The Kewaskum Chevrosists won two more contests by big margins over the week end to stay right on the tail of the league leading West Bend Lakes team. Saturday night the team played at Oakfield and trounced the Oaks, 61-25. Monday night Horicon visited the home court and was decisively defeated for the second time by the Chevros, 70-41. Kewaskum has a lone loss suffered at Mayville in seven tilts to date. West Bend is still unbeaten. First place will be decided a week from Sunday, Jan. 15, when the Lithias play here.

At Oakfield the Chevrosists jumped to a sizable advantage in the first period and stayed well ahead. The quarter ended 21-5 and Kewaskum was able to coast from then on. The tally at halftime was 25-7. Oddly only six points were scored by the combined teams in that stanza. The Chevrosists were on top by 20 points, 41-21, at the end of the third period and increased this lead in the final 10 minutes. Towering forward Fred Engel and center John Tassar shared the scoring spotlight for the night's work with 18 points apiece. B. Collien's 8 points were best for the Lakers against the stalwart Kewaskum defense.

In the Horicon tussle here New Year's night the Chevrosists went ahead from the start and increased their lead as the game progressed. Both quintets played fine ball but the Kewaskum five had too much scoring power for Horicon. The first quarter ended 16-8 in the home team's favor and at the intermission the winners were ahead by a safer margin, 31-20. Manager Hancock's team scored to a 48-32 advantage in the third period and walked away from the opponents in the final chapter, scoring 21 points to the visitors' 12. Forty-two personal fouls were called but not because the game was dirty. It was cleanly played but the teams put on a sound, hard exhibition. As usual John Tassar walked off with high scoring honors although he did not play the full game. His total was 24 for the night and following him were Engel with 12 and Bob Dreher with 11. John, who is well ahead in league scoring, raised his total to 153 in seven contests. Forward Bauerwald and the veteran W. Kukuluk were top boys for Horicon with 10 points each.

The Lakes team has lost one of its players, John Kugel, who has enlisted in the navy. Merrill Krueger has replaced him.

Atty. Bartel Discusses Jury Trials at Kiwanis

Last Monday night Attorney Lyle Bartel furnished the program as after dinner speaker at the local Kiwanis dinner. He outlined the procedure of the various steps that are taken from the time that the client brings the case into the lawyer's office until the jury verdict.

He particularly elaborated in part of this talk upon the importance of the selection of the jury, and his comments in this respect were based upon his own experience in trying jury cases in the courts of the state. He pointed out that where one represents a client seeking damages for personal injuries, or one who is indicted for a crime, that the ideal juror is one who is emotional, imaginative, sympathetic, merciful, friendly, and understands human conduct. That politics, nationality, and religion of the juror often played important roles in jury verdicts. He stated that many jurors act from instinct and emotions and that the intellect will then furnish good reasons for following their instincts and emotions. He pointed out that there is often no relationship between justice and the jury verdict, and that for this reason, there could be considerable improvement made in the qualifications of jurors.

As another point of interest he pointed out that most criminals, in his opinion, had a mental sickness, which compares well with many physical sicknesses, and that more time should be spent in curing their mental sicknesses rather than just mere punishing the accused with serving jail sentences which is a misery imposed upon individuals only excelled by the tragedies of war.

ISSUE HANDBOOK ON VETS RE-EMPLOYMENT RIGHTS

The secretary of labor, Maurice J. Tobin, has announced the release of a question and answer handbook on veterans' re-employment rights. The handbook contains more than 200 of the most frequently asked questions on such problems as re-instatement, lay-off, seniority, damages, vacation rights, pensions and other aspects of re-employment rights, together with the appropriate answers. The booklet also contains a summary and comment on Supreme Court decisions, the federal statutes applying to re-employment rights, and a directory of field offices of the Bureau of Veterans' Re-employment Rights.

George A. Kolb, service officer for Washington county, points out that the booklet, while designed primarily for volunteer re-employment committees and co-operating organizations, contains information of value to employers, labor and veterans' organizations, and others concerned with re-employment rights. He states that single copies of the handbook and further information on any re-employment rights problem may be obtained from J. C. Fitzpatrick, field representative, Bureau of Veterans' Re-employment Rights, Room 100, Merchandise Mart, Chicago 51, Ill.

Re-service men and others seeking information concerning their re-employment rights features of the older statutes and of the present act, should consult with George A. Kolb, service officer, whose office is located at the court house, West Bend.

County Soil Conservation Leaders Set Goals for '51

In setting goals for the year, supervisors of the Washington County Soil Conservation District have moved their sights a notch higher for 1951. At a meeting held in the Security building at West Bend on Wednesday, Dec. 26, the district governing body voted a goal of accomplishing for the new year 10 per cent higher than that for 1950. The meeting, at which E. M. Hornsine of Kewaskum presided, was attended by representatives of several agricultural agencies.

In addition to Hornsine, other supervisors attending the meeting were: Charles Rode, Route 2, Hartford; Reuben Schmitt, Jackson; E. J. Campbell, Route 3, Kewaskum; and Harry Shook, county superintendent of schools, West Bend.

The E. S. Soil Conservation Service was represented at the meeting by Charles Skaffe, Waukesha, district conservationist, and Del Wanless, West Bend, farm planner, County Agent E. E. Skalsky represented the extension service.

Following a report of 1950 accomplishments, Del Wanless stated that during 1950 all farmer requests for assistance on layout of practices on the land were taken care of. This assistance was provided farmers who do not have conservation farm plans for their units as well as district co-operators. Demands for assistance in the development of farm conservation plans are being satisfied as rapidly as possible.

In commenting upon the complete farm conservation plan Wanless pointed out that it is patterned to fit a particular farm acre by acre. The objective is to "use every parcel of land in accordance with its capabilities and treat each in accordance with its needs."

As a first step in farm planning a land capability inventory map is made of the farm of any individual who has applied for assistance in the development of such a plan. This is done by making numerous four-foot borings with an auger. The data obtained is then plotted on an aerial photograph by drawing in lines to show marked differences in conditions due to variations in soil types, slope and amount of erosion that has already taken place.

Using this land availability inventory as a guide, the SCS farm planner and the farmer walk over the farm and then, with other members of the farm family, work out details of the farm conservation plan. To do this, Wanless explained, another aerial photograph is used and on it are drawn in the proposed new field boundaries. If supporting practices such as terraces and strip cropping are needed, these, with the rotations to be followed for each field, are shown on the plan. After the original plan is prepared, consideration is given to the relationship of crop production of livestock.

If the livestock and feed situation is out of balance some shifts may be made in planned rotations, with corresponding changes in practices, or in the livestock program for the farm.

After determining the use for each field, Wanless said, plans are laid for the following year's program. Included in this is information on areas to be seeded, fertilizer and lime needs as revealed by soil tests, and seed requirements. Plans are made for installation of some of the practices.

As one farmer put it, "The farm conservation plan is to the farmer what an architect's blueprint is to the builder. You have the planned layout and all necessary specifications. These are all tied together into a program that will maintain or even increase income and at the same time build up our soil and keep it on the side hills."

In discussing the 1950 Grassland Farming Contest sponsored by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture it was revealed that all county winners were co-operators of the local Soil Conservation District. According to E. E. Skalsky, the contest stimulated increased interest in conservation for there is no question but that proper land use, supported by grassland farming, forestry and other soil and water conservation practices, make water conservation practices, make water for a continuing and prosperous agriculture.

PVT. BOETTCHER HOME

Pvt. Harold Boettcher returned to Camp Atterbury, Ind. after spending a five-day furlough over the New Year holiday at his home in the town of Wayne.

District Conservationist Charles Skaffe, in informing supervisors of assistance the Soil Conservation Service hopes to make available to the District in 1951, stated that present plans call for continuation of the present staff of one full-time farm planner, Del Wanless. In addition, Charles Skaffe, District Conservationist, and Joe Stinmeyer, Soil Scientist, both of Waukesha, will be available for part-time help to farmers of the District.

In setting goals for 1951 the Supervisors analyzed the work load outlook for the year. To provide farmers of the District with adequate assistance would require the time of one full-time Soil Conservation Service technician. On the basis of limited available manpower the Supervisors, in planning their program for the year, decided that during layoff seasons the personnel should devote full time to this activity as it was expressed that "practices on the land are the ones that hold the soil." Working with farmers in developing their annual plan of work was given second priority. Aiding farmers in re-planning and developing new plans is to be the last order of business.

Insofar as total goals for 1951 are concerned, the major ones are as follows:

Strip Cropping, 700 acres; Pasture Improvement, 300 acres; Terracing, 45 acres; Wildlife Area Improvement, 45 acres; Constructed Waterways, 2.3 miles; New Farm Plans, No. 30.

Among the informational functions planned for 1951, to be carried out under the direction of County Agent Skalsky are general information meetings and tours of farms of district co-operators.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

A State of National Emergency Is Proclaimed by President Truman; Russia Threatens Western Europe

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Chinese Communists in the mountains of central North Korea prepared for another big sweep down the middle of Korea (broken arrow). Meanwhile, 60,000 United Nations troops were evacuated from the Hamhung-Hungnam beachhead after withdrawing from the Yalu river.

EMERGENCY: Near-War Footing

With a series of proclamations and executive orders, President Truman put the nation on a near-war footing. In a world-wide radio address the President proclaimed a national emergency and told the American people they must pay higher taxes, work longer hours, and give up many civilian goods to speed up the defense program.

- 1. Compulsory price ceilings "at once" on some items essential to defense production and the cost of living.
2. Voluntary ceilings over rest of the economy of publishing "fair standards of prices and wages."
3. To provide the necessary materials for defense production, a "cut back on many lines of civilian production" and expanded output of steel, copper, aluminum, electric power, and agricultural commodities.

Within hours after the declaration of a national emergency, the President created the Office of Defense Mobilization by executive order. The new office was given unprecedented power with full authority over civilian agencies already at work building United States war strength.

Also within hours after the President's proclamation, the Economic Stabilization Agency froze the price of new automobiles at the level of December 1, 1950. The action rolled back price increases averaging five per cent announced by Ford, Chrysler, General Motors, and Nash, on the 1951 models.

Marines

The first truckloads of U. S. 1st marine division are shown above as they rolled into the area near Hamhung after their 12-day battle to free themselves from the death trap set by Chinese and North Korean Communists near the Changlin reservoir.

EUROPE: Reds Threaten

The Soviet Union did not say exactly what it would do, but in notes to Great Britain and France warned that the rearmament of Germany would not be tolerated. The threat brought a new feeling of crisis to western Europe.

The Kremlin sent notes to Britain and France which asserted: 1. Arming of Germans by Atlantic allies would violate the Potsdam pact of 1945. 2. Western Germany's inclusion in the Atlantic pact set-up would invalidate Russia's alliance treaties with Britain and France.

A number of observers were asking if the Soviet warning wasn't the kind Red China made—and later fulfilled—as United Nations forces crossed the 38th parallel in Korea. Others, however, do not think the Communists are ready for all-out war.

MARSHALL: Opposes Full Mobilization

Defense Secretary Marshall is reported opposed to full mobilization now because there is still "a hope" that World War III may be averted. Marshall's careful appraisal of the powder-keg world situation was given to a house appropriations subcommittee at a secret hearing.

However, Marshall said he also believes that the United States must build up its armed forces to just-short-of-war footing as swiftly as possible because "a single word" from the Kremlin could start the holocaust at any time.

UNITED NATIONS: Political Stalemate

Although there was much less tension in the capitals of the world diplomats at the United Nations continued to work feverishly in an attempt to head off a world-wide conflict. No workable solution for stopping the Korean war had been found, however, and the organization seemed locked in a political stalemate.

Russia declared that all foreign troops, including Chinese Communists "volunteers," should be withdrawn from Korea, but voted against a cease-fire proposal which the United Nations political committee approved by a vote of 51 to 5.

Russia's delegates harked again and again to the argument that the cease-fire formula was aimed at "saving the skins" of western troops—at providing a "breathing spell" during which Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces could "reform their ranks" in preparation for a new attack.

The general assembly went ahead with its cease-fire plan by naming a three-man committee to seek the truce. Most observers believed they would not succeed.

ACHESON: Ouster Demanded

Secretary of State Dean Acheson flew to Brussels for a meeting with representatives of the Atlantic pact nations amid renewed pressure on the home front that he be fired from the state department.

The latest move for his ouster was made by senate and house Republicans. There was no White House comment on the Republican resolution. Administration officials, however, reported President Truman was "absolutely determined" to stand by Acheson for the reason that he has served him exceptionally well.

RAIL TIE-UP: Walkout Called Off

Under pressure from President Truman, the federal courts, and their own union officials, more than 10,000 striking rail yard workers ended their crippling three-day strike that caused one of the greatest freight stackups in the nation's history.

The strike ended without any wage settlement, although representatives of the railroads and four rail unions got together for joint bargaining talks at the White House. The strike had caused mountainous stacks of Christmas packages to be bottled up in post offices and stranded in freight cars. War shipments had been halted in transit. Some railroads had curtailed passenger train schedules.

CHURCHILL: No Foolish Promises

Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill warned the western powers against the argument "that we must never use the atomic bomb until and unless it is used against us first."

"The argument is now put forward that we must never use the atomic bomb until and unless it is used against us first," Churchill said. "In other words, you must never fire until you are shot dead."

INSPIRATION The "Little" Sins

AN EDITORIAL

SOME MORAL TRANSGRESSIONS are so heinous that the sinner is at once deeply aware of the guilt he has created between God and himself. The conscience of the murderer, the adulterer or the perjurer will not let him forget the outrage he has done.

Serious sin is fatal to the soul because it means a deliberate flouting of God's authority. But there are lesser sins, which, while they do not destroy the soul, nevertheless rob it of much of its beauty and strength. Worse still, the so-called "little sins" have a tendency to weaken resistance toward the more serious sins.

It is for this latter reason that men must be on guard against faults of jealousy, anger or vindictiveness. These are weaknesses that have paved the way to homicide. Even the slightest tendencies to impurity must be curbed lest unchastity find eventual outlet in respect cries out in condemnation.

Little lies lead to big lies. The man who takes a false oath has already served a long apprenticeship to falsehood. Petty pilfering is a preparation for large-scale larceny or fraud.

TRAP SHOOTING Cincinnati Trapshooter Invented First 'Clay' Pigeon 70 Years Ago

"Clay pigeons" are not made of clay and do not resemble pigeons. It will probably come as a surprise to the original "flying saucer" which sparked the modern clay target (and that's still not made of clay), was held at Coney Island, New York, in 1880 by its inventor. He was a Cincinnati trapshooter named George Ligovsky.

Ligovsky invented his clay pigeon as a substitute for a substitute. Ligovsky's clay bird was intended to replace the glass ball which in turn had been invented to replace live pigeons in trap shooting. If you've forgotten, trap shooting gets its name from the once popular sport of shooting live pigeons as they were released from traps. The public outcry against shooting pigeons helped produce the glass balls. But glass balls weren't the only things the outcry produced.

Old timers with good memories may remember some of the Rube Goldberg-like attempts that were made to imitate pigeons in flight. But few modern shooters have any conception of the weird procession of gadgets that began shortly after the Civil War and didn't end even after George Ligovsky invented the clay pigeon.

Depending upon how far back you want to go, the inspiration for trap shooting can be stretched back almost to earliest recorded history. Homer mentions "popinjay shooting" in the Iliad. In this sport the Greeks shot at a dove. During the Middle Ages this sport was also popular. Usually a popinjay was a stuffed parrot mounted atop a pole. When live birds were used, a cord kept the bird from flying away. The last public popinjay shoot with bow and arrow in England occurred in 1792.

Trap shooting was first practiced in England even prior to about 1856 by "frequenters" of "low public houses." Then the Earl of Stamford took up the sport and made it respectable. The first fashionable pigeon club near London was given the name "Old Hats." Its name derives from the fact that old top hats were used to cover the holes in which the pigeons were kept prior to release when the hats were pulled off the holes. The use of old hats for trap covers was discarded rather soon and unimpracticable devices were invented with sliding covers instead of hats which could be opened with cords by an attendant behind the shooter.

Glass Balls Used First

The English used native pigeons and later imported Belgian pigeons and also used their own larks and sparrows. Low characters even hooded the birds to make them fly slower.

While there was a public clamor against shooting live pigeons over traps, substitutes for live birds seem to have been thought of before criticism of bird shooting became vociferous. But once a successful substitute was perfected, live pigeon shooting was practically doomed.

Glass balls were the first substitutes for live birds and Charles Portlock of Boston, Massachusetts, is credited with their invention in 1866, but it was not until many years later when such famed shots as Captain A. H. Bogardus, Dr. W. F. Carter, and others made long-run records with balls that glass balls received their biggest use. By that time clay pigeons which the English called "mud saucers" were beginning to fly.

Balls made of resin were tried. These had to be brittle to break, and frequently they weren't brittle enough. Light pottery balls which it was claimed would dissolve after rains also came along. And a hopeful fellow brought out a ball made of what was advertised as a fertilizer.

It took the combined efforts of an Englishman and an American to figure out a scheme to attach one end of an elastic cord to a post and the other to a ball. You pulled the ball just about to the point where the cord would break. Then you let it go and shot at it. No fooling, this was patented in 1888.

Then along came a "gyro trap" that shot a propeller-like target into the air. This device was popular for a time in this country, England, France, Belgium, and India. A variation was a "flying top" that had a propeller mounted in a hunk of clay.

Another idea introduced after the clay pigeon was a kind of brass saucer filled with powdered charcoal that was supposed to explode into a cloud of black dust when a pastebard that held it in place was shot out. Later similar birds were filled with bran.

Trap Shooting Originated in America

There is some doubt as to whether shooting at live pigeons with a gun originated in this country or England. The earliest date encountered seems to place the origin of the sport in America. Apparently Cincinnati was one of the first places where trap shooting was organized. In 1931, about 20 years before the great slaughter of passenger pigeons really got under way, Cincinnati shooters not only used passenger pigeons in their traps but also quail. Around 1900 English sparrows were used in the middle west.

get and dangle on the chain when it was struck by a pellet. Trouble was the disc didn't always disengage when struck or it disengaged as soon as it was thrown into the air.

George Ligovsky, inventor of the clay target, must have tried most of the peculiar gadgets that his contemporaries had dreamed up and figured that if someone didn't call a stop, trapshooters would all go haywire wondering whether their next target was going to erupt into smoke, feathers, or fertilizer.

According to the story Ligovsky was at the seashore one day idly watching youngsters skipping shells over the water. Presumably his eyes followed the shells as they arched through the air and perhaps he even began to "shoot" the shells with an imaginary shotgun. The records are not elaborate, but it can be assumed that he picked up some shells and conjectured that the inverted saucer shape of a shell was what gave it its stability in flight. A perfectly circular saucer would have even greater stability.

In the year 1880 Ligovsky gave his first exhibition of his clay pigeon, but like many inventors, he didn't have easy sailing. He made the mistake of making his clay pigeon of clay. Being new at it, he didn't realize that you don't make clay targets of clay. He made an even worse mistake . . . he fired his clay targets in a kiln until they were almost as hard as bricks. They were so hard that frequently they wouldn't break at all. When you'd hit them they'd ring like a bell. That could have been the death knell of the clay pigeon if Ligovsky had not abandoned clay.

Orange Targets Popular

Manufacturing modern trap targets (let's just stop calling them clay targets) isn't a hard job as it's performed by one of the country's biggest producers, Western Cartridge Company. The molten mixture of pitch and limestone is poured into water-cooled moulds in a continuous process and they stream out of the machines on endless belts. Just before they're painted, they're trimmed off. Then they're stacked 15 high into corrugated fibre boxes and away they go ready to be broken by shooters.

When targets pour out of the moulding machines, they are a black, but they receive a swatch of color. These colors include white, orange, red, yellow, and pink. Different kinds of background against which targets are thrown require targets with contrasting colors. In the Pacific northwest orange and red are favored. At the Iowa state shoot only orange targets have been used for years, and in Cuba you'll generally find pink targets.

After its long and bizarre background, the modern white flyer trap target looks like a very simple thing. It is, yet you'd be surprised to know how many different words it takes to describe it. The flat top is called the poker chip, the circular rim about the chip is called the ledge, and the rounded part that leads down to the side is the dome. The flat side is the flange. One of the most popular targets has sixteen spokes radiating from the underside which help break it into pieces even if lightly hit by only a few shot pellets.

While white flyers must be brittle enough to break when struck by only one or two pellets, they must also be strong enough to be shipped piled 15 high. On top of that they're thrown from a trap with enough force to send them spinning out at 60 miles an hour revolving at the rate of about 5,000 revolutions per minute.

Of course what makes the modern white flyer of interest and of practical use is the gadget that sends it spinning through the air. It's the throwing device called the trap. There are various types, one for trap shooting, another, one for trap shooting, another, one for trap shooting, another, one for trap shooting.

Although some people can throw their own targets, usually two people are required, one to pitch and one to shoot. The thrower stands behind and at one side of the gunner and, if he wants to put his friends shooting skill to a real test, he can throw just about any kind of target that's in the book. If you want some fun, pack a handtrap and a case of targets in your car the next time you head for open country.

JET PLANE: 1,560 Mile Flight

The air force reported the longest non-stop flight in history for a jet fighter—a trip of 1,560 miles. An F-80 jet, flying most of the test at an altitude of 35,000 feet, averaged 492 miles an hour. The air force said the flight was made between Anchorage, Alaska, and Edmonton, Alta. Three other F-80 jet fighters attempted the flight but were forced to drop out because of mechanical trouble.

to augment its fast expanding A-bomb and H-bomb program. Meanwhile, the "second installment" on the gigantic preparedness program was rapidly taking shape. President Truman sent to congress a new request for $1,834,911,000 to add war-needed materials to the nation's stockpile. The house began study of the bill immediately.

At the Pentagon, a budget expert told reporters that the armed forces probably will ask $5 billion more this fiscal year which ends next June 30. All this would run the military appropriations for the fiscal year to about $50 billion. This is just half some estimate for the annual cost of total mobilization. Rep. Clarence Cannon told the house: "We must be as strong as we can—as soon as we can. We hope we can avoid war (in which our shining cities would be rubbish—even if we win.)"

REDUCE SAFELY

Nutrition Expert Reports Dieting Can Be Done Safely, Economically

You can reduce safely and economically on a diet that includes enriched white bread at every meal, Dr. Ruth M. Leverton, professor of nutrition research at the University of Nebraska, proved in a research project recently.

"Omitting bread in a reducing diet is unnecessary and leads to increased cost of the diet," Dr. Leverton said. "No aspect of food and nutrition is subject to more abuse, fad, and misinformation than the low calorie diet necessary for weight loss."

This appetizing, low-calorie dinner featuring a pork chop, browned apple rings, enriched white bread and butter, and fresh strawberries, was one of the meals served to dieters in a scientific study. Twelve girls lost a total of 227 pounds in 8 weeks of the diet.

Dr. Leverton explained that no single food is fattening, but that it is the total number of calories eaten that determines whether a person gains or loses weight.

The baking industry, led by the American Bakers Association, is planning a nationwide observance, in 1951, of the tenth anniversary of bread enrichment, focusing attention on the resulting improvement in the nation's health. Bread "enrichment" means the addition to the bread of certain essential vitamins and minerals.

Spencer Tracy is delighted with his role in "Plymouth Adventure," that of captain of the Mayflower. The picture will explode the popular belief that all its passengers were a dull lot; some were Pilgrims, some Puritans.

Helen Deutsch, author of so many successful pictures (her latest is "King Solomon's Mines"), has proved to MGM executives that she knows what will succeed on the screen; of 30 scripts she turned down, only one was made, and it shouldn't have been. She is thrilled over her next, "Plymouth Adventure," with Spencer Tracy starring. Widow Curses Legacy That Kills Faith of a Lifetime

Whenever an out-of-towner says, "What have you got in New York that we haven't got in Punxsutawney," I throw a copy of the Manhattan Classified Phone Directory at him. On page 1067, listed under "Missing Heirs," is a man named Theodore W. Roth whose business it is to find money.

I first heard of this gent on a radio program and this morning, in a mood to muse and meander, I stopped in to see him at his office on West 42nd Street.

"Glad to see you," said Mr. Roth. "You don't happen to be related to a Sam Bramson of Paterson, do you?"

"Not that I know of," I said. "Too bad," said Mr. Roth. "Bramson left a hundred thousand dollars and I'm trying to find a relative I can give it to."

"Is there much unclaimed money lying around?" I asked. "About eight billion dollars," said Mr. Roth, "mostly in forgotten bank accounts, stock held in escrow, uncollected insurance policies and inheritances nobody has claimed."

Billy Rose

"WHAT'S THE biggest case you ever worked on?" I asked. "The Garrett case in Philadelphia," said Mr. Roth. "Back in 1930 a lady named Henrietta Edwina Garrett died and left property worth forty million dollars. So far over six thousand people have claimed it, six of them have been thrown into jail, a couple have committed suicide, and several lawyers have been disbarred for phoneying up evidence. One of the applicants was Adolph Hitler who argued that the next of kin was a German citizen and that the money should be sent to the Fatherland. I'm happy to report he didn't get a dime.

"You must meet a lot of screwballs in your profession," I said. "Mr. Roth dug into his desk and brought out a letter. It was from a woman in Massachusetts who claimed that one of her ancestors had deeded a cranberry bog to an Indian squaw, but that the deed was faulty and she wanted the property back. The bog, she explained, is now known as Manhattan Island.

"Last year," Mr. Roth went on, "I got one that was even wackier. A girl in Texas wrote in to say that only a second cousin stood between her and a chunk of oil land worth a million dollars. She was planning a murder her kinsman, but before

WAIT YOUR TURN

By Ona Freeman Lathrop

BESS WILKINS wondered if she was going to be able to stand another twenty or thirty years of Henry's stubbornness and impatience! "I declare, your father is getting so cranky in his old age, I wonder if I'm going to be able to live out my life with him," she told her married daughter, Alice.

"Why, Mother, how you talk!" Alice looked shocked. "Well, he actually embarrasses me in restaurants and public places if we aren't the first to be waited on. And today he wouldn't even bank his money from that last real estate deal just because there was a line ahead of him."

"Just don't pay any attention to him," Alice advised. "You probably aggravate him more when you argue with him. Maybe he isn't well!"

"There's nothing the matter with him that a good hard jolt wouldn't cure, and I'm going to think up a way to jolt him out of his cussedness," Bess announced.

But she hadn't yet thought up the jolt when she and Henry were driving out for groceries that evening.

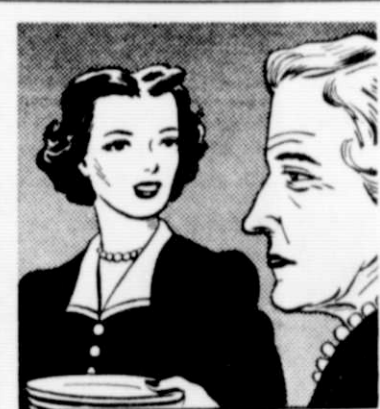

"Got to have some gas in the car before we can go to town," Henry announced, a scowl clutched up his once-so-placed face.

"Henry, I'll need some money," she informed him as they drove along.

"Well, here, take my wallet and get out a ten-spot."

Silently she counted the bills. No sense in Henry carrying that much money on him. She helped herself and replaced the wallet.

Henry pulled into the neighborhood gas-station. No one

Alice advised her mother not to pay any attention to him, "Maybe he isn't well," she suggested.

came out. He honked the horn. Then he honked again, not once but twice, and then again—a long blast. Bess couldn't contain herself any longer, much as she had determined not to argue with him.

"Now Henry, don't be so impatient," she said meekly. "Well, for the love of Mike! When a man wants service, he wants it quick." He gave the horn another fierce blast.

"But Henry, you know that horn sticks sometimes. You'll have it sticking if you blow it like that."

"Then they can fix it." And he tooted it again. No one came out.

"By the Lord Harry, I'm going in there and tell them what I think of them," he shouted, getting out. "I can see some one in there moving around."

BESS WATCHED. Yes, she could see a form moving in the dim interior. Funny the lights hadn't been turned on yet. She saw Henry step inside and close the door behind him. Then she saw something that made her heart skip a beat. His hand went up high above his head. A stick-up!

There ought to be some way! After all, she couldn't have anything happen to Henry. She leaned over and pushed the horn—clipped down. It stuck as she had hoped it would.

The station door flew open. The masked bandit stuck his head out. "Shut that off, sister!" he snarled. "I can't. It's stuck," she told him, trying to keep her voice from squeaking in high soprano.

"Get that crate out of here then," he snarled.

"I don't know how to drive, and besides, my husband has the keys in his pocket." She could see heads sticking out of doors and people stopping to turn and grin at the corner.

"Come on, Eddie, we'd got to scam out of here," the first one croaked, and they came out on the run to a parked car. By that time a police car was rounding the corner.

Henry and the gas-station attendant came out sheepishly to disconnect the horn and fix it.

"You sure saved our skins, Bess," Henry murmured in a subdued voice. "But my bankroll is gone. After this—"

Bess smiled. "Oh, I had taken all the money out of your wallet except nine dollars, but I think that will teach you not to be so impatient anyway. Henry. Next time wait your turn."

LYNN SAYS:
Serve Those Pancakes As You Like Them

Heat syrup for pancakes before serving and add butter to the syrup if you wish. This helps keep pancakes hot when served.

Seasoned cottage cheese wrapped in thin pancakes and kept hot in the oven is a good extender idea for a main course when you're serving a pot roast.

Marmalade, jam, jelly or cinnamon sugar are favored by some with their hot cakes.

Here is a dessert pancake which is nice enough for company. Melt and blend a package of semi-sweet chocolate chips with 1/4 cup evaporated milk. Add grated orange rind, 1/2 cup chopped nuts and dash of vanilla. Spread on pancakes and roll. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and slide under broiler to glaze the tops.

Crushed pineapple may be heated in a thickened sauce and used as another sauce for dessert pancakes. Stack three or more together and then cut in wedge-shaped pieces to serve.

1 cup pineapple syrup
6 tablespoons sugar or corn syrup, light or dark
3 teaspoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons cold water
4 tablespoons butter
4 slices pineapple, canned

Heat pineapple syrup to boiling. Mix sugar or corn syrup, cornstarch and water; add to heated syrup; bring to boil over low heat stirring constantly; simmer 3 minutes. Remove from heat, add butter and pineapple, cut in small pieces.

APPLES ARE PLENTIFUL now and can be used for lovely dessert pancakes as follows:

Apple Griddle Cakes (Makes 12-15 cakes)
2 beaten eggs
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup finely chopped apple

Combine eggs, milk, and shortening. Add flour sifted with salt, baking powder, sugar, and apple; beat smooth. Bake on ungreased griddle. When baked, spread with butter and brown sugar; roll up and serve.

Pancakes go to dessert in color when they're made paper thin and rolled with cranberry sauce, strawberry jam or orange marmalade.

Good with breakfast pancakes is a spread made by creaming together butter with brown sugar or maple sugar.

Here's a light serving tip for breakfast cakes: sprinkle with granulated sugar and dash with a bit of lemon juice.

Season your cream sauce with a fine sprinkling of herbs for creamed chicken or turkey and serve over hot crisp waffles. Compliments will smother you!

Vienna sausage served with corn pancakes make a delicious combination for quick supper or luncheon. Hot, buttered syrup may be served with them.

If you're serving pancakes to a crowd, heat the oven and stack the cakes on a cookie sheet to keep warm until ready to serve enough at one time.

Main course pancakes may be made from slightly thinned, leftover breakfast pancake batter. Spread with creamed chicken, ham, liver or lamb mixture.

Canned tomato soup diluted slightly with milk or cream and then heated makes a good sauce for pancakes served spread with deviled ham.

Luncheon pancakes may be stacked in piles of three or four with grated cheese in-between each cake. Pour over this creamed dried beef, diced ham, sliced eggs or mush roots.

Ain't It So

Household Hints

When there's nobody around to hold a hank of yarn while you wind it into a ball, drop the hank over a lamp shade that revolves easily and start winding.

Leather chairs can be cleaned by rubbing them with a soft cloth dipped in ordinary milk—or better still, in beaten egg white. When they're dry, go over them again with a clean soft cloth.

Mild soap and lukewarm water will do for imitation leather. To prevent cracking and peeling, follow the washing with a thin coat of petroleum jelly.

If someone burns a hole in a leather-covered table top, hide it by melting candle wax of a matching color; pour it into the hole and smooth it out while it's soft.

Lots of house dresses, ready for discard, can easily be made over into aprons; so can cast-off playuits, but more easily. Just take the skirt of a playuit which you used to tie in front and reverse it. That is, tie it in back, and you'll have an apron in front of you.

To stiffen organdy curtains, mix up a tub of very thin starch water and let the curtains soak for quite a while. Then hang them up and iron when they are dry.

Truman's Temper

ALL presidents, being human, sometimes lose their temper. And Harry Truman, being intensely devoted to his family, has an understandable tendency to shoot from the hip when it comes to his wife and daughter.

However, those on the inside of the White House know that presidential fuse-blowing is not confined to protecting his family. More and more the President's temper has influenced public policy. Quick decisions, swayed by personal peve, can affect the lives of millions, and the public has the right to know about them.

Take, for instance, price controls. Failure to impose price controls has shot up the cost of living by billions of dollars, has increased the cost of rearmament to Uncle Sam, and started an inflation spiral which may do indefinite damage.

Yet congress long ago voted presidential power to impose price controls. In fact, Republicans led in giving the President more power than he requested. However, this power has not been used.

Anti-Baruch One reason is that Bernard Baruch came down to Washington and helped persuade the Republicans to vote these powers; and the President hates Bernard Baruch. He hates him with a passion that distorts and discolors his judgment. When Baruch's name comes up in conversations, dispassion and reason leaves the President.

The hatred began when Baruch declined an invitation to serve on a committee of Democrats to raise money during the 1948 campaign. The President then wrote him a letter not unlike the one sent to music critic Paul Hume; later, he fired Baruch's brother as ambassador to Holland and timed it to occur on Baruch's birthday. Bernie, once a frequent caller at the White House, has never been near there since.

Later, the President blamed Baruch for getting revenge on him by blocking confirmation of Truman's close friend, Mon Wallgren, as chairman of the national security resources board. Baruch denies this. But his influence with southern senators is considerable, and White House advisers gave him credit for the fact that Wallgren was never confirmed.

Anti-Taft Another illustration of what presidential peve can do to national policy is Sen. Bob Taft. For a long time the President has been wanting to get the bipartisan foreign policy back on an even keel. But the cornerstone of such a policy is Senator Taft—most influential Republican on capitol hill. For his part, Taft has made no secret of the fact that he would like to be summoned to the White House. When other Republicans, Senators Wherry and Wiley, return from presidential conferences, Taft has queried them like a cub reporter afraid of getting scooped. And when he heard that the White House might call him in last week, Taft was like a schoolgirl about to go to her first prom. He even offered to cancel a trip to Yale, where he is a member of the board of trustees.

But the President who has a personal prejudice against Taft, would not invite him. Pearson Prediction Another illustration of presidential peve which upset his own appointment was the proposed loyalty review board, composed of Judge John Parker of North Carolina, Judge John Patrick Higgins of Massachusetts, and Adm. Chester Nimitz. White House advisers had sold the President on appointing this board to supersede the Tydings committee for the purpose of thoroughly examining the question of communism in the state department.

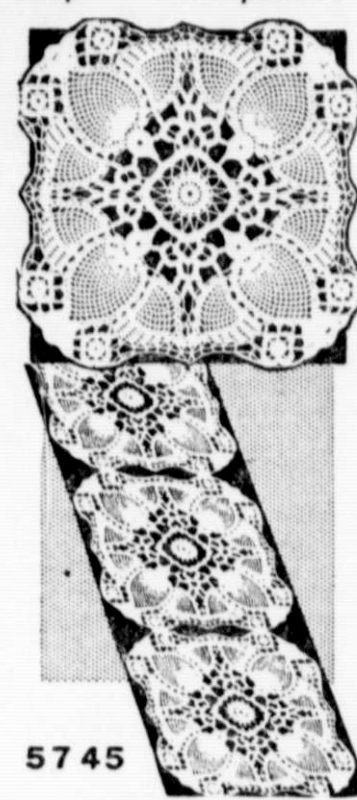

A nonpartisan board of judges, it was argued, would lift the question of state department loyalty out of partisan politics and give a categorical answer to Senator McCarthy. The President, at first, was all for it.

Then this commentator predicted that the board would be appointed. Immediately the President got peevish. He was not, he made it clear to advisers, going to help to make a "Pearson prediction come true." The bipartisan loyalty board was scrapped, McCarthy's charges became the chief issue of the campaign, and some of the President's staunchest supporters were defeated.

Palace Guard Every member of the White House secretariat knows what the President's peevish and pet aversions are. But up until recently they did little to put a quietus on them. In fact, the man who tried hardest to buck the President on certain idiosyncrasies, Clark Clifford, was the object of an intense and jealous campaign by John Steelman. The White House staff know, of course, that anything even remotely critical of his wife or daughter makes the President blinding mad.

When the President has time to consider a problem thoroughly, and when he doesn't let personalities influence his judgment, his decisions are courageous and usually sound. Invariably he battles for the little fellow. But if, for instance, Matt Connelly, who knows all of Harry Truman's prejudices and work methods, wants to put across a deal for Pan American Airways and American Overseas Airlines, he can usually do it—by dropping a few hints and by arranging a White House conference with one key man absent.

WHEN SLEEP WON'T COME AND YOU FEEL GLUM

Use Chewing-Gum Laxative - REMOVES WASTE... NOT GOOD FOOD. When you can't sleep—feel just awful because you need a laxative—Go as soon as you can—chew FEEN-A-MINT. FEEN-A-MINT is wonderfully different! Doctors say many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon—right in the stomach. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion. Flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy you feel weak, worn out. But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that weak, tired feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel fine, full of life! 25c, 50c, or only 10c.

WISCONSIN—

A GREAT DAIRY STATE

Wisconsin is the nation's number one dairy state. The value of the dairy cattle is in excess of one and one-half billion dollars. No other state has as many dairy cattle per square mile as does Wisconsin.

Wisconsin produces about 15 billion lbs. of milk per year or as much as six average states in the nation. No other state has as many silos per farm as does Wisconsin. These silos provide green succulent feed for the dairy cow population when the long winter period is with us.

Wisconsin is the leading cheese producing state in the nation. It ranks first in the production of every American brand of cheese including evaporated whole milk and condensed skim milk. In the production of condensed whole milk the state is exceeded only by Minnesota.

In butter production Minnesota ranks first, Iowa second and Wisconsin third. Cold storage stocks of butter and cheese are relatively high at present. There is over 200 million lbs. of butter in cold storage and slightly more than 200 million lbs. of cheese. These figures may look big to the casual reader. But put them on a per-capita basis and they become relatively insignificant. In round numbers the cold storage stocks of butter and cheese is only one and one-half and two lbs. respectively.

With greatly increased demands from the military these surpluses can disappear in a short period of time. The 1950 surpluses are considerably less than those of a year ago. Hence, the dairyman who has continued to produce at full capacity and in some instances at prices somewhat below parity, may look to the future with a hope for better prices and for a market that will absorb all that he can produce.

VETERINARIANS APPOINTED FOR BRUCELLOSIS PROGRAM

The state veterinarian's office has in recent weeks made certain changes in the veterinary personnel for doing calf vaccination and blood testing for brucellosis control under the Wisconsin township plan. Below are listed the townships of Washington county together with the name and address of the veterinarian who has been appointed for that township:

Addison—Dr. A. J. Klettli, Slinger; Barton—Dr. J. T. Kennelly, Hartford; Erin—Dr. C. J. Schubert, Slinger; Farmington—Dr. K. E. Lloyd, R. 2, West Bend; Germantown—Dr. J. T. Kennelly, Hartford; Dr. G. A. Gottleman, Hartford; Jackson—Dr. A. C. Bismeyer, Jackson; Kewaskum—Dr. E. O. Nehmer, Campbellsport; Polk—Dr. A. J. Klettli, Richfield; Dr. Gilbert Lewis, Monomoch Falls; Trenton—Dr. K. E. Lloyd; Wayne—Dr. J. T. Kennelly; West Bend—Dr. J. T. Kennelly.

Herd owners desiring to have the work done by the state must call the veterinarian assigned to the township. If you wish to pay for any services rendered, you may call any veterinarian.

Herd owners are to be reminded that calf vaccination must be done when the animal is between 4 and 8 months of age. Many dairymen prefer to vaccinate when the calf is 6 months old. An advance notice of several weeks should be given your veterinarian for brucellosis control work under the township program.

COUNTY FAIR OFFICIALS HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION

The annual convention of Wisconsin county fair officers and secretaries was held at the Schroeder Hotel in Milwaukee on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Those from Washington county who attended were Otto Koller, Barton;

Earl Ganger, West Bend, Route 1, and Adolph Lofy, Hubertus, who comprise the Washington county fair board. E. E. Skalsky, who serves as secretary of the Washington county fair assisted with the program.

MEETING OF COUNTY FARM MANAGEMENT ASS'N. MEMBERS

All members of the Washington County Farm Management association are to meet at the Jackson village hall, Jackson, on Wednesday, Jan. 10, for the purpose of checking in their farm account books. Members will have received a notice from Willis D. Freitag, fieldman from the county association giving information as to time of the meeting. Bring with you all statements of farm income and expenditures and such other records as will be needed to complete your farm account books for 1950.

It is very important that all members of the county association be present. The task of checking the records will be done by the members themselves with guidance and help from Mr. Freitag and others.

SPEED LAWS ARE MEANT TO BE OBEYED, SHERIFF WARNS

"Speed limit laws are meant to be obeyed, and it's our job to help people obey them."

That's the viewpoint of Sheriff Sylvester A. Naumann of the Washington county sheriff's department.

"Drivers who know their speed laws and obey them are the cream of the crop so far as we are concerned," Sheriff Naumann remarked this week. "But if a motorist is arrested for speeding, he's still learning his lesson the hard way. The hard way is to become involved in one of the many serious accidents resulting when cars are pushed beyond the prescribed speed limits."

He pointed out that one of the most important laws limits speed to 15 miles per hour when passing a stopped school bus. Failure to obey this regulation endangers the lives of school children and will not be tolerated. "The really considerate motorist goes the law one better," Naumann declared. "He brings his car to a complete stop before driving past a standing school bus."

A similar speed limit, 15 miles per hour, applies to school zones when children are present. In business and residence districts, the state speed limit is 25 miles per hour. Motorists are also required to watch for restricted speed zones and to obey the posted limits.

With longer hours of darkness in the offing, motorists are reminded that the maximum state limit is 55 miles per hour from one hour after sunset until one hour before sunrise. The daylight maximum is 55 miles per hour.

VETS RECALLED TO ACTIVE SERVICE SHOULD NOTIFY VA

Veterans recalled to active military duty while they are receiving benefit payments from the veterans administration can save themselves and the government a lot of trouble by notifying VA immediately of their recall, the VA said.

These benefit payments include GI Bill or Public Law 16 subsistence allowances and compensation for service-connected disabilities. The law does not permit a veteran to receive such VA payments once he goes back into uniform, the VA explained.

VA added that if a veteran receives such a payment covering any period after he has entered active duty, he should return it to the VA office which has his records. Otherwise, it will remain as an overpayment against him until disposed of.

The notification to VA of recall to active duty should include the veteran's "C" (claims) number, his complete name and address, the amount of the VA payment, what it's for, and the date he is to go back into service.

The veteran can send this notice to the veterans service officer, George A. Kolb, and his office will forward same to the proper VA office. Wisconsin sugar beet growers find that they can get better yields by putting salt—300 to 500 pounds to the acre—on their land.

About 50 Wisconsin counties are currently represented in the annual farm short course at the University of Wisconsin. Young men from half a dozen other states, along with two foreign students, are also enrolled.

Dairy plant fieldmen are meeting at the University of Wisconsin Feb. 1 and 2 in connection with Farm and Home Week.
