Lakes 5 Tips Belles for Third Win in Row

The Kewaskum entry in the Land of Lakes circuit made it three victories in a row and took over the top spot in the loop with a 59-33 win over Campbellport on the home court Sunday night. Preceding this contest, the local Land of Rivers five won their first league tilt in two starts when they dumped Slinger, 41-29.

Again the Chevrolts did not hit their stride until the second half. They led throughout the first half as a result of the sharpshooting of John Tassar, who swished in 13 points, and his brother Wayland with eight. But the scoring of Koenigs and Burns kept the Belles on their heels. The half ended 26-20 with Kewaskum on top. In the second half all of the boys started connecting and poured them in to build up a safe lead. The third period ended with the Chev ahead 46-28 and the team increased the margin in the final quarter.

Although he sat out part of the game John Tassar walked off again as leading scorer with 15 points. Wayland gave his younger brother a good run with 12 points. Koenigs was the offensive ace for the Belles with nine points, all scored in the first half.

The Rivers victory over Slinger here Sunday was tightly played. The team won 44-39 after trailing at halftime 21-23. The two opposing centers were best scorers. John Koug of last year's high school team netted 11 for the winners and Center Kratz made 10 for Slinger. Two others up from the school team, Lloyd Keller and Bob Dreher, collected eight points each. During the service the Circuit "I" choir of 25 voices sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love." The church altars were decorated with white flowers and candleabra for the impressive rite.

For her marriage, the bride chose a gown of white marquisette with inserted lace, with which she wore a fingertip veil. She carried a prayer book with a white orchid and stephanotis. The bride's sister, Mrs. Victor Panner, was her matron of honor, while another sister, Miss Lois Zanow, Mrs. Robert Priebe of Chicago, Ill., and Betty Ebersold, sister of the groom, were the bridal aides. All attendants were dressed alike and carried identical flowers. The flower girl was attired in a white taffeta frock and carried white carnations.

Robert Priebe, a friend, was the groom's best man, and Victor Panner, Daniel Zanow and George Priebe attended as groomsmen.

A reception was held from 3 to 6 p. m. and supper served to 250 guests in St. John's parish hall. Following a wedding trip through the South, the newlyweds will be at home after Dec. 12 in the former Mrs. A. A. Pensch-lacher home in Kewaskum.

It would be impossible to begin mentioning names of individuals lest we slight someone but we would like to thank especially the Roland and Edward Koepke and Ervin Krahn families for the shelter given us, the men who so ably assisted in the building of our new home, dug our potatoes and did our fall plowing. WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Unified Transport Board Proposed; U. S. Prestige Suffering in China; Federal Tax, Debt Slash Demanded

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

TRUMAN GETS FIRST CHRISTMAS SEALS . . . President Truman accepts the first sheet of 1949 Christmas seals from Dr. James E. Perkins, managing director of the National Tuberculosis Association. The seal campaign was to run from November 21 to December 25 to help raise funds for the campaign to eradicate tuberculosis which kills nearly 50,000 Americans each year.

TRANSPORT: Policy Board Asked

A move to establish a central policy board to integrate and supervise United States programs covering air, water, rails and highways was to be urged upon President Truman. Charles Sawyer, commerce secretary, was the cabinet member who would broach the matter to the President.

According to proponents of the move, it would save the taxpayers a big part of the 1.5 billion dollars now being spent by the individual agencies having to do with various forms of transportation.

THE REPORT on the matter, which is to go to the President, may call for studies as to whether the government should impose "user charges" on the air and trucking lines, shipping firms and railroads which benefit from federal outlays on highways, airports, harbor work and other facilities.

It was said the commerce secretary's report was now in the rough-draft stage after talks with all agencies concerned.

According to supporters of the move, it was designed only to effect an efficient national transportation system, with high emphasis on military usefulness—at lowest possible costs in federal outlays.

HOWEVER, most Americans and certainly the transportation companies would see quite a great deal more in the proposal, especially in the mention of a "users' charge" plan.

To tax the transportation agencies for use of highways, air or sea lanes, would mean nothing more than increased cost to patrons of these agencies, which would mean added tax, but under another name. With railroads already granted passenger fare rates over large sections of the country, with air lines screaming for subsidies and with the merchant marine requiring subsidy if it is to remain in action, the "users' charge" proposal was certain to meet with monumental opposition.

The people, at long last, were becoming aware of the growing hypocrisy in federal promises of better service and cheaper costs, by adding to the price of that commodity or service vital to the people.

THE BARKLEYS: "I Do's" Are Said

The "I do's" were said, quips were traded at the reception, the shouting already started, and Vice-President Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky and Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley, of St. Louis, were joined in holy wedlock.

It was a May and December romance that had caught the fancy of all America. Mr. Barkley's wooing activities were as much a part of the nation's front-page news as were arguments over what Russia was doing with the atomic bomb—if she had one.

Everybody wished the Barkleys well. Everyone agreed that the "Veep," as he prefers to call himself, was quite a better man physically at 71 than is the average male. His stamina and good health under the gruelling pressure of a presidential campaign and as a senate leader, eloquently attested that fact. His continual good humor, his courtly air, his genuine "gentlemanliness," all counted high in his favor in any prediction as to how this marriage would fare.

PENSION COSTS UP

Social Security Taxes to Be Hiked Jan. 1

Beginning January 1, 1950, some 39 million workers and 2.75 million employers would be dipping into earnings to pay Uncle Sam 667 million dollars more annually in the cost of social security.

On that date, worker contributions would be one and one-half cents on each dollar earned, while employers would pay a similar per cent on total payroll.

BOVINES: False Molars

The collective faces of the British food ministry members must have turned a vivid shade of pink when the news got out—Douglas Clay, 26 year-old cattle dealer, has sold the ministry nine cows, and all with false teeth.

That's what the ministers charged Clay with, and added that he had replaced the cow's teeth with heifer teeth because heifers bring a higher price. Clay denied the dental work.

Shah Urges Peace

A second distinguished visitor from the East in almost as many weeks had urged the United Nations to bring about peace—particularly for the smaller, weaker nations. A peace, he suggested, that would permit these nations to build toward social justice and prosperity.

This second petitioner was Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran, visiting young monarch, whose nation has had nervous relations with its Gargantuan neighbor, Soviet Russia. The Shah, a personable potentate who became popular with all the throngs who had seen him, was in the U. S. for a week's state visit.

U. S. PRESTIGE: Suffers in China

The prestige of the United States was suffering in China and wasn't gaining any ground elsewhere as a result of the fence-sitting policy on what to do about U. S. consul general Angus Ward, a prisoner of the Chinese Communists. Ward and four consular attaches were being held incommunicado in Mukden when they beat up a Chinese workman in the consulate some weeks ago.

NO ONE wanted war and there was no intention of jingoism in charges of U. S. indifference to Ward's plight and its own prestige that were being hurled generally. It just looked bad for the most powerful nation in the world—already up to the shoulders in a pressure war with Russia—to let Russian-dominated Chinese hold a top consular official.

As even a schoolboy knows, "face," or prestige, is a great thing in the oriental mind, and if the U. S. planned ever to do anything about recovering China from the Communists, a sustained hands-off policy in the Ward incident wouldn't aid the effort.

TAXATION: Cut Demanded

One figure in government, another important figure once in, now out, joined coincidentally enough in a demand for a cut in federal spending and taxation.

THE GOVERNMENT FIGURE, Virginia's Democratic Sen. Harry Byrd, declared in Washington that federal spending could be cut as much as 10 billion dollars without impairing government functions.

In Biloxi, Miss., James F. Byrnes, former U. S. senator and one-time secretary of state, sharply criticized administration spending and called for a cut in federal taxes and public debt.

BYRD INSISTED that the spending slash he urged could be brought about by eliminating recent increases in "more than 30 budget items;" a two billion dollar cut in "nonessential and defensible spending through 'prompt and effective' unification of the armed services."

Byrnes declared the nation's "real trouble is debt and taxes. We cannot cure it by more debt and more taxes. We should devote to cutting expenditures some of the thought we are devoting to taxing and borrowing."

These views would endear neither gentleman to President Truman who is always less polite to critics of his spending policies.

CHINA: A New Try?

The situation in China appeared to be thoroughly static, although minor maneuvers would confuse the casual observer. Chinese Reds seemed easily in the saddle and likely to remain there barring some militant action from the West—a wholly improbable occurrence.

THE UNITED STATES and the United Nations had asked 30 countries to join in a demand on Chinese Communists that U. S. Consul Angus Ward be freed, and those nations agreed. But there was little said about what would be done if the Reds declined to free the U. S. consular official.

In another move, the ailing Li Tsung-jen, acting president of the practically defunct Nationalist regime since Chiang Kai-shek "retired" some months ago, might attempt to form a third Chinese government, independent of both the Reds and Chiang. Informed quarters in Hong Kong speculated to some extent on the possibility of such a maneuver.

FOREIGN OBSERVERS arriving in Hong Kong argued that it was fair speculation that Li might attempt to form an anti-Communist, anti-Chiang organization and go to the United States to seek substantial material aid. According to these sources, Li was expected to go to Washington soon to bolster the aid pleas of his personal contact man, Kan Chieh-hou, who has been there several months.

But wouldn't Li be whistling up a drain pipe in any effort to involve American cash in a China venture which for all practical purposes has been written off the books?

If Chiang, with the Nationalist government behind him and supported by extensive U. S. funds and arms, couldn't stem the Red tide, how could Li believe he could convince the U. S. that he could do so, especially since he'd have to split Chiang's forces and followers to get any followers of his own?

EISLER: Better Stay Put

Gerhart Eisler, the balding, chunky little Communist who fled the U. S. aboard the Polish-owned ship Batory while on bail on a contempt-of-congress charge, had better stay put in the Russian zone of Germany.

THE UNITED STATES supreme court emphasized that advice when it rejected Eisler's appeal, a ruling which meant Eisler faced a $1,000 fine and possible imprisonment if he returned to America. Eisler had attracted widespread notoriety because of reports that he was the Number One Communist in America.

While on bail, Eisler left America by stowing away on the Batory. He went first to England, which refused to hold him for U. S. action, and then to Russian-held Germany. Recently he was named chief of the newly-formed Soviet zone information ministry.

THE CASE against Eisler arose when he refused to be sworn as a witness before the house-un-American activities committee.

PANAMA: No Blood

It wasn't at all like the comic opera impression of Panama a republic revolutions with all the shooting and the fury. In fact there was no shooting, no blood. However, everything had been planned for the real ingredients of a revolt, but last-minute intervention by the diplomatic corps, including U. S. Ambassador Monnett D. Davis, prevented any violence.

INSTEAD, Police Chief Col. Jose Remon took the stage as Panama's "strong man" and forced the resignation of President Daniel Chanas, the surgeon-politician who had held office only four months.

Vice-President Roberto F. Chirari was sworn in after a night of feverish activity involving plans for a threatened police attack on the presidential palace.

Fighter

Dr. Fingtu Tsiang, China's representative on the United Nations, has served notice he will fight any effort by the Chinese Communist government to oust him from his post.

IRISH: Ready to Fight

The Irish, according to a prominent spokesman, were ready to fight if necessary to regain the six British-controlled counties of Northern Ireland.

The spokesman was Gen. Thomas Barry, a retired Irish army officer who was in the U. S. to speak at an anti-partition rally of the United Irish Societies of Western Pennsylvania. The general was a hero of the Irish rebellion.

Many Irishmen have protested the partitioning of the country in which the British sliced off the counties of Armagh, Down, Antrim, Fermanagh, Derry and Tyrone.

The general said the Irish government had set aside 100 million dollars to buy guns and said the nation has all the money it needs. Conceding that the air force and navy are "weak," he declared that Ireland "has the manpower—where it counts."

Even so, few people took the threat of actual fighting very seriously.

"OPERATION BOOTSTRAP"

Faced with economic difficulties five years ago, Uncle Sam's "Little Nephew," Puerto Rico, has followed a master plan of economic recovery that has brought 50 new industries to the island. It is one of the most spectacular achievements of its kind in post-war history. Photo above shows new Las Casas housing development. These five-to-seven-room modern apartments rent for from $2.50 to $14 a month—almost unbelievable figures to rent-dizzy Americans.

weekly Picture story

Sugar is one of Puerto Rico's traditional staple products. The little island ships nearly a million tons of raw sugar to U. S. refineries each year. In photo above, truckloads of sugar cane roll to the centrales for grinding—a caravan of sweetness for Puerto Rico's economy.

Not all of Puerto Rico's new industries are large. This girl (above) works in a small weaving shop which creates its own original designs especially adapted to the American market. Photo at left shows a limestone quarry near San Juan, where drillers produce materials for cement—a major product in the current home and factory construction program.

At right is a six-million-dollar investment in Puerto Rico's future. Workers put finishing touches to the Caribe Hilton hotel which opens December 9. The hotel is a large-scale bid for a 15-million-dollar annual tourist industry.

Symbolizing Puerto Rico's hard working population, here is a typical salt worker (left) at Cabo Rojo, where sea water is dehydrated under tropical sun to produce a valuable crop of salt.

Myriad of Customs Add to Season's Joy

Christmas in the United States is composed of threads from many countries and reflects their customs in church and home.

Although many of the old picturesque English customs have faded, they still contribute to the modern holiday through Christmas pageants, the designs on Christmas cards and the narratives in ballads and carols describing the festivities of the old days.

Children in the Netherlands leave their wooden shoes, filled with hay for St. Nicholas' white horse. In the Netherlands and Belgium, December 6 is the children's holiday, with December 25 reserved for the religious holiday.

Santa Claus, Indiana, is a hamlet of a score of frame buildings and not so many people, but it is national headquarters for one type of holiday observance.

PLEASE, SANTA? ... S. Claus appears lost in thought as he ponders gravely the possibly difficult request of the little girl who looks as though she realizes she has put the bee on Santa and isn't quite sure whether he'll come through.

Norway 'Nisse' Similar To American Santa Claus

In Norway, the yule "nisse"—their version of Santa Claus—is dressed in grey homespun with red cap, red mittens and stockings, and wooden shoes. He has a long, white beard and is old, almost, as time; much older than Christianity.

On Tuesday, Dec. 6, the Indians traveled to Slinger to meet their team in a non-conference tilt. Again, it was Kewaskum's game all the way, but in the second half our boys became a little carefree and scored only 5 tallies to 14 of Slingers. The game ended in a win for Kewaskum, 33-25. Krueger and Justman shared high scoring honors, each scoring 9 points. Wierman dropped in 6 points, Falk 4, Jenke 3, and Hamthun 2.
Friday night the Indians met a strong Oakfield team at Oakfield. The game was important to Coach Mitchell and his team because Oakfield is believed to be one of the strongest teams in the Fox Tri-County league.

BROADWAY AND MAIN STREET

Real Roses in the Cheeks— You Call That a Handicap?

By BILLY ROSE

When Eleanor and I first moved up to Mt. Kisco, some of our neighbors dropped by to pay their respects, but I didn't encourage these visits.

But a little down the road from us live a couple I cultivate as often as they'll have me. Their names are Fred and Jane Newell. I met them through Eleanor two years ago, and I'll never forget the first night we had dinner at their house.

Jane answered the doorbell. She was pretty all over, and I liked her right away. "Excuse the peasant skirt," she said. "I have a baby penciled in for the fall."

Fred was in the living room listening to the radio. He had the tweedy look of the good guy in the women's magazine stories.

We talked for a couple of minutes before I realized he was blind. He told me he was a writer, and answered my unspoken question by explaining he dictated his stuff to his wife.

It was a fine dinner and a fine evening. Jane carried her child as if baby-having were some kind of party. Around eleven o'clock, Fred said to Jane, "Maybe the Roses would like ice cream."

"Maybe they would," said Jane, "but we haven't any. I'll drive down to the village and get some."

"I'll go with you," I said, "just to make sure you don't forget chocolate."

ON THE WAY to the ice-cream parlor I said, "Tell me something. What makes you kids act as if you had a gold mine in the cellar?"

The Fiction Corner

LIKE A FOX

By Richard H. Wilkinson

IT IS ELECTION TIME in our town of Dexter. Al Slater is determined to be elected state representative from the 31st Belknap district.

3-Minute Fiction

had the vote leveled up. But Tyler, who is one of the shrewdest politicians a man would want to meet, always contrived to pull a fast one, two or three days before voting day, and succeeded in swinging the vote his way.

"Folks think I'm dumb," Al confided to his wife. "It's got to be a joke, me running for office against Jenkins."

Al began his campaign 10 months before election. He knew that folks in Dexter were eager to have the contemplated new state highway run through town, instead of swinging off to the northward toward Bartlett.

And so Al went to the capitol, looked up the highway commissioner, whose name was Higgins, and talked the thing over. At first Higgins was obstinate. The highway, he told Al, was scheduled to run through Bartlett.

Well, Al didn't get discouraged. He called on Mr. Higgins a month later and talked things over again. This time he took Mr. Higgins to lunch and bought tickets for the theater afterward. Higgins began to weaken. Al talked himself blue in the face, and finally went away with a promise that Mr. Higgins would think the matter over.

"Folks think I'm dumb," Al confided to his wife. "It's got to be a joke, me running against Jenks."

Al was mighty satisfied with himself. A month before election a story came out in the papers that, through the efforts of Albert T. Slater, the new state highway would run through Dexter.

AL RECEIVED a lot of credit for his work, and a lot of promises of votes.

Man Travels Million Miles

FRANKFORT, N. Y. — Joseph Camarata has traveled 1,160,000 miles during the past 18 years in commuting between his job in Indiana and his home here.

However, he's retired now after 32 years with the New York Central railroad. He started "commuting" in 1931 when the railroad moved its Frankfort foundry, near Utopia, to Elkhart, Ind., a distance of 620 miles. Camarata made the round trip weekly.

Jane smiled. "I don't know. I guess we've been pretty lucky."

"Lucky?" I said, and then stopped, embarrassed.

"It's all right," said Jane. "Of course, it would be nicer if Fred could see, but neither of us thinks that's very important."

"How'd it happen?"

"War stuff," said Jane. "Fragments of a land mine on Okinawa. We weren't married then. Fred was moved to a hospital in San Francisco. The first letters he sent me weren't in his own handwriting. He explained that he was dictating to a nurse because he'd been wounded in the right hand."

"At the time, he still had some hope that a special operation might restore his sight. He didn't want to tell me about his eyes until he knew for sure."

"WELL, THE OPERATION was a complete miss-out. When Fred knew he'd never see again, the darn fool wrote me that I was free to marry anybody I liked. Of course, I hopped a plane to San Francisco and got my fella."

"Atta girl!" I said. "Now tell me to shut my face if I'm out of line, but doesn't it ever bother you—I mean, making this sacrifice?"

"Sacrifice, my foot," said Jane softly. "Look at it this way. I'm two years away from 30. In 10 years, I'll be two away from 40. When Fred went off to war, I was 23. Real roses in cheeks. Probably the best I ever looked in my life."

"From here in, no matter what happens to me—wrinkles, dry skin, gray hairs, babies—Fred will always see me as the fresh-faced kid he kissed goodbye at Penn station the announcement that the road would definitely be put through. The words were a direct quotation from Commissioner Higgins, whose picture appeared on the front page alongside a picture of Al Slater. It was through Al's efforts, the article read, that the course of the road would pass through Dexter.

Dexter was jubilant. At the polls on the day following, Al was unanimously elected to fill the expired term of Tyler Jenkins.

"Dumb, am I?" Al said to his wife after it was over. "Well, this is one Tyler pulled his fast one too early in the game. He thought the psychological moment was two weeks ago, instead of yesterday. I wonder," he went on, "what Tyler would say if he knew I started that rumor about abandoning the road idea. I wonder if the folks would say I was dumb if they knew I just did it so's I could make it appear like I persuaded the state to change its mind on the day before election. Dumb, am I? Dumb—like a fox."

Thorns

SHARP were the thorns on my Saviour's brow, Forked and crimson-stained, And till the last sharp breath was drawn, They remained.

Out of great suffering one cried Thrice to be rid of a thorn, But from that long unanswered prayer, Strength was born.

Who am I to be bitter now Over a bitter thing: I who am neither evangelist, Nor a king?

Let it depart from me, O God, Lighten my path, my days, But may Thy grace, Thy Strength be mine, If it stays.

GRACE NOLL CROWELL

in '42. For the guy I'm crazy about, I'll be 23 the rest of my life. Is that bad?"

"No," I said. "That isn't bad at all."

Star Dust

HEDY LAMARR has never been more beautiful and seductive than in Cecil B. DeMille's "Samson and Delilah", with magnificent costumes designed by Edith Head largely responsible. A good deal of credit should be given, too, to the sets and to the excellent color effects. In fact, this is a picture in which art directors, photographers and others who never appear are among the stars. The scenes actually photographed in the Holy Land, Algiers and Morocco are beautiful and memorable.

Film star Van Johnson and band leader Elliot Lawrence are dead ringers for each other. Their resemblance is so remarkable that sometime's it's difficult for them to convince autograph seekers they're not each other.

Dan Seymour never visits Hollywood, doesn't have to see movie stars; he sees as many in a year as a headwaiter at Ciro's. During the past 12 months, on "We the People", Dan has interviewed such celebrities as Sir Cedric Belfrage, Gladys, Dick Haymes, Kim Douglas, Janet Blair, John Payne, Marie Wilson, Linda Christian, Tyrone Power, among others.

Jane Wyatt was puzzled when crowds of visitors arrived at the Samuel Goldwyn studio to see her work in "Our Very Own". She discovered that her 12-year-old son, Christopher, was responsible. He had been promising a trip to see his famous mother with every new subscription to a local paper he delivers. Ann Blyth, Farley Granger and Joan Evans co-star.

The power of radio has never been better demonstrated than in the success of the fund raising project to aid the fight against polio which is being conducted on Horace Heidt's "Youth Opportunity" and Ralph Edwards' "This Is Your Life" shows. Helen Hayes' appearance as one of the guest speakers on the former was touching, since her daughter died of polio.

No matter how he switched plane and train schedules, Don Ameche couldn't figure a way to get his whole family together for Christmas. So he will have an early celebration with his two boys in school in Iowa, then spend Christmas Day in New York with his wife, who accompanied him East for the Manhattan broadcasts of the Jimmie Durante show.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Ruth Roman's ("Always Leave Them Laughing") appearance as guest star at the Boston Settlement House next spring will take her back where she started; she made her dramatic debut there, at the age of nine . . . Bob Hope will launch the Arthritis Foundation's fund-raising campaign, The Hope Chest, with a show tentatively set for December 17, in either Victoria or Vancouver, B. C.—according to present plans . . . Irene Ryan can be seen in "Old Fashioned Girl."

VOCAL DOLLY . . . Mommy's Baby, a new baby doll, will bring doll mothers wonderful new thrills this Christmas with a plastic voice box designed like a human larynx. It separates the syllables "ma ma" in a natural sounding infant voice when the body or legs are cuddled gently.

NATIVE Decorations Are Best

Your own native woods or planted evergreens may be a convenient and delightful source of Christmas decorations. For attractive wreaths, fir is satisfactory because it does not shed its needles. White pine is more graceful than other pines, if this type of evergreen is to be used.

Blue spruce is best for outdoor use because it sheds very quickly indoors. Arborvitae generally makes a nice flat spray. English holly is always festive. To add color to the decorations, small Jonathan apples, tangerines, kumquats and cranberries may be used effectively. Wahoo, barberry, gourds, coral berry fruit, rose holly, buckbrush and sumac also give color to arrangements.

As a formula for treating pine cones so they'll give off lovely colored flames in the fireplace, try crude copper sulphate and copper chloride in powder form, which may be purchased from a druggist. Two ounces of these and a half-pound of wax will treat a bushel of the cones. Paraffin wax may be used.

Melt the wax over low heat in a glass or non-metallic container. Put the container in a larger pan of hot water near the boiling point. Stir the sulphate and chloride into the melted wax. Spread the cones on newspapers out in the yard or in a large flat container lined with newspapers inside. Use an old whisk broom to sprinkle the mixture on the cones. When about half the mixture has been used, turn the cones over and do the other side.

No 'New Look' For S. Claus

There'll be no "new look"—nor any alterations at all in the traditional garb of Santa Claus.

Enthroned in popular conception in his red jacket with the white fur trim, his red cap and red breeches, Santa Claus was just as firmly enthroned in the department stores, toy shops and everywhere else one has seen him this Christmas.

As far back as memory goes, almost, Santa's cheery cheeks framed by a flowing white beard, have been a trademark of the jolly gentleman who slides down chimneys with a sack full of toys.

Tradition hasn't been able to do anything about breeding the proper Santa Claus garb, but it has set a fashion in Santa Claus apparel that has changed only slightly since the first picture of Mr. Claus appeared in a cartoon back in the 1860's.

The actual story of Santa's fur-trimmed outfit has become kind of garbled in mythology, but Thomas Nast, political cartoonist of the Civil War days, put the finishing touches on the old gentleman's attire.

He restored the red color of the bishop's robe, that had been borrowed from the Dutch who brought the legend of St. Nicholas to America with them. Nast also pictured the buxom gentleman in jacket, trousers and high boots.

And those articles of apparel, together with some addition of fur and color, abide to the present day in the garb of Santa Claus.

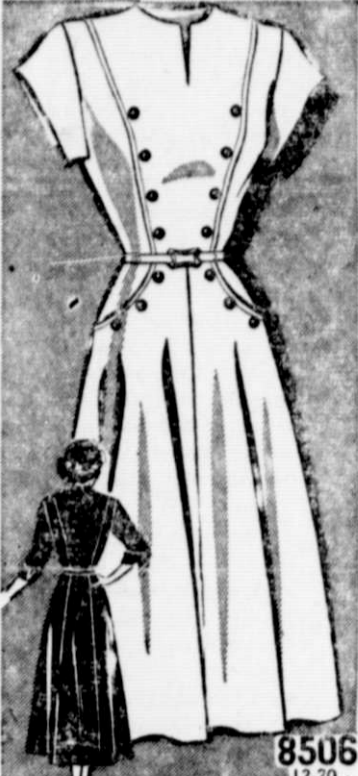

Pagans Used Holly In Pre-Christian Era

Holly was long used by pagans before early Christians gave new meaning to the popular Christmas decoration. Romans displayed holly as a symbol of peace and friendship, associating it with Saturnalia, a festival which followed the sowing of winter wheat. Hung on doors or in windows, holly was considered protection against witches and other evil spirits.

When Christianity supplanted paganism, the use of holly came to be an invitation to the Christ child to come and spend the holidays (holy days) in the home. Beneath a wreath of holly was placed a lighted candle to light His way—just as the Star of Bethlehem led the Three Wise Men on the first Christmas Day when they came to worship at the manger. The deep red of the holly berries became a symbol of the blood of Christ, with its thorns suggesting the crucifixion crown. He was forced to wear on His head.

Household Hints

When using beet greens be sure to clean them thoroughly by washing thoroughly in a good deal of cold water. Cook the greens in a small amount of water—just enough to keep them from scorching. Dress them with butter or margarine, salt before serving.

To serve with a salad, roll a white cream cheese into small balls and press a half walnut kernel into each side to look like a bonbon. Place one of these on each salad plate.

Easy and colorful way to decorate a child's room is to make bedspread, draperies and pillows of felt. It comes in a wide range of decorator colors, and needs no hemming.

If you are one of those who can't depend upon being awakened by your alarm clock, try setting the clock on a metal pie pan to increase the volume of the bell.
