

State Supervisors Submit Favorable Report on Our School

Paul Landmann, clerk of the school board of School District No. 5, Kewaskum, received a very favorable report from C. E. Watson, state superintendent of schools, following a recent visit to the local high school by two state school supervisors, along with County Superintendent H. D. Sheski.

The letter to Clerk Landmann from the state superintendent reads as follows: May 17, 1951

Mr. Paul Landmann, Clerk of the School Board, Kewaskum, Wisconsin. Dear Mr. Landmann: This letter will inform your board of a supervisory visit which was made to the Kewaskum High School by State School Supervisors Anna May Vold and J. F. Waddell on Tuesday, May 15, 1951. They were accompanied by County Superintendent H. D. Sheski.

While at your school the supervisors visited the teachers at work in their classrooms, checked over your building, carefully evaluated your library situation, and held conferences with individual teachers and also with Mr. Rose. You have a good faculty with some who are excellent. It is reported that all of your teachers are to return for the coming year, with the exception of one, and a replacement is under contract for this position. It is further reported that all returning teachers were re-elected, with raises based on a salary schedule, which appears to be fair. At least all teachers can know just where they stand if they stay in your system. This was a wise move and will pay off in the long run.

The check up on your building and its facilities shows that a fine building program has been initiated and that the first unit of the program, a grade building, has been completed and is now occupied. This is a splendid building and meets a long felt need for your school. There is no doubt but what you made a wise move in taking care of the grade situation first. An addition was made to the high school building which provides quarters for industrial arts and agriculture. These facilities were badly needed also. All in all you have made some splendid moves which will make it possible for your school to function more effectively. You are to be congratulated upon taking the initiative in getting this work under way.

Other changes noted in the report have to do with improving the shower facilities for both boys and girls. With the increase of physical education activities this fact will make for a great improvement in the program. Your building is being well maintained and the custodial care is excellent. Your custodian takes a real interest in his work and is trying to give the service as best he can.

One spot is badly crowded and that is the home economics department but it is reported that you have anticipated this situation by laying plans so that some time in the future a second story will be added to the shop unit and this will give the department the space that is so badly needed. Another unit which is planned for the future is a unit that will provide a new gymnasium and auditorium. This will be a fine move as your present gymnasium is rather small to properly take care of the new program of physical education and a new auditorium will Notling of Kewaskum. He was the student with the highest scholastic average for the four years of work. Notling was enrolled in the college of science, literature and arts.

Children's Pictures to Be Taken Tuesday

Tuesday, June 19, is the big day for the picture taking of your youngsters! The Statesman is having pictures taken of all children who are brought by their parents or other guardian to the Modern Woodman hall between 10 a. m. and 6 p. m. absolutely free of charge. The Woltz Studios of Des Moines, Ia., nationally known children's photographers, who have taken these pictures for us in previous years will again be in charge of the photography. The Statesman wants a picture of your child to print in its forthcoming feature "Citizens of Tomorrow," a series of photographic studies of local children. The more we get the better the feature will be, so the cooperation of the mothers and fathers is urged.

It often seems to parents that children are little one minute and are grown up the next, so fast does a child's growing stage pass. Here is a splendid opportunity to catch a likeness of your child or children at this present stage for the pleasure you will get out of it in future years and for the pleasure you will enjoy in seeing it in print. You will want to clip it from this, your home town newspaper, and preserve it for the youngster when he or she grows up.

There is absolutely no charge or obligation for taking the pictures. Parents don't even have to be a subscriber to the Statesman, nor even a reader. You do not have to purchase pictures either, though you may obtain additional prints by arranging direct with the studio representative if you want them. That is entirely up to you!

Miss Cudnoskoske was not one of the two winners selected in the narrowed down regional race but she and the Statesman can feel very proud of her success in the district test against 74 other entrants and being one of the 21 finalists out of an original field of about 150 contestants.

Beauty contestants selected at Fond du Lac to represent the 10-county area in the finals at Waukesha on July 11 were Carol Jean Donovan of Van Dyne and Marilyn Schille of Forestville. They represent Fond du Lac and Door counties. The winners were announced by Don Wilkinson of the state department of agriculture; Jack Reynolds, director of the Wisconsin state fair, and Cliff Hutchinson, director of public relations for the state department of agriculture. THE NEW MEAT RULES

The latest OPS beef ceilings should be interlocked with National Laugh Week, Toothless Tuesday and All-American Confusion Month. Under the DiSalle-Johnston regulations tender cuts go up and the ones so tough they fight back when cornered go down a little. Or vice versa. Even the butchers are confused. And the shoppers are too groggy to talk authentically. All anybody can be sure of is that the vegetarians are the only Americans getting a break.

The butcher now asks, "Do you want this meat for eating or for wrestling?" If the housewife answers correctly she wins five sets of OPS directives and has a chance to go for the big jackpot question: "Should Mother Hubbard now sue the dog to recover possession of the bone?"

There is something new on the American dinner table: The Mike Disalle Platter or Rip and Tear Blue Plate Special. (Try one and be convinced that the rumors of a rubber shortage are false.) Washington prepares and issues the new meat rules, but refuses to commit itself on what the public should use for knives and whether each one should have a double handle so two people can work on the same cut at once.

The OPS has labored and brought forth a tougher hamburger. In fact there is a new hamburger on the market. Instead of putting a thin hamburger between two pieces of toast they now acknowledge the limitations of the American jawbone and put one slice of toast between the two thin slices of hamburger. This gives the aspect of a treasure hunt to the routine act of appeasing hunger. Meat is so high, since Mike DiSalle and Eric Johnston began protecting the public, that there should be time payments and a trade-in allowance on a used chuck roast. Before the OPS started controlling meat prices it took luck to acquire a tenderloin steak. Now it takes violence.

Porterhouse and sirloin are up 12 to 15 cents a pound, avoirdupois, ad valorem and catch-as-catch-can. If you want chuck, rump, or worse you save a few cents. But this is offset by the fact no ceiling prices have been put on the larger size hachets and hammers. Or are still halled up? Markets are now required to exhibit the cuts in trays with ceiling prices attached or nearly so. The effect of this is to frighten the housewife sooner than usual and steel her against future rulings. The butcher-market song of the hour is "When You Come To The End of a Perfect Tray and the Prices Begin To Lower."

The more we look into the matter the more we are satisfied that the OPA gave us the cold cut, the OPS gives us the deep freeze. But maybe nobody should kick. The ceilings help the war effort. If you can bite into any meat you get for less than a dollar a pound you automatically become physically eligible for the draft, regardless of age or dependents.

The meat men, insisting that it is impossible to carve up a steer to comply with the OPS rules, offer to bring a carcass to Washington and let a butcher try to carve it under DiSalle's directions. Mr. DiSalle is not keen for the test. He says he knows nothing about carving. Strictly a fork and fountain-pen man, we take it. (What are we having for dinner? Stew. With the fat cut off the meat but not off the bureaucrats.)

Household Hints

When talcum powder is spilled on a rug, don't try to sweep it up. That spreads it. Hold your vacuum cleaner over it to draw off the loose powder. What's left can be removed by rubbing the spot very gently with a damp cloth. Rinse the cloth frequently so the powder that sticks will not go back on the rug.

Mud on non-washables should be allowed to dry completely—and then some—before it's scraped off with a dull knife or brushed off. Soak washables first in cold water, then finish the job by ordinary laundering.

If an overdose of laundry bluing results in a stain, wet the spot with alcohol and launder the article again. Should sterner measures be in order, use oxalic acid, but rinse it out immediately.

The table for a buffet supper should be arranged in logical fashion so that guests can pick up food in sequence, the drink last.

In choosing a cloth with which to apply various cleaning liquids—such as carbon tetrachloride and commercial brands of dry-cleaning fluids or solvents, as well as aqueous solutions like soapy water, ammonia and other mixtures—your best all-purpose choice is cheesecloth.

Snowball doughnuts are made from biscuit mix, applesauce, nutmeg, and eggs.

When making date-nut-bread, cook the dates in hot water until a thick mixture develops.

There's something everybody should know about removing stains from taffeta materials. They will respond readily to cleaning fluids; but poor quality taffeta has a strong tendency to "crack up" after treatment. So proceed with caution and at your own risk.

U.S. Society Has Distributed 406 Million Bibles in 135 Years

This year, the American Bible Society will celebrate 135 years of service in promoting wider circulation of the Bible. It was in May, 1816, that a group of Christian leaders gathered in New York and founded the national society for the distribution of the Bible.

America was embarking on a great period of expansion when the Bible Society was founded. New York was a small city of some 10,000 people clustered around the Battery, but the country was spreading westward. Already settlements of hundreds, then thousands of homes were dotting the wilderness. It was the era of the American pioneer, and along with the need for roads and schools came another—the need for Bibles.

Although there were local societies for this purpose in their own communities, none was able to fulfill the needs to the west. It was Samuel J. Mills, "the father of the foreign missions," who was most instrumental in calling together the historic meeting which brought about the formation of a national Bible society. Many notables of the day were in attendance. Among them were Dr. Lyman Beecher, "the father of the Beechers," James Fenimore Cooper and Elias Boudinot, who as president of the Continental Congress had signed the peace treaty with Great Britain in 1789.

Boudinot was elected the first president of the society. His vice-president was John Hay, the first chief justice of the United States supreme court. In later years, still another great supreme court chief justice was to serve as vice-president of the society, Charles Evans

Dr. Frederick W. Cropp, general secretary of the American Bible Society, holds in his right hand a copy of the Scriptures which the society distributed to soldiers during the Civil War. In his left hand is the edition being distributed to servicemen today.

Hughes. The first treasurer was Richard Varick, the second mayor of New York City.

AS AMERICA expanded, so did the society. From their first small headquarters in the offices of a printer, they moved into their own establishment. After repeated enlargements, the society moved to their own building on Astor Place, which was then so far uptown as to be considered almost a suburb of the city. The Bible House, which was the only building of its day to occupy an entire block in New York, was the show place of the city. Today, although the Astor Place Bible House is still being used, main headquarters for the society is housed in a modern building on Park Avenue and 57th Street in New York.

The number of Bibles, whole and in portions, printed by the American Bible Society since their first edition of 10,000 Bibles in 1816 is staggering. During the Civil War period alone it issued in the United States 5,297,832 Scriptures, most of which were New Testaments for soldiers fighting on both sides. In its first 50 years, the American Bible Society has distributed 21,409,996 volumes; in one hundred years, 123,292,359 copies of the Scriptures had been distributed. At the end of 135 years, 406,422,004 volumes of the Scriptures were distributed in 1,000 languages.

And yet the distribution increases each year. "Never before has the Bible been so wanted," said Dr. Robert T. Taylor, general secretary of the society, at the 135th annual meeting held in New York recently. "The 1950 reports show a record distribution in almost every part of the world. In my ten years in the Bible Society I have been nurtured on emergencies, but I have never seen anything like the present opportunities."

Today the American Bible Society is a prime factor in making the Bible the least expensive and most widely distributed book in the world. In many languages, a Gospel may be had for as little as one cent and if the penny isn't available, it may be had for nothing.

It is America's most purchased book. It is the world's best seller. But it is more than that. Horace Greeley once said, "It is impossible in any wise to enslave a Bible-reading people." The Bible is a book of freedom.

Mac Could Have Left UN Command, Kept Japan Job

By Wright A. Patterson

NOW THAT we have heard both sides I am convinced that General MacArthur has the best of the argument, and it would seem that General Marshall, as spokesman for the administration, largely conceded that. What I still do not understand is why it was necessary to summarily relieve General MacArthur of all his duties in the far east, where his opponents admit he had done an outstanding job.

If the United Nations took exception to his proposed methods, that organization could have asked President Truman to have made a change in their field commander, for he was employed by the United Nations as supreme commander of its forces in Korea.

That would have left MacArthur in Japan where he had done a remarkable job, and where he was needed, at least, until a Japanese peace treaty was completed. That would have saved for us a man who General Marshall says is better qualified to advise on military and diplomatic lines than any other man in the world today, and whom we need in directing and formulating a far eastern policy.

Through the senate investigation, the President may have mollified many members of his party, to an extent that they will accept the verdict, whatever it may be, if any. But nationally, he has lost with the people much of the leadership he had previously enjoyed.

If he had to fire a general, why did he not exercise his authority on Gen. Harry Vaughn. His passing would not have been considered a serious loss, or regretted by any, other than the recipients of deep freeze units.

The whole MacArthur incident has resulted only in a loss to the nation of a valuable, and specially talented administrator and soldier at a time when we are in sad need of such talents.

While there are only seven Civil War veterans still living, the government is paying out $6,000,000 a year in Civil War pensions, most of it going to 9,500 widows, and to 1,331 children of veterans.

Many of our ills are caused by feeling sorry for ourselves.

Defense mobilization director, Charles E. Wilson, a President Truman appointee, has made a new move in the way of socialistic centralization of the government. He has instructed the governors of all states, the mayors of all large cities, and the governments of all countries that they can not borrow money in excess of one million dollars with which to finance new, or uncompleted projects, without first getting a clearance from his office.

The first of such notices should have gone to the White House. The one individual most prone to start new, and unneeded projects is Mr. Wilson's big boss, President Truman. The next of such notices should have gone to congress.

The states, cities and counties are but small fry in the matter of unnecessary spending. How about the

THE FICTION CORNER

WRONG AND RIGHT

By Richard H. Wilkinson

OF COURSE it was wrong for Johnny to kiss her and it was right for Jinny to slap his face. They stood there with the desk chair between them, staring at each other for a full moment. Jinny recovered first. She turned away and walked to the door with her head high and went out.

Johnny sighed and sat down at his desk. He was amazed and disgusted with himself. Ten minutes ago he had been the practical executive. He had rung for his secretary, Miss Alyne, and a girl with titian colored hair and blue eyes had appeared instead.

"I'm Jinny Alison," she explained matter-of-factly. "Miss Alyne is ill today and I'm taking her place."

She had stood looking at him from the other side of the chair, and without saying a word he had reached out and pulled her toward him and kissed her, and she had slapped his face.

Sitting at his desk Johnny wondered why he hadn't noticed Jinny Alison before. She must be new, he told himself. He gestured angrily. What a fool he'd made of himself.

He didn't believe in mixing business with—well, with things like that. And, he told himself fiercely, he wasn't going to begin now. Miss Alison would have to be dismissed. He couldn't have a girl around whom he'd kissed and who might think of him as—well, in that way.

He stood up, grimly determined. The matter had better be attended to at once. Half way to the outer office he stopped short. Suppose Miss Alison had already quit? Probably she had. The possibility that this might be the case brought on a sense of panic. He rushed to the door and opened it, was vastly relieved to discover a titian-colored head bent over a desk close by the door.

He went back to his own desk. Well, she hadn't quit and he wouldn't fire her. No, he decided to let her stay and ignore her entirely.

During the remainder of the morning he put Miss Alison from his mind. When he had letters to dictate he rang for a stenographer in exaggerated unconcern. And when prim Abby Nathan appeared he told himself he was relieved.

THAT night Johnny went to sleep putting Jinny out of his mind. The next morning he reached the office before nine. At 9:15 he opened the door of the outer office and breathed easy again when he saw that Jinny was at her post. At noon he looked toward her desk on his way out, caught her eye and felt strangely sick when she turned coldly away. During lunch he became pretty grim, admitting to himself that he was making rather a mess of his resolve. Miss Alison would have to go. There was no use, he just couldn't concentrate with her on his conscience. It would solve the whole problem to have her out of his sight.

His first act on reaching the office was to call Miss Nathan and ask her to send in Miss Alison.

Jinny, notebook in hand, entered and stood looking at him from the other side of the interview chair just as she had the day he had kissed her.

"Miss Alison," he began, and stopped. He cleared his throat importantly. "Miss Alison, I've called you in to—to apologize for what happened the day before yesterday."

"Oh," said Jinny.

"I don't want you to think," Johnny went on, scarcely recognizing his own voice, "that I—er—kiss—er—act that way with all—with other stenographers."

"Oh, I don't," said Jinny, her eyes wide.

"In fact," said Johnny, "you're the first one, I mean, well—" He stopped, desperate, panicky, angry. "Miss Alison, you're fired!"

"Oh!" said Jinny.

Johnny gulped. "No, I don't mean that! What I mean is, I can't concentrate unless—unless—we have an understanding. Oh, the devil! That wasn't what I intended to say at all. I mean, Miss Alison, would you like to go out to dinner with me?"

"It might be nice," Jinny agreed.

Many Farm Homes Need Remodeling

Over 50 Per Cent Are At Least 30 Years Old

Most American homes—and farm homes in particular—were erected more than a quarter of a century ago.

Nearly 23,000,000 of the estimated 42,000,000 homes in the nation are at least 30 years old. Millions of these older homes are in need of modernization and repair.

The expected cutback in new home construction as a result of Remodeling of this previously unused barn provided much-needed space for livestock and hay storage and at the same time improved the over-all appearance of the farm property and increased its value. The completed barn (bottom) with new asphalt shingle roof, new siding and other alterations contrasts sharply with the dilapidated structure (above) as it appeared before start of the work. Here's proof that remodeling pays when the structure of an old building is basically sound.

credit restrictions and other controls stemming from the defense program will make materials, such as asphalt roofing, siding, insulation and paints available to meet the pent-up demands for modernization and repairs on the farms of the nation.

Farm Families Know Type Of Home They Will Build

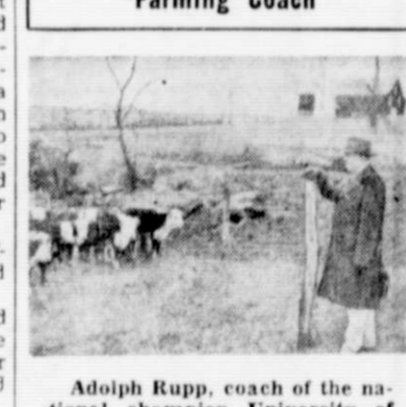

Farm families know the type of house they want to have if, and when, they build. But building is more a question of "when" than "if," according to a recent survey of 12 north-central states.

Approximately nine hundred families took part in the survey. They were selected to give a cross-section of the wants and desires of 2,270,000 farm families living in Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

A one-story house with six or seven rooms, a sloping roof and central heating was first choice. The house must have one or more porches, a spare bedroom, a basement or cellar, coat closet on the first floor, a separate dining room, first floor workroom, and a drive so planned in relation to the house that callers will come to the front door.

Most families wanted to have a dining area in the kitchen, but many of them wanted an additional dining room which could accommodate six or more persons.

'Farming' Coach

Adolph Rupp, coach of the national champion University of Kentucky basketball team, studies his crop of hereford heifers with the same sharp eyes that he looks over a freshman basketball player reporting for his first practice. In his program to improve his hereford herd, the "farming" coach will keep most of the heifers on his first team providing they develop as expected.

New Jersey Farm Prices Behind National Average

New Jersey farmers have gained less from increasing prices than have the nation's farmers, according to Rutgers University agricultural economists.

Farm prices in the state have increased 13 per cent since the start of the Korean war compared to 26 per cent for the nation as a whole. Most important, New Jersey commodities are milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables.

U. S. Farm Land Prices Are Highest in History

With land prices the highest in history, many buyers are not taking into account the added investment needed to make many farms highly productive, agricultural economists report.

Land prices today are up about 14 per cent over a year ago. But many buyers are not taking into account the total cost of all extra investments that are needed to make poor land highly productive.

The Way it Happened...

IN PITTSBURGH... Held at a burglary suspect after police found him trying the doors of the rectory of a church with an assortment of twenty-five keys, a 67-year-old ex-convict told officers: "I was just looking for a place to pray."

IN LOS ANGELES... The motorcycle cop who stopped George Fisher Jr. for doing 78 m.p.h. in his small British car, dutifully recorded the explanation: "(Defendant) stated that due to small car, (he) gets pushed around. So takes lead."

By long established custom, the Korean bridegroom stays with his bride three days in his father-in-law's house before returning with her to his own parents' house. Official manhood begins for the Korean only after marriage. Even if he is 70, a bachelor's opinion has little influence.

The Koreans' traditional habit of wearing many and varied hats is said to have had its origin as a measure against plotting. An ancient ruler, the legend goes, once concluded that men could not conspire if they could not put their heads together. Hence he required his subjects to wear such huge hats that whispered conversations could not be carried on.

State Has Best Record in Soil, Water Conservation

Wisconsin made the best record of any state in the Upper Mississippi region in increased amounts of planned and applied soil and water conservation practices carried out through soil conservation districts during 1950 as compared to '49. This was indicated in the report received this week by supervisors of the Washington county district from M. F. Schweers, Mallison, who heads the U. S. Soil Conservation Service program in this state.
 Other states in the region are; Minnesota, Michigan, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Missouri.
 In commenting upon this record Schweers said: "We can all be justly proud of the work farmers of our state are doing to improve land use and conserve soil and water resources on their farms. After all, major credit for our showing rightly goes to the people on the land. Those we worked with are really interested in the program.

MANY ARE INTERESTED IN AIR TOUR TO VIEW SOIL EROSION

More than 50 farm and city folks have requested reservations for an aeroplane tour over Washington county. The tour will be on Sunday, July 15, and will be made in planes supplied by the State Aeronautics commission.

GRASS SILAGE DEMONSTRATION ON HERB LEPHEN FARM JUNE '38

Because of the heavy crop of '38 this year, many farmers are planning on putting some of the hay crop into the silo.

To give farmers who are putting up grass silage for the first time additional information, a demonstration will be held on the Herbert Lephen farm, Route 3, Hartford. The farm is located 2 miles north of Hartford and 1/2 mile west on the town road.

The demonstration will discuss grass silage making with a preservative and by the wilted method. F. V. Burcalow, extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, will direct the discussion.

MAIN STREET IN ACTION

Knowledge of Community's Resources Necessary to Get Most Effective Action

We concluded last week that any town, before it can deal justly and effectively with its own needs and problems, must know itself. A community must be realistically aware of its own character; and any self-improvement inevitably must be preceded by that knowledge.

Let us continue our examination of the wise and challenging study of the process of community development recently published in pamphlet form by the extension division of the University of Virginia and entitled "So You're Planning a Project."

A MAIN STREET FEATURE

Still applying the theme of the blanket necessity of community self-knowledge, the bulletin cites the case of a certain community development workshop in Virginia which began its work with 14 of its 17 members wanting "culture."

At the end of a year, its study-for-action program had progressed to the point where the workshop was putting pressure on the board of supervisors to appropriate money for a school canteen and luncheon.

They had learned enough of the community's conditions and circumstances to arrive at the very sound conclusion that culture was a poor substitute for food for undernourished children.

"It was in that same community," the pamphlet continues, "that a small college had for years brought concerts and lecturers of high caliber, inviting the entire community to enjoy the cultural fare free of charge. The response was meager. The college did not seek the reason, nor find ways of really reaching the tenants and sharecroppers who made up the community. It continued to offer culture—and to complain bitterly about the lack of appreciation.

"After making sure that you know your community and its actual needs, the next step is to know its resources. These may include state, regional, or federal resources upon which you may draw as well as the local assets."

For example, there was a case, typical of its kind, where a group of teachers in a small community became sharply aware of the need for library service in the surrounding rural areas from which many of the high school students came. They recommended that the school board purchase a bookmobile to distribute books from the town library and the high school library. The school board, however, felt that it was unable to swing such a purchase. It was two years before the group learned that the extension division of the state library had funds for helping counties to get such services.

"Resources that must be studied are not always related to money. Perhaps the most important are the human resources within your community. Continuous use of 'recognized leaders' often blinds a community to the potential leadership at its service. It, moreover, frequently handicaps a project because the few 'recognized leaders' are so overburdened with chairmanships and offices that they have too little time for any one program.

"In one rural county, a community development workshop had set up four 'continuing committees' in such areas of interest as industrial development, agricultural development, cultural activities, and recreation. Each had a 'recognized leader' as its chairman.

"Each one pledged himself to select and work with a capable young person with leadership ability and to push him forward until he, too, became a 'recognized leader.' The procedure worked, and has spread to other communities."

Now there's a point well taken. How many of us are jealous of the leadership we have, protecting it against encroachment from all sides? Do we accept, and even seek, leadership, all the time conscious of the fact that we don't have enough time to give the job the attention and work it needs? Leadership carries with it not only the obligation of leading wisely but also of wisely training others to lead, too.

Thus, we have two vital precepts that are the prerequisites to effective community action: Know your community and know the resources that are available to it. Next week we will deal with the third and perhaps most important step of all—capturing the feeling of the people of the community, getting them to care about what is being done.

Most business men generally are so busy coping with immediate and piecemeal matters that there is a lamentable tendency to let the "long run" or future take care of itself. We often are so busy "putting out fires," so to speak, that we find it difficult to do the planning that would prevent those fires from occurring in the first place. As a prominent educator has expressed it, Americans generally "spend so much time on things that are urgent that we have none left to spend on those that are important."

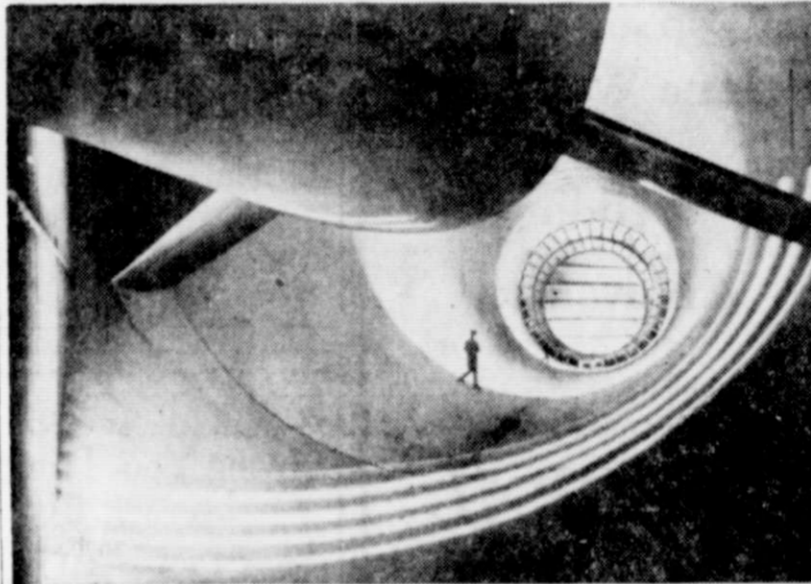

—Gustav Metzman

That's That!

Mrs. Jones - "Good morning, Doctor. I'm so terribly upset to hear of the death of Mrs. Spinks. It was so sad, and to think you were treating her for asthma and then for her to go and die of heart disease!"

Doctor (with determination) - "Mrs. Jones, when I treat a patient for asthma, that patient dies of asthma."

Who Laughs Last

"Doctor," said the sick man, "the other doctors seem to differ from you in their diagnosis of the case."

"I know," replied the physician cheerfully, "but the postmortem will show that I am right."

Something to Remember

Doctor (to patient) - "You've had a pretty close call. It's only your treating her for asthma that pulled you through."

Patient - "Well, doctor, remember that when you make out your bill."

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS of Main Street and the World

Cost-of-Living Index Stabilized For First Time Since June, 1950

THAT RISING SPIRAL—The government's predictions that prices would level off as a result of its numerous and sometimes confusing price regulations, seemed to be borne out with the announcement that the cost-of-living index has come to a dead stop.

The bureau of labor statistics put out two sets of figures that indicated the upward spiral had stopped for the first time since the outbreak of the Korean War last June.

Price Chief DiSalle He told trade farm bloc his beef rollback order was justified.

As for food prices, the average home town housewife couldn't notice any decline, but according to government figures it was there—all 2 of a percent of it. At the present time food prices are approximately 11.1 per cent above last June.

The confusing beef picture remained about the same with word from the White House that President Truman was "going to stand firm" behind Price Director Michael V. DiSalle on his order for the rollback.

THE PRICE WE PAY—For the first time since the Korean conflict began on June 25 of last year, the price we are paying for victory was made startling clear to the home town mothers and fathers of the nation.

Testifying before house and senate committees, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, reported there have been 72,679 non-battle casualties in Korea, boosting the total of U.S. casualties in the war to 141,955.

Bradley told the senators there have been 69,276 battle casualties, including 10,680 dead. Of the nonbattle casualties, 612 died of such causes as pneumonia, automobile accidents, etc. Eighty-five per cent of the rest have returned to duty.

Release of these figures confirms rumors long circulated in the nation that casualties have been more than double those officially announced.

TRUMAN AND THE HOME TOWN—It was evident that President Truman had the home towns of the nation on his mind during his recent news conference. At two points he indicated he had been giving them considerable thought.

For one thing, he told newsmen that a third world war would turn American soil into a battle front. He said he believed that the people have enough intelligence and energy to meet any situation. But he indicated he was unwilling to take a chance on seeing how they would react under the destruction another world struggle would bring to the home towns of the nation.

The President would not say whether he will be a candidate again in 1952, but he did indicate another of his famous cross-country tours to tell the home towners his policies was a possibility.

In the 1948 election campaign the President carried his message to the home towners and made hundreds of speeches to small but enthusiastic audiences. His appeal on the local level is credited with his success in that campaign. It seems likely, therefore, that another cross-country swing is but a matter of time.

APPEAL TO MAIN STREET—Governments may argue and pass regulations, but they are ineffective if Main Street doesn't support them. This outstanding trait of democracy was demonstrated again when the house agriculture committee appealed to housewives and consumer representatives to come forward and defend the beef rollback—aimed at cutting the price of beef 8 to 10 cents at butcher stores by October 1.

Under continued assault from cattlemen, packers and distributors, the committee decided the best counterattack would be from Main Street customers. They wanted to hear from any consumers or consumer groups who think the beef order will benefit them.

Meanwhile the government ordered a cut in the number of cattle that may be slaughtered this month. The quota will be 87 per cent of the weight slaughtered in June 1950. The purpose is to assure fair distribution of livestock among registered slaughterers and to prevent the rise of black markets.

WHAT CHANCES FOR PEACE?—Ever since the MacArthur incident impressed upon the man on Main Street the awful possibility of years of struggle in Korea, one question has been uppermost in the mind of every American—what are the chances for peace?

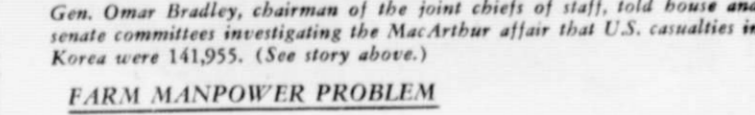

At present there are being circulated rumors of peace proposals. These rumors have grown since United Nations troops broke the back of the second Chinese offensive and then plunged northward to kill and capture thousands of Red troops.

But it would be well for the home towners to remember that talk of peace as circulated now are but rumors—nothing more. It would be futile to pin the hope of peace on a rumor and then have it deflated by another Communist attack. Military leaders in Korea report the killing and capture of thousands of Red soldiers, but still warn they are capable of another offensive. It is well to remember that peace can not be made by one party—there must be two.

RED CROSS IN KOREA—The American Red Cross, to which millions of people in the home towns of the nation have contributed their dollars, this month is launching the operations of 28 clubmobiles for the troops in Korea. The clubmobiles, to be staffed by 60 Red Cross girls, were requested by the military because of their adaptability to the quick-shifting Korean war front.

A popular feature of the Red Cross services to the armed forces in World War II, the clubmobiles will provide airmen and ground troops with free coffee and doughnuts, recorded music, and stationery.

They will supplement the one large Red Cross club operating at the port of Pusan. At present approximately 360 Red Cross workers and more than 3,000 volunteers are now serving American troops in Asia.

The Senator and the General Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, told house and senate committees investigating the MacArthur affair that U.S. casualties in Korea were 141,955. (See story above.)

Better Living Standard May Ease Problem

Reports from many sections of the country continue to show no improvement in the farm manpower problem. Draft boards are still handing out few deferments for agriculture.

Industry is also draining off a great part of the remaining farm manpower, reports indicate.

As a result, the nation is entering a period of mobilization—almost a state of war—with the fewest farm workers in its history.

The labor problem is further complicated by the fact that many workers now available are capable of handling nothing more complicated than a hoe. They are a poor substitute for a hired hand or son who has a lifetime of training in agronomy, animal husbandry, and power machinery.

Areas most severely hurt by the present shortage are those near big industrial plants and arsenals where farm labor can get high wages. To offset this the farmer will have to meet the challenge of industry to his labor force by offering better working conditions, good housing, and perhaps higher pay, farm experts report.

Doing away with the double standard of living and giving the hired man's family every advantage for good living will keep many workers down on the farm who are tempted to take defense jobs.

KATHLEEN NORRIS Does It Pay?

ELIZA HARRIS, of Plainfield, N.J., sends me the following letter, which I consider remarkable.

"Does my name sound firm and New Englandy and business-like?" she begins. "If it does, it fits me. I'm 38, good-looking, tall, married, to a nice fellow for 10 years, mother of four children. Girls of 8 and 4. Boys of 9 and 6. Income, about $5,000. Health, at the moment, good all 'round. Home, 10 rooms and two porches. One car, four radios, one video. No domestic help.

"My story is one of responsibility, responsibility, and more responsibility. I've always loved my life, but it never has been easy. At 14, with a delicate mother, three brothers, and not enough money, I was cooking, making beds, marketing, trimming Christmas trees, stretching money, sewing, mending, planning. And I'm doing just that now, 24 years later.

Proliferate Family "Two younger brothers were still at home when I married, and Mother still frail, so my dinner on my wedding night was cooked for five persons, by me. A few days later John was born, and my sister joined us to have her baby at home, where Liz could take care of her. When my child was three months old and hers three weeks, our home burned down. We moved into the barn, Mother going to an aunt's house for awhile. Both brothers married girls who had no home connections nearby, and my sister, Rose and I gave them their weddings. We are a prolific lot; there are now 12 children in the three families.

"We bought two houses, next door to each other, and the deadly serious years began. Mother came home accompanied by a crippled brother; he was with us 10 years. Rose's husband died. We adopted a half-grown girl who helped with the children until she married.

"Oh, there was plenty of fun. Win and I have had a trip or two; the families have some cabins up in the mountains where we all go for our summers. We're great picknickers, and we love games, we all pitch in and help when a bride is to be fitted out or a baby is coming.

"But what about the measles, the money scares, the poor marks in grammar school, the shabbiness of chairs and curtains, the winters when everyone has colds, the lost car keys, the rising prices of everything, the adolescent problems and expenses and expectations ahead, the endless line of muddy shoes, lost rubbers, noise all over the house, tearful little girls, rebellious little boys, plans that don't mature; and what of all the trips and fur coats and beautiful rooms and ease and dignity of living that I know I'll never have? I'm 38.

Tired and Doubtful "This morning I'm somehow tired and doubtful. Everything I've ever done seems half-finished and not worth while. I think of the eagles and fear I've gone through over the children's accidents, or this one's possible polio or that one's threatened eye trouble, and the trays carried upstairs and the toys mended—and oh, well!" Eliza finishes her letter, "that's enough of this, and tear up my letter and don't answer my commonplace, everyday problems!"

But I do answer, Eliza, and I repeat that I think your letter, and you, remarkable. And I hope, for the sake of this mighty nation, that what you are doing is really everyday and commonplace.

Yours is a magnificent story of service, sacrifice, and—I know, joy. I know there are hours of deep satisfaction and pride along the road of such a life as yours, pride and satisfaction such as no trips and furs and ease and dignity ever could give you. Yours is life as I truly believe God meant women to live it, undoing the wrongs and injustices to which we all are heir, binding up wounds, putting happiness and health into children's lives, holding not one but several families together.

You see only the roughness and the loose ends and the failures and the fatigues now. But when you are old, you'll see differently.

Why They Quit A recent study to find out why good employees left their jobs disclosed the following reasons: Lack of prestige; insecurity; wasted talent; indefinite promotions; poor pay; poor leadership; poor working conditions; unpleasant associates.

Not The King Although the lion is called the "King of the Beasts" he is not the largest, strongest or even the bravest member of the animal world.

Window Plants Apartment dwellers can grow bigger and better blooms in their window boxes and plant trays by using Terra-Lite vermiculite. A little vermiculite mixed with the soil assures an adequate supply of air and moisture.

Well Covered There are now well over three million "life insurance tithers" in the U.S.—spending units putting 10 per cent or more of their disposable income into this form of protection.

Salad Dressings, Fresh Greens Add Salad Variety To Summertime Servings

SUMMERTIME puts a real drain on salad inspiration since you may be serving at least two a day. Keep 'em interesting and different, and you'll have no trouble keeping the family happy at mealtime.

Use greens abundantly while they are available, and at the peak of their goodness. Served raw, they can easily substitute for a vegetable. Large fruit salads may be served so they're a good substitute for dessert, as well as doubling for the salad course.

Try a few new salad dressings to pep up old favorite salads, and see what a difference it makes in keeping the salads varied. Here are two that are especially suited for vegetable salads.

Smooth Salad Dressing (Makes about 2 cups) 1 cup cider vinegar 3 eggs, well beaten 2 tablespoons lemon juice 3 tablespoons sugar 1 teaspoon dry mustard 1 teaspoon celery salt 1 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup sour cream

In a saucepan, heat cider vinegar to boiling point; remove from heat. In a bowl, combine eggs, lemon juice, sugar, dry mustard, celery salt, salt and pepper. Slowly add egg mixture to cider vinegar. Return to low heat and stir constantly until mixture is thick and smooth. Remove from heat and fold in sour cream. Cool. Pour into a clean bottle or jar; cover. Store in refrigerator. Serve with vegetable salads.

"Perfection Salad Dressing (Makes 1 1/2 cups) 1 tablespoon butter 1 tablespoon flour 1 cup milk 2 eggs, slightly beaten 1/2 cup cider vinegar 2 tablespoons sugar 1 teaspoon dry mustard 1/2 teaspoon paprika 1 1/2 teaspoons salt

In a saucepan, melt butter over low heat; add flour and blend. Add milk; cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, stirring constantly. Add remaining ingredients. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and beat with rotary egg beater. Cool. Pour into a bottle or jar; cover. Store in refrigerator. Serve with crisp vegetable salads.

Fruit French Dressing (Makes 1 1/2 cups) 1/2 cup sugar 1 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon paprika Juice of 1 orange Juice of 1 lemon 1 tablespoon vinegar 1 cup salad oil 1 teaspoon grated onion

Combine ingredients in bottle or jar; cover and shake thoroughly.

Clear Fruit Dressing (Makes 1 1/2 cups) 1/2 cup sugar 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard 1/4 cup vinegar 1 cup salad oil

Combine sugar, salt, mustard, and vinegar; bring to boiling; cool and add oil slowly, beating constantly with rotary beater.

A budget salad for budget meals is this nutritious vegetable salad served with Perfection Salad Dressing. Crisp endive, spinach leaves and chery composed the greenery while decoratively cut carrot slices are added for color.

LYNN SAYS: Select Quality Vegetables By these Characteristics Asparagus when at its best has straight stalks that are from 6 to 10 inch stalks, with a fresh, green color. Stalks which are thin, wilted, tough or woody or stalks with loose tips are to be avoided.

When green beans begin to bulge they are usually too old to be used. They should be crisp and full with clean colored green or yellow pods. The pods are best when they're as straight as possible.

Look for fresh lima beans in the shell, as they become slimy and moldy very quickly when they're shelled. Dark spots of flabby, bulging shells indicate moldy beans.

A smooth skin and a deep bright red color are good indications for selecting quality "young" beets which are now in season. Withered leaves and tough stems indicate lack of freshness.

Test the weight of a head of cabbage before buying. If it's heavier than it looks for the size, it's probably good, provided there's no discolored veins or worm injury.

Favorite foods like macaroni, cheese and deviled ham are served in an unusual way in this hearty salad bowl which can be the main dish for luncheon or supper. Seasonings for this salad include a touch of onion, worcestshire sauce and vinegar.

 meet a long felt need of your community.
 Additional favorable comments are made as follows:
 1. A program of re-decoration of interior walls and ceilings is under way, so that each year an additional part of the building is made more attractive. You have something to show at as the decorating in the new grade building shows the way and is evidence that you know what is wanted by way of up-to-date interior finish. Keep it up, you are doing splendidly.
 2. Your physical education program under the direction of Mr. Bade, is making fine progress. He is being ably assisted by Miss Stathas.
 3. The guidance service for boys and girls under the direction of Mr. Reynolds has made a good start and should be expanded. Mr. Reynolds will make his wants known and they should be reorganized. The expense of giving this service will not be very great. As your school increases in size he will need to be freed from some of his teaching duties. Several suggestions were left with him to consider as he develops the program of guidance.
 4. A program of audio-visual education has been started and is making good progress. It should be expanded and if possible placed under the direction of some one of your teachers to carry forward.
 Additional suggestions for improvement were left with Mr. Rose. They are:
 1. At least one more sewing machine is needed in the home making department. Miss Heister can explain this need and give the information as to the make of machine desired.
 2. It was suggested to Mr. Rose that a determined effort be made to make all class periods of equal length. The lengthened period is a move in the right direction and should be extended throughout the day.

 3. The use of the lengthened period should be carefully studied by the entire faculty and the desired techniques developed for carrying out this feature successfully. Mr. Rose understands what is wanted.
 The library was evaluated, library records checked, and the use of library materials discussed with the librarian and various teachers.
 The recent addition of many new books has improved the service the library can give, and has brought about a noticeable increase in pupil reading. The additional library periods assigned to Miss Schipper have given her an opportunity to put the catalog and all other records in order, and to select books with a greater consideration of pupil needs. Careful culling has removed many obsolete books from the shelves.
 The many improvements already made, and the continued development of good library service, will do much to give the young people the incentive which is necessary if they are to become good readers who know how to use books to gain the information they require as they meet their problems of living.

 I am pleased to get the very favorable report on your fine school and to know about the improvements that have been made and also to learn what has been planned for the future. You are certainly giving your fine group of boys and girls real opportunities to go ahead with their education. The supervisors appreciated the many courtesies shown them by Mr. Rose, the teachers and the pupils. They will look forward to future visits at your school.
 Very truly yours,
 G. E. Watson,

CPL. STAUTZ WEEK ENDS
 Cpl. Jerome Stautz and wife of Camp McCoy, Wis. visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stautz here Saturday and Sunday.

A man who boasts about his ancestors confesses that he belongs to a family better off dead than alive.—Oscar Wilde

Two feet of snow was enough last winter to keep the ground from freezing, even when temperatures dipped to 20 below. That's the report after frost measurements at two University of Wisconsin experiment stations.

June is National Dairy month. It is indeed fitting that we place emphasis on the importance of the dairy industry and honor the 25,999,000 cows that convert grass, grain and hay into a food that is so essential to childhood development and adult well-being.

Cheese Sauces Add Zestful Tang, Attractive Appearance And Increased Nutritional Value to Favorite Foods

One of the advantages of using plenty of cheese in cooking is the ease with which it can be combined with an endless variety of other foods for new taste adventures.
 A happy way of using cheese in connection with other foods, says the Wisconsin State Department of Agriculture, is by means of cheese sauces. Thus you add the high nutritive value of cheese, plus its appetizing taste, to the other foods.

Here is a tested cheese sauce recipe for use with meat, eggs or fish.

BECHAMEL SAUCE
 1/4 cup butter, melted 2 cups chicken stock or 2 bouillon cubes in 2 cups water
 6 tablespoons flour 1 cup thick cream
 3/4 teaspoon salt 8 olives, stoned and finely cut
 1/2 teaspoon paprika 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 Dash of pepper Wisconsin Natural American Cheese, grated

Blend butter, flour, and seasonings. Add combined stock and cream. Cook until thick. Remove from fire, add olives and lemon juice, mix well. May be served over oysters, stuffed eggs, or fish fillets. Sprinkle cheese over top.
