

Lakers Beat Random, Belles, for 9 in Row

Kewaskum's northern Lakes leaders ran their victory streak to nine in succession without defeat with two more fairly easy wins the past week.

In the Random Lake tilt there was no denying the local pace setters, who built up a sizable lead at the start and kept it that way as they coasted to victory.

The Lakers' top scorer, John Tessar, had another field night as he added 22 points to his season's total.

Things did not start out as rosy in the Campbellsport game. Except for Mehlos, who scored 5 points in the first half, the boys were not hitting and the Belles had the best of them in the half.

However, the Chevys, strictly a second half team all season, started to click in the third quarter.

After being pinned down in the first half, Johnny (Mr. Basketball) Tessar went on his usual spree in the second half and poured 16 points through the hoops for a game total of 18 and top honors.

Firemen on Two Calls to Forest Lake, Wayne

The services of the Kewaskum fire department were needed twice more this week. At about 8:30 p. m. Sunday a call came from the August Bartel home at Forest Lake where an overheated furnace pipe in the basement caused a wooden beam directly above the pipe to start burning.

At 7:30 a. m. Tuesday the firemen responded to an alarm at the John Sukawaty farm west of Wayne. It was a chimney fire and the blaze was under control when firemen arrived.

ADDRESSES OF PRISONERS OF WAR ARE REQUESTED

County veteran's service officer, Geo. Kolb, advised that a limited supply of forms for making applications for benefits under the War Claims Act whereby POWs can collect benefits for their internment, where rations did not meet the requirement of the Geneva Conference, have been received and mailed to the list of prisoners available.

Ex-prisoners of war who have not received these forms by mail are urged to contact his office at an early date so that additional forms can be requisitioned and executed.

The commission can be expected to free that all Japanese prison camps were substandard at all times for determination of ration in adequacy, and that European prison camps might not be similarly designated, but will be ruled upon individually on a periodic basis. It is, however, expected that an average of 90% of time in these camps will qualify as substandard.

March of Dimes Drive is Lacking Support, First Reports Show

First reports on the progress of the 1950 March of Dimes campaign in Washington county, released this week by R. D. Rice, West Bend, county chairman of the drive, indicate that the drive is in grave danger of collapsing from a lack of support.

"Thus far, only two checks have been received from industries in West Bend," Rice stated. "This is far below the number of checks which have been received in other years, and unless an immediate increase in contributions is noticeable within the next few days, the outlook for a successful drive in Washington county is indeed not bright. The lack of personal contributions from individuals is also alarming," Rice continued.

"Even the March of Dimes containers look dimly empty in the majority of places where they are displayed," the chairman added. "A complete reversal of the present trend is necessary if this year's drive for funds to fight infantile paralysis is to be successful."

Rice urged local committee chairmen to make every effort to complete their collections and inform him of the results. Where no house to house canvass is being made, the chairman also requested that contributors who plan to make an individual donation to mail their checks or money orders to him as soon as possible. Individual county contributors who are not approached or do not know the drive chairman in their areas may also mail their contributions to Rice, together with their donation to the area in which they reside.

Postmaster Frank Heppie announces that the postal receipts for the calendar year 1949 in the local post office amounted to $98,911.09, compared with $53,500.00 for the year of 1938, an increase of 545,911.09. In 1947 the total receipts were $12,425.00.

Auburn German Mut. Holds Annual Meeting

Last Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 17, at Buccacchio's hall in the village of New Paltz, there was a meeting of the policyholders of the Auburn German Mutual Fire Insurance company.

The annual operating and financial statement that was distributed among the fifty policyholders who attended the meeting showed another successful year of operations.

A short address was given by President Lyle Bartlett outlining the progress of insurance operations by the company in the past few years. He also gave a resume of the legislative activities during the last session of the legislature affecting town mutual insurance, and explained the activities of the Spread Town association, and the Wisconsin Town Mutual association, both of which are reinsurance corporations underwriting certain risks of this company. In each of the last four years the amount of risks written increased by over one million dollars and each year the company has enjoyed an appreciable growing surplus.

A resolution formerly adopted by the board of directors and informally approved by the policyholders provided a new class of risks now taken on by the company. Under the terms of this resolution the company can now underwrite stores and taverns (formerly country stores and taverns), country restaurants and club houses, agricultural societies, fur farms, green houses, pea vineries, corn driers, and country dairies, locker plants, basketries and broiler farms, apiaries, horse stables, and fish shanties. It may also insure three family dwellings under certain conditions. Also may insure not exceed 1% in value household goods temporarily removed from the locality stated in the policy.

Voice of Our Readers

The following letter was received from Sgt. Fred Mulder, who is stationed at the Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex. Sgt. Mulder, a native of Holland, came to the United States from Germany shortly after World War II, at which time he made his home with Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Johnson and family in Kewaskum. While doing forced labor in Germany, Sgt. Mulder became acquainted with Mrs. Johnson's son, Darwin Bruesel, who was stationed there with the U. S. Army at the time, and it was through him that he came to this country. He made his home here until joining the army air force. Mrs. Johnson just returned recently from a visit with the young man in Texas. His letter follows:

"Dear Bill: 'I haven't had much time to write 'cause I have been busy getting my parents over here from Holland. 'I thought this would be a nice time to write a letter and have you print it in the paper. Mrs. Johnson is here on a vacation and she will take it along with her. My folks are very happy to be in the good old U.S.A. I hope everybody is all right in Kewaskum. 'This is a little late but I still wish you and all my friends there a Happy New Year and hope that my folks and I celebrate the next one in Kewaskum. It is very nice in San Antonio but there is no place like Kewaskum. I sure miss all my friends there. 'I hope that my friends in Kewaskum who read this letter will please write to me as I would appreciate it very much. 'I'll be seeing you.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U.S. Formosan Intervention Urged; Drive Is Launched to Trim Budget Group to Press for Child Welfare;

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

FORMOSA: Shall We Intervene?

As the agitation for U. S. intervention in Formosa grows, many Americans will have a sharp flashback of memory to the days when Anthony Eden and others were urging boycotts against Mussolini and the Japs as campaigns of conquest were getting underway.

Now, there are many important U. S. officials and ex-leaders who argue that the United States must step in to keep Communist China from swallowing up Formosa. Use of armed force, if necessary, is recommended to stop that movement.

LATEST TO JOIN with those advocating intervention in Formosa was Herbert Hoover, former president of the United States. He contended that such a policy was necessary to safeguard this country's own security.

Hoover argued the U. S. should use its naval power to protect not only the big island stronghold of Formosa but also lesser islands which Chiang Kai-shek's forces were seeking to defend along the south China coast.

He declared such a step would "erect a wall against communism in the Pacific" and offer a "continued hope of some time turning China into the paths of freedom again."

HOWEVER, the decision was further complicated by a British stand that American China policy would strain Anglo-American relations. Indications were that Britain was just about ready to recognize the Chinese Communist regime.

Always the practical realist, British moves wherever her own best interests dictate, or where she thinks they dictate. Hence, for the U. S. to lash out at the Chinese Reds just when the British were trying to woo the Communist business apparently wasn't going to sit well with Great Britain.

BUDGET: Drive for Balance

According to house Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts, the United States government should be able to live within its income without raising taxes. That of course meant that the U. S. ought to be able to balance its budget.

MARTIN joined forces with Sen. Robert Taft, of Ohio, who is on record as saying he believes the federal budget could be balanced in fiscal 1951. The two lawmakers are united in a drive to attempt to force the government to live within its income.

The project obviously had more merit than chance for success, for with congress predominantly Democratic, there would be little probability of any great tax changes in the matter of reduced operating expenses.

All indications were that while there might not be any tax increases, there certainly would be little of tax reductions, despite administration claims that the government couldn't operate without more tax revenue. Where the balancing-up will come is problematical as yet.

TAFT and Martin outlined their views as congress reconvened. Both declared they would oppose vigorously any administration request for increases either in corporation or high-bracket income taxes.

Taft said he would not object to a deficit of about two billion dollars in 1951 if he were sure the government would get back into the black in fiscal 1952. The deficit this year is expected to run about 5.5 billion dollars.

BRITISH: No, Thanks

Miffed because the world bank wanted to know too much about its operations, Great Britain's colonial development corporation withdrew its application to the international bank for a loan of five million dollars.

The 280-million-dollar government corporation, set up in 1948 to foster colonial development, said it wanted the loan to buy "indispensable" American-built land-clearing machinery.

THE CORPORATION would have been required to submit its detailed budget to the bank for some years ahead and would have had to make quarterly statements showing total assets, liabilities and expenditures of each of its multiple operations.

Chairman Lord Trefargne told newsmen the corporation would buy the "second-best" machinery constructed in Britain and Italy. He declared the bank's terms were "too onerous."

The corporation's projects now underway included: Agricultural developments in Borneo, British Honduras, the Leeward Islands, and Africa; forestry and mineral projects in British Guiana, and factory construction in northern Rhodesia, Kenya and Jamaica.

CONGO: Red Scare

The government of Belgium received a serious warning that Soviet infiltration into the interior of Africa constitutes an imminent threat to the security of the uranium-rich Belgian Congo in the Dark Continent.

According to the report, Soviet agents have managed to set up an espionage center near the great uranium mines from which the United States gets its uranium ore.

Atomic 'Advances'

David E. Lilienthal, atomic energy commission chief, told a news conference that there have been "several secret advances" in the development of atomic energy. He said these are comparable to the "breeder design" in 1949.

EDUCATION: Money & Health

The needs of education in the nation apparently were to be well looked after in Washington, as far as interest and stressing of necessity were concerned.

The American Parents' Committee announced a nine-point program in the child welfare field for consideration at the current congress session.

THIS COMMITTEE was organized three years ago to work for a national program to benefit children.

Legislation the committee will press for will be: The national school-health-services bill for an annual 35 million dollars grants-in-aid for school health examinations and treatment for all school children. This measure has been passed by the senate.

The public - school - construction bill, asking five billion to match state funds for a nation-wide survey of needs, and other sums for emergency school construction, which have been approved by the senate.

THE federal aid - for - education bill, which would provide 300 million for grants-in-aid to the states under a formula which gives a larger proportion of funds to the needier states. This bill passed the senate but was blocked in the house because of the controversy over "services" to parochial schools.

The national child-research bill, which asks 7.5 million annual for research in child life and development.

The bill on social security revisions, asking increased benefits for dependent children.

The local public-health units bill, which would increase health safeguards for children.

AN INCREASE in funds for the Children's Bureau.

Increased school lunch appropriations.

COFFEE: $11 More

The recent zoom in coffee prices, which jammed food stores with excited crowds of economy-conscious shoppers, will add a little over $11 to the average American household's coffee bill for 1950 unless fewer or thinner cups are drunk this year, says the family economics bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

The retail rise in the United States, averaging around 22 cents a pound from mid-summer to mid-December, parallels an almost equal climb of approximately 21 cents a pound in Latin-American prices on green coffee, according to the bureau.

AMOUNTING to over 38 times the cost of the coffee price rise, or approximately $425 per year, is the average U. S. family's share of the 20-billion-dollar increase since 1939 in our government's annual non-military expenditures, the bureau points out.

A yearly saving of $86, directly and indirectly, would be the average family's share in the four billion dollars which it is estimated can be saved each year merely by modernizing and streamlining government operations; this saving would pay for the average household's entire annual supply of 51 pounds of store-bought coffee, even if the price went to $1 a pound, and still leave $35 for sugar and cream, the bureau calculates.

Sleep Habits Revealing

Since practically a third of one's entire lifetime is spent sleeping, this phenomenon properly engages the attention of scientists.

As witness the conclusions by Prof. Alfred Adler, psychologist, that the person who sleeps on his back, stretched out like a soldier at attention, wants to be as great as possible. The sleeper who curls up like a hedgehog, he says, probably lacks courage.

He who sleeps on his stomach, the professor continues, is a stubborn and negative sort of individual, while the pessimist curls himself up into the smallest possible space and then often draws the covers up over his head.

The difficulty in accepting Professor Adler's theories is that no one sleeps in one position all night. The normal sleeper will change positions 30 to 45 times a night in order to give every part of his body a chance to relax and rest. Too, physical aches and pains may determine a sleeper's position.

FOREIGN AID: Appeal to Reason

It was impossible at the moment to evaluate its effect, but the fact that Sen. Tom Connally (D., Tex.) chairman of the senate foreign relations committee was urging a reduction in foreign-aid spending was certain to carry some weight in congress.

CONNALLY forecast a "sizeable" cut in funds for the third year of the European recovery program, and explained that he meant "anything up to a billion dollars."

Congress voted more than 3.75 billion for the program in 1949. The most rabid supporter of the aid-to-Europe program would have to concede that there has been no little visionary treatment of the problem, with the top-drawer dogooders finding it hard to restrain themselves when it came to giving away the American taxpayers' money.

There had been plenty warning and admonitions from men in government qualified to talk about the situation, but for the most part their authority wasn't sufficient to permit their interfering. However, with Senator Connally on the side of a reduction in the program, the situation took on a new aspect.

THERE WERE PLENTY observers who felt that unless the United States took a determined stand in insisting that Europe begin now to do something to rehabilitate itself, the drain on American funds would not only continue indefinitely, but might even increase.

The Texas senator might have had some such idea in mind when he talked ERP fund reductions.

It was a little more difficult, however, to understand his position with regard to Spain. Connally urged that the United States exchange ambassadors with Spain immediately and to call off its diplomatic boycott of Generalissimo Francisco Franco. He wanted "strategic" Spain in the North Atlantic pact.

ECONOMICS: Stability Urged

In the field of U. S. economics, there was pulling and hauling that would hold some measure of amusement were it not for its basic grimness. With President Truman previously committed to a tax increase, and some of his cabinet members advising against it, the no-tax-hike group found important support in the President's council of economic advisers.

THIS GROUP, reporting to the President on the general economic situation, steered clear of any definite tax stand, but did not hold an olive branch to business. And it hinted that some changes in the present tax structure should be made in order to meet what it called a "need for more stability" in government actions affecting the nation's economic well-being.

That word "stability" was the tip-off. It meant, anyone could reasonably assume, that the council felt U. S. business must have some assurance that it is not going to be confronted continually with an ever-shifting government tax policy.

This coupled with Commerce Secretary Sawyer's suggestion that excise taxes be repealed, could be regarded as a definite switch in high-level thinking on tax matters.

THE COUNCIL explained it this way: "While we should aim in the long run for reasonable stability in tax policy, the great changes in the tax structure over the most recent years and the double reversal of economic trends in 1946 may make it necessary to alter the tax structure somewhat before a basis of stability in future years will have been laid."

This new course launched the council on a course its former chairman, Edwin G. Nourse, repudiated—that of making recommendations directly to congress on matters of the administration's economic policy.

SECURITY: A Plea to Wait

Bernard Baruch, elder statesman with an over-sufficiency of this world's goods, didn't think social security benefits should be paid when the recipient becomes 65 years of age. Himself a vigorous 79, Baruch said the retirement age should be raised beyond 65.

He suggested revision of social security laws to permit persons over 65 to go on working and accumulating larger payments.

Baruch warned that old people and their sympathizers represent the "largest single bloc of voters in the country" and said their needs "would be a fertile field for selfish-minded politicians."

"We mustn't let ourselves become victims of the delusion that all we have to do is vote the older people more money," he said.

"These older citizens must have the opportunity to support themselves or they must be supported by a small proportion of younger people," he continued. "There is no avoiding that choice."

The children are using a "play street" in New York City. This sort of activity is becoming more and more familiar as officials try to make for good traffic and safety procedures by training youngsters before they become vehicle operators themselves. Shown below is a young boy who was riding his bike to school. He made a turn too fast and too wide and was killed instantly when struck by a truck. Through education as widely distributed as possible, Northwestern university's traffic institute seeks to prevent tragedies such as this.

This picture (left) shows a man's hands holding two parts of the rim of a headlight together. One piece was found at the scene of a hit-run accident, the other in a garage five days later. The driver's car was being repaired there. He was arrested and pleaded guilty. Taken by Charles Epperson of the Indiana state police and entitled "Hit and Run Evidence," the photograph was awarded first prize in the General Policing classification of the annual contest.

Why Quarrel?

WHEN A WOMAN tells me that she is getting a divorce because she and Chris simply can't get along, and it is better than children don't hear quarreling all the time, I know she is a very undeveloped woman.

If one of her small children asked to be put into another school because he simply couldn't get along with the other children, she would be very superior, would read a few of the flood of books on child care and child analysis and child psychology that are everywhere now, and would "condition" Junior to his duty.

But when she does exactly the same thing, and explains to everyone who is interested—and to a great many who are not—that she and Chris have decided that a friendly divorce is the wisest solution for their adolescent and undeveloped natures, she feels not only justified but very much to be pitied and helped.

Marriage is a Job

It would be a pity to disillusion and perhaps alarm our brides with a few simple facts about the job that being a wife is. We take great pains to tell them a lot about other facts of life, some of which never need be put into words at all, but we don't tell them that into every marriage moments of bleak rebellion and despair come, that all young couples differ on all sorts of grounds.

... about other facts of life . . .

What makes the difference between success and failure of a marriage is only the difference between the married pair who have character and the married pair who have put their entire dependence upon the word "happy," and break up everything the moment they decide that they are not.

"I wish," said a divorced woman to me a few weeks ago, "that when Roger and I got our divorce I had realized what it meant to Mother. To young Roger and Julie, too," she added, "but they were only children then, 7 and 4. But now that I am myself the mother of a married daughter, and Julie, after only 17 months of marriage, is going to Reno for her own divorce," she went on, "I begin to see what my mother went through 25 years ago.

"You do so terribly want the children to be happy," she said. "Whatever the wreck of your own life, you want theirs to be perfect. I lived for my children. Everything went wrong after I was divorced, and I married again—to give the children a father, I said. Well, it didn't work that way, and Bill and I were on the verge of a divorce when the war came, and he went off to the South Seas, not to come back. After that it was only Junior and Julie, for me. I wanted them to be strong and normal and to marry strong, normal people; I wanted them not to make the mistakes I had."

No Idea of the Misery

"But now Julie, in floods of tears, with those two splendid baby boys to consider, tells me she and Malcolm have come to the parting of the ways. It breaks my heart. I had taken such a joy in her pretty wedding, and her pretty home. She hasn't any idea, and suddenly there were tears in the mother's eyes. "She hasn't any idea of the misery she is letting herself in for," she said.

"What happened to Roger—your children's father?" I asked. "I had never seen him. "Oh, he is married, and quite happily, he says. The children see him now and then. He was so disturbed at the idea that Julie is going through all this wretchedness that he came to see me, for the first time in years. He asked if there was nothing to be done. But after all," she finished, "isn't anything better than for children to grow up in a quarrelsome home?"

Let young women who are passionately declaring for divorce ask themselves that question, and ask themselves, too, if there need be quarreling in the home of self-respecting, self-controlled adults.

Read the reasons for divorce in some county courthouse someday. You will be shocked by the childishness of them, the ridiculous shallowness of them. Mental cruelty and incompatibility are on the decree of divorce, but in the couple's statements to the judge the babyish reasons are more specific.

He went out twice and slammed the door. He thinks nothing is too good for his mother. When we are coming home from parties he says the meanest things. He worries me about money, says I'm extravagant.

Men in business offices learn not to quarrel. Women in jobs learn not to quarrel. Youngsters in high school begin to learn to be silent, to control their anger.

The simple truth is that there never need be quarrels in any home; one partner or the other ought to consider the other's personality as a good chance for character forming. It takes two to make a quarrel, and two to make a divorce. And alas, the divorce is far the more expensive indulgence of the two.

Wrestling Is an Honest Sport, But Love Is a Different Story

By BILLY ROSE

The other night at Lindy's, I was introduced to a Popocatepetl of a man named Ezaklios Papanokiyulikos, the Greek wrestler—better known to the toe-hold set as the Hooded Cobra. "You inressid in wrestling?" the mash-and-maul artist asked pleasantly.

"Not particularly," I said. "I hear tell the business is full of crooks." "Is wrong," said the Cobra. "In United Schnapes, wrestling is mos' honest sport what can be. Why? Because no wan bet. Is lak betting on feenish of musical comedy show."

"What makes you think people don't bet on musical comedy shows?" I said. "But never mind, go on."

"Only place wrestling is crooked sometime in 'Sout' America," the Cobra continued. "Frinstance, Ecuador, where tree months ago I ween plenny money by losing."

"I am amaze," I said. "Is funny story," said Ezaklios. "Then Aloicio weel take fall for you. Mak it bearg an' body-press."

"I cannot believe ears. I say: 'You want me to beat champ?' "He say: 'That is only way you gat return match. Mak sure no mistake. I bet plenny for you to win.'"

"NIGHT OF MATCH, when I walk down aisle, crowd have bottles, is boo, want kill me. When Aloicio comes in, they chuck flowers an' cheer. "Everybody is bet on champ—poor, rich, Spaneesh, Indians—an' these mak me sad. I am honest

"Well, at first is very good match. For twanny minoot we poosh, mak noises an' stick fingers in eyes. An' then Aloicio says, 'Is too hot to wrestle more. I take fall soon.'"

"I am smart an' say nothing, an' minute later I fall on back with Aloicio on top. But Aloicio is smart, too. 'Oh, no,' he says, an' begins to fight dirty. An' before referee can count tree, he twist my arm round his head so I got headlock. Then he geeve jerk, mak like he trip over my leg, an' fall on heels head. Only he fall harder than he think an' gats very deazy."

"Queek, I jump on heem, making beeg tangle weeth arms and legs—no one can tell who got who. Then I feenish up on my back. Referee counts tree, announces Aloicio ween, an' crowd go crazy."

"WASN'T SENOR Ramon sore?" I asked. "I no wait for Ramon," explained the Cobra. "I slip out of the arena, then out of town, then out of Ecuador . . ."

Just then, a good-looking woman pushed her way through Mr. Lindy's revolving door, spotted the wrestler at my table, and began jabber-

I PRAYED TODAY

IN my quiet room I talked with my Friend today; I opened my heart to Him with its weight of care.

I spoke of the burdens I carried along the way; I sought His help as I knelt at His feet in prayer. I told Him my griefs, forgetting He knew them all; I prayed for my heart, forgetting that He could see Within their hearts each need, though great or small,

Each unsolved problem and dark perplexity

In my quiet room I talked with the Friend I love, As He engineered His planets, His Stars, His suns, My little world was what I was dreaming of, My little day, and my own near precious ones. "Who's the lady?" I asked, when we were alone again. "Wife of Senor Ramon," said the Cobra. "When she got final divorce, she become Meetus Papanokiyulikos." "I thought you said wrestling was an honest sport," I said.

Year's day. Bill started in pictures as an extra, in 1919, in C. B. De-Mille's "Why Change Your Wife." In 1934 he really hit his stride, starring in the "Hopalong Cassidy" series, and has never played anything else since. "I fell in love with the part," he says; "the part has piled up a fortune for him. And the way the public almost mobs him at personal appearances is proof of his popularity."

Back in the days of silent films Jane Novack was a star; in many a William S. Hart movie she was the gal who gazed into the sunset at the end, with Bill and his horse. In Paramount's "The Furies" she is again linked with the West; she plays a frontier mother, Walter Huston, Barbara Stanwyck and Wendell Corey are co-starring in this dramatization of Niven Busch's book.

As you probably know, Ralph Sigwald won the finals on the "Horace Heidt" show, and was awarded the $5,000 prize, a gold championship belt that wasn't big enough—and the dubious honor of having a full-size statue of himself erected in his home town, Charleston, S.C. It does seem as if that lovely city could put the statue's cost to better use, if permitted.

Jerry Ambler, world's champion bronc rider of 1946 and '47, who makes his living staying on a horse, is getting paid to be thrown off in one of Columbia's "Beyond the Purple Hills." He'll do special falls in the Gene Autry starrer.

Chester Conklin, of the walrus mustache and endless spectacles, made his screen debut in 1912 and won fame in Mack Sennett's comedies. He tackles his first straight role in RKO's "Come Share My Love," as caretaker of a ramshackle ranch.

Radio editors in Motion Picture Daily's annual Fame poll named Gordon MacRae "most promising star of tomorrow," and his program, NBC's "The Railroad Hour," of equal rank with Fred Waring's as a musical show. The leading newspaper of Caracas, Venezuela, voted Ruth Roman "the most striking new screen personality of 1949," in a poll of its readers.

NO JOB WANTED

By Richard H. Wilkinson

IT WAS SNOWING when Guy started over the pass. The filling station attendant at Jackson had warned him against it, but Guy had only smiled crookedly. It was early May and snowstorms of any consequence didn't happen in May, not even in the high country. Besides, the way he felt, it wouldn't make much difference if anything did happen to him. Not even if he froze to death. Death would solve all his problems. It would be a relief from worry and hopelessness and bleak despair.

Foolish though for a young man 26 years old. But young men can sometimes become pretty wild and desperate in their thoughts. Guy remembered Mr. Moore's cynical smile. "Sorry, son, we haven't a place for you. Full up."

"But not good reporters. I've had experience, Mr. Moore. I'm a good writer. I always scrape up a new angle to a story that makes interesting reading. Besides—There was desperation in Guy's tone, because Mr. Moore had begun shuffling papers on his desk. "When I wrote inquiring about a job you said you'd be glad to talk to me."

He had driven all the way up from Denver—1,000 miles—because Mr. Moore had said he'd talk to him. It had taken nearly his last dollar to buy enough gas to make the trip. Now he had nothing left but the 5-year-old car. Just about enough to get him back home, from which he'd started out six months ago, bound and determined to land a job on a newspaper.

Toward noon Guy understood why the filling station man had warned him. The snow formed an impenetrable wall. The wind was rising and it was colder. Now he was stuck.

Hours passed. Twice Guy thought he heard someone call. The third time he roused up. Through the slanting curtain of snow he saw a figure floundering toward him. He got out. The man was nearly exhausted; his face froze. Guy got him inside the car and turned on the heater full, speeding up the motor. Presently the man looked at him wild-eyed. "My wife! She's sick. We're stuck—up the road."

Farmer Kills Two Snakes, Each in Different Way

COLUMBIA, ALA. — Willis Cochran, peanut farmer, was seeing snakes—but they were real ones.

Guy thought quickly. There was the shack. Apparently the man had passed it in the storm. It must be close by. At any rate, it was their only chance.

AFTERWARD, Guy wondered how he'd found the shack, or what it was that kept him going when the desire to lie down and sleep and forget everything was so strong. It was all like a dream—the way he'd stumbled against the shack itself, found the door and fell inside. He remembered that the wind and cold were shut out. Then he remembered the sick woman.

The place he'd found was a road camp. There was a stove and wood and a few cans of food on the shelf. He got a fire going and placed water on to boil. Then he lunged into the storm again, fought his way down the road and found the stranger's car. He half carried, half dragged the woman up to the shack, and left her there near the stove while he went for the man.

The storm lasted two days. It took another day for a rescue party to get through. They took the three of them down to Jackson and to a hospital. Guy was put into a room by himself and fed. Then he went to sleep.

When he awoke Mr. Moore was standing by his bed. "Feeling better, son? Good. How about a story on your experiences? That man you saved was Senator Ostrand."

"The lady wasn't his wife at all. See what I mean? You want a job and we want a story, because Ostrand is on the opposition ticket. Here's your chance, boy."

Guy closed his eyes. Well, why not? he thought. After all, a man has to live, has to look out for himself. Why not? The thought kept pounding against his brain. Then he opened his eyes.

"Sorry," he said. "Sorry, that isn't the kind of job I'm after."

Safety Precautions Urged in Cleaning

Danger of Fire, Vapor Inhalations Are Cited

Housewives in rural areas sometimes find it inconvenient to send clothes out to be dry cleaned and therefore do the work themselves. For this purpose, they may go to a nearby automobile service station and buy gasoline or to a hardware store or general store and buy "cleaning fluid."

Gasoline is intended to make motors operate and should never be employed as a solvent because of its great flammability. There are some specially refined petroleum products available with cleaning and degreasing properties somewhat like those of gasoline but with considerably less fire hazard, although any petroleum product can burn if it is brought in contact with a source of ignition.

When a small amount of solvent is to be used the work can be done indoors safely enough. If the fluid can burn, just be careful to use it where there are no nearby sources of ignition and don't smoke or light matches while you are handling the fluid.

However, when a large job is to be done, such as cleaning an entire dress or a pair of overalls or removing grease from a number of tools which may require two or three quarts of solvent used over a period of perhaps half an hour. Do the work outdoors, stand so that vapors will be carried away from you, not towards you, and allow the cleaned articles to dry thoroughly before you bring them indoors. When you are finished, if your hands feel dry, wash with lukewarm water and rub a cream containing lanolin into the skin.

Brahman Cattle May Vie With Many Domestic Kine

Cattle imported from India may some day compete with established beef cattle breeds in the markets of the midwest, according to many livestock experts. One Nebraska farmer, a hybrid corn pioneer, believes Brahmans will be as popular as domestic breeds in the next few years.

Corn belt farmers scattered thinly from Nebraska to Ohio are experimenting with Brahmans and crosses of Brahmans on regular beef herds. Do Brahman beef calves weigh 80 to 100 pounds more by weaning age and dress out two to four per cent higher than the usual run of cattle? Do they make economical feedlot and pasture gains and endure heat and insects better than other cattle? These are some of the questions to which it is hoped answers will be found through the studies and experiments being conducted.

Farmer Hikes Spud Yield By Using Clover Manure

Using red clover as a green manure crop enabled a Duluth, Minn., farmer to beat his county's potato yield by as much as 300 bushels per acre.

Leon Massey harvests between 390 and 400 bushels of potatoes per acre as compared to a county average of 120 bushels. He does it by turning over one year's growth of clover every fourth year in his crop rotation.

Plastic Silage Cap Cuts Loss From Silo Spoilage

A new plastic silage cap which will reduce spoilage in the five top feet of a silo has been developed by Goodrich engineers after two years of intensive research and design. Made of koro-seal flexible material, the silage cap consists of two pieces: a circular blanket that covers the silo from top to wall, and a large koro-seal tube which lies on the edge of the blanket.

"Citizens of Tomorrow"

Here are the pictures in the best baby picture contest conducted by the Woltz Studios of Des Moines, Iowa, in cooperation with the Statesman. The pictures of children in this community were taken some while back by the Woltz Studios at the Woodmen hall here. We received them before the holidays but space at that time did not permit us to run them. The Statesman wishes to thank the parents of the children entered in the contest for their cooperation and patience in the arrival and running of the cuts.

First, second, third and fourth prizes were awarded by judges of the Woltz Studios for the pictures which they judged best. The first prize winner is Robert Spoerl, 15 months-old-son of the Fred Spoerl, Kewaskum. For his prize he will receive an attractive 21-karat gold plated, framed enlarged photograph of himself in natural color.

Second prize winner is Eugene Ebert, 7 months, son of the Elwyn Eberts, R. 1, Kewaskum. Third prize goes to Jimmy, 6 years, and Jean, 4 years, children of the John Schuppels, R. 3, Kewaskum. Dale, 6 1/2 years, son of the Jerry Darndys, R. 3, Kewaskum, topped the fourth prize. All of these winners will be awarded enlarged pictures mounted in neat folders. Parents of the winners may call for their prizes at this office. Proof pictures of all the other entries may also be obtained by calling here.

MEETING ON PRODUCTION, USE OF MEATS ON FARMS

A meeting on the production and use of meats on the farm as food for the family was held in the city hall, Hartford, on Friday, Jan. 26. The program started at 10:00 a. m. and continued into the afternoon. It was as follows: 10:00—Opening Remarks—E. E. Skalskey, county agricultural agent. 10:15—Swine and Veal Production—Feeding, sanitation, parasite control and management—James J. Lacey, meat specialist, College of Agriculture. 10:45—Women's Program—Preparation of meats—Miss Mariel Kolb, county home agent. 11:00—Livestock Production Outlook—L. F. Hall, farm management specialist, College of Agriculture. 12:00 noon—Potluck luncheon. Courtesy: Farm Bureau of Addison, Erin and Hartford townships. 1:00—Meat Uses—James J. Lacey. 2:45—Income Tax Reports—L. F. Hall.

An attractive display featuring pork, lamb, and veal carcasses and cuts was shown. This display, supplied by the College of Agriculture, showed the proper way of cutting meat carcasses and was well worth seeing.

This meeting brought a new type of farm program to Washington county. The program was of interest to men and women. The topic of meat production and meat use is of daily interest. Cooperating with the county extension office in the holding of this meeting were the farm bureau chapters of Addison, Erin and Hartford townships. The ladies of these farm bureau chapters provided the noon hour luncheon.

TEST SEED GAINS

Many samples of seed oats, barley and wheat sent to the seed testing laboratory at the College of Agriculture are showing a low germination test this year. This percentage of samples is much greater than it has been for many years.

It seems that the grain crops on most farms when threshed last summer carried a high percentage of moisture. This caused grain stored in bins to heat to a temperature which killed the seed germ. Farmers planning to plant their own home grown seeds are strongly urged to test grain samples soon to see if the seeds will grow. To make a home test for germination, count out 100 or more kernels of the oats, barley or other grain to be tested. Place this seed on a paper plate upon which has been placed some blotting or other absorbent paper. Moisten the seed grain and cover with more absorbent paper. Keep in a warm place, preferably in back of the kitchen stove, until the seed germinates. This will take about a week or ten days, depending upon the temperature. Then count the number of kernels with sprouts. If 100 kernels were used the number with sprouts shows the percentage of germination.

Seed grains showing a germination of less than 90% should not be planted. New seed should be purchased.

When buying new seed grains, it pays to buy the best. The purchase of certified seed is usually a good investment. Wisconsin has rigid certification rules, and any seed certified in this state should be top quality seed. Such seed receives both a field and a bin inspection. It must have a high germination percentage and be free of all bad weed seeds.

The supply of certified seed is limited. The demand for it is bigger than in former years. Hence, any one planning to purchase certified seed grains should do so now. It may be bought up by planting time.

AMERICAN FARM PRACTICES BEING ADOPTED IN EUROPE

Many Washington county folks no doubt recall the visit to this county in November, 1948, of Dr. H. Speiser from Kiel university, Germany. The American government sent Dr. Speiser to America to study American methods of agricultural extension work, and our 4-H club program. He selected Washington county for this study.

The county extension office recently received a copy of two bulletins edited by Dr. Speiser and published by Kiel university. One bulletin explains our system of 4-H club organizations. The other bulletin deals with soil conservation projects. This bulletin contains pictures of practices being carried out on Washington county farms to show Wisconsin methods of soil conservation and erosion control.

AG, COLLEGE WILL FEATURE RURAL LIFE MUSEUM EXHIBITS

For several years the Wisconsin College of Agriculture has been making plans to feature an exhibit of farm and household equipment used in the early agricultural development of the state. The thought was to display such equipment in a museum building on the agricultural campus as a part of the program of the 100th anniversary of the University of Wisconsin.

Any Washington county farm family having farm or household equipment that will help to more vividly trace agricultural history in Wisconsin and who would care to give it to the College of Agriculture and have it placed on exhibition in the Wisconsin museum of agricultural history should write to the county agricultural extension office, giving the donor's name and address, kind and description of article, including its age and present condition. The donor of any piece of equipment will be properly credited. E. E. SKALSKY, COUNTY AGENT

MIRROR Of Your MIND

A Baby Won't 'Save' Marriage

By Lawrence Gould

Will having a baby "save your marriage"?

Answer: Not if it needs "saving"—that is, if you and your wife or husband are really at odds with each other.

Can psychiatrists agree on what's wrong with you?

Answer: They can come at least as near to it as other doctors, and perhaps a little nearer.

Should you try to "top" a hard luck story?

Answer: No. There's a more or less unconscious urge to do this which you'll see especially in married people.

Good Breakfasts Put Pep into Work (See Recipes Below)

Teen-Agers' Breakfast

IN THE HUSTLE and bustle of school work and social activities, teen-agers are apt to short-change themselves on the food they eat.

Also, this is the time when boys and girls are forming food habits that will follow them through life.

By studying teen-age habits in this country, we have turned up the interesting fact that two-thirds of our teen-agers feel that everyone should have a good solid breakfast.

Consider the wide range of foods offered in this basic breakfast of fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter.

Almost two dozen varieties of cooked and ready-to-eat cereals are available.

FOR APPETITE APPEAL, a hot bread is a quick and easy treat for breakfast.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Friction in Cabinet

HERE IS THE INSIDE story on reports of friction between two of the most potent Truman cabinet members—Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

Argument Over Plans One small part of the Johnson-Acheson irritation came when the secretary of defense balked at giving the secretary of state a special White House plane to fly to the Big Three foreign ministers conference last November.

Acheson wanted the "Dew-Drop," the deluxe liner which the air force had built for "President" Dewey.

Johnson offered his cabinet colleague the President's onetime plane, the "Sacred Cow," but the Sacred Cow does not make as much speed as the Independence or the Dew-Drop.

Winchell Starts Something Shortly after Acheson returned from Europe, Walter Winchell broadcast an item that Washington in 1950 would not be big enough for both Acheson and Johnson.

Acheson didn't know anything about the broadcast—until 9 a. m. next day, when he got a phone call from Johnson asking if he could come over to see him right away.

Acheson hadn't, but thought it was interesting that the secretary of defense should go to so much trouble to say that he had nothing to do with inspiring the broadcast.

As a matter of fact, if either of the men departs, it will probably be Johnson—not because he isn't doing a good job; he is. But he has occasionally stepped on Truman's toes.

Effective Cough Syrup, Mixed at Home for Economy

No Coughing. No Work. Real Saving. Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, and is still one of the most effective for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it.
Make a syrup with 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup water. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.
Now put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint of cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly and tastes fine.
And you'll say it's really excellent for quick action. You can feel it take hold swiftly. It loosens phlegm, soothes irritated membranes, helps clear the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy and lets you get restful sleep.
Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its quick action on throat and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

FARM AND HOME WEEK PROGRAM JAN. 30-FEB. 2

The 1950 Farm and Home Week program of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture will be held at the Memorial Union building from Monday, Jan. 30, through Thursday, Feb. 2. The Farm and Home Week program will extend over four days and will include talks presented by many nationally known authorities on agricultural subjects. Joining them on the program will be more than 100 members of the staff of the College of Agriculture. Practically every phase of farm projects will be discussed at this gathering.

A separate program for the women folks runs simultaneously with the program for the men folks.

This event gives an excellent opportunity for the rural people of the state to counsel together on better methods of production, distribution, farm living, and on matters of public policy. It is also a nice opportunity of meeting and greeting old friends.

Why not take off a day or two and enjoy this educational farm folks program on the campus of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.
