission is the largest personnel organization in the world, and at the present time has under employment for governmental service a little over two million men and women—2,069,690 according to the December report.
This is a drop from approximately three and a half million at the war-time peak, but an increase over the same date of 1947.

The commission itself employs approximately 4,050 persons in its Washington and field offices over the country to handle the extensive job of screening, examining and employing all persons who come under the classification act of 1923 and the Ranspeck act of 1940. In addition, the commission has charge of the loyalty program in the executive departments of government and in the awarding and payment of retirements and annuities to government employees.

Sharp revision of the classification act, probable new legislation prompted by the department of justice on loyalty measures, some new retirement legislation and increased pay for top executives from the President down, are sure to come before the congress after consideration by the house and senate committees.

During the 80th congress, Sen. William Langer of North Dakota was chairman of this senate committee with Congressman Edward Rees of Kansas holding the post in the house. In the new congress, Sen. Olin Johnston of South Carolina likely will take over the committee in the senate with the veteran Tom Murray of Tennessee succeeding to the post in the house.

The civil service commission goes back some 66 years to 1883 in the administration of President Arthur, and its function is to "regulate and improve the civil service of the United States."

The handsome building it occupies in its Doric columns at 7th and F Streets is one of the older government buildings and is connected by tunnel beneath the street to the U. S. tariff commission building across the way. Why, nobody knows. But the tunnel is one of several in Washington evidently constructed in the early days as a means of escape in case of attack by foreign enemies.

For several months there was a vacancy on the three-member board after Arthur S. Fleming, an old-timer on the commission retired. James Mitchell was named only recently by President Truman to fill the vacancy. Other members are Harry B. Mitchell, no relation, and Miss Francis Perkins, former secretary of labor in the Franklin D. Roosevelt cabinet. One of the better known members of the civil service commission in by-gone years was Theodore Roosevelt who served as a member from 1889 to 1895.

Inaugural Excitement

Visitors are already pouring into Washington to take advantage of the gala festivities for inauguration week. More than 50 special trains are expected to bring thousands to the capital, with other thousands coming by automobile, by bus and by air from every state in the Union.

On two special trains from Missouri will come the University of Missouri band and President Truman's old World War I field artillery unit.

The parade is expected to be about seven miles long, consisting of eight divisions. Each division will comprise representatives from six states, divided by a band and headed by a parade marshal with General Omar N. Bradley, chief of staff, as grand marshal. The President's car will follow General Bradley's with the massed flags of the 48 states and four territories following.

The Republican national committee has sent out a plea for advice and funds. Advice on "where was our party effective and where did our party fail—what must we do to strengthen our position and what must we do to correct our errors?"

The plea, signed by Hugh Scott, chairman, and James S. Kemper, treasurer, urges donations to the party, saying, "we are $508,000 short of our fund-raising goal and we have spent $330,000 more than we have taken in."
For the first time in their lives almost 500,000 rural electricity consumers had electric lights on their Christmas trees during the holiday just ended. REA reports that during 1948 approximately 1,000 local power systems financed by REA were given rural light and power.

It may be that this congress, if it follows the recommendations of the Hoover report, will put the post-office department on a "business basis." That means increase in postal rates, particularly in second and third class rates.

HOME OWNERS WHO HAVE CISTERNS WILL FIND THIS SELF-CLEANING STRAINER A SOLUTION TO THE PROBLEM OF KEEPING THE LEAVE CONDUCTOR PIPES FROM CLOGGING. CUT AN OPENING IN ONE SIDE OF THE PIPE JUST BELOW THE TIN BAFFLE PLATE SOLDERED INSIDE. SOLDER SEVERAL STIFF WIRES TO THE OPPOSITE SIDE OF THE PIPE WITH THE FREE ENDS PROJECTING OUT OF THE OPENING AT AN ANGLE. LEAVES AND TRASH WILL SLIDE DOWN THE WIRES AND OUT THE OPENING.

IF YOUR KITCHEN CHIMNEY IS BLOCKED OFF FROM THE WIND BY A HIGHER PART OF THE HOUSE IT IS NECESSARY TO PUT A LONG EXTENSION PIPE ON IT TO PREVENT DRAFTS. A SHEET IRON SHELF SUPPORTED ABOUT TWO INCHES ABOVE THE TOP OF THE CHIMNEY IS JUST AS EFFECTIVE AS AN EXTENSION PIPE IN PREVENTING DRAFTS AND IS NOT SO LIKELY TO BE BLOWN OVER BY HIGH WINDS.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Marriages Can Last

Bell Syndicate-WNU Features
By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"THE TROUBLE with our marriage," writes Merle Emerson of Tacoma, "began after the war ended. Harry went into the navy and had more than three years of service overseas. All that time I lived as so many wives did, writing him letters, devoting myself to the children, hoping for better times.

"When Harry came back, he had the usual welcome, Terry, Babs and Sheila all dressed up to greet Daddy, fried chicken and ice-cream for dinner, welcomes from neighbors and friends.

"While he was away, my father had died, leaving me the care of my mother and the family home. So Harry found us comfortably established in larger quarters than before, finances manageable and everything so arranged that he could take his time re-establishing his previous contacts with eastern manufacturers—he handles cosmetic agencies. A year after his return, our beautiful second son, Donny, was born. It sounds like a happy and prosperous picture, doesn't it? It should be.

"Something Went Wrong
"But our trouble is," the letter goes on, "that something has gone out of our relationship. We simply don't interest each other any more. We've been slow to recognize this, slower to admit it. But there it is. Always polite, considerate and sensible in the matters that concern our home and family, yet our one tie is the children. Love and companionship seem dead."
"Harry spends every late afternoon and most Sundays at the club. I confess to a sense of relief when he telephones that he cannot come home to dinner. Mother and I are but 19 years apart, we are extremely congenial and the care of the house and the children absorbs us.

"We love each other..."

"Of course, Harry's dissatisfaction," Merle's letter goes on, "may stem from a man's jealousy of so complete an arrangement, but even if it does, is it conceivable that I could put my mother out of my home or break all this up simply because a man is unreasonable? I made due allowance for war nerves, but after all, the war has been over for more than three years now.

"What I want," the letter ends, "is for Harry to leave us. Yes, I want a divorce and I think he does, too. Once or twice he has expressed himself definitely and angrily on that point. There is no other woman in his case, no other man in mine. It is simply that we bore-bore bore each other and both feel that boredom is corrosive waste of human emotion and we would be happier expressing ourselves individually. What do you think?"

Merle, what I think wouldn't sound well in a respectable paper. I think I would like to knock your silly heads together. I think that in these terrible times for an intelligent man and woman to survey their lives, to find all that you two find and to yawn and declare yourselves bored is a frightful reflection—not on your minds, not on your souls.

Spiritual Corrosion

Corrosive, you say. Believe me, corrosion is going on, but not where you think. Termites are at work in your very spirit and whether you and Harry can get rid of them is a nice question.

A fine old home, a loving mother, four splendid children, enough money, a faithful old helper—why, what on earth do you two want out of this scrambled and suffering universe?

Very particularly, Merle, I blame you. You've held Harry, truly, in that home of comfort where his small sons and daughters live, but you've made him feel completely unimportant there. You don't tell me that in words, but when a man frequents his club, when he agrees "angrily" that everything is all wrong, he is telling you that you are failing him.

He can't take the lead in the change that will draw him tight into the family councils and the family circle. He can't plan the picnics and parties, the songs, games, meals, jokes that make home a home. But if you and he together turn your eyes away from failure and plan for success, you'll find him cooperative. There is no miracle in the world so wonderful as home, married love, the crowning glory of parenthood. There is no loneliness and frustration so complete as are the "individual" lives of which you speak so lightly.

Travel Cheap These Days

If You Know How to Do It

HUTCHINSON, KAN.—Clifford H. Kerschmer travels — perhaps not comfortably, but what he lacks in comfort he makes up in economy.
An army sergeant stationed at El Paso, Tex., Kerschmer managed to make the 970-mile trip back home to Hutchinson for $2.80, representing 10 gallons of gasoline and a quart of oil.
He did it on a motor scooter, equipped with a home-made trailer.

Investigators Uncover Canadian Baby Swapper

ST. JOHNS, N. B.—A baby buying and selling racket, so vast that its operations extended into the United States, has been uncovered—and at least temporarily put out of business—in the quiet Canadian province of New Brunswick.
It bought babies from unwed mothers at prices ranging from $25 to $100, and peddled them to anyone who could pay from $500 to $1,500 and not ask too many questions.

Hunter Imitates Squirrel, Draws Buckshot From Dad

WOLFSVILLE, MD.—C. Wesley Swope Jr. certainly can do a swell imitation of a squirrel's chatter. He was hunting and trying to lure a squirrel with his imitation. Unknown to him Swope's father was hunting in the same area.
The elder Swope heard the "squirrel" chattering and fired into the bushes. The shotgun pellets hit the son in the neck, chest and abdomen, but not seriously.

Nature's Moods Overcome by 'Manufactured' Weather

TOLEDO, OHIO.—Known in industry as temperature and humidity, weather can affect the quality of dozens of items of everyday use, from candy to coffee and sweaters to shower curtains, but industry has a way to beat Mother Nature's moods.
Production men call it "manufactured" weather.

Without it, the processing of beans in Boston, nylons in New York and gasoline in Galveston, can be thrown off balance by such tricks of the weatherman as excessive dampness, a sudden cold snap or even a hot, dry spell. A case in point, the tobacco industry must minutely control the atmosphere in factories and warehouses and many textiles and plastics can be processed only under ideal temperature and moisture conditions.
Woman, 90, Marries Suitor, 37, Before Capacity Crowd
MOIRA, N. Y.—Mrs. Eliza Murray, believed to be over 90, and 37-year-old Clarence McGee were married before a capacity audience in the Methodist church here.
Both are residents of Brushton, a small northern New York village about two miles from here near the Canadian border.
The bride gave her age as 80 for the marriage license, but her son James, who is 65, said she was "over 90."
The bride has three living sons and daughters. Her first husband, Charlie, died at the age of 90.

LAFF LINES

TURNABOUT

FOUR young men, visiting the Orient before the war, delighted in playing all sorts of pranks on a servant. With no trace of resentment in his attitude, he brought in their coffee, day after day. Finally they decided to play no more tricks on such a good fellow and told him so.

"No more nail shoes to floor?"
"No."
"No more put sand in bed?"
"No."
"Okay! No more put dishwater in coffee."

Ouch!

Contractor: "Darn if I could sleep on that 3-season bed!"
Clerk: "Whadda ya mean—3-season bed?"
Contractor: "No spring."

PULLING HIS LEG

A resourceful missionary fell into the hands of a band of cannibals. "Going to eat me, I take it," said the missionary.

"Yes," replied the chief.

"Don't you do it," advised the missionary, "you wouldn't like me." He took out his pocketknife, sliced a piece from the calf of his leg, and handed it to the chief. "Try it and see for yourself," he urged.

The chief took one bite, grunted and spat.

The missionary remained for 50 years. He had a cork leg.

Surprise!

The lady of the house was entertaining her bridge club when the patterning of tiny feet was heard on the stairs. She raised her hand for silence.

"Hush," she said softly, "the children are going to deliver their goodnight message. It always gives me such a feeling of reverence to hear them—listen!"

There was a moment of silence—then shyly, "Mama, Willie found a bedbug."

SMART FELLOW

Three managers of chicken farms in Russia were being questioned by an investigator. "What do you feed your chickens?" he asked the first.

"Corn."

"You're under arrest! We use corn to feed people!"

The second overheard this conversation, and tried to play safe.

"What do you feed your chickens?" came the question.

"Corn husks."

"Off to the concentration camp with you! We use the husks to make cloth. And you?" he asked, turning, to the third man.

"I give my chickens money and tell them to buy their own food!"

ONE FOR ALL

Three brothers in Aberdeen received news that their father, living in Glasgow, was seriously ill. One of the brothers was sent to visit him, with instructions to wire after his arrival. "And r-remember-r-r, Jock," said the other two brothers, "You can send nine wor-r-ds for a shilling."

Later in the day the following telegram was sent: "Arrived. Father dead. Funeral Friday. Rangers two, Celtic one."

Ratio and Proportion

"Little boy, if your mother gave you a large apple and a small apple and told you to give one to your brother, which one would you give him?"

"You mean my little brother or my big brother?"

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS Truman Proposes Keeping Pledges In State of Nation Congress Talk; Mercy Killing Has Public Support

Washington Digest Marshall Plan Has Halted The Spread of Communism

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—When this country was struggling into early manhood, it was clear to our statesmen that if the tree of western democracy were to flourish and bring forth fruit in its season, it would have to be shielded from foreign interference.

BAUKHAGE The world grew older and smaller. A new, powerful anti-democratic force arose.

Mere announcement of the idea is credited with checking Red revolution in Italy, with blocking the tide of Communist aggression in western Europe.

Now, after only seven months of functioning, I believe that objective observers will admit with Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul Hoffman, a hard-headed businessman, that "it has not only stopped the march of communism, but has turned the tide in the opposite direction."

To convince our people that the game is worth the candle, that whatever the cost, this is the first bloodless war ever fought, that it is cheap insurance against a shooting war.

To Speak Or Not To Speak Before congress convened, Washington was enjoying its usual influx of national conventions, among them two groups concerned with the oral cavity—the dentists and the speech-teachers of the nation.

The next step is to get the learner to understand the meaning of the words he uses and then to translate them into ideas which somebody else can understand—aye!—there's the 'rub'!

I suppose speech teachers also teach that most useful corollary art—the use of words to conceal one's meaning. It is one I practice ardently.

Even though Madame Chiang's appeals for American help fell on deaf ears, she may take some comfort in the fact that she was chosen second among the world's important women in a country-wide poll.

OLD SHOE

By JOHN H. HOSE

Terry was just an old shoe, and when the new assistant pastor came to town Marg found herself dreaming of this utterly different person in serious terms—that is, until Terry proved that old shoes were the most comfortable after all.

THE screen door slammed behind Terry, disturbing the quiet of Sunday afternoon up and down Fourth street. It wasn't the gentle slap with which screen doors are apt to close when released casually. There was a revolver-like bang of one wooden frame forcibly meeting another.

In quick succession followed the whirl of a starter and the clash of rapidly meshing gears.

"Well, He certainly left in a hurry," said Mamie as she removed her apron. "What in heaven's name did you do to him, Marg?"

"Oh, he's just an old sorehead!" replied Marg to her mother's question. "We were talking about something to do for this afternoon, and when I said I wasn't interested in strolling through the woods to observe the beauties of Nature, he got huffy and went tearing out the door. That's all there was to it! What's more, I don't care if he never returns," she added as an after thought.

"But it's so unusual for Terry to act like that," sighed Mamie, as she eased her rather ample self into an unoccupied chair in the Langley living room. "Maybe the dinner didn't agree with him?" Mamie was always concerned with the reaction of others to the perfection of her culinary art.

"He sure ate plenty, if that's what you mean," muttered John Langley from behind his newspaper.

Marg sat on the arm of the davenport, staring vacantly up the street in the wake of the departing automobile. She and Terry Ulrich had been going together for three years, had known each other since high school days. Everyone expected them to be married some day, and until last month, Marg had more or less planned on it herself. But that was before the advent of Tom Prentiss.

"I shouldn't have been so sarcastic with Terry," thought Marg to herself as the family continued to discuss the somewhat abrupt departure of her intended, "but I wish he'd have an original idea just once. I'm so sick of his small town ways and lack of initiative. Her reverly was interrupted by the sryrupy voice of her sister-in-law, Blanche.

"I think I know where the trouble lies," drawled Blanche in her easy flowing, but somewhat aggravating tone. "She's like all the other girls at church ever since that new assistant pastor came. All you ever hear them talk about is Tom Prentiss. Don't tell me you've fallen for him too, Marg?"

"Blanche, dear, you can be so tiresome at times," retorted Marg. "Since you folks are all so concerned with Terry's rude departure, I'll leave the discussion with you. I'm going to take a nap."

This wasn't the first time that Blanche had casually read Marg's thoughts and feelings. Marg threw herself across the bed, after turning down the covers and kicking her shoes off onto the floor. How did Blanche know about Tom Prentiss, though? Was it so very obvious?

The soft breeze of the Indian summer Sunday stirred the ruffled dimity curtains which hung at her window, and Marg thought about Tom Prentiss.

Rev. Brown had introduced Tom to the choir members about five minutes before rehearsal time was the new assistant pastor, and would have charge of all youth work, as well as the musical program of the church. During that first hour of rehearsal, the members of the choir had felt that Tom was a bit overbearing and arrogant. But the sureness with which he guided them through the difficult passages of the anthem for the following Sunday made them realize that this poised young man was really a topnotch musician.

After they had gone into the church sanctuary to practice with the organ, they were more convinced than ever that the new assistant was a youthful genius.

Enthusiasm for Tom Prentiss was contagious. The following Sunday the congregation buzzed after services with talk of the new pastor. Several said the choir had never sung so well, and the young ladies of the congregation were aware of his good looks, too.

John Langley was an elder of the church, so a few Sundays after Prentiss' arrival, John invited him to the humble abode on North Fourth Street to delve into the wonders of Mamie Langley's cookery. And Marg had a chance to observe Tom at close range.

Throughout the meal, he sparkled with brilliant bits of conversation, and fairly captured Mamie's heart by storing away huge quantities of food. After dinner, he had insisted upon coming into the kitchen to help with the dishes. He expressed admiration for Mamie's art, and went with John into the rose garden to express his admiration for John's horticulture.

"What a marvelous personality he has," she thought to herself now, two weeks later. What other man ever came into this house for Sunday dinner and wound up in the kitchen afterward drying dishes? He was so common and nice. Quite a contrast to Terry who, like her father, retreated to the living room to sleep and read after gorging himself to the saturation point. And the wonderful walk they had taken after dinner out along the reservoir path! Tom had told Marg all about himself.

"Terry was nice, too," she thought, "but well... Terry didn't say clever things like Tom. And he wasn't glib. Terry did the right things at the right time, and be sure, but he lacked the dash and charm which the young cleric lent to everything he did. Terry was more handsome, but Terry was definitely old shoe. Comfortable, congenial, good quality, but not exciting.

"Why, sure, I'd love to," replied Marg happily. "Just wait until I get my hat."

She sat up abruptly on the bed, pulling her knees up to her chin, and cocking her head to one side at her image in the mirror. She said aloud to herself,

"Marg, you're being simple about this man. He isn't even known to you."

From the distant confines of the house, the soft notes of the door chime interrupted her rumination. She listened to see if she could identify the voice of the visitor. Hearing muffled manish tones, she decided to investigate. Perhaps Terry had returned.

Patting her soft curls into place, she dabbed a bit of powder on her nose before going down to the living room. She was quite surprised to see that the caller was the much thought-about Mr. Prentiss.

"Why, hello, Marg," he greeted her as she entered the room. "I was just out extending invitations to the choir members for a big steak fry we're planning for Friday evening at the lake. You'll be there, of course?"

"You know you can count on me, Tom," replied Marg, brightening noticeably in the presence of the young minister. "And you'd better add an extra pound of steak, because my appetite's pretty keen in the open air," she added gaily.

"If you're not doing anything important, Marg," continued Tom, "I'd like to have you go along with me to notify the other members."

"Why, sure, I'd love to," replied Marg happily. "Just wait until I get my hat on."

A few minutes later, they left the house in a whirl of excitement. Mamie watched them placidly, and then she remarked to Blanche, "You know, Blanche, I wouldn't be at all surprised if you were right about Marg and that young preacher."

Marg and Tom chatted noisily as they drove from place to place, but if Tom was aware of Marg's feelings for him, he didn't reveal it.

Marg found Terry quite recovered from his anger when she saw him the following Friday at the steak fry. In fact, he greeted her as though nothing had really happened the previous Sunday.

"Hi, Marg," he shouted to her when she arrived with a group of friends. "Come on over and help me build this fire!"

Marg returned his greeting and sauntered to where Terry and several other young men were building the big fire.

"Where is everyone?" she asked. "Most of them are meeting at the church," said Terry. "We came out ahead to get the fire ready. Who brought you?"

"Jane Perkins brought four of the girls out from work," replied Marg. "We didn't even bother to go home; just met Jane at the square."

"Oh," said Terry. "Well, make yourself useful. You can cut those buns in that big box over there on the table."

"O. K.," replied Marg good-naturedly. While she was cutting the buns, Terry came over to patch things up.

"I'm sorry about last Sunday, Marg," he said. "I guess I was a bit rude."

"Oh, forget it, Terry," she said. "I wasn't very nice either." Their conversation was interrupted by the arrival of the others. The noisy group came tumbling out of the cars. Marg didn't notice the lovely, blonde girl with Tom Prentiss in the bustle of the arrival.

But a few minutes later, she was brought face to face with the stranger when Tom introduced them.

"Here's Marg Langley, honey," he said to the young woman at his side. "She's the best alto in the choir. Marg, I want you to meet Louise, my fiancée."

Marg tried to cover her surprised confusion, and she wondered if Louise Collins hadn't seen how surprised she had been when Tom introduced her as his fiancée.

After the group had satiated its appetite on the steaks and other refreshment, they gathered along the shore of the lake to sing the old songs. Marg felt Terry slide into the grass beside her, and wondered if he knew. When they were singing "Love's Old Sweet Song," he gently slid his hand into her own, and a little thrill tingled through her as he whispered:

"Marg, do you know you're really lovely with the moonlight in your hair? How would you like those two bright stars up there for earrings?"

"Why, Terry," Marg answered quietly, "what a beautiful speech. What's got into you?"

"Gee, Marg...," he stammered, "Ever since I can remember I've dreamed about you and me... how lovely you are, but I'm not very good at making speeches... or making love, for that matter... but here tonight by the lake, under the moonlight, the fire and everything... I guess any guy'd want to say something nice to the most wonderful girl in the world, wouldn't he?"

Marg returned the pressure of his hand as she brushed aside the guilty thought that she had doubted her love for Terry. Terry wasn't such a bad stick after all, and maybe she'd ask the Rev. Tom Prentiss to officiate at their wedding in the spring. That would be a nice touch at that!

The voices floated out over the waters of the lake, and Marg turned to look into Terry's earnest eyes.

"Terry," she whispered, "you're so nice—so comfortable!"

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

Released by WNU Features.

By INEZ GERHARD

THAT favorite line of radio masters of ceremonies, "Almost anything can happen, and probably will," certainly applies to the entire industry at the beginning of the new year. Jack Benny, the only star who actually owned his own time, switched from NBC to CBS after 17 years at the old stand, leaving a worried network behind him. With Fred Allen again muttering about retirement and Al Jolson joining in the chorus, with Edgar Bergen bowing off the air—with an eye on television—the whole set-up is changing. Only the daytime serials, with high audience ratings despite the critics' jibes, promise to go on forever.

In case you missed Perry Como's Christmas Eve "Supper Club" show—Perry's eight-year-old son, Ronnie, was to introduce his fellow-choristers from their church to Perry, and join them in singing. But he got stage fright. When Perry asked him to introduce them he wouldn't. Trying to help, Perry asked, "But you know these boys' names, don't you?" said Ronnie, "No!"

Samuel Goldwyn announces that he will make "The Goldwyn Girl," a super-musical, this year. Star alumnae Goldwyn Girls include Betty Grable, Lucille Ball, Paulette Goddard, Virginia Bruce and Jinx Falkenburg.

Lou Bunin's "Alice in Wonderland" is done as the famous story should be screened, with Alice a real girl, and the imaginary characters she meets, puppets. These are special puppets, created by Bunin, a sculptor with extensive experience in movie-making. His puppets representing famous characters were seen in MGM's "Ziegfeld Follies." The film is released by Eagle-Lion.

Olivia DeHavilland seems sure of an Oscar for the year's best performance by an actress. The New York Film Critics gave her their award, as did the National Board of Review, which selected "The Snake Pit" as one of the 10 best pictures. New York's critics chose "The Treasure of Sierra Madre" as the best, though "The Snake Pit" was among the first four.

Ann Blyth thinks it was prophetic. Recently she bought a new home. Previous owners had cut a huge shamrock in the front gate. Immediately after moving in, Ann was signed for the very Irish "Top of the Morning."

The new "Take It or Leave It" procedure means that you're on the air if you are lucky enough to have Garry Moore call you. But you will have a whole week in which to prepare for winning that $640 jackpot.

Cast and crew members of "The Second Mrs. Burton" pays a fine if they're late, fluff lines, etc. Learning that a recent family counselor, Mrs. L. V. Douglas, was principal of a public school which has special classes for handicapped children, they emptied the money box and gave her its contents—$50—to be used for presents for the youngsters.

His best friends won't be surprised if Groucho Marx some day appears on the legitimate stage in a Shakespeare play. Groucho, one of the best ad-libbers of our time, thoroughly enjoys his weekly ABC stint on "You Bet Your Life." But he has been a student of Shakespeare for years and cherishes a secret ambition to appear in one of the Bard's plays—in a straight role.

This year the American Medical association joins NBC for the 17th consecutive season in production of a public service series "Your Health Today" will employ a variety of techniques, including drama and discussion.

Nobody can accuse Meredith Willson of not taking his commercials seriously. He not only talks about his product and has guests sing about it; he has his wife bring a huge bowl of the dessert to be eaten after the broadcast.

ODDS AND ENDS—Because of British rules, Richard Conte will be banded twice for MGM's "Black Jack"; American audiences will see the rope, Britishers will not... Laure Lee Michel, aged 4, lost out to Mary Jane Saunders for "Sorrowful Jones," but won an important role in Hal Wallis' "Bitter Victory" who have just seen the picture. Britishers starred in RKO's "Bamboo Blonde," but he now is receiving many requests for unphotographed pictures from English fans, who have just seen the picture. United Artists' "My Dear Secretary" marks Keenan Wynn's emergence as a full-fledged star.

As Pegler Sees It

By Westbrook Pegler

UNFORTUNATELY, most of the clergy who try to take a voice in union relations permit themselves to be lured into gaseous discussions of economics, and as far away as the haymarket riots and the mournful sweetness of Eugene V. Debs, a durable fraud whose faults have been pointed out by layers of cosmetic propaganda which was allowed to lie because nobody has a special mission to keep the record straight.

That takes work, determination and a stout contempt for the proposition that we must give myth a head start of 10, 20 or 50 years out of respect for death.

On the whole, the reverends have been a nuisance because, like volunteer firemen, they like to act brave and get noticed while the professional signals, who really know, have lacked the moral gumption to tell them to stand back and learn something.

PEGLER

With this ingratiating flourish I salute the Most Rev. Russell J. McVinney, bishop of Providence. R. L. a cleric who has kept in mind the fact that larceny is a truly democratic trait, more often found in poor than rich, because there are more of them, and will concede that cheating practiced by a group of bricklayers entails only an academic impersonal guilt.

Bishop McVinney is a real good man. He may be enveloped in fog but he isn't lost. The fog is in recent weeks, he has gone before the state convention of the A. F. of L. and soon afterward the state convention of the C. I. O., and told them to their teeth, shaming the paltry counterfeiters of the national government and the eager apple-shiners of both parties who have been telling such bums how fine they are and how high their motives. It may be hoped that among the Catholic clergy, at least, the mistaken tolerance of personal cheating as fair conduct in a class war will now be lifted.

I herewith lift some CRITICIZED text from the Brooklyn tablet: "Providence—Most Rev. Russell J. McVinney, bishop of Providence, criticized the slowdown in the building trades yesterday and characterized its perpetrators as drones and racketeers."

And the back of me hand to you, Carmody, with your whine that ooh, your back is hurt—rtd.

"Before 300 delegates to the 11th annual state convention of the Rhode Island CIO, the prelate charged that the man who dogs the job on a hospital, an orphanage, or an old folks' home is 'stealing from the poor, the needy, the sick and the infirm.'"

Yes, and the chair will put in that the dirty thief is stealing also from the decent citizen who has the charity to donate a hundred dollars to the hospital. That is robbing the tambourine and it is done every day all over the country under the sign of the A. F. of L. through the slowdown and featherbedding rules.

"I think that is an unforgivable sin," he declared.

"Rhode Island bricklayers (and Massachusetts and New York bricklayers and union bricklayers all over) are now laying only 400 bricks a day in comparison with 1,500 or 1,000 laid by their predecessors," he said. "Meanwhile, the wage scale has largely increased."

Recently, Bishop GAMBLE McVinney told the A. F. of L. state convention that some of the members had shot a trap while being paid $2.50 an hour while working on church building projects.

"This disreputable condition reflects on all of you, on all labor," he said. "They are discrediting organized labor and organized labor may live to regret it."

"The speaker stressed that on diocesan building projects the slowdown artist wasn't stealing 'from me' but rather from the hard-working people of Rhode Island whose contributions to the church make the construction possible."

The church has a number of projects in view and he would like to feel that when these are started the men will give an honest day's work.

"I maintain that that is wrong; very wrong, that is unjust; that is not being fair. I have knowledge of other faults that are even more gross but I think I will not mention them now. But we do know that on some building jobs we are being fleeced by workmen who do not have a correct conscience."

"He contended that the abuses of the capitalistic system had been in great part corrected.

"I know in my own experience what it is to work in factories. I have done my bit. I once kicked a mule in a jewelry factory.

"I worked in the great Brown and Sharpe Manufacturing company, running a milling machine. And I will not forget the long hours we used to put in in a public market. I worked 16 hours a day and I got 15 cents an hour. They gave us time off for lunch, dinner and supper, a half hour in each instance.

Lespedeza Plantings Urged to Feed Quail in Winter

Shrubby lespedeza plantings on land that might otherwise produce little or nothing can give a great boost to quail hunting for sportsmen and for game that can be kept long as frozen food. The soil conservation service recommends these shrubby lespedezas strongly for soil conservation and to feed quail. They are legumes, and after the first year supply their own nitrogen on infertile soils. For the South, the SCS particularly recomends lespedeza bicolor; farther north other harder lespedezas will do better.

Lespedeza seed is about all that quail need to carry them through the season of short feed in the winter. Most other birds do not relish the seed and leave most of it for the quail. The SCS suggests planting it in fence rows on the land that is not plowed, in thin spots and clearings in woodland, or at the edges of woodlots. It will yield far more quail feed than the weeds it will displace. A strip with an area of an eighth of an acre will supply a covey of quail and hold them through the winter. Eight strips of this size are better than a patch of an acre. As a hedge along a cultivated field the bicolor lespedeza has a season of beautiful bloom in summer, and bears find it a good source of honey. A fence row around a pasture will not feed quail because horses and cattle like it and will browse on it.
